indriya-samatta: 'equilibrium, balance, or harmony of faculties', relates to the five spiritual faculties: faith, energy, mindfulness, concentration and wisdom (see indriya 15–19). Of these there are two pairs of faculties, in each of which both faculties should well counterbalance each other, namely: faith and wisdom (saddhā, paññā, q.v.) on the one hand and energy and concentration (viriya, samādhi, q.v.) on the other. For excessive faith with deficient wisdom leads to blind belief, while excessive wisdom with deficient faith leads to cunning. In the same way, great energy with weak concentration leads to restlessness, while strong concentration with deficient energy leads to indolence. Though for both faculties in each of the two pairs a balanced degree of intensity is desirable, mindfulness should be allowed to develop to the highest degree of strength. See Vism III.
