THE PATH OF FREEDOM

Vimuttimagga

Upatissa Thera

Buddhism/Meditation BP208S

THE PATH OF FREEDOM
(Vimuttimagga)

The Vimuttimagga is a manual of meditation, evidently based on the experience of Buddhist monks in ancient times and compiled for the guidance of those intent on a contemplative life. The work is compiled in accordance with the classical Buddhist division of the path into the three stages of virtue, concentration, and wisdom, culminating in the goal of liberation. It is widely believed that the Vimuttimagga may have been the model used by Ācariya Buddhaghosa to compose his magnum opus, the Visuddhimagga, several centuries later. The older work is marked by a leaner style and a more lively sense of urgency stemming from its primarily practical orientation.

The Vimuttimagga is ascribed to the Buddhist monk Upatissa, who is believed to have lived in Sri Lanka in the first half of the first millennium. The original Pali text of the work no longer exists, but fortunately a Chinese translation of it, made in the sixth century, has survived. It is from that work that the present translation into English has been made.

ISBN 978-955-24-0054-4

BPS Buddhist Publication Society Inc.
P.O. Box 61, 54, Sangharaja Mawatha, Kandy, Sri Lanka
Tel: +94 81 2237283 Fax: +94 81 2223679
E-mail: bps@sltnet.lk Website: http://www.bps.lk

The Path of Freedom

Vimuttimagga

The Path of Freedom

Vimuttimagga

By

Upatissa Thera

Translated into Chinese as Jiě-tuò-dào-lùn

by

Tipiṭaka Saṅghapāla of Funan

Translated from the Chinese

by

Rev. N. R. M. Ehara, Soma Thera, and Kheminda Thera

Buddhist Publication Society
P.O. Box 61
54 Sangharaja Mawatha
Kandy, Sri Lanka

First privately published in 1961 by Dr. D. Roland D. Weerasuria
Reprinted by the BPS in 1977 and 1995
Second, revised edition 2009. Edited by Bhikkhu Nyanatusita.

Copyright © 1995, 2012 Buddhist Publication Society

ISBN-10: 955–24–0054–6
ISBN-13: 978-955-24-0054-4

Printed in Sri Lanka by Contents

Saṅghapāla of Funan 33
The Origin of the Vimuttimagga Manuscript in China 39
Saṅghabhara or Saṅghapāla? 40
The Visuddhimagga 42
The Vimuttimagga and the Visuddhimagga 43

Explanation 50
Reason for Teaching the Path of Freedom 51
The Three Groups of Virtue, Concentration, Wisdom 52
Three Kinds of Good 55
Three Kinds of Happiness 56
The Middle Way 56

Virtue Defined 58
Characteristic of Virtue 60
Function, Manifestation and Near Cause of Virtue 60
Benefits of Virtue 60
Further Defining of Virtue 61
Stages In Virtue 62
Obstacles and Causes of Virtue 63
Kinds of Virtue 63
Two Kinds 63
Second Two 64
Third Two 64
Fourth Two 64

Fifth Two 64
Sixth Two 65
Seventh Two 66
Eighth Two 66
Ninth Two 66
Tenth Two 66
Three Kinds 67
First Three 67
Second Three 67
Third Three 67
Fourth Three 68
Fifth Three 68
Sixth Three 69
Seventh Three 69
Eighth Three 69
Four Kinds 69
First Four 69
Second Four 70
Third Four 70
Fourth Four 70
Fifth Four 402b19 71
Virtue of the purity of livelihood 74
Virtue of the restraint of the sense-faculties (indriyasaṃvara-sīla) 75
Virtue connected with the Requisites 75
Four reflections 76
Three reflections 76
Virtue connected with the use of requisites 77
Summary 77
Purity of Virtue and its Characteristic 78
Causes through Which One Dwells in Virtue 79

Refuse-robe-wearer 83
Three-robes-wearer 83
Alms-food-eater 84
Continuous-alms-round-goer 84
One-sitting-eater 85
Measured-food-eater 85
One-who-never-eats-a-meal-afterwards 86
Forest-dweller 86
Tree-root-dweller 87
Open-air-dweller 88
Charnel-ground-dweller 405c19 88
Any-mat-user 89
Sitter 89
Expedients 90
Abridgements of the Thirteen Asceticisms 92
Miscellaneous Topics 92

Meaning of Concentration 95
Benefits Produced by Concentration 97
Obstacles, Causes and Requisites of Concentration 98
Two Kinds of Concentration 99

Three Kinds of Concentration 99
Four Kinds of Concentration 100
Five Kinds of Concentration 103
Why Four and Five Jhānas are Taught 104

Qualities of the Good Friend 106
The Search for a Good Friend 107

Kinds of Temperament 111
Fourteen Persons 111
Seven Persons 112
Quick and Slow Practice 113
Three Persons 113
Seven Aspects of Temperament 114
Object 114
Defilements 115
Gait 115
Wearing robes 115
Eating 115
Work 116
Lying down 116
What is suitable for which temperament? 117
Miscellaneous Topics on Distinguishing Temperament 117

Thirty-Eight Meditation subjects 118
Distinctions 119
Jhāna 119
Transcending 119
Increasing 119
Condition 119
Object 120
Specialness 121
Plane 122
Taking 122
Person 123

Earth kasiṇa 126
Characteristics, Benefit and Meaning 126
Kinds of Earth 127
On Making a Disk 128
Disadvantages of Sense-pleasures 128
Method of Practice of the Earth kasiṇa 131
Three Ways of Taking the Sign 131
Even watching 131
Skills 131
Abandoning wavering 132
The Sign 132
Access-jhāna and Jhāna 134

Increasing of the Kasiṇa 135
Skilfulness in Jhāna 135
First Jhāna 138
Seclusion from Sense-pleasures 138
Seclusion from Unwholesome States 139
Thinking and Exploring 141
The difference between thinking and exploring 141
Seclusion 142
Rapture and Happiness 143
Happiness 144
Explanation of First Jhāna and its Factors 145
The Factors, Characteristics, Qualities, etc. 145
Five Hindrances 146
Five Jhāna Factors 147
Three Kinds of Goodness 149
Ten Characteristics 149
Twenty-Five Qualities 417a20 150
Three Kinds of Rebirth 151
Falling back, Stability, Distinction and Penetration 152
Second Jhāna 154
First Mastering the First Jhāna 154
Disadvantage of the First Jhāna 154
Factors of the second jhāna 155
Third Jhāna 158
Disadvantage of the second jhāna 158
Factors of the third jhāna 158
Fourth Jhāna 163
Disadvantages of the third jhāna 163
Factors of the fourth jhāna 163
Base of boundless space 166
Disadvantage of the fourth jhāna 166
Attaining the base of boundless space 167
Definition of the base of boundless space 167
Base of Boundless Consciousness 169
Disadvantage of the base of boundless space 169
Attaining the base of boundless consciousness 170
Definition of the base of boundless consciousness 170
Base of Nothingness 171
Disadvantage of the base of boundless consciousness 171
Attaining the base of nothingness 171
Definition of the base of nothingness 171
Base of Neither-perception-nor-non-perception 172
Reflecting on the disadvantage of the base of nothingness 172
Attaining the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception 172
Definition of the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception 173
Miscellaneous Topics on the Attainments 174
Other Kasiṇas 175
Water kasiṇa 175
Fire kasiṇa 176
Wind kasiṇa 177
Blue Kasiṇa 178
Yellow Kasiṇa 178
Red Kasina 179
White Kasiṇa 179
Light Kasiṇa 180
Space Kasiṇa 180
Consciousness Kasiṇa 181

Miscellaneous Topics on the Kasiṇas 181
Ten Perceptions of the Foul 182
1. Perception of the bloated 182
2. Perception of the livid 186
3. Perception of the festering 186
4. Perception of the chopped off and scattered 186
5. Perception of the gnawed 187
6. Perception of the scattered 187
7. Perception of the slain and scattered 187
8. Perception of the blood-smeared 187
9. Perception of the maggot-infested 188
10. Perception of the skeleton 188
Miscellaneous Topics on Foulness 188
Ten Recollections 191
Recollection of the Buddha 191
Recollection of the Dhamma 199
Recollection of the Saṅgha 201
Recollection of Virtue 203
Recollection of Liberality 204
Recollection of Gods 205
Mindfulness of Breathing 205
Benefits 206
Procedure 206
Training grounds 1 to 2 207
Arising of the sign 208
Four ways of practising 210
Training grounds 2 to 16 211
Miscellaneous Topics 431c06 216
Recollection of death 217
Recollection of the body Error! Bookmark not defined.
Mindfulness in thirteen ways 222
Seed 222
Location 222
Condition 222
Oozing 223
Gradual formation 223
Worms 224
Supporting 225
Assemblage 226
Loathesomeness 226
Uncleanness 226
Dependence 226
Ungratefulness 227
Finitude 434b17 227
Conclusion 227
Recollection of Stilling 227
Miscellaneous Topics on the Ten Recollections 229
The Four Immeasurables 229
The Immeasurable Mind of Loving-kindness 229
Disadvantages of anger and resentment 230
Skillful means for removing anger 233
Cultivating loving-kindness 234
Loving-kindness and the ten perfections 235
The four resolves 237
The Immeasurable Heart of Compassion 237
The Immeasurable Heart of Appreciative Joy 238
The Immeasurable Heart of Equanimity 239

Miscellaneous Topics on the Four Immeasurables 240
Defining of the Four Great Entities 243
Grasping the elements in brief 243
Grasping the elements at length 244
Ten Ways of Defining the Great Entities 244
Word meaning 244
Function 247
Groups 247
Pulverizing 248
Inseparability 248
Condition 248
Characteristic 250
Similarity and dissimilarity 250
Unity and difference 250
Element-puppet 250
Conclusion 251
Perception of Repulsiveness of Food 251
Five ways 252
Searching 252
Breaking up and using 253
Location 253
Oozing 253
Assemblage 253
Conclusion 253
The Base of Nothingness and the Base of Neither-perception-nor-non-perception 254
Conclusion 254

Three kinds of supernormal power 255
Seven kinds of supernormal power 255
1. Supernormal power due to the pervasive force of knowledge 256
2. Supernormal power due to the pervasive force of concentration 256
3. Supernormal power of the Noble Ones 256
4. Supernormal power born of kamma-result 257
5. Supernormal power of the meritorious 257
6. Supernormal power sprung from magic knowledge 257
7. Supernormal power supernormal power due to [right] application 257
Procedure of developing supernormal power 258
Supernormal power of resolve 260
Supernormal power of miraculous transformation 262
Supernormal power sprung from mind 263
Miscellaneous Topics on supernormal power 263
Divine ear 264
Knowledge of Others' Minds 264
Recollection of Past Lives 266
Divine eye 267
Miscellaneous Topics 269

Definition and Benefits of Wisdom 271
Two Kinds of Wisdom 273
Three Kinds of Wisdom 273
Four Kinds of Wisdom 274

Skills

Aggregate-skill 279
Aggregate of Matter 279
Four great entities 279
Derived matter 279
Sense-bases 280
Remainder of derived matters 281
Difference between the four great entities and derived matter 282
Matter to be known in five ways 282
By way of producing 282
By way of groups 283
By way of birth 286
By way of diversity 287
Groups of Two in Matters 287 Groups of Three in Matters 288
Four Kinds of Matters 289
By way of unity 289
Aggregate of Feeling 290
Aggregate of Perception 291
Aggregate of Formations 292
Meaning and similes 293
Aggregate of Consciousness 296
Bases and objects 297
Objects 297
States 299
Four Ways of Knowing Five Aggregates 299
Word Meaning 300
Characteristic 300
Distinguishing 300
Inclusion 301
Sense-base Skill 302
Five Ways of Knowing the Sense-bases 303
Word meaning. 303
Sense–range-object 304
Condition 304
Occurrence of the process of mind 306
Simile of the mango 307
Inclusion. 308
Element-skill 308
Inclusion 309
Dependent arising Skill 310
Defining the Links 311
Simile of the seeds 312
Simile of the sun and the simile of the two bundles of reeds 313
Simile of the seed, shoot and plant 314
Dependent arising within a single mind-state 315
Questions on actions, defilements, results, etc. 317
Dependent Arising to be Known in Seven Ways 318
Three links 318
Four Summaries 321
Twenty modes 322
Manner 323
Analysis 323
Inclusion 324
Noble Truths Skill 325
Truth of Suffering 326

Two and three kinds of suffering 326
Truth of the Origination of Suffering 327
Truth of the Cessation of Suffering 328
Truth of the Path Leading to Cessation of Suffering 328
Why Four Noble Truths are Taught 329
Eleven Ways of Knowing the Four Noble Truths 330
Word meaning 330
Characteristics 331
Sequentially 332
Summary 332
Simile 333
Analysis 333
Enumeration 334
Oneness 335
Diversity 335
Successive explanation 336
Inclusion 337

Defining the Truth of Suffering 339
Analysis of the Four Noble Truths 339
Procedure 339
Defining the Truth of Origination 340
Understanding the Source of Suffering 340
Defining the Truth of Cessation 341
Defining the Truth of the Path to the Cessation of Suffering 341
Seeing the characteristics 341
Grasping the Sign 343
Grasping the aggregates in three ways 344
Grasping the Sign of Defilements 344
Grasping the Sign of Concentration 344
Grasping the Sign of Insight 344
Grasping the Sign of the Aggregates 345
Two ways of grasping of the sign of mind 345
Rise-and-fall-knowledge 345
Characteristics of rise and fall in three ways 346
Acquiring the highest knowledge 347
Four states 348
Delimitation-of-formations-knowledge 350
Dissolution-contemplation Knowledge (bhaṅgānupassana-ñāṇa) 350
Seeing dissolution through three ways 351
Through groups 351
Through pairs 351
Through Analysis 352
Appearing-as-fearful-knowledge (bhayatupaṭṭhānañāṇa) 357
The Desire-for-release-knowledge (muñcitukamyatāñāṇa) 357
Conformity-knowledge (anulomañāṇa) 358
Change-of-lineage-knowledge (gotrabhuñāṇa) 359
Path-knowledge (magga-ñāṇa) 360
Similes 361
Three fetters 363
Stream-enterer 365
Once-Returner 367
Non-Returner 367
Arahant 367

Three Kinds of Stream-enterer 368
Rebirth of Once-Returner & Non-Returner 369
Five Kinds of Non-Returner 369
The Arahant 370
Gradual realization of the Fruit 371
Flaw One 371
Flaw Two 371
Flaw Three 372
Fourth flaw 372
Fifth flaw 372
Sixth flaw 372
Seventh flaw 373
Objection 373
Miscellaneous Topics 373
Insight 373
Thinking 374
Rapture 374
Feelings 375
Planes 375
Faculties 376
The Three Liberations 376
Hundred thirty-four Defilements 379
Three Roots of Unwholesomeness 379
Three Searches 379
Four Taints 379
Four Knots 380
Four Torrents and Four Yokes 380
Four Clingings 380
Four Kinds of Going the Wrong Way 380
Five Kinds of Stinginess 381
Five Hindrances 381
Six Roots of Dispute 381
Seven Latent tendencies 381
Eight Worldly Conditions 382
Nine Conceits 382
Ten Grounds for Defilements 382
Ten Grounds for Annoyance 383
Ten Courses of Unwholesome Action 383
Ten Fetters 383
Ten wrongnesses 383
Twelve Perversions 384
Twelve Arisings of Unwholesome Mind 384
Two attainments 385
Fruition-attainment 385
Attainment of the cessation of perception and feeling 388

Discovery of the Text 393
Vimuktimārga and Dhutaṅga-nirdeśa; the Author and his Translators into Chinese and Tibetan 393
Subject Matter of the Text 395

Practices of Purification 396
The Method of Treatment 398
Variations in Different Versions 399
Essenes 400
Note 400
Abbreviations 400

§ 1. The Aims and Objects of the Practices of Purification. 402
§ 2. Thirteen qualities of Purification. 402
§ 3. The Meaning of the Thirteen Practices. 403
§ 4. (I) The Practice of One who wears Dusty Rags. 403
§ 5. (II) The Practice of One who wears Three Garments [only]. 404
6. (III) The Practice of One who lives on Alms. 405
7. (IV) The Practice of One who moves on for Food in succession. 406
§ 8. (V) The Practice of One who has only One Sitting for his Food. 406
§ 9. (VI) The Practice of One who takes Measured Food. 408
§ 10. (VII) The Practice of One who takes No Extra Food after Meal. 408
11. (VIII) The Practice of One who lives in a Forest. 409
§ 12. (IX) The Practice of One who lives in the vicinity of a Tree. 410
§ 13. (X) The Practice of One who lives in the open. 411
§ 14. (XI) The Practice of One who lives in a Cemetery. 411
§ 15. (XII) The Practice of One who lives in a place as found. 412
§ 16. (XIII) The Practice of One who Sits Up. 413
§ 17. Expediencies 414
§ 18. Abridgement of the Thirteen Practices. 415
19. Miscellaneous 416
§ 20. Supplementary Questions. 418

Editions used in Footnotes in Taishō:

The three imperial editions of the Sung 宋, Yuan 元 and Ming 明 dynasties, i.e., roughly about 1239 CE., 1290 CE., and 1601 CE., respectively.
The old Sung or "Palace" edition 宮, 1104–1148 CE, belonging to the library of the Japanese Imperial Household.

Prefatory Note to the Original Draft Translation

In the following pages is a draft translation of the first fascicle of Jiě-tuò-dào-lùn (Vimuttimagga), No. 1648 of the Taishō Edition of the Chinese Tripiṭaka (No. 1293 in Nanjio's Catalogue). The pages of the text are given in square brackets. This is circulated with the hope of receiving suggestions and criticisms helpful towards bringing out a complete translation of the Vimuttimagga. We have derived much help from Prof. R. Higata's Japanese translation of the Jiě-tuò-dào-lùn, and Prof. Pe Maung Tin's English translation of the Visuddhimagga.

N. R. M. Ehara
V. E. P. Pulle
G. S. Prelis

Jozaiji,
Kawatana-Machi,
Nagasaki-Ken. Japan.
Hanamatsuri, the eighth day of the fourth lunar month, May 28, 1936.

Acknowledgements (Original Draft Translation)

Jozaiji,
Kawatana-Machi, Nagasaki-Ken, Japan.
August 19, 1936

For having encouraged us, we offer our hearty thanks to Dr. C. A. F. Rhys Davids; J.F. McKechnie Esq. (England); Prof. Dr. Wilhelm Geiger (Germany); Dr. B. C. Law, Ven. Nyanatiloka Mahā Thera, Ven. Nārada Thera (India and Ceylon); Dr. Unrai Woghihara, Dr. Makoto Nagai, Prof. Nichiki Kimura, Prof. Giokei Umada, Dr. Baiye Henmi, Prof. Chotatsu Ikeda, Prof. Kaijo Ishikawa, Prof. Kairyu Yamamoto, Prof. Yukio Sakamoto, Rev. Sho-on Mizuno (Tokyo); Dr. Giei Honda, Prof. Chizen Akamuma (Kyoto); Prof. Ryusho Higata (Fukuoka).

N.R.M. Ehara
V.E. Pulle
G.S. Prelis

Preface

In the late twenties, Victor and I had heard from the late Mr. Wong Mow Lam, the Chinese scholar, who was in Ceylon for some time, that there were great possibilities for spreading the Theravāda in his country and that there was much that could be translated from the Mahāyāna literature of China. So when we went to Burma in 1934, remembering the words of our scholar friend, we decided after careful thought to go to the Far East and return later to Burma for ordination. [By way of Bangkok, Penang, Singapore, and Hongkong] we arrived in Shanghai. Finding there no fascilities for study we proceeded to Tokyo. There we met Prof. Nichiki Kimura of Rissho University, who invited us to attend his English lectures on Mahāyāna. Towards the end of 1935, through his good offices, we were invited to Jozaiji, the Nichiren temple in Kawatana-Machi, Nagasakiken. The head of that temple, the Rev. N.R.M. Ehara, had been a lecturer at Rissho for sometime. He was the perfect host—a most understanding, patient, pleasant, witty character with abundant laughter, and he was young. He did everything within his power to make our stay as comfortable as possible.

When we arrived at Kawatana-Machi, Jozaiji was being rebuilt. By the end of April, the building operations over, our host set apart the new guest-house for our use and called it the Lion Hall, "in honour," as he said, "of the Lion Isle, the home of my friends." We spent a most pleasant and fruitful year in our Lion Hall, for, it was here that the whole of the Gedatsu Dō Ron (the Chinese translation of the Vimuttimagga) was translated into English for the first time. Perhaps it will not be out of place to mention here that when the late Ven. Ñāṇatiloka Mahā Thera was in Japan during the years that followed the First World War, he tried, but failed, to persuade any Japanese scholar to undertake this translation. So when we sent him a copy of our translation, he heartily welcomed it. The word for word translation the draft translation, copying, cyclostyling, binding, packing for the post, were all done by the three of us and that during the brief space of four months. Besides, the section on virtue had to be cyclostyled thrice before Victor was satisfied with it.

This is how the translation began: Some days after we went into residence in the Lion Hall, our friend showed us around his new library. Pointing to three thin volumes he said that was the Chinese translation of the Vimuttimagga, and that originally it was supposed to have been written in Pali in Ceylon by a Sinhalese Thera. With one voice both of us exclaimed that we were ready to begin translating it that very instant—of course, with his help. And our friend, with his great big ringing laughter, readily agreed. And we immediately translated the first few pages though he had much to do, it being very close to Hanamatsuri, the Flower Festival, which corresponds to Vesak in Theravāda lands. Working incessantly we managed to issue the translation of the first fascicle on Hanamatsuri, May 28, 1936. Continuing to work even up to twenty hours a day sometimes we were able to post the last copy of the last section of the translation to fifty scholars by the last day of September, 1936. During this period Victor knew no fatigue in that most agreeable climate of South Japan.

During these four months of translation work, the thought that repeatedly arose in our minds was how soon could we return to Burma for ordination and put into practice the teaching of the Sambuddha so clearly set forth in the Vimuttimagga. It was plain, open, and easy to understand. What it said reached the heart direct—hadayaṅgama seemed to be the correct word to describe one's reaction on reading the Vimuttimagga for the first time. There was no point in delaying.

But for Ven. Soma's indomitable energy and earnestness this work would not have been undertaken, persisted in, and brought to a conclusion in just four months. Whenever any difficulty arose it was to him that the others turned. When we were tempted to give up the work on encountering really hard patches, he was always ready with encouragement and with a way out of the difficulty. He loved to work hard, and half-hearted effort was unknown to him. Not infrequently he used to say, "Better wear out than rust out."

***

As stated above, the draft translation of the Jiĕ-tuò-dào-lùn (being the Chinese name for the Vimuttimagga) was completed in four months. Therefore it was thought that it needed some revision. This the Venerable Soma Thera intended to do on his return to Ceylon in 1937. But he fell ill and by the end of 1939 the Second World War was already three months old. All hope of publishing the revised edition of the original draft translation during the war had to be given up. With the end of the war, however, conditions were even less favourable. Meanwhile, though the Venerable Soma Thera wished to complete the revision and await a favourable occasion to publish it, other work he had undertaken prevented him from doing so. Further, asthma robbed him of much of his time. Thus the work he intended to do on the Vimuttimagga translation had to be postponed each time he took it up.

When he passed away, many venerable theras and dāyakas were much interested in publishing, at least, the original draft translation as it was, and they requested me to prepare it for publication. Knowing my own limitations, I was at first rather disinclined to undertake this work, but later acceded to their earnest request for the following reasons:

The Venerable Soma Thera had originally wished to have the English translation of the Vimuttimagga (The Path of Freedom) revised and published some day. But later, seeing difficulties, he modified the idea and was even content with merely revising the draft translation, leaving the publication itself to some future time. He said that the important thing, the draft translation, had been done, and that if people felt that they needed it they would see to its publication. It was a work that had inspired both the Venerable Soma Thera and me, and there were many who welcomed its publication.

Dr. D. Roland D. Weerasuria of Balcombe House, Balcombe Place, Colombo, invited the Venerable Soma Thera sometime in 1959 to write an abridged version of the Visuddhimagga as he felt that such an edition would supply a long felt want. But shortly after he began writing it, death intervened. Dr. Weerasuria then requested the Venerable Ñāṇamoli Thera to take up the work which, after some hesitation, he agreed to finish within a year. But he, too, passed away within a week. Sometime after this, Dr. Weerasuria, having seen the original draft translation of the Vimuttimagga, was keen on its publication.

This was a fitting occasion to pay a tribute to the memory of the two senior co-translator of the Vimuttimagga, the Reverend N. R. M. Ehara and the Venerable Soma Mahā Thera.

And finally the urgent personal need to keep myself immersed in the Dhamma throughout the waking hours during this period of stress prompted me to take up the work.

From the above it will be seen that this work was taken up due to sheer force of circumstances and not because of any special qualification of my part. Therefore, perhaps, some things stated here could have been said in other and better ways. Inexpert as I am in scholarly pursuits, there is bound to be many a lack in my portion of this work and so I ask the reader to bear with me should he detect any errors of commission or omission here.

In preparing this work for printing I have made a few alterations in the rendering of certain terms and passages, as they appeared in the original draft translation, in accordance with notes and instructions left by the Venerable Soma Thera. The lacunae in the draft translation were filled, as far as possible, with the help of the word for word translation in consultation with Soma Thera's notes. All the longer Pali quotations in the footnotes, except a few from the Visuddhimagga and some from the Dhammasaṅgaṇi etc., were inserted by me. They are given in full mainly with the idea of helping the general reader conversant with the Pali, but to whom reference books are not easily accessible. By this attempt of mine, if but just a few readers happen to be benefitted, to any extent, I should consider myself amply rewarded.

Since the Introduction had already been sent to the printers by the time the Encyclopaedia of Buddhism (1961 Government of Ceylon, Fascicle A–Aca) was out, the following is included here. In his article, "Abhidharma Literature," Dr. Kōgen Mizuno makes three statements on page 78 of the Encyclopaedia regarding the Vimuttimagga: (1) that the Vimuttimagga (along with the Dhammapada, the Aṭṭhakavagga of the Suttanipāta etc.) "probably belonged to the Abhayagiri sect and not to the Mahāvihāra sect" (paragraph b continued from the previous page); (2) that "He (i.e., the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera) evidently studied the Vimuttimagga, which was a manual of the Abhayagirivihāra sect" (paragraph c); and (3) "That the Vimuttimagga, was Upatissa's work and belonged to the Abhayagirivihāra sect is mentioned in the ṭīkā (sub-commentary, i.e., Dhammapāla's Paramatthamañjūsā) of the Visuddhimagga" (paragraph c).

The first statement, (1) above, says that the Vimuttimagga "probably belonged to the Abhayagiri sect," while the second, (2) above, says "Vimuttimagga, which was a manual of the Abhayagirivihāra sect." How precisely, did probability in paragraph b become certainty in paragraph c? As for the third statement, (3) above, the Paramatthamañjūsā does not say that the Vimuttimagga "belonged to the Abhayagirivihāra sect" as is claimed here. What is says is that the Vimuttimagga is the work of the Venerable Upatissa Thera. The fact that certain teachings are common to both the Abhayagirivihāra and the Vimuttimagga does not prove that the latter belonged to the Abhayagirivihāra sect. For details see Introduction pp. 6–#Abhayagiri7 of the present translation.

I have derived much help from Prof. Dr. P. V. Bapat's Vimuttimagga and Visuddhimagga—A Comparative Study, and the Venerable Ñāṇamoli Thera's translation of the Visuddhimagga—The Path of Purification. The Pali Text Society's Pali-English Dictionary 1921, and the Critical Pali Dictionary, Copenhagen 1924–1948 have been equally helpful.

It is with great pleasure that I make the following acknowledgements to all those whose help and encouragement made my work less difficult:

To Venerable Maḍihē Paññāsīha Mahā Nāyaka Thera of Vajirārāma for his kind and ready help and advice at all times, lacking which this work would not have been completed.

To those venerable monks who encouraged me by word and deed when that encouragement was most needed.

To Venerable Ñāṇavīra Thera for his welcome suggestions and the readiness with which he helped in many ways.

To Mr. W. Joseph Soysa who helped in reading over some of the proofs. He has always been much interested in the Vimuttimagga and in its publication.

To Mr. Lakshman de Mel who read through the type-script and made valuable suggestions.

To Mr. R. D. Piyasena and those who helped him for taking a great deal of trouble in preparing the English Index.

Lastly, to Dr. D. Roland D. Weerasuria who has generously borne the entire cost of publishing this translation. Provision has been made by him to keep the price of this book within reach of the modest purse. He has performed this meritorious act (puññakamma) with great faith (saddhā) wishing his father, Mudaliyar D. D. Weerasuria J.P., who passed away on 25.5.1949, the happiness of Nibbāna. May the result of this pure deed redound in full measure to his lasting happiness.

The printers have to be thanked for their patience and high quality of work.

Kheminda Thera, Vajirārāma, Colombo, Ceylon.
October 2505/1961

Preface

Almost 50 years have passed since the orginal translation of the Venerables Ehara, Kheminda and Soma (abbreviated as EKS) was first published in 1961. The actual translation was made 25 years earlier, in 1936. Kheminda states in his preface that the translation was only a draft and needed revision, however, the draft was published without revision after Venerable Soma's passing away. The published edition, with its long preface about Ven. Soma's life and an essay about Dhammānupassana by Ven. Soma as an appendix a kind of commemoration volume in honour Ven. Soma.

With the evolving scholarship on this text and Buddhist studies in general, and the discovery of Tibetan counterparts of large sections of the text, it was clear that the translation needed to be considerably revised or, better, completely retranslated. Unfortunately, for neither projects competent scholars could be attracted, and therefore I eventually investigated whether I could do it myself and this turned out to be less difficult than I expected. Venerable Bodhi encouraged me to continue translating and this new translation is the result of that. Although I had no knowledge of Chinese before I started with this translation project, due to my knowledge of the Pali language and Pali Buddhist texts, and experience with handling computer software, etc, I realized that I could do it. One may ask whether I would not need to have very good knowledge of Chinese to translate this text, but I felt that this nowadays is not necessarily the case. Kheminda and Soma, who did the original draft translation, also did not know Chinese. They prepared a word for word translation and draft with the help of the Japanese scholar Ehara and then were able to make a draft translation due to their knowledge of the Pali language and texts.

While working on the the text, I regularly wondered how a Chinese could have made sense of parts of the often cryptic text without knowing Pali and Theravāda Buddhism.

One great advantage that we have nowadays is easy access to all the excellent, modern digital tools and resources. When EKS did their translation work, scholars had to rely on their learning and, when the meaning was not clear to them, had to find characters in large dictionaries, which was very time consuming. Nowadays, the whole Taishō edition of the Chinese Tripiṭaka including the Vimuttimagga is digitally available with an excellent search program called CBETA. A character, or a combination of characters, of which the meaning is not certain in a passage can be quickly compared with the character as it occurs in all other contexts in the text, for which there might be Pali parallels, and this often clarifies the meaning. The meanings of characters in the digitalised text can be immediately viewed with a mousepointer dictionary software called Dr.Eye which can be used with a useful classical Buddhist Chinese dictionary. For further and more detailed clarification of characters as used in classical Chinese Buddhist texts the excellent online Digital Dictionary of Buddhism compiled by Charles Muller and others can be used.

EKS remark that "Unintelligibility is not an uncommon feature of this Chinese text" (p. 160 n. 1 first edition). Indeed, the language of Saṅghapāla's Classical Chinese translation is often cryptic and terse. There are various reasons for this—most of which apply to any Chinese Buddhist translation. The first is that in Chinese the sentence structure is not so clear. Due to the general lack of declensions and pronouns, non-distinction between the singular and plural, etc., it can be difficult to distinguish the subject and verb, etc.[1]

The meaning of characters can also be confusing. Chinese translators struggled to find appropriate characters to translate Indic terms, and in the absence of appropriate characters sometimes had to use one character to translate several Indic terms. These characters have to be interpreted according to the context. For example, depending on context the character 覺 can represent understanding/awakening (bodhi), thought (vitakka)

[1] An example of this is a sentence in the recollection of gods section in chapter 8. EKS's translation of the sentence is "They are born in excellent realms and are endowed with excellent minds," while Bapat renders "By dwelling upon excellent states, one's mind becomes excellent," but there is no way of knowing from the Chinese text if the unstated subject in this sentence should be "they" or "one."

and even feeling (vedanā); the character 善 is used both for kusala and kalyāṇa, 功德 covers guṇa and ānisaṃsa, and the characters-pair 煩惱, mainly standing for kilesa also covers several other Pali terms including upadhi and āmisa. The character 定 is used to translate samādhi as well as samāpatti.

Here is an example of the difficulties these multiple meanings can give to a translator and of the importance of comparison with Pali texts: In the section on the contemplation of the nature of the body by means of the 32 parts of the body there is the passage: "The meditator by means of three kinds of attention (覺), achieves the arising [of the sign], i.e., through [attending to] colour, repulsiveness and emptiness (空). … If the meditator gives rise to the sign through emptiness, he should attend (作意) through the elements." (Vim 433a01–05). There are two ambiguous characters in this passage: 覺 and 空.

EKS translated the character 覺 as "thought," which seems too coarse for this context. A similar passage in the Khuddakapāṭha commentary (Khp-a 71) uses manasikaroti, attention/attending, and this is one of the senses given for 覺 in the Buddhist Chinese-Sanskrit Dictionary of Hirakawa.

Another problem is how to translate the character 空. EKS rendered this character as "space." In the Vimuttimagga, the character 空 can mean "emptiness," suññatā, as contemplated in insight meditation, but it can also mean "space," ākāsa as in the "base of endless space," ākāsānañcāyatana. The relation between the element contemplation and insight into emptiness in the Vim is confirmed by a passage in the section on the contemplation of the elements, where 空 means "emptiness": "The comprehension of emptiness is its function" (438b27–28: 通達空為味). A similar passage is found in the Vism (XI.117). Attending to emptiness is not mentioned in the discussion of the 32 parts in Vism, but is described in detail, together with attending to colour and foulness, in the explanation of the 32 parts in the Khuddakapāṭha commentary (Khp-a 73–75).

There can also be confusion due to similar Chinese characters, e.g., the Chinese characters for saññā (想) and nimitta (相) are often confused in Chinese translations of Buddhist texts. In the Vimuttimagga, e.g. in the discussion of the ten perceptions of the foul (asubhasaññā), there is frequent confusion.

Then there is no punctuation in antique Chinese texts, just as in South Asian palm leaf manuscripts. EKS were misled a number of times due to wrongly added punctuation in the modern Taishō edition.

Further, although Chinese translators were usually consistent in their renderings of important technical terms, some translators deliberately varied the wording of identically repeated sentences and phrases, apparently thinking this would make their translation stylistically more palatable to the Chinese readership. In the case of the Vimuttimagga, stock-phrases or templates—such as the ones found at the beginnings and ends of sections in which related items are described (e.g. the four jhānas)[2]—are often worded differently at each occurrence so one cannot infer that the source text was similarly varied. Another

[2] For example, the following passages are found in the discussions of each of the 4 jhānas (after the 25 qualities and just before the "simile of bath/pond/pool" sutta quotations).

1st Jhāna: "This is an excellent heavenly abode. It is produced from tranquillity and is called the 'abode of joy and happiness.' In such an excellent abode surpassing the human do the gods dwell."

2nd Jhāna: This is the heavenly abode. This is merit. This is birth in the Abode of Resplendence. This has been expounded at length before. 'Heavenly abode' means that he dwells in a plane surpassing the human because of joy and happiness that proceed from concentration. Therefore it is called 'heavenly abode.'"

3d Jhāna: "To dwell in the heaven world means to be born in the Abode of All Lustre. It is to be understood in the same way as it was taught in the first jhāna. 'To dwell in the heaven world' is to dwell in that pleasant dwelling which is free from joy. 'To dwell in the heaven world' is to dwell in a manner surpassing humans."

4th Jhāna: "The reward of this meditation is rebirth in the heaven world. The merit of this causes rebirth in the Abode of Great Fruit. This was taught fully before. 'To dwell in the heaven world': This is to dwell in a manner surpassing humans. This is to dwell in the happiness of equanimity. This is called 'dwelling in the heaven world.'" reason for variation of phrases and sometimes words would be that the translators had no systematic and consistent translation scheme. Worse, Chinese translators also regularly misunderstood the Indic texts that they were translating and made a wrong translation.

Besides passages being corrupted and lost due to copyists' errors or deliberate "improvements" by copyists, a comparison of lists that are found in the Pali and Tibetan parallels, shows the Chinese translator of the Vimuttimagga deliberately didn't translate some words or rephrased sentences because he did not understand them or could not find a satisfactory translation. This accounts for the frequent problem of the number of actual items in a list being less than the number given in the introductory sentence.[3] Perhaps this also accounts for the Vimuttimagga sometimes being less detailed and more summary in style than the parallel passages in the Visuddhimagga.[4] However, a comparison of the Tibetan translation of chapter 3 (on the ascetic practices) and the last three chapters (on wisdom) shows that there are no major omissions in the Chinese text.

Because the Tibetan translations of chapters 10–12 are somewhat abridged, they can't fully shed light on how much the Chinese translator did not translate or what got lost, but, taking the chapter on the dependent arising skill, which only contains one abridgement in the Tibetan text (i.e. the abhidhamma part in the section on the action-and destination-signs, 451a-b) , there are no major differences between the Tibetan and Chinese. Sometimes the Tibetan text sheds light on difficult on corrupt passages in the Chinese, e.g., at the end of the "inclusion" section where the Chinese has the confusing "12 truths," while the Tibetan has "12 elements," And sometimes the Chinese sheds light on corruptions in the Tibetan text, e.g. in the "three links" section.

What could be taken as an omission, i.e. the missing sequence in section on the supernormal power of the noble ones (ariya-iddhi), is in fact an abridgement (peyyāla) in the text Upatissa quotes from, the Paṭisambhidāmagga.

In the "Miscellaneous Topics" section of the "Ten Perceptions of the Foul" (426b) the Chinese translator probably abridged a passage. While the Visuddhimagga gives all ten types of person corresponding to the ten types of perception, the Vimuttimagga cuts short at the third type of person, stating: "The others should be understood in the same way."

The Tibetan translation of Daśabalaśrīmitra's quotations sometimes includes lists which are in the Chinese translation just referred to by the general term. For example, at 451c, whereas the Chinese just has "path factors of supramundane dependent arising," the Tibetan text lists all of the 10 factors. In the "four summaries" section the Tibetan text first gives the names of the summaries and then gives the explanations, while the Chinese text only gives the explanations. While the Chinese just has "the three planes" at 453a11, the Tibetan text has "the three planes of the sensual, material and immaterial."

A few times the items in a list in the Tibetan are different than the ones normally found in parallel Pali texts. Whereas the Chinese (453b12) does not list the four grounds of selfhood, attabhāvavatthu, the Tibetan quotation (194b) includes an explanation that is different from the one found in the Peṭaka. The Peṭaka (Peṭ 121) defines the attabhāvavatthu as the five aggregates (with the saññā and vedanā aggregates combined) the Tibetan defines them as "… the four selfhood-grounds are suffering, namely, the suffering of birth, suffering of ageing, suffering of death, and suffering of sickness.

At 453b16 the Chinese has "the six states of escaping (nissaraṇīya) are the Path," while the Tibetan (194b–195a) has "The six states to be delighted in (kun du chags par bya ba'i chos = saṃrañjanīya?) are the Path" and then explains that the six states are the contemplation of states (dhammānupassanā), performed internally, externally, etc.

Probably the Daśabalaśrīmitra or the Tibetan translators wanted to provide the full lists for the clarification of readers who were not familiar with just the general terms, and not knowing what the exact items were, gave wrong ones.

---

[3] E.g. in the introduction to the list of benefits of buddhānussati it is said that there are 18 benefits, but the list only gives 13. See also the apparently incomplete explanation of the contemplation of the nature of the body through repulsiveness in Ch. 8 (the 9th of the 13 ways).

[4] E.g. the procedure of "reflecting on the path of coming and going," although mentioned, is not defined in the section on the cemetery contemplations in Vim Ch. 8, unlike the detailed description in Vism VI.24 & 53.

The Tibetan translation by Daśabalaśrīmitra does not have the question-answer structure that the Chinese translation has. For example, whereas in the Chinese translation of the explanation of the four kinds of dependent arising at 451c is in the form of questions and answers, the Tibetan is not. (E.g., Chinese: "Q. What is meant by 'action-defilement as cause'? A. It is that which begins with ignorance." Tibetan: "Action-defilement as cause is 'with ignorance as condition, formations … there is the origination of this whole, great mass of suffering.') Sometimes the questions don't fit well in the Chinese (e.g., 404b22-23, 408a11–12, 421a07, 435b29) and it could well be that the Chinese translator or a copyist reformulated the passages into questions and answers to make the text more accessible.

There is only one significant doctrinal variance between the Tibetan and Chinese versions. The Chinese text states that the ascetic practises are not fit to be spoken (navattabba) of as kusala, akusala or avyākata, while the Tibetan text—in agreement with the Pali Visuddhimagga of the Mahāvihāra—states that they are to be spoken (vattabba) of as kusala. As Bapat suggests, perhaps the different schools that were transmitting the Vimuttimagga would adapt it in details to fit their own views. In this case, because the tenet of the dhutaṅgas not to be spoken as kusala, etc, is rejected in the Visuddhimagga (Vism II.79) and is said to be a tenet of the Abhayagirivihāra school in the Visuddhimagga commentary, it is more likely that the Tibetan version has been changed to fit the tenet of the school of the Tibetan translators than that the Chinese would have changed it.

The Shanjian lü piposha or Shan-chien-p`i-p`o-sha, a Chinese translation and version by Saṅghabhadra of the Samantapāsādikā commentary on the Pali Vinaya has in places been adapted to fit the Vinaya of the Dharmaguptaka school; see Bapat 1970 pp.l–liii. The Vimuttimagga however, not being a Vinaya text, seems to have undergone very few changes.

EKS and Bapat sometimes made assumptions based on inaccurate translations, for example, the passage that a monk who is going on continuous alms-round can skip a house when he sees that is of caṇḍāla outcastes, and when there is a bowl-turning towards a lay-follower (pattanikkujjana, 覆鉢, lhung bzed kha spub pa), was misunderstood by EKS and translated as "on seeing an outcast (caṇḍāla) covers his bowl," which is a rather rude thing to do. A monk rather can simply walk by the house rather than having to stand still in front of it to beg. The reason to avoid them could rather be that caṇḍālas were eaters of dog-meat and butchers, etc, and could therefore offer inappropriate food to monks. The Tibetan translation does not mention the caṇḍāla and instead has "Or, if eating the food of a family is inappropriate (akappiya?), or [if there is a legal act of] overturning the begging-bowl…"

And Bapat (1964, pp.xxvii–xxviii) asks whether the omission of the dependencies (nissaya) in the benefits' sections of the Chinese version of the dhutas, could have been due to laxity of the Tibetan school. However, in the third case the dependency is actually there in the Chinese, in a somewhat garbled and difficult to recognize form, and the omission of the first two occurrences in the benefits sections is simply due to the Chinese translator not understanding the complex compound nissayānurūpapaṭipattisabbhāvo.

The opacity of the Chinese text is not surprising: It is probable that the Vimuttimagga would have been difficult to read even in its original language. Modern Pali scholars[5] consider the commentarial Pali of the closely related Visuddhimagga, with its peculiar idioms, etc., to be difficult and Ñāṇamoli's translation into English is regarded as a great scholarly achievement. Other texts which are frequently quoted in the Vimuttimagga, such as the Peṭakopadesa and Paṭisambhidāmagga, are also regarded as difficult texts. A number of times the text has abbreviations of passages, for example when quoting the dependent arising formula, and the Chinese translator did not mark these abbreviations. In the section on the supernormal powers, there are passages from the Paṭisambhidāmagga which appear to have been copied from that text in the abbreviated (peyyāla) form they were given there. To the translator to whom it is not clear that there are abbreviations, these passages can be quite confusing.

[5] G. P. Malalasekara, in The Pāli Literature of Ceylon, p. 85, writes about the Visuddhimagga "… an extraordinary book written … in lucid style (though at times long words are used and the language is difficult to understand) …"

Therefore, in order to properly comprehend obscure passages and phrases in the Vimuttimagga, it is indispensable to compare them with parallels or related passages in the Pali texts, or, if there are none, at least to try to understand what the Chinese text represents in Pali.[6] In this sense we are fortunate that there is the Visuddhimagga and other Pali texts with which the Vimuttimagga text can often be compared.

A passage at end of the Ānāpānasati section on the "three trainings" is almost identical in word order to the Vism parallel, which could suggest that the text from which the Chinese translation was made was in what is nowadays called Pāli or in a very closely related dialect. The passage, at Vim 430c20–21 in this translation is "The meditator trains in, repeatedly practices, much practices these three trainings on that object by means of mindfulness and attention."

The parallel at Vism VIII.173 and Paṭis-a 491 is: imā tisso sikkhāyo tasmiṃ ārammaṇe tāya satiyā tena manasikārena sikkhati āsevati bhāveti bahulīkarotī ti, which translated word-by-word is: "These three trainings (accusative), in that object, through that mindfulness, through that attention, trains, practices, develops, practices much." Vim 430c20–21 is 彼坐禪人此三學。於彼事以念作意學之。修已多修。此謂學, which translated word for word is: "The meditator, these three trainings, in that object, through that mindfulness and attention at, trains, repeatedly practices, much practices."

The word order and content of the introductory verse at the start of the treatise is also very close to the Pali.

That the work was in Pali can also be indicated by mistakes that the Chinese translator made due to misunderstanding Pali words as similar Sanskrit words. #####

The Peṭakopadesa.

In the Vimuttimagga there are several references to a work called Tipiṭaka. Parallels to these passages are found in the Pali Peṭakopadesa. One passage on the hindrances, which is also quoted in Pali commentarial works (Vism IV.84, etc. See below), does not have an exact parallel. Bapat (1937, p. xliii) suggests that the term Peṭaka might therefore refer to a work now lost. Ñāṇamoli (The Piṭaka Disclosure, PTS, London, 1964, p. xxix–xxx) disagrees: "… this can be ruled out since the term is used in the Nett-a of a quotation traceable in the Peṭ … as to the other quotation attributed to the Peṭaka by the commentaries but not found in the Peṭ as it exists now, two explanations are possible. The one is that there may be have been variant versions of the Peṭ current at the time the Commentaries were composed, some of which lacked the missing quoted passages, … The other is that that the missing passages were from that part of Ch. VI which is now lost. The explanation may actually be either or both. The work calls itself Peṭakopadesa … and Peṭaka (§ 572)."

Vism IV.84, Paṭis-a I 181, Nidd-a 127: Tathā hi samādhi kāmacchandassa paṭipakkho, pīti vyāpādassa, vitakko thīnamiddhassa, sukhaṃ uddhacca-kukkuccassa, vicāro vicikicchāyā ti peṭake vuttaṃ. Cf. Peṭ 160: Tattha kāmacchandassa nekkhammavitakko paṭipakkho; byāpādassa abyāpādavitakko paṭipakkho; tiṇṇaṃ nīvaraṇānaṃ avihiṃsāvitakko paṭipakkho.

Warder, in his examination of the Paṭisambhidāmagga Gaṇṭhipada in the Introduction to the Path of Discrimination, notes: "As Ñāṇamoli points out … it is not found in the Peṭakopadesa. … The Gaṇṭhipada (p. 106*), however, provides the positive information that this Peṭaka is a book of the Mahiṃsāsakas, an aṭṭhakathā made for the purpose of the Suttantapiṭaka. This implies that it was a work similar to the Peṭakopadesa … Thus both schools had a recension of this work, but differing in such details as this. …" (* Paṭisambhidāmaggagaṇṭhipadatthavaṇṇanā, ed. Ariyavaṃsa, Semage, Colombo, 1967.) The passage in the Gaṇṭhipada is "Suttante piṭakatthāya katatṭhakathā peṭakaṃ mahiṃsakānaṃ gantho."

Zacchetti (2002), revealed that in the Chinese Canon there is a text called Yin chi rujing, translated in the 3d century, which corresponds to most of the sixth chapter of the Pali Peṭakopadesa. Then there is another Chinese text, the Da zhidu lun, which mentions the Peṭaka as a text circulating in South India (presumably Kāñcipura and Sri Lanka) and that it is an abridged version of an orginally larger text. It describes a few of the methods of the Peṭaka and gives examples which roughly correspond to passages in the Peṭaka; see Zacchetti 2001.

[6] Cf. Roderick S. Bucknell "Taking account of the Indic source-text" in Translating Buddhist Chinese: Problems and Prospects, Brisbane, 2008.

Ṭhus it appears that the Peṭakopadesa was circulating in different schools and in different versions. This also explains the verses about the nimmittabuddha in Nidd-a II 318 which are attributed to the Peṭaka but which are not found in the Pali version and, as Ñāṇamoli notes, are unlike anything in it; see The Piṭaka Disclosure p. 400.

Interestingly there is also a passage in the Vimuttimagga that only has a parallel in the Nettippakaraṇa and can't be traced else in Pali literature:

Vim 400b02–03: "Thus the Blessed One expounded the training of the higher virtue to a man of dull faculties, the training of the higher mind to a man of average faculties and the training of the higher wisdom to a man of sharp faculties."

Nett 101: Tattha bhagavā tikkhindriyassa adhipaññāsikkhāya paññāpayati, majjhindriyassa bhagavā adhicittasikkhāya paññāpayati, mudindriyassa bhagavā adhisīlasikkhāya paññāpayati.

"Herein, the Blessed one expounded the training of higher wisdom to one of sharp faculties; to one of average faculties the Blessed One expounded the training of higher mind; to one of dull faculties the Blessed expounded the training in higher virtue."

Given these conditions, few scholars, even those who know Chinese, are able to correctly interpret and translate the Chinese text of the Vimuttimagga. Those who can are often occupied with other projects and have no time to be able to undertake such a large project. For example, Dr. William Chu offered to make a new translation for the BPS and made a draft translation of the first two chapters, then had to give up due to constraints of time.

Fortunately, Dr. Bucknell, Venerable Huifeng and Dr. William Chu were so kind to help translate the passages that the translators had marked with question marks or did not translate at all, i.e. marked with ellipis symbols in the first printed edition and in the manuscript. These changes are noted in footnotes. I also compared EKS's translation of the first two fascicles with Dr. Chu's translation mentioned above and made some corrections, which I noted in footnotes. Further I compared the whole translation with Prof. Bapat's translations and summaries in his Vimuttimagga and Visuddhimagga, A Comparative Study. Bapat had more experience in interpreting classical Chinese and where his and EKS's translations differ, Bapat's usually, but not always, make more sense. While comparing the two works I regularly came across passages that appeared to be incorrectly or incompletely translated in EKS's translation and asked Dr. Rodney Bucknell to help checking them against the original, which he patiently did. I then corrected the existing translation when necessary, noting the changes in footnotes.

Although Ven. Kheminda writes in his preface that Bapat's comparative study was of much use to him, he apparently did not use it to revise the draft translation. Ven. Soma's carbon copy of the original draft (handwritten by Ven. Kheminda) kept at Senanayakārāma, Kandy, which was used as the basis for the first printed edition, contains some revisions to the original translation but these revisions are mostly confined to the translation of terminology. Judging from the handwriting, these changes were done by Ven. Soma (or perhaps Ven. Ñāṇavīra or Ven. Ñāṇamoli, who had similar handwritings). Some of the lacunae in the manuscript were filled in the same handwriting. Kheminda mainly confined himself to adding new Pali parallels.

Bhikkhu Nissarano and Upāsaka Cittapāla, both from Australia helped with the proofreading and suggested several changes to outdated English translations of Pali terms to make them in agreement with current usage. In accordance with their suggestions some translations of terminology such as "Ariyan Truth" were changed to "Noble Truth," "gorge" to "stomach" and "tribulation" to "disadvantage," etc.

Dmytry O. Ivhaknenko was so kind to help with providing a new bibliography of literature related to the Vimuttimagga, trace a few more parallels and give various other valuable suggestions for this project.

I have also tried to bring more consistency to the translation. For example, in ṭhe section on the second jhāna ekodibhāva was first translated as "mind-predominance" and then as "unification of mind." The latter translation is clearer and is therefore used in this edition. Further, the word "merit" was used to cover at least four Pali terms: ānisaṃsa (benefit/advantage), guṇa (good quality), kusala (wholesomeness), and puñña (meritorious action). When the context clear indicated what term would originally have been intended, I have changed it accordingly.

In the first edition there were overly extensive Pali quotations in the footnotes, sometimes large parts of suttas or even whole suttas were quoted when only one small paragraph or sentence would have sufficed (e.g., the two page quotation of M III 157–162 on pp. 225–26). The reason for this, according to Ven. Kheminda (in his preface), is to help "the general reader conversant with the Pali, but to whom reference books are not easily accessible." However, nowadays the Pali can easily be looked up in (digital) Tipitaka resources such as the Chaṭṭha Saṅgāyana CD-ROM, and therefore these lengthy and sometimes superfluous quotations have been abbreviated in this edition. To avoid large amount of endnotes, those consisting of one or two Pali words corresponding to the Chinese/English terms have been put in the text itself.

Some of the subheadings (i.e. the headings to topic sections within chapters) have been moved or changed. This could be done because most do not appear in the Chinese text. An absence of subheadings is normal for Chinese translations. For example, the Chinese Samyuktagama has no headings for saṃyuktas, though it does have a few residual headings for the large vargas. In the Chinese text of the Vimuttimagga (and likewise in the Tibetan quotations) there are some subheadings besides the fascicle and chapter headings. For example, the section on the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception starts with the subheading "recollecting the disadvantages of the base of nothingness" (421c26) and then has the subheading "definition of the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception'' (422a10). In the "miscellaneous" sections there are also subheadings. These subheadings are not clearly marked in the Taisho edition though and can be confusing if they are taken to be part of the text.

In a section of Chapter 8 (from the second jhāna till the perceptions of the foul) there suddenly appear introductions to the different topics, e.g., "Here I show how to attain the second jhāna. I consider the disadvantage of the first jhāna and the advanage of the second." EKS note: "This passage does not occur in the Sung Dynasty edition in the library of the Japanese Imperial household. This applies to all passages in italics in Section 2 of Chapter 8." The passages in italics that EKS refer to also include the topic conclusions, which all end in all end in 已竟, corresponding to the "... niṭṭhitaṃ," "... is finished," conclusions found at the end of sections in Pali texts, e.g., after the rule sections of the Pātimokkha. Why do they suddenly start in Chapter 8 (at T32n1648_p0421c01), i.e. after the base of boundless consciousness topic, 識入已竟, and why not earlier?

According to Dr Marcus Bingenheimer (in a private correspondence), the editors of the Taisho did no add any character content to the texts. The section-closing characters were already there in the Tripitaka Koreana (13th century) on which the Taisho is based.[7] So the omission must have happened pre-13th century, probably pre-10th century. The translator or editors might have at first decided not to include the closers but then later abandoned this policy.

Sometimes terms are used in these conclusions that are not found in the sections itself, but are found in Pali texts, e.g., in the vipassanā knowledge sections terms such as 觀滅智 = bhaṅgānupassanañāṇa, are used in the closers, but not in the topic itself.

The voluminous fascicle headings and fascicle numbers, which merely refer to the physical division of the manuscript into equal-sized small volumes used for printing in China, and have no necessary connection with the logical division of the treatise into chapters, have also been left out in this edition. Each fascicle contains a few chapters or a section of a larger chapter (i.e. Chapter 8 and 12 where the sections would abruptly divide topics.) and had the same headings as chapter I: "The Path of Freedom, Fascicle the First, written by the Arahant Upatissa, who was called ... Funan." Starting from Fascicle VI EKS's edition included fascicle conclusions: "The sixth fascicle is finished," which have likewise not been included here.

Ven. Kheminda mentions in his preface, the first printing of the Path of Freedom was a tribute to his fellow translators, the late Vens. Soma and Ehara. Except for a passage directly dealing with the translation of the Vimuttimagga, the sixteen page "In Memoriam" in honour of Ven. Soma Thera, written by Ven. Kheminda (pp. ix–xxv), has been omitted from this revised edition, not out of disregard for the contents, but because it has no direct connection with the Vimuttimagga. For the same reason this edition does not include the article "Contemplation in the Dhamma" by Ven. Soma Thera (Appendix pp. 353–62). Instead of these articles, Prof. Bapat's translation of the Tibetan translation of the dhutaṅga chapter of the Vimuttimagga (ch. 3) called Vimuktimārga-dhutaguṇa-nirdeśa, with its informative introduction, is added as an appendix.

[7] See K0968: V28–P1041–c. Available online at http://kb.sutra.re.kr/ritk_eng/index.do.

***

There are still many unanswered questions regarding the Vimuttimagga, such as the school affiliation, language, origin and date. The debate about the school affiliation of the Vimuttimagga is still continuing. That the text belongs to the broader Theravāda / Theriya school is not disputed because the text frequently quotes from Pali texts, has a lot in common with Pali commentarial texts, contains the typical Therāvāda doctrines of the bhavaṅga-citta and vīthi-citta, and the analysis by way of characteristic, function and manifestation, etc. However, the question whether it belongs to the Abhayagiri Vihāra school or to the Mahāvihāra or to another Theriya school remains unsolved. Peter Skilling (1994) argues that the use of middharūpa in the Vimuttimagga indicates that it was a manual transmitted by the Abhayagiri school, but other scholars, most notable Kate Crosby (1999) don't agree with this. Lance Cousins argues "It is possible that the use of middha(-rūpa) is evidence that the author of Vimuttimagga was a follower of the Abhayagiri school, given that this is considered a view of that school in the ṭīkās. However, it is also possible that the position of the Mahāvihāra had not yet been determined at the time that Vimuttimagga was written. There is quite a fine line between holding that middha like lahutā is a distinct form of rūpa and holding that middha is a modification of the four elements, etc. or the mere absence of lahutā, etc."[8]

There is also uncertainty whether the Vimuttimagga was composed in Pali or in another Prakit or even in Sanskrit. Given the fact that a lot of the material in the Vimuttimagga is also found in commentarial Pali works and the fact that it often quotes from Pali Abhidhamma texts such as the Paṭisambhidāmagga and Vibhaṅga, it is likely that it was originally composed in Pali or a closely related Prakrit. Perhaps it was later translated into Sanskrit, and that version might have been used for the translations into Tibetan.

According to Bapat (1937, p. liv), the text would have been composed in India because chapter 3 of the Vimuttimagga was rendered into Tibetan as the Vimuktimārga Dhutaguṇanirdeśa. Kate Crosby (1999, p. 511f), however, sees no evidence for this because Pāli and Sinhalese manuscripts were discovered in Nepal and Tibet. Moreover, Tibetan and Chinese monks, including the teacher of the Chinese translator of the Vimuttimagga, travelled to Sri Lanka and could have obtained the text there.

Then there is speculation regarding the date and authorship of the Vimuttimagga. Bapat suggests that the text was composed in the first or second century CE, based on the identification of its author Upatissa with the monk mentioned in the Samantapāsādikā (see Kheminda's introduction and Bapat's introduction to the Dhutaguṇanirdeśa), but there is no evidence for the identicalness of the two. Upatissa is a name still given to Theravāda monks nowadays and there would have been hundreds, if not many thousands, of Upatissas in the history of Buddhism.

There has also been lot of speculation on how the text came to China, and whether or not it came from the Abhayagirivihāra to China, but nothing definitive can be said about this too. See the section "Origin of the Vimuttimagga in China" below.

The only thing which is sure regarding the date of the Vimuttimagga is that it is older than the Visuddhimagga and was translated into Chinese between 505 and 520 CE.

***

The only known complete text of the Vimuttimagga is its Chinese translation. Besides this translation, and a few quotations in the Visuddhimagga, there are Tibetan translations of parts of the text. These quotations were not known in the time that EKS worked on their translation of the Chinese translation of the Vimuttimagga, but in the meantime they were discovered and researched by Prof. Bapat and Dr. Peter Skilling.

[8] From Lance Cousins' suggestions and corrections used for preparing this revised edition. Cf. K. R. Norman, Pāli Literature, Wiesbaden, 1983, p. 114.

The largest quotations, of the last three chapters of the Vimuttimagga partly abridged,[9] is quoted in chapters 13 to 15 of a Tibetan translation called 'dus byas daṅ 'dus ma byas rnam par ṅes pa, corresponding to Saṃskṛtāsaṃskṛtaviniścaya in Sanskrit. This work—a compendium of the tenets of several Buddhist schools—was composed by Daśabalaśrīmitra, a "Sakyan bhikkhu" according to the colophon.[10] This compendium is also extinct in the original.[11] I compared the Tibetan translation with the Chinese one, and where there are noteworthy differences I gave tentative translations in the footnotes.

The other quotation in Tibetan translation is the complete third chapter, without any abridgments, on the dhutaguṇas, the ascetic qualities. It is called rnam-par-grol-baḥi lam-las sbyans-paḥi yon-tan bstan-pa, corresponding to Vimuktimārga-dhutaguṇa-nirdeśa in Sanskrit and Vimuttimaggadhutaguṇaniddesa in Pali. It is transmitted by itself in the Tibetan Kanjur collection, although the title and colophon indicate that the translators knew they were dealing with the third chapter from the Vimuktimārga. It was translated in the early 9th century by the Indian scholar-monk Vidyākaraprabha and the Tibetan translator Dpal Brtsegs, who also translated several other Buddhist works during what is known as the first translation period of Tibetan Buddhism. It is not known how and when the original text came to Tibet.

Bapat's translation has been reproduced as an appendix in this revised edition because Tibetan translations from Sanskrit are generally more reliable, consistent, and accurate than Chinese translations. This is due to the closer relation of the Tibetan language and script with its Indian counterparts and also due to the cultural and geographical proximity, which facilitated Buddhist studies in Tibet and produced better translators. Bapat gives an extensive introduction, including criticisms of certain opinions regarding the origins of the Vimuttimagga that were proposed by Kheminda Thera and Ñāṇamoli Thera. Bapat's work was only printed once, in New Delhi in 1964, in a small edition, and is very difficult to obtain. For these reasons, the English translation of the Dhutaguṇa-nirdeśa together with parts of Prof. Bapat's Introduction have been reproduced as an appendix in this book with the kind permission of Mr. Bapat of Pune, the son of Prof. Bapat. The Preface and the sections of the Introduction discussing the Tibetan text and manuscripts, and the Tibetan text itself, are not reproduced here.

Bh. Nyanatusita

---

[9] Chapter 13: "An analysis of the aggregates, bases and elements according to the Sthavira school" = Vimuttimagga, ch. 11, section 1, pp. 237–59); Chapter 14: "An analysis of dependent arising according to the Sthavira school" = Vimuttimagga ch. 11, , pp. 259–68); Chapter 15: "An analysis of skilful understanding of the Noble Truths according to the Arya-Sthavira school" = Vim ch. 11, section 2, pp. 269–82; ch. 12, section 2, pp. 301–26); (On Sīla), Sav 73.2.2–74.4.4 = Vim, p. 6, cf. also p. 10;

"An Analysis of Wisdom according to the Sthavira school" Sav 73.5.4–75.3.1 = Vim ch. 10, pp. 229–36, complete citation.

[10] "The monk (bhikkhu) of the Sakyans, the scholar (paṇḍita), great thera (mahāthera), the Auspicious Friend of the One of Ten Powers (= Daśabalaśrīmitra)" (sh'akya'i dge slong pandi ta gnas brtan chen po stobs bcu dpal bshes gnyen).

[11] For more on this work and its translator see Peter Skilling 1987.

Introduction

In the Journal of the Pali Text Society of 1919, there appeared an article by Prof. Dr. M. Nagai on "The Vimutti-Magga, 'The Way to Deliverance.'" Referring to it Mrs. C. A. F. Rhys Davids in a letter dated September 20, 1936 to the translators of the Jiĕ-tuò-dào-lùn (Vimuttimagga) said, "Then as to the issuing of the book (referring to the Path of Freedom) in a volume of print: Were this society in easier circumstances enjoyed by it up to the Great War, when we were immensely helped by the princely donations of your wealthy men, I would undertake at once to publish the work with Prof. Nagai's excellent article in our Journal, 1919, as preface, with anything he liked to add. Or, if you objected, I should ask you three to write your own preface, making such references to his article as you thought fit."

This article of Prof. Nagai took the Buddhist world by surprise; for, according to the Cūḷavaṃsa chapter xxxvii, 236–39, when the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera had written the Visuddhimagga at the behest of the Mahāsaṅgha, the devas had hidden it and he had to write it afresh. When this was done, it too was hidden by the devas. So, when he wrote it for the third time and presented it to the Mahāsaṅgha, it is said, the devas produced the first two copies. It was then found that the three copies agreed in every detail. The record goes on to say (Cv Ch. xxxvii, 241–43): "Then the bhikkhus read out all the three books together. Neither in composition and content, nor also as regards the sequence (of the subjects), in the teaching of the Theras, in the quotations, in words, and sentences was there any kind of deviation in all three books. Then the community satisfied and exceedingly well pleased, cried again and again: 'without doubt, this is Metteyya!' and handed over to him the books of the three Piṭakas together with the commentary"—Dr. Geiger's translation. By this statement it was, perhaps, only intended to stress the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera's great ability, which is amply borne out by this (i.e., the Visuddhimagga) and his later works. No other view seems to be warranted, or else it has to be conceded that the Mahāvihāra Theras knew very well that the Bodhisatta Metteyya could not have been born in this world at this time—see, for instance, the earlier statement of the Mahāvaṃsa at Ch. xxxii, 73: "Awaiting the time when he shall become a Buddha, the compassionate Bodhisatta Metteyya dwells in the Tusita-city"—Dr. Geiger's translation. Further, that the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera and the Bodhisatta Metteyya are two different persons has been established and the Bodhisatta Metteyya are two different persons has been established by the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera himself in his Postscript to the Visuddhimagga (found only in the Sinhalese texts and translated by Ñāṇamoli Thera):

> … So may I in my last existence > behold the joys of Tāvatiṃsā, …
> And having in my last life seen > Metteyya, Lord of Sages, Highest > of persons in the World, and Helper > delighting in all beings' welfare, > and heard that Holy One proclaim > the Teaching of the Noble Dhamma, > may I grace the Victor's Dispensation > by realizing its Highest Fruit.

And this, too, the Mahāvihāra Theras would have known. But in thus stressing his ability, the Cūlavaṃsa account seems to make out that the Visuddhimagga was written without recourse to other works. There is a discrepancy in this account of the Cūḷavaṃsa. It will be noted that 'the three Piṭakas together with commentary' were handed over to the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera by the Mahāsaṅgha only after he had written the Visuddhimagga, which is correctly designated the general commentary to the three Piṭakas. Now, if he had access to the three Piṭakas, and the commentary only after he had written this general commentary to the three Piṭakas, how did he do it? This is difficult to comprehend. Here is where the article of Prof. Dr. Nagai appears to fit in.

Bearing No. 1293 in Prof. Nanjio's Catalogue is a work in Chinese called Jiĕ-tuò-dào-lùn. It is also called Gedatsu Dō Ron in Japanese. Prof. Nanjio has rendered the title of this work in Sanskrit as Vimokṣa-Mārga, the author being Arahant Upatissa. In trying to identify him with a Ceylon Thera, Prof. Nagai adduces the following reasons:

It cannot be the Venerable Sāriputta Thera, who was also called Upatissa, because he is often quoted in the Venerable Upatissa Thera's text.

In the Samantapāsādikā (I, p. 263), it is said that there were two elders, named Upatissa Thera and Phussadeva Thera, pupils of the same teacher who was proficient in the Vinaya. Upatissa Thera was superior to the other; and he had two pupils named Mahāpaduma Thera and Mahāsumana Thera. The latter learned the Vinaya Piṭaka nine times from his teacher, while Mahāpaduma Thera learned it eighteen times and was, therefore, the superior. When the former left his teacher to live elsewhere, Mahāpaduma Thera remained with his teacher saying that as long as one's teacher was alive one should be with him and learn the Vinaya and the Commentaries many times more. The teacher, the Venerable Upatissa Thera, and his pupil the Venerable Mahāpaduma Thera, recited the Vinaya in this manner for many years more. During this period they expounded the Vinaya and on one occasion the Venerable Upatissa Thera, at the request of the Mahāsaṅgha in assembly, pronounced a ruling on a question that arose regarding the first Pārājika.[12]

A teacher such as the Venerable Upatissa Thera was the most appropriate person to be the author of a work of such importance as the Vimuttimagga. Then he goes on to mention the account of the gift of King Vasabha's queen to the Venerable Mahāpaduma Thera who accepted it as his teacher's share.[13]

To show that the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera was aware of the existence of the Vimuttimagga, Prof. Nagai refers to the comments of the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera regarding the "fourteen cariyas" of the Vimuttimagga.

It is quite probable that the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera had the Vimuttimagga in mind when he made this comment; for there is the definite statement of the Venerable Dhammapāla Thera in his commentary to the Visuddhimagga (Paramatthamañjūsā, Venerable Morontuḍuvē Dhammānanda Nāyakathera's Sinhalese ed. p. 103) which says: Ekacce ti Upatissattheraṃ sandhāyāha. Tena hi Vimuttimagge tathā vuttaṃ…" 'Some' is said with reference to the Venerable Upatissa Thera. It is said thus by him in the Vimuttimagga." From the foregoing it is clear that the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera had the Vimuttimagga of Venerable Upatissa Thera before him when he wrote the Visuddhimagga.

In his Pali Literature of Ceylon, Dr. G. P. Malalasekera has this to say on the subject:

(a) "The Vimuttimagga is an Abhidhamma exegesis, serving as a compendium for that portion of Buddhist literature … and in some points the Chinese work seems to have been influenced by the Mahāyāna doctrine" (p. 86)

(b) He says, further, that if it is granted that the Vimuttimagga was taken to China by some of the schools of approximately the same tradition, "it would not be difficult to conclude that the Visuddhimagga and Vimuttimagga are more or less independent works, written by men belonging to much the same of thought—the Theravāda" (pp. 87–88).

Regarding the statement (a) above, it will be seen that very little Abhidhamma is found in the Vimuttimagga, though of course, it begins by saying that he who wishes to "lead those on the other shore to perfection, should be versed in the Sutta, Abhidhamma and

---

[12] "Defeat" or "exclusion"—a class of offence in the monastic disciplinary code (Pātimokkha)—the first Pārājika being the engaging in sexual intercourse.

[13] Warder (1982, p. xl) disagrees: "The last king mentioned in the Aṭṭhakathā is Vasabha (consecrated in 110 CE according to our chronology, but in 66 according to that followed by Ñāṇamoli), during whose reign lived Mahāpaduma (Vin-a II 471). Nagai (JPTS 1917, p. 74) has argued that Upatissa, the author of Vimuttimagga, lived about this time because he had a pupil named Mahāpaduma. But that is inconclusive since both names are quite common, moreover the paramparā of teachers he gives (from Parivāra 3 or Vin-a I 62–3) in fact ends in the 1st century CE and the Upatissa named in it lived about 40 BCE, in the time of Vaṭṭagāmaṇi (see also Sāratthadīpanī Se p. 126). It is quite possible that the Upatissa supposed to have composed the Vimuttimagga was the first Sāriputta, to whom so many abhidhamma and related books are attributed. It is also quite likely that the Vimuttimagga is a work of the Abhayagirivāsin or Dhammaruci school, not by any of the known theras of the Mahāvihāra tradition …"

Vinaya."[14] Here, the late Venerable Ñāṇamoli Thera's opinion on the subject will be of interest: "However the Vimuttimagga itself contains nothing at all of the Mahayana, its unorthodoxies being well within the 'Hīnayāna' field."

Again he says: "Also Abhidhamma, which is the keystone of Bhadantācariya Buddhaghosa's exegesis, is not used at all in the Vimuttimagga. (Aggregates, Truths, etc., do not in themselves constitute Abhidhamma in the sense of that Piṭaka). There is, for instance, even in its description of the consciousness aggregate, no reference to the Dhammasaṅgaṇī's classification of 89 types, and nothing from the Paṭṭhāna; and though the 'cognitive series' (cittavīthi) is stated once in its full form (in Ch. II) no use is made of it to explain conscious workings. This Vimuttimagga is in fact a book of practical instruction, not of exegesis" (Path of Purification, Introduction pp. xxvii-xxviii).

The statement of the Venerable Dhammapāla Thera in the Paramatthamañjūsā quoted earlier seems to disallow (b) above.

The Venerable Buddhadatta Mahānāyaka Thera in the Pali Text Society's edition of the Saddhammappajotikā refers to Prof. Nagai's view that the author of the Vimuttimagga was the Venerable Upatissa Thera who flourished during King Vasabha's reign, 66–109 CE. He says, "However, there is no such great difference as cannot be bridged between his supposition and mine" (Introduction p. viii).

Regarding the view that the Vimuttimagga was a work written at the Abhayagiri Monastery, the late Venerable Ñāṇamoli Thera rightly says, "That it (the Vimuttimagga) contains some minor points accepted by the Abhayagiri Monastery does not necessarily imply that it had any special connection with that centre. The sources may have been common to both. The disputed points are not schismatical. Bhadantācariya Buddhaghosa himself never mentions it" (Introduction, xxviii).

Prof. Dr. P. V. Bapat in the Introduction (p. liv) to his careful work Vimuttimagga and Visuddhimagga, A Comparative Study (1937), has examined a great deal of material. In support of his theory that the Vimuttimagga originated in India, he puts forward, among others, the following reasons (p. liv):

"It is very likely that Vimuttimagga was one of the books brought over from India. From the internal evidence of the book we may say that there is no reference to any name[15] or place in Ceylon." If the view of the late Venerable Ñāṇamoli Thera, that the "Vimuttimagga is in fact a book of practical instruction, not of exegesis," which is also the view of the late Venerable Soma Thera and myself, is accepted, and if it is recognized that the whole style of the Vimuttimagga makes for brevity (it is even abrupt sometimes), then it will be seen that the exclusion of any 'name or place in Ceylon' is not surprising.

"We find in this book many words which are transliterations of Indian words. The list of worms residing in different parts of the body gives names which are transliterations of Indian names. These names must have been taken by Upatissa from some old work or works on medical science" (p. liv). This is as it should be, seeing that the Dhamma is of Indian origin, and when medicine or anything related to medical science is mentioned, it is natural for Ceylon writers to use Indian terms: for what medical knowledge Ceylon possessed at the time was of Indian origin. The standard Ayurvedic medical works in use even now are Suśruta and Vāgbhaṭa. Caraka is not unknown.[16] The first two works have been in use in Ceylon through the ages. But if the list of worms is not derived from the first two works or one of them, then the Vimuttimagga most probably bases itself here on some other medical work on Indian origin known in Ceylon at the time. Regarding the statement, "We find Upatissa going into the details of the development of the foetus week by week" (p. lvi), it will be seen from Ch. 8, n. 388#Foetussutta that here the Vimuttimagga follows the Sutta and its commentary.

"Besides, the reference to a caṇḍāla, which we have already noticed, also points to the

---

[14] This, in fact, is a mistranslation of the Chinese. The Chinese text has "for him who wishes … to reach the yet as unreached further shore…" (Nt)

[15] Unless the name Nārada (p. Nārada1235) referred to any high personage from Ceylon, which seems to be very improbable. This name is found at S II 117–18. See n. Naarada.

[16] Since writing above the Caraka Saṃhitā has been translated into Sinhalese by Āyurveda Śāstri R. Buddhadāsa, Colombo.

origin of the book in India,[17] particularly, in South or Dravidian India where there is a very strong prejudice against caṇḍālas" (p. liv). References to caṇḍālas are found elsewhere, in the texts and commentaries. For instance, as pointed out by Prof. Bapat himself (p. xlvi), at A I 107 and A III 214, caṇḍāla is mentioned. Here it should be borne in mind that in the society of the time, and also later, the caṇḍāla was a person looked down upon. To illustrate certain points in a way that the large mass of the people would understand, appropriate similes were used by the Buddha and his disciples, and the commentators who came after them. It does not mean that they thereby endorsed some of the statements made in their similes. For instance, when the Buddha, in the Satipaṭṭhāna Sutta, says, "Just as if a clever butcher or butcher's apprentice, having slaughtered a cow and divided it into portions were sitting at the main crossroad," and so on, it does not follow that the Buddha upheld the butchers' profession. If the word caṇḍāla was used in a simile, the motive behind it was nothing else than to facilitate the understanding of the point under discussion. The upholding of the caste system does not come in here. On the contrary, the Buddha and his disciples were opposed to it as we see in the use of the word caṇḍāla in a different context referring to an upāsaka (i.e., one who has gone to the Buddha, the Dhamma, and the Sangha for refuge) but who does not observe the sīlas etc.—he being called upāsaka-caṇḍāla (A III 206). The Vasala Sutta (Sn 116–42) may also be mentioned here. Further, these sentences occur in the Vimuttimagga itself, thus: "Virtue is called excellent joy, the highest of all castes … this is to wear the thread which must be worn. This is the sacred caste" (p. 8#excellentjoy).

What has largely prompted Prof. Bapat to protest seems to be the statement found in Chapter III dealing with the austerities, and his objection runs thus: "Let us note one peculiar fact about Upatissa. He seems to have some kind of contempt for, or low opinion of, a caṇḍāla" (p. xlvi). Then on the same page he goes on to say the following, which are possibly the reasons for the statement mentioned above.

"In one place, there is a reference to a caṇḍāla where we are told in a simile that he has no desire for a princely throne" (p. xlvi). The relevant passage is, "As an outcast has no desire for a king's throne" (p. 25#outcastthrone of the present translation). The same idea is found in the Visuddhimagga too, namely, "Nirāso saddhamme caṇḍālakumārako viya rajje" (p. 54)—"He is desireless for the Good Dhamma as a caṇḍāla (outcast) is for a kingdom." It is therefore not a statement peculiar to the Venerable Upatissa Thera.

With regard to the next objection: "At another place, to see a caṇḍāla on the way is considered to be a sufficient reason for the laxity in the observance of the practice of sapadāna-cārikā (going from house to house in succession for begging one's food)" (p. xlvi). This is not quite what the text says, as will be seen later. There is no question of laxity. Then the next sentence continues, "Upatissa says that if a mendicant sees a caṇḍāla on the way, he should cover his begging-bowl and may skip over some houses and go further. In the third place we find a lack of conscientiousness (ahirika) is compared to a caṇḍāla" (pp. xlvi-xlvii). Further, at p. 23#elephants, "Even if he has taken up the practice of a sapadānacārika, he should avoid elephants or horses that may be coming in his way. Seeing a caṇḍāla, he should cover his begging-bowl. 'Following one's ācariya or upajjhāya' is also mentioned as an occasion for exception." Here is the relevant passage from the present translation (p. 47#AlmsExpedience): "What is the teaching as regards expedience in the observance of 'regular alms-round'? If a bhikkhu on seeing elephants or horses fighting or in rut, at the gate, avoids them, or on seeing an outcast (caṇḍāla, transliteration) covers his bowl, or goes behind his preceptor, teacher or a visiting bhikkhu, and thus commits certain faults for the sake of expedience, he does not fail in 'regular alms-round.'"

Now let us consider why the expedience in regard to elephants and horses may be resorted to. It is plain that it is to avoid being hurt or even killed. Regarding the preceptor or teacher—it is out of respect due to them. It is an offence not to do so. Again, covering the bowl on seeing a caṇḍāla is for self-protection. The society at that time was very much caste-conscious. If the people objected to, or did not favour, the receiving of alms from one they considered an outcast, the support from the large majority of the people would be liable to be withdrawn and the life of the bhikkhu rendered difficult, to say the least. Here the story of the son and heir of the King Duṭṭhagāmaṇi comes readily to mind. It is said that the people were prosperous and happy during his reign and that he had a son named Sālirājakumāra, concerning whom the following is recorded.

[17] Upatissa's change of the 'yellow' colour of the earth for kasiṇa (as said by B.) into 'black' (p. Black) may be considered as significant. Can it suggest the black soil of the country of origin of Upatissa? The soil in many parts of Ceylon; too, is black.

"Greatly gifted was he and ever took delight in works of merit; he tenderly loved a caṇḍāla woman of exceedingly great beauty. Since he was greatly enamoured of the Asokamālādevī, who already in a former birth had been his consort, because of her loveliness, he cared nothing for kingly rule" (Mv Ch. xxxiii, 2–4). Therefore King Duṭṭhagāmaṇi, after his death, was succeeded by his brother, Saddhātissa, who reigned for eighteen years.

"He cared nothing for kingly rule": "So rajjaṃ neva kāmayī." Surely, there is something similar in this statement and the simile which is common to both the Vimuttimagga and the Visuddhimagga, namely, "Nirāso saddhamme caṇḍālakumārako viya rajje"—Vimuttimagga p. 25#outcastthrone: "He has no desire for the Noble Dhamma, as an outcast has no desire for a king's throne"; Visuddhimagga p. 54: "He is desireless for the Good Law as an outcast (caṇḍāla) is for a kingdom!" Have not both the Vimuttimagga and the Visuddhimagga been making some sort of allusion to this event, which would, no doubt, have shocked the whole land? Might it not seem that here was an actual story well-known in the land and even recent history as far as the Venerable Upatissa Thera of King Vasabha's reign was concerned (King Duṭṭhagāmaṇi reigned from 161–137 BCE and King Vasabha from 66–110 CE). If our author is in fact this Upatissa Thera, this story will provide him with the most appropriate material for a simile to illustrate the disregard of an unvirtuous man for the Good Dhamma. How appropriate the background provided by the prince's story is for purposes of the simile, which was perhaps even inspired by it, can be seen from the present translation, p. 25 #outcastthrone.[18]

That the author of the Vimuttimagga, whoever it was, knew such passages as the ones below is beyond doubt. And it is inconceivable that he had a prejudice which he put down in writing knowing full well that it was entirely against the Teaching of the Buddha.

Mā jātiṃ puccha caraṇañ ca puccha.
Kaṭṭhā have jāyati jātavedo;
nīcākulīno pi munī dhitīmā ājāniyo hoti hirīnisedho—Sn 462

Judge not by birth but life.
As any chips feed fire Mean birth may breed a sage Noble and staunch and true

Na jaccā 'vasalo' hoti;—na jaccā hoti brāhmaṇo; kammanā 'vasalo' hoti kammanā hoti brāhmaṇo—Sn 136

No birth a wastrel—or a Brahmin—makes;
'its conduct wastrels makes—and Brahmins too.[19]

As for the statement that the Vimuttimagga "reveals no special mastery of the Vinaya which is claimed by Prof. Nagai for that Upatissa who lived in the first century CE in Ceylon" (p. lvi), the Vimuttimagga is hardly the place to display such special knowledge.

Finally, to this following statement: "My discovery of the Tibetan version of the third chapter on 'dhutas' is also important … This Tibetan text provides an additional evidence to show the Indian origin of the book. It does not appear to be probable that a text from Ceylon was taken over to India and there it was studied in Buddhist schools and that it assumed such importance as to be translated, in part at least, in Tibetan" (pp. liv–lv). An article which the late Lama Geshe La Gedum Chomphell originally contributed to The Buddhist, the journal of the Y.M.B.A. Colombo, and which was reprinted in the Buddha Jayanti of July 22, 1956, begins: "The horse of Buddhism is dead in India; only the tops of the horse's ears are still visible in the east and the west of the land." This saying which had gained currency in Tibet once, perhaps originated with the monk Vanaratana, known, in Tibetan history, as the last great Indian Mahāpaṇḍita who came to live and teach in Tibet. A native of Bengal, he was ordained young, as a sāmaṇera, in a monastery of one thousand monks. He received full ordination in Ceylon, with two well-known Theras, the Venerable Buddhaghosa and the Venerable Dhammakitti as preceptor and teacher respectively. He studied the Vinaya Prabhā (Splendour of the Discipline), a Sarvāstivāda work. Then he returned to his native country and, after studying the Kālacakra, went to Tibet by way of Assam. The Lama says: "During the journey he is believed to have remembered his Sinhalese preceptor, and inscribed on a wayside rock these words: 'I salute Buddhaghosa the teacher of thousands of beings.'" And he says further that in the middle of the seventeenth century the lama king of Bhutan, when at war with the Central Tibet government, had seen and mentioned it in one of his writings. On reaching Tibet his interpreter died, and so after a short stay there he returned to Bengal. "Vanaratana's second visit to Ceylon lasted six years; during that time he studied all branches of Buddhism," says the lama. The Venerable Vanaratana in his account of a pilgrimage he made to Śrī Pāda in Ceylon states that he received two bone relics there. Then again the lama goes on to say, "With the relics and some books he had collected, Vanaratana returned to his country and not long afterwards re-entered Tibet. This time he was able to speak Tibetan well; he made many lamas his disciples through his preaching. The chief of Vanaratana's disciples was Rong-Thong-Pa, the founder of a new sect; to him Vanaratana gave one of the relics he had got in Ceylon. Rong-Thong-Pa built near Lhasa a monastery called Nālandā." The Venerable Vanaratana died fifteen years after he re-entered Tibet "at a monastery in Singpori in Tsang province; his tomb can still be seen in that monastery … The full admission of Vanaratana to the Saṅgha by Ceylon theras, and the long stay here, point to the existence of cordial relations between the Indian and Ceylon Sangha of his time. Tibetan books show that Ratnākara Gupta of Vikramasīla stayed in Ceylon for seven years on his way to Dhanyakaṭaka; and Atīsa (Dīpaṃkara Śrī Jñāna), who became abbot of Vikramasīla, was here in the eleventh century." Further, I myself remember the late lama, when he was preparing this article, mentioning to the Venerable Soma Thera that he had seen in a monastery in Tibet a Sinhalese manuscript which, he said, probably dated back to the Venerable Vanaratana Thera's time.[20]

[18] The simile specifically deals with an outcast having no desire for the throne. The son of the king, however, wasn't an outcast, only his wife was… (Nt)

[19] Lord Chalmers' translation.

In view of the above we are entitled to say that, while it is not proved that the Vimuttimagga was written in Ceylon, it has been shown that the very reasons put forward to support the view that it must have been written in India, support equally well the view that it may well have been written in Ceylon. To this can be added the idea that the simile of the outcast having no desire for a king's throne, possibly drew inspiration from the story of Sālirājakumāra, which must certainly have been current at the time, though the account of it in the Mahāvaṃsa came to be written later. Yet the Mahāvaṃsa, according to Dr. Geiger (Introduction, Mahāvaṃsa translation p. ix), was "based upon older material," the "Aṭṭhakathā-Mahāvaṃsa," as he calls it, and "existed as did the Aṭṭhakathā generally, in different monasteries of the Island, in various recensions which diverged only slightly from one another" (p. x). He further says, "The chronicle must originally have come down only to the arrival of Mahinda in Ceylon. But it was continued later, and indeed to all appearance, down to the reign of Mahāsena (beginning of the fourth century CE.)

Tipiṭaka Saṅghapāla of Funan

The biography of Tipiṭaka Saṅghapāla (三藏僧伽婆羅譯) is found in different versions in [20] Since writing the above, the Ceylon Daily News reported, in its issue of September 9, 1960, of the discovery of a Singhalese manuscript in a Buddhist monastery of Saiskya in Tibet by Prof. Rāhula Sāṅkṛtyāyana, in the years between 1929 and 1938. This manuscript has been assigned to the 12th or the 13th century and a copy is now in the library of the Vidyālankāra University.

Nt: This is the manuscript of the Karmavibhāgaya, which the Sinhalese monk Anantaśrī brought to Tibet in the late 12th or early 13th century; see Dr. Heinz Bechert Singhalesische Handschriften, Teil 2 (1997), p. 93–93, and Peter Skilling "Theravādin Literature in Tibetan Translation," Journal of the Pali Text Society XIX (1993), p. 86–90.

Chinese sūtra catalogues and biographies.

The following biography of the translator of the Vimuttimagga into Chinese is from the Xù-gāo-sēng-zhuán-xù or "Further Biographies of Famous Clerics" (T50n2060_p0426a03–26) by Dào Xuān (道宣, 596–667 CE).

> "Saṅghapāla (Sēng-jiā-pó-luó): [In the] language of Liáng [this means]: Saṅgha nourisher/protector and also Saṅgha armour.[21] He was a Fúnán country man.[22] Young and exceptionally clever, from early [age] he was close to the Dhamma and Vinaya. [After] training (sikkhati) for a year [as a layman?], he went forth [as a monk]. He inclined to the study of the Abhidharma treatises (nirdeśa, śāstra). His reputation spread and he was famous in [the lands of] the Southern Sea. After completing (or perfecting, sampanna, samannāgata) [the study/learning by heart (?) of the Abhidharma] he extensively studied the Vinayapiṭaka.[23] Being zealous and wishing to teach civilized

---

[21] See "Saṅghabhara and Saṅghapāla" section below for more on the transliteration of the translator's name.

[22] Funan (Fúnán, 扶南) was the Chinese name for an maritime kingdom at the Mekong delta area in modern Cambodia and Southwest Vietnam. Maritime traders who went from India and Sri Lanka to China and vice versa with spices, silk, etc., stopped over at its seaport, often waiting for several months for the monsoon winds to shift to continue their journey east or west. The Funan port was probably located at the present town of Óc-eo in Vietnam. At the height of its power in the third century CE, the Funan kingdom controlled most of the ports of Southeast Asia, including the Malay Peninsula. There was considerable Indian cultural influence in Funan. (Nicholas Tarling, Cambridge history of South East Asia, Cambridge 1999, p. 192–196. Keat Gin Ooi, Southeast Asia: a Historical Encyclopedia, Vol. 1, Santa Barbara, 2004, p. 529–30. Philip Dawson, The Art of Southeast Asia, London 1990, p.21. George Coedès, The Indianized States of Southeast Asia, Hawaii, 1968, pp.57–58. R.A.L.H. Gunawardana, "Changing Patterns of Navigation in the Indian Ocean and their Impact on Pre-colonial Sri Lanka," from Satish Chandra (ed), The Indian Ocean: Explorations in History, Commerce and Politics, New Delhi, 1987. Michael Vickery "Funan Reviewed: Deconstructing the Ancients," BEFEO, 2003, Vol. 90, pp.101–143.)

According to the Book of Liang (梁書, Liāng Shú), in 484 CE (永明二年) King (Kuaṇḍinya) Jayavarman (闍邪跋摩, 478-514) sent the Indian Buddhist monk Nāgasena (那伽仙) and officials (or subjects, i.e. traders, 臣) with gifts to pay tribute to the Emperor of China and to request him for military help against the rebellious king of Champā, who had earlier robbed his officials (臣) from their goods and also Nāgasena from his personal wealth after their ship going from China to Funan drifted off course and landed in Champā (ZS01n0001_p0248a13–49a13). No gifts of manuscripts are mentioned.

In the second year of the Liáng dynasty (503) the same King Kuaṇḍinya Jayavarman (憍陳如闍邪跋摩) sent envoys with a tribute to the emperor consisting of Buddha images made out of coral and also other local products (ZS01n0001_p0402a27–28). (See Paul Pelliot, "Le Fou-nan." BEFEO III, 1903, pp. 248-303. R.C. Majumdar, "Kambuja-desa or an Ancient Hindu Colony in Cambodia," Sir William Meyer Lectures, 1942–43 Madras 1944.)

It is possible that Mandra (who came at the "beginning of the Liáng Dynasty," i.e. in or shortly after 502) was sent with this mission in 503 to please the emperor of China with manuscripts, like Nāgasena was sent nineteen years earlier to try to please the emperor.

[23] The school affiliation of Saṅghapāla is unknown. Traders and travellers from Southeastern Indian Buddhist centres such as Amaravati, Kāñchīpura or Kāveripaṭṭana, more than 2500 kms to the west, where there were Sthavirans/Theravādins, stayed at the ports of Funan for extended periods to await the change of monsoon winds. To the West of Funan, Pali inscriptions have been found at at Prome in Burma (about 1500 kms west) and at the Chao Phraya river basin in Thailand (about 750 kms west). The Prome inscriptions date from the 5th to 7th centuries CE (the Śrīkṣetra kingdom period), while the Chao Phraya inscriptions date from the 6th to 8th century (the Dvāravatī kingdom period). The inscriptions are in varieties of the South Indian Pallava script. The Pali inscriptions include Canonical quotations as well as passages and lists that are found in typical Theravada Abhidhamma scriptures such as the Mātikā, Paṭisambhidāmagga, Vibhaṅga, and even the Visuddhimagga. The Theravādins were also the only school that used the Pali dialect. From the archeological evidence gathered so far it appears that the Therāvadins were the dominant religious school in these two areas in this period. See Peter Skilling, 1997. Whether these Theravadins came from Sri Lanka or South India or had come in Asoka's time as part of a mission to Suvarnabhūmi is uncertain. There is no mention of missions to SE Asia in Sinhalese scriptures until the Polonnaruwa period. See Peter Skilling, 1997.

[people], he considered the place [where he could do so]. Hearing of the country of Qí,[24] and [wishing to] spread the Dhamma [there], he took a ship to its capital. Staying in the Right Contemplation Monastery (Shèng-guàn-sì), he became a disciple of the Indian Śramaṇa Guṇabhadra.[25] Again he learnt essential Vaipulya [sūtras] from Bhadra. Saṅghapāla's knowledge was wide and deep. He was conversant with the languages and scripts of several countries. ...[26] Pāla was quiet and clean of body and of mind and was withdrawn. In the seclusion of his room he stayed and worked, taking very simple fare.

The great emperor of Liáng called on him for his skills. In the 5th year of Tiān Jiān (天監, 506 CE), by imperial decree he was appointed five places in the City of Willows (Yáng-dū, 楊都): the Long-life and Light Temple, the Blossom Park, the Right Contemplation Monastery (Shèng-guàn), the Divine Cloud Resthouse, and the Fúnán Resthouse. He translated there for seventeen years. His translations amounted to eleven works of forty-eight fascicles, that is, the Mahā-aśoka-rāja-sūtra,[27] the Vimokṣa-mārga-śāstra, etc. On the first day of the translation work at the Long-life and Light Temple, the Emperor Wǔ bowed [to him] at the Dhamma seat and [himself] wrote down his (i.e. Saṅghapāla's) words. After that he handed it over to the translator to finish his manuscript.[28] [The emperor] ordered the śramaṇas Bǎo-chàng, Huì-chāo, Sēng-zhì, Fǎ-yún and Yuān-tān-yǔn to check and clear up [difficulties].[29]

He (i.e. Saṅghapāla) produced Chinese characters that are regular and the translation is faithful to the original. The emperor treated him most cordially and respectfully and made him the court chaplain. He altered many customs of the people. Pāla did not hoard wealth. With the offerings that were made to him he built monasteries. General Línchuān received him with great pomp. In the fifth year of Pǔ-tōng (普通 = 524 CE), due to a sudden disease [he died] at the Right Contemplation Monastery. He was sixty-five years old.

Again, at the beginning of the Liáng dynasty there was the Fúnán Śramaṇa Mandra

---

[24] The Southern Chinese Qí dynasty lasted from 479 to 502. This implies that Saṅghapāla arrived in China before 502.

[25] 求那跋陀, = Qiú-nà-bá-tuó. Guṇabhadra (394–468) was a Brahmin from central India who became a follower of the Mahāyana. He travelled from Sri Lanka to China by ship in 435 CE and translated scriptures such as the Saṃyukta Āgama and Laṅkāvatāra Sūtra, also with the help of Bǎo-chàng, etc. (See T50n2059_p0344a0–345a23.)

It is impossible that Guṇabhadra and Saṅghapāla would have met each other because Gunabhadra died in 468, well before Saṅghapāla (born in 460) arrived in China; see Bagchi 1927, p. 416 n. 1, and Heirmann 2004, p. 375. Most probably, Guṇavṛddhi—who arrived in China around 479, built the monastery where Saṅghapāla first stayed, and died in 502—was his teacher. Saṅghapāla went to the country of Qí, suggesting that he arrived before the fall of the Qí dynasty in 502, because after that the country was called Liáng after the new ruling dynasty. Guṇavṛddhi was a master of Mahāyāna. And, significantly, Saṅghapāla's biography is appended to the one of Guṇavṛddhi, not to the one of Guṇabhadra; see Ann Heirmann 2004, p. 375.

[26] 426a09–10 ‖ 值齊曆亡墜道教淩夷. This is illegible. The words can mean "value/attend/happening even/neat/altogether calendar. (Perhaps this means that he was punctual?) Flees/dies falls/burden Taoism (or way + teach/tell) approach/traverse/maltreat safe/equal/barbarians."

Perhaps the latter sentence refers to the fall of the Qí dynasty in 502?

[27] = T50n2043. Perhaps this is the Aśokāvadāna; see Potter 2003, § 70, p.283.

[28] It is not clear whether he handed it over to Saṅghapāla or to someone else. The characters 譯人 mean "translator" or "oral interpreter" and is used elsewhere too in the Xù-gāo-sēng-zhuán-xù, etc.

[29] 相對疏出. This is obscure. The characters literally mean "oppose and clear up (obstructions) produced." Perhaps 出 "produced" belongs to the next sentence.

Bǎo-chàng (Ratna-ghosa, 寶唱), Huì-chāo (Buddhi-vikrama, 慧超) Sēng-zhì (Saṅgha-jñāna, 僧智) Fǎ-yún (Dharma-megha, 法雲) and Yuān-tān-yǔn (?, 袁曇). Bǎo-chàng is not to be confused with Bǎo-yūn 寶雲 (376–449).

(Màn-tuó-luó, 曼陀羅), [which means in] the language of Liáng "great (and) feeble" (hóng-ruò, 弘弱).[30] With a great gift[31] of Buddhist Sanskrit Sūtras he came from afar to present [them] as a tribute [to the emperor who] ordered him, together with Saṅghapāla, to translate the Ratnamegha, Dharmadhātu, Kāyasvabhāva, Mañjuśrī and Prajñāpāramitā Sūtras. His translations amount to three works of eleven fascicles. Although the substance is conveyed, the translations in the Liáng language are not good because he produced sūtra texts (文, also "words" see 為齊文 below) with a much obscure character."

An earlier (around 530 CE), but briefer biography is found in the Gāo-sēng-zhuán ("Biographies of Eminent Monks") by Huìa Jiǎo (慧皎, 497–554 CE) (T50n2059_p0345b09–14). It follows the biography of Guṇavṛddhi (T50n2059_p0345a24–b09):

Guṇavṛddhi: this means "promoter of good qualities."[32] He was originally from Central India. From a young age he followed the Path [of Dharma]. His teacher was the Indian Mahāyāna master Saṅghasena (Sēng-jiā-sī, 僧伽斯; elsewhere 僧伽斯那). Astute, and having a powerful memory, he (i.e. Guṇavṛddhi) was diligent in recitation (sajjhāya). He was well versed and mastered the Lesser and Great Vehicle [Sūtras] amounting to twenty myriads words/lines (or two hundred thousand words/lines). He had studied external (i.e., worldly or Brahmanical) texts and was skilled in dark and bright ("ying and yang" = magic?), prognosticating (auspicious) times, and examining the meaning of omens. At the start of the Qí-jiàn dynasty (479 CE) he first came to the capital and stayed at the Vaiśālī (Pí-yē-lí) Monastery. Holding a staff while walking, his deportment was dignified, proper and serene. Royalty and nobility regularly invited him and offered him precious gifts.

Formerly, Saṅghasena, in India, had extracted important parables from the Sūtra-piṭaka and compiled them as one book. It altogether has one hundred chapters and is for instructing new pupils. Guṇavṛddhi could easily and entirely recite it and clarify both its meaning and purport. In the autumn of the tenth year of the Yǒng-míng dynasty (492) it was translated as an orderly text (or "in orderly words" 為齊文, see 文 in the biographies above.) of altogether 10 fascicles called the "Sūtra of Hundred Parables" (Śatopama Sūtra, Bǎi-yù-jīng, 百喻經, = T 209). He also produced the "[Sūtra of the] Twelve Factors of Dependent Origination" (Dvādaśāṅga-pratītyasamutpādaḥ, lost) and the Sūtra of the Householder Sudatta (Sudatta-gṛhpati Sūtra, = T 73) in one fascicle.
After the decadent Dà-míng Dynasty, the translation of sūtras was dangerous and discontinued. His proclaiming widely [of the Dharma], the world all praised.
Guṇavṛddhi was liberal and generous towards others. South-sea merchants returning 10000 li [distance to their country] gathered, [wishing to share] karma all with the ancestors, and [30] 弘弱 If this is the correct reading then his name would correspond to Skt. mandāra—which can mean "large/vast" and "weak/slow" (manda)—rather than as mandra. However, at T49n2034_p0098b06, see below, his name is "feeble sound,"弱聲, corresponding to Skt. mandra, which makes better sense.

---

[31] 大齎. Used with sūtra manuscripts presented to kings. Cf. T55n2149_p0243a14, (= sūtras brought by 沙門曇摩羅察 from India), etc.. And also with jewelry presented to a king: T04n0200_p0253a27: "… householder tributes and presents a great gift of jewelry to the king…"(其一長者。大齎珍寶。貢奉與王). Cf. T04n0203_p0488a22.

The King of Funan was sending gifts as tribute to the Emperor of China, see note @@ above, and apparently Mandra brought such a tribute from Funan. The Buddhist monk Nāgasena was also sent by the Funan king with a a tribute to the Emperor of China. It is possible that after it became known in Funan that the Chinese emperor was a Buddhist and was involved in translating Buddhist texts, that monks and manuscripts were sent as tributes.

[32] This text (T50n2059_p0345a24) and a few other ones read 安進, "calm-advancer," but other catalogues (T49n2034_p0096a08, T55n2149_p0262c19, T55n2154_p0536b11) read 德進, which makes better sense.

offered gifts which he accepted entirely for the sake of furthering the Dhamma.[33] He established the Right Contemplation Monastery along the Yè River, where he went to live. It had a two story pavilion of which the entrance to the hall was completely decorated. In the winter of the second year of zhōng xīng (中興, 502 CE) he passed away in his residence.

> "At the beginning of the Liáng dynasty (502–549 CE) there was Saṅghapāla; he was also a foreign scholar monk. His bearing was noble and he was handsome of feature. He was a skilful debater. Coming to the capital, he stayed at the Right Contemplation Monastery (Shèng-guàn-sì). The Emperor Wǔ honoured and respected him, and treated him with great consideration. He was appointed[34] by (by the emperor) to the Right Contemplation Monastery, Long-life and Light Temple and the Divine Cloud Resthouse. He translated the Mahā-aśoka-rāja-sūtra, Vimokṣa-mārga-śāstra, and others—all together ten works of thirty-three fascicles. [The emperor] ordered the śramaṇas Shì-bǎo-chàng, Yuān-tān-yǔn and others to write down what was said [by him] and to pass on the translation/interpret it/record it. …."

In this work, Saṅghapāla's biography occurs as an appendix to the biography of Guṇavṛddhi (Qiú-nà-pí-dì, 求那毘地), another translator who was from central north India. Guṇavṛddhi built the Right Contemplation Monastery and died there in the second year of Zhōng Xīng (中興, 502 CE) (T50n2059_p345a24–b09).

In the earlier "History of the Triple Gem in Successive Dynasties,"[35] (594 CE) Saṅghapāla's biography comes after the one of Mandra. There a few interesting differences:

> "At the beginning of the years of Tiān Jiān there was the Funan Country Śramaṇa Mandra, [which means in] the language of Liang "feeble sound" (弱聲, mandra)." He came to present a great gift of Buddhist Sanskrit Sūtras as a tribute [to the emperor]. He produced Sūtra texts (為齊文文, also "words") with a much obscure character. Together with Saṅghapāla in the City of Yáng he translated the Aśoka-rāja Sūtra in ten fascicles (In the eleventh year of Tiān Jiān … It was translated in the Long Life and Light Temple in the City of Yáng. The first translation [part] was written down by the Sun Emperor himself, who bowed [to the translator]. Afterwards he [i.e. the emperor] handed it over to Huì-chāo to continue his translation and properly finish it. See the Treasure Song Record [見寶唱錄].) Māyura-rāja-dhāraṇī Sūtra, … Mañjuśrī-ācārya-paripṛcchā Sūtra, … Sabbabuddha-dhātu-jñāna (?) Sūtra, … Bodhisattva-piṭaka Sūtra, … Mañjuśrī-ācārya-nirdeśa-prajnāpāramitā Sūtra, … Sāriputra-dhāraṇī Sūtra, … Aṣṭa-maṅgala Sūtra, … Dasa-dharma Sūtra, … Vimuktimārga Śāstra in thirteen fascicles. (It was translated in the [Divine Cloud] Resthouse in the fourteenth year of Tiān Jiān [515 CE].) The Asoka-rāja Śāstra in five fascicles. (…) All together eleven works in thirty-eight fascicles.
>
> The Funan Śramaṇa Saṅghapāla of Right Contemplation Monastery: [In the] language of Liáng [Saṅghapāla means] "Saṅgha nourisher" and also "Saṅgha armour." Young and [34] 勅, meaning an imperial order or appointment. It is unclear whether he was appointed/assigned to reside there, or whether he was appointed as abbot.

---

[33] Other, later versions (T55n2145_p0107a04–07, T55n2157_p0834b24–26) have: "South Sea merchants returning ten thousand li [to their country] gathered to entirely share [the merit] with ancestors and offer presents to an assembly of foreign monks. They [the merchants] went and came back each year without stopping. He had a very fortunate nature and accumulated wealth in the form of money and gems. However it was not out of personal interest, but for the purpose of building and establishing the Dharma."

[35] 歷代三寶紀, by Fèi Cháng Fáng. DDB: "A history of the development of the Buddhist canon from the Latter Han to the Sui dynasties. Contains scriptural catalogues and classifications, biographies of 197 translators and a history of the transmission of Buddhism." According to Mizuno (1982, pp. 104–106) it is not reliable because the main aim of its author was to protect Buddhism against Taoism rather than being historically accurate.

exceptionally clever, he went forth at the age of fifteen. He inclined to the study of the Abhidharma. After his mind was perfect (sampanna) [in the Abhidharma] he extensively studied the Vinayapiṭaka. … [as in the Xù-gāo-sēng-zhuán-xù biography given above] … The great emperor of Liáng called on him for his skills. In the 5th year of Tiān Jiān, he was ordered to conscript/conscripted to three places in the City of Yáng: the Long-life and Light Temple, the Right Contemplation Monastery, the Divine Cloud Resthouse to translate sūtras for the superior (上件經, ? make superior sūtra translations? but see usage of 上 in the next clause), i.e., his own (其本) [sūtras] and also those (並是) which Mandra from the Funan Country came to present as a gift to the superior (上). … Next sentence illegible: "… after finishing … the translation. T49n2034_p0098c07–8 (上?)陀終沒後。羅專事翻譯 (see the parallel in the Xù-gāo-sēng-zhuán-xù biography above: "After that he handed it over to the translator to finish his manuscript." T50n2060_p0426a16–17 然後乃付譯人盡其經本.) The emperor ordered the śramaṇas Bǎo-chàng, Huì-chāo, Sēng-zhì, Fǎ-yún and Yuān-tān-yǔn to write down [the translation]. The emperor treated him most cordially and respectfully. … [as in the Xù-gāo-sēng-zhuán-xù biography] (T49n2034_p0098b05–C13; repeated in the "Tang Dynasty Catalogue of the Canon" (Dàtá-nèi-diǎn-lù, 大唐內典錄卷, T55n2149_p0265c12–266a14).

According to introductions to the following Chinese texts, Tipiṭaka Saṅghapāla translated them into Chinese:

T08n0233_p0732c11 ‖ No. 233 [Nos. 220(7), 232]T08n0233_p0732c12 ‖ 文殊師利所說般若波羅蜜經T08n0233_p0732c13 ‖ T08n0233_p0732c14 ‖ 梁扶南[14]國三藏僧伽婆羅譯

T11n0314_p0764a14 ‖ No. 314 [No. 310(9)]T11n0314_p0764a15 ‖ 佛說大乘十法經T11n0314_p0764a16 ‖ T11n0314_p0764a17 ‖ 梁[6]扶南三藏僧伽婆羅譯

T14n0430_p0075a21 ‖ No. 430 [Nos. 427-429, 431]T14n0430_p0075a22 ‖ [10]八吉祥經T14n0430_p0075a23 ‖ T14n0430_p0075a24 ‖ 梁扶南三藏僧伽婆羅譯

T14n0468_p0492b20 ‖ No. 468T14n0468_p0492b21 ‖ 文殊師利問經卷上T14n0468_p0492b22 ‖ T14n0468_p0492b23 ‖ 梁[2]扶南[3]國三藏僧伽婆羅譯

T19n0984_p0446b24 ‖ No. 984 [Nos. 982, 983, 985]T19n0984_p0446b25 ‖ [10]孔雀王呪經卷上T19n0984_p0446b26 ‖ T19n0984_p0446b27 ‖ 梁扶南三[11]藏僧伽婆羅譯

T19n1016_p0695a25 ‖ No. 1016 [Nos. 1009, 1011-1015, 1017, 1018]T19n1016_p0695a26 ‖ [6]舍利弗陀羅尼經T19n1016_p0695a27 ‖ T19n1016_p0695a28 ‖ 梁扶[7]南三[8]藏僧伽婆羅譯

T24n1491_p1086c22 ‖ No. 1491T24n1491_p1086c23 ‖ 菩薩藏經T24n1491_p1086c24 ‖ T24n1491_p1086c25 ‖ [5]梁扶南三藏僧伽婆羅譯

T50n2043_p0131b02 ‖ No. 2043T50n2043_p0131b03 ‖ 阿育王經卷第一T50n2043_p0131b04 ‖ T50n2043_p0131b05 ‖ 梁扶南三藏僧伽婆羅譯

The Origin of the Vimuttimagga Manuscript in China

There are several options on how the Vimuttimagga came to China:

1. It was one of the manuscripts which the famous Chinese traveller and translator monk Făxiăn (法顯, also called Fa-Hien or Fa-hsien) obtained in Sri Lanka around 410–411 and brought to China. Although Făxiăn's biography does not mention it as one of the manuscripts he brought to China (see Glass 2008, p. 194–195; Legge Ch. XV), it is possible that he brought more texts than are mentioned. Perhaps it was considered part of the Ksudraka Piṭaka he obtained in Sri Lanka or it was one of the unspecified sutras from Campā in India.

It is said in the biographies of Saṅghapāla that Emperor Wŭ "called on (Saṅghapāla) for his skills." Andrew Glass (2008, p. 194f) suggests that "… there was a concerted effort to translate those manuscripts which Făxiăn had brought back with him. This effort began soon after Făxiăn's return and extended into the period following his retirement from translation work." So perhaps Emperor Wŭ requested Saṅghapāla to help with translating yet untranslated texts that Făxiăn had brought.

2. The manuscript was brought by another foreign monk, such as Guṇabhadra or Guṇavarman (who both, like Făxiăn, sailed to China from Sri Lanka[36]) or Saṅghabhadra, Guṇavṛddhi, Nāgasena or Mandra.

Saṅghabhadra, said to be "from the West" in the Chinese biographies, translated a Sri Lankan Sthavira commentary on the Vinaya in 488/489, not long before Saṅghapāla came to China (i.e. shortly before 502). It is called Shàn-jiàn-lù-pí-pó-shā (善見律毘婆沙), which corresponds to Sudarśana-vinaya-vibhāṣā or "Conspicuous Vinaya Commentary" (See Bapat 1970). This translation is either a somewhat free Chinese translation of, and/or an adaptation of the Pali Samantapāsādikā in order to fit the Vinaya practised in China, or it is a translation of a work very similar to it, i.e., belonging to a different school than the Mahāvihāra or of an older Mahāvihāra work which was superceded by Buddhaghosa's work.

3. Saṅghapāla brought the Vimuttimagga manuscript himself, perhaps for his own use. Although there is no mention of Saṅghapāla presenting manuscripts to the emperor, it is said in the "History of the Triple Gem in Successive Dynasties," that he translated his own [manuscripts] besides the one Mandra presented to the emperor.

According to Heirmann (2004, p. 375–76) "The only link between the Chieh-t'o tao-lun and Mandra is that, according to Tao-hsüan's Ta-t'ang nei-tien lu (T. 2149: 266a10-11), all texts

---

[36] It is frequently stated that Făxiăn stayed at the Abhayagiri Vihāra during his stay in Sri Lanka. For example, G. P. Malalasekera in his Dictionary of Pali Proper Names, s.v. Abhayagiri, writes: "Fa-Hsien evidently spent the two years of his stay in Ceylon with the Abhayagiri fraternity because the books he took away with him were those of the unorthodox schools."

Another scholar writes "The Chinese pilgrim Faxian visited Anuradhapura in AD 412. After his arrival, he went to Abhayagiri - not Mahavihara - monastery, where he remained for some time." (K. R. van Kooij, "A Meaningful Tree: The Bo Tree" in Site-seeing, ed. K. Zijlmans, Leiden 2006, p. 23.) According to Guruge (2005, p. 98) the Abhayagiri Viharā "received Fa-Hian, who spent two years (410-412 CE) there … It is from this monastery that he took a copy of the Mahisasaka Vinaya to China. It is also here that Gunavarman, the king of Kashmir, stayed before his departure to China."

However, there is no indication at all in the Chinese biographies of Făxiăn and Guṇavarman that they stayed at the Abhayagiri Vihāra. Făxiăn visited the Abhayagiri Vihāra, and describes its Buddha hall, etc, but he also visited the Mahāvihara and describes the funeral of a monk there who was reputed to be an arahant; see Legge, Ch. XXXVIII–XL. Although the Abhayagiri Vihāra is mentioned first in his biography, it is well possible that he stayed in another vihāra in Anuradhapura—perhaps a vihāra for foreign pilgrim and/or student monks. Făxiăn could have copied "the books of the unorthodox schools" from books of individual Indian monks staying in Anuradhapura, or obtained the books from them, rather than formally receiving them from the Abhayagiri Vihāra. Or he could have got them copied from manuscripts in the library of the Abhayagiri Vihāra, that is, if there was such a thing as an official library rather than smaller collections belonging to individual monks or residences of monks. For a reliable description of Făxiăn's visit to Sri Lanka, see A. Hirakawa, A History of Indian Buddhism, New Delhi 1993, p. 121.

Guṇavarman's biography very briefly mentions his visit to Sri Lanka, without mentioning any town or vihāra; see V. Stache-Rosen, "Gunavarman (367-431): A Comparative Analysis of the Biographies found in the Chinese Tripitaka," Bulletin of Tibetology, X, No. 1, 1973, p. 9.

translated by *Saṃghabhara, and thus also the Chieh-t'o tao-lun, are texts brought from Funan by Mandra. This information corresponds to Fe Ch'ang-fang's Li-tai san-pao chi (T. 2034: 98c6–8), compiled a few decades earlier."

However, the above English translation of the Li-tai san-pao chi, or "History of the Triple Gem in Successive Dynasties," shows that Mandra translated eleven texts together with Saṅghapāla, but there is no indication that these all were just texts brought by Mandra himself. Further, it is said in the subsequent biography of Saṅghapāla that he translated "his own (其本) [sūtras] and also those (並是) which Mandra from the Funan Country came to present as a gift to the superior (i.e. emperor)." If this is reliable, then this could give the possibility that the Vimuttimagga was brought to China by Saṅghapāla himself.

4. Saṅghapāla had learnt the text by heart. According to the biographies, he was "inclined to the study of the Abhidharma treatises (論, nirdeśa)." The Vimuttimagga is called an "exposition" or "treatise," niddesa, 論, in Chinese, i.e. the Treatise on the Path of Freedom, 解脫道論, and this is also how the text internally refers to itself ("in this Exposition," 於此論中, 416a21). The Vimuttimagga is a work that is Abhidharmic in nature (see Frauwallner 1995, pp.89–95), with quotations from the Paṭisambhidāmagga, which it refers to as "Abhidhamma."

Memorisation of texts was a common way of learning in Buddhist monasteries. Guṇavṛddhi, in whose monastery Saṅghapāla stayed, had memorised many sūtras. Saṅghapāla's biography mentions that at the start of the translation project he spoke/recited the Chinese translation and the emperor himself wrote down the first part of what said. This recitation, however, does not exclude the possibility that he recited it from a manuscript or had just temporarily learnt the particular part that he was going to recite at each translation session.

Kōgen Mizuno (1982, pp.99–102) describes the process of Chinese state sponsored translations of Buddhist texts in which team members undertook different tasks such as the translator reciting the text by heart or from a Sanskrit manuscript and then translating it, a scribe writing down the translation, another team member checking it against the Sanskrit, and other ones for checking the accuracy of the Chinese ideograms, verifying the meaning, arranging the sentences, etc.

The school to which Saṅghapāla belonged is not known. It is possible that he was a Sthavira as there could been Sthavira monasteries in Funan that were connected to Sri Lankan or South Indian traditions by way of the trade routes. The biography mentions that Saṅghapāla knew several languages and scripts.

Saṅghabhara or Saṅghapāla?

There has been quite some uncertainty as to whether the Chinese name of the translator of the Chinese translation of the Vimuttimagga is a transcription of Saṅghapāla or Saṅghabhara or another name; see for example, see Skilling 1994, p. 171–72. However, there seems to be no good reason for chosing the transliteration Saṅghabhara instead of Saṅghapāla.

The explanation of his name in the Southern Chinese biographies and catalogues is as follows:

"Saṅghapāla (Sēng-jiā-pó-luó, 僧伽婆羅): [In the] language of Liáng [this means]: Saṅgha-nourisher/protector (sēng, 僧, = saṅgha & yǎng, 養, = pāla(ka)/poṣa) and also Saṅgha-armour (kǎi, 鎧, = varma/pāla)."

According Bunjiu Nanji (1883, § 1293 & Appendix II § 102) sēng-jiā-pó-luó, 僧伽婆羅, corresponds to Saṅghapāla. Bagchi (1927, p. 415), however, argues that the transliteration Saṅghapāla, as given by Bunjiu Nanji (1883, § 1293 & Appendix II § 102), is not at all justifiied by the Chinese translation of the name. According to Bagchi, pó for 婆 in 僧伽婆羅 gives the ancient pronunciation b'uâ/bha. Bagchi justifies the restitution of -bhara for 婆羅 by the Chinese translation "Saṅgha-nourisher." He writes that the other translation Seng-k'ai for Saṅgha-varman is simply due to a confusion.[37]

[37] "Son nom est transcrit Seng-kia-p'o-lo que Nanjio restitue en Saṅghapāla, un forme pas

Bagchi's justifications are problematic. First, Bagchi's transliteration -bhara does not correspond to the way the character 婆 is used in transliteration of other Indic proper names in the same catalogues.. And second, the Chinese (Liáng) translations are just the Chinese meanings of the Indic proper name, not alternative transliterations.

If, as Bagchi suggests 婆羅 in 僧伽婆羅 stands for -bhara instead of -pāla, why then is -bhadra in Guṇabhadra (求那跋陀, Qiú-nà-bá-tuó) and Saṅghabhadra (僧伽跋陀羅, Sēng-jiā-bá-tuó-luó,) transliterated as 跋陀? Then the transliteration of -bhara would need to be 跋羅 with a 跋 for bha instead of 婆. Normally, the characters 婆羅 correspond to pāla in Chinese Buddhist translations.[38] They, less commonly, can also correspond to bala, bāla. Bhara, however, is not mentioned as a transliteration in DDB and its sources (see DDB s.v. 婆羅).

Bagchi states that the meanings of the Chinese translation "Saṅgha-nourishing" (僧養 sēng-yǎng) do "not at all" ("pas du tout") correspond to -pāla, however, the meanings as given in Monier Williams' Sanskrit English Dictionary (MW) don't support Bagchi's rejection. According to MW, the root pāl means "... to watch, guard, protect, defend, rule, govern ... to keep, maintain, observe (a promise or vow) ..." For the noun pāla MW gives "guard, protector, keeper"; and for pālaka, "... guarding, protecting, nourishing... a guardian, protector ... a foster-father ... a maintainer ...." The Pali meanings given for pāla in PED are "guard, keeper, guardian, protector."

The character 養, yǎng, corresponds to "nourish, cultivate, raise, protect, care for, support" (see DDB s.v. 養), which corresponds to several of the meanings given for pāla and pālaka in MW. Moreover, the translation "Saṅgha-armour"—with 鎧 kǎi, for Skt. varma, "armour"—which according to Bagchi is due to a confusion, makes actually good sense because an armour is for protection. Further, if the principle meaning of 婆羅 would have been "nourishing," then a transliteration of -poṣa would have been expected instead of -bhara, which primarily means "bearing, carrying, supporting" (see MW and PED).

The character 婆 is used to transliterate "pa, ba, va, pha, bha, and similar labial sounds" (see DDB, s.v. 婆); and the character 羅 can correspond to both the la and ra sounds (see DDB, s.v. 羅).

Thus on these grounds the transliteration Saṅghapāla that Bunjiu Nanji proposed is to be preferred above Bagchi's Saṅghabhara.

僧伽婆羅: Sēng-jiā-pó-luó Saṅghapāla
求那跋陀, = Qiú-nà-bá-tuó. Guṇabhadra
曼陀羅: Màn-tuó-luó Mandra
求那跋摩: Qiú-nà-bá-mó Guṇavarman
僧伽跋陀羅*Sēng-jiā-bá-tuó-luó* Sanghabhadra (?)
修多羅: xiū-duō- luó, Sūtra

部吼多波羅, bù-hǒu-duō-bō-luó, Bhūtapāla, T32n1648_p0441b13. DDB: 波羅: A transliteration of the Sanskrit bāla; see 凡夫. [cmuller] du tout justifiée par le traductions chinoises du nom. P'o donne la prononciation ancienne b'uâ (= bha). On peut donc restituer le nom en Saṅghabhara (déjà proposé par S. Lévi, J. As., 1915, p. 25). Cette forme est justifiée par la traduction Seng yang (donnée par LK) et Tchong-yang (donnée par TK) qui signifie "communauté-nourrir", Saṅgha-bhara (de la racine bhṛ). L'autre traduction Seng-k'ai (Saṅgha-varman) donnée par des sources tardives est simplement due à une confusion."

---

[38] Cf. 部吼多波羅, bù-hǒu-duō-bō-luó, Bhūtapāla, at T32n1648_p0441b13. DDB: "波羅: A transliteration of the Sanskrit bāla ..."

The Visuddhimagga

Much has been written about the Visuddhimagga from the earliest times right down to the present day. King Parākrama-Bāhu II (1236–68 CE) is reported to have written the paraphrase to the Visuddhimagga after he had handed over the kingdom to his son Bodhisatta Vijaya-Bāhu (1271–72 CE). During the last century Pandit M. Dharmaratna revised this work. Of him and his work on the Visuddhimagga, the Venerable Soma Thera wrote in the Buddha Jayanti of April 5, 1955 thus: "Had he not written any of the works mentioned above and not edited the paper, still people of this country would have been obliged to remember him for his great gift of the translation of the Visuddhimagga, with his edition of the Visuddhi Text, and the revised version of the ancient paraphrase of the Visuddhi by Parākrama-Bāhu II, a comprehensive work which is of never-failing interest and great usefulness to all students of the Dhamma and the Sinhalese language." Then again there is late Venerable Paṇḍita Mātara Śrī Dharmavaṃsa Mahā Sthavira's more recent translation which was completed by his pupil the Venerable Paṇḍita Baṭuviṭa Nandārāma Māha Thera in 1957. There is also the English translation of the Pali Text Society by Prof. Pe Maung Tin of Rangoon, completed in 1931, and that of the late Venerable Ñāṇamoli Thera of the Island Hermitage, Dodanduwa in 1956. The German translation is by the late Venerable Ñāṇatiloka Mahā Thera, founder of the Island Hermitage, Dodanduwa, the publishers being Verlag Christiani, Konstanz, 1952.

The Visuddhimagga is a household world in all Theravāda lands. No scholar of Buddhism whether of Theravāda or of Mahāyāna is unacquainted with it. Therefore there is no need of repeating what has already been said at one time or another. But an introduction to the Vimuttimagga, can hardly avoid all mention of the Visuddhimagga, and I may be excused if I go over ground already covered by others. An endeavour, however, is made to present some of these facts briefly and with a slightly new approach. It is for the reader to assess how far this has been achieved.

In the introduction to his translation of the Visuddhimagga, The Path of Purification, the late Venerable Ñāṇamoli Thera, after carefully sifting a large collection of material, points out that the influence of Sanskrit Buddhism, the centre of which was the Abhayagiri monastery in Anurādhapura, was so great in the first century CE that it became a threat to the Mahāvihāra's position as the central authority of orthodox Pali Buddhism in Ceylon. Indeed that threat grew into open rivalry and even enmity between these two institutions, culminating in King Mahāsena's (277–304) giving protection to Saṅghamitta, "a Cola monk, follower of Vetullavāda," and driving away the monks of the Mahāvihāra from Anurādhapura for nine years. Then, Mahāsena, repenting of his deeds, restored the Mahāvihāra to its former position and burnt the Vetulyan books. But by then Saṅghamitta had got the Lohapāsāda destroyed, and he and his friend, the minister Soṇa, were killed by a labourer on the orders of the queen when they attempted to destroy the Thūpārāma. The efforts of the Mahāvihāra monks since the beginning of the dispute with those of the Abhayagiri in the first century CE were solely directed to the establishment, says the Venerable Ñāṇamoli Thera, of "Pali as the language for the study and discussion of Buddhist teachings, and the founding of usage for the study and discussion of Buddhist teachings, and the founding of a school of Pali literary composition" (Intro. p. xiv). He then goes on to say, "It is not known what was the first original Pali composition in this period; but the Dīpavaṃsa (dealing with historical evidence) belongs here (for it ends with Mahāsena's reign and is quoted in the Samantapāsādikā), and quite possibly the Vimuttimagga (dealing with practice—see below) was another early attempt by the Great Monastery in this period (4th cent.) to reassert its supremacy through original Pali literary composition: there will have been others too. Of course, much of this is very conjectural" (Intro. p.xiv). It will be noted here that the Venerable Ñāṇamoli Thera does not place the Vimuttimagga during the reign of King Vasabha, but in the 4th century. Still it does not contradict the fact that the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera had access to the Vimuttimagga of the Venerable Upatissa Thera when he wrote the Visuddhimagga.

If the suggestion that the Vimuttimagga "was another early attempt by the Great Monastery in this period to reassert its supremacy through Pali composition" is acceptable, it would then not be difficult to suppose that the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera, with what knowledge he had already acquired of the Dhamma in India (for he had written the Ñāṇodaya, the Atthasālinī and had begun "to compose a commentary to the Paritta," Cv Ch. xxxvii, 225–26), was able to write the Visuddhimagga, perhaps with the assistance of the Mahāvihāra Theras. This work is more comprehensive than the Vimuttimagga and in every sense more scholarly, with a wealth of material drawn from every imaginable source and interspersed with numerous Ceylon stories. Thus, not only did it provide instruction for those needing it in the practice of the Dhamma, but it was also capable of holding its own as a work of literary composition.

Two things seem to have played an important part in making available for later generations, even up to the present day, a work of such excellence as is the Visuddhimagga. They are:

The desperate need of the Mahāvihāra for a work which would prove its claim to be the centre of Buddhist learning in Ceylon.

The equally urgent need of the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera to prove his ability as a worthy scholar in the eyes of the Theras of the Mahāvihāra. Without this recognition he could not have obtained from them the commentaries and the expositions of the teachers (ācariyavāda) for translation into Pali as required by his teacher in India, the Venerable Revata Mahā Thera, and for which express purpose he came to Ceylon (Cv Ch. xxxvii, 227–32).

That this dual need was supplied to the complete satisfaction of both parties is amply borne out by the recorded history of the centuries that followed.

The Vimuttimagga and the Visuddhimagga

On certain points the Vimuttimagga and the Visuddhimagga hold contrary views. For instance, the latter says that by developing Buddhānussati (the recollection of the Buddha) the factors of jhāna, arise in a single moment; that as the qualities of the Buddha are unfathomable or else owing to reflection on his numerous qualities appanā (fixedness-concentration) is not attained, and only upacāra (access-concentration) is reached. The Vimuttimagga on the other hand says that "from the recollection of the Buddha the four jhānas arise." This statement seems to agree with the sutta and its commentary quoted at Ch. 8, n. 331AIII285.

They agree that in practising ānāpānasati (mindfulness of breathing) the breath should not be followed inside or outside because it distracts the mind. This causes the body and the mind to waver and tremble. The simile of the man sawing wood illustrating where the breath should be noted, i.e., at nose-tip or on the lip, is common to both works. The Visuddhimagga quotes other similes in illustration. It also quotes (p. 280) the Paṭisambhidāmagga (I, p. 165) which warns against the practice of trying to follow the inhaled breath to the heart (hadaya) and the navel (nābhi) and the outgoing breath back from the navel to the heart and nose-tip, for, both the mind and the body become 'disquieted and perturbed and shaky' if this practice is resorted to.

The Visuddhimagga (p. 278) says that there are eight stages in the practice of ānāpānasati, the first four of which are counting, connection, touching, and fixing. Here the Venerable Buddhaghosa Thera does not quote authority for this statement as he usually does. The Vimuttimagga (p.predecessors) supplies this omission by saying that 'certain predecessors' taught these four ways. Here both base themselves on authority outside the texts and the commentaries.

In discussing the earth kasiṇa, the Visuddhimagga (p. 123) says, "The four blemishes of the earth kasiṇa are due to the intrusion of blue, yellow, red, or white." But it does not give any reason. The Vimuttimagga (p. whiteblack) says, "If he grasps the white, black, or red colour, then he develops a colour kasiṇa." It is seen here that by practising one meditation subject another cannot be developed. For instance, when one practises ānāpānasati, one does not become proficient in, say, buddhānussati, though this is sometimes imagined to be possible. If, for instance, one sees the form of the Buddha or a Buddha statue while developing any other meditation, then it is a clear case of failure in the practice of that particular meditation, then it is a clear case of failure in the practice of that particular meditation, though the seeing of these signs in itself is a good thing. The proper occasion for these signs to appear is when buddhānussati is practised.

That the Vimuttimagga is an inspiring work is stated elsewhere. It is confirmed by the spontaneous testimony of those who have read the original draft translation. It has inspired men of ancient times. That is shown by the fact that the people of Liáng in the early years of the sixth century CE called the author of the Vimuttimagga 'Great Light'.

What connection there is between these two works has been shown, though briefly, in the foregoing pages. No more can be expected in an introduction. For a detailed study, the reader may consult the thorough investigation made by Prof. Bapat in his Vimuttimagga and Visuddhimagga, A Comparative Study, Poona, 1937.

Bibliography

Vimuttimagga

Chinese translation: Jiě-tuò-dào-lùn (Chinese transcription) or Gedatsu Dō Ron (Japanese transcription) by Tipiṭaka Saṅghapāla of Funan (6th cent. CE). Taishō edition at T 32, no. 1648, p. 399c-461c (Nanjio no. 1293)

Tibetan translation of chapter 10, and (partially abridged) sections of ch. 11 and 12, and a few smaller parts of the Vimuttimagga (see Introduction p. @@) in the Dus Byas Dang ʼDus Ma Byas Rnam Par Nges Pa (= Saṃskṛtāsaṃskṛta-viniścaya) by Dasabalaśrīmitra, This text is found in the Bstan ʼgyur dbu ma section, vol. Ha, f. 109a1–317a7. TD3897 http://www.asianclassics.org/download/TengTib.html

Tibetan translation of chapter 3 in Rnam par grol baʼi lam las sbyangs paʼi yon tan bstan pa zhes bya ba, (= Vimuktimārga-dhutaguṇa-nirdeśa) Derge edition no. 306, Peking edition no. 972.

Visuddhimagga

Edition of the Pali Text Society, London 1920.
Edition of the Harvard Oriental Series, Vol. 41, Cambridge, Mass., 1950.

English translations

Pe Maung Tin, The Path of Purity (3 Vols.), P.T.S., London, 1922, 1928, 1931.
Bhikkhu Ñāṇamoli, The Path of Purification by the, Colombo, 1956.

German translations

Ñāṇatiloka Mahā Thera, Der Weg zur Reinheit, 1 Band, (Vorwort pp. iv-vii), Benares Verlag, Munchen Neubiberg, 1931.
—. Der Weg zur Reinheit, complete edition, (Vorwort pp. viii-x, xii), Verlag Christani, Konstanz, 1952.

Sinhalese translations

Visuddhimagga-mahā-sannaya, the ancient paraphrase by King Parākramabāhu II (1236–68 CE).
Sinhala Visuddhimārgaya by Paṇḍita Mātara Śrī Dharmavaṃsa Sthavira, Mātara, 1953.

Commentary

Paramatthamañjūsā, the Visuddhimagga commentary by Bhadantācariya Dhammapāla.
Sinhalese edition by Morontuḍuvē Dhammānanda Thera, Colombo, 1928.
Sinhalese translation by Venerable Morontuḍuvē Dhammānanda Nāyaka Thera Colombo, 1908.

Mahāvaṃsa & Cūḷavaṃsa

Text: Edition of the Pali Text Society, London, 1908.

English translation

Wilhelm Geiger, The Mahāvaṃsa or The Great Chronicle of Ceylon, Colombo, 1950.
Wilhelm Geiger & Mrs. C. Mabel Rickmers, Cūḷavaṃsa, being the more recent part of the Mahāvaṃsa, (2 Parts). London 1929–30.

Other

E. W. Adikaram, Early History of Buddhism in Ceylon, Colombo, 1953.
Anālayo Bhikkhu, "The Treatise on the Path to Liberation (解道論) and the Visuddhimagga," Fuyan Buddhist Studies, 2009, vol. 4 pp. 1–15.
Prabodh Chandra Bagchi. Le canon bouddhique en Chine: les traducteurs et les traductions, Tome 1, Paris 1927.

P. V. Bapat, "Unidentified Sources of the Vimuttimagga," Annals of the Bhandarkar Oriental Institute (Poona) 15.3–4, 1935.
—. "Vimuttimagga and the school of Abhayagirivihāra in Ceylon," Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal (Calcutta) I.2, 1936.
—. Vimuttimagga and Visuddhimagga, a Comparative Study. Poona, 1937. Reprinted Kandy, 2010.
—. "Vimuttimagga and Peṭakopadesa," Indian Culture (Calcutta) III, 1937, 743–746.
—. "Nālo-tho of the Vimuttimagga," New Indian Antiquary I, 1938–39, 599–600.
—. "Interpolations in the fragmentary Tibetan version of the Vimuttimagga," New Indian Antiquary. Vol. VII, 1944, 58–60.
—. Vimuktimārga Dhutaguṇanirdeśa, Delhi, 1964.
—. in collaboration with A. Hirakawa, Shan-chien-p`i-p`o-sha; a Chinese version by Saṅghabhadra of Samantapāsādikā commentary on Pali Vinaya. Poona, 1970.
—. "Review of Ratnajoti and Ratnapāla 1963," *Journal of the Vidyālaṅkāra University of Ceylo*n (January) 1(1), 1972, 172–190.
Andrew Glass "Guṇabhadra, Bǎyún, and the Saṃyuktāgama" in Journal of the International Association of Buddhist Studies, Vol. 31 No. 1–2, Vienna 2008, pp. 184–203.
Heinz Bechert, "Vimuttimagga and Amaṭakaravaṇṇanā," in N. H. Samtani and H. S. Prasad (eds.) Amalā Prajñā: Aspects of Buddhist Studies, Professor P.V. Bapat Felicitation Volume. Bibliotheca Indo-Buddhica No. 63, Delhi, 1989, 11–14.
Kate Crosby, "History versus modern myth: the Abhayagirivihāra, the Vimuttimagga and Yogāvacara meditation," Journal of Indian Philosophy, 27, 1999, 503–550.
K. L. Dhammajoti, "Mindfulness of Breathing—the wording, enumeration and explanations in the different traditions." Class notes distributed at the MBS course on Sarvāstivāda Abhidharma at the Centre of Buddhist Studies, University of Hong Kong, 2009.
Toshiichi Endo, "The Asgiriya Manuscript of the Pali Vimuttimagga: An Inquiry into Its Authenticity," Kalyāṇi. Journal of Humanities and Social Sciences of the University of Kelaniya 1, 1983, 100–108.
—. Buddha in Theravāda Buddhism—A Study of the Concept of Buddha in the Pali Commentaries, Dehiwela, 2002.
Erich Frauwallner, Studies in the Abhidharma Literature and the Origins of Buddhist Philosophical Systems, Albany, 1995, 89–95.
Hema Goonatilake "Sri Lanka-Cambodia Relations with Special Reference to the Period 14th–20th Centuries" Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society of Sri Lanka, New Series, Volume XLVIII, 2003.
R.A.L.H. Gunawardana, Robe and Plough: Monasticism and Economic Interest in Early Medieval Sri Lanka. Tucson, 1979.
Ananda Guruge, "Shan-Jian-Lu-Piposha as an authentic source on the early history of Buddhism and Aśoka," in Dhamma-Vinaya: Essays in Honour of Venerable Professor Dhammavihari (Jotiya Dhirasekera), Colombo 2005, p. 91–110.
Takatsugu Hayashi, "On the Authorship of the Aṭṭhasālinī," Bukkyō Kenkyū, Vol. XXVIII, 1999, 31–53.
—. "On the Petakopadesa and the Vimuttimagga," Journal of Indian and Buddhist Studies, Vol. 51, No. 2, 2003, 852–848. (In Japanese.)
—. "The Vimuttimagga and Early Post-Canonical Literature (I)," Buddhist Studies, vol. 31, 2004, 90–121.
—. "The Vimuttimagga and Early Post-Canonical Literature (II)," Buddhist Studies, vol. 32, 2004, 59–82.
—. "The Vimuttimagga and Early Post-Canonical Literature (III)," Buddhist Studies, vol. 34, 2005, 5–33.
—. "The Aggregates, Bases, and Elements According to the Abhayagiravāsins: A Japanese Translation of the Saṃskṛtāsaṃskṛtaviniścaya, Chapter 13," Buddhist Studies, vol. 36, 2008, 167–208.
Ann Heirmann, "The Chinese Samantapasadika and its school affiliation," Zeitschrift der Deutschen Morgenländischen Gesellschaft 154.2, 2004, pp.371–396.
Ryūshō Hikata, Vimuttimagga translation from the Chinese into Japanese, in Kokuyaku

Issaikyō, Ronshūbu volume 7, Tokyo.

Janakābhivaṃsa Mahāthera, "Nidāna to Visuddhimagga-Mahāṭīkā Nissaya of Mahāsi Sayādaw," Rangoon, 1966. Unpublished translation by W. Pruitt. (Rejects the modern Pali Vimuttimagga, etc.)

James Legge, A Record of Buddhistic Kingdoms: Being an account by the Chinese Monk Fa-Hien of his travels in India and Ceylon (A.D. 399-414) in search of the Buddhist Books of Discipline, Oxford 1886. (Available from http://www.gutenberg.org, etc.)

Lelan Kumar Jha, The Vimuttimagga: A Critical Study, Delhi 2008. (On the authenticity of the 1963 Sinhalese edition by Ratnajoti and Ratnapāla, incl. text in Devangari Script.)

Y. Karunadasa, Buddhist Analysis of Matter, Colombo 1967.

Mahāsi Sayādaw, Nidāna to the Visuddhimagga Nissaya, Rangoon (no date). (Lists Vimuttimagga tenets rejected in the Visuddhimagga.)

G. P. Malalasekera, The Pali Literature of Ceylon, London, 1928. (P. 86f deals with the Vim.)

—. Dictionary of Pali Proper Names, London 1937.

Kōgen Mizuno, "Review of Bapat's Vimuttimagga and Visuddhimagga," Buddhist Studies (Bukkyo Kenkyu), 1939, Tokyo, Vol. III, No. ii, pp. 136–137. (In Japanese.)

—. Buddhist Suttas: Origin, Development , Transmission, Tokyo 1982.

—. "解脫道論與清淨道論的比較研究, P.V. Bapat, Vimuttimagga and Visuddhimagga, a Comparative Study" in 佛教文獻研究–水野弘元著作選集, Taipei, 2003. pp. 171–205. (In Japanese.)

Sodō Mori: "Shin shiryō Vimuttimagga" , Indogaku bukkyōgaku kenkyū, vol. 17, no. 1, pp. 132–133. (= About the spurious Pāli Text of the Vimuttimagga discovered in Ceylon.)

"Uttaravihāraṭṭhakathā and Sārasamāsa"; Sodō Mori, Journal of the Pali Text Society XII (1988) pp. 1–48.

M. Nagai, "The Vimuttimagga, the 'Way to Deliverance,' the Chinese Counterpart of the Pāli Visuddhimagga," Journal of the Pali Text Society, VII, 1917–1919, 69–80.

Senmyo Naniwa, Gedatsudōron, Tokyo 2001: Daizoshuppan (Shin Kokuyakuissaikyo, vol. 19; Ronjubu, No. 5) (Edition & exegetical, annotated translation with a word-to-word correspondence of Chinese and Japanese words arranged according to the Japanese syntax.)

Bunjiu Nanjio, A catalogue of the Chinese translation of the Buddhist Tripitaka, the sacred Canon of the Buddhists in China and Japan, Oxford 1883, K. R. Norman, "The Literary Works of the Abhayagirivihārins," Collected Papers IV, Oxford, 1993, 207–17.

Galkātiyagama Siri Ratnajoti and Karalliyadde Siri Ratnapāla, ed. Vimuttimagga, Government Press of Ceylon, Colombo, 1963. (Spurious text.)

Rhys-Davids and Stede, Pali English Dictionary, Pali Text Society; London, 1921–25.

Genjun H. Sasaki, Vimuktimārga Dhutaguṇanirdeśa, ed. Tibetan text with Japanese translation and notes, Kyoto, 1958. (Briefly reviewed by Alex Wayman in JAOS, 79.4, 1959.)

M. Scaligero, Review of Path of Freedom in East and West, Vol. 14, 1963, p. 116.

Peter Skilling, "The Saṃskṛtāsaṃskṛtaviniścaya of Daśabalaśrīmitra," Buddhist Studies Review, Vol. 4, No. 1, 1987, 3–23

—. "Vimuttimagga and Abhayagiri: The Form-Aggregate according to the Saṃskṛtāsaṃskṛta-viniścaya," Journal of the Pali Text Society XX, 1994, 171–210.

—. "The Advent of Theravāda Buddhism to Mainland Southeast Asia," Journal of the International Association of Buddhist Studies 20(1), 1997, pp. 93–107.

A. K. Warder, Path of Discrimination, Bhikkhu Ñāṇamoli, London, 1982. (Only Introduction, p.xl discusses the Vimuttimagga.)

Monier Williams, A Sanskrit English Dictionary, Oxford 1899

M. Winternitz, History of Indian Literature, English translation by Mrs. S. Ketkar and Miss H. Kohn, Calcutta, 1933.

Stefano Zacchetti, "Some Remarks on the Peṭaka Passages in the Da zhidu lun and their Relation to the Pāli Peṭakopadesa," Annual Report of The International Research Institute for Advanced Buddhology at Soka University, Vol. V, 2001, Tokyo, pp. 67-85

—. "An early Chinese translation corresponding to Chapter 6 of the Peṭakopadesa—An Shigao's Yin chi rujing T 603 and its Indian original: a preliminary survey," Bulletin of the School of Oriental and African Studies, Vol. 65, No. 1, 2002, London, pp. 74–98.

H. G. A. van Zeyst, "Abhayagirivāsins," Encyclopedia of Buddhism Vol. I A–Aoki, Bunkyo, Ed. G. P. Malalasekera, Colombo, 1961–65.

Abbreviations

A	Aṅguttara Nikāya
Abhidh-s	Abhidhammatthasaṅgaha
Abhi-av	Abhidhammāvatāra
Ap	Apadāna
As	Atthasālinī (= Dhammasaṅgaṇi-aṭṭhakathā)
EKS	Ehara, Kheminda, and Soma (the translators of the first edition of the Path of Freedom)
It	Itivuttaka
Ud	Udāna
Ud-a	Udāna-aṭṭhakathā
Cp	Cariyāpiṭaka
Cv	Cūḷavaṃsa
J-a	Jātaka-aṭṭhakathā
Th	Thera-gāthā
Thī	Therī-gāthā
D	Dīgha Nikāya
DDB	Digital Dictonary of Buddhism
Dhp	Dhammapada
Dhp-a	Dhammapada-aṭṭhakathā
Dhs	Dhammasaṅgaṇi
Nidd I	Mahā Niddesa
Nett	Nettippakaraṇa
Paṭis	Paṭisambhidāmagga
Paṭis-a	Paṭisambhidā-aṭṭhakathā (= Saddhammappakāsinī)
Peṭ	Peṭakopadesa
PED	Pali English Dictionary
Vism-mhṭ	Paramatthamañjūsā (= Visuddhimagga Mahā Ṭikā)
M-a	Papañcasūdanī (= Majjhima Nikāya Aṭṭhakathā)
M	Majjhima Nikāya
Mhv	Mahāvaṃsa
Mil	Milindapañhā (V. Trenckner's ed.)
Mvy	Mahāvyutpatti
MW	A Sanskrit English Dictionary, Monier Williams
RB	Roderick Bucknell
Rūpār	Rūpārūpavibhāga
Lal	Lalitavistara
Vin	Vinaya
Vism	Visuddhimagga
Vibh	Vibhaṅga
Vibh-a	Vibhaṅga-aṭṭhakathā (= Sammohavinodanī)
S	Saṃyutta Nikāya
Saddh	Saddhammopāyana
Sn	Suttanipāta (Harvard Oriental Series)
Sn-a	Suttanipāta-aṭṭhakathā (= Paramatthajotikā)
Vin-a	Samantapāsādikā (= Vinaya-aṭṭhakathā)
S-a	Sāratthappakāsinī (= Saṃyuttanikāya-aṭṭhakathā)
D-a	Sumaṅgalavilāsinī (= Dīghanikāya-aṭṭhakathā)

The Treatise on the Path of Freedom[39]

Composed by the Arahant Upatissa, who in Liáng[40] is called "the Great Light."[41]
Translated in Liáng by Tipiṭaka Saṅghapāla of Funan.[42]

Chapter 1: Introduction (Nidāna)

[399a] Homage to the Blessed One, the Worthy One, the Rightly Awakened One![43]

Virtue, concentration, Wisdom and unexcelled freedom:
To these states awoke
Gotama, the illustrious.[44]

If there are men who are free from the many encumbrances (bahuparissaya?), who obtained seclusion from [worldly] attachments, who accomplished the mind partaking of distinction, who fear birth, ageing and death, who desire goodness and freedom,[45] [who desire] to reach the happiness of Nibbāna, the as yet unreached further shore, and [desire] to attain perfection, who inquire in detail as to the matters of the Suttas, Abhidhamma, and Vinaya: [to them] I shall now teach this Path of Freedom. Listen attentively!

Explanation

Q. What is "virtue" [etc.]?

A. "Virtue" means "restraint" (saṃvara).[46] "Concentration" (samādhi) means "non-wavering" (avikkhepa). "Wisdom" means "knowledge." "Freedom" means "detachment" (visaṃyoga).[47] "Unexcelled" means "taintless" (anāsava). "Awoke" means "attained to knowledge (ñāṇapatta?)." "These states" means the four Noble states (ariya-dhamma)." "Gotama" means "family name." "Illustrious" means "honoured by the world."[48]

Through the supreme qualities of virtue, concentration, wisdom and freedom, he gained supreme and boundless fame. 399c25

---

[39] 解脫道論. It is likely that 論, "treatise" (nirdeśa, niddesa), was added by the Chinese translator as this was common practice. According to Rodney Bucknell, the character 論 or 經 (sūtra) may be added to indicate which major category a text belongs to, or just as a very loose indication that it is a revered text; e.g. Madhyamāgama becomes 中阿含經 with added 經 for sūtra; but many non-Buddhist Chinese texts are also called sūtra, 經, e.g. the Daoist classic Dao De Jing, 道德經.

At the start of the text (399c20) and the end of the book (461c17) just "Path of Freedom," 解脫道, is given showing that niddesa was not part of the original. Like in the Visuddhimagga, it is only used in the chapter titles.

[40] Liáng, 梁, was a small, short-lived state that existed during 502–557 CE in South China, in a period of disunity called the North-South dynasties.

[41] 大光, "Great Light," was a name used in China (not just in Liáng) for Sāriputta, also called Upatissa, the Buddha's principal disciple. From the title page it appears the Chinese applied this name also to Upatissa, the author of Vim, who was presumably named after the original Sāriputta.

[42] 三藏僧伽婆羅譯. Saṅghapāla translated the book while living in the capital of Liáng; see Introduction.

[43] Namo tassa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhassa. This homage is normally given at the start of Pali Buddhist texts, e.g. at D I 1.

[44] A II 2; A IV 105; D II 123; Kv 115: Sīlaṃ samādhi paññā ca vimutti ca anuttarā / anubuddhā ime dhammā gotamena yasassinā.

[45] Or "who desire the wholesome happiness of freedom."

[46] D-a 63: Sīlavisuddhiyā saṃvaralakkhaṇaṃ. Cittavisuddhiyā avikkhepalakkhaṇaṃ. Diṭṭhivisuddhiyā dassanalakkhaṇaṃ.

[47] 離縛 Lit "separation from bondage." Th-a II 206: … sabbehi kilesehi sabbehi bhavehi suṭṭhu vimutto visaṃyutto amhī ti.

[48] 世尊, also means bhagavant, "blessed." A-a III 73: Yasassinoti parivārasampannā. Nidd II 179 (Be): Gotamassa yasassinoti bhagavā yasappattoti yasassī.

Q. What is the meaning of "the Path of Freedom"?

A. As to freedom, there are five freedoms:[49] freedom through suspending (vikkhambhana-vimutti), freedom through the (opposing) aspect (tadaṅga-vimutti), freedom through eradication (samuccheda-vimutti), freedom through tranquillizing (paṭippassaddha-vimutti), and freedom through escaping (nissaraṇa-vimutti).

Q. What is "freedom through suspending"?

A. The suspending of the hindrances (nīvaraṇā) through the practice of the first jhāna—this is called "freedom through suspending."

"Freedom through the (opposing) aspect": freedom from [wrong] views (diṭṭhigatā) through the practice of concentration partaking of penetration (nibbedhabhāgiya-samādhi)—this is called "freedom through (opposing) aspect."

"Freedom through eradication": the destruction (khaya) and getting rid of the fetters through the practice of the supramundane path (lokuttara-magga)—this is called "freedom through eradication." [400a]

"Freedom through tranquillizing": the tranquillity and happiness at the occasion when one attains the Fruit in accordance [with the path]—this is called "freedom through tranquillizing."

"Freedom through escaping": Nibbāna without residue (anupādisesa-nibbāna)—this is called "freedom through escaping."

This path of freedom is for the attainment of freedom. Through virtue, concentration and wisdom this perfect path is called "the path of freedom.

Now I shall teach the path of freedom. 400a04

Reason for Teaching the Path of Freedom

Q. What is the purpose of teaching the path of freedom?

A. There is the good man who wishes to gain freedom, but who does not hear the teaching of [the path of] freedom, or does not go onto[50] [the path of] freedom or wrongly goes onto [the path of] freedom: He is like a blind man who travels alone to a distant land without a guide. He is only bothered by much suffering and cannot gain freedom. Although he wishes to gain freedom, he is without the (necessary) causes. Why? Because there are causes for freedom.[51] As the Buddha declared: "There are

---

[49] Vism 5: Sīlena ca tadaṅgappahānavasena kilesappahānaṃ pakāsitaṃ hoti, samādhinā vikkhambhana-ppahānavasena, paññāya samucchedappahānavasena.

S-a III 209, M-a IV 168: Evaṃvimuttā ti ettha vikkhambhanavimutti tadaṅgavimutti samucchedavimutti paṭippassaddhivimutti nissaraṇavimuttī ti pañcavidhā vimuttiyo. Tattha aṭṭha samāpattiyo sayaṃ vikkhambhitehi nīvaraṇādīhi vimuttattā vikkhambhanavimuttī ti saṅkhaṃ gacchanti. Aniccānupassanādikā satta anupassanā sayaṃ tassa tassa paccanīkaṅgavasena paricattāhi niccasaññādīhi vimuttattā tadaṅgavimuttī ti saṅkhaṃ gacchanti. Cattāro ariyamaggā sayaṃ samucchinnehi kilesehi vimuttattā samucchedavimuttī ti saṅkhaṃ gacchanti. Cattāri sāmaññaphalāni maggānubhāvena kilesānaṃ paṭippassaddhante uppannattā paṭippassaddhivimuttī ti saṅkhaṃ gacchanti. Nibbānaṃ sabbakilesehi nissaṭattā apagatattā dūre ṭhitattā nissaraṇavimuttī ti saṅkhaṃ gataṃ. Cf. Paṭis I 27: Pañca pahānāni: vikkhambhanappahānaṃ, tadaṅgappahānaṃ, samucchedappahānaṃ, paṭippassaddhippahānaṃ, nissaraṇappahānaṃ. Vikkhambhanappahānañca nīvaraṇānaṃ paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ bhāvayato; tadaṅgappahānañca diṭṭhigatānaṃ nibbedhabhāgiyaṃ samādhiṃ bhāvayato; samucchedappahānañca lokuttaraṃ khayagāmimaggaṃ bhāvayato; paṭippassaddhippahānañca phalakkhaṇe; nissaraṇappahānañca nirodho nibbānaṃ. See also the 5 kinds of viveka in the description of the 1st jhāna at p. @@.

[50] EKS "acknowledge." The meanings of 伏 are "submit, yield, accept, concede, acknowledge." Among the corresponding Skt words listed in DBB is samāruḍha, of which MW gives a.o. the meanings "one who has mounted or ascended, riding upon (acc., loc., or [upari]), fallen upon, entered on or in (acc.) ib. (2) one who has agreed upon (acc.)" is the most appropriate. In Pāḷi the verb samāruhati is also used in the context of "entering upon" or "going onto" a road, e.g. J-a V 387: ariyamaggaṃ samāruha, nekāsī labhate sukhan-ti. Th-a II 2: vipassanāmaggaṃ samārūḷho ñāṇassa paripākaṃ. M I 76–77: tathāyaṃ puggalo paṭipanno tathā ca iriyati tañca maggaṃ samārūḷho, yathākāyassa bhedā paraṃ maraṇā sugatiṃ saggaṃ lokaṃ upapajjissatī ti.

[51] Dr. Chu's alternative rendering: "Suppose there is a virtuous person who aspires to liberation. It might be the case that if he had not heard of liberation, had not attained liberation through [self] pacification, or that he sought liberation through improper means of [self] pacification*, he would be like a blind man who travels to a distant country without a guide—although he desires liberation, he has no means to attain it. Why is this? Because the attainment of liberation requires proper conditions (解脫是因, lit. "liberation is the cause.")" (* Fu 伏, literally means to submit, as in to submit to the authority of something or someone. In previous instances, the term suggests "suppression" as in "the suppression of the hindrances in jhānic absorption." However, much confusion ensues after this point onward—the same fujietuo dao seems to refer to the complete Three-fold Training and no longer limited to the concentration training which focuses on "suppression." Thus I translate the term as "pacification" from this beings who have very little dust [in their eyes]. Not hearing the Dhamma, they will fall away."[52] Also the Buddha declared: "Bhikkhus, there are two causes, two conditions for the arising of right view. Which two? The first is hearing from another. The second is reasoned attention within oneself."[53] 400a10

Therefore I teach [the path of] freedom.

To those who do not go onto [the path of] freedom, I teach [the path of] freedom in order to produce disenchantment (nibbidā). To those who wrongly enter upon [the path of] freedom, I teach [the path of] freedom to make them give up the wrong path, and to make them attain the jhānas and the path of freedom. It is like travellers to a distant land getting a good guide.

The Three Groups of Virtue, Concentration, Wisdom

When one goes onto this path of freedom, three aggregates (khandhā) are fulfilled. 400a14

Q. What are the three?

A. They are the aggregate (khandha) of virtue (sīlakkhandha), the aggregate of concentration (samādhikkhandha), and the aggregate of wisdom (paññākkhandha).[54]

---

point onward.)

[52] D II 37, M I 168, S I 105–6: Santi sattā apparajakkhajātikā; assavaṇatā dhammassa parihāyanti.

[53] AN 2.11.9/A I 87, MN 43/M I 294 (Ee, Be, Ce, Se): Dve'me bhikkhave paccayā sammādiṭṭhiyā uppādāya. Katame dve? Parato ca ghoso yoniso ca manasikāro. (Cf. Kv 616.) Peṭ 1: Duve hetū duve paccayā sāvakassa sammādiṭṭhiyā uppādāya: parato ca ghoso saccānusandhi, ajjhattañca yoniso manasikāro. Tattha katamo parato ghoso? Yā parato desanā ovādo anusāsanī saccakathā saccānulomo. Cattāri saccāni dukkhaṃ samudayo nirodho maggo. Imesaṃ catunnaṃ saccānaṃ yā desanā sandassanā vivaraṇā vibhajanā uttānīkiriyā pakāsana: ayaṃ vuccati saccānulomo ghoso ti. Tattha katamo ajjhattaṃ yoniso manasikāro? Ajjhattaṃ yoniso manasikāro nāma yo yathādesite dhamme bahiddhā ārammaṇaṃ anabhinīharitvā yoniso manasikāro, ayaṃ vuccati yoniso manasikāro. … Parato ghosena yā uppajjati paññā – ayaṃ vuccati sutamayī paññā. Yā ajjhattaṃ yoniso manasikārena uppajjati paññā – ayaṃ vuccati cintāmayī paññā ti.

400a09 – 11: 又如佛說。諸比丘有二因二緣能生正見。云何為二。一從他聞。二自正念:

Bapat (Bapat 1937, p. lv) suggests that the text of the Vimuttimagga is more akin to the Peṭaka here because of ajjhatta preceding yonisomanasikāra (自正念), but this can't be correct since the Vim refers to a statement by the Buddha, not to the Peṭaka. Ajjhattaṃ was lost in the MN and AN—perhaps because it was considered superfluous—but was preserved in the Peṭaka and Vim, and also in a few Pali commentaries and subcommentaries.

Quotations of the Sutta passage in two subcommentaries, ṭīkās, (Burmese Chaṭṭha Saṅgāyana edition, CSCD digital edition) include ajjhattaṃ:

Sp-ṭ III 160 (Be), M-ṭ II 139 (Be): Vuttañhetaṃ dveme, bhikkhave, paccayā sammādiṭṭhiyā uppādāya parato ca ghoso ajjhattañca yonisomanasikāro ti. Cf. A-a II 263 (Be), It-a II 147: Tattha bāhiraṃ sappurisūpanissayo saddhammassavanañca, ajjhattikaṃ pana yoniso manasikāro dhammānudhammapaṭipatti ca. Nett-ṭ 27 (Be): Paramparāyā ti etena ajjhattaṃ yonisomanasikāro viya na paratoghoso āsannakāraṇaṃ dhammādhigamassa dhammassa paccattaṃ vedanīyattā ti dasseti.

The Udāna subcommentary by Dhammapāla, quoting the AN/MN passage, has paccattaṃ instead of ajjhattaṃ, which is also used in the Netti and its commentary:

Ud-a 107 (Be): Dveme, bhikkhave, hetū dve paccayā sammādiṭṭhiyā uppādāya parato ca ghoso, paccattañca yoniso manasikāro ti. Nett 8: Parato ghosā sutamayī paññā. Paccattasamuṭṭhitā yoniso manasikārā cintāmayī paññā. Nett-a 55 Be: Paccattasamuṭṭhitāti paccattaṃ tassa tassa attani sambhūtā. Yonisomanasikārā ti tesaṃ tesaṃ dhammānaṃ sabhāvapariggaṇhanādinā yathāvuttena upāyena pavattamanasikārā.

The explanation in the commentary to the M I 294 passage specifies that the yonisomanasikāra is "for/of oneself," i.e. "attention which is a skilful means for/of/towards oneself": M-a II 345: Parato ca ghoso ti sappāyadhammassavanaṃ. Yoniso ca manasikāro ti attano upāyamanasikāro. (M-ṭ II 270: upāyamanasikāro ti kusaladhammappavattiyā kāraṇabhūto manasikāro.) In other commentarial explanations of yonisomanasikāra the word upāyamanasikāro is used without specifying it as attano, which implies that the Majjhima commentator had a Majjhima text with ajjhattaṃ.

The reading with ajjhattaṃ is supported by the Sanskrit Ekottarāgama parallel of the AN 2.11.9: dve hetū dvau pratyayau samyag-dṛṣṭer utpādāya / parataś ca ghoṣa adhyātmaṃ ca yoniśo manasikāraḥ ("Ekottarāgama-Fragmente der Gilgit-Handschrift," in Tripāṭhi, Chandrabhal 1995, Reinbek, page 196, §28.3). AN 2.11.9 has no known Chinese counterpart

The Chinese Madhyama Āgama parallel of MN 43 has "attention within oneself," 內自思惟, which corresponds to ajjhatta/paccatta manasikāra. (MĀ 211 at T01n0026_p0791a01 – 03: 二因二緣而生正見。云何為二。一者從他聞。二者內自思惟。是謂二因二緣而生正見.)

The same characters and phrasing of the two causes as in Vimuttimagga is found in Kumārajīva's translation of the Tattvasiddhi-śāstra/Satyasiddhi-śāstra: T32n1646_p0247c13–14: 以二因緣正見得生。一從他聞。二自正念。

The Vimuttimagga, Peṭaka, Ud-a, Ekottarāgama, Madhyama Āgama (and the quotation at Paṭis-a II 438) all have dve hetū, "two causes," before dve paccayā, "two conditions."

[54] M I 301: Tīhi ca kho, āvuso visākha, khandhehi ariyo aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo saṅgahito. Yā cāvuso visākha, sammāvācā yo ca sammākammanto yo ca sammā-ājīvo ime dhammā sīlakkhandhe saṅgahitā. Yo ca sammāvāyāmo yā ca sammāsati yo ca

Q. What is "aggregate of virtue"?

A. It is right speech, right action, right livelihood and the various states included [in them]. Or the aggregate of virtue is the accumulation of the diverse benefits (ānisaṃsa or guṇa) of virtue.

Q. What is "aggregate of concentration"?

A. It is right effort, right mindfulness, right concentration and the various states included [in them]. Or the group of concentration is the accumulation of diverse benefits of concentration.

Q. What is "aggregate of wisdom"?

A. It is right view, right intention and the various states included [in them]. Or the group of wisdom is the accumulation of the diverse benefits of wisdom.[55]

Thus these three aggregates are fulfilled.

One who enters upon the Path of Freedom should train in three trainings, namely: the training of the higher virtue (adhisīlasikkhā), the training of the higher mind (adhicittasikkhā), and the training of the higher wisdom (adhipaññāsikkhā).

Virtue is the training of the higher virtue; concentration is the training of the higher mind; wisdom is the training of the higher wisdom.[56]

Again,[57] there is virtue which is the training of virtue and there is virtue which is the training of the higher virtue. There is concentration which is the training of mind and there is concentration which is the training of the higher mind. There is wisdom which is the training of wisdom and there is wisdom which is the training of the higher wisdom.[58]

Q. What is "the training of virtue"? 400a24

A. It means virtue partaking of distinction (visesabhāgiya)[59]—this is called "the training of virtue." Virtue partaking of penetration (nibbedhabhāgiya)—this is called "the training of the higher virtue."

And again, the virtue of the commoner (puthujjana)—this is called "the training of virtue." The virtue of the Noble ones—this is called "the training of the higher virtue."[60] sammā-samādhi ime dhammā samādhikkhandhe saṅgahitā. Yā ca sammādiṭṭhi yo ca sammāsaṅkappo, ime dhammā paññākkhandhe saṅgahitā ti.

---

[55] Cf. A III 15.

[56] Cf. A I 235: Tisso imā, bhikkhave, sikkhā. Katamā tisso? Adhisīlasikkhā, adhicittasikkhā, adhipaññāsikkhā. Katamā ca, bhikkhave, adhisīlasikkhā? Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu sīlavā hoti …pe… samādāya sikkhati sikkhāpadesu. Ayaṃ vuccati, bhikkhave, adhisīlasikkhā. Katamā ca, bhikkhave, adhicittasikkhā? Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu vivicceva kāmehi …pe… catutthaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharati. ayaṃ vuccati, bhikkhave, adhicittasikkhā. Katamā ca, bhikkhave, adhipaññāsikkhā? idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu idaṃ dukkhan-ti yathābhūtaṃ pajānāti …pe… ayaṃ dukkhanirodhagāminī paṭipadā ti yathābhūtaṃ pajānāti. ayaṃ vuccati, bhikkhave, adhipaññāsikkhā. S-a I 27: Adhisīlañca nāma sīle sati hoti, adhicittaṃ citte sati, adhipaññā paññāya sati. Tasmā sīlaṃ nāma pañca pi dasa pi sīlāni, pātimokkhasaṃvaro adhisīlaṃ nāmā ti veditabbaṃ. Aṭṭha samāpattiyo cittaṃ, vipassanāpādakajjhānaṃ adhicittaṃ. Kammassakatañāṇaṃ paññā, vipassanā adhipaññā. Anuppanne pi hi buddhuppāde pavattati ti pañcasīlaṃ dasasīlaṃ sīlameva, pātimokkhasaṃvarasīlaṃ buddhuppāde yeva pavattatī ti adhisīlaṃ. Cittapaññāsu pi eseva nayo. Api ca nibbānaṃ patthayantena samādinnaṃ pañcasīlampi dasasīlampi adhisīlameva. Samāpannā aṭṭha samāpattiyo pi adhicittameva. Sabbam pi vā lokiyasīlaṃ sīlam eva, lokuttaraṃ adhisīlaṃ. Cittapaññāsu pi eseva ñāyo ti. Cf. A-a II 345f., Nidd-a 102, Vin-a I 244. Paṭis I 46: Pañca sīlāni pāṇātipātassa pahānaṃ sīlaṃ, veramaṇī sīlaṃ, cetanā sīlaṃ, saṃvaro sīlaṃ, avītikkamo sīlaṃ. Evarūpāni sīlāni cittassa avippaṭisārāya saṃvattanti, pāmojjāya saṃvattanti, pītiyā saṃvattanti, passaddhiyā saṃvattanti, somanassāya saṃvattanti, āsevanāya saṃvattanti, bhāvanāya saṃvattanti, bahulīkammāya saṃvattanti, alaṅkārāya saṃvattanti, parikkhārāya saṃvattanti, parivārāya saṃvattanti, pāripūriyā saṃvattanti, ekantanibbidāya virāgāya nirodhāya upasamāya abhiññāya sambodhāya nibbānāya saṃvattanti. Evarūpānaṃ sīlānaṃ saṃvarapārisuddhi adhisīlaṃ, saṃvarapārisuddhiyā ṭhitaṃ cittaṃ na vikkhepaṃ gacchati, avikkhepapārisuddhi adhicittaṃ saṃvarapārisuddhiṃ sammā passati, avikkhepapārisuddhiṃ sammā passati. Dassanapārisuddhi adhipaññā. Yo tattha saṃvaraṭṭho, ayaṃ adhisīlasikkhā. Yo tattha avikkhepaṭṭho, ayaṃ adhicittasikkhā. Yo tattha dassanaṭṭho, ayaṃ adhipaññāsikkhā.

Vin-a V 993: Adhisīle ti pātimokkhasīle. Adhicitte ti lokiyasamādhibhāvanāya. Adhipaññāyā ti lokuttaramaggabhāvanāya.

[57] The meaning of this frequently occurring introduction is "It is also taught …," introducing a different or additional version of the teaching on this subject. The Pali parallel is atha vā.

[58] See S-a I 27 in @@ two notes above @@.

[59] 有相, lit. "having characteristics/signs" = sanimitta, salakkhana, sākāra, savisesa. The Pali term is probably visesabhāgiya. In Vism I.25: catubbidhaṃ hānabhāgiyaṭhitibhāgiyavisesabhāgiyanibbedhabhāgiyavasena, the term visesabhāgiya is listed together with nibbedhabhāgiyā. Cf. visesabhāgiya samādhi @@5 footnotes below@@.

It could also niddiṭṭha, see Peṭ 183: Tattha yo ca avippaṭisāro anusayavasena niddiṭṭho, tañca sīlaṃ ayaṃ sīlakkhandho.

[60] LC: "I think there is a sentence missing. The pattern being used here is: A = sīla, B = adhisīla. Then AB = sīla, C = adhisīla. This is clear for citta and adhicitta and in the commentaries: Spk I 27; Mp II 345f.; Sp I 244. So we need an initial sentence in which sīla = kāmāvacarakusalacitta & adhisīla = rūpāvacara and arūpāvacarakusalacitta.

Q. What is "training of mind" (citta-sikkhā)?

A. It is concentration pertaining to the sense [plane] (kāmāvacara-samādhi).

Q. What is "training of the higher mind" (adhicitta-sikkhā)?

A. It is concentration pertaining to the material [plane] (rūpāvacara-samādhi) and the nonmaterial [plane] (arūpāvacara-samādhi). This is called the "training of the higher mind."[61]

And again, concentration partaking of distinction[62] is "the training of mind."

Concentration partaking of penetration and Path concentration (magga-samādhi) are called "the training of the higher mind."[63]

Q. What is "training of wisdom"? [400b]

A. Mundane knowledge—this is called " training in wisdom." Knowledge in comformity with the Truths (saccānulomika-ñāṇa) and Path-knowledge (magga-ñāṇa) are called "the training in higher wisdom."

The Blessed One expounded the training of the higher virtue to a man of dull faculties, the training of the higher mind to a man of average faculties and the training of the higher wisdom to a man of sharp faculties.[64]

Q. What is the meaning of "training"?

A. Training in what is to be trained in, training in the higher training and training in what is

---

Then the expression rendered as 'defined virtue' would be equivalent to something like taṃ upadāya 'in relation to that'. Or, 'the virtue so-defined'. Or, nibbedhabhagiya sīla is an error? The original perhaps had a sequence such as 5 precepts, 10 precepts, ad pātimokkhasaṃarasīla."

[61] Cf. A I 235: Katamā adhicittasikkhā? Idha bhikkhu vivicceva kāmehi … catutthaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharati. Ayaṃ vuccati, bhikkhave, adhicittasikkhā. Vibh 325: Rūpāvacarārūpāvacarasamāpattiṃ samāpajjantassa yā uppajjati paññā … ayaṃ vuccati adhicitte paññā. D-a 1003: Samāpannā aṭṭha samāpattiyo pi adhicittameva. A-a II 345: Kāmāvacaracittaṃ pana cittaṃ nāma, taṃ upādāya rūpāvacaraṃ adhicittaṃ nāma, tampi upādāya arūpāvacaraṃ adhicittaṃ nāma. Apica sabbampi lokiyacittaṃ cittameva, lokuttaraṃ adhicittaṃ.

[62] Visesabhāgiya-samādhi. See note 45 above. Peṭ 35: tassa rāgānugate suññamānassa paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ saṃkilissati, sace puna uttari vāyāmato jhānavodānagate mānase visesabhāgiyaṃ paṭipadaṃ anuyuñjiyati. Tassa hi jhānabhāgiyaṃ yeva paṭhamajjhāne ṭhitassa dutiyaṃ jhānaṃ vodānaṃ gacchati, tatiyañca jhānaṃ samāpajjitukāmassa somanassindriyaṃ cittaṃ pariyādāya tiṭṭhati, tassa sā pīti avisesabhāgiyaṃ tatiyaṃ jhānaṃ ādissa tiṭṭhati.

Vism III 22: Catutthacatukke atthi samādhi hānabhāgiyo, atthi ṭhitibhāgiyo, atthi visesabhāgiyo, atthi nibbedhabhāgiyo. Tattha paccanīkasamudācāravasena hānabhāgiyatā, tadanudhammatāya satiyā saṇṭhānavasena ṭhitibhāgiyatā, uparivisesādhigamavasena visesabhāgiyatā, nibbidāsahagatasaññāmanasikārasamudācāravasena nibbedhabhāgiyatā ca veditabbā. Yathāha, paṭhamassa jhānassa lābhiṃ kāmasahagatā saññāmanasikārā samudācaranti hānabhāginī paññā. Tadanudhammatā sati santiṭṭhati ṭhitibhāginī paññā. Avitakkasahagatā saññāmanasikārā samudācaranti visesabhāginī paññā. Nibbidāsahagatā saññāmanasikārā samudācaranti virāgūpasañhitā nibbedhabhāginī paññā ti. M-a IV 60: … upacārena me jhānaṃ visesabhāgiyaṃ bhaveyya, tiṭṭhatu visesabhāgiyatā, nibbedhabhāgiyaṃ naṃ karissāmī ti vipassanaṃ vaḍḍhetvā arahattaṃ sacchikaroti.

[63] This means that it is supramundane samādhi associated with insight (vipassanāya sampayutta). In the Pali commentaries (see below) adhicitta is said to be mundane samādhi (Vin-a V 993: Adhicitte ti lokiyasamādhibhāvanāya; etc., see below), but a view attributed to "some" (keci) in Ud-a 253 (see below) states that it is samathavipassanacitta and in M-ṭ it is said that "some" say that it is associated with insight.

Cf. Paṭis I 27: Pañca pahānāni: tadaṅgappahānañca diṭṭhigatānaṃ nibbedhabhāgiyaṃ samādhiṃ bhāvayato. Paṭis-a I 122: Nibbedhabhāgiyaṃ samādhin-ti vipassanāsampayuttaṃ samādhiṃ. Cf. D-a III 1059: Nibbidāsahagatā saññāmanasikārā samudācaranti virāgūpasañhito nibbedhabhāgiyo samādhī ti

Ud-a 253: Adhicittamanuyutto ti ettha aṭṭhasamāpattisampayogato arahattaphalasamāpattisampayogato vā cittassa adhicittabhāvo veditabbo, idha pana arahattaphalacittan-ti vadanti. Taṃtaṃsamāpattīsu samādhi eva adhicittaṃ, idha pana arahattaphalasamādhi veditabbo. Keci pana adhicittamanuyuttena, bhikkhave, bhikkhunā kālena kālaṃ tīṇi nimittāni manasi kātabbānī ti etasmiṃ adhicittasutte viya samathavipassanācittaṃ adhicittan ti idhādhippetan-ti vadanti, taṃ na sundaraṃ. Purimo yevattho gahetabbo. M-a II 87: Tattha adhicittamanuyuttenā ti dasakusalakammapathavasena uppannaṃ cittaṃ cittameva, vipassanāpādaka-aṭṭhasamāpatticittaṃ tato cittato adhikaṃ cittan-ti adhicittaṃ. M-ṭ II 72 (Be): Dasakusalakammapathavasenāti idaṃ nidassanamattaṃ daṭṭhabbaṃ vaṭṭapādakasamāpatticittassa pi idha adhicittabhāvena anicchitattā. Tenāha vipassanāpādaka-aṭṭhasamāpatticittan-ti. Atha vā anuttarimanussa-dhammasaṅgahitameva kevalaṃ pakaticittan-ti vattabbanti dassento dasakusalakammapathavasena uppannaṃ cittaṃ cittamevā ti vatvā yadettha adhicittan-ti adhippetaṃ, taṃ tadeva dassento vipassanāpādaka-aṭṭhasamāpatticittan-ti āha. Itarassa panettha vidhi na paṭisedhetī ti daṭṭhabbaṃ. Vipassanāya sampayuttaṃ adhicittan-ti keci. M-ṭ II 113: Vipassanāya pādakā vipassanāpādakā ti aṭṭhasamāpattiggahaṇena yathā lokiyasamādhi gahito, evaṃ vipassanāpādakā etesan-ti vipassanāpādakā ti aṭṭhasamāpattiggahaṇeneva lokuttaro samādhi gahito. Yathā hi cattāri rūpajjhānāni adhiṭṭhānaṃ katvā pavatto magga-samādhi vipassanāpādako, evaṃ cattāri arūpajjhānāni adhiṭṭhānaṃ katvā pavatto pi.

[64] Cf. Nett 101: Tattha bhagavā tikkhindriyassa adhipaññāsikkhāya paññāpayati, majjhindriyassa bhagavā adhicittasikkhāya paññāpayati, mudindriyassa bhagavā adhisīlasikkhāya paññāpayati.

without training is called "training."[65]

Thus the training in these three trainings is the meaning of "the going upon the path of freedom." 400b05

Through these three kinds of training one attains to purity, namely, purity of virtue (sīla-visuddhi), purity of mind (citta-visuddhi), and purity of view (diṭṭhi-visuddhi). Thus virtue is purity of virtue, concentration is purity of mind, and wisdom is purity of view.

Virtue cleanses away the stain of poor virtue (dussīlamala)[66] [—this is called "the purity of virtue."] Concentration cleanses away the stain of the obsessions (pariyuṭṭhāna)—this is called "the purity of the mind." Wisdom removes the stain of ignorance—this is called "the purity of view."[67]

And again, virtue removes the stain of evil action. Concentration removes the stain of the obsessions. Wisdom removes the stain of the latent tendencies.[68]

Thus through three purifications one enters upon the path of freedom.[69] 400b11

Three Kinds of Good

Again, one goes upon the path [of freedom] through three kinds of good: the initial, the medial, and the final good (ādi-, majjha-, pariyosāna-kalyāṇa). Through virtue there is the initial good; through concentration there is the medial good; through wisdom there is the final good.

Q. Why is virtue "the initial good"?

A. A man who has energy acquires non-remorse; on account of non-remorse, there is gladness; on account of gladness, there is rapture; on account of rapture, there is tranquility of body; 400b14 on account of tranquility of body, there is happiness; on account of happiness, the mind concentrates—this is called "the initial good."[70]

"Concentration is the medial good" means: Through concentration there is knowledge and vision according to reality (yathābhūta-ñāṇadassana)—this is called "the medial good." 400b15

"Wisdom is the final good" means: having known and seen according to reality, there is disenchantment; through disenchantment (nibbidā) there is dispassion; through dispassion (virāga), there is freedom; through freedom, there is individual knowledge (paccatta ñāṇa).[71]

---

[65] 無學 Cf. Vibh-a III 29: Sekkhadhamme atikkamma aggaphale ṭhito tato uttari sikkhitabbābhāvato khīṇāsavo asekkho ti vuccati.

[66] Paṭis-a I 106: Sīlavisuddhīti suparisuddhapātimokkhasaṃvarādicatubbidhaṃ sīlaṃ dussīlyamalavisodhanato. Paṭis-a I 127: Sīlavisuddhīti visuddhiṃ pāpetuṃ samatthaṃ catupārisuddhisīlaṃ. Taññi dussīlyamalaṃ visodheti.

[67] Paṭis-a I 127: Cittavisuddhīti vipassanāya padaṭṭhānabhūtā paguṇā aṭṭha samāpattiyo. Tā hi kāmacchandādicittamalaṃ visodhenti. Diṭṭhivisuddhīti sappaccayanāmarūpadassanaṃ. Taññi sattadiṭṭhimalaṃ visodheti. Cf. Paṭis-a I 106. A I 61: Samatho, bhikkhave, bhāvito kamatthamanubhoti? Cittaṃ bhāvīyati. Cittaṃ bhāvitaṃ kamatthamanubhoti? Yo rāgo so pahīyati. Vipassanā, bhikkhave, bhāvitā kamatthamanubhoti? Paññā bhāvīyati. Paññā bhāvitā kamatthamanubhoti? Yā avijjā sā pahīyati.

[68] Cf. Vism I.13: Tathā sīlena kilesānaṃ vītikkamapaṭipakkho pakāsito hoti; samādhinā pariyuṭṭhānapaṭipakkho; paññāya anusayapaṭipakkho. Sīlena ca duccaritasaṅkilesavisodhanaṃ pakāsitaṃ hoti; samādhinā taṇhāsaṅkilesavisodhanaṃ; paññāya diṭṭhisaṅkilesavisodhanaṃ.

[69] M I 150: Evameva kho, āvuso, sīlavisuddhi yāvadeva cittavisuddhatthā, … ñāṇadassanavisuddhi yāvadeva anupādāparinibbānatthā. Anupādāparinibbānatthaṃ kho, āvuso, bhagavati brahmacariyaṃ vussatī"ti.

[70] Cf. Vism VII.69: Sakalopi sāsanadhammo attano atthabhūtena sīlena ādikalyāṇo, samathavipassanā-maggaphalehi majjhekalyāṇo, nibbānena pariyosānakalyāṇo.

The Chinese text has 不退, which normally corresponds to "non-retrogression" (aparihāna) and EKS, etc, render it as such. Lance Cousins, however, suggests that the original had avippaṭisāra, like in the Pali texts (see next fn.): "I do not think this corresponds to aparihāni. What has happened here is probably that the Chinese translator was not familiar with the word avippaṭisāra and has interpreted it literally from the root √sṛ as meaning 'not going back' (apratisāra)." At 429a23 and 435b17 the same mix-up occurs. Cf. Th-a I 13: Sīlena ca tesaṃ paṭipattiyā ādikalyāṇatā dassitā, … sabbapāpassa akaraṇan-ti ca vacanato sīlaṃ paṭipattiyā ādikalyāṇaṃ va avippaṭisārādiguṇāvahattā.

[71] Cf. A V 312: Sīlavato, bhikkhave, sīlasampannassa na cetanāya karaṇīyaṃ—avippaṭisāro me uppajjatū ti. Dhammatā esā, bhikkhave, yaṃ sīlavato sīlasampannassa avippaṭisāro uppajjati. … Dhammatā esā, bhikkhave, yaṃ viratto vimuttiñāṇadassanaṃ sacchikaroti. Cf. A V 2: Sīlavato, bhikkhave, sīlasampannassa na cetanāya karaṇīyaṃ—avippaṭisāro me uppajjatū ti. Dhammatā esā, bhikkhave, yaṃ sīlavato sīlasampannassa avippaṭisāro uppajjati. Avippaṭisārissa, … Pamuditassa … Pītimanassa … Passaddhakāyassa… Sukhino… Samāhitassa… Yathābhūtaṃ jānato passato … Nibbinnassa, bhikkhave, virattassa na cetanāya karaṇīyaṃ—vimuttiñāṇadassanaṃ sacchikaromī ti. Dhammatā esā, bhikkhave, yaṃ nibbinno viratto vimuttiñāṇadassanaṃ sacchikaroti.

Hayashi (2005, p.15) points out that there is a different version of this sutta in the Netti of which the last part is closer to the version in the Madhyāma Āgama (MĀ T 26 (43) vol.1, 485b22–c10): Nett 144: Sīlavato, Ānanda, na cetanā karaṇīyā kinti me avippaṭisāro jāyeyya ti. Dhammatā esā, Ānanda, yaṃ sīlavato avippaṭisāro jāyeyya. … yaṃ virajjanto

Thus one achieves the path of the triple good.

Three Kinds of Happiness

When one has gone upon the Path of Freedom, one acquires three kinds of happiness: the happiness of blamelessness, the happiness of stillness and the happiness of Awakening.[72] Through virtue one acquires the happiness of blamelessness; through concentration one acquires the happiness of stillness; and through wisdom one acquires the happiness of Awakening.

Thus one achieves and acquires the three kinds of happiness. 400b20

The Middle Way

When one enters upon the Path of Freedom and keeps away from the two extremes, one attains to the middle way (majjhimā paṭipadā).[73] Through wholesomeness of virtue one abandons the pursuit of sense-pleasure (kāmasukhallikānuyoga). Through the happiness of blamelessness one arouses the of rejoicing-happiness.[74] Through concentration one abandons [the pursuit of] wearying-out-oneself (attakilamathānuyoga). Through the happiness of stillness one increases rapture-happiness. Through wisdom one comprehends the four Noble Truths and the middle way. Through the happiness of Awakening one deeply cherishes and enjoys.[75] Thus, avoiding the two extremes, one attains to the middle way. 400b25

When one goes upon the path of freedom, through virtue one abandons the bad destinations (duggati); through concentration one abandons the realm of sense-pleasures (kāmāvacara); and through wisdom one abandons all existences.[76]

If one much practises virtue and little practises concentration and wisdom, one accomplishes Stream-entry or Once-returning.[77] If one much practises virtue and concentration and little practises vimucceyya. Vimuttena, Ānanda, na cetanā karaṇīyā kinti me vimuttiñāṇadassanaṃ uppajjeyyā'ti. Dhammatā esā, Ānanda, yaṃ vimuttassa vimuttiñāṇadassanaṃ uppajjeyyā ti.

---

Perhaps the last clause in Vim rather corresponds to the stockphrase vimuttasmiṃ vimuttam iti ñāṇaṃ hoti: "with regards the freedom there is the knowledge 'There is freedom'" (or v.l. vimuttamhī ti 'I am freed') (e.g., M I 23, S II 95) and there is a similar sequence in the Netti with this phrase: Nett 66 (Be): Passaddhiyā satī ti duvidhā passaddhi kāyikā ca cetasikā ca. Yaṃ kāyikaṃ sukhaṃ, ayaṃ kāyapassaddhi. Yaṃ cetasikaṃ sukhaṃ, ayaṃ cetasikā passaddhi. Passaddhakāyo sukhaṃ vediyati, sukhino cittaṃ samādhiyati, samāhito yathābhūtaṃ pajānāti, yathābhūtaṃ pajānanto nibbindati, nibbindanto virajjati, virāgā vimuccati, vimuttasmiṃ vimuttam iti [vimuttamhīti (sī. ka.)] ñāṇaṃ hoti, khīṇā jāti, … nāparaṃ itthattāyā ti pajānāti. Cf. Peṭ 110: Tenāha calite asante passaddhi hoti. Tattha yaṃ samāropanā passaddhakāyo sukhaṃ vedeti, sukhino cittaṃ samādhiyati. Yāva vimuttitamiti ñāṇadassanaṃ bhavati.

[72] M I 454: Idaṃ vuccati nekkhammasukhaṃ pavivekasukhaṃ upasamasukhaṃ sambodhisukhaṃ, āsevitabbaṃ, bhāvetabbaṃ, bahulīkātabbaṃ; na bhāyitabbaṃ etassa sukhassā ti vadāmi.

[73] Cf. S IV 330, V 421, Vin I 10, M III 230, Paṭis II 146: Dveme … antā pabbajitena na sevitabbā: yo cāyaṃ kāmesu kāmasukhallikānuyogo …, yo cāyaṃ attakilamathānuyogo … Ete te … ubho ante anupagamma majjhimā paṭipadā tathāgatena abhisambuddhā… Vism I.11: Sīlena ca kāmasukhallikānuyogasaṅkhātassa antassa vajjanaṃ pakāsitaṃ hoti, samādhinā attakilamathānuyogasaṅkhātassa. Paññāya majjhimāya paṭipattiyā sevanaṃ pakāsitaṃ hoti. Cf. Th-a I 14. Cf. Paṭis-a I 196, Vibh-a 122… vipassanāyānena kāmasukhallikānuyogaṃ, samathayānena attakilamathānuyoganti antadvayaṃ parivajjetvā majjhimapaṭipadaṃ paṭipanno … It-a II 37: yathā ca te antadvayarahitāya sīlasamādhipaññākkhandhasahagatāya majjhimāya paṭipadāya nibbānaṃ gatā adhigatā. Vjb 403 Be: Kāmesu gedhamupagamma hino gammañca, / Accuddhano kilamathaṃ gamupeti mūḷho; / Yo majjhimaṃ paṭipadaṃ paramaṃ upeti, / So khippameva labhate paramaṃ vimokkhan-ti.

[74] D-a I 183: Anavajjasukhanti anavajjaṃ aninditaṃ kusalaṃ sīlapadaṭṭhānehi avippaṭisārapāmojjapītipassaddhi-dhammehi pariggahitaṃ kāyikacetasikasukhaṃ paṭisaṃvedeti.

[75] The Chinese is cryptic. 400b24: 於正覺樂深懷愛樂. Cf. Dhp 269, Dhp 205, J-a III 197: Pavivekarasaṃ pivaṃ, rasaṃ upasamassa … dhammapītirasaṃ pivaṃ. Sn-a I 299: Dhammapītiraso ti ariyadhammato anapetāya nibbānasaṅkhāte dhamme uppannāya pītiyā rasattā tadeva. It-a I 14: Tathā saccādhiṭṭhānasamudāgamena cassa nekkhammasukhappatti, cāgādhiṭṭhānasamudāgamena pavivekasukhappatti, upasamādhiṭṭhānasamudāgamena upasamasukhappatti, paññādhiṭṭhānasamudāgamena sambodhisukhappatti dīpitā hoti.

[76] Sn 1139: sabbabhavavātivatto; Ud 33: upacagā sabbabhāvāni. Vism 5: Tathā sīlena apāyasamatikkamanupāyo pakāsito hoti, samādhinā kāmadhātusamatikkamanupāyo, paññāya sabbabhavasamatikkamanupāyo.

Cf. M-a III 254: sotāpattimaggo apāyabhavato vuṭṭhāti, sakadāgāmimaggo sugatibhavekadesato, anāgāmimaggo sugatikāmabhavato, arahattamaggo rūpārūpabhavato vuṭṭhāti. Sabbabhavehi vuṭṭhātiyevā ti pi vadanti.

[77] Cf. A IV 381: Puna ca paraṃ Sāriputta idh'ekacco puggalo sīlesu paripūrakārī hoti samādhismiṃ mattasokārī paññāya mattasokārī. So tiṇṇaṃ saṃyojanānaṃ parikkhayā sattakkhattuparamo hoti. Cf. A I 232f.

Cf. A IV 380: … puggalo sīlesu paripūrakāri hoti, samādhismiṃ na paripūrakārī paññāya na paripūrakāri. So tiṇṇaṃ saṃyojanaṃ parikkhayā rāgadosamohānaṃ tanuttā sakadāgāmi hoti.

wisdom, one accomplishes Non-returning.[78] If one fully practises virtue, concentration and wisdom, then one accomplishes Arahantship, the supreme freedom.[79]

[78] Cf. Ibid. ... puggalo sīlesu paripūrakārī hoti, samādhismiṃ paripūrakārī paññāya na paripūrakāri hoti. So pañcannaṃ orambhāgiyānaṃ saṃyojanānaṃ parikkhayā ... uddhaṃsoto hoti akaniṭṭhagāmī.

[79] A I 232f. ... bhikkhu sīlesu paripūrakārī hoti samādhismiṃ paripūrakārī paññāya paripūrakārī. ... So āsavānaṃ khayā anāsavaṃ cetovimuttiṃ paññāvimuttiṃ diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṃ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharati

Chapter 2: Treatise on Virtue (Sīla-niddesa)

[400c] What is "virtue"? What is its characteristic (lakkhaṇa)? What is its function (rasa)? What is its manifestation (paccupaṭṭhāna)? What is its near cause (paḍaṭṭhāna)? What are its benefits (ānisaṃsa)? What is the meaning of virtue? What is the difference between virtue and observance (vata)? How many kinds of virtue are there? What produces [virtue] (samuṭṭhāna)? What are the initial, medial and final stages in virtue? How many states (dhammā) are obstacles to progress in virtue? How many are the causes of virtue? How many kinds of virtue are there? What purifies virtue? Owing to how many causes does one dwell in virtue?

Virtue Defined

Q. What is "virtue"?

A. It is virtue of volition (cetanā), virtue of restraint (saṃvara) and virtue of non-transgression (avītikkama).

Q. What is "virtue of volition"?

A. It is this resolve: "I will do no evil. Those who do so, will experience [evil] themselves."[80]

Q. What is "virtue of restraint"?

A. It is keeping away from occasions of offending [against precepts] (āpatti).

Q. What is "virtue of non-transgression"?

A. When a man is virtuous he does no wrong by body and speech.

Again, "restraint" has the meaning of "abandoning," and "virtue" is "all wholesome states." 400c08

As it is said in the Abhidhamma:[81] "The abandoning of sensual desire by renunciation is virtue of non-transgression, virtue of volition, virtue of self-control (saṃyama), virtue of restraint. The abandoning of ill-will by non-ill-will …[82] the abandoning of sloth and torpor by the perception of light … the abandoning of agitation by non-wavering … the abandoning of uncertainty by the defining of states … the abandoning of ignorance by knowledge 400c11 … the abandoning of discontent by gladness … the abandoning of the five hindrances by the first jhāna … the abandoning of thinking and exploring by the second jhāna … the [80] Cf. Dhp 66–67, S I 57: Caranti bālā dummedhā, amitteneva attanā; / Karontā pāpakaṃ kammaṃ, yaṃ hoti kaṭukapphalaṃ. / Na taṃ kammaṃ kataṃ sādhu, yaṃ katvā anutappati; Yassa assumukho rodaṃ, vipākaṃ paṭisevati.

---

[81] The parallel passage at Vism I.140 begins with "Vuttaṃ h'etaṃ Paṭisambhidāyaṃ…."

Paṭis I 45: Pañca sīlāni pāṇātipātassa pahānaṃ sīlaṃ, veramaṇī sīlaṃ, cetanā sīlaṃ, saṃvaro sīlaṃ, avītikkamo sīlaṃ. Adinnādānassa, kāmesumicchācārassa, musāvādassa, pisuṇāya vācāya, pharusāya vācāya, samphappalāpassa, abhijjhāya, byāpādassa, micchādiṭṭhiyā. Nekkhammena kāmacchandaṃ saṃvaraṭṭhena sīlaṃ, avītikkamaṭṭhena sīlaṃ. Abyāpādena byāpādaṃ saṃvaraṭṭhena sīlaṃ, avītikkamaṭṭhena sīlaṃ. Ālokasaññāya thinamiddhaṃ … avikkhepaṭṭhena uddhaccaṃ … dhammavavatthānena vicikicchaṃ … ñāṇena avijjaṃ … pāmojjena aratiṃ…. Paṭhamena jhānena nīvaraṇe … dutiyena jhānena vitakkavicāre … tatiyena jhānena pītiṃ … catutthena jhānena sukhadukkhaṃ… ākāsānañcāyatanasamāpattiyā rūpasaññaṃ paṭighasaññaṃ nānattasaññaṃ … viññāṇañcāyatanasamāpattiyā ākāsānañcāyatanasaññaṃ… ākiñcaññāyatanasamāpattiyā viññāṇañcāyatanasaññaṃ… nevasaññānāsaññāyatanasamāpattiyā ākiñcaññāyatanasaññaṃ. Aniccānupassanāya niccasaññaṃ … dukkhānupassanāya sukhasaññaṃ… anattānupassanāya attasaññaṃ… nibbidānupassanāya nandiṃ… virāgānupassanāya rāgaṃ… nirodhānupassanāya samudayaṃ… paṭinissaggānupassanāya ādānaṃ… khayānupassanāya ghanasaññaṃ… vayānupassanāya āyūhanaṃ … vipariṇāmānupassanāya dhuvasaññaṃ… animittānupassanāya nimittaṃ … appaṇihitānupassanāya paṇidhiṃ… suññatānupassanāya abhinivesaṃ… adhipaññādhammavipassanāya sārādānābhinivesaṃ… yathābhūtañāṇadassanena sammohābhinivesaṃ… ādīnavānupassanāya ālayābhinivesaṃ… paṭisaṅkhānupassanāya appaṭisaṅkhaṃ… vivaṭṭanānupassanāya saññogābhinivesaṃ…. Sotāpattimaggena diṭṭhekaṭṭhe kilese … sakadāgāmimaggena oḷārike kilese… anāgāmimaggena aṇusahagate kilese… arahattamaggena sabbakilese saṃvaraṭṭhena sīlaṃ, avītikkamaṭṭhena sīlaṃ. Pañca sīlāni pāṇātipātassa pahānaṃ sīlaṃ, veramaṇī sīlaṃ, cetanā sīlaṃ, saṃvaro sīlaṃ, avītikkamo sīlaṃ.

[82] The Chinese text abridges from here on.

abandoning of rapture by the third jhāna … the abandoning of pleasure and pain by the fourth jhāna[83] … the abandoning of the perceptions of matter, impact and diversity by the attainment of the base of boundless space … the abandoning of the perception of the base of boundless space by the attainment of the base of boundless consciousness … the abandoning of perception of the base of boundless consciousness by the attainment of the base of nothingness … the abandoning of the perception of the base of nothingness by the attainment of the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception … the abandoning of the perception of permanence by the contemplation of impermanence … the abandoning of the perception of happiness by the contemplation of suffering … the abandoning of the perception of self by the contemplation of not-self[84] … the abandoning of the delight by the contemplation of disadvantage[85] … the abandoning of greed by the contemplation of dispassion … the abandoning of origination by the contemplation of cessation[86] … the abandoning of the perception of solidness by the contemplation of destruction … the abandoning of the perception of accumulation by the contemplation of parts[87] … the abandoning of the perception of stability by the contemplation of rise and fall … 400c20 the abandoning of the sign by the contemplation of the signless … the abandoning of aspiration by the contemplation of the aspirationless … the abandoning of adherence[88] by the contemplation of emptiness … the abandoning of adherence to grasping [of an essence] by the contemplation [of states] by means of higher wisdom … the abandoning of the adherence to delusion by knowledge and vision according to reality … the abandoning of adherence to [sensual] dwelling by the contemplation of disadvantage … the abandoning of non-reflection by the contemplation of reflection … the abandoning of adherence to fetters by contemplation of turning away[89] … the abandoning of defilements conjoined to views by the path of Stream entry … the abandoning of the coarse defilements by the path of Once-returning … the abandoning of the subtle defilements by the path of Non-returning … the abandoning of all defilements by the path of Arahantship—this is virtue of non-transgression, virtue of volition, virtue of self-control and virtue of restraint.[90]

---

[83] In accordance with the Pali and Tibetan, ammend 斷樂 to 斷樂苦 at 400c13.

[84] The Taisho edition adds "The abandoning of the perception of the beautiful by the contemplation of the foul" = asubhasaññāya asubhasaññāṃ, but according to the footnote this is not found in the 宋, 元. 明, and 宮 editions. It is also not found in the Tibetan translation, as well as Vism and Paṭis I 46.

[85] Ādīnavānupassanāya. The characters 過患 correspond to ādīnava, and are used further down in this enumeration in this sense. Vism/Paṭis as well as the Tibetan have nibbidānupassanāya nandiṃ, "… by the contemplation of disenchantment."

[86] The Tibetan and the Vism/Paṭis have "contemplation of renunciation in the case of grasping," = paṭinissaggānupassanāya ādānassa, after this.

[87] 400c19: 以分見斷聚. 分 corresponds to aṅga, and 聚 to āyūhana. The Vism/Paṭis parallel is vayānupassanāya āyūhanassa: "by the contemplation of falling away in accumulation." Probably the there was a mixup because nirodhānupassanā being used above—which has the same characters as vayānupassanā, 滅見. The next item is also different in the Pali and Tibetan: vipariṇāmānupassanā, yongs su 'gyur ba rjes su mthong ba, "contemplation of change" = "contemplation of rise and fall," 生滅見, in the Chinese.

[88] The Tibetan (244a) has attābhinivesa, "adherence to an 'I,'" a term used in the commentaries, e.g. Paṭis-a II 436.

[89] Paṭis-a I 133 Saññogābhinivesanti kāmayogādikaṃ kilesappavattiṃ. D-ṭ I 134: Saṃyogābhinivesanti saṃyujjanavasena saṅkhāresu abhinivisanaṃ: "…: adherence to saṅkhāras in the sense of being fettered [to them]." The former interprets in terms of the four yogas while the latter understands rather in terms of the saṃyojanas.

[90] There is a parallel in the Tibetan Ssv, pp.243b–244a: "In the Sthavira Abhidharma it is said that virtue is threefold, namely, virtue of intention, virtue of restraint, and virtue of non-transgression (? mi 'nga' ba). That virtue which is twofold, namely, virtue in the sense of restraining and virtue in the sense of abandoning, therein, virtue in the sense of restraining is fourfold, namely, virtue of desisting (? = veramaṇī ?, rnam par ldog = Skt vinirvartate), virtue of intention, virtue of self-control (saṃyama) and virtue of restraint. Virtue in the sense of abandoning is thirty-seven-fold, namely, [abandoning of] sense-desire through renunciation

This is called "virtue."

Characteristic of Virtue

Q. What is the characteristic of virtue?

A. The dispelling of non-restraint (asaṃvara) by restraint.[91]

Q. What is called "non-restraint"?

A. It means the breaking the rules (dhamma).

There are three kinds of breaking [the rules]: breaking the Pātimokkha rules; breaking the rules pertaining to the requisites; breaking the rules pertaining to the sense-faculties (indriya).

Q. What is breaking the Pātimokkha rules? [401a]

A. It is of the forsaking of faith in the Tathāgata owing to non-conscience (ahiri) and shamelessness (anottappa).

Q. What is "breaking the rules pertaining to the requisites"?

A. It is forsaking of contentment through life being concerned with the adornment of the body.

Q. What is "breaking the rules pertaining to the faculties"?

A. It is forsaking of mindfulness and wisdom (sati-paññā) through not closing the six sense doors.[92]

These three constitute non-restraint.

This is called "the characteristic of virtue." 401a03

Function, Manifestation and Near Cause of Virtue

Q. What are its function, manifestation and near cause?

A. The happiness of blamelessness (anavajja-sukha) is its function. Non-sorrow (asoka) is its manifestation. The three wholesome actions (i.e., by body, speech and mind) are its near cause.

Again, rejoicing (abhippamoda) is its function. Non-remorse is its manifestation. The shielding of the sense-faculties is its near cause.

Benefits of Virtue

Q. What are the benefits (ānisaṃsa) of virtue?

A. Non-remorse is the benefit of virtue. As the Blessed One told Ānanda: "Non-remorse is virtue of abandoning; … [same items as in the Pali & Chinese] … perception of self by the contemplation of not-self …; the perception of delight by the contemplation of disenchantment…; perception of greed by the contemplation of dispassion …; origination by the contemplation of cessation …; grasping by the contemplation of relinquishing…; the perception of attractiveness by the contemplation of destruction …; the perception of accumulations by contemplation of falling away …; the perception of support/stability (brten pa) by the contemplation of change …; the sign by the contemplation of the signless …; aspiration by the contemplation of the aspirationless …; adherence to an "I" (attābhinivesa) by the contemplation of emptiness …; adherence to essence (sārādānābhinivesa; mistranslated as dpa' zhum pa = sūra + dīna = "courage" + "scanty wretched" = "timidness, cowardliness") by the ascertaining of states by means of higher wisdom …; adherence to delusion by knowledge and vision according to reality …; adherence to dwelling by contemplation of livelyhood ('tsho ba = ājīva, should be ādīnava, perhaps ādīnava misunderstood/miscopied as ājīva) …; non-reflection by the contemplation of reflection …; adherence to fetters by contemplation of turning away (read rnam par ldog pa) …; … defilements conjoined to views by the path of Stream entry; … coarse defilements by the path of Once-returning; … subtle defilements by the path of Non-returning; … all defilements by the path of Arahantship is virtue of abandoning."

---

[91] Vism I.18:

[92] Cf. J-a VI 293: Saṃvutindriyoti pihitachaḷindriyo rañño vā aṅgapaccaṅgāni orodhe vāssa na olokeyya. A-a I 315: Indriyesu guttadvārānanti chasu indriyesu pihitadvārānaṃ. A-a III 269: Asaṃvutehi indriyehīti manacchaṭṭhehi indriyehi apihitehi agopitehi. Cf. Th-a III 20.

is the benefit and purpose of wholesome virtues."[93]

Again, virtue is called "happiness of blamelessness," "the highest of all lineages (gotta)," "the treasure" and "wealth." It is the ground of the Buddhas. It is to bathe without water.[94] It is to permeate everything with fragrance.[95] It is like a shadow following the body. It is like an umbrella that provides cover. It is the noble lineage. It is the matchless training. It is the path to a happy destination (sugati).[96]

If a man is virtuous, on account of that virtuousness, he achieves fearlessness, ennobles his friends and relatives and is dear to the noble ones. His friends and relatives rely on him.

Virtue is the wholesome ornament.[97] It directs all conduct. It is the field of benefit. It is the field of offering. It is the field of respectable fellow students. [It is] fearlessness and non-regression in all wholesome states (kusala). He will fulfil all aspirations due to purity [of mind].[98] Even while dying, he will not be confused.[99] He goes upon [the path of] freedom [through] the means of happiness .[100]

Thus there are boundless benefits of virtue. 401a15

Further Defining of Virtue

Q. What is the meaning of virtue?

A. It has the meaning of coolness, of higher excellence (seṭṭha), of practice (sīlana), of intrinsic nature (sabhāva), and of being connected with the state of suffering and happiness (sukhadukkhabhāvasampayutta?).

Again, it has the meaning of [being like a] head (sira), coolness (sītala)[101] and peace (siva).

Q. Why does virtue have the meaning of "head"?

A. Just as the faculties of a beheaded man don't pick up objects and he is then called "dead," so the bhikkhu has virtue as his head: if his head is cut off, he loses all wholesome states—in the Teaching of the Buddha (buddhadhamma) this means "death." This is the meaning of virtue as "head."[102] 401a20

Q. Why is it said that virtue has the meaning of "coolness"?

A. Just as rubbing the exceedingly cool sandalwood allays the fever-heat of the body and produces gladness, just so is virtue as exceedingly cool sandalwood capable of allaying the mental fevers which arise from the fear of breaking the precepts, and produces gladness.

---

[93] A V 1: Avippaṭisāratthāni kho Ānanda kusalāni sīlāni avippaṭisārānisaṃsāni.

[94] Th 613: Titthañ ca sabbabuddhānaṃ tasmā sīlasīlaṃ visodhaye.

[95] Cf. Th 615: Sīlaṃ vilepanaṃ seṭṭhaṃ.

[96] Cf. MN 12.35ff.

[97] Cf. Th 614: Sīlaṃ ābharaṇaṃ seṭṭhaṃ.

[98] EKS: "He will fulfil purity of aspiration." Cf. S IV 302: Sace paṇidahissati anāgatamaddhānaṃ rājā assaṃ cakkavattīti, tassa kho ayaṃ ijjhissati, sīlavato cetopaṇidhi visuddhattā dhammiko dhammikaṃ phalaṃ anupassatīti D III 258–59: Tañca kho sīlavato vadāmi no dussīlassa. Ijjhatāvuso, sīlavato cetopaṇidhi visuddhattā.

[99] D II 86: Sīlavā sīlasampanno asammūḷho kālakālaṃ karoti.

[100] Unclear. 成伏解脫樂方便.

[101] See Vism 8: Aññe pana sirattho sītalattho ti evam ādinā pi nayen' ev' ettha atthaṃ vaṇṇayanti.

Nidd-a I 121, Paṭis-a I 15: "Aññe pana "adhisevanaṭṭhena ācāraṭṭhena sīlanaṭṭhena siraṭṭhena sītalaṭṭhena sivaṭṭhena sīlan"ti vaṇṇayanti." (Nt)

[102] Dr. Chu's transl. EKS: "If a man has no head he cannot get rid of the dust of passion from his faculties. Then it is called death. Thus the virtue of the bhikkhu is the head. Beheaded, he loses all good qualities. Thus in the teaching of the Buddha it is called 'death.' This is the meaning of 'head' in virtue."

Vism I.19: Aññe pana siraṭṭho sīlattho, sītalaṭṭho sīlattho ti evamādināpi nayenettha atthaṃ vaṇṇayanti. The Vism-mhṭ gives a similar simile and explanation as the Vimuttimagga: Vism-mhṭ 27 (Be): Aññe pana ācariyā: siraṭṭho ti yathā sirasi chinne sabbo attabhāvo vinassati, evaṃ sīle bhinne sabbaṃ guṇasarīraṃ vinassati. Tasmā tassa uttamaṅgaṭṭho sīlaṭṭho. Siro sīsan ti vā vattabbe niruttinayena sīlan ti vuttanti adhippāyo. Sītalaṭṭho pariḷāhavūpasamanaṭṭho. Cf. Vin I 96, Vin III 28: seyyathāpi nāma puriso sīsacchinno abhabbo tena sarīrabandhanena jīvituṃ, evameva bhikkhu methunaṃ dhammaṃ paṭisevitvā assamaṇo hoti asakyaputtiyo, taṃ te yāvajīvaṃ akaraṇīyaṃ. M II 258, S II 271: Maraṇañhetaṃ … ariyassa vinaye yo sikkhaṃ paccakkhāya hīnāyāvattati; maraṇamattañhetaṃ, sunakkhatta, dukkhaṃ yaṃ aññataraṃ saṃkiliṭṭhaṃ āpattiṃ āpajjati.

This is the meaning of virtue as "coolness."

Q. Why is it said that virtue has the meaning of "peace"?

A. If a man is virtuous, his deportment is dignified. He does not arouse fear. This is the meaning of virtue as "peace."[103]

Q. What is the difference between [virtue] and observance (vata)?[104] 401a24

A. The practicing of observances, the undertaking of energy (vīriya-samādāna) and the asceticisms—this is observance, not virtue. [Yet,] virtue is also called observance [because] undertaking the virtue called restraint (saṃvara) is also called observance.[105]

Q. How many [kinds of] virtue are there?

A. There are three kinds of virtue: wholesome virtue, unwholesome virtue and indeterminate (abyākata) virtue.[106]

Q. What is wholesome virtue?

A. It means wholesome bodily and verbal activities and right livelihood. There being no disadvantage (ādīnava), the result (vipāka) is agreeable.[107]

Q. What is unwholesome virtue?

A. It means evil bodily and verbal activities and wrong livelihood. There being disadvantage, the result is disagreeable.

Q. What is indeterminate virtue? [401b]

A. It is taint-free bodily and verbal activities and pure livelihood. There is no disadvantage and there is no result (vipāka).

Q. What produces virtue?

A. A wholesome mind (kusala-citta) produces wholesome virtue. An unwholesome mind produces unwholesome virtue. An indeterminate mind produces indeterminate virtue.[108]

Stages in Virtue

Q. What are the initial, medial, and final [stages] in virtue?

A. The keeping of precepts is the initial [stage], non-transgression is the medial [stage] and rejoicing is the final [stage] in virtue.

---

[103] Bapat (p. 5) has patiṭṭhā ("support" or "resting place."). Dr. Chu: "security."

[104] Vata, vatta. Cf. Nidd I 66, 92, 104, 188. Vata means '(religious) observance' or 'vow.' See the next note and Bhikkhu Bodhi, Connected Discourses of the Buddha p. 726 n. 5.

[105] Vim 401a24–25. This passage, which is quite cryptic in Chinese, is related to this passage from the Niddesa: "'Virtues (sīla) and observances (vata)': There is sīla and there is vata, and there is vata but not sīla. How is there sīla and vata? 'Here, a bhikkhu is virtuous: he dwells restrained with the restraint of the Pātimokkha … he trains undertaking the training-rules (MN 6)'—the self-control, restraint, non-transgression therein: this is 'sīla.' Whatever is undertaken (samādāna) is 'vata.' In the sense of restraint it is sīla; in the sense of undertaking it is vata. How is there vata but not sīla? '(There are) eight factors of asceticism (dhutaṅga): the factor of forest-dwelling, ….' This is called 'vata' but not 'sīla.' The undertaking of energy is 'vata.' 'May only skin, tendons, and bones remain, may the flesh and blood in the body dry up: … there shall be no abating of energy (MN 70),' (thus) he exerts and exercises his mind. Such undertaking of effort: this is called 'vata' but not 'sīla.'"

Nidd I 66–67: Sīlavatānī ti atthi sīlañceva vatañca, atthi vataṃ na sīlaṃ. Katamaṃ sīlañceva vatañca? Idha bhikkhu sīlavā hoti, pātimokkhasaṃvarasaṃvuto … sikkhati sikkhāpadesu. Yo tattha saṃyamo saṃvaro avītikkamo, idaṃ sīlaṃ. Yaṃ samādānaṃ taṃ vataṃ. Saṃvaraṭṭhena sīlaṃ; samādānaṭṭhena vataṃ, idaṃ vuccati sīlañceva vatañca. Katamaṃ vataṃ, na sīlaṃ? Aṭṭha dhutaṅgāni—āraññikaṅgaṃ, … yathāsanthatikaṅgaṃ, idaṃ vuccati vataṃ, na sīlaṃ. Vīriyasamādānampi vuccati vataṃ, na sīlaṃ. Kāmaṃ taco ca nhāru ca aṭṭhi ca avasissatu … bhavissatī ti, cittaṃ paggaṇhāti padahati. Evarūpaṃ viriyasamādānaṃ—idaṃ vuccati vataṃ, na sīlaṃ.

[106] Paṭis I 44: Kati sīlānī ti? Tīṇi sīlāni, kusalasīlaṃ, akusalasīlaṃ abyākatasīlaṃ. Cf. Vism I.38.

[107] Cf. A IV 88, It 15: Mā, bhikkhave, puññānaṃ bhāyittha. Sukhassetaṃ, bhikkhave, adhivacanaṃ iṭṭhassa kantassa piyassa manāpassa yadidaṃ puññāni. Abhijānāmi kho panāhaṃ, bhikkhave, dīgharattaṃ katānaṃ puññānaṃ iṭṭhaṃ kantaṃ piyaṃ manāpaṃ vipākaṃ paccanubhūtaṃ. Cf. M III 66: ṭhānañca kho etaṃ vijjati yaṃ kāyasucaritassa iṭṭho kanto manāpo vipāko nibbatteyya.

[108] Paṭis I 44: Kiṃ samuṭṭhānaṃ sīlanti kusalacittasamuṭṭhānaṃ kusalasīlaṃ, akusalacitta-samuṭṭhānaṃ akusalasīlaṃ, abyākatacittasamuṭṭhānaṃ abyākatasīlaṃ.

Obstacles and Causes of Virtue

Q. How many states (dhammā) are the obstacles [to progress in virtue] and how many are the causes of virtue?

A. Thirty-four states are obstacles to progress [in virtue] and thirty-four states are the causes of virtue, namely, (1) anger (kodha),[109] (2) annoyance (āghāta),[110] (3) hypocrisy (makkha), (4) spite (paḷāsa),[111] (5) stinginess (macchariya), (6) jealousy (issā), (7) deceit (māyā), (8) craftiness (sāṭheyya), (9) malice (upanāha),[112] (10) argumentiveness (sārambha), (11) conceit (māna), (12) overestimation (atimāna), (13) arrogance (mada), (14) negligence (pamāda), (15) idleness (kosajja), (16) lust (lobha), (17) non-contentment (asantuṭṭhi), (18) not following the wise, (19) loss of mindfulness (muṭṭhasati), (20) evil speech (dubbacā), (21) evil friends (pāpamitta), (22) evil wisdom (duppañña), (23) evil views (pāpa-diṭṭhi), (24) impatience (akkhanti), (25) non-faith (asaddhā), (26) non-conscience (ahiri), (27) shamelessness (anottappa), (28) indulgence in flavors, (29) intimacy (saṃsagga), (30) closeness to women, (31) not respecting the teacher and the training,[113] (32) non-control of the senses, (33) non-moderation with regards food (bhojane amattaññutā), (34) failing to practice meditation (jhāna) and recitation in the first and last watches of the night. These thirty-four states are the obstacles to progress.

If one is obstructed by any one of these then virtue is not perfected. If virtue is not perfected, one surely declines (parihāna).

The thirty-four states which are the opposites of these [obstacles] are called "the causes of virtue."

Kinds of Virtue

Q. How many kinds of virtue are there?

A. There are two kinds, three kinds and four kinds. 401b13

Two Kinds

Q. What are the two kinds?

A. Conduct virtue and restraint virtue (cāritta-sīla & vāritta-sīla).[114]

---

[109] Cf. M I 36f: Sa kho so, bhikkhave, bhikkhu kodho cittassa upakkileso ti … upanāho … makkho … paḷāso … issā … macchariyaṃ … māyā … sāṭheyyaṃ … thambho … sārambho … māno … atimāno … mado …pamādo … M I 43: Pare kodhanā …, mayamettha akkodhanā bhavissāmā ti sallekho karaṇīyo. … upanāhī … anupanāhī … makkhī … amakkhī … paḷāsī … apaḷāsī … issukī … anissukī … maccharī … amaccharī …saṭhā … asaṭhā … māyāvī … amāyāvī …thaddhā … atthaddhā …atimānī … anatimānī …dubbacā … suvacā … pāpamittā … kalyāṇamittā … pamattā … appamattā … assaddhā … saddhā … ahirikā … hirimanā …anottāpī … ottāpī … appassutā … bahussutā … kusītā … āraddhavīriyā … muṭṭhassatī … upaṭṭhitassatī … duppaññā … paññāsampannā … sandiṭṭhiparāmāsī ādhānaggāhī duppaṭinissaggī … asandiṭṭhiparāmāsī anādhānaggāhī suppaṭinissaggī bhavissāmā ti sallekho karaṇīyo.

[110] The character 惱 corresponds to āghāta elsewhere in Vim. In similar sequences and compounds (kodhupanāha) in Pali texts, and also in the Vim itself (410b10; 435a20ff), kodha is found together with upanāha, "malice," which is later given in this sequence in the place of the Pali thambha, "obstinacy." See fn. below. Probably the Chinese translator misunderstood the meanings of upanāha and thambha.

[111] The Chinese text has 熱 which corresponds to tapa or pariḷāha, "heat." M I 36f & 42, see above have paḷāsa, "spite" here. Apparently the Chinese translator misunderstood paḷāsa as pariḷāha.

[112] Probably the Chinese misunderstood thambha, "obstinacy," of the Pali parallels.

[113] D III 280: Katame cha dhammā hānabhāgiyā? Cha agāravā. Idhāvuso, bhikkhu satthari agāravo viharati appatisso. Dhamme … saṅghe … sikkhāya … appamāde… paṭisanthāre agāravo viharati appatisso. Ime cha dhammā hānabhāgiyā. A IV 122–24: Yo so, bhante, bhikkhu satthari agāravo dhamme agāravo saṅghe agāravo sikkhāya agāravo samādhismiṃ agāravo appamāde pi so agāravo. M II 246: Yo so, ānanda, bhikkhu sandiṭṭhiparāmāsī hoti ādhānaggāhī duppaṭinissaggī so sattharipi agāravo viharati appatisso, dhammepi … saṅghepi … sikkhāyapi na paripūrakārī hoti. Cf. A III 330.

[114] 401b14: 性戒制戒. The character 性 corresponds to sabhāva "essential" or pakati "natural," but 性戒 as pakatisīla is found below at 402b07 = Vism I.41. The Vism parallel indicates that cāritta, "conduct" or "custom" is intended here.

Vism I.26: Duvidhakoṭṭhāse yaṃ bhagavatā idaṃ kattabban-ti paññattasikkhāpadapūraṇaṃ, taṃ cārittaṃ. Yaṃ idaṃ na kattabban-ti paṭikkhittassa akaraṇaṃ, taṃ vārittaṃ. Tatrāyaṃ vacanattho. Caran-ti

Those actions done through body and speech that the Buddha defined as "to be done"—this is conduct virtue.

Those actions done through body and speech that the Buddha defined as "not to be done"—this is restraint virtue.[115]

Conduct virtue can be accomplished through faith and effort. Restraint virtue can be accomplished through faith and mindfulness.

Second Two

401b17 Again, there are two kinds of virtue: the virtue of abandoning (pahāna) and the virtue of achieving (padhāna, sampanna?).[116]

What is called "abandoning"? It is ability to stop non-virtue.

What is called "achieving"? Achieving of many wholesome states and getting rid of non-virtues. Just as light dispels darkness, just so one who abandons non-virtue will be freed from the bad destinations (duggati).

Through achieving right virtue one can go to a happy destination (sugati). Through abandoning non-virtue one accomplishes [virtue] partaking of stability (ṭhitibhāga). 401b20

Third Two

And again, there are two kinds of virtue: mundane virtue (lokiya-sīla) and supramundane virtue (lokuttara-sīla).

What is supramundane virtue? The virtue which is attained with the fruit of the noble Path—this is supramundane virtue. The rest is "mundane virtue."

Through the fulfilment of mundane virtue there is perfection. Through the fulfilment of supramundane virtue there is freedom.

Fourth Two

401b23 And again, there are two kinds of virtue: measurable (pamāṇa) and immeasurable (appamāṇa).

The virtue of the not-yet-fully-admitted (anupasampannasīla) is called "measurable."

The virtue of the fully-admitted (upasampannasīla) as defined by the Buddha is called "immeasurable."[117]

Fifth Two

And again, there are two kinds of virtue: virtue with limitation (pariyanta) and virtue tasmiṃ sīlesu paripūrakāritāya pavattantīti cārittaṃ. Vāritaṃ tāyanti rakkhanti tena ti vārittaṃ. Tattha saddhāvīriyasādhanaṃ cārittaṃ, saddhāsādhanaṃ vārittaṃ.

---

For cāritta- & vāritta-sīla, see Cp-a 309–11 and Th-a III 20. Cf. DDB sv 二戒, 性戒 and 遮戒.

[115] The Chinese appears to be corrupt here. The two clauses are almost identical and both in the negative: "… actions … not be done." 401b14–15: 以身口所行佛斷不行。 是名性戒。 身口可行佛斷不行。是名制戒。The translation has been amended according to the Vism parallel, see preceding note.

[116] 退戒 & 得戒. It is not clear what 得戒 corresponds to. 得 = labhati, laddha, patta, samāpanna, etc. The explanation suggests padhāna-sīla. Cf. Nett-a 110 (Be): Saṃvarasīlanti pātimokkhasaṃvaro, satisaṃvaro, ñāṇasaṃvaro, khantisaṃvaro, vīriyasaṃvaroti pañca saṃvarā saṃvarasīlaṃ. Pahānasīlanti tadaṅgappahānaṃ, vikkhambhanappahānaṃ, samucchedappahānaṃ, paṭippassaddhippahānaṃ, nissaraṇappahānanti pañcappahānāni. Tesu nissaraṇappahānavajjānaṃ pahānānaṃ vasena pahānasīlaṃ veditabbaṃ. D-ṭ II 340: indriyasaṃvaro nāma chadvārarakkhāmattakaṃ, ājīvapārisuddhi dhammena samena paccayuppādanamattakaṃ, paccayasannissitaṃ paṭiladdhapaccaye idamatthanti paccavekkhitvā paribhuñjanamattakaṃ, nippariyāyena pātimokkhasaṃvarova sīlaṃ. Tathā hi yassa so bhinno, so itarāni rakkhituṃ abhabbattā asīlo hoti. Yassa pana sabbaso arogo sesānaṃ rakkhituṃ bhabbattā sampannasīlo ti vadati, tasmā itaresaṃ tassa parivārabhāvato, sabbaso ekadesena ca tadantogadhabhāvato tadeva padhānasīlaṃ nāmāti āha uttamajeṭṭhakasīlasaṃvarāyāti. Cf. A II 16: Cattārimāni, bhikkhave, padhānāni. … Saṃvarappadhānaṃ, pahānappadhānaṃ, bhāvanāppadhānaṃ, anurakkhaṇāppadhānaṃ.

[117] Cf. Paṭis I 42: Anupasampannānaṃ pariyantasikkhāpadānaṃ, idaṃ pariyantapārisuddhisīlaṃ. … Upasampannānaṃ apariyantasikkhāpadānaṃ, idaṃ apariyantapārisuddhisīlaṃ. Cf. Paṭis-a I 202: … upasampannasīle patto anupasampannasīlassa avasānasabbhāvato vā pariyanto avasānaṃ assā atthīti pariyantā. … Anupasampannānanti anavasesasamādānavasena sīlasampadāya bhusaṃ sampannā ti upasampannā, na upasampannā anupasampannā. Tesaṃ anupasampannānaṃ.

without limitation (apariyanta).[118]

What is "virtue with limitation"? If a man for the sake of worldly profit (lābha), 401b27 for the sake of fame, for the sake of relatives and friends, for the sake of the body, for the sake of life transgresses a training-rule which he has undertaken, then his virtue has worldly profit as its limitation, has fame as its limit, [has relatives and friends as its limitation,] has the body as its limitation, has life as its limitation.

What is "virtue without limitation"? Here a bhikkhu does not even give rise to the thought [inclinging] towards transgressing a lawfully undertaken training-rule for the sake of profit, for the sake of fame, for the sake of the body and for the sake of life. [401c] How then will he transgress it? This is the meaning of "virtue without limitation."

Sixth Two

And again, there is group of two in virtue: with dependence and without dependence (sanissita, anissita).

What is virtue which is with dependence? Virtue that is connected with a fortunate existence (bhava) is dependent on craving. The virtue that is connected with [adherence to] precepts and observances (sīlabbata)[119] is dependent on views. The virtue that is connected with self-praise and blame of others is dependent on conceit (māna). This is virtue which is with dependence.

If it fulfills the prerequisite (sambhāra) for freedom it is virtue which is without dependence.[120] 401c04

Virtue which is with dependence is desired by the unwise. Virtue which is without dependence is desired by the wise.

---

[118] Cf. Paṭis I 43–44: Atthi sīlaṃ pariyantaṃ, atthi sīlaṃ apariyantaṃ. Tattha katamaṃ taṃ sīlaṃ pariyantaṃ? Atthi sīlaṃ lābhapariyantaṃ, atthi sīlaṃ yasapariyantaṃ, atthi sīlaṃ ñātipariyantaṃ, atthi sīlaṃ aṅgapariyantaṃ, atthi sīlaṃ sīla jīvitapariyantaṃ. Katamaṃ taṃ sīlaṃ lābhapariyantaṃ? Idh' ekacco lābhahetu lābhapaccayā lābhakāraṇā yathāsamādiṇṇaṃ sikhāpadaṃ vītikkamati—idaṃ taṃ sīlaṃ lābhapariyantaṃ… Katamaṃ taṃ sīlaṃ na aṅgapariyantaṃ? Idh' ekacco aṅgahetu aṅgapaccayā aṅgakāraṇā yathā samādiṇṇaṃ sikkhāpadaṃ vītikkamāya cittam pi na uppādeti kiṃ so vītikkamissati, idaṃ taṃ sīlaṃ no aṅgapariyantaṃ. Katamaṃ taṃ sīlaṃ na jīvita-pariyantaṃ? Idh' ekacco jīvitapaccayā jīvitakāraṇā yathāsamādiṇṇaṃ sikkhāpadaṃ vītikkamāya cittam pi na uppādeti, kiṃ so vītikkamissati: idaṃ taṃ sīlaṃ na jīvitapariyantaṃ.

[119] Cf. 457c24.

[120] Vism I.29/p. 12: Catutthaduke nissayo ti dve nissayā taṇhānissayo ca diṭṭhinissayo ca. Tattha yaṃ imināhaṃ sīlena devo vā bhavissāmi devaññataro vā ti evaṃ bhavasampattiṃ ākaṅkhamānena pavattitaṃ, idaṃ taṇhānissitaṃ. Yaṃ sīlena suddhī ti evaṃ suddhidiṭṭhiyā pavattitaṃ, idaṃ diṭṭhinissitaṃ. Yaṃ pana lokuttaraṃ lokiyañca tasseva sambhārabhūtaṃ, idaṃ anissitan-ti evaṃ nissitānissitavasena duvidhaṃ. Cf. Vism I.32: Tattha lokiyaṃ bhavavisesāvahaṃ hoti bhavanissaraṇassa ca sambhāro.

Seventh Two

401c06 And again, there are two kinds of virtue: [the virtue of] the fundamentals of the holy life (ādibrahmacariyaka) and the virtue of the minor training-rules (khuddhānukhuddhaka-sikkhāpada).[121]

What is "[virtue of] the fundamentals of the holy life"?

The virtue comprising right action, right speech and right livelihood (sammā kammanta, sammā vācā, sammā ājīva)—this is called "the virtue of the fundamentals of the holy life."

The virtue of the remaining training rules[122] is called "virtue of the minor [training-rules]."[123]

Eighth Two

And again, there are two kinds of virtue: connected with mind and not connected with mind.

What is "connected with mind"? It means "the virtue of the fundamentals of the holy life."

What is "not connected with mind"? The remaining, minor precepts." As for the precepts that are connected with the fundamentals of the holy life, a disciple (sāvaka) is one of stable virtue and firm virtue. As for the minor precepts, he can transgress and can emerge (by way of confession). Why? The Buddha did not say that these are a hindrance to [gaining] freedom.[124]

Ninth Two

And again, there are two kinds of virtue; virtue which is not transgressed and pure virtue.

What is "virtue which is not transgressed"? It is hearer's (sāvaka) virtue.

What is "pure virtue"? It is the virtue of the Buddhas and the Paccekabuddhas. 401c13

Tenth Two

And again, there are two kinds of virtue: virtue with a time-limit (kāla-pariyanta) and virtue [undertaken] till the dissolution of the body (āpāṇa-koṭika).

What is undertaken for a short time, temporarily and is not connected with the body and life is called "virtue with a time-limit."

---

[121] Cf. Vism I.27: Dutiyaduke abhisamācāroti uttamasamācāro. Abhisamācāro eva ābhisamācārikaṃ. Abhisamācāraṃ vā ārabbha paññattaṃ ābhisamācārikaṃ, ājīvaṭṭhamakato avasesasīlassetaṃ adhivacanaṃ. Maggabrahmacariyassa ādibhāvabhūtan-ti ādibrahmacariyakaṃ, ājīvaṭṭhamakasīlassetaṃ adhivacanaṃ. Tañhi maggassa ādibhāvabhūtaṃ, pubbabhāgeyeva parisodhetabbato. Tenāha pubbeva kho panassa kāyakammaṃ vacīkammaṃ ājīvo suparisuddho hotī ti. Yāni vā sikkhāpadāni khuddānukhuddakānī ti vuttāni, idaṃ ābhisamācārikasīlaṃ. Sesaṃ ādibrahmacariyakaṃ. Ubhatovibhaṅgapariyāpannaṃ vā ādibrahmacariyakaṃ. Khandhakavattapariyāpannaṃ ābhisamācārikaṃ. Tassa sampattiyā ādibrahmacariyakaṃ sampajjati. Tenevāha so vata, bhikkhave, bhikkhu ābhisamācārikaṃ dhammaṃ aparipūretvā ādibrahmacariyakaṃ dhammaṃ paripūressatī ti netaṃ ṭhānaṃ vijjatī ti. Evaṃ ābhisamācārikaādibrahmacariyakavasena duvidhaṃ.

[122] 有餘學戒, avasesa or sāvasesa sikkhāpada? Cf. A-a II 348: Khuddānukhuddakānīti cattāri pārājikāni ṭhapetvā sesasikkhāpadāni. Tatrāpi saṅghādisesaṃ khuddakaṃ, thullaccayaṃ anukhuddakaṃ nāma. Thullaccayañca khuddakaṃ, pācittiyaṃ anukhuddakaṃ nāma, pācittiyañca khuddakaṃ, pāṭidesaniyadukkaṭadubbhāsitāni anukhuddakāni nāma. Ime pana aṅguttaramahānikāyavaḷañjanakaācariyā "cattāri pārājikāni ṭhapetvā sesāni sabbānipi khuddānukhuddakānī"ti vadanti. … Ādibrahmacariyakānīti maggabrahmacariyassa ādibhūtāni cattāri mahāsīlasikkhāpadāni.

Cf Sn-a I 343: Evaṃ bhagavā āyasmantaṃ rāhulaṃ ājīvapārisuddhisīle samādapetvā idāni avasesasīle samathavipassanāsu ca samādapetuṃ saṃvuto pātimokkhasmin-ti ādimāha.

[123] 輕戒, lit, "minor virtue" or "minor precepts," however, presumably it is identical to 學微細戒, "minor training rules."

[124] Cf. A I 231ff: Tisso imā, bhikkhave, sikkhā yatthetaṃ sabbaṃ samodhānaṃ gacchati. Katamā tisso? Adhisīlasikkhā, adhicittasikkhā adhipaññāsikkhā- imā kho, bhikkhave, tisso sikkhā, yatthetaṃ sabbaṃ samodhānaṃ gacchati. … Idha pana, bhikkhave, bhikkhu sīlesu paripūrakārī hoti samādhismiṃ paripūrakārī paññāya paripūrakārī. So yāni tāni khuddānukhuddakāni sikkhāpadāni tāni āpajjati pi vuṭṭhāti pi. Taṃ kissa hetu? Na hi mettha, bhikkhave, abhabbatā vuttā. Yāni ca kho tāni sikkhāpadāni ādibrahmacariyakāni brahmacariyasāruppāni tattha dhuvasīlo ca hoti ṭhitasīlo ca, samādāya sikkhati sikkhāpadesu.

[What is undertaken] from the first pledge [of undertaking the precepts from] the teacher until the end of life[125] is called the "virtue practised till the dissolution of the body."

The result (vipāka) of virtue with a time-limit involves time (kālika). The result of virtue [undertaken] till the dissolution of the body is immediate (akālika).

Three Kinds

What are the three kinds? 401c17

First Three

Namely, the [virtue of] non transgression through stopping of evil, non transgression through undertaking [the precepts], and non transgression through abandoning.[126]

What is "non transgression through stopping of evil"? Even if one has not yet [formally] undertaken [precepts], one undertakes them. Without there being a ground [for transgression], the mind does not give rise to transgression. This is called "stopping of evil before transgressing." 401c19

What is "non transgression through undertaking [the precepts]"? When one has undertaken precepts, from the [initial] undertaking until death one does not again transgress. This is called "not transgression through undertaking [the precepts]."

What is "non transgression through abandoning"? Through the Noble Path, the Noble Ones abandon all causes of evil. This is called "non transgression through elimination."

Second Three

Again, there are three kinds of virtue thus: held on to virtue (parāmaṭṭha-sīla), not held on to virtue, tranquillized virtue (paṭippassaddha-sīla).[127]

401c22 What is "held on to virtue"? Virtue held on to with views and craving.[128]

The wholesome virtue of the commoner (puthujjana) which is the prerequisite (sambhāra) for entering upon the Path—this is "not held on to virtue."

What is "tranquilized virtue"? The virtue of the arahants. 401c24

Third Three

And again, there is a group of three [in virtue], namely, virtue that has the world as authority, virtue [undertaken] that has oneself as authority, and virtue that has the Dhamma as authority.[129]

---

[125] 從師始誓乃至捨壽. The Chinese is cryptic. It could also mean "[From the] first pledge of following the teacher up to giving up life …" or "[From the] apprentice's first pledge…"

[126] Not in Vism.

[127] Paṭis I 42, Vism I.18: Pañca sīlāni: pariyantapārisuddhisīlaṃ, apariyantapārisuddhisīlaṃ, paripuṇṇapārisuddhisīlaṃ, aparāmaṭṭhapārisuddhisīlaṃ, paṭippassaddhipārisuddhisīlanti. … Katamaṃ aparāmaṭṭhapārisuddhisīlaṃ? Sattannaṃ sekkhānaṃ – idaṃ aparāmaṭṭhapārisuddhisīlaṃ. Katamaṃ paṭippassaddhipārisuddhisīlaṃ? Tathāgatasāvakānaṃ khīṇāsavānaṃ paccekabuddhānaṃ tathāgatānaṃ arahantānaṃ sammāsambuddhānaṃ – idaṃ paṭippassaddhipārisuddhisīlaṃ. Cf. A II 56–7: ariyasāvako ariyakantehi sīlehi samannāgato hoti akkhaṇḍehi acchiddehi asabalehi akammāsehi bhujissehi viññuppasaṭṭhehi aparāmaṭṭhehi samādhisaṃvattanikehi.

[128] The Chinese text does not make sense here. The translator apparently did not understand the text, which, like the Vism parallel, would have referred to the virtue dependent upon craving and views as given in the "sixth two" above.

Vism I.35: Tatiyattike yaṃ dukesu nissitanti vuttaṃ, taṃ taṇhādiṭṭhīhi parāmaṭṭhattā parāmaṭṭhaṃ. Puthujjanakalyāṇakassa maggasambhārabhūtaṃ sekkhānañca maggasampayuttaṃ aparāmaṭṭhaṃ. Sekkhāsekkhānaṃ phalasampayuttaṃ paṭippassaddhanti evaṃ parāmaṭṭhādivasena tividhaṃ.

[129] Cf. A I 147, D III 220: Tīṇi ādhipateyyāni attādhipateyyaṃ, lokādhipateyyaṃ, dhammādhipateyyaṃ. Vism I.34/p.14: … attano ananurūpaṃ pajahitukāmena attagarunā attanigāravena pavattitaṃ attādhipateyyaṃ. Lokāpavādaṃ pariharitukāmena lokagarunā loke gāravena pavattitaṃ lokādhipateyyaṃ. Dhammamahattaṃ pūjetukāmena dhammagarunā dhammagāravena pavattitaṃ dhammādhipateyyanti. D-a III 1005: Ādhipateyyesu adhipatito āgataṃ ādhipateyyaṃ. Ettakomhi sīlena samādhinā paññāya vimuttiyā, na me etaṃ patirūpan-ti evaṃ attānaṃ adhipattiṃ jeṭṭhakaṃ katvā pāpassa akaraṇaṃ attādhipateyyaṃ nāma. Lokaṃ adhipatiṃ katvā akaraṇaṃ lokādhipateyyaṃ nāma. Lokuttaradhammaṃ adhipatiṃ katvā akaraṇaṃ dhammādhipateyyaṃ nāma. Cf. A-a II 243.

What is "virtue that has the world as authority"? If a man with fear, gets rid of evil states out of concern for the world—this is called "virtue that has the world as authority."

What is "virtue that has oneself as authority"? If a man with fear, gets rid of evil states out of concern for his body and life—this is called "virtue that has oneself as authority."

What is "virtue that has the Dhamma as authority? If a man with fear, gets rid of unwholesome states out of concern for the True Dhamma—this is called "virtue that has the Dhamma as authority."

Fourth Three

And again, there are three kinds of virtue [402a] thus: unevenly aspired virtue (visama-paṇihita), evenly aspired virtue (sama-paṇihita), aspirationless virtue (appaṇihita).[130]

What is "unevenly aspired virtue"? One undertakes the precepts tormenting others—this is called "unevenly aspired virtue."

What is "evenly aspired virtue"? One undertakes the precepts for the sake of happiness in the present existence and for the sake of the happiness of freedom in the future—this is called "evenly aspired virtue."

What is "aspirationless virtue"? A man undertakes the precepts without remorse[131] and for the benefit of others—this is called "aspirationless virtue."

Fifth Three

And again, there are three kinds of virtue thus: pure virtue (visuddha), impure virtue (avisuddha), dubious virtue (vematika).[132]

What is "pure virtue"? Through two causes there is pure virtue: The first is non-committing (an offence). The second is atonement after committing (an offence)—this is called "pure virtue."

Through two causes there is impure virtue: The first is intentionally[133] committing (an offence). The second is non-atonement after committing (an offence)—this is called "impure virtue."

What is "dubious virtue"? Through three causes there is dubious virtue: The first is the non-distinguishing of the ground (that constitutes an offence, vatthu). The second is the non-distinguishing of [the grade of] offense. The third is the non-distinguishing of the transgression—this is called "dubious virtue."

If a meditator's virtue is impure, [feeling] deeply ashamed, he should atone [for the transgression], and will get the happiness of purity. If he has doubts, he should inquire about the offence and will get ease (phāsu). 402a12

Sixth Three

And again, there are three kinds of virtue: learner's virtue (sekha-sīla), non-learner's virtue

---

Cf. 447c28自身依: attādhipateyya, and 447c29 世依, lokādhipateyya.

[130] Not in Vism. Cf. Nidd I 41: visamāya paṇidhiyā hetu visamaṃ na careyya. Cf. Nett-a 154 (Be): Tathā sīlesu paripūrakārino khantibahulassa uppannaṃ dukkhaṃ aratiñca abhibhuyya viharato saṅkhārānaṃ dukkhatā vibhūtā hotīti dukkhānupassanā sīlappadhānāti āha appaṇihitavimokkhamukhaṃ sīlakkhandho ti.

[131] 不悔, possibly this originally read 不惱, "not tormenting" as in the definition of "unevenly aspired virtue."

[132] Cf. Vism I.36/p.14: Yaṃ āpattiṃ anāpajjantena pūritaṃ, āpajjitvā vā puna katapaṭikammaṃ, taṃ visuddhaṃ. Āpattiṃ āpannassa akatapaṭikammaṃ avisuddhaṃ. Vatthumhi vā āpattiyā vā ajjhācāre vā vematikassa sīlaṃ vematikasīlaṃ nāma. Tattha yoginā avisuddhasīlaṃ visodhetabbaṃ, vematike vatthujjhācāraṃ akatvā vimati paṭivinetabbā iccassa phāsu bhavissatī ti. Vism-mhṭ I 35 (Be): Katapaṭikammanti vuṭṭhānadesanāhi yathādhammaṃ katapaṭikāraṃ. Evaṃ hi taṃ sīlaṃ paṭipākatikameva hoti. … Katapaṭikammanti iminā ca na punevaṃ karissanti adhiṭṭhānampi saṅgahitanti daṭṭhabbaṃ. Acchamaṃsaṃ nu kho, sūkaramaṃsaṃ nu kho ti ādinā vatthumhi vā, pācittiyaṃ nu kho, dukkaṭaṃ nu kho ti ādinā āpattiyā vā, mayā taṃ vatthu vītikkantaṃ nu kho, na nu kho vītikkantan-ti ādinā ajjhācāre vā vematikassa saṃsayāpannassa. … Vimati paṭivinetabbāti sayaṃ vā taṃ vatthuṃ vicāretvā, vinayadhare vā pucchitvā kaṅkhā vinodetabbā. Nikkaṅkhena pana kappiyaṃ ce kātabbaṃ, akappiyaṃ ce chaḍḍetabbaṃ. Tenāha iccassa phāsu bhavissatī ti.

[133] The Chinese literally has "due to oneself," "on one's own," 自故犯.

(asekha-sīla), neither learner's nor non-learner's virtue (nevasekhanāsekha-sīla).[134]

What is "learner's virtue"? It is the virtue of the seven persons who are learners.

What is "non-learner's virtue"? It is the virtue of the Arahant.

What is "neither learner's nor non-learner's virtue"? It is the virtue of the commoner.

Seventh Three

And again, there are three kinds of virtue thus: virtue due to fear (bhaya), virtue due to worry, virtue due to foolishness.[135]

What is "virtue due to fear"? There is a man who through fear of retribution does not dare to commit evil—this is called "virtue due to fear."

What is "virtue due to worry"? A certain man becomes worried at the thought of becoming separated from loved ones;[136] and owing to this worry he does not commit evil—this is called "virtue due to worry."

What is "virtue due to foolishness"? There is a man who observes cow-virtue (go-sīla) or dog-virtue (kukkura-sīla)—this is called "virtue due to foolishness." If a man fulfils "virtue due to foolishness," he will become a cow or a dog. If he does not fulfil, he will fall into hell.[137]

Eighth Three

402a20 And again, there are three kinds of virtue: inferior (hīna), middling (majjhima), superior (paṇīta).

What is "inferior virtue"? [Virtue] held on to (paramaṭṭha) with much greed, excessive greed, great greed and influenced by discontentment (asantuṭṭhi)—this is "inferior" virtue.

What is "middling virtue"? [Virtue] held on to with subtle greed and influenced by contenment—this is called "middling" virtue.

What is "superior virtue"? [Virtue] not held on to and influenced by contenment—this is called "superior" virtue.

Through the fulfilment of inferior virtue one is reborn as a man; through the fulfilment of middling virtue one is reborn as a god; through the fulfilment of superior virtue one attains to freedom.

Four Kinds

Again, there are four kinds of virtue.

First Four

[Virtue] partaking of falling back (hānabhāgiya-sīla), partaking of stability (ṭhitibhāgiya-sīla), partaking of distinction (visesabhāgiya-sīla), partaking of penetration (nibbedhabhāgiya-sīla).[138]

What is [virtue] "partaking of falling back"? When someone does not remove the obstacles on the Path; he is not energetic; and he deliberately commits (an offence), and having done so, conceals it—this is called "partaking of falling back."

What is "partaking of stability" [in virtue]? When someone keeps the precepts and is not heedless, but he does not produce the vision of Peace[139]—this is called "partaking of stability."[402b]

What is [virtue] "partaking of distinction"? When someone fulfils virtue and concentration, is not heedless, but does not produce the vision of Peace—this is called "partaking of distinction."

---

134 Cf. Cf. Vism I.37/p.14: catūhi ariyamaggehi tīhi ca sāmaññaphalehi sampayuttaṃ sīlaṃ sekkhaṃ. Arahattaphalasampayuttaṃ asekkhaṃ. Sesaṃ nevasekkhanāsekkhanti evaṃ sekkhādivasena tividhaṃ.

135 Not in Vism.

136 EKS: "… a man remembering an intimate friend from whom he is separated, is troubled with distress; …."

137 M I 388–9: So govataṃ bhāvetvā paripuṇṇaṃ abbokiṇṇaṃ … kāyassa bhedā parammaraṇā gunnaṃ sahavyataṃ uppajjati. Sace kho panassa evaṃ diṭṭhi hoti: iminā 'haṃ sīlena vā vatena vā tapena vā brahmacariyena vā devo vā bhavissāmi devaññataro vāti sāssa hoti micchādiṭṭhi. Micchādiṭṭhikassa kho ahaṃ Seniya dvinnaṃ gatīnaṃ aññataraṃ gatiṃ vadāmi: nirayaṃ vā tiracchānayoniṃ vā. …

138 For this classification, see A III 427, Vism I.39.

139 寂見, santi-dassana or upasama-dassana. Not found elsewhere in the Vim.

What is [virtue] "partaking of penetration"? When someone fulfils virtue and concentration, is not heedless and produce the vision of Peace—this is called "partaking of penetration."

Second Four

And again, there are four kinds of virtue: the virtue of the bhikkhu (bhikkhu-sīla), the virtue of the bhikkhunī, the virtue of the not-yet-fully-admitted (anupasampanna-sīla), and for the virtue of the white-clothed (laity) (odāta-vasana-sīla).[140]

What is "the virtue of the bhikkhu"? The Pātimokkha-restraint (pātimokkha-saṃvara)—these are "the virtue of the bhikkhu."

What is "the virtue of the bhikkhunī"? The Pātimokkha-restraint—these are "the virtue of the bhikkhunī."

The ten virtues of the male and female novice (sāmaṇera-sāmaṇerī-dasa-sīla) and the virtue of the female probationer (sikkhamānā-sīla)—these are called "the virtue of the not-yet-fully-admitted."

The five virtues and the eight virtues of the lay-follower, male and female—these are "the virtue of the white-clothed."[141]

Third Four

402b07 And again, there are four kinds of virtue thus: Natural virtue (pakati-sīla), customary virtue (ācāra-sīla), virtue that is an essential quality (dhammatā-sīla)[142] and virtue due to former causes (pubbahetuka-sīla).[143]

What is "natural virtue"? The virtue of Uttarakuru[144]—this is called "natural virtue."

What is "customary virtue? Conduct conforming to rules of clan, country, sect and so on–this is called "customary virtue."

What is "virtue that is an essential quality"? The virtue [of the mother of] the Bodhisatta when he enters the womb[145]—this is called "virtue that is an essential quality."

What is "virtue due to former causes"? The virtue of the Bodhisatta and Mahā Kassapa—this is called "virtue due to former causes."

Fourth Four

And again, there are four kinds of virtue: virtue as virtue (sīla-sīla), origination of virtue (sīla-samuṭṭhāna), cessation of virtue (sīla-nirodha), and the way leading to cessation of virtue (sīla-nirodha-gāmini-paṭipadā).

What is "virtue as virtue"? There are two kinds: wholesome virtue and unwholesome virtue—these are called "virtue as virtue."[146]

402b15 What is "origination of virtue"? A wholesome mind (kusala-citta) originates

---

140 Cf. D III 125: … upāsakā gihī odātavasanā brahmacārino. A III 296: … bhagavato sāvikā gihī odātavasanā sīlesu paripūrakāriniyo, ….

141 Cf. Vism I.40/p.15: … Bhikkhuniyo ārabbha paññattasikkhāpadāni, yāni ca tāsaṃ bhikkhūnaṃ paññattito rakkhitabbāni, idaṃ bhikkhunisīlaṃ. Sāmaṇerasāmaṇerīnaṃ dasasīlāni anupasampannasīlaṃ. Upāsakaupāsikānaṃ niccasīlavasena pañcasikkhāpadāni, sati vā ussāhe dasa, uposathaṅgavasena aṭṭhāti idaṃ gahaṭṭhasīlanti ….

142 Dhammatā means "in accordance with the Dhamma" or "general rule."

143 Cf. Vism I.41/p.15: … uttarakurukānaṃ manussānaṃ avītikkamo pakatisīlaṃ. Kuladesapāsaṇḍānaṃ attano attano mariyādācārittaṃ ācārasīlaṃ. Dhammatā esā, ānanda, yadā bodhisatto mātukucchiṃ okkanto hoti na bodhisattamātu purisesu mānasaṃ uppajji kāmaguṇūpasaṃhitan-ti evaṃ vuttaṃ bodhisattamātusīlaṃ dhammatāsīlaṃ. Mahākassapādīnaṃ pana suddhasattānaṃ, bodhisattassa ca tāsu tāsu jātīsu sīlaṃ pubbahetukasīlanti.

144 A happy realm where people live free from possessiveness and ownership; see D III 199, A IV 396.

145 Cf. MN 123.9–11.

146 Perhaps better translated as "virtue itself." Cf. a. M II 27: Katame ca, thapati, kusalasīlā? Kusalaṃ kāyakammaṃ, kusalaṃ vacīkammaṃ, ājīvapārisuddhiṃ pi kho ahaṃ, thapati, sīlasmiṃ vadāmi. Ime kho, thapati, kusalasīlā; b. M II 26: Katame ca, thapati, akusalasīlā? Akusalaṃ kāyakammaṃ, akusalaṃ vacīkammaṃ, pāpako ājīvo, ime vuccanti, thapati, akusalasīlā.

wholesome virtue; an unwholesome mind originates unwholesome virtue.[147]

What is "cessation of virtue"? Unwholesome virtue ceases through the accomplishing of wholesome virtue; wholesome virtue ceases through the accomplishing of arahantship.[148] What is "the way leading to the cessation of virtue"? Namely, the four right efforts[149]—this is called "the way leading to the cessation of virtue."

This analysis is to be clarified thus: When these four states are in the sense of energy (viriya) and not [in the sense of] true observation of virtue, it is called right effort.[150]

Fifth Four 402b19

And again, there are four kinds of virtue: Virtue of the Pātimokkha restraint, virtue of the purity of livelihood, virtue of the restraint of the sense-faculties, virtue connected with the requisites.

Q. What is "virtue of the Pātimokkha-restraint" (pātimokkhasaṃvara-sīla)?

A. Here a bhikkhu dwells restrained by the Pātimokkha restraint, is endowed with (proper) conduct and resort, seeing fear in tiny faults, and he trains himself in the training rules he has undertaken.[151]

"Here" means in this Master's teaching (satthu-sāsana).[152]

"Bhikkhu" means "good commoner" (kaḷyāṇa-puthujjana). Also it means "learner" (sekha), and "the non-learner who is unshakable" (akuppa/aneñjadhamma).[153]

"Pātimokkha": this is virtue, this is the foundation, this is the start, this is conduct, this is self-control, this is restraint, this is release (mokkha) and this is loosening (pamokkha). These states are the entrance (mukha) for the attainment of wholesome states—this is called "Pātimokkha."[154]

"Restraint" is "not transgressing through bodily and verbal action."

"Restrained" means "endowed with the Pātimokkha-restraint."[155]

"Dwells" means "self-controlled in the four postures."[156]

"Is endowed with (proper) conduct and resort" (ācāragocara-sampanna). [Here,] there is (proper) conduct (ācāra) and there is misconduct (anācāra).[157]

Q. What is "misconduct"? [402c]

A. Here a bhikkhu makes a living by wrong livelihood, giving bamboo staves, or flowers, leaves and fruits, or tooth-sticks and bathing-powder, or courting favour [by speaking] well

---

147 Cf. M II 27: Yaṃ cittaṃ vītarāgaṃ vītadosaṃ vītamohaṃ, itosamuṭṭhānā kusalasīlā, M II 26: Sacittaṃ sarāgaṃ sadosaṃ samohaṃ, itosamuṭṭhānā akusalasīlā.

148 Cf. M II 26 Idha, thapati, bhikkhu kāyaduccaritaṃ pahāya kāyasucaritaṃ bhāveti… manoduccaritaṃ pahāya manosucaritaṃ bhāveti, micchā-ājīvaṃ pahāya sammā-ājīvena jīvikaṃ kappeti. Etth'ete akusalasīlā aparisesā nirujjhanti. M II 27: Idha, thapati, bhikkhu sīlavā hoti, no ca sīlamayo, tañ ca cetovimuttiṃ paññāvimuttiṃ yathābhutaṃ pajānāti, yatth'assa te kusalasīlā aparisesā nirujjhanti.

149 Cf. M II 27: … uppannānaṃ kusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ ṭhitiyā … chandaṃ janeti …. Evaṃ paṭipanno kho, thapati, kusalānaṃ sīlānaṃ nirodhāya paṭipanno hoti.

150 Vim 402b18–19: 如是分別曉了四法是謂精進非[7]真持戒是名正勤. This cryptic passage is related to the discussion of the difference between observance and virtue at 401a24–25, which has a parallel at Nidd I 66–67. See note @@.

151 D I 63–70, M I 33, etc.: … pātimokkhasaṃvarasaṃvuto viharati, ācāragocarasampanno, anumattesu vajjesu bhayadassāvī, samādāya sikkhati sikkhāpadesu, …

152 Cf. Vibh § 509: Idhā ti imissā diṭṭhiyā … imasmiṃ satthusāsane.

153 Akuppa or añenjadhamma qualifies asekha. Cf. Vibh § 510. Bhikkhū ti samaññāya bhikkhu … bhinnattā pāpakānaṃ akusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ bhikkhu, … sekkho bhikkhu, asekkho bhikkhu, nevasekkhanāsekkho bhikkhu, … samaggena saṅghena ñatticatutthena kammena akuppena ṭhānārahena upasampanno bhikkhu.

154 Vibh § 511: Pātimokkhan ti sīlaṃ patiṭṭhā ādi caraṇaṃ saṃyamo saṃvaro mokhaṃ pamokhaṃ (= Be. Ee.: mukhaṃ pamukhaṃ) kusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ samāpattiyā. Cf. Vin I 102: Pātimokkhan-ti ādimetaṃ mukhametaṃ pamukhametaṃ kusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ. Tena vuccati pātimokkhan-ti.

155 Cf. Vibh § 511: Saṃvaro ti: kāyiko avītikkamo, vācasiko avītikkamo, kāyikavācasiko avītikkamo. Saṃvuto ti: iminā pātimokkhasaṃvarena upeto hoti samupeto upāgato samupāgato upapanno sampanno samannāgato.

156 Vibh § 512. Viharatī ti iriyati vattati pāleti yapeti yāpeti carati viharati. Tena vuccati viharatī ti.

157 Cf. Vibh § 513, Vism I.44/p.17: Ācāragocarasampanno ti atthi ācāro, atthi anācāro.

or ill [of others]; or flirting; or flattering to promote himself; or uncaringly speeding off to far away places in order to call and invite guests; or other such actions censured by the Buddha—this is called "misconduct."[158]

Again, there are two kinds of "misconduct": bodily and verbal misconduct.

Q. What is "bodily misconduct"?

A. There is a bhikkhu who goes to into the midst of the Order with conceit in his heart, jostling past the senior monks (thera); he stands or sits down in front of them, or goes to the front and sits down on a high seat, pushing away senior monks to a lower place, or he sits down jostling them. Patting them on the shoulder, he laughs at them. While they go barefooted, he wears sandals. When senior monks walk on the lower path, he walks on the higher path. In numerous ways he slights and troubles. He withholds what is superior from juniors and gives what is inferior to seniors. Without permission, he burns firewood in the bath-house and bolts the door. Or when he arrives at the water-side [to bathe], he always enters [the water] before [the senior monks]. He stretches his body and pats and twists it in vulgar ways. When he goes to another's house he enters abruptly, either by the back or by the front, and goes and sits in a disorderly manner; or [he enters] the screened places of women and young maids, and he strokes the childrens' heads. Such kind of wrongdoings are called "misconduct of body."[159]

Q. What is "verbal misconduct"? 402c14

A. There is a bhikkhu who has no reverence in his mind. Without asking permission from the senior monks, he preaches on the Dhamma or he recites the Pātimokkha. Or he speaks [to others] patting [them] on the shoulder.[160] Or he enters another's house and asks the woman thus: "You of such and such a name, is there or is there not anything to eat? If there is, show it to me. I wish to get food." Such kind of words are "verbal misconduct."[161]

All immorality (dussīlya) is misconduct.[162]

Q. What is "(proper) conduct"?

A. It is the opposite of "misconduct." The bhikkhu is respectful, is endowed with conscience and shame, and [is endowed with] deportment, without anything lacking. He is composed, guards his senses and is moderate as regards food and drink. He never sleeps in the first and last watches of the night. He is endowed with wisdom and is content with little. He is not indulging in worldly affairs. He endeavours, 402c21 and deeply respects his fellow students.[163] This is called "(proper) conduct ."[164]

"Resort" (gocara): There is (proper) resort and improper resort (agocara).

Q. What is "improper resort"?

A. "A certain bhikkhu goes into a harlot's abode, a widow's abode, an old maid's abode, a eunuch's abode, a bhikkhunī's abode, or a tavern; 402c25 he is intimate with kings, ministers, heretical ascetics and immoral companions of the kind that have no faith and devotion, who never benefit the four assemblies[165] and are very detestable. This is called

---

[158] Kāyika anācāra. Cf. Vibh 246: Idhe'ekacco veḷudānena vā pattadānena vā pupphadānena vā phaladānena vā sināndānena vā dantakaṭṭhadānena vā cāṭukamyatāya vā muggasūpatāya vā pāribhaṭṭhayatāya vā jaṅghapesanikena vā aññataraññatarena buddhapaṭikuṭṭhena micchā ājīvena jīvitaṃ kappeti: ayaṃ vuccati anācāro. Cf. also Th 937, 938: Mattikaṃ telaṃ cuṇṇañ ca udakāsanabhojanaṃ, gihīnaṃ upanāmenti ākaṅkhantā bahutaraṃ, dantapoṇaṃ kapiṭṭhañ ca pupphakhādaniyāni ca, piṇḍapāte ca sampanne ambe āmalakāni ca.

[159] Kāyika anācāra. Cf. Nidd I 228–9

[160] This is probably a mistranslation of bāhāvikkhepakopi bhaṇati "he talks waving his arms."

[161] Vācasika anācāra. Cf. Nidd I 230

[162] In the Visuddhimagga (I.44/p.17: Sabbampi dussīlyaṃ anācāro, see next fn.) this sentence is at the start of this section of misconduct, i.e. at 402b29. Possibly it was misplaced by a Chinese copyist.

[163] 同學. The Pali has ābhisamācārika, which means "what is related to the basic discipline," "the minor precepts." Ñāṇamoli (PoP I.48) translates it as "good behaviour."

[164] Vism I.48/p.18: Apica bhikkhu sagāravo sappatisso hirottappasampanno sunivattho supāruto pāsādikena abhikkantena paṭikkantena ālokitena vilokitena samiñjitena pasāritena okkhittacakkhu iriyāpathasampanno indriyesu guttadvāro bhojane mattaññū jāgariyamanuyutto satisampajaññena samannāgato appiccho santuṭṭho āraddhavīriyo ābhisamācārikesu sakkaccakārī garucittīkārabahulo viharati, ayaṃ vuccati ācāro.

[165] Catuparisā. The four assemblies are bhikkhus, bhikkhunīs, upāsakas (laymen) and upāsikās

"improper resort."[166]

As the Buddha declared: "A bhikkhu [should not] go to an impure resort (abrahmacariya-gocara?)."[167]

Q. What is "impure resort"?

A. A brothel.[168]

"(Proper) resort" is obvious [in meaning].

Again, there are three kinds of "resort": resort as support (upanissaya-gocara), resort as protection (ārakkha-gocara), resort as a tying down (upanibandha-gocara). [403a]

Q. What is "resort as support"?

A. It is a good friend endowed with the qualities of the ten topics of speech (dasakathā-vatthuguṇa-samannāgata-kalyāṇamitta),[169] depending on these qualities, a man hears what he has not yet heard and what has been heard is furthered, he overcomes doubt, straightens his view and makes [his mind] confident; and trains himself according to the Dhamma, has great faith, endeavours, and increases virtue, learning, liberality, wisdom and mindfulness. This is called "resort as support."

Q. What is "resort as protection"?

A. There is a bhikkhu who needs to enter among houses or go into the village, he looks at the ground and does not look further than a fathom's distance ahead; 403a06 his bearing is dignified and revered by the people; he does not look at elephants, at horses, at chariots, or at men and women who walk about and meet, or at the palace, or into streets and lanes. He does not look up and down, and does not look around in the four directions.[170] This is called "resort as protection."

Q. What is "resort as a tying down"?

A. As the Buddha has said: "A bhikkhu looks at his ancestral range, [namely, the four establishings of mindfulness]." This is called "resort as a tying down."[171]

These are called "resort."

Because of being endowed with these (proper) conducts and resorts, it is said "endowed with conduct and resort." 403a10

"Seeing fear in tiny faults": "I assent to all the training rules"[172] means "seeing fear in tiny faults."

Again, some say: "The arising of unwholesome mind is called a 'fine fault.' [One should] flee far from the arising of this fine fault mind. Seeing the disadvantage (ādīnava) one fears and sees the escape."

(laywomen).

[166] Cf. Vibh 247, Vism I 45: Idh'edacco vesiyāgocaro vā hoti, vidhavāgocaro vā thullakumārīgocaro vā paṇḍakagocaro vā bhikkhunīgocaro vā pānāgāragocara vā, saṃsaṭṭho viharati rājūhi rājamahāmattehi titthiyehi titthiyasāvakehi ananulomikena gihisaṃsaggena, yāni vā pana tāni kulāni assaddhāni appasannāni anopānabhūtāni akkosakaparibhāsakāni anatthakāmāni ahitakāmāni aphāsukāmāni ayogakkhemakāmāni bhikkhūni bhikkhunīnaṃ upāsakānaṃ upāsikānaṃ, tathārūpāni kulāni sevati bhajati payirupāsati: ayaṃ vuccati agocaro.

[167] Source untraced.

[168] Lit. "sales of female beauty (itthirūpa)."

[169] Cf. A IV 357: … kathā abhisallekhikā cetovivaraṇasappāyā, seyyathidaṃ appicchakathā santuṭṭhikathā pavivekakathā asaṃsaggakathā viriyārambhakathā sīlakathā samādhikathā paññākathā vimuttikathā vimuttiñāṇadassanakathā. Cf. Vism I.49/p.19: Dasakathāvatthuguṇasamannāgato kalyāṇamitto, yaṃ nissāya assutaṃ suṇāti, sutaṃ pariyodapeti, kaṅkhaṃ vitarati, diṭṭhiṃ ujuṃ karoti, cittaṃ pasādeti. Yassa vā pana anusikkhamāno saddhāya vaḍḍhati, sīlena, sutena, cāgena, paññāya vaḍḍhati, ayaṃ vuccati upanissayagocaro.

[170] Vism I.50/p.19: Idha bhikkhu antaragharaṃ paviṭṭho vīthiṃ paṭipanno okkhittacakkhu yugamattadassāvī susaṃvuto gacchati, na hatthiṃ olokento, na assaṃ, na rathaṃ, na pattiṃ, na itthiṃ, na purisaṃ olokento, na uddhaṃ ullokento, na adho olokento, na disāvidisaṃ pekkhamāno gacchati, ayaṃ vuccati ārakkhagocaro.

[171] Vism I.50/p.19: Cattāro satipaṭṭhānā yattha cittaṃ upanibandhati. Vuttañhetaṃ bhagavatā: Ko ca, bhikkhave, bhikkhuno gocaro sako pettiko visayo? Yadidaṃ cattāro satipaṭṭhānā ti (= S V 148), ayaṃ vuccati upanibandhagocaro.

It is likely that the four satipaṭṭhānā were not translated or were lost from the Chinese.

[172] 403a10–11: 我於所學畢故敢造. Perhaps a negative is missing; if so, then it could mean "I shall not transgress any of the traing rules."

This is called "seeing fear in tiny faults."

"Trains himself in the training rules he has undertaken": What is the meaning of "training rule"?

It means the restraint by way of the seven groups [of offences].[173]

"Has undertaken": one follows all [training rules].

This is called "trains himself in the training rules he has undertaken."

This is called "virtue of the Pātimokkha-restraint."

Virtue of the purity of livelihood

Q. What is "virtue of purity of livelihood" (ājīvapārisuddhi-sīla)? 403a16

A. It means not to commit wrong livelihood.

Q. What is wrong livelihood?

A. It is scheming,[174] flattering,[175] hinting, bullying, and pursuing gain with gain.

Q. What is "scheming"?

A. There are three bases of "scheming."

There is a bhikkkhu who intends, designs and desires to get a another set of the four requisites. He feigns dignified demeanour and advertises himself. Harbouring evil desires and coveting (material) gains, he declines superior robes and foods as if he did not want to get them and were seeking coarse, inferior ones. Then, as if out of compassion for others, he accepts the (superior) requisites. This is called the "scheming of designing for requisites."[176]

There is a bhikkhu who has evil desires. Coveting gains, he feigns dignified demeanour, wishing to receive offerings [he says]: "I have attained to jhāna" and he recites Suttas—this is called the "scheming of deportment."

There is a bhikkhu who is covetous, patters deceptively, he declares to people: "I obtain noble states," "I dwell in seclusion," "I practise meditation," or "My preaching is deep and subtle," and puts on the appearance of a superhuman (uttarimanussa). Thus, coveting gains, he widely advertises himself. This is called the "scheming [of deceptive patter]."[177]

403a26 "Flattering" (lapanā) means that, in according to his mind's purpose, he puts up a false appearance for the sake of gains: calling nice names, courting favour [by speaking] well or ill [of others], and flirting. One puts up a pleasing appearance to draw gain to oneself. This is called "flattering."

Q. What is "hinting"?

A. He preaches the Dhamma for the sake of gain, not for mastery over his own mind.[178] This is called "hinting." [403b]

"Bullying": for the sake of gains, he scolds others to make them fear him, or he falsely defames; or he strikes out to terrify people.

---

[173] Or "the seven groups of restraint." 七聚威儀. Cf. 七聚 = sattāpattikkhandhā. Vin V 91: Tattha katame satta āpattikkhandhā? Pārājikāpattikkhandho, saṅghādisesāpattikkhandho, thullaccayāpattikkhandho, pācittiyāpattikkhandho, pāṭidesanīyāpattikkhandho, dukkaṭāpattikkhandho, dubbhāsitāpattikkhandho.

Cf. Vjb 72 (Be): Sattahi āpattikkhandhehi saṃvaro saṃvaravinayo paññattisikkhāpadameva. Ud-a 253: Sattannaṃ āpattikkhandhānaṃ avītikkamalakkhaṇo saṃvaro.

[174] 懈怠 = kosajja, but the text should read kuhanā = 示相, the next item. Vism I 42/p.16: … kuhanā lapanā nemittikatā nippesikatā lābhena lābhaṃ nijigīsanatā ti …

[175] Lapanā. 示相 also means vaṅkatā, kuhanā.

[176] Vibh 352, Vism I.61/p.23: Lābhasakkārasilokasannissitassa pāpicchassa icchāpakatassa yā paccayapaṭisevanasaṅkhātena vā sāmantajappitena vā iriyāpathassa vā aṭṭhapanā ṭhapanā saṇṭhapanā bhākuṭikā bhākuṭiyaṃ kuhanā kuhāyanā kuhitattaṃ, ayaṃ vuccati kuhanā. Nidd I 224: Paccayapaṭisevanasaṅkhātaṃ kuhanavatthu.

At Vism I.68–70/p.24–26 the whole Nidd passage, which the Vim abbreviates, is quoted.

[177] Nidd I 224: Iriyāpathasaṅkhātaṃ kuhanavatthu. Cf. Vism I.69/p.26. Whereas in the Pali version the bhikkhu makes an indirect, suggestive statement as to his qualities, here the bhikkhu makes direct claims. Probably the Chinese translator wrongly interpreted the passage.

[178] The Chinese is quite cryptic. 依有利者而為說法。要利為己心不能普. It is about teaching the Dhamma for the sake of gain and not being able to do something (普 = viśva, "universal") with his own mind.

Q. What is "pursuing gain with gain"?

A. He likes to make small offerings for the sake of great returns. This is called "pursuing gain with gain."

These evil actions constitute wrong livelihood.

And again, there is [another teaching concerning] wrong livelihood: [It is] giving bamboo staves, or flowers, leaves and fruits, or tooth-sticks and bathing-powder; or it is to divine omens, or to interpret dreams, or to make astrological predictions; or to interpret the cries of birds and animals and so on; or to conjecture concerning the auspiciousness or inauspiciousness of footsteps; or to break curses; or to do fire oblations with flowers [etc.]; or to peddle as a travelling merchant; or to support army officers [by making predictions]; or to sharpen weapons.[179]

Such various [professions] are called "wrong livelihood." The not committing of these is called "virtue of the purity [of livelihood]."

Virtue of the restraint of the sense-faculties (indriyasaṃvara-sīla)

Q. What is "virtue of the restraint of the sense-faculties"?

A. If on seeing a form, hearing a sound, smelling an odour, tasting a flavour or contacting a tangible, thinking a thought, one resolves not to commit (a transgression) with regards the defilement-signs thereof.[180] This is called "virtue of the restraint of the sense-faculties." 403b10

This virtue of the restraint of the sense-faculties is fulfilled in nine ways: Through eliminating evil signs [arising] at the sense-faculties; through opposing (paṭipakkha) and non-attending (amanasikāra); through not [even] briefly giving up [the practice] like [the man] who saves his burning head;[181] through restraint like that shown by Nanda;[182] through overcoming evil [states of] mind; through the mind [attaining] the sign of concentration with facility; through avoidance of people who do not guard the sense-faculties: and through association with people who guard the sense-faculties.

Virtue connected with the Requisites

Q. What is "virtue connected with the requisites"? 403b15

A. Through these eight ways one wisely reflects in using alms:

1. One does not use (paṭisevati) for sport (dava) nor for intoxication (mada); 2. not for the sake of appeal nor for beautification; 3. it is for preserving the body and for sustenance; 4. for ending hunger and thirst; 5. for aiding the holy life; 6. one should reflect "I shall remove old ills and shall not give rise to new ills; 7. I shall subside on little, 8. [and shall experience] blamelessness and dwelling in comfort."[183]

Q. What is "one does not use for sport or intoxication"?

A. "Through desire for food I am strong. Therefore, I like sport, rough play, competing and running." This is "sport."

"Intoxication" is haughtiness, self-elevation and not knowing satisfaction. It is like an angry man who hits another.

"Not for the sake of appeal and beautification": [not] for the plumpness of the body and

---

[179] It is hard to grasp the exact meaning of some of these items in the Chinese. This list is based on the one given in the Brahmajāla Sutta at D I 9.

[180] Cf. Vism I.54/p.20: Na nimittaggāhīti itthipurisanimittaṃ vā subhanimittādikaṃ vā kilesavatthubhūtaṃ nimittaṃ na gaṇhāti, diṭṭhamatteyeva saṇṭhāti. Vism I.60/p.22: rūpādīsu kilesānubandhanimittādiggāhaparivajjanalakkhaṇaṃ indriyasaṃvarasīlanti veditabbaṃ. D I 70: … bhikkhu cakkhunā rūpaṃ disvā na nimittaggāhī hoti nānubyañjanaggāhī. Yatvādhikaraṇamenaṃ cakkhundriyaṃ asaṃvutaṃ viharantaṃ abhijjhā domanassā pāpakā akusalā dhammā anvāssaveyyuṃ, tassa saṃvarāya paṭipajjati, …

[181] Cf. S III 143: Careyyādittasīso va patthayaṃ accutaṃ padaṃ.

[182] Nanda was the disciple foremost in sense-restraint; see A I 25: Etad aggaṃ … indriyesu-gutta-dvārānaṃ yadidaṃ Nando.

[183] M I 9, A II 40: Paṭisaṅkhā yoniso piṇḍapātaṃ paṭisevati neva davāya, na madāya, na maṇḍanāya, na vibhūsanāya, yāvadeva imassa kāyassa ṭhitiyā yāpanāya, vihiṃsūparatiyā, brahmacariyānuggahāya, iti purāṇañca vedanaṃ paṭihaṅkhāmi navañca vedanaṃ na uppādessāmi, yātrā ca me bhavissati anavajjatā ca phāsuvihāro cāti.

limbs and for a plump, bright complexion, which causes [other] people to delight. Feeling dissatisfaction, one desires [the attention of other] people.

"For preserving the body and for sustenance": As a hub needs oil, so one uses [food] for the preservation of the body. 403b25

"For ending hunger and thirst": One should depend on little food. As one rubs medicine on a sore, so one uses [food].

"For aiding the holy life": one [should] depend on little food. Being strong and happy, one attains the noble path. Perceiving [food] as if one were eating one's child ['s flesh],[184] so one uses.

"I shall remove old ills and shall not give rise to new ills": One takes neither too little nor too much. As one one who swallows a decoction, so one uses.

"I shall subside on little": Through the quality of [using] little, one's body subsists. As one nurses a patient, so one should use. [403c]

"Blamelessness" is subsiding on little. Using in this way, one's body is without [discomfort] and one is not reproofed by the wise, therefore it is called "blamelessness."

"Dwelling in comfort": If one eats suitably, one will not feel slothful, does not sleep in the first, middle and last watches of the night and has comfort.

Thus, in these eight ways one wisely reflects in using alms.

Thus one should use.

Four reflections

And again, these eight ways can be summarised as four reflections (paṭisaṅkhā), namely, the reflection on what is to be abandoned (pahātabba), the reflection on support (paccaya), the reflection on subsistence on little, the reflection on the quality [of using] little (appicchatā).

Q. What is "reflection on what is to be abandoned"?

A. "Not for sport or intoxication, not for appeal or beautification"—these are "the reflection on what is to be abandoned."

"For preserving the body and for sustenance, for ending hunger and thirst, for aiding the holy life"—these are "the reflection on support."

"I shall get rid of old ills and shall not give rise to new ills"'—this is called "the reflection on subsistence on little." 403c10

"I shall subside on little, [and shall experience] blamelessness and dwelling in comfort"—this is the "the reflection on the quality of [using] little."[185]

These are the four reflections.

Three reflections

Again, these four reflections can be summarised as three, namely, [the reflection on avoiding (parivajjana), reflection on what is to be developed (bhāvetabba) and reflection on using (paṭisevana)].[186]

Avoiding the two extremes, one attains the middle way (majjhima-paṭipadā): through the reflection on avoiding, one avoids the (extreme of the) pursuit of sense-pleasures, i.e., [one uses] "for ending hunger and thirst," and "I shall get rid of old ills and shall not give rise to new ills." Also, through this reflection one avoids the (extreme of the) pursuit of wearying-out-oneself (attakilamathānuyoga).

The reflection on the middle way is [the reflection on what is] to be developed.[187]

One reflects "robes are [just] for warding off the contact with wind, cold, heat, mosquitoes, gadflies, and ants and for the concealing of the shame-producing parts."[188]

---

[184] S II 98. Also Th 445: Uppajje ce rase taṇhā puttamaṃsūpamaṃ saro.

[185] Untraced.

[186] This passage is quite corrupt. In accordance with the explanation and M I 10f, the three reflections are the reflections on avoiding (parivajjana), developing (bhāvanā) and using (paṭisevana).

[187] The Chinese literally has "The remaining/other reflection on the middle way is to be developed." 餘中具足觀應當修行

[188] M I 10: … paṭisaṅkhā yoniso cīvaraṃ paṭisevati yāvadeva sītassa paṭighātāya, uṇhassa paṭighātāya, ḍaṃsamakasavātātapasarīṃsapa-samphassānaṃ paṭighātāya, yāvadeva hirikopīna-ppaṭicchādanatthaṃ.

The reflection on the [middle] way is thus [the reflection on] using.

One also reflects that medicines are just for [warding off] ailments.[189]

Q. If that is so, when should one reflect?

A. As regards alms-food and the taking of medicine, one should reflect each time that one consumes [food and medicine].

As regards robes and lodgings, one should also reflect at the time one first obtains them.

Every day and every hour one should reflect: "My life depends on others"; thus one should reflect.[190]

Thus there is reflection all the time.

Virtue connected with the use of requisites

There are four kinds of use (paribhoga) taught by ancient teachers (porāṇācariyā) thus: use as theft, use as debt, use as inheritance, and use as a master.[191]

Q. What is "use as theft"?

A. Use [of requisites] by an immoral person (dussīla).

Q. What is "use as debt"?

A. Use by one who has no conscience and shame, and [practises] wrong livelihood.

Q. What is "use as inheritance"?

A. Use by one who is energetic.

Q. What is "use as a master"?

A. Use by the Noble Ones.

Again, there are two kinds of use. Namely, unclean use and clean use.

Q. What is "unclean"?

A. Use by one who has conscience and shame but who is not capable of reflection—this is called "unclean."

Use by one who has conscience and shame, who reflects, knows how to moderate himself and detests evil thoughts—this is called "clean."

One should always use the requisites by clean use. Thus it is to be understood.

This is called "virtue connected with the requisites."

Summary

Accordingly, virtue of Pātimokkha restraint is to be undertaken through great faith;[192] virtue of purity of livelihood is to be undertaken through great energy; [404a] virtue of the restraint of sense-faculties is to be undertaken through great mindfulness[193] and virtue connected with the requisites is to be undertaken through great wisdom.

---

189 M I 10: Paṭisaṅkhā yoniso gilānappaccayabhesajjaparikkhāraṃ paṭisevati yāvadeva uppannānaṃ veyyābādhikānaṃ vedanānaṃ paṭighātāya, abyābajjhaparamatāya.

190 A V 87–88: Parapaṭibaddhā me jīvikā ti pabbajitena abhiṇhaṃ paccavekkhitabbaṃ.

191 S-a II 199: Cattāro hi paribhogā theyyaparibhogo iṇaparibhogo dāyajjaparibhogo sāmiparibhogoti. Tattha dussīlassa saṅghamajjhe nisīditvā bhuñjantassāpi paribhogo theyyaparibhogo nāma. Kasmā? Catūsu paccayesu anissaratāya. Sīlavato apaccavekkhitaparibhogo iṇaparibhogo nāma. Sattannaṃ sekhānaṃ paribhogo dāyajjaparibhogo nāma. Khīṇāsavassa paribhogo sāmiparibhogo nāma. Iti khīṇāsavo va sāmī hutvā anaṇo paribhuñjati. Thero attanā puthujjanena hutvā paribhuttaparibhogaṃ iṇaparibhogaṃyeva karonto evamāha." Vism I.125 does not attribute these four to the 'ancients' (porāṇā) as it is done here.

192 Cf. Vism I.98/p.36: Evametasmiṃ catubbidhe sīle saddhāya pātimokkhasaṃvaro sampādetabbo. Saddhāsādhano hi so, sāvakavisayātītattā sikkhāpadapaññattiyā. Vism I.10/p.36: Yathā ca pātimokkhasaṃvaro saddhāya, evaṃ satiyā indriyasaṃvaro sampādetabbo. Satisādhano hi so, satiyā adhiṭṭhitānaṃ indriyānaṃ abhijjhādīhi ananvāssavanīyato. Vism I 111/p.40: Yathā pana indriyasaṃvaro satiyā, tathā vīriyena ājīvapārisuddhi sampādetabbā. Vīriyasādhanā hi sā, sammāraddhavīriyassa micchājīvappahānasambhavato. Vism I 123/p.43: Yathā ca vīriyena ājīvapārisuddhi, tathā paccayasannissitasīlaṃ paññāya sampādetabbaṃ. Paññāsādhanaṃ hi taṃ, paññavato paccayesu ādīnavānisaṃsadassanasamatthabhāvato.

193 The Chinese text has "faith" 信 here, but, as Prof. Bapat (1937, p. 14, n. 2) points out, sati, as given in the Visuddhimagga (I.100) is appropriate. The character 深 normally corresponds to gambhīra, "deep," but it here would correspond to atīva "very much" or uḷāra "great, lofty"; see the Skt senses in DDB.

Herein, virtue of the purity of livelihood follow along with [virtue of the Pātimokkha] restraint.

Q. Why?

A. Because [virtue] is not for the sake of life, but for abandoning worldly affairs and [for] quiet, which are to be obtained by the restraint of bodily and verbal actions.[194]

These two kinds of virtue follow along with virtue of the restraint of sense-faculties.

Q. Why?

A. Because if one well guards one's mind, one can well guard one's bodily and verbal actions.

Virtue connected with the requisites is [the virtue of] restraint of sense-faculties.

Q. Why?

A. Having understood the characteristic of origination as dependent on the [physical] basis (vatthu), one [gets] disenchanted and [gets] right mindfulness and right concentration

It is as taught by the Blessed One: "When a bhikkhu understands solid food, he also understands the fivefold sense-pleasures."[195]

The Pātimokkha-restraint and purity of livelihood are included in the aggregate of virtue; virtue of the restraint of sense-faculties is included in the aggregate of concentration and virtue connected with the requisites is included in the aggregate of wisdom. 404a10

Purity of Virtue and its Characteristic

Q. How to undertake purity of virtue?

A. When a bhikkhu has first received a meditation teaching, he should reflect whether he has in himself [any offence] in the seven groups [of offences]. If he sees that he has committed a Pārājika offence, then he is cut off from the state of being a bhikkhu and stands in the virtue of the not-yet-fully-admitted (anupasampanna-sīla). But if he stands in the virtue of the fully-admitted (upasampanna-sīla), he will attain the supreme Dhamma (aggadhamma).[196] This is the teaching of the ancient teachers.

If a bhikkhu sees in himself that he has committed an offence involving suspension (saṅghādisesa), then he confesses (deseti) by way of a formal act of the Sangha (saṅghakamma).

If he sees in himself that he has committed any other offence, then he confesses that offence to another person.

If a bhikkhu sees in himself that he has committed wrong livelihood, then he makes a confession appropriate to the offence. He confesses: "I shall not do so again."

Seeing thus, he resolves "I shall not do so again" with regards transgressions of [virtue of] the restraint of sense-faculties or [virtue] connected with the requisites. If he resolves [thus], he will acquire the most excellent [virtue of] restraint in the future.[197]

Due to the purity of virtue, he does all the bodily and verbal actions that ought to be done. He should always reflect and do good and and get rid of evil. He should reflect thus, and dwell in the purity of virtue day and night. Doing thus, he produces purity of virtue.

Q. What is the characteristic of purity of virtue?

A. Its characteristic is to restrain defilements,[198] not to give rise to remorse and fulfil the attainment of concentration—this is is the characteristic of purity of virtue. 404a21

---

[194] The Chinese is cryptic: 不為壽命而斷諸事安者所作得身口業威儀.

[195] S II 99: Kabaḷīkāre, bhikkhave, āhāre pariññāte pañcakāmaguṇiko rāgo pariññāto hoti.

[196] 勝法, aggadhamma, uttamadhamma. It could also mean "excellent/distinctive states" such as at 427b02.

[197] Vism I.126/p.44: Saṃvarasuddhi nāma indriyasaṃvarasīlaṃ. Tañhi na puna evaṃ karissāmī ti cittādhiṭṭhānasaṃvareneva sujjhanato saṃvarasuddhīti vuccati. … Paccavekkhaṇasuddhi nāma paccayasannissitasīlaṃ. Tañhi vuttappakārena paccavekkhaṇena sujjhanato paccavekkhaṇasuddhīti vuccati.

[198] The Chinese is corrupt here: "There is characteristic should and all defilements not to give rise to decline-remorse."成相應及諸煩惱不起退悔. Cf. Paṭis II 23, 243: sabbakilesasaṃvaraṭṭhena sīlavisuddhi. Paṭis-a I 210: Sīlavisuddhiyā saṃvaralakkhaṇaṃ.

Causes through Which One Dwells in Virtue

Q. Owing to how many causes does one dwell in virtue?[199]

A. Through two causes one dwells in virtue: (1) one considers (tuleti?) the disadvantages (ādīnava) of immorality (dussīlya); (2) one considers the benefits of virtue.

Q. How "to consider the disadvantages" [of transgression]?

A. If a man is immoral, he gets demerit and [is reborn in] the evil destinations (duggati). He has fear in the four assemblies[200] and is uncertain. The wise and virtuous reject and avoid him. He is not taught meditation. Gods and humans despise him. He is disdained by all. Thinking about [his own] immorality, when he sees people praising the qualities of those who upkeep virtue, he is remorseful and has no faith.

In the midst of the four assemblies he is always angry and disputatious. He gives produces much resentment towards his relatives and friends.[201] He turns the back on the virtuous and takes the side of the evil. He cannot again obain the states of supreme concentration.

If he adorns himself, he looks ugly. He is just like excrement and urine that is abhorred by people. He is just like a mockup model that does not last long. [404b] He is just like mud, which is of no benefit in the present or the future.

He is always distressed. If he has done a blameworthy thing, he is pursued by shame and remorse and has no ease, like a thief in prison. He has no desire for the Noble [Dhamma], like an outcast who has no desire for the throne.[202] Although he has wisdom sprung from learning and enjoys preaching on good qualities, people do not honour him, just like a dung-fire [is honoured by none]. He is of inferior birth.[203] At the time of death he is confused. He will go to a bad destination.[204]

In this manner one can consider the disadvantages [of immorality].

One can also consider: If he changes, these evils will turn into the benefits of virtue. One considers thus: "The mind of the immoral one is coarse and dejected; his (good) intentions decline and scatter. If he would have virtue, and have great energy, he would increase faith and reverence and become an energetic person, become a faithful, reverential person."

One should wholeheartedly protect one's virtue. "As an ant protects her egg; as a yak protects his tail; as one protects an only son or one's sole eye;[205] as a siprotects himself; as a poor man protects his treasure; and as a seafaring captain protects his ship– more than these, I should honour and protect the virtue that is to be developed."

If he thus resolves, his mind will be guarded, he will peacefully dwell in jhāna concentration and his virtue obtains protection.[206]

---

[199] Read: 幾因以是戒住 as at 400c04.

[200] Cf. D II 85: Puna ca paraṃ gahapatayo dussīlo sīlavipanno yaṃ yad eva parisaṃ upasaṅkamati yadi khattiya-parisaṃ yadi brāhmaṇa-parisaṃ yadi gahapati-parisaṃ yadi samaṇa-parisaṃ, avisārado upasaṅkamati maṅkubhūto.

[201] Or "He arouses much resentment in his relatives and friends," 於其親友多起嫌怨.

[202] Vism I.154/p.54: Nirāso saddhamme caṇḍālakumārako viya rajje.

[203] ? Unintelligible. 生不如處.

[204] D II 85: … dussīlo sīlavipanno sammūḷho kālaṅkaroti. Ayaṃ catuttho ādīnavo dussīlassa sīlavipattiyā. … kāyassa bhedā paraṃ maraṇā apāyaṃ duggatiṃ vinipātaṃ nirayaṃ upapajjati. …

[205] Khp-a 237, Sn-a I 193: Yathā ca kikī sakuṇikā aṇḍaṃ, camarī migo vāladhiṃ, ekaputtikā nārī piyaṃ ekaputtakaṃ, ekanayano puriso taṃ ekanayanañca rakkhati, tathā ativiya appamatto attano sīlakkhandhaṃ rakkhati. J-a III 375: … kikī vā aṇḍaṃ viya, camarī vā vāladhiṃ viya, mātā piyaputtaṃ viya, ekacakkhuko puriso cakkhuṃ viya rakkhati, tasmiṃ tasmiṃ yeva khaṇe uppannakilesaṃ niggaṇhāti. Vism I 98/p.36: Kikī va aṇḍaṃ camariva vāladhi, piyaṃ va puttaṃ nayanaṃ va ekakaṃ, tath'eva sīlaṃ anurakkhamānakā, supesalā hotha sadā sagaravā. Cf. Ap 61, v. 16.
The Pali has "female Blue Jay/Indian Roller," (kikī, = Coracias benghalensis) instead of "ant"; probably the Chinese translator did not know kikī.

[206] Perhaps: "he will abide peacefully in jhāna [as his] concentration obtains protection [due to] virtue."

Chapter 3: Asceticism[207]

Q. Now, the meditator (yogāvacara) who has pure virtue and desires to accomplish superior wholesome qualities, also desires to attain the ascetic-qualities (dhuta-guṇa).

The meditator should undertake the ascetic-qualities[208] for various reasons: For fewness of wishes, for contentment, for effacement,[209] for the destruction of craving, for disaccumulation,[210] for application of energy, for the sake of having few duties and being easy to support,[211] for dwelling in concentration, for the abandoning of greed and the protection of good virtues.[212] These [qualities] are the equipment of concentration. These are the ancient lineage of the noble ones (ariyavaṃsa). These are the observation of excellent qualities. 404b27

What are the asceticisms?

Q. What are the asceticisms (dhuta)?

A. There are thirteen states (dhamma).[213]

---

[207] 頭陀品第三, lit. "Asceticism, Chapter Three." In the Tibetan translation this chapter is called sbyangs pa'i yon tan bstan pa, = dhutaguṇaniddesa, "Treatise on the Qualities of Purification." In the Visuddhimagga it is called Dhutaṅganiddesa, "Treatise on the Factors of Asceticism."

A translation of the Tibetan is found in the appendix.

[208] This introduction is corrupt in the Chinese. At the start of this sentence there is a question marker 何, followed by an answer marker, 答, i.e.: "… accomplish. Question: Why undertake these qualities of asceticism? Answer: For the meditator nature/dwelling [in] various ways …." Read 住, "to dwell," viharati, instead of 性, "nature"? In Vism and in the Tibetan there is no question and this passage makes better sense if the question is left out.

Vism II.1/p.59: Idāni yehi appicchatāsantuṭṭhitādīhi guṇehi vuttappakārassa sīlassa vodānaṃ hoti, te guṇe sampādetuṃ yasmā samādinnasīlena yoginā dhutaṅgasamādānaṃ kātabbaṃ. Evañhissa pāpicchatāsantuṭṭhitāsallekhapavivekā-pacayavīriyārambhasubharatādiguṇasalilavikkhālitamalaṃ sīlañceva suparisuddhaṃ bhavissati, vatāni ca sampajjissanti. Iti anavajjasīlabbataguṇaparisuddhasabbasamācāro porāṇe ariyavaṃsattaye patiṭṭhāya catutthassa bhāvanārāmatāsaṅkhātassa ariyavaṃsassa adhigamāraho bhavissati.

Cf. Vism III.83: Dhutadhammā veditabbā ti appicchatā, santuṭṭhitā, sallekhatā, pavivekatā, idamatthitā ti ime dhutaṅgacetanāya parivārakā pañca dhammā appicchataṃ yeva nissāyā ti-ādivacanato dhutadhammā nāma. Cf. Bv-a 49–50: Dhutaguṇe ti ettha kilesadhunanato dhammo dhuto nāma, dhutaguṇo nāma dhutadhammo. Katamo pana dhutadhammo nāma? Appicchatā, santuṭṭhitā, sallekhatā, pavivekatā, idamaṭṭhikatāti ime dhutaṅgacetanāya parivārabhūtā pañca dhammā appicchaṃ yeva nissāyā ti ādivacanato dhutadhammā nāma. Atha vā kilese dhunanato ñāṇaṃ dhutaṃ nāma, tasmiṃ dhutaguṇe. Cf. Th-a III 143: Dhutaguṇe ti kilesānaṃ dhutena guṇena āraññakādibhāvena apekkhitaguṇe. Karaṇatthe vā etaṃ bhummavacanaṃ. Vin III 15: Acirūpasampanno ca panāyasmā sudinno evarūpe dhutaguṇe samādāyavattati, āraññiko hoti piṇḍapātiko paṃsukūliko sapadānacāriko.

Mil 352: Kiṃ dhutaguṇavarasamādiyanenā ti? Aṭṭhavīsati kho panime, mahārāja, dhutaṅgaguṇā yathābhuccaguṇā, yehi guṇehi dhutaṅgāni sabbabuddhānaṃ pihayitāni patthitāni. Katame aṭṭhavīsati? Idha, mahārāja, dhutaṅgaṃ suddhājīvaṃ … sabbadukkhakkhayagamanaṃ, ime … patthitāni. Ye kho te, mahārāja, dhutaguṇe sammā upasevanti, te aṭṭhārasahi guṇehi samupetā bhavanti. Katamehi aṭṭhārasahi? Ācāro tesaṃ suvisuddho hoti, …

[209] 無疑, lit. "non-doubt" or "without-perplexity." This word occurs in the benefit sections of each of the dhutas. The Tibetan parallel has yo byad bsnyungs pa, which corresponds to saṃlikhita in Skt (see Chinese-Sanskrit-Tibetan Table of Buddhist Terminology based on the Yogacarabhumi, 2000.) The Chinese translation is based on a misinterpretation of sallekha as a-lekha; cf. vilekha, "perplexity."

[210] The Chinese translation "freedom from doubt and for the destruction of craving" appears to be based on a combination of two interpretations of sallekha; cf. vilekha, perplexity. The Tibetan has yo byad bsnyungs pa rgyas pa, "effacement-increase," but rgyas pa, = upacaya, caya, is a misunderstanding of apacaya (Skt. apacaya), "decrease, diminution" as upacaya (Skt. upacaya) "increase." The Chinese translator rendered apacaya as 欲增, "increase of zeal/desire (chanda, rāga)." Perhaps the text that got transmitted to China and Tibet read upacaya instead of apacaya.

[211] 為自少營不受外施, lit. "for own little activity/business (appakicca, appasamārambha), and not accepting the offerings made by others." The latter would be an interpretation of subharatā.

[212] Cf. M I 13: Tañhi tassa, bhikkhave, bhikkhuno dīgharattaṃ appicchatāya santuṭṭhiyā sallekhāya subharatāya vīriyārambhāya saṃvattissati. Vin III 171: Imāni, bhante, pañca vatthūni anekapariyāyena appicchatāya santuṭṭhiyā sallekhāya dhutatāya pāsādikatāya apacayāya vīriyārambhāya saṃvattanti. (Also Vin I 305.)

[213] Of these 13 dhutas, 11 are mentioned at A III 219–20 (Vin V 192 expands this to 13), the other 2 (refuse robes & 3 robes) are mentioned at A I 38, M I 213, M III 40, Ud 42, Th 1060, 1123. Nidd I 66 lists 8 dhutas. Mil 359 is the earliest work to list all 13.

Two states are connected with robes, namely, the state[214] of the refuse-robe-wearer (paṃsukūlikatta) and the state of the three-robes-wearer (tecīvarikatta).

Five factors are connected with food, namely, the state of the alms-food-eater (piṇḍapātikatta), the state of the continuous-alms-round-goer (sapadānacārikatta), the state of the one-sitting-eater (ekāsanikatta), the state of the measured-food-eater (bhojanemataññutta?), and the state of the one-who-never-eats-a-meal-afterwards (khalupacchābhattikatta). [404c]

Five factors are connected with lodgings: the state of the forest-dweller (āraññikatta), the state of the tree-root-dweller (rukkhamūlikatta), the state of the open-air-dweller (abbhokāsikatta), the state of the charnel-ground-dweller (sosānikatta), the state of the any-mat-user (yathāsanthatikatta).

One kind is connected with energy, namely, the state of the sitter (nesajjikatta).[215]

Q. What is [the state of] the refuse-robe-wearer?

A. The state (bhāva) of being able to undertake (samādāna, adhiṭṭhāna) that is the meaning of "state (-tta?)." Likewise for the other [factors].[216]

Q. What is the undertaking of the state of the refuse-robe-wearer ?

A. The rejection of [robe-] offerings of householders.[217]

Q. What is the undertaking of the state of the three-robes-wearer?

A. The rejection of extra robes.[218]

Q. What is the undertaking of the state of the alms-food-eater?

A. The non-acceptance of others' invitations.[219]

Q. What is the undertaking of the state of the continuous-alms-round-goer?

A. The rejection of skipping (houses) while begging (for alms).[220]

Q. What is the undertaking of the state of the one-sitting-eater?

A. The not sitting down a second time.[221]

Q. What is the undertaking of the state of the measured-food-eater?

A. The rejection of unbridled greed.

Q. What is the undertaking of the state of the one-who-never-eats-a-meal-afterwards?

A. The rejection of the longing [to eat] afterwards.[222]

---

[214] There is no "state" explit here in the Chinese, but the question and explanation below (see footnote @@@This is an explanation of the suffix -tta as part of paṃsukūlikatta @@@), and the Tibetan parallel, in which all ascetic practices end in nyid, = -tta, "-ness/-state," indicate that it is required here.

[215] Cf. D-a III 1013–1016, A-a 50–55: Cīvarapaṭisaṃyuttāni dhutaṅgāni nāma paṃsukūlikaṅgañceva tecīvarikaṅgañca. … Piṇḍapātapaṭisaṃyuttāni pana pañca dhutaṅgāni piṇḍapātikaṅgaṃ, sapadānacārikaṅgaṃ, ekāsanikaṅgaṃ, pattapiṇḍikaṅgaṃ, khalupacchābhattikaṅganti. … Senāsanapaṭisaṃyuttāni pana pañca dhutaṅgāni āraññikaṅgaṃ, rukkhamūlikaṅgaṃ, abbhokāsikaṅgaṃ, sosānikaṅgaṃ, yathāsantatikaṅganti. … Gilānapaccayo pana piṇḍapāteyeva paviṭṭho. … Nesajjikaṅgaṃ bhāvanārāmaariyavaṃsaṃ bhajati. Vuttampi cetaṃ: Pañca senāsane vuttā, pañca āhāranissitā; / Eko vīriyasaṃyutto, dve ca cīvaranissitā ti. Sn-a I 342: Cīvare taṇhaṃ mākāsīti maṃ bhagavā āhā ti cīvarapaṭisaṃyuttāni dve dhutaṅgāni samādiyi paṃsukūlikaṅgañca, tecīvarikaṅgañca. … piṇḍapātapaṭisaṃyuttāni pañca dhutaṅgāni samādiyi piṇḍapātikaṅgaṃ, sapadānacārikaṅgaṃ, ekāsanikaṅgaṃ, pattapiṇḍikaṅgaṃ, khalupacchābhattikaṅganti. … senāsanapaṭisaṃyuttāni cha dhutaṅgāni samādiyi āraññikaṅgaṃ, abbhokāsikaṅgaṃ, rukkhamūlikaṅgaṃ, yathāsanthatikaṅgaṃ, sosānikaṅgaṃ, nesajjikaṅganti.

[216] This is an explanation of the suffix -tta as part of paṃsukūlikatta, etc. With the factors listed above the Chinese translator did not add 性 as a translation of -tta, but the Tibetan translator did so by adding nyid, "-state, -ness, -hood," after each factor, i.e. phyag dar khrod pa nyid, etc. The Tibetan has "Herein, the nature-ness (sabhāvatā) of the factor of the refuse-robe-wearer is the state of the refuse-robe-wearer."

Cf. A-a II 39: Yadidaṃ āraññikattanti yo esa āraññikabhāvo. … Sesapadesupi eseva nayo. Cf. Kaccāyanabyākaraṇa § 360 (Be p.194): Paṃsukūlikassa bhāvo paṃsukūlikattaṃ. A I 38: Addhamidaṃ, bhikkhave, lābhānaṃ yadidaṃ āraññikattaṃ … piṇḍapātikattaṃ … paṃsukūlikattaṃ … tecīvarikattaṃ … M I 213: … bhikkhu attanā ca āraññiko hoti āraññikattassa ca vaṇṇavādī, attanā ca piṇḍapātiko hoti piṇḍapātikattassa ca vaṇṇavādī, …

[217] Vism II.14/p.63: Paṃsukūlikaṅgaṃ tāva gahapatidānacīvaraṃ paṭikkhipāmi, paṃsukūlikaṅgaṃ samādiyāmī ti. Th-a 54: Gahapaticīvaraṃ paṭikkhipitvā paṃsukūlikaṅgasamādānena paṃsukūliko. Cf. Vin-a I 206, V 1140.

[218] Vism II.23/p.64: … tecīvarikaṅgaṃ catutthakacīvaraṃ paṭikkhipāmi, …

[219] Vism II.27/p.66: Piṇḍapātikaṅgampi atirekalābhaṃ paṭikkhipāmi, … Th-a III 53: Saṅghabhattaṃ paṭikkhipitvā piṇḍapātikaṅgasamādānena piṇḍapātiko.

[220] Vism II.31/p.67: … loluppacāraṃ paṭikkhipāmi, …. Sn-a I 118: Sapadānacārīti avokkammacārī anupubbacārī, gharapaṭipāṭiṃ achaḍḍetvā aḍḍhakulañca daliddakulañca nirantaraṃ piṇḍāya pavisamānoti attho. Sn-a I 174: Sapadānanti anugharaṃ. Bhagavā hi sabbajanānuggahatthāya āhārasantuṭṭhiyā ca uccanīcakulaṃ avokkamma piṇḍāya carati.

[221] Vism II.35/p.69: Ekāsanikaṅgampi nānāsanabhojanaṃ paṭikkhipāmi, …

[222] Vism II.43/p.71: Khalupacchābhattikaṅgampi atirittabhojanaṃ paṭikkhipāmi …

Q. What is the undertaking of the state of the forest-dweller?
A. The abandoning of dwelling inside a village.[223]
Q. What is the undertaking of the state of the tree-root-dweller?
A. The rejection of dwelling in a house.[224]
Q. What is the undertaking of the state of the open-air-dweller?
A. The rejection of dwelling in all covered places.[225]
Q. What is the undertaking of the state of the charnel-ground-dweller?
A. The rejection of dwelling in other, different places.[226]
Q. What is the undertaking of the state of the any-mat-user?
A. The rejection of greed for lodgings.[227]
Q. What is the undertaking of the state of the sitter?
A. The rejection of lying down (to sleep).[228]

Refuse-robe-wearer

Q. How to undertake the state of the refuse-robe-wearer?

A. Seeing the disadvantages of seeking and begging, etc., for householder's robes and seeing the benefits of undertaking refuse robes (one resolves): "[From today onwards] I reject [robe-] offerings of householders and undertake the state of the refuse-robe-wearer."

Q. What are the benefits of the undertaking of the state of the refuse-robe-wearer? 404c14

A. [Refuse robes] are alike to wearing householders' robes and are not wanting. They are obtained without depending on others. One is not distressed when losing them. The mind is without greed. They are not stolen by robbers. There are always enough to use.[229] [They can be obtained] without much work. It is a practice of good men. It is an act of effacement. It is connected with the excellent. It is a pleasant dwelling in this life (diṭṭhadhammasukhavihāra). It causes gladness and admiration in people, and makes them undertake it. These are the benefits of the undertaking of refuse robes that are praised by the Buddha.[230]

Q. How many kinds of refuse robes are there? Who is the refuse-robe-wearer? How is it broken?

A. There are two kinds of refuse robes: (1) those which are ownerless, (2) those which are rejected by people. 404c20

Those which one picks up in a cemetery, from a refuse-heap, in a market or a street and cut, dyed, pieced together, sewed to completion and worn—these are called "refuse robes which are ownerless."

Left over cuttings, cattle and mouse-gnawed or burnt by fire or [cloths] thrown away by people, offerings (at a shrine), robes covering corpses, and garments of ascetics—these are called "[refuse robes which are] rejected by people."

Q. Who is a refuse-robe wearer ?
A. When a bhikkhu refuses [robes-] offerings of householders—he is called a "refuse-robe wearer."
Q. How is it broken?
A. When a bhikkhu accepts the [robes-] offerings of house-holders, it is called "breaking."

Three-robes-wearer

Q. How to undertake the state of the three-robes-wearer? 404c25

---

[223] Vism II.47/p.71: Āraññikaṅgampi gāmantasenāsanaṃ paṭikkhipāmi, …

[224] The Chinese has 屋舍, "house," but the explanatory section below, and the Tibetan parallel, has 覆處 "roofed place." Vism II.56/p.74: Rukkhamūlikaṅgampi channaṃ paṭikkhipāmi … Th-a III 53: Channavāsaṃ paṭikkhipitvā rukkhamūlikaṅgasamādānena rukkhamūliko.

[225] Vism II.60/p.75: Abbhokāsikaṅgampi channañca rukkhamūlañca paṭikkhipāmi… Th-a III 53: Channarukkhamūlāni paṭikkhipitvā abbhokāsikaṅgasamādānena abbhokāsiko.

[226] Vism II.64/p.76: Sosānikaṅgampi na susānaṃ paṭikkhipāmi, …

[227] Vism II.69/p.78: Yathāsanthatikaṅgampi senāsanaloluppaṃ paṭikkhipāmi…

[228] Vism II.73/p.78: Nesajjikaṅgampi seyyaṃ paṭikkhipāmi, …

[229] 足用常用 Lit. "enough use, continous use."

Cf. Vism II.21/p.64: paṃsukūlacīvaraṃ nissāya pabbajjā ti vacanato nissayānurūpapaṭipattisabbhāvo, paṭhame ariyavaṃse patiṭṭhānaṃ, ārakkhadukkhābhāvo, aparāyattavuttitā, corabhayena abhayatā, paribhogataṇhāya abhāvo, samaṇasāruppaparikkhāratā, appāni ceva sulabhāni ca tāni ca anavajjānī ti bhagavatā saṃvaṇṇitapaccayatā, pāsādikatā, appicchatādīnaṃ phalanipphatti, sammāpaṭipattiyā anubrūhanaṃ, pacchimāya janatāya diṭṭhānugatiāpādananti.

[230] Cf. A III 219: … vaṇṇitaṃ buddhehi buddhasāvakehi āraññiko hoti. S II 202: Attano ca diṭṭhadhammasukhavihāraṃ sampassamāno, pacchimañca janataṃ anukampamāno appeva nāma pacchimā janatā diṭṭhānugatiṃ āpajjeyyuṃ. Ye kira te ahesuṃ buddhānubuddhasāvakā te dīgharattaṃ āraññikā ceva ahesuṃ āraññikattassa ca vaṇṇavādino…

A. Knowing the disadvantages of the necessary cleaning, protecting and wearing of extra robes and seeing the benefits of the state of the three-robes-wearer, (one resolves): "From today onwards I reject extra robes and undertake the state of the three-robes-wearer."

Q. What are the benefits of the undertaking of the state of the three-robes-wearer?

A. It is a practice of good men;[231] avoidance of hoarding; [being able to] travel far (and light); having little (maintenance) work; contentment with robes (just enough) for sustaining the body; being like a bird flying in the sky, without longing. [405a] It is a practice of good men. It is an act of effacement.

Q. What are the "three robes"? Who is a three-robes-wearer? How is the state of the three-robes-wearer broken?

A. The double-robe (saṅghāṭi), upper-robe (uttarāsaṅga) and under-robe (antaravāsaka)—these are called the "three robes."

Q. Who is a three-robes-wearer?

A. When a bhikkhu does not hoard extra robes—he is called a "three-robes-wearer."

If he accepts a fourth robe, this is "breaking."

Alms-food-eater

Q. How to undertake the state of the alms-food-eater?

A. If he accepts a (meal-) invitation from another, then he disrupts his own work [which is] not for the purpose of pleasing people, and not [for] meeting and sitting with immoral bhikkhus.[232]

Knowing these disadvantages and seeing the benefits of the state of the alms-food-eater (one resolves): "From today onwards I reject (meal) invitations and undertake the state of the alms-food-eater."

Q. What are the benefits of the state of the alms-food-eater?

A. Going and staying according to one's wishes; independence; not longing for offered meals; elimination of indolence; abandoning of pride; having no greed for flavours; helping beings; always being unobstructed in the four directions.[233] It is a practice of good men. It is an act of effacement. 405a10

Q. How many kinds of (meal-) invitations are there? Who undertakes? How is it broken?

A. There are three kinds of (meal-) invitations: (1) general invitation (sammuti-nimantana?), (2) visit invitation, and (3) occasional invitation.[234]

The rejection of these three kinds of invitations is the undertaking of the state of the alms-food-eater.

If one accepts these three kinds of invitations, this is breaking the state of the alms-food-eater.

Continuous-alms-round-goer

Q. How to undertake the state of the continuous-alms-round-goer?

A. If he gets much and excellent [alms while going] in a continuous manner to a place, then he should not go there again. If he again goes there, then he undertakes the normal alms-round. If there is a doubtful place, then he also should avoid it.

Knowing these disadvantages and seeing the benefits of the state of the continuous-alms-round-goer (one resolves): "From today onwards I reject the discontinuous alms-round and undertake the state of the continuous-alms-round-goer."

Q. What are the benefits of the state of the continuous-alms-round-goer ?

A. Through impartiality one helps all. One abandons dislike, envy and wickedness. One avoids wandering far [for alms] and the fault of over-familiarity [with families]. One is not delighting when being called (for alms) and does not desire much speaking. One keeps a distance from people's houses. One abstains from walking hurriedly. Rare as the moon [at full], one appears and people look at one with reverence. It is a practice of good men. It is an act of effacement.[235] 405a20

---

[231] 善人所行. The before last benefit at 405a01 is saying the same 善人所習. The corresponding, first benefit in the Tibetan appears to be corrupt: "possessing the manner of being foremost," 'gor yang pa'i tshul can nyid.

For the benefits, cf. Vism II.25/p.65

[232] 不為悅人. The Tibetan has "one comes under the influence/sway of another," gzhan gyi dbang du gyur pa.

[233] Cf. Sn 42: Cātuddiso appaṭigho ca hoti, santussamāno itarītarena; … eko care khaggavisāṇakappo.

For the benefits, cf. Vism II 29/p.67. Cf. S-a II 171: Piṇḍapātiko pana na akālacārī hoti, na turitacāraṃ gacchati, na parivatteti, apalibuddhova gacchati, tattha ca na bahusaṃsayo hoti.

[234] 食請, 就請, 遇請 or 過請. It is unclear what these correspond to in the Pali. Cf. Vism III.27/p.66. Cf. Vin-a 1267–71. The Tibetan is quite differerent here.

[235] Cf. Vism II.33/p.68: kulesu niccanavakatā, candūpamatā, kulamaccherappahānaṃ, samānukampitā, kulūpakādīnavābhāvo, avhānānabhinandanā, abhihārena anatthikatā, appicchatādīnaṃ anulomavuttitāti.

Q. What is continuous alms-round? Who undertakes it? How is it broken?

A. When a bhikkhu enters a village, he begs for food starting from the last household and continuing (without skipping a house) to the first[236]—this is called "continuous alms-round."

Q. How is it broken?

A. Skipping—this is called "breaking."

One-sitting-eater

Q. How to undertake the state of the one-sitting-eater?

A. [Eating] in two sittings, repeatedly sitting down [to eat], repeatedly receiving food, and repeatedly washing the bowl—the opposite of that is called "eating at one sitting."[237]

Knowing these disadvantages [of eating at two sittings, etc.] and seeing the benefits of the state of the one-sitting-eater, one should undertake: "From today onwards I reject eating at two sittings and undertake the state of the one-sitting-eater."

Q. What are the benefits of the state of the one-sitting-eater?

A. [One takes] neither too much nor too little. One is not greedy for improper offerings. One dwells with few ills and afflictions, dwells without disruption of one's work, and in comfort (phāsu-bhāva). It is a practice of good men. It is an act of effacement. This has been praised by the Buddhas.[238]

Q. Who undertakes eating at one sitting?[239] What are the limits? How is it broken? [405b]

A. There are three kinds of limit: limited by sitting, limited by water, limited by food.[240]

What is "sitting-limit"? When, after one has eaten, one [does not] sit again [—this is called "limited by sitting."]

What is "limited by water"? When, after one receives water and washes one's bowl, one does not eat again—this is called "limited by water."

What is "limited by food"? When, regarding a morsel of food there arises the perception "[this is] the last one," and one swallows it, one does eat again—this is called "limited by food."

If a bhikkhu sits twice—except for [taking] water, medicine and so on—he breaks the state of the one-sitting-eater—this is called "breaking."[241] 405b05

Measured-food-eater

Q. How to undertake the state of the measured-food-eater?[242]

---

[236] 從最後家以為初次. Tibetan: "Going continuously is going (begging) for alms to houses [and] going continuously starting from the first house."

Cf. Vin-a I 206: Sapadānacārikoti loluppacāraṃ paṭikkhipitvā sapadānacārikadhutaṅgavasena sapadānacāriko hoti; gharapaṭipāṭiyā bhikkhāya pavisati. Sp-ṭ II 6 (Be): taṇhāvasena gharapaṭipāṭiṃ atikkamitvā bhikkhāya caraṇaṃ, taṃ paṭikkhipitvāti attho. Tenāha gharapaṭipāṭiyā bhikkhāya pavisatī ti. Sn-a I 118: Sapadānacārī ti avokkammacārī anupubbacārī, gharapaṭipāṭiṃ achaḍḍetvā aḍḍhakulañca daliddakulañca nirantaraṃ piṇḍāya pavisamāno ti attho.

[237] The Chinese adds here: "This is a practice of good men. This is an act of effacement," (善人所行是業無疑) but this belongs in the "benefits" sections, and somehow must have been misplaced here. It is not found in the Tibetan.

[238] Moved here from 405b04; see fn. .@@ The Chinese has "This has been praised@@@

[239] There is no answer to this question in the Chinese. The Tibetan version shows this question and its answers should come after the question on the three kinds of limit. The Chinese of this section is garbled; see fn.@@ The Chinese has "This has been praised@@@

[240] Cf. Vism II.36/p.69: … Ayañhi bhojanapariyantiko nāma hoti. Muduko yāva āsanā na vuṭṭhāti tāva bhuñjituṃ labhati. So hi udakapariyantiko vā hoti yāva pattadhovanaṃ na gaṇhāti tāva bhuñjanato, āsanapariyantiko vā yāva na vuṭṭhāti tāva bhuñjanato.

[241] The Chinese has "This has been praised by the Buddhas. This is called "food-limit." (諸佛所嘆此謂食邊.) The first sentence is earlier found at end of the benefits of the state of the refuse-robe-wearer at 404c18 and has been moved accordingly. The latter sentence is already at the end of the last paragraph. It would be a corruption of "This is called breaking" as found in the explanations of the other dhutas above and below. However, judging from the Tibetan, it appears that the answers to the questions "How many kinds of eating at one sitting are there? Who eats at one sitting? What is limited by food? By what is the state of the one-sitting-eater broken?" are garbled and partly lost in the Chinese.

[242] Judging from the Chinese and Tibetan translations and explanations, 節量食 and zas chog pa pa do not correspond to the Visuddhimagga's pattapiṇḍika, 'bowl-food-eater,' or 'eating-from-the-bowl-only,'' although they are found are in the same place in the list of dhutaguṇas.

節量食 does not correspond to Skt. nāmantika/nāmatika, "wearing a felt garment." In correspondence tables of the Mahāvyutpatti, etc, 節量食 is wrongly corresponded to Skt. nāmantika/nāmatika, "wearing a felt/woolen garment." (See, e.g., Mahāvyutpatti, 翻譯名義大集, Digital version, Dharma Drum Buddhist College, Taipei 2011: "Entry Key: 1130

A. If one eats excessively, one increases physical drowsiness and heaviness.[243] One continuously gives rise to greed, desiring to [fill one's] abdomen without satiation. Knowing these disadvantages and seeing the benefits of the state of the measured-food-eater, [one should resolve]: "From today onwards I reject unbridled greed and undertake the state of the measured-food-eater."

Q. What are the benefits of the state of measured-food-eater ?

A. One measures what one eats; one is not unbridled in [filling] the stomach; one knows that much eating increases fatigue (kilamatha) and therefore does not desire [much food]; the getting rid of greed; the subsiding of illness; the abandoning of indolence; it is a practice of good men; and it is an act of effacement.

Q. What is measured food? How is it broken?

A. When one takes a meal, one should consider the amount needed. By always targetting [the right amount] and not taking extra food, well knowing the measure, one eliminates excess. This is called "measured food."

If one does not do so, it is broken.

One-who-never-eats-a-meal-afterwards

Q. How to undertake the state of one-who-never-eats-a-meal-afterwards?

A. One abandons expectation and avoids extra food. Knowing the disadvantages [of expectation, etc.] and seeing the benefits of the undertaking of the state of one-who-never-eats-a-meal-afterwards [and resolves]: "From today onwards I reject extra food and undertake the state of one-who-never-eats-a-meal-afterwards."

Q. What are the benefits of the state of one-who-never-eats-a-meal-afterwards?

A. One abandons greed; desires moderation; protects the body; avoids hoarding food; ceases to search (for food again); does not have to tell others (to offer food); one does not follow one's wishes; it is a practice of good men; and an act of effacement. 405b17

Q. How many kinds of [no food] after time are there? Who undertakes? How is it broken?

A. There are two kinds of [never food] afterwards: limited by immoderation, limited by taking.

Q. What is "limited by immoderation"?

A. If one accepts extra food [or] one obtains another (meal) invitation, [one] is blameworthy and one should not eat again.[244]

Q. What is "limited by taking"?

A. Having eaten twenty-one lumps of food, one should not take again.

The one-who-never-eats-a-meal-afterwards rejects extra food.

If he takes extra food, he breaks the state of one-who-never-eats-a-meal-afterwards.

Forest-dweller

Q. How to undertake the state of the forest-dweller? 405b22

A. Inside the village there is commotion; mind-consciousness contacts the five sense-objects (visaya) and the mind gives rise to desire (rāga).[245] When one dwells in a commotious place, there is going and coming [of people], and disorderly movement. Knowing these disadvantages and seeing the benefits of the state of the forest-dweller [one resolves]: "From today onwards I reject dwelling in the village and undertake the state of the forest-dweller."

Q. What are the benefits of the state of the forest-dweller?

A. Outside the village, mind-consciousness [does not] contact the five sense-objects (visaya).[246] One sees 【梵】nāmatika (nāmantika) … 【中】節量食 … 【藏】'phying ba pa …".) Presumably a list of dhutaguṇa of one school or period was compared with a list of another school or period, and it was wrongly assumed that 節量食 and nāmantika corresponded because they are found in the same place in the lists. Nāmantika is not mentioned as a dhutaguṇa in Pali works. Perhaps it is the wearing of a refuse-robe made of coarse hemp, sāṇa paṃsukūla; see S II 20.

---

[243] Cf. D III 255: Tassa evaṃ hoti ahaṃ kho gāmaṃ vā nigamaṃ vā piṇḍāya caranto alatthaṃ lūkhassa vā paṇītassa vā bhojanassa yāvadatthaṃ pāripūriṃ, tassa me kāyo garuko akammañño, māsācitaṃ maññe, handāhaṃ nipajjāmīti. So nipajjati na vīriyaṃ ārabhati … Vism XIV.145/p.465: Kāyassa lahubhāvo kāyalahutā. … Tā kāyacittagarubhāvavūpasamalakkhaṇā, … Vism XIV.64/p.448: … rūpassa lahutā, rūpānaṃ garubhāvavinodanarasā …

[244] 若受長食得別請罪不當更食

[245] Cf. S-a II 170: … diṭṭhadhammasukhavihāro nāma āraññikasseva labbhati, no gāmantavāsino. Gāmantasmiñhi vasanto dārakasaddaṃ suṇāti, asappāyarūpāni passati, asappāye sadde suṇāti, tenassa anabhirati uppajjati. Āraññiko pana gāvutaṃ vā aḍḍhayojanaṃ vā atikkamitvā araññaṃ ajjhogāhetvā vasanto dīpibyagghasīhādīnaṃ sadde suṇāti, yesaṃ savanapaccayā amānusikāsavanarati uppajjati.

[246] Ammended in accordance with the Tibetan text's "avoidance of disagreeable sense-objects." The Chinese fully repeats the above: "… the mind gives rise to desire … disorderly movement." Cf. Vism II.54/p.73: Pantasenāsanavāsino cassa

[good friends endowed with] the qualities of the ten topics of speech (dasa kathāvatthūni);[247] [enjoyment of] the supreme beauty [of nature]; gods and humans are pleased; one does not delight in socializing (saṃsagga); one delights in attaining the happiness of seclusion; it is congenial to meditation due to little sound (in the forest);[248] it is a practice of good men; and it is an act of effacement.[249]

Q. What is the limit of a forest lodging? Who undertakes? [405c] How is it broken?

A. Within (a distance of) five-hundred bow-lengths[250]—taking four forearm-lengths of an average man (as a bow-length)—outside the village wall and away from the extremities of surrounding habitations—this is the limit of a forest lodging.

The one who avoids dwelling inside a village is called "forest-dweller."

If one dwells inside a village, one breaks the state of the forest-dweller.

Tree-root-dweller

Q. How to undertake the state of the tree-root-dweller?

A. One gives up [dwelling] in a roofed place[251] and one does not amass livestock [etc.]. The desire to build and maintain, the requesting (help to maintain)—knowing these disadvantages and seeing the benefits of the state of the tree-root-dweller [one resolves]: "From today onwards I reject roofed places and undertake the state of the tree-root-dweller."

Q. What are the benefits of the state of the tree-root-dweller?

A. Comformity with the dependence;[252] no interaction with the world; avoidance of delight in work; asappāyarūpādayo cittaṃ na vikkhipanti.

---

[247] Cf. Vism I.49/p.19: Dasakathāvatthuguṇasamannāgato kalyāṇamitto … A V 129 Dasayimāni … kathāvatthūni. Appicchakathā, santuṭṭhikathā, pavivekakathā, asaṃsaggakathā, vīriyārambhakathā, sīlakathā, samādhikathā, paññākathā, vimuttikathā, vimuttiñāṇadassanakathāti. A V 15: Kathañca, bhikkhave, senāsanaṃ pañcaṅgasamannāgataṃ hoti? Idha, bhikkhave, senāsanaṃ nātidūraṃ hoti nāccāsannaṃ gamanāgamanasampannaṃ divā appākiṇṇaṃ rattiṃ appasaddaṃ appanigghosaṃ appaḍaṃsamakasavātātapasarīsapasamphassaṃ; tasmiṃ kho pana senāsane viharantassa appakasirena uppajjanti cīvarapiṇḍapātasenāsanagilānapaccayabhesajjaparikkhārā; tasmiṃ kho pana senāsane therā bhikkhū viharanti bahussutā āgatāgamā dhammadharā vinayadharā mātikādharā; te kālena kālaṃ upasaṅkamitvā paripucchati paripañhati idaṃ, bhante, kathaṃ, imassa ko attho'ti; tassa te āyasmanto avivaṭañceva vivaranti anuttānīkatañca uttāniṃ karonti anekavihitesu ca kaṅkhāṭhāniyesu dhammesu kaṅkhaṃ paṭivinodenti.

[248] Cf. M III 13: Taggha, bho ānanda, veḷuvanaṃ ramaṇīyañceva appasaddañca appanigghosañca vijanavātaṃ manussarāhasseyyakaṃ paṭisallānasāruppaṃ, yathā taṃ bhavantehi jhāyīhi jhānasīlīhi. Jhāyino ceva bhavanto jhānasīlino ca. A IV 87: Sagahaṭṭhapabbajitehi kho ahaṃ, moggallāna, saṃsaggaṃ na vaṇṇayāmi. Yāni ca kho tāni senāsanāni appasaddāni appanigghosāni vijanavātāni manussarāhasseyyakāni paṭisallānasāruppāni tathārūpehi senāsanehi saṃsaggaṃ vaṇṇayāmī ti. Cf. Sn 340: Mitte bhajassu kalyāṇe, pantañca sayanāsanaṃ; / vivittaṃ appanigghosaṃ, mattaññū hohi bhojane. Cf. Th 577, Vin I 38, D III 37, A V 15.

Vibh 251: Appasaddanti santike cepi … dūre cepi senāsanaṃ hoti, tañca anākiṇṇaṃ gahaṭṭhehi pabbajitehi. Tena taṃ appasaddaṃ. Appanigghosanti yadeva taṃ appasaddaṃ tadeva taṃ appanigghosaṃ. Yadeva taṃ appanigghosaṃ tadeva taṃ vijanavātaṃ. Yadeva taṃ vijanavātaṃ tadeva taṃ manussarāhasseyyakaṃ. Yadeva taṃ manussarāhasseyyakaṃ tadeva taṃ paṭisallānasāruppaṃ.

[249] A III 219: yvāyaṃ āraññiko appicchataṃyeva nissāya santuṭṭhiṃyeva nissāya sallekhaṃyeva nissāya pavivekaṃyeva nissāya idamatthitaṃ-yeva nissāya āraññiko hoti, ayaṃ imesaṃ pañcannaṃ āraññikānaṃ aggo ….

[250] 五百弓內. Vism II.49/p.72: Araññaṃ pana vinayapariyāye tāva ṭhapetvā gāmañca gāmūpacārañca sabbametaṃ araññanti (Vin III 46) vuttaṃ. Abhidhammapariyāye nikkhamitvā bahi indakhīlā, sabbametaṃ araññanti (Vibh 251) vuttaṃ. Imasmiṃ pana suttantikapariyāye āraññakaṃ nāma senāsanaṃ pañcadhanusatikaṃ pacchimanti (Vin IV 183) idaṃ lakkhaṇaṃ. Taṃ āropitena ācariyadhanunā parikkhittassa gāmassa indakhīlato aparikkhittassa paṭhamaleḍḍupātato paṭṭhāya yāva vihāraparikkhepā minitvā vavatthapetabbaṃ. Kkh 81: Tattha āraññakānīti sabbapacchimāni āropitena ācariyadhanunā gāmassa indakhīlato paṭṭhāya pañcadhanusatappamāṇe padese katasenāsanāni. Sace pana aparikkhitto gāmo hoti, parikkhepārahaṭṭhānato paṭṭhāya minetabbaṃ. … Kkh-pṭ 36 (Be): āraññakasenāsanassa āsannagharassa dutiyaleḍḍupātato paṭṭhāya pañcadhanusatantaratā pamāṇanti.

Perhaps the original had two alternative explanations, i.e. (1) (everything) outside the village wall and village surroundings, and (2) 500 bowlengths outside the village wall. But both the Tibetan and Chinese suggest that the limit is 500 bow-lengths from the village's extremities. Taking 50cm for a forearm's length/cubit, this would be 1 kilometer distance from the village.

A similar definition for this dhutaṅga is in the Mahāsāṃghika-vinaya, 摩訶僧祇律, at T22n1425_p0389b04–05: "Forest-dweller: 500 bow-lengths outside the wall of town [or] village—a bow-length being five forearm-lengths long—[he who stays] in the uninhabited [area] within that—this one is called forest-dweller."

阿練若處若處住者若離城邑聚落 五百弓弓長五肘於其中間無人住. 是名阿練若處. Cf. T22n1425_p0323b22–24.

[251] Vism II.56/p.74: Rukkhamūlikaṅgampi channaṃ paṭikkhipāmi … Th-a III 53: Channavāsaṃ paṭikkhipitvā …

[252] Taking the reading 依樂可受, lit. "a dependence happily accepted" instead of 依樂可愛, "a dependence happily company of the gods; abandoning of avarice about dwellings; avoidance of attachment; it is a practice of good men; and it is an act of effacement.

Q. What is the [area of the] tree one should dwell? What trees should be avoided? Who undertakes? How is it broken?

A. The area on which the tree's shadow falls during the middle of the day and the area where the leaves of the tree fall when there is no wind are, this is [the area] to be dwelt in.

One avoids dangerous decaying trees, rotten trees with hollows and trees with spirits.

One who avoids roofed places is the one who undertakes dwelling under a tree.

If one stays in a roofed place, one breaks the state of the tree-root-dweller.

Open-air-dweller

Q. How to undertake the state of the open-air-dweller?

A. One does not want to dwell in covered places, at tree roots, and in places with livestock and goods.

Knowing these disadvantages and seeing the benefits of the state of the open-air-dweller [one resolves]: "From today onwards I reject unwanted lodgings[253] and undertake the state of the open-air-dweller."

Q. What are the benefits of the state of the open-air-dweller?

A. One does not dwell in unwanted lodgings; abandons of sloth and torpor; one is like a forest-deer[254] which goes wherever it wishes, without being pursued and without longing; it is a practice of good men; and it is an act of effacement.

Q. Who undertakes? How is it broken?

A. One who rejects dwelling under roof-covers and at tree roots is one who undertakes dwelling in the open air.

If one dwells under roof-covers and at tree roots, one breaks the state of the open-air-dweller.

Charnel-ground-dweller 405c19

Q. How to undertake the state of charnel-ground-dweller?

A. In other places there is much heedlessness and no arising of urgency—knowing these disadvantages and seeing the benefits of the state of the charnel-ground-dweller [one resolves]: "From today onwards I reject other places and undertake the state of charnel-ground-dweller."

Q. What are the benefits of the state of charnel-ground-dweller?

A. The obtaining of recollection of death; acquiring the sign of the foul (asubha-nimitta); acquiring the respect and esteem of non-humans; no arising of heedlessness; dispelling of sensual-desire; much urgency (saṃvega); not fearing what is fearful; seeing the nature[255] of the body; elimination of the perception of permanence; it is a practice of good men; and it is an act of effacement. 405c24

Q. Where should one dwell? How should one go? How is it broken?

A. If one desires, at first one dwells at such a charnel-ground where there are always people, always delighted in."

---

In accordance with the Pali and Tibetan, 依, should refer to nissaya, and 樂可愛 to anurūpa, of nissayānurūpapaṭipattisabbhāvo. The Chinese translator did not completely understand this complex compound. Bapat (1964, pp.xxvii–xxviii) conjectures "… consonance with the (Four) Reliances, mentioned with regard to the practices of wearing dusty rags, of living on alms, and of living under a tree is found only in the Pali and Tibetan versions. It is not found in the Chinese version. … Can we surmise that, in course of time, the Buddhist School to which the Chinese version belonged did not attach much importance to these conditions …?" Although, indeed, the dependences are missing from the first two, in the third is found in the Chinese. Thus, the reason for the omission in the first two is simply the inability of the Chinese translator to understand the meaning of the complex Pali compound and therefore deciding not to translate it.

Vism II.58/p.74: rukkhamūlasenāsanaṃ nissāya pabbajjāti vacanato nissayānurūpapaṭipattisabbhāvo, appāni ceva sulabhāni ca tāni ca anavajjānīti bhagavatā saṃvaṇṇitapaccayatā, abhiṇhaṃ tarupaṇṇavikāradassanena aniccasaññāsamuṭṭhāpanatā, senāsanamaccherakammārāmatānaṃ abhāvo, devatāhi sahavāsitā, appicchatādīnaṃ anulomavuttitāti.

[253] 斷不樂處. The Tibetan and the Vism instead have "… I refuse roof-cover and tree-root." Vism II. 60 "… channañca rukkhumūlañca paṭikkhipāmi." Compare the "Who undertakes … broken?" section at 405c17 below, which is in accordance with the Tibetan and Vism.

[254] Sn 39: Migo araññamhi yathā abaddho yen' icchakaṃ gacchati gocarāya.

[255] 觀身空寂. Lit. "seeing the emptiness of the body," but the Tibetan quotation and Vism II.67 have kāyasabhāvadassana. The characters 空寂 can have the sense of "the reality of the lack of inherent existence of all things," and also of abhāva, "nullity, non-existence," see DBB. Perhaps the Chinese translator misunderstood kāyasabhāva as kāyassa-abhāva, "the non-existence/emptiness of the body."

much wailing, always smoke and fire. One should inquire beforehand. If there are other quieter places, then one may go to dwell there.[256]

If a bhikkhu dwells in the charnel-ground, he should not build a hut or put a bed and seat. He should not sit or stand upwind or downwind (from corpses).[257] He should not fall into deep sleep.[258] He should not eat fish. He should not drink milk or buttermilk or eat sesame-flour or touch cooked or raw meat. [406a] He should not stay inside a house. He should not put away his begging-bowl.

When people come (for a funeral), he takes his sitting-cloth and other belongings (and goes elsewhere). When he goes and arrives at a charnel-ground which is suitable as his dwelling place, it is like he throws his belongings afar.[259] By dawn-rise, he gathers his robes and utensils and returns to the monastery, avoiding other dwelling places. This is called "[dwelling and going to a] charnel-ground."

If he dwells in any other place, it is called "breaking."

Any-mat-user

Q. How to undertake the state of the any-mat-user?

A. One does not wish [dwellings] which people are greedy for and one does not trouble another by making him shift [from a dwelling]—knowing these disadvantages and seeing the benefits of the state of the any-mat-user [one resolves]: "From today onwards I reject greed for dwelling places and undertake the state of any-mat-user."

Q. What are the benefits of the state of the any-mat-user?

A. Contentment with the place [one gets]; desire of withdrawnness;[260] abandoning of greed; being respected and esteem by others; one dwells always embracing (others) with compassion; it is a practice of good men; and it is an act of effacement. 406a08

Q. Who undertakes? How is it broken?

A. The one who rejects longing for dwelling places—he is called "any-mat-user."

If one goes [to stay in] a wished for place, it is called "breaking."

Sitter

Q. How to undertake the state of the sitter?

A. Knowing the disadvantages of coming under the sway of[261] sleep and idleness and seeing the benefits of the state of the sitter [one resolves]: "From today onwards I reject lying down to sleep[262] and undertake the state of sitter."

Q. What are the benefits of the state of the sitter.

A. Abandoning of the grounds for idleness (kusītavatthu);[263] dispelling of avarice (macchera) on account of the body; dispassion for the pleasure of reclining;[264] 406a14 little attachment to sleep; always having [256] Cf. Vism II.66/p.77. Cf. A III 268 Asuci, duggandhā, sappaṭibhayā, vāḷānaṃ amanussānaṃ āvāso, bahuno janassa ārodanā—ime kho, bhikkhave, pañca ādīnavā sivathikāya.

---

[257] Cf. 424c26 and 425a29. Vism VI.26/p.182: Paṭivātānuvātañca pahātabbaṃ. Paṭivāte ṭhitassa hi kuṇapagandhena ubbāḷhassa cittaṃ vidhāvati. Anuvāte ṭhitassa sace tattha adhivatthā amanussā honti, te kujjhitvā anatthaṃ karonti.

[258] 臥時不熟, "time of lying down/sleeping not completely/ripening." The Vism and Tibetan version do not have anything corresponding to this.

[259] 往到塚間當其住處如擲物遠… The Chinese is hard to follow. The Tibetan version is quite different: "When a large crowd of people comes, he should take his seat, robes and utensils and go [to another place] not too far from the burning. When he is staying in a charnel-ground enclosed by a wall, and he goes back there again by dawn, he does not have to take his seat, robes and utensils."

Perhaps the original of this passage stated that if the robes are in an enclosed, presumably private and guarded, charnel ground, i.e., a safe place, that he can leave his belongings there as long as he returns before dawn (so that he is not separated from his robes at dawn, which is a nissaggiya pācittiya offence).

[260] 寂靜, samatha, santi or viveka, but here is would correspond to paṭisallāna, as in the Tibetan parallel.

[261] 於所住處睡眠懈怠 = "sleep and idleness in the dwelling-place," which does not make sense because one can also sleep and be idle outside. The Tibetan instead has "coming under the sway of sloth, torpor and idleness." Dbang du 'gro ba = vasagata, vasaṃ gacchati, etc. Perhaps the Chinese understood vasa-gata as (ā)vāsa-gata, or 所住處 is a corruption or a copyist's "correction" of 自在.

[262] 惛臥, lit. "stupor of lying down," but below, at 406a15, 睡臥, "lying down to sleep" is used. The Tibetan and Vism indicate that just "lying down" is intended.

[263] 生怠處. Cf. the eight ground of idleness, 八懶處, at 448a15–16.

[264] 染觸樂. The Chinese translator misunderstood passasukha, "pleasure of reclining" as phassasukha. The Tibetan has 'phres pa'i bde ba la ma chags pa, "is dispassionate to the pleasure of reclining/reposing."

much seclusion (paṭisallāna) and the ability to practise excellence in jhānas; it is a practice of good men; and it is an act of effacement.

Q. Who undertakes? How is it broken?

A. One who rejects lying down to sleep [is one who undertakes the state of the sitter].

If one lies down, it is called "breaking."

Expedients

Q. What are the expedients[265] regarding the state of the refuse-robe-wearer?[266]

A. If, as an expedient, one accepts robes made of hemp, cotton, silk and wool, etc.,[267] which are offered by house-holders, then one does not break the state of refuse-robe-wearer.

Q. What are the expedients regarding the state of the three-robes-wearer?

A. Extra robe (cloth) that is stored for ten days at most,[268] the month's-expectation robe,[269] kaṭhina robe,[270] and also extraordinary robe;[271] [cloth-covers] for protecting lodgings (senāsana), spreads (paccattharaṇa); cloth for covering sores (kaṇḍupaṭicchādi), napkins (mukhapuñchana), rain-bath cloths (vassikasāṭika) which are undetermined and unassigned:[272] if one [accepts these] as an expedient, one does break the state of the three-robes-wearer.

Cf. Vism II.75/p.79: … seyyasukhaṃ passasukhaṃ middhasukhaṃ anuyutto viharatī ti vuttassa cetaso vinibandhassa upacchedanaṃ, sabbakammaṭṭhānānuyogasappāyatā, pāsādikairiyāpathatā, vīriyārambhānukūlatā, sammāpaṭipattiyā anubrūhananti.

[265] 方便 = upāya; Tibetan skabs phye ba = skabs, "time, occasion, opportunity" + phye ba "differentiation, distinction." Perhaps it corresponds to accāyika? Vism II.19/p.64, etc. has some of these "expedients" in the vidhāna, "directions," sections of the dhutaguṇas, but although vidhāna can mean expedient in Sanskrit (see MW), other directions that are not expediences are also given in these sections in Vism.

[266] 云何離糞掃衣, lit. "what is excempt from refuse-robes" but the answer, the Tibetan, and the questions to the other dhutaguṇas (406a21, etc) indicate that it should be 云何糞掃衣方便.

[267] Khoma, kappāsa, koseyya, kambala. Cf. Vin I 58: Paṃsukūlacīvaraṃ nissāya pabbajjā, tattha te yāvajīvaṃ ussāho karaṇīyo; atirekalābho khomaṃ, kappāsikaṃ, koseyyaṃ, kambalaṃ, sāṇaṃ, bhaṅgaṃ.

[268] This refers to the extra robe or robe-material (atirekacīvara) that can be kept for ten days at the most outside of the kathina season, as described in the first nissaggiya pācittiya rule in the Pātimokkha; see Vin III 196: Niṭṭhitacīvarasmiṃ bhikkhunā ubbhatasmiṃ kathine dasāhaparamaṃ atirekacīvaraṃ dhāretabbaṃ, taṃ atikkāmayato nissaggiyaṃ pācittiyaṃ.

"Extra robe" is any robe (-material) that is not determined or assigned. Vin III 196: Atirekacīvaraṃ nāma anadhiṭṭhitaṃ avikappitaṃ.

Tibetan: "When there is an expectation of a supplement (of robe material), to keep/keeping an extra robe for ten days."

The first part of this refers to the third nissaggiya pācittiya, while the second part to the first, see above. The Tibetan translator misunderstood the original. See the note on the Chinese version in the next fn.

Vin III 199: Niṭṭhitacīvarasmiṃ bhikkhunā ubbhatasmiṃ kathine bhikkhuno paneva akālacīvaraṃ uppajjeyya, … no cassa pāripūri, māsaparamaṃ tena bhikkhunā taṃ cīvaraṃ nikkhipitabbaṃ ūnassa pāripūriyā satiyā paccāsāya. …

[269] 月望: "month's-expectation" or "full-moon." This would refer to the "untimely'' robe (akālacīvara) in the 3d nissaggiya pācittiya (see preceding footnote) which can be be kept for a month at most (māsaparamaṃ) if there is an expectation (paccāsāya) that enough robe-cloth will be obtained within that month to complete the whole robe.

[270] The Tibetan makes no mention of kaṭhina robes. One of the five kaṭhina season benefits is that a bhikkhu can accept as much robe as he needs without having to determine or assign it; see Vin I 253 and Vin-a 1106: Yāvadatthacīvaranti yāvattakena cīvarena attho, tāvattakaṃ anadhiṭṭhitaṃ avikappitaṃ kappissatīti attho.

[271] 長衣 = atirekacīvara, "extra-robe" but this type is already given. The Chinese would have misunderstood acceka of accekacīvara, "urgent/extraordinary robe" as atireka. Accekacīvara can also be stored for 10 days at most and would fit in this list of exceptions. For accekacīvara, see Nissaggiya pācittiya no. 28 (Vin III 260): Dasāhānāgataṃ kattikatemāsikapuṇṇamaṃ bhikkhuno paneva accekacīvaraṃ uppajjeyya, accekaṃ maññamānena bhikkhunā paṭiggahetabbaṃ, paṭiggahetvā yāva cīvarakālasamayaṃ nikkhipitabbaṃ. Tato ce uttari nikkhipeyya, nissaggiyaṃ pācittiyaṃ.

[272] These are all types of allowable extra robes that can be temporarily used by a tecīvarika if they are not determined or assigned (anadhiṭṭhitaṃ avikappitaṃ; see Vin-a 1106 quoted 2 footnotes @@ above). The Tibetan has "determined [and] assigned" but these robes can't be determined nor assigned because then ownership is assumed directly or indirectly and the bhikkhu would have more than three robes and would therefore break this dhutaguṇa. For "determination" and "dual ownership" of robes, see Ṭhanissaro Bhikkhu, Buddhist Monastic Code I, Chapter 7.1 and 8.6, and Pācittiya 59 (Vin IV 121).

Cf. Vin I 296: Anujānāmi, bhikkhave, ticīvaraṃ adhiṭṭhātuṃ na vikappetuṃ; vassikasāṭikaṃ vassānaṃ cātumāsaṃ adhiṭṭhātuṃ, tato paraṃ vikappetuṃ; nisīdanaṃ … paccattharaṇaṃ adhiṭṭhātuṃ na vikappetuṃ; kaṇḍuppaṭicchādiṃ yāvaābādhā adhiṭṭhātuṃ tato paraṃ vikappetuṃ; mukhapuñchanacoḷaṃ … parikkhāracoḷaṃ adhiṭṭhātuṃ na vikappetunti.

Q. What are the expedients regarding the state of the alms-food-eater?

A. If as an expedient one accepts a Community-meal (saṅghabhatta), a constant-meal (niccabhatta), a ticket-meal (salākabhatta), a lunar-fortnight-meal (pakkhikabhatta), an observance-day-meal (uposathabhatta), a group-meal (gaṇabhatta) and of a monastery-meal (vihārabhatta),[273] one does not break the state of the alms-food-eater. But if one sees the disadvantage of these, one should reject them.[274]

Q. What are the expedients regarding the state of the continuous-alms-round-goer?

A. When there is an elephant or horse, etc.,[275] at the gate, or when there is a dispute or something shameful [going on],[276] etc.—when one sees such [things] and others, one may avoid.[277] When one sees [a house of] outcastes (caṇḍāla),[278] or when [there is a legal act of] overturning the bowl [to a lay person],[279] or when there is a trainee-family,[280] or when one accompanies one's preceptor, teacher, or a visiting bhikkhu—when for such and other expedients one skips, one does not break the state of the continuous-alms-round-goer.

Q. What are the expedients regarding the state of the one-sitting-eater?

A. If in the course of taking a meal at the proper time, one sees an elephant, a horse, a cow or a snake (coming), or rain (is coming), or if one sees one's preceptor coming, or one's teacher, or a visiting bhikkhu, and one stands up[281] as an expedient, and after having stood up, eats again, one does not break the state of the one-sitting-eater.

The states of the measured-food-eater and the one-who-never-eats-a-meal-afterwards are without expedients. [406b]

Q. What are the expedients regarding the state of the forest-dweller?

A. If one lives inside a village (gāmanta) as an expedient with regards undertaking precepts, confession

---

[273] Vin I 95: Piṇḍiyālopabhojanaṃ nissāya pabbajjā. Tattha te yāvajīvaṃ ussāho karaṇīyo. Atirekalābho saṅghabhattaṃ, uddesabhattaṃ, nimantanaṃ, salākabhattaṃ, pakkhikaṃ, uposathikaṃ, pāṭipadikaṃ. Vin IV 75: niccabhattaṃ salākabhattaṃ … Vism II.27/p.66: Tena pana piṇḍapātikena saṅghabhattaṃ, uddesabhattaṃ, nimantanabhattaṃ, … vihārabhattaṃ, dhurabhattaṃ, vārakabhattanti etāni cuddasa bhattāni na sāditabbāni. Sace pana saṅghabhattaṃ gaṇhathatiādinā nayena avatvā amhākaṃ gehe saṅgho bhikkhaṃ gaṇhātu, tumhepi bhikkhaṃ gaṇhathā"ti vatvā dinnāni honti, tāni sādituṃ vaṭṭanti.

[274] It is not clear what is meant with this. The Tibetan has: "Only when seeing the disadvantage of illness ('hon), it is to be partaken of," i.e. one may only partake of these meals when one is ill.

[275] Cf. M I 10: … bhikkhu paṭisaṅkhā yoniso caṇḍaṃ hatthiṃ parivajjeti, caṇḍaṃ assaṃ parivajjeti, caṇḍaṃ goṇaṃ parivajjeti, caṇḍaṃ kukkuraṃ parivajjeti, ahiṃ …

[276] E.g. people in the house are nude, engaged in sexual activity, going to the toilet, etc.

[277] Cf. Vism II.31/p.67: Tena pana sapadānacārikena gāmadvāre ṭhatvā parissayābhāvo sallakkhetabbo. Yassā racchāya vā gāme vā parissayo hoti, taṃ pahāya aññattha carituṃ vaṭṭati.

[278] The Tibetan instead has "if eating the food of a family (kula) is inappropriate/unsuitable (akappiya?)" (zas bzar mi rung ba'i khyim). This could refer to families who offer unallowable meats such as dog-meat and meat of an animal killed for the purpose of giving it to monks, such as could be done by a butcher. In Pali literature the caṇḍāla is associated with the profession of removing/scavenging corpses (J-a III 195: chavachaḍḍakacaṇḍālā; Nidd-a II 293: Caṇḍāloti chavacaṇḍālo.) They also were notorious for eating dogs (J-a V 449: Chavakasamasadisanti sunakhamaṃsakhādacaṇḍālena samaṃ sadisaṃ. J-a IV 380: … sapākacaṇḍālassa pana ko deti,) and other base foods (Ap-a 335: sunakhocchiṭṭhabhattabhuñjanakacaṇḍālakule jātoti. J-a II 81: Evaṃ uppanno hi piṇḍapāto mama sāsane caṇḍālassa ucchiṭṭhabhojanasadiso, …)

[279] The pattanikkujjana is a special disciplinary procedure by which bhikkhus, after having performed a legal act entitling them to do, can show their disapproval to a misbehaving layman by turning upside down their bowls when he wants to offer them alms-food. When the layman's conduct improves, and a legal act has again been done, the boycott can be cancelled monks can again turn up their bowls to him.

See Vin II 125–26, A IV 344: Aṭṭhahi, bhikkhave, aṅgehi samannāgatassa upāsakassa ākaṅkhamāno saṅgho pattaṃ nikkujjeyya Katamehi aṭṭhahi? Bhikkhūnaṃ alābhāya … anatthāya … avāsāya parisakkati, bhikkhū akkosati paribhāsati, bhikkhū bhikkhūhi bhedeti, buddhassa … dhammassa … saṅghassa avaṇṇaṃ bhāsati. Anujānāmi, bhikkhave, imehi aṭṭhahaṅgehi samannāgatassa upāsakassa pattaṃ nikkujjituṃ. Evañca pana, bhikkhave, nikkujjitabbo. Byattena bhikkhunā paṭibalena saṅgho ñāpetabbo Suṇātu me, bhante, saṅgho. Vaḍḍho licchavī āyasmantaṃ dabbaṃ mallaputtaṃ amūlikāya sīlavipattiyā anuddhaṃseti. Yadi saṅghassa pattakallaṃ, saṅgho vaḍḍhassa licchavissa pattaṃ nikkujjeyya, asambhogaṃ saṅghena kareyya. Esā ñatti.

[280] This refers to a rule that forbids monks from accepting and eating the food given by overly-generous families that have been declared trainees through a legal act in order to protect them. See Pāṭidesanīya No. 3, Vin IV 180: Yāni kho pana tāni sekkhasammatāni kulāni, yo pana bhikkhu tathārūpesu sekkhasammatesu kulesu pubbe animantito agilāno khādanīyaṃ vā bhojanīyaṃ vā sahatthā paṭiggahetvā khādeyya vā bhuñjeyya vā, paṭidesetabbaṃ tena bhikkhunā… Cf. Vin II 208: agocaro pucchitabbo, sekkhasammatāni kulāni pucchitabbāni.

[281] Junior monks have to rise from their seats as a sign of respect to seniors. Cf. Vism II.35/p.69: Sacassa vippakate bhojane ācariyo vā upajjhāyo vā āgacchati, uṭṭhāya vattaṃ kātuṃ vaṭṭati.

of offences,[282] hearing the Dhamma, the observance-day (uposatha), the invitation ceremony (pavāraṇā), when oneself is ill, or looking after one who is ill;[283] for inquiring about points of a discourse that one is uncertain about—for such and other reasons, one does not break the state of the forest-dweller.

Q. What are the expedients regarding the state of the tree-root-dweller?

A. If one would enter a covered place because of encountering rain and returns again by dawn-rise, one does not break the state of the tree-root-dweller.

The state of the open-air-dweller, charnel-ground-dweller, and any-mat-user have the same expedients [as the forest dweller and tree-root-dweller]. Also they can dwell in other dwelling-places in such cases.

The state of the sitter is without expedients. Yet there are some who say that when one [lies down] as an expediency to pour [medicine] into the nose, one does not break the state of the sitter.

Abridgements of the Thirteen Asceticisms

These thirteen asceticisms are further [reduced to] eight states.[284] As is taught in the Abhidhamma:[285] "There are eight asceticisms."

The state of the measured-food-eater and one-sitting-eater are included in state of the one-who-never-eats-a-meal-afterwards. [Why?] Because that which is received is of one kind.[286]

The state of the tree-root-dweller, open-air-dweller, and the charnel-ground-dweller are included in the state of the forest-dweller. Why? If one builds a hut, one delights in work, one accumulates and stores up much [things], and has greed for the dwelling place, which are not agreeable to the [quality of] mind. Considering thus, one dwells in purity under a tree, in a charnel-ground or in the open air.

Therefore there are eight.

These eight asceticisms are further [reduced to] three states: the state of the forest-dweller, refuse-robe-wearer and alms-food-eater. If these three are pure, the asceticisms are fulfilled. Therefore the Buddha said to Nanda: "When shall I see you as a forest-dweller, refuse-robe-wearer and one-who-never-eats-a-meal-afterwards, not nursing body and life, not longing for sense-pleasures?"[287]

Miscellaneous Topics

Q. What are the "ascetic-factors"? How many kinds of states of asceticism are there? Which persons of the three temperaments practise the asceticisms? How many asceticisms have a season? Who is an ascetic and who is a proponent of the asceticisms?

406b18 A. There are thirteen asceticisms, which are taught by the Buddha and are virtues declared by the Buddha—these are called "ascetic-factors."[288]

These (asceticisms) should not be spoken of as wholesome, unwholesome and indeterminate. Why? There are bad persons with evil wishes who do not get rid of the evil wishes that arise together with the immoral greed for gain (lābha). Therefore there are unwholesome asceticisms.[289]

Q. How many kinds of states of asceticism are there?

A. There are two states of asceticism: non-greed and non-delusion.

As the Buddha said, "If a bhikkhu is a refuse-robe-wearer dependent on fewness of wishes, contentment, enjoyment of solitude, effacement[290] and freedom, then he is called 'one who undertakes [the state of] refuse

---

[282] The Tibetan version (Bapat 1964, p. 69): "For the sake of the [legal] act of initiation (upasampadā), for the sake of absolving one from an offence."

[283] Cf. Vism II.52/p.72–73.

[284] Cf. 412a29.

[285] Nidd I 66: Aṭṭha dhutaṅgāni: āraññikaṅgaṃ, piṇḍapātikaṅgaṃ, paṃsukūlikaṅgaṃ, tecīvarikaṅgaṃ, sapadānacārikaṅgaṃ, khalupacchābhattikaṅgaṃ, nesajjikaṅgaṃ, yathāsanthatikaṅgaṃ—idaṃ vuccati vataṃ, na sīlaṃ.

[286] I.e., all three receive food. The Tibetan version has a different explanation here.

[287] S II 281: Kadāhaṃ nandaṃ passeyyaṃ, āraññaṃ paṃsukūlikaṃ; / Aññātuñchena yāpentaṃ, kāmesu anapekkhinanti.

"One-who-never-eats-a-meal-afterwards," 不時後食, is not in the Tibetan and Pali and would be due a misunderstanding of aññātuñchena yāpentaṃ.

[288] Cf. Vism II.11/p.61; Vism II.78/p.80: Sabbāneva panetāni tena tena samādānena dhutakilesattā dhutassa bhikkhuno aṅgāni, kilesadhunanato vā dhutanti laddhavohāraṃ ñāṇaṃ aṅgaṃ etesanti dhutaṅgāni. Atha vā dhutāni ca tāni paṭipakkhaniddhunanato aṅgāni ca paṭipattiyātipi dhutaṅgāni.

[289] See the discussion of Bapat (1964 p. xxviiif, reproduced in the appendix). Cf. S. Mori, 1988, p. 6. Cf. Vism II.78f and A III 219: pāpiccho icchāpakato āraññiko hoti. Cf. Nidd I 66–67 on the distinction between sīla and vata.

[290] Cf. Vin-a III 607: Dhutā sallekhavuttinoti yā paṭipadā kilese dhunāti, tāya samannāgatattā dhutā. Yā ca kilese sallikhati, robes-wearer.'" [291]

Likewise the other asceticisms are also [states of] non-greed and non-delusion.

By means of this non-greed, one removes (dhunāti) greed in thirteen places (vatthu). By means of this non-delusion, one removes ignorance in thirteen places.[292] 406b26

Furthermore, by this non-greed, which the Buddha sanctioned (anuññāta), he can arouse disenchantment (nibbidā). In conformity with effacement, he removes the deception of [the pursuit of] sense-pleasures. In conformity with non-delusion, he removes the deception of [the pursuit of] wearying-out-oneself (attakilamatha).[293]

These are the two states of asceticism: non-greed and non-delusion.

Q. Which persons of the three temperaments practise the asceticisms?

A. One with a greed temperament and one with a delusion temperament, these can practise the asceticisms. [406c] The person with a hatred temperament cannot practise the asceticisms.

Why can the person with a greed temperament and the person with a delusion temperament practise the asceticisms?

The person with a greed temperament [who undertakes the asceticisms in dependence upon painful practice][294] becomes heedful. If he is heedful, he can overcome greed.

The person with a delusion temperament who undertakes the asceticisms in dependence upon effacement becomes heedful. If he is heedful, he can overcome delusion. That is why the person with a greed temperament and the person with a delusion temperament practise the asceticisms.

The person with a hate temperament [who practises] a painful practice (dukkhapaṭipadā) does even more evil to himself, just as a someone afflicted with a bile disorder by taking hot drinks increases [for the worse] his disorder. [295]

Again, it is also said[296] that a person with a hate temperament should dwell in a forest or under a tree. Why should he dwell in a forest [or under a tree]? Because there is no wordly suffering there.[297] sā etesaṃ vuttīti sallekhavuttino.

---

[291] Cf. Vism II.84/p.81: Dhutadhammā veditabbāti appicchatā, santuṭṭhitā, sallekhatā, pavivekatā, idamatthitāti ime dhutaṅgacetanāya parivārakā pañca dhammā appicchataṃyeva nissayati ādivacanato dhutadhammā nāma, tattha appicchatā ca santuṭṭhitā ca alobho. Sallekhatā ca pavivekatā ca dvīsu dhammesu anupatanti alobhe ca amohe ca. Idamatthitā ñāṇameva. Cf. A III 219: .... appicchataṃyeva nissāya santuṭṭhiṃyeva nissāya sallekhaṃyeva nissāya pavivekaṃyeva nissāya idamatthitaṃ yeva nissāya paṃsukuliko hoti, ayaṃ imesaṃ pañcannaṃ paṃsukulikānaṃ aggo ...

The Chinese misunderstood idamatthitā/idamatthikatā/idamaṭṭhikatā. See Th 984: Kappiyaṃ taṃ ce chādeti, cīvaraṃ idamatthikaṃ; Alaṃ phāsuvihārāya, pahitattassa bhikkhuno. Th-a III 99: Idamatthikanti idaṃ payojanatthaṃ satthārā vuttapayojanatthaṃ yāvadeva sītādipaṭighātanatthañceva hirīkopīnapaṭicchādanatthañcāti attho. Etena kāyaparihāriyaṃ cīvaraṃ tattha itarītarasantosañca vadati.

[292] Cf. Vism II.84/p.81: Tattha ca alobhena paṭikkhepavatthūsu lobhaṃ, amohena tesveva ādīnavapaṭicchādakaṃ mohaṃ dhunāti. The Tibetan version has this at the end of this "two states" section.

[293] Cf. Vism II.84: ... amohena tesveva ādīnavapaṭicchādakaṃ mohaṃ dhunāti. Alobhena ca anuññātānaṃ paṭisevanamukhena pavattaṃ kāmasukhānuyogaṃ, amohena dhutaṅgesu atisallekhamukhena pavattaṃ attakilamathānuyogaṃ dhunāti. A-ṭ 151 (Be): Paṭikkhepavatthūsūti dhutaṅgasevanāya paṭikkhipitabbavatthūsu pahātabbavatthūsu. Vism-mhṭ 105 (Be): Paṭikkhepavatthūsūti gahapaticīvarādīsu tehi tehi dhutaṅgehi paṭikkhipitabbavatthūsu. ... Tesveva vāti paṭikkhepavatthūsu eva.

[294] 至愛, "is craving" or "under the influence of craving," which does not make sense. The Pali and Tibetan parallels instead have "dependent upon painful practice," dukkhāpaṭipadañca nissāya. The Chinese translator or a copyist might not have understood this, or did not agree with it. Below, at 406c05, 受苦更, "undertaking a painful practice" is used. Perhaps 至愛 is a corruption of 苦更.

Tibetan: 'dod chags spyod pa bsgrub dka' ba la brten nas 'dod chags rnam par gnon par 'gyur.

Vism II.86/p.81: Kassa dhutaṅgasevanā sappāyāti rāgacaritassa ceva mohacaritassa ca. Kasmā? Dhutaṅgasevanā hi dukkhāpaṭipadā ceva sallekhavihāro ca. Dukkhapaṭipadañca nissāya rāgo vūpasammati. Sallekhaṃ nissāya appamattassa moho pahīyati.

[295] 痰, mkhris pa, pitta. Cf. M-a III 57: Tassa hi pittajararogo bhavissati. Tenassa uṇhodakaṃ pivituṃ vā hatthapād-ādidhovanatthāya vā gattaparisiñcanatthāya vā upanetuṃ na vaṭṭati, rogo balavataro hoti. Sītodakaṃ vaṭṭati, rogaṃ vūpasameti. Mil 135: Pittaṃ, mahārāja, kuppamānaṃ tividhena kuppati sītena uṇhena visamabhojanena.

[296] 復說, lit "again said." Tibetan: gzhan dag na re, "others say." The Tibetan would correspond to apare vadanti, "others say," because what follows is a quotation ending with the quotation marker zhes zer ro. The Chinese rather would correspond to aparampi vutta.

[297] Vism II.86/p.81: Āraññikaṅgarukkhamūlikaṅgapaṭisevanā vā ettha dosacaritassāpi sappāyā. Tattha hissa asaṅghaṭṭiyamānassa viharato dosopi vūpasammatīti ayaṃ dhutādīnaṃ vibhāgato vaṇṇanā.

Q. How many asceticisms have a season (utu)? 406c08

A. Three asceticisms have an eight month season, namely, the state of dwelling under a tree, the state of dwelling in the open and the state of dwelling among the graves. The Buddha allowed a covered place in the rainy season (vassāna).[298]

Q. Who is an ascetic and who is a proponent of the asceticisms?[299]

A. There is an ascetic who also propounds the asceticisms. There is an ascetic who does not propound the asceticisms. There is one who is not an ascetic but who only propounds the asceticisms. There is one who is not an ascetic and who does not propound the asceticisms.[300]

Q. Who is an ascetic who also propounds the asceticisms?

A. The arahant who has undertaken the asceticisms and is endowed with them.[301]

Q. Who an ascetic who does not propound the asceticisms?

A. The arahant who has undertaken the asceticisms but is not endowed with them.

Q. Who is one who is not an ascetic but who only propounds the asceticisms?

A. The learner or the commoner who has undertaken the asceticisms and is endowed with them.

Q. Who is one who is not an ascetic and who does not propound the asceticisms?

A. The learner or the commoner who has [not] undertaken the asceticisms and is not endowed with them.

Q. What is the characteristic of the asceticisms? What is their function? What is their manifestation?

A. Fewness of wishes is their characteristic. Contentment is their function. Effacement is their manifestation.

Again, non-attachment is their characteristic. Non-disadvantage is their function. Non-regression is their manifestation.

Q. What are the beginning, middle and end of the asceticisms?

A. Undertaking is the beginning, practice is the middle and rejoicing is the end. 406c20

---

[298] The rainy-season lasts four months, three of which, either the former or latter rains-retreat, have to be spent in one, covered residence.

Cf. Vin I 137: Anujānāmi, bhikkhave, vassāne vassaṃ upagantunti. Vin I 152f.: Tena kho pana samayena bhikkhū rukkhasusire vassaṃ upagacchanti. … rukkhaviṭabhiyā vassaṃ upagacchanti. … ajjhokāse vassaṃ upagacchanti. … asenāsanikā vassaṃ upagacchanti. Sītenapi kilamanti, uṇhenapi kilamanti. Bhagavato etamatthaṃ ārocesuṃ. Na, bhikkhave, asenāsanikena vassaṃ upagantabbaṃ. Yo upagaccheyya, āpatti dukkaṭassāti.

[299] It is impossible to give a literal translation of this. Dhuta means "one who has shaken off (defilements)."

[300] Vism II.80–81: Dhutādīnaṃ vibhāgato ti dhuto veditabbo. Dhutavādo veditabbo. Dhutadhammā veditabbā. Dhutaṅgāni veditabbāni. Kassa dhutaṅgasevanā sappāyā ti veditabbaṃ. Tattha dhuto ti dhutakileso vā puggalo kilesadhunano vā dhammo. Dhutavādo ti ettha pana atthi dhuto na dhutavādo, atthi na dhuto dhutavādo, atthi neva dhuto na dhutavādo, atthi dhuto ceva dhutavādo ca. Tattha yo dhutaṅgena attano kilese dhuni, paraṃ pana dhutaṅgena na ovadati, nānusāsati bākulatthero viya, ayaṃ dhuto na dhutavādo. Yathāha, tayidaṃ āyasmā bākulo dhuto na dhutavādo ti. Yo pana na dhutaṅgena attano kilese dhuni, kevalaṃ aññe dhutaṅgena ovadati anusāsati upanandatthero viya, ayaṃ na dhuto dhutavādo. Yathāha, tayidaṃ āyasmā upanando sakyaputto na dhuto dhutavādo ti. Yo ubhayavipanno lāḷudāyī viya, ayaṃ neva dhuto na dhutavādo. Yathāha, tayidaṃ āyasmā lāḷudāyī neva dhuto na dhutavādo ti. Yo pana ubhayasampanno dhammasenāpati viya, ayaṃ dhuto cevadhutavādo ca. Yathāha, tayidaṃ āyasmā sāriputto dhuto ceva dhutavādo cā ti.

[301] Cf. Th-a II 246: Arahattaṃ pana patvā sayampi sabbe dhutaṅgadhamme samādāya vattati, aññepi tadatthāya samādapeti.

Chapter 4: Treatise on Concentration (Samādhiniddesa)

Q. Now, what should the meditator who dwells in pure virtue do when he has observed the asceticisms in order to accomplish the superior wholesome state?

A. He should arouse concentration.

Meaning of Concentration

Q. What is concentration? What are its characteristic, function, manifestation and near cause? Who undertakes it? What are the differences between jhāna, liberation, concentration and attainment? How many causes for concentration can be seen? How many states are the obstacles to the arising of concentration? How many are the benefits of concentration? What are the requisites of concentration? How many kinds of concentration are there?

Q. What is concentration?

A. "Concentration" means that one has purity of mind, continuously endeavours, has the benefits of withdrawnness, etc., dwells in rightness and truth (正眞) and is not distracted—this is called "concentration."

Again, it means that the mind is not swayed by the strong winds of the defilements. It is comparable to the unflickering flame of the lamp inside a hall.[302]

As is said in the Abhidhamma: "Whatever stability of mind, stationariness, steadfastness, non-perturbedness, non-wavering, serenity due to non-distractedness, right concentration, the faculty of concentration, the power of concentration—this is called 'concentration.'"[303]
[407a]

Q. What are its characteristic, function, manifestation and near cause?

A. Stability of mind (cittassa ṭhiti) is its characteristic; the overcoming of adversaries (paccanīka, paccatthika) is its function;[304] serenity (samatha, viveka) is its manifestation; the mind's liberation that is due to the fading away of passion (rāga-virāgā cetovimutti)[305] is its [302] RB's rendering, who adds that the Chinese word can also mean temple, sanctuary or palace. EKS "behind the palace." Vism XIV.139 has "in a windless place." It refers to a place where a flame can't be moved by wind. Nidd-a 57: Visesato sukhapadaṭṭhāno nivāte padīpaccīnaṃ ṭhiti viya cetaso ṭhitī ti daṭṭhabbo. Uddhacce na kampatī ti samādhibalaṃ. Cf. Dhs-a 118: Cittassekaggatā ti cittassa ekaggabhāvo; samādhissetaṃ nāmaṃ. Lakkhaṇādīsu panassa aṭṭhakathāyaṃ tāva vuttaṃ pāmokkhalakkhaṇo ca samādhi avikkhepalakkhaṇo ca. …, evameva sahajātadhammānaṃ vikkhipituṃ vippakirituṃ appadānato samādhi avikkhepalakkhaṇo nāma hotīti. Aparo pana ñāyo: ayaṃ cittassekaggatāsaṅkhāto samādhi nāma avisāralakkhaṇo vā avikkhepalakkhaṇo vā, sahajātadhammānaṃ, sampiṇḍanaraso nhāniyacuṇṇānaṃ udakaṃ viya, upasamapaccupaṭṭhāno ñāṇapaccupaṭṭhāno vā. Samāhito yathābhūtaṃ jānāti passatī ti hi vuttaṃ. Visesato sukhapadaṭṭhāno, nivāte dīpaccīnaṃ ṭhiti viya cetaso ṭhitī ti daṭṭhabbo.

---

[303] Vibh 217, Dhs §11, Paṭis I 191, Nidd I 365: Yā cittassa ṭhiti saṇṭhiti avaṭṭhiti avisāhāro avikkhepo avisāhaṭa-mānasatā samatho samādhindriyaṃ samādhibalaṃ sammāsamādhi: ayaṃ vuccati samādhi. Cf. Peṭ 122. As elsewhere in similar Abhidhamma lists, the Chinese translator misunderstood a few synonyms. Instead of "steadfastness" for avaṭṭhiti, he, misunderstanding the a- in ava- for a negative, rendered "non-dependence (anālamba)" 無所攀緣. And instead of "serenity due to non-distractedness" for avisāhaṭa-mānasatā samatho he rendered "serenity that is not grasped (aparāmaṭṭha)," 寂靜無著.

[304] Cf. Paṭis-a I 237: Appanāvīthiyañhi samādhi paccanīkadhammavigamena santattā. Cf. A-a II 363: [Samādhi] santo ti ādīsu paccanīkakilesavūpasamena santo.

[305] A I 61: Dve me, bhikkhave, dhammā vijjābhāgiyā. Katame dve? Samatho ca vipassanā ca. Samatho, bhikkhave, bhāvito kimatthamanubhoti? Cittaṃ bhāvīyati. Cittaṃ bhāvitaṃ kimatthamanubhoti? Yo rāgo so pahīyati. Vipassanā, bhikkhave, bhāvitā kamatthamanubhoti? Paññā bhāvīyati. Paññā bhāvitā kamatthamanubhoti? Yā avijjā sā pahīyati. Rāgupakkiliṭṭhaṃ vā, bhikkhave, cittaṃ na vimuccati, avijjupakkiliṭṭhā vā paññā bhāvīyati. Iti kho, bhikkhave, rāgavirāgā cetovimutti, avijjāvirāgā paññāvimutti ti. Phalasamādhissetaṃ nāmaṃ. A- a II 120: Rāgavirāgā cetovimutti ti rāgassa khayavirāgena cetovimutti nāma hoti. Phalasamādhissetaṃ nāmaṃ. Cf. Peṭ 10: Dvemā vimuttiyo, rāgavirāgā ca cetovimutti; avijjāvirāgā ca paññāvimutti – ayaṃ nirodho. Cf. Peṭ 123, Paṭis II 99.

near cause.[306]

Q. Who undertakes concentration?

A. Namely, one who maintains the [mind and] mental properties (cetasika), etc., and the skilful means (upāya) for concentration, etc, [in a state of balance], like the hand which holds a pair of scales [evenly]. One who arouses the mind and mental properties, etc, like [one who keeps himself balanced while carrying] a bowl of oil.[307] [He who has] mindfulness with energy, etc.,[308] acting [together] for the purpose of concentration, just like four equally strong horses that pull a chariot. [He who] contemplates [the object/sign], etc, for the purpose of concentration, like a master archer who fixes his mind [on the target] when pointing [the arrow].[309]

Because it removes the adversaries (paccanīka), [concentration] is like a medicine which counteracts poison. As is said in the Abhidhamma: "Concentration has the meaning of 'embracing', concentration has the meaning of 'encompassing' and concentration has the meaning of 'filling.'"[310] 407a07

[Q. What are the differences between jhāna, liberation, concentration and attainment?][311]

"Jhāna" means the four jhānas, namely, the first jhāna, etc.[312]

"Liberation" means the eight liberations, namely, "having internal perception of matter one reflects on external matter," etc.[313]

"Concentration" means the three kinds of concentration, namely, "with thinking and exploring," etc.[314]

"Attainment"[315] means the attainment of the nine successive attainments.

Q. What are [the causes] for jhāna, etc.?[316]

A. Because of contemplation of the object (ārammaṇa), because of contemplation [and overcoming] of adversaries, because of mental rapture and happiness, because of seclusion

---

[306] Vism III.4: avikkepalakkhaṇo samādhi, vikkhepaviddhaṃsanaraso, avikampanapaccupaṭṭhāno.

[307] Cf. S V 40.

[308] I.e., the four faculties of mindfulness, faith, energy, and wisdom, which together with concentration are the five faculties, indriya.

[309] 如彼箭師注心調直. This could also be interpreted as "Like the fletcher (=arrow-maker) who fixes him mind to straighten [the arrow shaft]," Mil 418: Yathā, mahārāja, issāso sare pātayanto … nimittaṃ ujuṃ karoti, hāsamuppādeti vijjhissāmī ti, evameva kho, mahārāja, yoginā yogāvacarena … sati upaṭṭhapetabbā, hāsamuppādetabbaṃ sabbakilese ñāṇanārācena vijjhissāmī ti. … Puna caparaṃ, mahārāja, issāso āḷakaṃ pariharati vaṅkajimhakuṭilanārācassa ujukaraṇāya. Evameva kho, mahārāja, yoginā yogāvacarena imasmiṃ kāye satipaṭṭhānaāḷakaṃ pariharitabbaṃ vaṅkajimhakuṭilacittassa ujukaraṇāya. Cf. Dhp 33: Phandanaṃ capalaṃ cittaṃ, … ujuṃ karoti medhāvī, usukārova tejanaṃ.

[310] Paṭis I 49: pariggahaṭṭhena samādhi, parivāraṭṭhena samādhi, paripūraṭṭhena samādhi, ekaggaṭṭhena samādhi, avikkhepaṭṭhena samādhi, avisāraṭṭhena samādhi, anāvilaṭṭhena samādhi. Cf. Nidd-a 57: Sahajātāni sammā ādhīyati ṭhapetīti samādhi. So pāmokkhalakkhaṇo avikkhepalakkhaṇo vā, sahajātānaṃ dhammānaṃ ārammaṇe sampiṇḍanaraso nhāniyacuṇṇānaṃ udakaṃ viya, upasamapaccupaṭṭhāno, ñāṇapaccupaṭṭhāno vā. Samāhito yathābhūtaṃ pajānāti passatī ti hi vuttaṃ. M-a I 83–4: Samādhānato samādhi. So avikkhepalakkhaṇo, avisāralakkhaṇo vā, cittacetasikānaṃ sampiṇḍanaraso, cittaṭṭhitipaccupaṭṭhāno.

[311] This question is in the introduction, at 406c23, 禪解脫定正受何差別.

[312] Vibh 342: Jhānan-ti. Cattāri jhānāni: paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ, dutiyaṃ jhānaṃ, tatiyaṃ jhānaṃ, catutthaṃ jhānaṃ. Samādhī ti. Tayo samādhī—savitakkasavicāro samādhi, avitakkavicāramatto samādhi, avitakkaavicāro samādhi. Samāpattī ti. Nava anupubbavihārasamāpattiyo—paṭhamajjhānasamāpatti, … saññāvedayitanirodhasamāpatti.

[313] Vibh 342: Vimokkho ti. Aṭṭha vimokkhā. Rūpī rūpāni passati—ayaṃ paṭhamo vimokkho. … Cf. D II 70, 71. A IV 306.

[314] Vibh 342: Samādhī ti. Tayo samādhī—savitakkasavicāro samādhi, avitakkavicāramatto samādhi, avitakkaavicāro samādhi.

[315] Vibh 343: Samāpattī ti. Nava anupubbavihārasamāpattiyo—paṭhamajjhānasamāpatti, … saññāvedayitanirodhasamāpatti. Cf. A IV 410.

[316] In the introduction, 406c23–24, the question is: "How many causes for concentration can be seen? How many states are the obstacles to the arising of concentration?" 幾定因可見以此起定障定有幾法 from and freedom from the hindrances, because of evenness [of mind], because of skill in producing concentration, because of obtaining ease, because of establishment in unity [owing to] steadiness, because of the desire to arouse concentration, there are [jhāna,] attainment and liberation.[317]

Benefits of Concentration

Q. How many benefits can be gained through concentration?

A. There are four benefits that can be gained through concentration. What are the four?

A. Pleasant dwelling in this life (diṭṭhadhammasukhavihāra), contemplation by means of a pleasant object; realization of direct knowledge (abhiññā); attainment of an existence (bhavasampatti). 407a15

Q. What is "pleasant dwelling in this life"?

A. Namely, someone who acquires concentration can generate the taintless mind, enjoy the taste of gladness, experience supramundane rapture and dwell pleasantly in this life.[318] Therefore, has the Blessed One said: "When due to the arising of rapture there is tranquillity of the body, one enjoys refreshment [of mind] (sītibhāva), and gradually brings about fulfilment, perfection, accomplishment, etc." [319]

Again, the Buddha declared to the bhikkhus: "At first, Nigaṇṭhas, not moving my body nor speaking a word, silently, for seven days and seven nights I dwelt exclusively experiencing happiness."[320]

This is called in the Teaching of the Noble One (ariya-dhamma) a "pleasant dwelling in this life."

"Contemplation by means of a pleasant object" means that when the meditator's mind attains a concentration object, is free from the hindrances and obsessions, and is soft (mudu) and wieldable (kammanīya), contemplating and discerning the aggregates, the sense-bases, the elements and so on,[321] he is in a state of ease (phāsu-bhāva).[322] Therefore, the

---

[317] The Chinese is difficult to follow here. This might be a distorted translation of Paṭis 49: anāvilaṭṭhena samādhi, aniñjanaṭṭhena samādhi, vimuttaṭṭhena samādhi, ekattupaṭṭhānavasena cittassa ṭhitattā samādhi, samaṃ esatīti samādhi, visamaṃ nesatīti samādhi, samaṃ esitattā samādhi, visamaṃ nesitattā samādhi, samaṃ ādiyatīti samādhi, visamaṃ nādiyatīti samādhi, samaṃ ādinnattā samādhi, visamaṃ anādinnattā samādhi, samaṃ paṭipajjatīti samādhi, visamaṃ nappaṭipajjatīti samādhi, samaṃ paṭipannattā samādhi, visamaṃ nappaṭipannattā samādhi, samaṃ jhāyatīti samādhi, visamaṃ jhāpetīti samādhi, samaṃ jhātattā samādhi, visamaṃ jhāpitattā samādhi, samo ca hito ca sukho cāti samādhi.

[318] Paṭis-a I 297: … diṭṭheva dhamme paccakkhe attabhāve sukho vihāro diṭṭhadhammasukhavihāro. A-a II 119: diṭṭhadhammasukhavihāran-ti lokiyalokuttaraṃ phāsuvihāraṃ. M-a I 161: … rūpāvacarajjhānānametaṃ adhivacanaṃ. Tāni hi appetvā nisinnā jhāyino imasmiṃyeva attabhāve asaṃkiliṭṭhaṃ nekkhammasukhaṃ vindanti, tasmā diṭṭhadhammasukhavihārānī 'ti vuccanti.

[319] D I 73, A III 21, V 2, Paṭis I 85, etc. … pamuditassa pīti jāyati, pītimanassa kāyo passambhati, passaddhakāyo sukhaṃ vedeti, sukhino cittaṃ samādhiyati. … Cf. Dhp 205. Pavivekarasaṃ pitvā, rasaṃ upasamassa ca; niddaro hoti nippāpo, dhammapītirasaṃ pivaṃ.

[320] Cf. M I 94, Kv 458: Ahaṃ kho, āvuso nigaṇṭhā, pahomi aniñjamāno kāyena abhāsamāno vācaṃ, satta rattindivāni ekantasukhaṃ paṭisaṃvedī viharituṃ. Cf. Ud 3 … paṭhamābhisambuddho. Tena kho pana samayena bhagavā sattāhaṃ ekapallaṅkena nisinno hoti vimuttisukhapaṭisaṃvedī.

The first part of this quotation, 我先作尼乾. literally means: "I at first/before do/practice nigaṇṭha" suggesting that the Buddha sat for seven days like this as a nigaṇṭha, but this would be due to a misunderstanding of the Majjhima Nikāya quotation by the Chinese translator.

[321] Cf. Paṭis I 101: Kathaṃ sabbadhammānaṃ sammā samucchede nirodhe ca anupaṭṭhānatā paññā samasīsaṭṭhe ñāṇaṃ? Sabbadhammānan ti – pañcakkhandhā, dvādasāyatanāni, aṭṭhārasa dhātuyo, kusalā dhammā, akusalā dhammā, abyākatā dhammā, kāmāvacarā dhammā, rūpāvacarā dhammā, arūpāvacarā dhammā, apariyāpannā dhammā. Sammā samucchedeti nekkhammena kāmacchandaṃ sammā samucchindati. Abyāpādena byāpādaṃ sammā samucchindati. Ālokasaññāya thinamiddhaṃ sammā samucchindati. Avikkhepena uddhaccaṃ sammā samucchindati. Dhammavavatthānena vicikicchaṃ sammā samucchindati. Ñāṇena avijjaṃ sammā samucchindati. Pāmojjena aratiṃ sammā samucchindati. Paṭhamena jhānena nīvaraṇe sammā samucchindati… pe … arahattamaggena sabbakilese sammā samucchindati.

[322] Dhp 373–74: Suññāgāraṃ paviṭṭhassa, santacittassa bhikkhuno / Amānusī rati hoti, sammā dhammaṃ vipassato. Yato yato sammasati, khandhānaṃ udayabbayaṃ; / Labhatī pītipāmojjaṃ, amataṃ taṃ vijānataṃ.

Blessed One taught: "Bhikkhus, you should develop [concentration], dependent upon [concentration of] mind everything is known as it really is."[323] 407a24

"Realization of direct knowledge" means that one who has gained concentration, can, dependent upon it, realize the five supernormal powers, namely, the bases of supernormal power, the divine ear, knowledge of others' minds, recollection of past existences, and the divine eye. Therefore, the Blessed One taught the bhikkhus: "Having gained concentration of mind (cittasamādhi) one is capable of miraculous transformation (vikubbana). And likewise one is able to gain all the bases of supernormal power."[324]

"Attainment of a [distinct] existence"[325] means that one who has gained concentration of mind and who has not yet become a non-learner (asekha), if does not fall back from it, gains to the attainment of a material or immaterial existence (rūpa-arūpa-bhava) as a result (vipāka) of the attaining of concentration. As the Buddha declared: "One who little practises the first jhāna gains [birth in] the retinue of Brahmā." All those of this kind are born there. [407b]

Thus all of these four benefits can be produced because of that concentration, which should give rise to them one by one.

Obstacles, Causes and Requisites of Concentration

Q. How many states are obstacles (paripantha) to concentration?

A. Namely, eight states: sensual desire, ill-will, sloth and torpor, agitation, uncertainty, ignorance, boredom and all evil unwholesome states—these are the obstacles.

Q. How many causes of concentration are there?

A. Namely, eight states are causes: renunciation, non-ill-will, perception of light, non-distraction, defining of dhammas, knowledge, gladness, and all wholesome states—these are the causes of concentration.[326]

Q. What are the requisites (parikkhāra) of concentration?[327]

A. There are seven, namely: virtue, contentment, guarding of the sense-faculties, moderation in drink and food, not sleeping in the first and last watches of the night,[328]

---

[323] This quotation seems to be a mistranslation of the sutta at S III 13 quoted in the parallel in Vism XI.121: Bhagavā etadavoca: samādhiṃ, bhikkhave, bhāvetha; samāhito, bhikkhave, bhikkhu yathābhūtaṃ pajānāti. Kiñca yathābhūtaṃ pajānāti? Rūpassa … viññāṇassa samudayañca atthaṅgamañca.

[324] Cf. M II 18

[325] While the Vism parallel has bhavavisesa, the Vim has bhavasampatti. Cf. Vism I.29: Tattha yaṃ imināhaṃ sīlena devo vā bhavissāmi devaññataro vā ti evaṃ bhavasampattiṃ ākaṅkhamānena pavattitaṃ, idaṃ taṇhānissitaṃ. Vism XI.123/p.372. Ye aparihīnajjhānā brahmaloke nibbattissāmāti brahmalokūpapattiṃ patthentā apatthayamānā vāpi puthujjanā samādhito na parihāyanti, tesaṃ bhavavisesāvahattā appanāsamādhibhāvanā bhavavisesānisaṃsā hoti. Tenāha bhagavā paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ parittaṃ bhāvetvā kattha upapajjanti. Brahmapārisajjānaṃ devānaṃ sahabyataṃ upapajjantī ti ādi (Vibh 424, Cf. A II 126).

[326] The passage that most likely corresponds the list of eight, and includes the sabbe kusalā dhammā of Bapat and EKS, is found in Paṭis I 162: Katamāni aṭṭha paripanthe ñāṇāni, aṭṭha ca upakāre ñāṇāni? Kāmacchando samādhissa paripantho, nekkhammaṃ samādhissa upakāraṃ. Byāpādo samādhissa paripantho, abyāpādo samādhissa upakāraṃ. Thinamiddhaṃ samādhissa paripantho, ālokasaññā samādhissa upakāraṃ. Uddhaccaṃ samādhissa paripantho, avikkhepo samādhissa upakāraṃ. Vicikicchā samādhissa paripantho, dhammavavatthānaṃ samādhissa upakāraṃ. Avijjā samādhissa paripantho, ñāṇaṃ samādhissa upakāraṃ. Arati samādhissa paripantho, pāmojjaṃ samādhissa upakāraṃ. Sabbepi akusalā dhammā samādhissa paripanthā, sabbepi kusalā dhammā samādhissa upakārā. Imāni aṭṭha paripanthe ñāṇāni, aṭṭha ca upakāre ñāṇāni. Cf. Vism I.140: … nekkhammena kāmacchandassa, abyāpādena byāpādassa, ālokasaññāya thinamiddhassa, avikkhepena uddhaccassa, dhammavavatthānena vicikicchāya, ñāṇena avijjāya, pāmojjena aratiyā, paṭhamena jhānena nīvaraṇānaṃ…

[327] Cf. M I 301: cattāro sammappadhānā samādhiparikkhārā. D II 216: satta samādhiparikkhārā sammāsamādhissa paribhāvanāya sammāsamādhissa pāripūriyā. Katame satta? Sammādiṭṭhi sammāsaṅkappo sammāvācā sammākammanto sammāājīvo sammāvāyāmo sammāsati.

A IV 40: : Sattime, bhikkhave, samādhiparikkhārā. Katame satta? Sammādiṭṭhi,… sammāsati. Yā kho, bhikkhave, imehi sattahaṅgehi cittassekaggatā parikkhatā, ayaṃ vuccati, bhikkhave, ariyo sammāsamādhi saupaniso itipi saparikkhāro itipī ti. A-a IV 28: samādhiparikkhārāti maggasamādhissa sambhārā.

[328] The text has "not sleeping in the first, middle, and last [watches of] the night" but this must be due to a misunderstanding. In the suttas it is said that there should be devotion to wakefulness in the first and last watches of the night, but that in the middle one can lay down mindfully, e.g. M I 273:

constant mindfulness and awareness (sati-sampajaññā), and a quiet, secluded dwelling-place.

Two Kinds of Concentration

Q. How many kinds of concentration are there?

A. There are two kinds of concentration. The first is mundane concentration, the second is supramundane concentration.[329] The acquisition of the Noble Fruit is called "supramundane concentration"; the others [concentrations] are called "mundane."

407b10 Mundane concentration is subject to taints (sāsava), is subject to fetters (saṃyojaniya), knots (ganthaniya),[330] torrents (oghaniya), yokes (yoganīya), hindrances (nīvaraṇiya), subject to holding (parāmaṭṭha), to clinging (upādaniya), to defilement (saṅkilesika).[331] This is called "mundane concentration." The opposite of this is called "supramundane concentration."

Again, there are two kinds of concentration: wrong concentration (micchā-samādhi) and right concentration (sammā-samādhi).

What is wrong concentration? Unwholesome unification of mind is called "wrong concentration." Wholesome unification of mind is called "Right Concentration." Wrong concentration is to be abandoned. Right Concentration is to be developed.

And again, there are two kinds of concentration: access-concentration (upacāra-samādhi) and fixed concentration (appaṇā-samādhi). 407b15

The antecedent (pubbabhāga) of any concentration (samādhi or samāpatti)—this is called "access-concentration." The change-of-lineage (gotrabhū-anantarā) immediately following[332]—this is called "fixed concentration."

Three Kinds of Concentration

Again, there are three kinds of concentration: concentration with thinking and exploring; concentration without thinking and with a slight degree of exploring; concentration without thinking and exploring.[333]

Jāgariyaṃ anuyuttā bhavissāma, divasaṃ caṅkamena nisajjāya āvaraṇīyehi dhammehi cittaṃ parisodhessāma. Rattiyā paṭhamaṃ yāmaṃ caṅkamena … parisodhessāma. Rattiyā majjhimaṃ yāmaṃ dakkhiṇena passena sīhaseyyaṃ kappessāma pāde pādaṃ accādhāya, sato sampajāno uṭṭhānasaññaṃ manasi karitvā. Rattiyā pacchimaṃ yāmaṃ paccuṭṭhāya caṅkamena … parisodhessāmā ti. The 7 requisites are all given in this sutta (M I 273–75): … hirottappenamha samannāgatā, parisuddho no kāyasamācāro … vacīsamācāro … manosamācāro, … ājīvo, indriyesumha guttadvārā, bhojane mattaññuno, jāgariyaṃ anuyuttā, satisampajaññena samannāgatā; … Kiñca, bhikkhave, uttariṃ karaṇīyaṃ? Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu vivittaṃ senāsanaṃ bhajati … So … abhijjhāya cittaṃ parisodheti; … vicikicchāya cittaṃ parisodheti. … So ime pañca nīvaraṇe pahāya cetaso upakkilese paññāya dubbalīkaraṇe, vivicceva kāmehi vivicca akusalehi dhammehi, savitakkaṃ savicāraṃ vivekajaṃ pītisukhaṃ paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharati. Cf. Vibh 243–44: … samādāya sikkhati sikkhāpadesu, indriyesu guttadvāro, bhojane mattaññū, pubbarattāpararattaṃ jāgariyānuyogamanuyutto, sātaccaṃ nepakkaṃ bodhipakkhikānaṃ dhammānaṃ bhāvanānuyogamanuyutto. So abhikkante paṭikkante sampajānakārī hoti, … So vivittaṃ senāsanaṃ bhajati … paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharati …

[329] Paṭis I 48. Cf. Nett 77.

[330] The Chinese puts what corresponds to ganthaniyaṃ before saṃyojaniyaṃ, 有結有縛, but at 447b07 it follows the same saṃyojaniyaṃ ganthaniyaṃ, 有縛有結, order as in the Pali.

[331] See Dhs 584: lokiyaṃ, sāsavaṃ, saṃyojaniyaṃ, ganthaniyaṃ, oghaniyaṃ, yoganiyaṃ, nīvaraṇiyaṃ, parāmaṭṭhaṃ, upādāniyaṃ, saṃkilesikaṃ. Cf. Vibh 17.

LC: "Sāsava skilful citta is not citta which has āsavas. It is citta which is subject to āsavas. In other words, jhāna or vipassanāñāṇa do not have āsavas, but they can give rise e.g. to subsequent attachment or aversion which are āsavas. The same is the case with all the other terms in the list."

[332] Cf. Vism III.6: yā ca appanāsamādhīnaṃ pubbabhāge ekaggatā, ayaṃ upacārasamādhi. Paṭhamassa jhānassa parikammaṃ paṭhamassa jhānassa anantarapaccayena paccayo ti ādivacanato pana yā parikammānantarā ekaggatā, ayaṃ appanāsamādhī ti. Cf. Vin-a II 429: Tassevaṃ anuyuttassa viharato idāni appanā uppajjissatīti bhavaṅgaṃ vicchinditvā nimittārammaṇaṃ manodvārāvajjanaṃ uppajjati. Tasmiñca niruddhe tadevārammaṇaṃ gahetvā cattāri pañca vā javanāni, yesaṃ paṭhamaṃ parikammaṃ, dutiyaṃ upacāraṃ, tatiyaṃ anulomaṃ, catutthaṃ gotrabhu, pañcamaṃ appanācittaṃ. Paṭhamaṃ vā parikammañceva upacārañca, dutiyaṃ anulomaṃ, tatiyaṃ gotrabhu, catutthaṃ appanācittan-ti vuccati.

[333] Paṭis I 48, D III 219: Tayo samādhi. Savitakko savicāro samādhi, avitakko vicāramatto samādhi, Q. What is [concentration] with thinking and exploring?

A. The first jhāna is with thinking and exploring. The second jhāna is without thinking, but with a slight degree of exploring. The remaining jhānas are without thinking and exploring.

And again, there are three kinds of concentration. Namely, the concentration that is accompanied by rapture (pīti-sahagata); the concentration accompanied by happiness; the concentration that is accompanied by equanimity.[334]

The first and the second jhānas are accompanied by together with rapture, the third jhāna is accompanied by happiness and the fourth jhāna is accompanied by equanimity. 407b21

And again, there are three kinds of concentration: wholesome concentration; resultant concentration; functional concentration.

Q. What is wholesome concentration?

A. The Noble Path, and the material and immaterial concentration developed by the learner and the commoner—this is called "wholesome concentration."

The Noble Fruit, and the material and immaterial realms into which the learner and the commoner are reborn—this is called "resultant (vipāka) concentration."

The material and the immaterial concentration attained by the non-learner (asekha) is called "functional (kiriya) concentration."[335]

Four Kinds of Concentration

And again, there are four kinds of concentration: sense realm concentration; material realm concentration; immaterial realm concentration; unincluded concentration.[336]

Any practice (paṭipadā), undertaking (samādāna) of practice—this is called "sense realm concentration."[337] avitakko avicāro samādhi. Cf. M III 162: Handa, dānāhaṃ tividhena samādhiṃ bhāvemi ti, So kho ahaṃ, anuruddhā, savitakkampi savicāraṃ samādhiṃ bhāvesiṃ, avitakkampi vicāramattaṃ samādhiṃ bhāvesiṃ, avitakkampi avicāraṃ samādhiṃ bhāvesiṃ. M-a IV 206: Avitakkampi vicāramattanti pañcakanaye dutiyajjhānasamādhiṃ. Avitakkampi avicāranti catukkanayepi pañcakanaye pi jhānattayasamādhiṃ.

---

[334] Cf. Vism III.12. Cf. M III 206: Handa, dānāhaṃ tividhena samādhiṃ bhāvemī ti. So kho ahaṃ, … sappītikampi samādhiṃ bhāvesiṃ, nippītikampi samādhiṃ bhāvesiṃ, sātasahagatampi samādhiṃ bhāvesiṃ, upekkhāsahagatampi samādhiṃ bhāvesiṃ. M-a IV 209: Sappītikan ti dukatikajjhānasamādhiṃ. Nippītikan ti dukajjhānasamādhiṃ. Sātasahagatanti tikacatukkajjhānasamādhiṃ. Upekkhāsahagatanti catukkanaye catutthajjhānasamādhiṃ pañcakanaye pañcamajjhānasamādhiṃ.

[335] Paṭṭh I 157 (Be) Vipākābyākatāni kiriyābyākatāni jhānaṅgāni sampayuttakānaṃ khandhānaṃ cittasamuṭṭhānānañca rūpānaṃ jhānapaccayena paccayo. Abhidh-av-pṭ I 268: § 62. … Atha vā kiriyājhānabhūtā samāpattiyo kiriyāpattiyo, kusalabhūtā pana samāpattiyo akiriyāpattiyo, … Dhs-a 295, § 577. Tattha khīṇāsavassa puthujjanakāle nibbattitā samāpatti yāva na naṃ samāpajjati tāva kusalāva samāpannakāle kiriyā hoti. Khīṇāsavakāle panassa nibbattitā samāpatti kiriyāva hoti. Nidd-a II 57: Diṭṭhadhammasukhavihārissa vā ti imasmiṃyeva attabhāve kiriyājhānaṃ samāpajjitvā sukhaṃ uppādetvā viharantassa. Mp III 274: Sīlaṃ panettha khīṇāsavasīlameva, bāhusaccampi khīṇāsavabāhusaccameva, vācā pi khīṇāsavassa kalyāṇavācāva, jhānāni pi kiriyajjhānāneva kathitānī-ti veditabbāni. Paṭis-a I 301: Tatrūpapannassā ti vipākavasena brahmaloke upapannassa paṭisandhibhavaṅgacutivasena vattamānāni cattāri vipākajjhānāni. Rūpārūpāvacarajjhānasamāpattīsu kiriyābyākatāni na vuttāni. Kiñcāpi na vuttāni, atha kho kusalehi samānapavattittā kusalesu vuttesu vuttāneva hontī ti veditabbāni.

LC: "See Vibh 269 where the four jhānas are stated to be either vipākā or vipākadhamma or neither (nevavipākanavipākadhammadhamma). This is based upon the third triplet of the Abhidhamma-mātikā. For jhāna which is kiriya, see Dhs §§577–82 and cp. Dhs §§1280–85 = Vibh 421, where the terms samāpannassa, upapannassa and diṭṭhadhammasukhavihārin correspond to the same distinction. The notion of kiriyacitta is not accepted in the Sarvāstivādin abhidharma."

[336] Vism III.23/p.88: Kāmāvacara samādhi, rūpāvacara samādhi, arūpāvacara samādhi, apariyāpanna samādhi.

[337] 彼彼行正受行. Cf. Vism III.23/p.88: Tattha sabbāpi upacārekaggatā kāmāvacaro samādhi: "Herein all unification of access (-concentration) is sense-realm concentration." I take 正受行 to stand for samādāna. In the Vim 正受 can stand for samādāna, samāpatti, adhiṭṭhāna, saṇṭhapeti, upasampadā, upasampajja. Perhaps this passage is related to Vism III.15: Tattha paṭhamasamannāhārato paṭṭhāya yāva tassa tassa jhānassa upacāraṃ uppajjati, tāva pavattā samādhibhāvanā paṭipadā ti vuccati. Paṭis-a II 474: Paṭipadāvisuddhi nāma sasambhāriko upacāro.

The four jhānas are called "material realm concentration."

The four immaterial attainments and [rebirth in the immaterial realm which is] the result of wholesome action (kammavipāka)—this is called "immaterial realm concentration."

The concentration of the four Paths and the four Fruits—this is called "unincluded concentration."

And again, there are four kinds of practice of concentration: [concentration] of painful practice and sluggish direct knowledge; of painful practice and swift direct knowledge; of pleasant practice and swift direct knowledge; of pleasant practice and sluggish direct knowledge.[338]

[Herein,] there are these four kinds of men: (1) those with strong defilements; (2) those with weak defilements;[339] (3) those with sluggish faculties and (4) those with swift faculties.[340] [407c]

When a man of strong defilements and sluggish faculties, who has painful practice and sluggish direct knowledge, gains concentration [it is called concentration of painful practice and sluggish direct knowledge].[341]

When a man of strong defilements and swift faculties, who has painful practice and swift direct knowledge, gains concentration [it is called concentration of painful practice and swift direct knowledge].

When a man of weak defilements and sluggish faculties, who has pleasant practice and sluggish direct knowledge, gains concentration [it is called concentration of pleasant practice and sluggish direct knowledge].

When a man of weak defilements and swift faculties, who has pleasant practice and swift direct knowledge, gains concentration [it is called concentration of pleasant practice and swift direct knowledge].

Because of the strength of the defilements, a man with strong defilements overcomes

---

[338] A II 149: Dukkhāpaṭipadā dandhābhiññā, dukkhāpaṭipadā khippābhiññā, sukhāpaṭipadā dandhābhiññā, sukhāpaṭipadā khippābhiññā. Katamā ca, bhikkhave, dukkhā paṭipadā dandhābhiññā? Idha, bhikkhave, ekacco pakatiyāpi tibbarāgajātiko … tibbadosajātiko … tibbamohajātiko hoti, abhikkhaṇaṃ mohajaṃ dukkhaṃ domanassaṃ paṭisaṃvedeti. Tassimāni pañcindriyāni mudūni pātubhavanti—saddhindriyaṃ, vīriyindriyaṃ, satindriyaṃ, samādhindriyaṃ, paññindriyaṃ. So imesaṃ pañcannaṃ indriyānaṃ muduttā dandhaṃ ānantariyaṃ pāpuṇāti āsavānaṃ khayāya. …

[339] The Chinese literally has "thick/dense defilements" 密煩惱 and "thin/sparse/few defilements" 者疎煩. The character 密 corresponds to ghana in Pali.

[340] This passage is corrupt in the Chinese text and has been amended in accordance with the subsequent explanation and the Vism parallel. EKS, in accordance with the Taisho edition, had "[Here] the first of these four kinds of men has dense passion, and the second, rare passion; the third has keen faculties, and the fourth, dull faculties." This is in contradiction with the subsequent explanations, which state that the first two men have strong defilements and the other two weak defilements, and that the third has dull faculties and the fourth sharp faculties. In the "Three editions" edition of the Vimuttimagga the 3rd man has slow wit and the 4th quick wit.

Vism II.18–19, Dhs-a 183: Kilesindriyavasena cāpi etāsaṃ pabhedo veditabbo. Tibbakilesassa hi mudindriyassa dukkhā paṭipadā hoti dandhā ca abhiññā, tikkhindriyassa pana khippā abhiññā. Mandakilesassa ca mudindriyassa sukhā paṭipadā hoti dandhā ca abhiññā, tikkhindriyassa pana khippā abhiññā ti. Iti imāsu paṭipadā-abhiññāsu yo puggalo dukkhāya paṭipadāya dandhāya abhiññāya jhānaṃ pāpuṇāti, tassa taṃ jhānaṃ dukkhapaṭipadaṃ dandhābhiññanti vuccati. Sesesu pi eseva nayo.

Cf. Peṭ 243: Tattha ye diṭṭhicaritā sattā, … te cetasikena dukkhena anajjhositā. Tena vuccati sukhā paṭipadā ti. Ye pana taṇhācaritā sattā, te kāmesu ajjhositā, … te piyarūpaṃ dukkhena paṭinissajjanti. Tena vuccati dukkhā paṭipadā ti. Iti ime sabbasattā dvīsu paṭipadāsu samosaraṇaṃ gacchanti dukkhāyañca sukhāyañca. Tattha ye diṭṭhicaritā sattā, te dvidhā mudindriyā ca tikkhindriyā ca. Tattha ye diṭṭhicaritā sattā tikkhindriyā sukhena paṭinissajjanti, khippañca abhisamenti, tena vuccati khippābhiññā sukhā paṭipadā ti. Tattha ye diṭṭhicaritā sattā mudindriyā paṭhamaṃ tikkhindriyaṃ upādāya dandhataraṃ abhisamenti, te sukhena paṭinissajjanti, dandhañca abhisamenti. Tena vuccati sukhā paṭipadā dandhābhiññā ti. Tattha taṇhācaritā sattā dvidhā tikkhindriyā ca mudindriyā ca. Tattha ye taṇhācaritā sattā tikkhindriyā dukkhena paṭinissajjanti, khippañca abhisamenti. Tena vuccati dukkhā paṭipadā khippābhiññā ti. Tattha ye taṇhācaritā sattā mudindriyā paṭhamaṃ tikkhindriyaṃ upādāya dandhataraṃ abhisamenti, te dukkhena paṭinissajjanti, dandhañca abhisamenti. Tena vuccati dukkhā paṭipadā dandhābhiññā ti.

[341] Cf. Vism III.19: Iti imāsu paṭipadā abhiññāsu yo puggalo dukkhāya paṭipadāya dandhāya ca abhiññāya samādhiṃ pāpuṇāti, tassa so samādhi dukkhāpaṭipado dandhābhiñño ti vuccati.

defilements with difficulty. Therefore his practice is painful.

Because of the sluggishness of faculties, a man of sluggish faculties has to practise jhāna for a long time to wake up his sluggish direct knowledge. Therefore, he is called [a man of] sluggish faculties. In this way all [the others] should be analysed.

And again, there are four kinds of concentration, namely, restricted concentration with a restricted object (paritta-ārammaṇa); restricted concentration with an immeasurable object (appamāṇa-ārammaṇa); immeasurable concentration with a restricted object; immeasurable concentration with an immeasurable object.

Q. What is "restricted concentration with a restricted object"? 407c10

A. The concentration that is not gained at will and has an object that is of restricted strength[342]—this is called "restricted concentration with a restricted object."

Q. What is "restricted concentration with an immeasurable object"?

A. The concentration that is not gained at will and has an object that is of great strength—this is called "restricted concentration with an immeasurable object."

Q. What is "immeasurable concentration with a restricted object"?

A. The concentration gained at will and has an object that is of restricted strength—this is called "immeasurable concentration with a restricted object."

Q. What is "immeasurable concentration with an immeasurable object"?

A. The concentration that is gained at will and has an object that is of great strength—this is called "immeasurable concentration with immeasurable object."

407c16 And again, there are four kinds of concentration: concentration due to zeal (chanda-samādhi); concentration due to energy (viriya); concentration due to mind (citta); concentration due to investigation (vīmaṃsa).[343]

What is attained by means of the development of zeal is "concentration due to zeal "; what is attained by means [of the development] of effort is concentration due to energy"; what is attained by means of the development of the mind is "concentration due to mind"; what is attained by means of the development of investigation is "concentration due to investigation."

And again, there are four kinds of concentration: the concentration to which Buddhas attain, but not hearers (sāvaka); the concentration to which hearers attain, but not Buddhas; the concentration to which both Buddhas and hearers attain; the concentration to which neither Buddhas nor hearers attain.

The attainment[344] of great compassion (mahākaruṇā-samāpatti) and the attainment of

---

342 RB: "The text actually has 'concentration' rather than 'object,' which is copyist's error. According to the footnote in the Taisho edition to 'object' in the fourth answer the Three Editions have 'concentration' instead, i.e. the same error as in the first answer."

The characters used for "powerful" are 精進, which normally correspond to viriya. Here it might correspond to śūra, "powerful, strong." Perhaps the Chinese translator interpreted vaḍḍhita, "increased, extended," in the sense of "become strong," cf. MW s.v. vṛddha.

Vism III.20: Tattha yo samādhi appaguṇo uparijhānassa paccayo bhavituṃ na sakkoti, ayaṃ paritto. Yo pana avaḍḍhite ārammaṇe pavatto, ayaṃ parittārammaṇo. Yo paguṇo subhāvito, uparijhānassa paccayo bhavituṃ sakkoti, ayaṃ appamāṇo. Yo ca vaḍḍhite ārammaṇe pavatto, ayaṃ appamāṇārammaṇo. …

"Herein, concentration that is unfamiliar/not-well-practised (appaguṇa) and incapable of being a condition for a higher jhāna is limited. Whenever it occurs/proceeds with an object that is not increased, it is having a limited object. …" Cf. M III 161: yasmiṃ kho me samaye paritto samādhi hoti, parittaṃ me tasmiṃ samaye cakkhu hoti. Sohaṃ parittena cakkhunā parittañceva obhāsaṃ sañjānāmi, parittāni ca rūpāni passāmi. Yasmiṃ pana me samaye appamāṇo samādhi hoti, appamāṇaṃ metasmiṃ samaye cakkhu hoti. Cf. the 12th and 13th triplets of the Abhidhammamātikā.

343 Cf. A I 39, 297.

344 In Chinese Vimuttimagga text, and in other Chinese translations too, the character used for samāpatti is the same as the one used for samādhi, 定, so one can only infer from the context and the Pali parallels which sense is intended. In the Pali only mahākaruṇā-samāpatti, phala-samāpatti, and anupubba-samāpatti are found, so this is likely what the original had here.

The Pali commentators explain that eight samāpattis can also be called samādhi because of the presence of unification of mind; see Vibh-a 463, Nett-a 167 (Be): Samāpattīsu hi paṭipāṭiyā aṭṭhannaṃ samāpattīnaṃ samādhī ti pi nāmaṃ samāpatti ti pi. Kasmā? Cittekaggatāsabbhāvato. Nirodhasamāpattiyā tadabhāvato na samādhī ti nāmaṃ.

the twin miracle (yamaka-pāṭihāriya) are concentrations of Buddhas and not of hearers.[345]

The Fruit attainment of the learner (sekhiya-phala-samāpatti) is a concentration of hearers and not of Buddhas.

The nine successive attainments (anupubba-samāpatti)[346] and the Fruit attainment of the non-learner are concentrations of both Buddhas and hearers.

The attainment of non-perception (asaññā-samāpatti)[347] is a concentration neither of Buddhas nor hearers. 407c24

And again, there are four kinds of concentration: the concentration that is for origination (uppāda) and not for cessation (nirodha); for cessation and not for origination; for both origination and cessation; for neither origination nor cessation.

Q. What is "for origination and not for cessation"?[348]

A. Wholesome and unwholesome concentration of the realm of sense-pleasures (kāmadhātu)—this is called "for origination and not for cessation."

The concentration of the fourfold Noble Path—this is "for cessation and not for origination."

Wholesome material and immaterial concentration of the learner and the commoner is "for origination and cessation." [408a]

All Fruit-concentrations[349] and functional (kiriya) concentrations—this is "neither for origination nor for cessation."

And again, there are four kinds of concentration: the first jhāna; the second jhāna; the third jhāna; the fourth jhāna.[350]

Seclusion from the five hindrances, the accomplishment of thinking, exploring, rapture, happiness and unification of mind—this is called "the first jhāna."

Seclusion from thinking and exploring and the accomplishment of the other three factors—this is called "the second jhāna."

Seclusion from rapture and the accomplishment of the other two factors—this is called "the third jhāna."

Seclusion from happiness and the accomplishment of equanimity and unification of mind—this is called "the fourth jhāna." 408a05

Five Kinds of Concentration

Again, there are five kinds of concentration, namely the first jhāna; the second jhāna; the third jhāna; the fourth jhāna; the fifth jhāna.[351]

---

[345] These are two of the 6 knowledges not shared by disciples, but particular to Buddhas; see Paṭis I 3, 125.

[346] The 8 material and immaterial concentration attainments plus nirodha-samāpatti. The usual form is anupubba-vihāra-samāpatti; see D III 265, A IV 409ff.; cf. M III 25ff. Sometimes in the Peṭakopadesa and some commentaries anupubba-samāpatti is used instead. See Peṭ 136: Tattha katamāyo nava anupubbasamāpattiyo? Cattāri jhānāni catasso ca arūpasamāpattiyo nirodhasamāpatti ca.

[347] The concentration that causes rebirth among the non-percipient-being gods (asaññasattā devā); see D I 28, D-a I 118.

[348] LC: "This passage is an expansion of the 10th triplet of the Abhidhamma-mātikā: ācayagāmino dhammā, apacayagāmino dhammā and neither of these. Apacayagāmin 'bringing about disaccumulation' refers to the magga as here. Ācayagāmin 'bringing about accumulation' is given here as kāmāvacara akusalacitta and kusalacitta, whereas in Dhs it includes all sāsava kusalacitta and kusalacitta. See Dhs §§1013–15 and §§1397–99. Similarly, in the neither category, we have here phala and kiriya concentration. Should this be phala and vipāka concentration? Or, phala and avyākata concentration? In the latter case, we would have no conflict with Dhs. Otherwise, one of vipāka and kiriya would be missing from the Chinese list. So Vim has simply taken kusala rūpāvacara and arūpāvacara from the ācayagāmin category and placed it in a new category of 'both'. This doesn't seem all that unreasonable, but Buddhaghosa perhaps considered it unorthodox; cf. Kv 356."

[349] Phalasamādhi. Cf. A-ṭ II 48 (Be): phalasamādhī ti catūsu pi ariyaphalesu samādhi. Cf. D-a III 1007: Idha phalasamāpattijhānāni, khīṇāsavassa aparabhāge nibbattitajhānāni ca kathitāni.

[350] See Vibh 263 for this enumeration of the 4 jhānas.

[351] In the Chinese only four jhānas are explained instead of five… The fourth is given as the seclusion from happiness, but then there is only "which is called equanimity and mental unification," 所謂捨一心. The translation has been amended in accordance with Vibh and the Tibetan quotation.

There are five jhānas in accordance with the five jhāna factors of thinking, exploring, rapture, happiness, and unification of mind.

Separated from the five hindrances and endowed with five factors—this is called "the first jhāna."

Separated from thinking and endowed with four factors—this is called "the second jhāna."

Separated from thinking and exploring, and endowed with three factors—this is called "the third jhāna."

Separated from thinking and rapture, and endowed with two factors—this is called "the fourth jhāna."

Separated from thinking and happiness, and endowed with two factors—equanimity and unification of mind—this is called "the fifth jhāna."

Why Four and Five Jhānas are Taught

Q. Why are four and five jhānas taught? 408a10

A. Because two [kinds of] men are taken,[352] there are two kinds of second jhāna, namely, without thinking and exploring, and without thinking and with a slight degree of exploring.

There is a meditator who produces the first jhāna with facility, and [then] produces the second jhāna.[353] He comprehends, recollects and considers the coarseness of thinking and exploring, also he knows the disadvantages of thinking and exploring, and produces the second jhāna which is without thinking and exploring. Thus he practises the four jhānas successively.

Again, there is another one who has already produced the first jhāna with facility and is now producing the second jhāna. He comprehends, recollects and considers the coarseness of thinking and knows the disadvantages of thinking. He discerns [the state] without thinking, which has a slight degree of exploring (vicāramatta), and produces the second jhāna. Thus he practises the five jhānas successively.

Therefore, the five jhānas are taught.[354]

And again, there are five kinds of concentration, namely, the five-factored right concentration: pervading with rapture (pharaṇa), pervading with happiness, pervading of mind, pervading with light and the reviewing-sign.[355]

Here in the first and the second jhānas there is "pervading with rapture." In the third

---

Vibh 264f: Idha bhikkhu yasmiṃ samaye rūpūpapattiyā maggaṃ bhāveti vivicceva kāmehi … paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharati pathavīkasiṇaṃ, tasmiṃ samaye pañcaṅgikaṃ jhānaṃ hoti, vitakko, vicāro, pīti, sukhaṃ, cittassekaggatā. Idaṃ vuccati paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ. Avasesā dhammā jhānasampayuttā. Idha bhikkhu … avitakkaṃ vicāramattaṃ vivekajaṃ pītisukhaṃ dutiyaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja … caturaṅgikaṃ jhānaṃ hoti, vicāro, pīti, sukhaṃ, cittassekaggatā. … Idha bhikkhu … vitakkavicārānaṃ vūpasamā … tatiyaṃ jhānaṃ … tivaṅgikaṃ jhānaṃ hoti, pīti, sukhaṃ, cittassekaggatā. … Idha bhikkhu … pītiyā ca virāgā … catutthaṃ jhānaṃ … duvaṅgikaṃ jhānaṃ hoti, sukhaṃ, cittassekaggatā. … Idha bhikkhu … sukhassa ca pahānā … pañcamaṃ jhānaṃ … duvaṅgikaṃ jhānaṃ hoti, upekkhā, cittassekaggatā. Idaṃ vuccati pañcamaṃ jhānaṃ. Cf. Dhs § 176ff, Vism III.21 & 25 /p.88

Daśabalaśrīmitra (251a): "The scripture of the Ariyasthavira Nikāya declares five jhānas, namely: Endowed with thinking and exploring, rapture, happiness and unification of mind, the first jhāna is endowed with five factors; endowed with exploring, rapture, happiness and unification of mind, the second jhāna is endowed with four factors; endowed with rapture, happiness and unification of mind, the third jhāna is endowed with three factors; endowed with happiness and unification of mind, the fourth jhāna is endowed with two factors; endowed with equanimity and unification of mind, the fifth jhāna is endowed with two factors."

[352] The v.l. in the Taishō ed. is taken here. The text reads: "Because the result depends on two [kinds of] men."

[353] The Chinese phrases the preceding and following sentences as a question and answer but this does not fit here.

[354] Dhs-a 178 Sannisinnadevaparisāya kira ekaccānaṃ devānaṃ vitakko eva oḷārikato upaṭṭhāsi, vicārapītisukhacittekaggatā santato. Tesaṃ sappāyavasena satthā caturaṅgikaṃ avitakkaṃ vicāramattaṃ dutiyajjhānaṃ nāma bhājesi.

[355] As elsewhere in Chinese texts, there is a mix-up of the characters used for saññā and nimitta. here.

jhāna there is "pervading with happiness." The knowledge of others' minds is called "pervading of mind." The knowledge of the divine eye is called "pervading with light." The The reviewing-knowledge of one who emerges from this or that concentration is the "reviewing-sign."[356] This is called "five-factored right concentration."408a20

And again, there are five kinds of concentration, namely, right concentration connected with the fivefold knowledge:

(1) The individual knowledge arises: "This concentration leads to present happiness and to resultant happiness in the future (āyatiṃ sukha-vipāka)"

(2) [The individual knowledge arises:] "This concentration is practised by the Noble Ones and is free from worldliness (nirāmisa)."

(3) [The individual knowledge arises:] "This concentration is practised by wise men."

(4) [The individual knowledge arises:] "This concentration is peaceful and exceedingly happy, it is attained through tranquillizing, accomplished through one-pointedness; it is not checked by forceful suppression."[357]

(5) The individual knowledge arises: "I enter upon this concentration mindfully and emerge from it mindfully." [358]

And again, when having analysed the meditation subjects, having analysed the practice of objects (ārammaṇa-bhāvanā?), and what is inferior, middling, or superior [in them], then concentration is of many kinds; yet each of all of these concentrations is to be understood as being included in four concentrations.[359]

---

[356] Cf. Vibh 334 § 804. Tattha katamo pañcaṅgiko sammāsamādhi? Pītipharaṇatā, sukhapharaṇatā, cetopharaṇatā, ālokapharaṇatā, paccavekkhaṇānimittaṃ. Dvīsu jhānesu paññā pītipharaṇatā. Tīsu jhānesu paññā sukhapharaṇatā. Paracitte ñāṇaṃ cetopharaṇatā. Dibbacakkhu ālokapharaṇatā. Tamhā tamhā samādhimhā vuṭṭhitassa paccavekkhaṇāñāṇaṃ paccavekkhaṇānimittaṃ. Ayaṃ vuccati pañcaṅgiko sammāsamādhi. Cf. Vibh-a 420f, Paṭis I 48, Paṭis-a I 125f, D III 277, D-a 1059, Nett 89.

[357] 非伏生死, lit. "it is not overcome by saṃsāra" or "it does not overcome/suppress saṃsāra," which must be due to the translator misunderstanding the difficult compound na sasaṅkhāra-niggayha-vāritavata, "not blocked and checked by forceful suppression" (= Bh. Bodhi's translation; Connected Discourses of the Buddha I p. 117 and 371 n. 88.) as na saṃsāra-niggayha.

[358] This passage is cryptic in the Chinese. The fourth knowledge is given two times, with some different characters for the same Indic terms. (Vim 408a23–24‖此定寂寂快樂猗所得成就無二不伏生死。此定寂寂最樂猗成一性所得非伏生死). This confused EKS and caused them to make the first knowledge part of the introduction. This duplication might be due to the Chinese translator forgetting to remove his alternative translation, or it might be due a copyist inserting a translation in more legible and modern characters. The punctuation in the Taishō edition leads to further confusion, e.g., the "I" (我) in the last passage belongs to the next knowledge.

Vibh 334: § 804, A III 24, D III 278: katamo pañcañāṇiko sammāsamādhi? Ayaṃ samādhi paccuppannasukho ceva āyatiñca sukhavipāko ti paccattaññeva ñāṇaṃ uppajjati. Ayaṃ samādhi ariyo nirāmiso ti .... Ayaṃ samādhi akāpurisasevito ti ... Ayaṃ samādhi santo paṇīto paṭippassaddhaladdho ekodibhāvādhigato na sasaṅkhāraniggayha-vāritagato ti .... So kho panāhaṃ imaṃ samādhiṃ sato samāpajjāmi sato vuṭṭhahāmī ti paccattaññeva ñāṇaṃ uppajjati. Ayaṃ pañcañāṇiko sammāsamādhi. Evaṃ pañcavidhena ñāṇavatthu.

[359] This closing paragraph suggests that the fourfold classification (sense realm, material realm, immaterial realm, and unincluded concentration) is the basic one despite all subdivision because it includes all kinds of concentration.

Chapter 5: Searching for a Good Friend

Q. Now, how is concentration brought about?

A. If a beginner meditator wishes to generate jhāna-concentration, he should search for a superior good friend. [408b] Why? When a beginner meditator wishing to generate jhāna-concentration in order to obtain the supreme concentration is apart from a good friend, he will not accomplish [concentration] partaking of steadiness (ṭhitibhāgiya). As is said in the Suttas: "Meghiya bhikkhu partakes of falling back (hānabhāgiya)."[360] It is like a man who sets out alone on a distant journey with no companion to guide him, going by himself as he wishes like an elephant that is not guided by the goad. If a meditator who [desires to] practise, goes and finds a good friend, who expounds him the Dhamma and teaches him the Discipline (vinaya), and makes him accept it, showing him to remove afflictions, and obtain wholesome states, then he should follow his instructions and practise and endeavour arduously to obtain the supreme concentration.

Qualities of the Good Friend

The good friend is like a wealthy merchant chief respected by all. He is like a kind good-hearted person. He is like a kind parent. He is like one who chains an elephant to make it immovable. He is like a royal chariot driver who makes the [horses] comply to go forward or stand still. He is like a man [on a boat] who holds the rudder to get the right course. He is like a physician who cures a disease to eliminate suffering. He is like the rain from heaven which moistens and benefits the plants. He is like a mother who nurses her child. He is like a father who guides his son. He is like a parent who wards [a child] from perils. He is like a friend who helps. And he is like a teacher who instructs [his pupils]. All wholesome states depend on him for their fulfilment. Therefore the Blessed One declared to Ānanda: "Good friendship is the whole of the holy life."[361] Therefore, one should search for a superior good person,[362] for a good friend.

Q. What is the meaning of "superior good friend"? 408b14

A. The [first] meaning is that he is one who is accomplished to some extent. He is one who clearly understands the Suttas, Abhidhamma and Vinaya. The [second] meaning is that he is one who is fully accomplished. He is one who clearly understands the different kinds of kamma, has skill in the direct knowledges (abhiññā) and has vision (dassana) of the Four Noble Truths.[363]

These two kinds of men are accomplished in virtuous qualities. They should be searched for. If these two kinds of men accomplished in virtuous qualities cannot be found, a good friend endowed with seven factors should be searched for.

Q. What are the seven factors?

A. He is loveable, respectable, venerable, he is one who speaks and can bear speech, he is a speaker of profound talk, and is not committed to unsuitable causes.[364]

---

[360] Untraced. Cf. A IV 357: Idha Meghiya bhikkhu kalyāṇamitto hoti kalyāṇasahāyo kalyāṇasampavaṅko. Aparipakkāya Meghiya cetovimuttiyā ayaṃ paṭhamo dhammo aparipakkāya saṃvattati.

[361] S I 87–8: Sakalam eva hidaṃ Ānanda brahmacariyaṃ yad idaṃ kalyāṇa-mittatā kalyāṇa-sahāyatā kalyāṇa-sampavaṅkatā. Cf. A IV 351–52: Idhāvuso, bhikkhu kalyāṇamitto hoti kalyāṇasahāyo kalyāṇasampavaṅko. Sambodhipakkhikānaṃ, āvuso, dhammānaṃ ayaṃ paṭhamā upanisā bhāvanāya. … Kalyāṇamittassetaṃ, bhikkhave, bhikkhuno pāṭikaṅkhaṃ … paññavā bhavissati udayatthagāminiyā paññāya samannāgato ariyāya nibbedhikāya sammā dukkhakkhayagāminiyā.

[362] Sn-a I 331: … tasmā have sappurisaṃ bhajetha. Kīdisaṃ sappurisaṃ bhajetha? Medhāvinañceva bahussutañca, paññāsampattiyā ca medhāvinaṃ vuttappakārasutadvayena ca bahussutaṃ.

[363] Two persons are intended: The first is one who has book-knowledge, but not full practical knowledge, and is therefore "accomplished to some extent (有所成就)." The second person is the arahant, who is "fully accomplished" (所得成就). Cf. Vism III.62–65.

[364] A IV 32: Sattahi bhikkhave dhammehi samannāgato bhikkhu mitto sevitabbo … Piyo hoti manāpo

Q. What is "loveable"? 408b20

A. This is dependent on two kinds of conduct: wholesome speech to those he dwells together with (saddhivihāri), and to gladly understand [them] without difficulty—this is called "loveable."

"Respectable" means that he has virtuous conduct, is calm and quiet, guards [his sense-faculties], is endowed with mindfulness, and has no desire to speak much—this is called "respectable."

"Venerable" means that he has much learning, is endowed with good qualities, knows meditation, and is revered—this is "venerable."

"One who speaks": thinking "Let my speech be lovable, respectable, venerable and fruitful." Only to benefit others and out of esteem for the Dhamma, he restrains [others from doing things] that ought not to be done and helps [them] to the end without forsaking. This is called "one who speaks."[365]

"One who can bear speech" means that he is able to understand without hesitation and impropriety, and that his speech has the general characteristics of that of a noble one. This is called "one who can bear speech."[366] 408b27

"A speaker of profound talk" means that he penetrates the meditation subjects (kammaṭṭhāna). When he analyses, perceives, recollects, attends, fixes, pursues, all of these are due to the grasping the sign (nimitta, lakkhaṇa) of what is spoken well in accordance with the Dhamma. When he, in accordance with the Dhamma, does not grasp the sign of the defilements, he is able to cause cessation [of the defilements]. This is called "a speaker of profound talk."[367]

"Not committed to unsuitable causes" [408c] means that he avoids unsuitable causes such as family, clan, dwellings, building-work, groups (of students), recitation and writing.[368] But if he practises in a place adequate for the goal, and obtains ease (phāsu), then in that place he can live. This is "not committed towards unsuitable causes."

The good friend endowed with these seven qualities can be searched for.

The Search for a Good Friend

Q. How should one search?

A. If one knows that in such and such a monastery there is one who has these qualities and is respected, and if he is a teacher of meditation, one should go to him. If one does not ca, garu ca, bhāvanīyo ca, vattā ca, vacanakkhamo ca, gambhīrañ ca kathaṃ kattā hoti, no ca aṭṭhāne niyojeti. Cf. Vism 98; Nett 164.

---

[365] Nett-a 250 (Be): Vattāti kālena vakkhāmītiādipañcadhamme attani upaṭṭhāpetvā sabrahmacārīnaṃ ullumpanabhāve ṭhatvā vattā. S-a I 123: Vattāti odhunanavattā. Bhikkhūnaṃ ajjhācāraṃ disvā ajja kathessāmi, sve kathessāmī ti kathāvavatthānaṃ na karoti, tasmiṃ tasmiṃ yeva ṭhāne ovadati anusāsatīti attho. S-a II 241: Vattāti pare yadicchakaṃ vadati yeva. Cp-a 288: … codako pāpagarahī vattā …

[366] The Chinese is cryptic. Cf. Nett-a 250 (Be): Vacanakkhamoti dhammaṃ saṃvaṇṇento parehi asaṃhīro hutvā tesaṃ pucchāvacanakkhamatāya vacanakkhamo. S-a I 123: Vacanakkhamoti vacanaṃ khamati. Eko hi parassa ovādaṃ deti, sayaṃ pana aññena ovadiyamāno kujjhati. … A-a IV 24: Vacanakkhamoti vacanaṃ khamati, dinnaṃ ovādaṃ karoti.

[367] The Chinese is difficult to follow. For the sign of defilements, kilesanimitta, see 454c04.

Cf. Cp-a 288: … sutasampattiyā sattānaṃ hitasukhāvahaṃ gambhīraṃ dhammakathaṃ kattā hoti, cāgasampattiyā appiccho hoti santuṭṭho pavivitto asaṃsaṭṭho, vīriyasampattiyā āraddhavīriyo hoti sattānaṃ hitapaṭipattiyaṃ, satisampattiyā upaṭṭhitasati hoti anavajjadhammesu, samādhisampattiyā avikkhitto hoti samāhitacitto, paññāsampattiyā aviparītaṃ pajānāti, so satiyā kusalākusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ gatiyo samanvesamāno paññāya sattānaṃ hitāhitaṃ yathābhūtaṃ jānitvā samādhinā tattha ekaggacitto hutvā vīriyena ahitā satte nisedhetvā hite niyojeti. Nett-a 251 (Be): Gambhīrañca kathaṃ kattāti saccapaṭiccasamuppādādiṃ, aññaṃ vā gambhīrakathaṃ kattā. A-a IV 24: Gambhīranti guyhaṃ rahassaṃ jhānanissitaṃ vipassanāmaggaphalanibbānanissitaṃ. Abhidh-av-pṭ II 215: Gambhīrañca kathaṃ kattāti tiracchānakathaṃ akathetvā dasakathāvatthupaṭisaṃyuttaṃ gambhīrameva kathaṃ kattā.

[368] Cf. the obstructions, pāḷibodha, at Vism III.29/p.90. In Pali the terms niyojeti & niyojaka have the sense of urging others, see Cp-a 288 in the preceding fn. Cf. Nett-a 251: Na caṭṭhāne niyojakoti dhammavinayādiṃ adhammāvinayādivasena avatvā dhammavinayādivaseneva dīpanato na ca aṭṭhāne niyojako. Abhidh-av-pṭ II 215: No caṭṭhāne niyojakoti appavattitabbaṭṭhānabhūte ahite na niyojako.

know of such a person, but a fellow-student knows, then one should go to visit him in person.

At the proper time, and in accordance with the rules, [one approaches the fellow-student] and not yet stating one's intentions, one salutes him respectfully, asks about his day-to-day life, and then consults him as to where one should go, thus: "In which country and in which monastery are there numerous quiet dwelling places? Are there communities (saṅgha) of meditators there? Is there a meditation teacher there? If so, for what practices and for what qualities is he honoured by all"? Thus one should ask.

The fellow-student should answer: "In such and such a country, in such and such a monastery, there are such numerous [peaceful dwelling places and communities of] meditators and there is such a meditation teacher who is honoured by all." 408c10

When one has heard this, and has deeply considered it, one rejoices and should go to that place to visit that teacher and practise [the meditation subject that] one receives .

Adjusting one's robes, one should go to one's preceptor (upajjhāya) and tell him about one's aspiration: "O preceptor, listen to me. I should go to visit the meditation teacher in person."

The preceptor should listen and reply: Very well! I too rejoice. [The visiting of] that good man (sappurisa) is what is to be done.[369] This is called dwelling together with a good man. A good man is to be practised with. It is the practice that is in accordance with the Dhamma (anudhamma). When one sees and hears him, one obtains great benefit, let alone when dwelling together with him. You should go to him. Having gone there, be careful and don't be negligent.

If one can diligently practise and train with the good man, at one time or all the time, one [should] increase faith, respect and sincerity [towards him]. One should speak wholesome words, guard the body and the mouth, awaken understanding and practise. One should [then] attain perfection.[370] 408c18

All depends on the teacher. One must not give rise to contempt towards him. Just as a newly-wed bride going to serve her father-in-law and mother-in-law, one should give rise to conscience and shame towards him. One should listen to him and accept his instructions and admonishments.

If one sees that his pupils lack robes or medicines, when one goes, one arranges [what is lacking] according to the rule.

When he has been taught the Dhamma, has been instructed and admonished, and is dismissed, the meditator adjusts his robes, circumambulates the teacher and bows at his feet.[371]

When he is going on the way (to the monastery where the teacher lives), and there is a bathing-site along the path in an orchard outside [the village], he should go to that spot, and place his bowl, robes, sandals, water-jar and meditation-mat on a high place which is not near the water. He should bathe without making noise. After bathing, he tidies and adjusts his robes, puts on the upper-garment (uttarāsaṅga), and, carrying bowl, robe and the meditation mat on his right shoulder, rolls the double cloak (saṅghāṭi) and puts it on top of his shoulder.

On entering a monastery, he lowers his umbrella and circumambulates the stupa. If he [369] The Chinese text is unclear, but presumably 善人, sappurisa, refers to the good friend, kalyāṇamitta, not to the monk who is in search. In Pali texts sappurisa and kalyāṇamitta are used alongside each other, e.g. Dhp-a II 111: … kalyāṇamittā ceva sappurisā ca, te bhajetha payirupāsethāti; Th-a II 109 on Th v.264: Pāpamitte vivajjetvā, bhajeyyuttamapuggalaṃ; Ovāde cassa tiṭṭheyya, patthento acalaṃ sukhaṃ. … Tattha pāpamitteti akalyāṇamitte asappurise hīnavīriye. … Bhajeyyuttamapuggalanti sappurisaṃ paṇḍitaṃ kalyāṇamittaṃ ovādānusāsanīgahaṇavasena seveyya. Th-a III 61: … tādise sappurise kalyāṇamitte bhajantu sevantu.

---

[370] The Chinese in this section is often unclear as to whom is being referred to, etc, and difficult to follow. It appears to be garbled.

[371] This passage is garbled in the Chinese. It has: "He teaches the Dhamma, instructs and admonishes, until about to be dismissed, he goes and sits and teaches through good dhammas, the meditator …" Because the next part is on entering the monastery of the good friend, could it be that this part is the end of the advice by the preceptor of the one in search?

sees any bhikkhu, he should go to him and ask: "Is there a meditator in this place? [If there] isn't, is there one who wears refuse-rag robes (paṃsukūlika)? Isn't there one who eats begged-food (piṇḍapātika)? Isn't there a teacher of discipline? Where does he dwell? How does one go to his dwelling? [409a] If there is one, I should go him. If this person isn't there and if there is a teacher of discipline, then I should also go to him. If there is no teacher of discipline, who is the senior monk (thera)? I should go to him."

If the monk who receives one is more more senior [than oneself], one should not hand him one's bowl and robe, but if he is junior, one should. If there is no one to receive one, one places one's bowl and robe on the ground. When one sees the senior monk, one bows at his feet and sits at one side.

According to the rules [for resident monks],[372] a resident monk provides one with a seat and water, and [shows] the bathing-place. He gives information, puts away one's bowl and robe and shows the toilet.

[According to] the rules for visitor monks, before sundown one should go around in the monastery.

If one sees a teacher of discipline, one should talk with him and ask him concerning doubtful points, offences and non-offences. Or, if one sees a teacher of Abhidhamma, one should inquire about wisdom sprung from practice, about the aggregates, sense-bases and elements and about kamma. If one sees an ascetic, one should inquire about wisdom associated with the ascetic-qualities (dhuta-guṇa). If he lives there, one should go daily to make inquiries.

If one wishes to leave, one folds and piles up the bedding [in the lodging] and bows at the senior' monk's feet and informs that one leaves. These are the rules for visiting monks. 409a12

In the monastery the meditator should live in close association with the meditation teacher. When the meditation teacher arrives, one should take his bowl and robe, even though he is junior.[373]

If in accordance with the teachings of the teacher, one should do [something, one should immediately practice it] or if one should not do [something], one immediately should not do it and should let go of it. This is the first of what is to be done and it must be practiced.

If he (i.e., the teacher) wishes to teach people, one lets them learn first [as these] meditators learn teachings one has already done before. (學坐禪人先已行法) [In the meantime] one looks after the [teacher's] dwelling-place and arranges his bowl and robes. 409a16 After some time has passed by, he, knowing the right time, approaches the teacher of meditation, worships him respectfully, and should sit silently for a little while.

If the meditation teacher asks what one wants, one should speak about one's wish. If he does not ask, then one should not speak. Thereupon should he ask for tooth-sticks and water for washing, etc, one should prepare and serve these in the proper way.

When the time for going on alms-round arrives, he should go to the teacher and ask, in accordance with the rule,[374] what should be done.

When the meal-time arrives, one should wash the teacher's feet, arrange his seat, give him his bowl and ask the teacher to take as much as he wants from one's own bowl. Having put down one's own bowl, one takes out [the food one does not need] and shares it with [his other] disciples. Thus one helps and thus one has no difficulties. After finishing the meal, one takes the teacher's bowl, washes it entirely, and puts it in its place.

Knowing the right time, he approaches the teacher of meditation, worships him respectfully, and should sit silently for a little while. Should the teacher ask, then one

---

[372] What is described here are duties for visiting monks and resident monks (āgantukavatta & āvāsikavatta) given in detail in the Vattakkhandhaka of the Vinaya Piṭaka at Vin II 207–209

[373] From the viewpoint of Vinaya, this sign of respect would be inappropriate. It might be that the Chinese translator misunderstood the original. Vism (III.68/p.100) has "If the teacher is junior, he should not consent to the teacher's receiving his bowl and robe, and so on," sace ācariyo daharataro hoti, pattacīvarapaṭiggahaṇādīni na sāditabbāni.

[374] This would refer to duties such as giving the robes, bowl, etc, as part of the upajjhāyavatta at Vin II 222.

should speak about one's wish. Should the teacher not ask, one worships him respectfully and asks him to listen: "I shall now say what I wanted to say from the start. If I am permitted, would like to ask." Should the teacher permit, one says everything. Should the teacher not ask, one should worship him.

When one has found the right time, one should say: "I have come for a reason. Please, teacher, listen to what I say." If the teacher listens, one should tell him everything that one wants. The teacher says, "Very well! I shall instruct you according to the rule and you should accept it."

Therefore, the Blessed One [409b] spoke these verses:[375]

By [going at] the right time and closely associating,
And by making his mind free from arrogance,
One who leads the holy life can protect the Dhamma.

Like a tree that is not [swayed by] winds,
One recollects the Dhamma and practises,
Until the joy of Dhamma becomes one's own happiness.

Dwelling in the Dhamma, comprehending the Dhamma,
One should speak on the Dhamma as it really is,
One should not defame the Dhamma,
[Through] frivolous talk, sorrowing, and merriment.

Anger, indolence, wrath, greed, pride, delusion, Craving, passion, obstinacy, and so on—
By practising, one entirely overcomes [these].

One guards the good, not one's own pride,
Understanding wholesomemess, one's words are sincere.
For the sake of [attaining] concentration,
One sincerely understands and learns.

If a man is always heedless,
Wisdom sprung from learning doesn't grow.
If a man understands the True Dhamma,
He is respected by gods and humans,
Respected, he is confident of mind.

Much learning can protect the Dhamma,
It causes one to attain the happiness of learning.

Thus the qualities that are in accordance with the Dhamma
Can be practised and give rise to the supreme liberation
That is achieved by the wise person.

If one has such a kind of teacher,
One should practise heedfully. 409b16

375 Not traced.

Chapter 6: Treatise on Temperaments (Caritaniddesa)

Kinds of Temperament

Now, when the teacher (ācariya) on whom one depends has observed one's temperament (carita or cariyā) for some days he should teach a meditation subject (kammaṭṭhāna) suitable to one's temperament.

Here, temperament means the fourteen kinds of temperament:

1. greed temperament (rāga-cariyā),
2. hate temperament (dosa-cariyā),
3. delusion temperament (moha-cariyā),
4. faith temperament (saddhā-cariyā),
5. intelligence temperament (buddhi-cariyā),
6. thinking temperament (vitakka-cariyā),
7. greed and hate temperament (rāga-dosa-cariyā),
8. greed and delusion temperament (rāga-moha-cariyā),
9. hate and delusion temperament (dosa-moha-cariyā),
10. [greed, hate and delusion-] in-equal-parts temperament (rāga-dosa-moha-samabhāga-cariyā),[376]
11. faith and intelligence temperament (saddhā-buddhi-cariyā),
12. faith and thinking temperament (saddhā-vitakka-cariyā),
13. intelligence and thinking temperament (buddhi-vitakka-cariyā),
14. [faith, intelligence and thinking-] in-equal-parts temperament (saddhā-buddhi-vitakka-samabhāga-cariyā).

Again, various other temperaments can also be known, [such as] craving, views, and conceit (taṇhā-, diṭṭhi-, māna-), etc. Thus, the greed temperament, the inclination towards greed (lobha) and the nature of being attached to pleasure—these do not differ in meaning.[377] [409c]

Fourteen Persons

Fourteen persons proceed from the fourteen kinds of temperament:

1. the person with a greed temperament (rāgacarita puggala),
2. the person with a hate temperament,
3. the person with a delusion temperament,
4. the person with a faith temperament,
5. the person with an intelligence temperament,
6. the person with a thinking temperament,
7. the person with a greed and hate temperament,
8. the person with a greed and delusion temperament,
9. the person with a hate and delusion temperament,
10. the person with a [greed, hate and delusion] in equal parts temperament,
11. the person with a faith and intelligence temperament,
12. the person with a faith and thinking temperament,
13. the person with an intelligence and thinking temperament,
14. the person with a [faith, intelligence and thinking-] in-equal-parts temperament.

---

[376] Cf. Peṭ 140: Tattha yāni cha puggalamūlāni tesaṃ nikkhipetvā rāgacarito, dosacarito, mohacarito, rāgadosacarito, rāgamohacarito, dosamohacarito, samabhāgacarito,… Peṭ 144: Tattha rāgadosamohasamabhāgacaritassa puggalassa visesabhāgiyaṃ jhānaṃ hoti, … Vism III. 74 mentions (and rejects) this classification: Keci pana rāgādīnaṃ saṃsaggasannipātavasena aparā pi catasso, tathā saddhādīnan-ti imāhi aṭṭhahi saddhiṃ cuddasa icchanti.

[377] The Chinese is cryptic. The end of the next section is similar. Cf. Vism III 74/p.101: Evaṃ pana bhede vuccamāne rāgādīnaṃ saddhādīhipi saṃsaggaṃ katvā anekā cariyā honti, tasmā saṅkhepena chaḷeva cariyā veditabbā. Cariyā, pakati, ussannatāti atthato ekaṃ. Vism III.78/p.102: Apare taṇhāmānadiṭṭhivasena aparāpi tisso cariyā vadanti. Tattha taṇhā rāgoyeva, māno ca taṃsampayuttoti tadubhayaṃ rāgacariyaṃ nātivattati. Mohanidānattā ca diṭṭhiyā diṭṭhicariyā mohacariyameva anupatati.

Thus the person with a greed temperament, the person with a greed [and delusion] temperament and the person with greed, [hate and delusion] temperament are inclined to greed and have the nature of desiring pleasure—these are called "persons with a greed temperament."[378]

His greed is constantly active and greed is predominant (adhika)—this is called "greed temperament."[379] Thus all [temperaments] should be explained. 409c06

Seven Persons

Now, when these fourteen persons are abridged they become seven persons. Thus, the person with a greed temperament and the person with a faith temperament are one; the person with a hate temperament and the person with an intelligence temperament are one; the person with a delusion temperament and the person with a thinking temperament are one; the person with a greed and hatred temperament and the person with a faith and intelligence temperament are one; the person with a greed and delusion temperament and the person with a faith and thinking temperament are one; the person with a hate and delusion temperament and the person with an intelligence and thinking temperament are one; the two in-equal-parts temperaments are one.[380]

Q. How are the person with a greed temperament and the person with a faith temperament one?

A. In the person with a greed temperament, faith on the side of the wholesome (kusalapakkha) is predominant due to its qualities being proximate to greed.[381]

Again, in three ways greed and faith are one: in the sense of agreeableness (iṭṭha), in the sense of searching for qualities (guṇa), and in the sense of non-abandoning. 409c14

Herein, greed means thoughts of desire; faith means thoughts of wholesomeness. Greed means the search for sense-desire qualities (kāma-guṇa); faith means the search for wholesome qualities. Greed has non-abandoning of the non-agreeable as characteristic; faith has non-abandoning of the agreeable as characteristic.[382] Therefore, the greed temperament and the faith temperament are one.

Q. How are the person with a hate temperament and the person with an intelligence temperament one?

A. In a person with a hate temperament, wisdom on the side of the wholesome is predominant due to its qualities being proximate to hate.

And again, in three ways hate and intelligence are one: not sticking, searching for faults (dosa), repulsion.

Herein, as a person with a hate temperament does not stick [to others], so an person with an intelligence temperament does not stick to formations. As a person with a hate temperament searches faults [in others], so a person with an intelligence temperament searches the faults of formations. As a person with a hate temperament shuns [others], so a person with an intelligence temperament shuns the formations. Therefore, the person with a hate temperament and the person with a intelligence temperament are one because of equality.[383]

Q. How are the person with a delusion temperament and the person with a thinking temperament

---

[378] See preceding footnote.

[379] Cf. Nett-a 273 (Be): Rāgacarito ti rāgasahitaṃ caritaṃ etassā ti rāgacarito. Rāgena vā carito pavattito rāgacarito, rāgajjhāsayo rāgādhiko ti attho. Esa nayo sesesupi.

[380] Rāga = saddhā; dosa = buddhi; moha = vitakka; rāga-dosa = saddhā-buddhi; rāga-moha = saddhā-vitakka; dosa-moha = buddhi-vitakka. The two "in-equal-part temperaments" are the person with a greed, hate and delusion temperament and the person with a faith, intelligence and speculation temperament.

[381] Vism III.75/p.102: Tattha yasmā rāgacaritassa kusalappavattisamaye saddhā balavatī hoti, rāgassa āsannaguṇattā. Vism-mhṭ I 121: Saddhā balavatī hoti rāgussanne santāne tadanuguṇassa dhammassa niyogato adhikabhāvasambhavato. Tenāha rāgassa āsannaguṇattāti, sinehapariyesanāpariccajanehi sabhāgadhammattāti attho. Sabhāgo hi dūrepi āsanneyevāti sabhāgatālakkhaṇamidha āsannaggahaṇaṃ. Yathā hi akusalapakkhe rāgo siniddho nātilūkho, evaṃ kusalapakkhe saddhā.

[382] Vism III.75/p.102: Yathā rāgo vatthukāme pariyesati, evaṃ saddhā sīlādiguṇe. Yathā rāgo ahitaṃ na pariccajati, evaṃ saddhā hitaṃ na pariccajati, tasmā rāgacaritassa saddhācarito sabhāgo.

The characters 有愛 and 可愛 correspond to iṭṭha elsewhere in the Vim, not to hita of the Vism parallel. For hita, the characters 饒益 are used.

[383] Vism III.76/p.102: Yasmā pana dosacaritassa kusalappavattisamaye paññā balavatī hoti, dosassa āsannaguṇattā. Yathā hi akusalapakkhe doso nissineho na ārammaṇaṃ allīyati, evaṃ kusalapakkhe paññā. Yathā ca doso abhūtampi dosameva pariyesati, evaṃ paññā bhūtaṃ dosameva. Yathā doso sattaparivajjanākārena pavattati, evaṃ paññā saṅkhāraparivajjanākārena, tasmā dosacaritassa buddhicarito sabhāgo.

one?

A. In a person with a delusion temperament, [obstructive] thinking about obtaining wholesomeness is predominant due to its qualities being proximate to delusion, and [they are one] due to movement and separation of faith and wisdom.[384]

And again, in two ways delusion and thinking are one: instability and movement. Thus, as delusion is not stable because of perplexity, so thinking is not stable because of various modes of thinking. As delusion moves because of having no goal (無所趣向), so thinking moves because of levity. Therefore, the person with a delusion temperament and the person with a thinking temperament are one because of equality.[385]

Through these means the other temperaments can be analysed. Thus these [fourteen persons] are abridged to seven persons.

Quick and Slow Practice

Q. Among the seven, which persons are of quick practice and which are of slow practice? [410a]

A. The person with a greed temperament is of quick practice, because of being easily guided, because of the strength of faith and because of the weakness of delusion and thinking.

The person with a hate temperament is of quick practice, because of being easily guided, because of the strength of intelligence and because of the weakness of delusion and thinking.

The person with a delusion temperament is of slow practice, because of being guided with difficulty, because of the strength of delusion and thinking, and because of the weakness of faith and intelligence.

The person with a greed and hate temperament is of quick practice, because of being easily guided, because of the strength of faith and intelligence, and because of the weakness of delusion and thinking.

The person with a greed and delusion temperament is of slow practice, because of being guided with difficulty, because of non-stability of faith, and because of the strength of delusion and thinking.

The person with a hate and delusion temperament is of slow practice, because of being guided with difficulty, because of non-stability of intelligence and because of the strength of delusion and thinking.

The in-equal-parts temperaments are of slow practice, because of being guided with difficulty, because of non stability of intelligence and because of the strength of delusion and thinking.

Three Persons

Now, these seven persons become three by way of their fundamental defilements (mūlakilesa): the person with a greed temperament, person with a hate temperament and person with a delusion temperament. 410a10

Q. What are the causes of these three kinds of temperament? How is it to be known it to be known "This person has a greed temperament; this person has a hate temperament; and this person has a delusion temperament"? How may they be distinguished through wearing robes, begging for food, sitting and lying down, resort and postures? 410a12

A. Former habits are causes of temperament; the elements are causes of temperament; the humours (dosa, doṣa) are causes of temperament.[386]

Q. How are former habits causes of temperament?

A. One who because of [much] agreeable undertakings and much beautiful deeds in former

---

[384] The Chinese has "due to movement (and) separation (of) faith (and) wisdom" (信慧動離故), which has no parallel in the Vism. Perhaps 離, "separation," stands for "non-stability," as given in the next paragraph. Cf. "non stability of faith" (不安信) and "non stability of intelligence" (不安意) in the next section at 410a06–07.

[385] Vism III.77/p.102: Yasmā pana mohacaritassa anuppannānaṃ kusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ uppādāya vāyamamānassa yebhuyyena antarāyakarā vitakkā uppajjanti, mohassa āsannalakkhaṇattā. Yathā hi moho paribyākulatāya anavaṭṭhito, evaṃ vitakko nānappakāravitakkanatāya. Yathā ca moho apariyogāhaṇatāya cañcalo. Tathā vitakko lahuparikappanatāya, tasmā mohacaritassa vitakkacarito sabhāgoti.

[386] Cf. Vism III.80/p.102: Tatra purimā tāva tisso cariyā pubbāciṇṇanidānā dhātudosanidānā cā ti ekacce vadanti. Pubbe kira iṭṭhappayogasubhakammabahulo rāgacarito hoti; saggā vā cavitvā idhūpapanno. Pubbe chedanavadhabandhanaverakammabahulo dosacarito hoti; nirayanāga yonīhi vā cavitvā idhūpapanno. Pubbe majjapānabahulo sutaparipucchāvihīno ca mohacarito hoti, tiracchānayoniyā va cavitvā idhūpapanno ti. Dhammapāla Thera comments upon 'ekacce' thus: Ekacce ti upatissattheraṃ sandhāyāha. Tena hi Vimuttimagge tathā vuttaṃ—Vism-mhṭ 103. Cf. S. Mori, 1988, p. 6–7.

[existences] becomes a person with a greed temperament, and also one who is reborn here after passing away from heaven.

One who in former [existences] did inimical deeds of killing, injuring, and torturing,410a15, becomes a person with a hate temperament, and also one who has hidden his disagreeable deeds, and one who is reborn here after passing away from a hell or serpent (nāga) birth.

One who in former [existences] had drunk much intoxicating drink and was devoid of learning [and questioning][387] becomes a person with a delusion temperament, and also one who is reborn here after passing away from an animal state.

Thus deeds done formerly become causes of temperament. 410a18

Q. How are the elements causes of temperament?

A. Because of the prominence of two elements one becomes a person with a delusion temperament, namely, the earth element and the water element.

Because of the prominence of two elements, one is a person with a hate temperament, namely, the fire element and the wind element.

Because of the equality of the four elements, one is a person with a greed temperament.

Thus the elements are causes of temperament.

Q. How are the humours causes of temperament?

A. One who has phlegm in predominance is a person with a greed temperament. 410a22 One who has bile[388] in predominance is a person with a hate temperament. One who has wind in predominance is a person with a delusion temperament.

Again, some say that one who has phlegm in predominance is a person with a delusion temperament, and one who has wind in predominance is a person with a greed temperament.[389]

Thus the humours are causes of temperament.

Seven Aspects of Temperament

Q. How it can be known that a person has a greed temperament, a hate temperament or a delusion temperament?

A. It can be known through seven ways, namely, through the object, through the defilements, through gait, through robing, through eating, through work and through lying down.[390]

Object

Q. How it can be known "through the object" (ārammaṇa)?

A. When a person with a greed temperament sees some object, whether unfamiliar or already seen, he always disregards its genuine faults and delights in even a little merit of it. He cannot free himself of the desire for it. Having seen it, he can not give it up when he departs. [410b] Towards the other sense-objects [he behaves] in the same way.[391] Thus it can be known that he is a person with a greed temperament.

When a person with a hate temperament sees some object, he can not look long as if he were tired. Picking faults, he much blames people. He does not delight in even things with great merit. When departing, he does so without regret. Only through [finding] faults he obtains success.[392] Towards the other sense-objects he behaves in the same way. Thus it can be known that he is a person with a hate temperament.

When a person with a delusion temperament sees some object, he trusts others as regards its merits and demerits. Because on his own he does not know, when he hears the blaming of others, he also blames, and when he hears the praising of others, he also praises. Towards the other sense-objects

---

[387] Read 離聞 instead of 離間.

[388] Read 膽, not 瞻.

[389] Cf. Vism III.81/p.103: Dvinnaṃ pana dhātūnaṃ ussannattā puggalo mohacarito hoti pathavīdhātuyā ca āpodhātuyā ca. Itarāsaṃ dvinnaṃ ussannattā dosacarito. Sabbāsaṃ samattā pana rāgacaritoti. Dosesu ca semhādhiko rāgacarito hoti. Vātādhiko mohacarito. Semhādhiko vā mohacarito. Vātādhiko rāgacaritoti evaṃ dhātudosanidānāti vadanti.

[390] Cf. Vism III.87/p.104.

[391] Read 如 instead of 知.

[392] 唯以過患得已便. It is unclear what is meant with 得已便.

he behaves in the same way. Thus it can be known that he is a person with a delusion temperament.[393]

Thus it can be known "through objects."

Defilements

Q. How it can be known "through the defilements"?

A. In a person with a greed temperament five defilements much occur: jealousy, meanness, deceitfulness, craftiness and greed[394]—these are the five.

In a person with a hate temperament five defilements much occur: anger, malice, hypocrisy, spite, and hatred[395]—these are the five.

In a person with a delusion temperament five defilements much occur: laziness, sloth, uncertainty, worry, and ignorance—these are the five.[396]

Thus it can be known "through the defilements." 410b12

Gait

Q. How can it be known "through gait"?

A. When a person with a greed temperament walks in his normal manner, he lifts his feet gently and he walks with even pace. He raises his feet evenly and does not bring them down flat. When he walks, he lifts his feet in an agreeable manner. Thus a person with a greed temperament can be known through gait.

When a person with a hate temperament walks in his normal manner, he lifts up his feet hastily and puts them down hastily. His feet, as he puts them down half-way, hit the ground as if entering it. Thus a person with a hate temperament can be known through gait.

When a person with a delusion temperament walks in his normal manner, he shuffingly lifts his feet up and shufflingly he puts them down. His feet graze against each other while walking. Thus a person with a delusion temperament can be known through gait.[397]

Thus it can be known "through gait." 410b18

Wearing robes

Q. How can it be known "through wearing robes"?

A. When a person with a greed temperament wears his robes in his normal manner, he wears them neither too tightly nor too loosely, nor very low, but level all around, and in various ways agreeable and pleasing to see.

When a person with a hate temperament wears his robes in his normal manner, he wears them hurriedly, very high and not level all around, and in various ways disagreeable and not pleasing to see.

When a person with a delusion temperament wears his robes in his normal manner, he wears them loosely, not level all around, are inelegantly worn, and in various ways disagreeable and not pleasing to see.

Thus it can be known, "through robing."

Eating

Q. How can it be known "through eating"?

---

[393] Cf. Vism III.95/p.106: Dassanāditoti rāgacarito īsakampi manoramaṃ rūpaṃ disvā vimhayajāto viya ciraṃ oloketi, parittepi guṇe sajjati, bhūtampi dosaṃ na gaṇhāti, pakkamantopi amuñcitukāmova hutvā sāpekkho pakkamati. Dosacarito īsakampi amanoramaṃ rūpaṃ disvā kilantarūpo viya na ciraṃ oloketi, parittepi dose paṭihaññati, bhūtampi guṇaṃ na gaṇhāti, pakkamantopi muñcitukāmova hutvā anapekkho pakkamati. Mohacarito yaṃkiñci rūpaṃ disvā parapaccayiko hoti, paraṃ nindantaṃ sutvā nindati, pasaṃsantaṃ sutvā pasaṃsati, sayaṃ pana aññāṇupekkhāya upekkhakova hoti. Esa nayo saddasavanādīsupi. Saddhācaritādayo pana tesaṃyevānusārena veditabbā, taṃsabhāgattāti. Evaṃ dassanādito cariyāyo vibhāvaye.

[394] 嫉慳幻諂欲 = issā, macchariya, māyā, sāṭheyya, rāga. Cf. Vism III.95/p.106–107: Dhammappavattito cevāti rāgacaritassa ca māyā, sāṭheyyaṃ, māno, pāpicchatā, mahicchatā, asantuṭṭhitā, siṅgaṃ, cāpalyanti evamādayo dhammā bahulaṃ pavattanti. Dosacaritassa kodho …

[395] 忿恨覆惱瞋 = kodha, upanāha, makkha, paḷāsa, dosa.

[396] 懶懈怠疑悔無明 = ālāsa, thīna, vicikicchā, kukkucca, avijjā.

[397] Vism III.88/p.104: Tattha iriyāpathatoti rāgacarito hi pakatigamanena gacchanto cāturiyena gacchati, saṇikaṃ pādaṃ nikkhipati, samaṃ nikkhipati, samaṃ uddharati, ukkuṭikañcassa padaṃ hoti. Dosacarito pādaggehi khaṇanto viya gacchati, sahasā pādaṃ nikkhipati, sahasā uddharati, anukaḍḍhitañcassa padaṃ hoti. Mohacarito paribyākulāya gatiyā gacchati, chambhito viya padaṃ nikkhipati, chambhito viya uddharati, sahasānupīḷitañcassa padaṃ hoti.

A. The person with a greed temperament likes oily and sweet [foods]. A person with a hate temperament likes sour [foods]. A person with a delusion temperament has no settled liking.

The person with a greed temperament, at the time of eating, takes lumps of food that are measured, appropriate, moderate and fitting. He savours its taste and does not eat hurriedly. Even if it is of little taste, he enjoys it greatly.

When a person with a hate temperament eats, he takes big lumps of food that fill his mouth and are not well-rounded. If the food is of little taste, he is very angry and displeased.

When a person with a delusion temperament eats, he takes in small, not well-rounded lumps of food that are immoderate and not fitting. [Even when] he takes a little, he smears his face with food. Half of the lump goes into his mouth and half falls back into the dish. [410c] He eats with a scattered mind, and is not only thinking of the food.

Thus it can be known "through eating."

Work

Q. How can it be known "through work"?

A. The person with a greed temperament who sweeps the ground holds the broom evenly,[398] and sweeps unhurriedly. Not scattering[399] the sand, he [sweeps] cleanly.

A person with a hate temperament who sweeps the ground holds the broom strongly and he hurriedly [sweeps,] throwing up sand on both sides and making a harsh noise. [He sweeps] cleanly but unevenly.

A person with a delusion temperament who sweeps the ground holds the broom loosely. Turning over and jumbling[400] [the sand], he depletes it here and there. [He sweeps] not cleanly and not evenly.

Likewise when washing, dying, sewing, etc.: the person with a greed temperament does all work evenly and attentively; a person with a hate temperament does all work unevenly but attentively; and a person with a delusion temperament does many things incompletely[401] and with a wavering mind.

Thus it can be known "through work."[402]

Lying down

Q. How can it be known "through lying down"? 410c09

A. The person with a greed temperament does not fall asleep quickly. Before sleeping he arranges his sleeping place, making it orderly and level all over. Calmly he reclines and arranges his body. He sleeps bending his limbs. When called in the middle of the night, he rises promptly and answers promptly, although somewhat uncertainly.

410c11 A person with a hate temperament falls asleep quickly. He settles in any place he gets. [He sleeps] with his body thrown down, and his face frowning. When called in the middle of the night, he rises promptly and answers [as if] annoyed.

A person with a delusion temperament does not arrange his sleeping place orderly. He lies with his body in disarray, with his hands and feet sticking out. When called in the middle of the night, he responds with a long drawn humming sound and then answers.

Thus it can be known "through lying down."[403] 410c15

---

[398] 平身, lit. "with even body," samakāya, samarūpa.

[399] Read 不散 instead of 不知.

[400] 看, lit. "to look at." The Chinese translator misunderstood āḷolayamāno as ālokayamāno.

[401] Or "unsuccessfully," 不成.

[402] Cf. Vism III.91–92/p/105: Kiccāti sammajjanādīsu ca kiccesu rāgacarito sādhukaṃ sammajjaniṃ gahetvā ataramāno vālikaṃ avippakiranto sinduvārakusumasantharamiva santharanto suddhaṃ samaṃ sammajjati. Dosacarito gāḷhaṃ sammajjaniṃ gahetvā taramānarūpo ubhato vālikaṃ ussārento kharena saddena asuddhaṃ visamaṃ sammajjati. Mohacarito sithilaṃ sammajjaniṃ gahetvā samparivattakaṃ āḷolayamāno asuddhaṃ visamaṃ sammajjati.Yathā sammajjane, evaṃ cīvaradhovanarajanādīsupi sabbakiccesu nipuṇamadhurasamasakkaccakārī rāgacarito. Gāḷhathaddhavisamakārī dosacarito. Anipuṇabyākulavisamāparicchinnakārī mohacarito.

[403] Cf. Vism III.89/p/105: Rāgacarito ca ataramāno samaṃ seyyaṃ paññapetvā saṇikaṃ nipajjitvā aṅgapaccaṅgāni samodhāya pāsādikena ākārena sayati, vuṭṭhāpiyamāno ca sīghaṃ avuṭṭhāya saṅkito viya saṇikaṃ paṭivacanaṃ deti. Dosacarito taramāno yathā vā tathā vā seyyaṃ paññapetvā pakkhittakāyo bhākuṭiṃ katvā sayati, vuṭṭhāpiyamāno ca sīghaṃ vuṭṭhāya kupito viya paṭivacanaṃ deti. Mohacarito dussaṇṭhānaṃ seyyaṃ paññapetvā vikkhittakāyo bahulaṃ adhomukho sayati, vuṭṭhāpiyamāno ca huṅkāraṃ karonto dandhaṃ vuṭṭhāti.

What is suitable for which temperament?

Q. What is suitable for which temperament with respect the wearing of robes, almsfood, siting and lying down? What should be one's resort? [What should be one's posture?]

A. The person with a greed temperament [should wear] robes which are coarse, not [hanging] low, and not of a colour which is pleasing. Thus should he wear his robes.

A person with a hate temperament [should wear] robes which are fine, clean, of a nice colour, [hanging] low and agreeable. Thus should he wear.

A person with a delusion temperament should wear whatever robes he gets.

A person with a greed temperament [should eat] almsfood which is coarse, unclean, without a fine fragrance and taste. He should beg little.

A person with a hate temperament [should eat] almsfood which is sumptuous, fine, clean, nicely fragrant and tasty, and can get as much as he likes. 410c20

A person with a delusion temperament [should eat] whatever almsfood he gets in moderation.

A person with a greed temperament should lie down and sit under the shade of a tree by the water's edge, in small remote villages, or in an unfinished monastery-residence (vihāra), or in a place where there are no lodgings (senāsana). Thus should he lie down and sit.

A person with a hate temperament should lie down and sit in a level place under the shade of a tree by the water's edge, or in a finished monastery-residence where there are lodgings. Thus should he lie down and sit.

A person with a delusion temperament should dwell relying on his teacher, living near him and consulting him.

The resort of a person with a greed temperament should be a place of coarse rice, food and drink. When he enters the village [for alms], he should go facing the sun into the area with bad people. That is where he should go.

The resort of a person with a hate temperament is the place where rice, water, food and drink are perfect. When he enters the village for alms, with the sun behind him he enters the area where there are people with great faith. That is where he should go.

A person with a delusion temperament should go to wherever he gets [almsfood].

A person with a greed temperament [should depend on] the posture of standing or walking up and down;[404] the person with a hate temperament should depend on sitting or lying down;[405] a person with a delusion temperament [411a] should depend on walking up and down.[406]

Miscellaneous Topics on Distinguishing Temperament

As to the miscellaneous topics:

One with a greed temperament depends on agreeable objects (visaya) for [gaining] faith. One with a hate temperament depends on disagreeable objects for faith. One with a delusion temperament has non-contemplation as cause [for faith].[407]

One with a greed temperament is like a slave. One with a hate temperament is like a master. One with a delusion temperament is like a venom.

One with a greed temperament has little humours (dosa) and does not remove passion.[408] One with a hate temperament has much humours and is not afflicted by passion. One with a delusion temperament has much humours and does not remove passion.

One with a greed temperament delights in forms (rūpa, saṇṭhāna, vaṇṇa). One with a hate temperament delights in dispute. One with a delusion temperament delights in indolence.

---

[404] 行人威儀多行脚處. Lit.: "... posture of much walking up and down place (vatthu, thāna)." Cf. Vism III.97/p.107: Iriyāpathopissa ṭhānaṃ vā cańkamo vā vaṭṭati. The posture of the mohacarita is 行處 "walking-place" instead of 行脚處. Apparently the Chinese translator misunderstood cańkama in the sense of "place for walking up and down," rather than the action of walking up and down. Presumably 多 is a corruption of 住.

[405] Cf. Vism III.100/p.109: Iriyāpathopissa seyyā vā nisajjā vā vaṭṭati.

[406] 行處, perhaps "walking and standing." Cf. Vism III.100/p.109: Iriyāpathesu cańkamo vaṭṭati.

[407] 不觀為因. Literally "One with a delusion temperament is not seeing/contemplation for/as cause [of faith]." Perhaps it rather means that no cause for his faith can be seen.

[408] 斷無染, lit. "removes dispassion/without passion," which does not make sense. The hate temperament has 使無染 "afflicted without passion." Elsewhere in Vim 無染 corresponds to virāga, "dispassion."

Chapter 7: Treatise on the Meditation Subjects (Kammaṭṭhānaniddesa)

Thirty-Eight Meditation subjects

Now, the teacher, having observed one's temperament, teaches one the thirty-eight meditation subjects (kammaṭṭhāna).[409] And again, he teaches one the two associated meditation subjects.[410]

Q. What are the thirty-eight meditation subjects? 411a09

A. Namely, (1–10) the ten kasiṇa bases—the earth, water, fire, wind, blue, yellow, red, white, space and consciousness kasiṇas;[411] (11–20) the ten perceptions of the foul, (asubhasaññā)—the perception of the bloated, the perception of the livid, the perception of the festering, the perception of the chopped off and scattered, the perception of the gnawed, the perception of the scattered, the perception of the slain and scattered, the perception of the blood-smeared, the perception of the maggot-infested and the perception of the skeleton;[412] (21–30) the ten recollections (anussatiyo)—recollection of the Buddha (buddhānussati), recollection of the Dhamma (dhammānussati), recollection of the Saṅgha (saṅghānussati), recollection of virtue (sīlānussati), recollection of liberality (cāgānussati), recollection of gods (devatānussati), recollection of death (maraṇānussati), recollection of the body (kāyagatāsati), mindfulness of breathing (ānāpānasati), recollection of stilling (upasamānussati); (31–34) the four immeasurables (appamāṇāni)[413]—loving-kindness, compassion, appreciative joy, equanimity;[414] (35) the defining of the four great entities (mahābhūta-vavatthāna);[415] (36) the perception of the repulsiveness[416] 411a16 of food (āhāre paṭikkūlasaññā); (37) the base of nothingness (ākiñcaññāyatana), and (38) the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception (nevasaññānāsaññāyatana).

These are the thirty-eight meditation subjects.

---

409 The Visuddhimagga (Vism 110 ff.) has 40 kammaṭṭhānas instead of 38. Bapat made a long note on this difference; see Bapat 1937, p. xxx and 38–39 n. 1. The 38 meditation subjects are found scattered in the Pali Canon (A I 41–42 lists many) but are listed together in the Commentaries and called aṭṭhatiṃsa kammaṭṭhāna or aṭṭhatiṃsārammaṇa. Therefore the enumeration of 38 kammaṭṭhānas is certainly not particular to the Vimuttimagga. The Sāratthadīpanī-ṭīkā explains: "Since the light kasiṇa has been included in the white kasiṇa and the separated space kasiṇa in the 'space-left-by-the-removal-of-the-kasiṇa' kasiṇa,'* in the [canonical] text only eight kasiṇas are stated by way of their individual nature, namely, those beginning with the earth kasiṇa that are objects of the form-jhānas. Therefore, having excluded the space kasiṇa and the light kasiṇa, it is said 'in thirty-eight objects', in strict accordance with the method handed down in the [canonical] text. But according to the method of the commentaries, wherein the space kasiṇa and the light kasiṇa are taken separately, there are forty meditation-subjects."

(* Cf. Vism X.8. Vism-mhṭ (Mm I 197) has ākāsakasiṇa instead of kasiṇugghāṭimākāsakasiṇa.)

Sāratthadīpanī-ṭīkā (Mm II p. 202): Odātakasiṇe ālokakasiṇaṃ, kasiṇugghāṭimākāsakasiṇe paricchinnākāsakasiṇañca antogadhaṃ katvā pāḷiyaṃ pathavīkasiṇādīnaṃ rūpajjhānārammaṇānaṃ aṭṭhannaṃyeva kasiṇānaṃ sarūpato vuttattā ākāsakasiṇaṃ ālokakasiṇañca vajjetvā aṭṭhatiṃsārammaṇesū ti pāḷiyaṃ āgatanayeneva vuttaṃ. Aṭṭhakathānayena pana ākāsakasiṇe ālokakasiṇe ca visuṃ gahite cattālīsaṃyeva kammaṭṭhānāni.

410 Cf. D-ṭ 21: Kammaṭṭhānāni sabbāni ti pāḷiyaṃ āgatāni aṭṭhatiṃsa, aṭṭhakathāyaṃ dve ti niravasesāni yogakammassa bhāvanāya pavattiṭṭhānāni.

411 A I 41: Paṭhavī, āpo, tejo, vāyo, nīla, pīta, lohita, odāta, ākāsa, viññāṇa. For the last two kasiṇas, Vism substitutes āloka- and paricchinnākāsa-kasiṇas. The ālokakasiṇa is discussed at length in the Vimuttimagga at 424a01–16, but is not included in the ten kasiṇas.

412 Paṭis I 49: Dasa samādhī: … uddhumātakasaññāvasena … vinīlakasaññāvasena … vipubbakasaññāvasena… vicchiddakasaññāvasena … vikkhāyitakasaññāvasena … vikkhittakasaññāvasena… hatavikkhittakasaññāvasena… lohitakasaññāvasena … puḷavakasaññāvasena … aṭṭhikasaññāvasena cittassa ekaggatā avikkhepo samādhi.

413 The Chinese text has 無量心, appamāṇa-cittāni, "immeasurable thoughts," but in the explanation of these in chapter 8 (e.g. 438a08) it simply has 無量, appamāṇāni, like in the Pali.

414 Cf. D III 223–4: Catasso appamaññāyo: Mettā, karuṇā, muditā, upekkhā. A I 39, Sn 73.

415 觀四大. Did the original have catumahābhūta instead of dhātu? The Vism (XI.27) explains: Dhātumanasikāro, dhātukammaṭṭhānaṃ, catudhātuvavatthānanti atthato ekaṃ. The Saṃyuttanikāya commentary uses the term mahābhūta-kammaṭṭhāna (S-a III 12 & 55) and the phrase catunnaṃ mahābhūtānaṃ manasikāro (S-a II 84). In the "10 ways of contemplating the four great entities" in Ch. 8 dhātu and mahabhūta are interchanged several times.

416 Lit. "foulness" or "impurity" (asuci or aparisuddha), 食不淨想.

Distinctions

The distinctions of these thirty-eight meditation subjects should be understood in nine ways: (1) meditation, (2) transcending, (3) increasing, (4) cause, (5) object, (6) speciality, (7) plane, (8) taking, and (9) person.[417]

Jhāna

Q. How "by way of jhāna"?

A. Namely, ten meditation subjects fulfil access-concentration; eleven meditation subjects fulfil the first jhāna; three meditation subjects fulfil the three-fold jhāna.

Again, one meditation subject fulfils the four-fold jhāna; nine meditation subjects fulfil the four-fold and five-fold jhāna; four meditation subjects fulfil the four-fold immaterial jhāna.

Q. Which ten meditation subjects fulfil access-concentration (upacāra-samādhi)?

A. Excepting mindfulness of breathing and recollection of the body, the remaining eight recollections, the defining of the four great entities and the perception of the repulsiveness of food are called "the ten [objects] of access-concentration."

Q. Which of the eleven meditation subjects fulfil the first jhāna?

A. The ten perceptions of the foul and mindfulness of body fulfil the first jhāna.

Q. Which three meditation subjects fulfil the three-fold jhāna?[418]

A. Namely, loving-kindness, compassion and appreciative joy.

Q. Which meditation subject fulfils the four-fold jhāna?

A. Namely, equanimity.

Q. Which nine meditation subjects fulfil the four-fold and five-fold jhānas? [411b]

A. Excepting the space kasiṇa and consciousness kasiṇa, the remaining eight kasiṇas and mindfulness of breathing.

Q. Which four meditation subjects fulfil the four-fold immaterial jhāna?

A. The space kasiṇa, the consciousness kasiṇa, the base of nothingness, the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception—these are the four subjects.

Thus these should be understood "by way of jhāna."

Transcending

Q. How "by way of transcending" (samatikkama)?

A. The [immaterial-] base meditation subjects are for transcending matter. Excepting the immaterial kasiṇas [i.e., the space kasiṇa and consciousness kasiṇa, the remaining eight kasiṇas and the remaining thirty meditation subjects are not for transcending matter.

Again, Three meditation subjects are for transcending the object (ārammaṇa): the two immaterial kasiṇas and the base of nothingness. The remaining thirty-five meditation subjects are not for transcending the object.

Again, one meditation subject transcends perception and feeling, namely, the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception. The remaining thirty-seven meditation subjects do not transcend perception and feeling.

Thus these should be understood "by way of transcending."

Increasing

Q. How "by way of increasing" (vaḍḍhana)?

A. Fourteen meditation subjects should be increased, namely, the ten kasiṇas and the four immeasurables. The other twenty-four should not be increased.

Thus these should be understood "by way of increasing."

Condition

Q. How "by way of condition" (paccaya)?

A. Nine meditation subjects are conditions for supernormal power, namely, excepting the immaterial kasiṇas (i.e. the space and consciousness kasiṇas), the eight kasiṇas and the separated space kasiṇa (paricchinnākāsa-kasiṇa).[419] The remaining thirty meditation subjects are not conditions for

---

[417] Cf. Vism III ff.

[418] See Dhs § 251–62 and Vibh p. 277ff & 283.

[419] The "space kasiṇa" in Ch. 7, includes two types of space: "space separated from form" and "space not supernormal power.

Thirty-seven meditation subjects are conditions for insight, namely, [all] except the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception.[420]

And again, one meditation subject is not a condition for insight, namely, the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception.

Thus these should be understood "by way of condition."

Object

Q. How "by way of object" (ārammaṇa)? 411b17

A. Twenty-one meditation subjects have a counterpart object (paṭibhāgārammaṇa). Twelve meditation subjects have an existent object.[421] Five meditation subjects are not be spoken of (navattabba) as having a counterpart object or an existent object.

Q. Which twenty-one meditation subjects have a counterpart object?

A. Excepting the consciousness kasiṇa, the remaining nine kasiṇas, the ten perceptions of the foul, mindfulness of breathing and recollection of the body.[422]

Q. Which twelve [meditation subjects] have an existent object?

A. The consciousness kasiṇa, the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception and the ten access-concentrations.[423]

Q. Which five are not be spoken of as having a counterpart object or an existent object?

A. The four immeasurables and the base of nothingness.[424]

Again, two meditation subjects have an internally developed[425] object and an internal object.

And again, two meditation subjects have an internally developed object and an external object.

And again, one meditation subject has an externally developed object and an internal object.

And again, twenty-one meditation subjects have an externally developed object and an external object.

And again, four meditation subjects have an internally developed object, internal object and prepared[426] external object.

---

separated from form" (P.0424a27–28). Although not mentioned by name, the first gives rise to the sphere of infinite space, and in the ṭīkās is called the 'space-left-by-the-removal-of-the-kasiṇa'-kasiṇa (kasiṇugghāṭimākāsakasiṇa, see note @@ at begin Ch. 7); the latter is the separated space kasiṇa (paricchinnākāsa-kasiṇa) which is only mentioned here in the Vim (分別虛空一切入; p0411b14).

[420] A IV 426: iti kho bhikkhave yāvatā saññāsamāpatti, tāvatā aññāpaṭivedho.

[421] 實事 = bhūtārammaṇa, or perhaps sabhāvārammaṇa "intrinsic-nature-object." 實 is elsewhere in Vim only used for "real, existent," bhūta & tatha, while 自性 is used for sabhāva. Cf. 勝真實事, "special existent object" at 411c25.

[422] Paḷim-pṭ II 380 (Be): 3137. Tattha tesu kammaṭṭhānesu dasa kasiṇā ca dasa asubhā ca kāyagatāsati, ānāpānasatīti ime bāvīsati kammaṭṭhānāni paṭibhāgārammaṇānīti yojanā.

It includes 10 kasinas and therefore comes to 22 meditation subjects instead of the 21 of Vim. The Visuddhimagga system of 40 meditation subjects includes the light and delimited space kasiṇas, and not the consciousness kasina, among the 10 kasinas.

[423] The 10 recollections, anussati, minus mindfulness of breathing and recollection of the body, plus the defininig of the four elements and perception of repulsiveness of food.

[424] The 4 immeasurables and the base of nothingness have a concept as object.

Cf. Vism-mhṭ I 407 (Be): … sabbaso ākiñcaññāyatanadhammārammaṇatāya jhānassa ākiñcaññaṃ ākiñcaññanti manasikāre ākiñcaññāyatanatā vā siyā, abhāvārammaṇatā vā. M-a II 353: … appamāṇā cetovimutti bhūmantarato mahaggatā eva hoti rūpāvacarā; ārammaṇato satta paññattiārammaṇā. Ākiñcaññā bhummantarato mahaggatā arūpāvacarā; ārammaṇato na vattabbārammaṇā. Moh 375 (Be): Pathavīkasiṇādisamāpattiyo paramatthato avijjamāne paññattārammaṇe pavattattā viparītañāṇanti pavattā viparītakathā. … Sammutivisayampi ñāṇaṃ bhūtārammaṇamevāti pavattā sammutiñāṇakathā.

Abhidh-av-pṭ II 202 (Be): Nimitta-ggahaṇena bahiddhā pathavīmaṇḍalādikaṃ, ajjhattikañca bhāvanāvisesaṃ upādāya paññāpiyamānaṃ kasiṇanimittādikaṃ dasseti. Abhāva-ggahaṇena bhāvanābalena appavattanasabhāvaṃ ākāsānañcāyatanajhānaṃ upādāya pavattaṃ ākiñcaññāyatanajhānārammaṇaṃ abhāvapaññattiṃ dasseti. Nirodha-ggahaṇena bhāvanābalena niruddhaṃ nevasaññānāsaññāyatanaṃ nissāya paññattaṃ nirodhapaññattiṃ dasseti.

[425] 營 normally means "engaged in" or "concerned with" (cf. 無經營: "unconcern, inactivity," abyāpāra, 419b06ff.) or "to perform, build, construct." At 404c16 經營 corresponds to samārambha, "undertaking." Cf. ajjhattikañca bhāvanāvisesaṃ upādāya paññāpiyamānaṃ, etc. in Abhidh-av-pṭ quoted in the preceding fn.

[426] Again, no exact parallel can be traced in the Pali. 設 means "to prepare, set up, establish, erect" and corresponds to paññāpeti, paññatta, paññatti. Perhaps 設 = paññatti in the sense of "concept." Cf. Abhidh-s 133 (Be): … kasiṇanimittādīsu parikammādikāle paññattārammaṇāti daṭṭhabbaṃ. Moh 375 (Be): Pathavīkasiṇādisamāpattiyo

And again, four meditation subjects have a prepared internally developed object, prepared externally developed object, and external object.

And again, two meditation subjects have a prepared internally developed object, prepared externally developed external object, prepared internal object, and prepared external object.

And again, one meditation subject has an internal-external developed object and internal object. [411c]

And again, one meditation subject has a not to be spoken of (navattabba) internally developed object, an internal object and an external object.

Herein, there are two meditation subjects have an internally developed object and an internal object, namely, consciousness kasiṇa and base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception.

And again, two meditation subjects have an internally developed object and an external object, namely: mindfulness of breathing and recollection of the body.

And again, one meditation subject has an externally developed object and an internal object, namely: recollection of death.

And again, twenty-one meditation subjects have an: externally developed object and an external object, namely, the ten perceptions of the foul, the four immeasurables, the four colour kasiṇas, the space kasiṇa, recollection of the Buddha and recollection of the Saṅgha.

And again, four meditation subjects have an internally developed object, an internal object, and a prepared external object, namely, recollection of virtue, recollection of liberality, the defining of the four great entities and the perception of the repulsiveness of food.

And again, four meditation subjects have a prepared internally developed object, a prepared externally developed object and a prepared external object, namely, the four colour kasiṇas.

And again, two meditation subjects have a prepared internally developed object, a prepared externally developed object, a prepared internal object, and a prepared external object, namely, recollection of the Dhamma and recollection of stilling.

And again, one meditation subject has a prepared internal-external object, and an internal object, namely, recollection of gods.

And again, one meditation subject has an internally developed object, and a not to be spoken of (navattabba) internal object and external object: namely, the base of nothingness. 411c12

And again, two meditation subjects have a past object, namely, consciousness kasiṇa and the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception.

And again, one meditation subject has a future object, namely, recollection of death.

And again, one meditation subject has a present object, namely, recollection of gods.

And again, six meditation subjects have a prepared past object, prepared future object, prepared present object, namely recollection of the Buddha, recollection of the Saṅgha, recollection of virtue, recollection of liberality, the defining of the four great entities, and the perception of the repulsiveness of food.

And again, two meditation subjects have a prepared past object, a prepared present object, and a prepared not to be spoken of past and future object; namely the recollection of the Dhamma and the recollection of stilling.

And again, twenty-six subjects of meditation have not to be spoken of objects of the three worlds, namely: the nine kasiṇas, the ten perceptions of the foul, the four immeasurables, mindfulness of breathing, recollection of the body and the base of nothingness.

And again, four meditation subjects have unsteady (calita) objects, namely, fire kasiṇa, wind kasiṇa, the perception of the maggot-infested and mindfulness of breathing. Consequently their subject is unsteady, [though] their counterpart sign is steady. All the other thirty-four have steady objects.

Thus these should be understood "by way of object." 411c24

Specialness

Q. How "by way of specialness" (visesa)?

A. Because the eight kasiṇas and the four immaterial attainments are called "special, existent objects,"[427] and because the eight kasiṇas are called "special attainments," and because the fourth jhāna paramatthato avijjamāne paññattārammaṇe pavattattā viparītañāṇanti pavattā viparītakathā. Cf. paññattiārammaṇā in M-a II 353, and also Abhidh-av-pṭ II 202 quoted two notes above.

---

[427] The character 勝 corresponds to the Pali noun visesa, "distinction, eminence, special," and its adjective visiṭṭha, "special, distinguished, distinct." 眞實事 = "existent object." The characters 眞實 corresponds to bhūta, tathā, attains a special plane[428] (visesa-bhūmi), the four immaterial attainments are special. 411c24

The ten perceptions of the foul and the perception of the repulsiveness of food are called "special perceptions," because of colour, mark, emptiness, direction, limitation, combination and coherence, and because of the perception-of-the-foul-object.

The ten recollections are called "special recollections," because of subtlety and because of recollection. [412a]

The four immeasurable mind-states (citta) are called "special," because of being unsurpassed[429] and because of giving benefit.

The defining of the four great entities is called "special wisdom," because of its connection to emptiness (suññatā-paṭisaṃyutta?).

Thus these should be understood "by way of specialness."

Plane

Q. How "by way of plane" (bhūmi)?

A. Twelve meditation subjects do not occur among the gods.[430]

Namely, the ten perceptions of the foul, mindfulness of body and the perception of the repulsiveness of food.

Again, thirteen meditation subjects do not occur in material existence.[431] Namely, the first twelve and mindfulness of breathing do not arise in the material existence.

No meditation subjects, except the four immaterial [ones], occur in immaterial existence (arūpabhava).

Thus these should be understood "by way of plane." 412a06

Taking

Q. How "by way of taking" (gahaṇa)?

A. The signs of seventeen meditation subjects are to be taken through the seen,[432] that is—excepting the wind kasiṇa and the immaterial kasiṇas—the remaining seven kasiṇas and ten perceptions of the foul.

Again, the sign of one meditation subject is to be taken the sign through the touched, namely, mindfulness of breathing.

And again, the sign of one meditation subject are to be taken through the seen or touched, namely, the wind kasiṇa. The signs of the remaining nineteen meditation subjects are to be taken through the heard and analysed.[433]

And again, five meditation subjects are not to be practised by the beginner meditator, namely, the immaterial [attainments] and equanimity. The remaining thirty-three[434] are to be taken by the beginner

---

"true, real." Cf. at 實事 411b18–23 and fn. @@@@.

LC: "'special meditation subjects': this would mean the special meditation subjects for the knowledge type i.e. the three signs which are the cause of insight. They would be called special because they are not any of the 38 kammaṭṭhāna."

[428] 彼第四禪得勝地故 Perhaps "… because the fourth jhāna is the attainment of a special plane…"

[429] 無過 can also correspond to anavajja, "blameless" or "without fault."

[430] Lit. "in heaven." Vism III.118/p.113 has devesu: "… among the gods." So Vin-vn 3140.

[431] Rūpabhava/rūpaloka. According to Vism III.118/p. 113 Brahmaloka. So Vin-vn 3141.

[432] LC: "Diṭṭhena means 'through what has been seen.' In other words, the sign e.g. of an external kasiṇa arises because one has been looking at that, but not necessarily at the exact moment of looking. Similarly in the other cases."

[433] 聞分別. This combination does not occur elsewhere in Vim. The character 聞 correspond to suta, and the characters 分別 to vibhaṅga. Perhaps "analysis of what has been heard." The Visuddhimagga parallel, which is otherwise close in content, only has sutena.

Vism 3.119/p.114: Gahaṇatoti diṭṭhaphuṭṭhasutaggahaṇatopettha vinicchayo veditabbo. Tatra ṭhapetvā vāyokasiṇaṃ sesā nava kasiṇā, dasa asubhāti imāni ekūnavīsati diṭṭhena gahetabbāni. Pubbabhāge cakkhunā oloketvā nimittaṃ nesaṃ gahetabbanti attho. Kāyagatāsatiyaṃ tacapañcakaṃ diṭṭhena, sesaṃ sutenāti evaṃ tassā ārammaṇaṃ diṭṭhasutena gahetabbaṃ. Ānāpānassati phuṭṭhena, vāyokasiṇaṃ diṭṭhaphuṭṭhena, sesāni aṭṭhārasa sutena gahetabbāni. Upekkhābrahmavihāro, cattāro āruppāti imāni cettha na ādikammikena gahetabbāni. Sesāni pañcatiṃsa gahetabbānīti evaṃ gahaṇato.

[434] The text (Taisho edition) actually has not 35 but 23. It has a footnote (p 412, note 1) stating that the 'Three meditator.

Thus these should be understood "by way of taking." 412a13

Person

Q. How "by way of person" (puggala)?

A. The person with a greed temperament should not practise the four immeasurables, because of their beautiful sign (subha-nimitta). Why? Attending to a beautiful sign is not suitable for a person with a greed temperament. It is comparable to the partaking of very fatty food being unsuitable to a man affected by a phlegm (semha) disorder.

The person with a hatred temperament should not practise the ten perceptions of the foul. [Why?] Attending to a sign of resentment (paṭigha-saññā) is not suitable for a person with a hatred temperament. It is comparable to the partaking of hot drinks and food being unsuitable to a man with a bile (pitta) disorder.[435]

A person with a delusion temperament, who has not yet increased knowledge (ñāṇa), should not practise any meditation subject, because of lack of skill (kosalla). Owing to lack of skill, his efforts will be fruitless. It is comparable to a man who rides an elephant without a goad. 412a20

A person with a greed temperament should practise the perceptions of the foul and mindfulness of body, because they overcome sensual desire.

A person with a hatred temperament should practise the four immeasurables, because these overcome hatred. Or he should practise the colour kasiṇas, because the mind is attracted to them.

A person with a faithful temperament should practise the six recollections beginning with recollection of the Buddha for the establishing of faith.

A person with a intelligent temperament should practise the defining of the four great entities, the perception of the repulsiveness of food, recollection of death and recollection of stilling because they are profound subjects.

And again, a person with an intelligent temperament is not debarred from any meditation subject.

A person with a thinking temperament should practise mindfulness of breathing, because it eliminates discursive thought.[436]

A person with a delusion temperament should [first] make inquiries regarding the Dhamma, should hear expositions of the Dhamma in due season, and should honour the Dhamma. He should live with a teacher who causes him to increase his knowledge and [then] he should practise whatever he wishes of the thirty-eight meditation subjects. Recollection of death and the defining of the four great entities are specially suited to him.[437]

Again, it is also said:[438] "By analysing the meditation subjects, I see their distinctions. The six persons may, through analysing, be reduced to three." [412b]

Q. If that is so, isn't there a difficulty (virodha?) at the beginning?[439] editions' have not 23 but 32, while the Japanese 'Palace' edition has 33." Thirty-three, given the 38 subjects listed elsewhere in Vim, makes most sense. (33 + 5: 38).

---

[435] Semha, pitta and vāya are the three humours, dosa (Skt. doṣa) of the body.

[436] A I 449: Cetaso vikkhepassa pahānāya ānāpānasati bhāvetabbā.

[437] Nidd I 360, 453, II 359: Jānāti bhagavā: "ayaṃ puggalo rāgacarito, ayaṃ dosacarito, ayaṃ mohacarito, ayaṃ vitakkacarito, ayaṃ saddhācarito, ayaṃ ñāṇacarito"ti. Rāgacaritassa bhagavā puggalassa asubhakathaṃ katheti; dosacaritassa bhagavā puggalassa mettābhāvanaṃ ācikkhati; mohacaritassa bhagavā puggalassa uddese paripucchāya kālena dhammassavane kālena dhammasākacchāya garusaṃvāse niveseti; vitakkacaritassa bhagavā puggalassa ānāpānassatiṃ ācikkhati; saddhācaritassa bhagavā puggalassa pasādanīyaṃ nimittaṃ ācikkhati buddhasubodhiṃ dhammasudhammataṃ saṅghasuppaṭipattiṃ sīlāni ca attano; ñāṇacaritassa bhagavā puggalassa ācikkhati vipassanānimittaṃ aniccākāraṃ dukkhākāraṃ anattākāraṃ.

LC: "It is my understanding that Upatissa (or his predecessors) created the list of fourteen character types by combining this list of six character types with the set of seven combinations in the Peṭaka (Peṭ 144). The combinatorial method is of course characteristic of the Peṭaka. Later writers (e.g. Vism-mht) refer to more elaborate combinations up to 63 or 64. They are listed in full in Abhidh-av-ṭ II in verses ascribed to Upananda."

[438] 復說, aparampi vutta, or perhaps apare vadanti, "others say."

[439] RB: "The section 'By way of person' first lists various types of 'walker' (the walker in passion etc.) and the practice that each of them should adopt. Nine cases are listed: passion, hate, delusion, passion, hate, faith, intelligence, excogitation (= vitakka), delusion. Here we have the standard lobha-dosa-moha set (passion, hate, delusion), represented twice over and in the traditional sequence, plus three kusala qualities: faith, intelligence, excogitation. That is, nine items which fall into six different classes. For the akusalas we are first told what each of the three types should not practise and then what each type should practice; for the kusalas, we are told what each

A. There are two kinds of persons with a greed temperament, namely, one with dull faculties (mudindriya) and one with sharp faculties (tikkhindriya).

A person with a greed temperament who has dull faculties should practise the perceptions of the foul to oppose that sensual desire. He should practise according to the instructions to dispel sensual desire.

A person with a greed temperament who has sharp faculties should, at first, increase faith. He should practise the recollection meditation subjects.[440] He should practise according to the instructions to dispel sensual desire.

There are two kinds of persons with a hate temperament, namely, one with dull faculties and one with sharp faculties.

A person with a hate temperament who has dull faculties should practise the four immeasurables to oppose that hatred. He should practise according to the instructions to dispel hatred.

A person with a hate temperament who has sharp faculties should, through increasing knowledge (ñāṇa), practise the special meditation subjects. He should practise according to the instructions to dispel hatred.

There are two kinds of persons with a delusion temperament, namely, one with no faculties (anindriya) and one with dull faculties.[441]

A person with a delusion temperament who has no faculties should not practice any meditation subject.

A person with a delusion temperament who has dull faculties should practise mindfulness of breathing in order to eliminate discursive thought (vitakka).

Thus, by means of reducing there are only three persons and there is no difficulty [at the beginning].

According to this teaching, the kasiṇas and mindfulness of breathing, through increasing space, are accomplished by all temperaments and there is no difficulty. Having already attained special qualities, all temperaments accomplish the special meditation subjects and there is no difficulty.[442] should practice.

---

The later discussion presented as 'another teaching' deals only with the six akusala items. It groups them as three basic types, each with two subtypes according to faculties: passion-dull, passion-keen; hate-dull, hate-keen; infatuation-none, infatuation-dull. Thus six are reduced to three. Then we are told what each type should practice. Of the six practices, four are already named in the nine-membered list, one is a non-practice, and one is meditation of the 'special sphere.' As for the question about 'difficulties at the beginning,' could this refer to the fact that the first three cases in the nine-membered list are advised not to take up certain practices?" Cf. next two notes.

[440] Supposedly the eight anussatis, starting with buddhānussati.

[441] The term anindriya does not appear to occur elsewhere in the Pali to describe a person's spiritual faculties. Because the preceding two temperaments in this section are clearly classified as of dull faculties and sharp faculties, the introduction of a new class of faculty does not seem to be a haphazard corruption in the text. Perhaps Upatissa or the tradition he belonged to could not conceive of a deluded man with sharp faculties?

As indriya here refers to the spiritual faculties (see Nett 100–101), anindriya could refer to the commoner (puthujjana). In the Indriyasaṃyutta it is stated that the only the 8 ariyapuggalas have the 5 indriya, the saddhānusarin in the weakest degree, but the puthujjana not at all: … tato mudutarehi sotāpanno hoti, tato mudutarehi sotāpattiphalasacchikiriyāya paṭipanno hoti. Yassa kho, bhikkhave, imāni pañcindriyāni sabbena sabbaṃ sabbathā sabbaṃ natthi, tamahaṃ bāhiro puthujjanapakkhe ṭhito'ti vadāmī ti. (S V 202)

There is also a person with upahatindriyā ("impaired faculties") mentioned in M I 507, which the commentary explains as upahatpaññindriyā, "impaired wisdom faculties."

[442] This passage is quite cryptic. In accordance with 412b07 ("through increasing knowledge") read 智, "knowledge" instead of 空? Perhaps the "increasing of space" refer to increasing the sign of mindfulness of breathing? Presumably "no difficulty," 無妨, here does not refer to ease of attaining, but to there being no difficulty or contradiction "at the beginning" as in the preceding.

RB: "The space kasiṇa is listed near the beginning of chapter 7; however, it is not covered in the section on the meditation subjects to be known by way of specialty, which speaks of just eight kasiṇas. Hence, it perhaps means that the space kasiṇa is to be added to the series of superior meditation subjects. The meditation subjects for the six types from passion-dull to delusion-dull correspond almost completely with the subjects for types 4 to 9 in the nine-membered list. The only exception is that delusion-none is assigned no meditation subject, while the 9th of the 9 (the walker in delusion) should study the Law and then "practise what pleases him." In terms of meditation subjects, the two lists correlate as follows:

nine	meditation subject	6 become 3
4. passion	impurity	passion-dull
5. hate	4 immeasurables	hate-dull

6. faith	6 recollections	passion-keen
7. intelligence	elements etc. / special kammaṭṭhāna	hate-keen
8. thinking	ānāpānasati	delusion-dull
9. delusion	Law; whatever pleases / none	delusion-none

Chapter 8: Meditation Methods

Earth kasiṇa

Characteristics, Benefit and Meaning

Q. What is the earth kasiṇa?[443] What is the practising of it? What is its characteristic? What is its function? What is its near cause? What are its benefits? What is the meaning of "kasiṇa"? How many kinds of earth are there? What is the earth sign? How is a disk (maṇḍala) made? What is the method of practising the earth [kasiṇa]?

A. The thought (citta) that is produced dependent on the earth sign—this is called "earth kasiṇa."[444] The unwavering dwelling of the mind—this is called "development." 412b25 Being well resolved on the perception of earth[445] is its characteristic. Non-abandonment is its function. Undivided attention is its near cause.[446]

Q. What are its benefits?

A. Twelve are its benefits,[447] namely, (1) one easily obtains the sign of the earth kasiṇa; (2) [one is

---

[443] In this text the ideograph 一切入for kasiṇa corresponds to kasiṇāyatana: kasiṇa--sphere. In Pali texts the kasiṇāyatana denote the 10 kasiṇas as a group (e.g. D II 14, M II 15, A V 45–6) but -āyatana is not suffixed to the names of the individual kasiṇas.

[444] Paṭis-a I 128: Dasa kasiṇāyatanānī ti: Pathavīkasiṇameko sañjānāti uddhaṃ adho tiriyaṃ advayaṃ appamāṇaṃ, … viññāṇakasiṇameko sañjānāti … appamāṇan-ti (D III 268, M II 14, A V 46, 60) evaṃ vuttāni dasa. Etāni hi sakalapharaṇaṭṭhena kasiṇāni, tadārammaṇānaṃ dhammānaṃ khettaṭṭhena adhiṭṭhānaṭṭhena vā āyatanāni. Paṭis-a I 80: Kasiṇan-ti sakalapharaṇavasena kasiṇamaṇḍalam-pi tasmiṃ upaṭṭhitanimittam-pi tadārammaṇaṃ jhānam-pi vuccati. Dhs-a 167/Vis IV.119: Pathavīkasiṇan ti ettha pathavīmaṇḍalam pi sakalaṭṭhena pathavīkasiṇan ti vuccati. Taṃ nissāya paṭiladdhaṃ nimittam pi. Pathavīkasiṇanimitte paṭiladdhajjhānam pi. Tattha imasmiṃ atthe jhānaṃ pathavīkasiṇan ti veditabbaṃ. A-a II 276: Pathavīkasiṇaṃ bhāvetī ti ettha pana sakalaṭṭhena kasiṇaṃ, pathavī eva kasiṇaṃ pathavikasiṇaṃ. Parikammapathaviyā pi uggahanimittassā pi paṭibhāganimittassā pi taṃ nimittaṃ ārammaṇaṃ katvā uppannajjhānassāpi etaṃ adhivacanaṃ. Idha pana pathavikasiṇārammaṇaṃ jhānaṃ adhippetaṃ. Taṃ hesa bhāveti. Nett-a 153 (Be): Pathavīkasiṇan ti kataparikammaṃ pathavīmaṇḍalam pi, tatthapavattaṃ uggahapaṭibhāganimittampi, tasmiṃ nimitte uppannajjhānam pi vuccati.

[445] The text has 想, saññā, here, but the parallel section in the fire kasiṇa section has 相, nimitta. The two characers of often confused in Vim. 善樂著 might correspond to (cittaṃ) svādhiṭṭhitā, "(the mind is) well steadied/resolved," but the parallels at the other kasiṇas have 入專意 and 放意 (422b22 於水一切入專意 & 422c14: 火相巧於放意) which would correspond to cittaṃ pakkhandati "the mind leaps into." Cf. M I 186: Tassa dhātārammaṇameva cittaṃ pakkhandati pasīdati santiṭṭhati adhimuccati: "His mind leaps into that very element-object and becomes confident, steady and resolved in it." Cf. M III 105: … pathavīsaññaṃ paṭicca manasikaroti ekattaṃ. Tassa pathavīsaññāya cittaṃ pakkhandati pasīdati santiṭṭhati adhimuccati. M-a IV 153: Pathavīsaññaṃ paṭicca manasikaroti ekattan-ti kasiṇapathaviyaṃ yeva paṭicca sambhūtaṃ ekaṃ saññaṃ manasi karoti.

[446] 意無異念為處, lit.: "the mind (mano) without different recollection/thought (sati) as/for/to object/place (vatthu, ṭhāna)." In the same section in the next kasiṇa, at 422b23, this is phrased differently: 心不作二意是處, "mind (citta) not doing two thoughts (mano) [to] that object/place" and then at 422c15, etc., it is 作意無雙為處: "attending (manasikāra) without pair/duality to object." This probably refer to advaya given as one of the qualifications of kasiṇa in Pali texts (D III 268, M II 14, A V 46, 60). Cf. M-a III 260, D-a III 1048, Paṭis-a I 128, Vism V.39/p.177: Advayan-ti disāanudisāsu advayaṃ. Idaṃ pana ekassa aññabhāvānupagamanatthaṃ vuttaṃ. Yathā hi udakaṃ paviṭṭhassa sabbadisāsu udakameva hoti na aññaṃ, evameva pathavīkasiṇaṃ pathavīkasiṇam-eva hoti, natthi tassa aññakasiṇasambhedo ti. Esa nayo sabbattha.* (* These last 2 words are only in M-a.) S-ṭ II 206 (Be): Advayanti dvayatārahitaṃ, vaṇṇameva accī ti gahetvā acciṃ vā vaṇṇo evā ti tesaṃ ekattaṃ passanto viya yathātakkitaṃ attānaṃ rūpan-ti, yathādiṭṭhaṃ vā rūpaṃ attā ti gahetvā tesaṃ ekattaṃ passanto daṭṭhabbo.

[447] It is unclear how the items here should be divided. Cf. Vism V.28/175: imesu hi pathavīkasiṇavasena eko pi hutvā bahudhā hotī ti ādi-bhāvo, ākāse vā udake vā pathaviṃ nimminitvā padasā gamanaṃ, ṭhānanisajjādikappanaṃ vā, paritta-appamāṇanayena abhibhāyatanapaṭilābho ti evam ādīni ijjhanti.

LC: "Item 4 and 5 correspond to the following in Vism V.28: '… going on foot after creating earth either in the air or in water or adopting the [other postures] of standing, sitting, etc. [i.e. lying down] …' This could count as eight or as six items: 3. walking in the air; 4. walking on water; 5. standing in the air; 6. standing on water; 7. sitting in the air; 8. sitting on water; 9. lying down in the air; 10. lying down on water; then would follow: 11. the supernormal power of making manifold; 12. knowledge of past lives; 13. divine ear."

able to do this] at all times and (3) in all actions, (4) one's mental activity is without obstruction;[448] (5) [one practises] supernormal powers at will: (6) one can walk on water, (7) go in the sky just as [one walks and goes] on earth, (8) make oneself manifold, (9) has knowledge of past lives, and has (10) the divine ear element (dibbasota-dhātu); [412c] (11) one is destined to a good destination and (12) is destined to the deathless.

Q. What is the meaning of "kasiṇa"?

A. Kasiṇa means "total pervasion."[449] As the Buddha taught in verses:[450]

> When a man recollects the qualities of the Buddha,
> There arises rapture that fills his entire body.
> Likewise, when viewing the earth kasiṇa > Entirely pervading Rose-apple Isle,
> This viewing, dependent upon earth, > produces mental rapture too.[451]

Practising thus one sees the kasiṇa disk everywhere. 412c06

Kinds of Earth

Q. How many kinds of earth are there? Taking which [kind of] earth for the sign, should one practise?

A. There are two kinds of earth: earth as specific characteristic (salakkhaṇa) and prepared earth.[452]

"The earth-element has solidity as its specific characteristic"—this is "earth as specific characteristic." That which is made from [earth] one digs out [earth] oneself or causes another to dig out —this is "prepared earth."

Earth is of four colours, namely, white, black, red, and the colour of dawn (aruṇa). Here a meditator should not attend to the specific characteristic of earth and he should exclude white, black, and red. Why? 412c11 If he contemplates the specific characteristic of earth, then this does not give rise to the counterpart sign, and if he grasps the white, black, or red colour, then he practises a colour kasiṇa.

---

[448] 心行無礙. There is a variant reading in several editions: 無心行無礙: "without mental activity/effort, without obstruction." Cf. Paṭis I 99–100: Paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ yatthicchakaṃ yadicchakaṃ yāvaticchakaṃ āvajjati; āvajjanāya dandhāyitattaṃ natthīti – āvajjanavasī. …

[449] Cf. M-a IV 148: Kasiṇapharaṇaṃ nāma lokadhātusahasse kasiṇapattharaṇaṃ. Paṭis-a I 180: Kasiṇanti sakalapharaṇavasena kasiṇamaṇḍalampi tasmiṃ upaṭṭhitanimittampi tadārammaṇaṃ jhānampi vuccati. Paṭis-a II 450: Tattha pathavīkasiṇan ti pathavīmaṇḍalaṃ nissāya uppāditaṃ paṭibhāganimittasaṅkhātaṃ sakalapharaṇavasena pathavī-kasiṇaṃ. "Therein the earth kasiṇa is the earth kasiṇa—which is reckoned as the counterpart-sign because of entirely pervading—that has been produced dependent upon the earth disk." Cp. D-a-pṭ III 344f.

[450] Not traced. Cf. Th 382: Buddhaṃ appameyyaṃ anussara pasanno pītiyā phuṭasarīro hohisi satataṃ udaggo.

[451] Untraced.

[452] 自相地. This likely does not mean "natural earth" or "non-prepared earth," but earth as a characteristic, i.e., element, which should not be contemplated as it would then be element contemplation.

The confusion arises because of the juxtaposition to "prepared," giving the impression that it is "non-prepared." The characters 自相, however, are used in the element contemplation section to denote the "specific characteristic" or "property," salakkhaṇa, of the earth-element. In that section 自性, sabhāva is used to denote "nature," so if "natural earth" was intended, the characters 自性地 (cf. Vim 439b05) could have been used. In the "How is its sign grasped?" sections in the explanations of the other kasiṇas (e.g. 0423a27) consistently "natural place" is used in opposition to "prepared place": 若作處若自然處. (The characters 自然 stand for svāyaṃbhū.)

That salakkhaṇa is intended here is confirmed by its Pali parallel, see below, and by the following explanation (Vim 412c07–8) which closely corresponds to the explanation of the characteristic of earth in the element contemplation section at p0440a01: 問云何以相觀諸界。答堅相地界: "Q. How should one contemplate the elements through characteristic? A. The characteristic of the earth-element is hardness."

Cf. Vism IV.84: tena salakkhaṇasaṅkhepato bhāvetabbaṃ. Kathaṃ? Vīsatiyā koṭṭhāsesu thaddhalakkhaṇaṃ pathavīdhātū ti vavatthapetabbaṃ. Cf. XI.85.

The "parallel" passage at Vism IV.29 has lakkhaṇa: na vaṇṇaṃ paccavekkhitabbaṃ na lakkhaṇaṃ manasikātabbaṃ… ("The colour should not be reviewed. The characteristic should not be given attention." Nyanamoli's transl.) No further explanation is given in the Vism but the commentary (Vism-ṭ I 145, Be) states: Na vaṇṇo paccavekkhitabbo ti yo tattha pathavīkasiṇe aruṇavaṇṇo, so na cintetabbo. Cakkhuviññāṇena pana gahaṇaṃ na sakkā nivāretuṃ. Tenevettha na oloketabbo ti avatvā paccavekkhaṇaggahaṇaṃ kataṃ. Na lakkhaṇaṃ manasi kātabban-ti yaṃ tattha pathavīdhātuyā thaddhalakkhaṇaṃ, taṃ na manasi kātabbaṃ. (Translation is given by Nyanamoli in the fn to Vism IV.29).

Cf. Vism IV.24ff.

Thus, whether the sign is grasped in prepared earth or non-prepared [earth], he should [only] grasp it when it appears as the colour of dawn.[453]

Q. What is "non-prepared earth"?

A. Wherever it is level, free from grass and bushes, without any tree stumps—this is called "non-prepared earth."

When it is within the range of vision and adequate to induce the mind—this is called "the sign of earth."[454]

An experienced meditator,[455] whether in pleasure or in pain, promptly sees the counterpart sign of earth [in non-prepared earth] and dwells without regressing. The beginner meditator[456] grasps the sign in a disk made of prepared earth. He should not watch non-prepared earth.

On Making a Disk

Q. How to make a disk? 412c19

A. If a meditator wishes to make a disk on the ground, he should at first select a secluded place in a monastery-hut (kuṭi) or in a rock-abode (leṇa), or a place under a tree; not in a dim, dark place without sunlight,[457] nor in a haunt of non-humans, nor on a path that is used.

In such a place he should wash and sweep the ground clean one fathom all around, letting it dry. In this place he should select earth of the colour of dawn for obtaining the arising of the sign in natural earth. Taking an appropriate amount carefully and reverentially into a vessel, he should mix it with water and remove grass, roots and dirt from it. Squeezing it through a piece of cloth, he should strain the mud and dregs. 412c26

On clean ground in a screened and covered place he should make a place for sitting. He should block sunlight and arrange a meditation seat. He should make a circle according to rule, neither too near nor too far. The circle should be flat and full and without markings on the inside. After that, he should apply watery clay, unmixed with any other colour, unmixed with different colours. It should be covered and protected until it is dry. [413a] When it is dry, it should be edged with another colour or element. It should be as big as a rice-sifter or a gong and may be circular, square, triangular or rectangular. Thus it should be understood. The original teacher[458] said that a circular disk is the best.

The disk may be made on cloth, on a board or on a wall. It is best on the ground according to the teachings of the ancient teachers.

Disadvantages of Sense-pleasures

Q. What is the method of practising the earth [kasiṇa]? 413a05

A. The meditator who wishes to develop the earth kasiṇa should at first consider the disadvantage (ādīnava) of sense-pleasures (kāma),[459] and also he should consider the benefit (ānisaṃsa) of renunciation

---

[453] This is a tentative translation. The passage appears corrupt. The Chinese text has a question almost identical to the preceding one, which not make sense in the light of the anwer: "Why contemplate the specific characteristic of earth and exclude white, black or red? The question might to be an erroneous duplication of the preceding one. Or perhaps it was an alternative translation of the question, which was left by error and amended by a copyist in an attempt to make sense of it.

[454] This sentence is placed in the Chinese before the concluding clause of the last sentence, where is is out of place.

[455] The "experienced meditator," 舊坐禪人, corresponds to the pubbayogāvacara in Pali. In Pali commentaries he pubbayogāvacara is explained as a meditator who has practised in previous lives and can therefore make easy progress in this life. The pubbayogāvacara is the topic of the (apocryphal?) Pubbayogāvacara Sutta quoted at Sn-a I 47, Th-a I 12, Ap-a 139 Cf. Paṭis-a 653 (on Paṭis II 202): Tattha pubbayogoti atītajātīsu paṭisambhidāppattihetubhūto puññapayogo. Peṭ 232. Cf. S-ṭ 144 (Be), Moh 389, D-ṭ 130. In the Visuddhimagga (V.2/p.170) the term pubbekatādhikāra, "one who has had practice in previous [lives]," is used instead. There it is used in contrast to the akatādhikāra, "one with no previous practice." In the Vimuttimagga, 初坐禪人: beginner meditator, ādikammika-yogāvacara, is used.

[456] The text is corrupt here, 新學初禪, "one who is new and trains for the first jhana," should read 新坐禪人 or 初坐禪人, as used elsewhere in contrast to the experienced meditator.

[457] Vim 412c21: 不住幽闇無日光處. A similar section for the water kasiṇa at Vim 422c0–06 has: "not a dark place nor a place scorched by sunlight" (是處不闇不日光炙,).

[458] 本師. This usually refers to the Buddha in Chinese texts.

[459] The type of kāma meant here are vatthukāmā, "kāma which are objects," not kilesakāma, "kāma which are defilements." See the discussion of this at the start of the exposition of the first jhāna below.

(nekkhamma).

Q. How should one consider the disadvantage of sense-pleasures?

A. Sense-pleasures are of little satisfaction and of much grief and suffering; herein the disadvantage is greater.[460]

Sense-pleasures are similar to a bone because they are of little satisfaction.
Sense-pleasures are similar to a piece of flesh because they are shared with many.
Sense-pleasures are similar to a torch carried against the wind because they burn the one who follows them.
Sense-pleasures are similar to [a pit of] glowing embers because they greatly scorch.[461]
Sense-pleasures are similar to a dream because they swiftly vanish.
Sense-pleasures are similar to borrowed goods because their power is not lasting.
Sense-pleasures are similar to a tree with fruits because they are snapped off by people.
Sense-pleasures are similar to a sword because they chop one.
Sense-pleasures are similar to a spear because they pierce one.
Sense-pleasures are similar to the head of a venomous snake because they are fearful.
Sense-pleasures are similar to a tuft of cotton wool blown about by the wind because they can't be protected.
Sense-pleasures are similar to a deception (māyā) because they deceive the fool.[462]
Sense-pleasures are blinding because they prevent vision.[463] 413a15

Cf. A III 428: Cha, bhikkhave, dhamme pahāya bhabbo paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharituṃ. Katame cha? Kāmacchandaṃ, … vicikicchaṃ, kāmesu kho panassa ādīnavo na yathābhūtaṃ sammappaññāya sudiṭṭho hoti. A-a III 411: na yathābhūtaṃ sammappaññāya sudiṭṭho hotī ti vatthukāmakilesakāmesu ādīnavo na yathāsabhāvato jhānapaññāya sudiṭṭho hoti.

[460] The first ten similes are at A III 97: Appassādā , āvuso, kāmā vuttā bhagavatā bahudukkhā bahūpāyāsā, ādīnavo ettha bhiyyo. Aṭṭhisaṅkhalūpamā kāmā … Maṃsapesūpamā … Tiṇukkūpamā … Aṅgārakāsūpamā … Supinakūpamā … Yācitakūpamā … Rukkhaphalūpamā … Asisūnūpamā … Sattisūlūpamā … Sappasirūpamā kāmā …. Cf. Thī 490ff, MN 22.6/M I 132, and MN 54.15–21. Simile No. 14 = A III 63: Kāmacchando bhikkhave āvaraṇo nīvaraṇo. Simile No. 17 = D I 245: Kāmaguṇā ariyassa vinaye andū ti pi vuccanti, bandhanan-ti pi vuccanti.

Cf. M-a II 103 on M I 132: Aṭṭhikaṅkalūpamā ti-ādīsu aṭṭhikaṅkalūpamā appassādaṭṭhena. Maṃsapesūpamā bahusādhāraṇaṭṭhena. Tiṇukkūpamā anudahanaṭṭhena. Aṅgārakāsūpamā mahābhitāpanaṭṭhena. Supinakūpamā ittarapaccupaṭṭhānaṭṭhena. Yācitakūpamā tāvakālikaṭṭhena. Rukkhaphalūpamā sabbaṅgapaccaṅgapalibhañjanaaṭṭhena. Asisūnūpamā adhikuṭṭanaṭṭhena. Sattisūlūpamā vinivijjhanaṭṭhena. Sappasirūpamā sāsaṅkasappaṭibhayaṭṭhena. and Nidd-a I 31–32: Tattha aṭṭhikaṅkalūpamā kāmāti sunikkantaṃ nikkantaṃ nimmaṃsaṃ lohitamakkhitaṃ aṭṭhikaṅkalaṃ upamā etesaṃ kāmānanti aṭṭhikaṅkalūpamā kāmā. Appassādaṭṭhenā ti appaṃ parittaṃ sukhassādaṃ ādīnavo ettha bhiyyo ti dassanaṭṭhena. … Gijjhādīhi sādhāraṇā maṃsapesi upamā etesan-ti maṃsapesūpamā. Bahūnaṃ sādhāraṇaṭṭhena bahusādhāraṇā. Ādittaṃ tiṇukkaṃ upamā etesan-ti tiṇukkūpamā. Anudahanaṭṭhenā ti hatthādijhāpanaṭṭhena. Sādhikaporisappamāṇā vītaccikānaṃ vītadhūmānaṃ aṅgārānaṃ pūrā aṅgārakāsu upamā etesan-ti aṅgārakāsūpamā. Mahāpariḷāhaṭṭhenā ti mahantaparitāpanaṭṭhena. Ārāmarāmaṇeyyādikaṃ supinaṃ upamā etesan-ti supinakūpamā. Ittarapaccupaṭṭhānaṭṭhenā ti appatvā, na upagantvā tiṭṭhanaṭṭhena. Yācitena laddhaṃ yānādibhaṇḍaṃ upamā etesan-ti yācitakūpamā. Tāvakālikaṭṭhenā ti anibandhanaṭṭhena. Sampannaphalarukkho upamā etesan-ti rukkhaphalūpamā. Sambhañjanaparibhañjanaṭṭhenā ti sākhābhañjanaṭṭhena ceva samantato bhañjitvā rukkhapātanaṭṭhena ca. Asi ca sūnā ca upamā etesan-ti asisūnūpamā. Adhikuṭṭanaṭṭhenā ti chindanaṭṭhena. Sattisūlaṃ upamā etesan-ti sattisūlūpamā. Vinivijjhanaṭṭhenā ti nipatetvā gamanaṭṭhena. Bhayajananaṭṭhena sappasiraṃ upamā etesan-ti sappasirūpamā. Sappaṭibhayaṭṭhenā ti saha abhimukhe bhayaṭṭhena. Dukkhajananaṃ aggikkhandhaṃ upamā etesan-ti aggikkhandhūpamā. Mahābhitāpanaṭṭhenā ti mahanta-abhitāpakāyapiḷā-uppādanaṭṭhenā ti kāmaṃ parivajjetī ti.

[461] Vim 413a10: 大小故, "because of the great and small." The Pali parallel (Nidd-a, see preceding note) has mahanta-paritāpanaṭṭhena, "in the sense of of great scorching.'' The translator probably misunderstood this as mahanta-paritta-aṭṭhena or had a corrupt source text.

[462] M II 261: Aniccā, bhikkhave, kāmā tucchā musā mosadhammā. Māyākatame taṃ, bhikkhave, bālalāpanaṃ. Cf. M-a IV 56: Mosadhammā ti nassanasabhāvā, khettaṃ viya vatthu viya hiraññasuvaṇṇaṃ viya ca na paññāyittha, katipāheneva supinake diṭṭhā viya nassanti na paññāyanti, tena vuttaṃ mosadhammā ti. Māyākatametan-ti yathā māyāya udakaṃ maṇi ti katvā dassitaṃ, badaripaṇṇaṃ kahāpaṇo ti katvā dassitaṃ, aññaṃ vā pana evarūpaṃ dassanūpacāre ṭhitasseva tathā paññāyati, upacārātikkamato paṭṭhāya pākatikameva paññāyati. Evaṃ kāmā pi ittarapaccupaṭṭhānaṭṭhena māyākatan-ti vuttā. Yathā ca māyākāro udakādīni maṇi-ādīnaṃ vasena dassento vañceti, evaṃ kāmā pi aniccādīni niccādisabhāvaṃ dassentā vañcentī ti vañcanakaṭṭhenapi māyākatan-ti vuttā. Bālalāpanan-ti mayhaṃ putto, mayhaṃ dhītā, mayhaṃ hiraññaṃ mayhaṃ suvaṇṇan-ti evaṃ bālānaṃ lāpanato bālalāpanaṃ.

[463] Lit "are without seeing" Nett-a 124 (Be): Upadhibandhano bālo, tamasā parivārito ti tassa pana bālassa tathā dassane sammohatamasā parivāritattā kāmaguṇesu anādīnavadassitāya kilesābhisaṅkhārehi bandhattā.

Sense-pleasures are hindrances because they obstruct wholesome states.[464]
Sense-pleasures are deluding because they cause the loss of right mindfulness.[465]
Sense-pleasures are similar to ripe [fruits] because they spoil.
Sense-pleasures are fetters because they tie one up.[466]
Sense-pleasures are thieves because they steal beneficial things.
Sense-pleasures are enemies because they provoke quarrels.
Sense-pleasures are suffering because they create disadvantages.

Having considered the disadvantage of sense-pleasures in this manner, he should consider the benefits of renunciation. Renunciation means [developing] the first jhāna after first going forth [or] developing all that is good (kusala). This is called "renunciation."[467] 413a21

Q. What are the benefits of renunciation?

A. Without the [five] hindrances, the mind dwells with facility in the happiness of seclusion. One can endure suffering and abides in happiness; one is not losing mindfulness; one acquires much good, a plane of great fruit;[468] one is fit to receive gifts and one benefits two sites (vatthu, khetta).[469] This [renunciation] is profound wisdom. This is a completely wholesome state. This is called "going beyond the three worlds."

Again, what is called "renunciation" is the renunciation of sensual desire (kāmacchanda).[470] This is seclusion from all hindrances. This is stainless happiness. This state is the supreme plane. This path is for acquiring the supreme. This cleans away the stains of the mind. This is the practice for creating benefit. This is the practice for internal happiness.

Sense-pleasures are coarse; renunciation is fine. Sense-pleasures are with defilement; renunciation is without defilement. Sense-pleasures are inferior; renunciation is superior. Sense-pleasures are with defect (sadosa);[471] renunciation is without defect. [413b] Sense-pleasures are having a disagreeable result

---

[464] Cf. Nidd-a I 62: Kusaladhamme nīvaratī ti nīvaraṇaṃ.

[465] 欲者是癡失正念故 Or "Sense-pleasures are causing forgetfulness …" Cf. Nidd I 26: Yebhuyyena devamanussā pañcasu kāmaguṇesu muyhanti sammuyhanti sampamuyhanti, mūḷhā sammūḷhā sampamūḷhā avijjāya andhīkatā āvutā nivutā ovutā pihitā paṭicchannā paṭikujjitā, taṃ kāraṇā mohanā vuccanti pañca kāmaguṇā.

[466] 欲者是械相駐縛故.

[467] Cf. Iti-a II 170: Paṭisoto ti kho bhikkhave nekkhammassetaṃ adhivacanan-ti ettha pabbajjā saha upacārena paṭhamajjhānaṃ vipassanāpaññā ca nibbānañca nekkhammaṃ nāma. Sabbe pi kusalā dhammā nekkhammaṃ nāma. Vuttañhetaṃ: Pabbajjā paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ, nibbānañca vipassanā; / Sabbe pi kusalā dhammā, nekkhamman-ti pavuccare ti. Paṭis -a I 329. Nekkhamman-ti paṭhamajjhānasamādhi, paṭhamajjhānaṃ vā, sabbe eva vā kusalā dhammā nekkhammaṃ. It-a II 41: Nekkhamman-ti paṭhamajjhānaṃ. Vibh 86: Tattha katamā nekkhammadhātu? Nekkhammapaṭisaṃyutto takko vitakko …pe… sammāsaṅkappo, ayaṃ vuccati nekkhammadhātu. Sabbe pi kusalā dhammā nekkhammadhātu. M-a II 82: Nekkhamman-ti ca kāmehi nissaṭaṃ sabbakusalaṃ, ekadhamme saṅgayhamāne nibbānameva. Cp-a 315:… aṭṭhikaṅkalūpamātiādinā ca nayena ādīnavaṃ sallakkhetvā tabbipariyāyena nekkhamme ānisaṃsaṃ passantena nekkhammapavivekaupasamasukhādīsu ninnapoṇapabbhāracittena nekkhammapāramiyaṃ paṭipajjitabbaṃ. Yasmā pana nekkhammaṃ pabbajjāmūlakaṃ, tasmā pabbajjā tāva anuṭṭhātabbā. A-a II 152: Nekkhammasukhan-ti nekkhammaṃ vuccati pabbajjā, taṃ ārabbha uppajjanakasukhaṃ. Nidd-a II 134: nekkhammasukhan-ti pabbajjāsukhaṃ. Th-a II 192: Nekkhammaṃ daṭṭhu khemato ti kāmehi bhavehi ca nikkhantabhāvato nekkhammaṃ, pabbajjaṃ, nibbānañca, khemato, anupaddavato, daṭṭhu, disvā. Cf. A-a IV 203. Nidd II (on Sn 426): Nekkhamman ti sammāpaṭipadaṃ anulomapaṭipadaṃ apaccanīkapaṭipadaṃ anvatthapaṭipadaṃ dhammānudhammapaṭipadaṃ sīlesu paripūrakāritaṃ indriyesu guttadvārataṃ bhojane mattaññutaṃ jāgariyānuyogaṃ satisampajaññaṃ cattāro satipaṭṭhāne cattāro sammappadhāne cattāro iddhipāde pañcindriyāni pañca balāni satta bojjhaṅge ariyaṃ aṭṭhaṅgikaṃ maggaṃ nibbānañca nibbānagāminiñca paṭipadaṃ …

[468] 曠濟眾事得大果地. The first part of this sentence is obscure. It lit. means "wide, various good (attha) obtains great fruit plane." EKS took "plane of great fruit" to be the Vehapphala-bhūmi, however, this plane is attained through developing the fourth jhāna (Vibh § 1027). "Great fruit" (大果), is used in the recollection of the saṅgha section as "Worthy of offerings: One acquires great fruit by gifting various things to it. It is fit to receive offerings." (Vim 428c27: 成大果堪受供養), of which the last part is also found as a benefit here. The word used for vehapphala elsewhere in Vim (e.g. Vim 420c05) is 果實, lit. "real fruit" or "full fruit."

[469] The giver and oneself, the receiver? Cf. A II 80: Atthi bhikkhave dakkhiṇā dāyakato c'eva visujjhati paṭiggāhakato ca. Or perhaps this world and the next.

[470] Paṭis-a III 702: Kāmacchandassa nekkhammaṃ nekkhamman-ti. Paṭis II 244: nekkhamman ti kāmānam etaṃ nissaraṇaṃ, yadidaṃ nekkhammaṃ. Cf. D III 275; It 61; Paṭis I 27; II 244.

[471] The Chinese texst has 有嗔恚, "with anger," which corresponds to Pali sadosa. However, the Pali word sadosa, can have two quite different meanings. Besides "with anger" (Skt sa-dveṣa), e.g. at D I 80, sadosa can also mean "with defect" (Skt sa-doṣa); e.g. as sadosattā at A I 112. Cf. dosadosa, "the defect of anger" at Dhp 357.

(aniṭṭhaphala);[472] renunciation is having an agreeable result. Sense-pleasures are with fear; renunciation is without fear.

Having considered in this manner the disadvantages of sensual desire and the benefits of renunciation, dependent on renouncing, desire (chanda) is born, the mind gives rise to faith and reverence [towards the Buddha, Dhamma and the Sangha] and considers what ought be done and what ought not to be done. 413b04

Method of Practice of the Earth kasiṇa

After having taken a moderate meal and put away one's robe and bowl, one should take a short walk to dispel sluggishness of body and mind. When one has taken a short walk, one washes one's hands and feet and sits down. Then one should recollect the Buddha and the Awakening (Bodhi),[473] the Dhamma, and the Sangha. 413b06 Having recollected [their] development of good deeds, one should arouse gladness: [thinking]: "I can attain perfection like them, but not unless I renounce and not unless I exert prolonged effort. Therefore, I must endeavour."

One places the sitting mat neither too far from the disk nor too near it; a plough-pole or a fathom length away. One should sit facing the disk, with legs crossed and body erect, and arouse mindfulness internally. One closes the eyes for a short while, gets rid of wavering of body and mind, composes the whole mind and unifies it. Then, opening the eyes a little, one should lightly watch the disk. 413b11

Three Ways of Taking the Sign

Observing the appearance[474] of the disk, the meditator grasps the sign through three ways: through even watching, skills (kosalla) and abandoning wavering. 413b12

Even watching

Q. How [is the sign grasped] through even watching?

A. When the meditator watches the disk, he should not open his eyes too wide nor too narrowly. Thus should he watch it. Why? If he opens his eyes too wide, they will grow weary, seeing the nature (sabhāva) of the disk too clearly,[475] and the counterpart sign will not arise. If he faces the disk opening the eyes too narrowly, he will not see the sign because of darkness, and he will arouse sluggishness (līna). Therefore, he should avoid opening his eyes too wide or too narrowly, but just enough for focusing his mind and establishing it on the disk. To establish the mind, he should watch as if he were a man seeing the image of his face reflected in a mirror. In dependence on the mirror he sees his face; the [image of his] face is produced from the mirror.[476] 413b19 [In the same way,] the meditator watching the disk sees his sign of concentration arise depending on the disk. Therefore, to establish the mind, he should grasp the sign through even watching.

Thus one grasps the sign through even watching.

Skills

Q. How [is the sign grasped] through the skills (kosalla)?

A. There are four skills in attending (manasikāra-kosalla). The first is inner demarcating (pariccheda); the second is completing; the third is turning (pavattana); the fourth is permeating.

Cf. M-a III 447: yatheva hi tiṇakaṭṭhupādānaṃ paṭicca jalamāno aggi dhūmachārikaṅgārānaṃ atthitāya sadoso hoti, evamevaṃ pañca kāmaguṇe paṭicca uppannā pīti jātijarābyādhimaraṇasokādīnaṃ atthitāya sadosā.

[472] 非可愛果 & 可愛果, Aniṭṭhaphala & iṭṭhaphala. Lit. "disagreeable fruition & agreeable fruition." Cf. Kv 434: Sīlaṃ acetasikanti? Āmantā. Aniṭṭhaphalanti? Na hevaṃ vattabbe …pe… nanu iṭṭhaphalanti? Āmantā. Hañci iṭṭhaphalaṃ, no ca vata re vattabbe sīlaṃ acetasikanti. Saddhā iṭṭhaphalā …

[473] Or "the Buddha's Awakening."

[474] The character 形 can mean appearance, shape, figure, body. In the Vim it is used for saṇṭhāna.

[475] Vim 413b–16: 曼陀羅自性現見自性, lit. "disk's nature seeing nature." EKS: "he will not be able to know the true nature of the disk." Vism IV.28 has maṇḍalaṃ ativibhūtaṃ hoti "the disk is too bright/mighty." Vism-mhṭ I 145 (Be) comments: Ativibhūtaṃ hoti attano sabhāvāvibhāvato. Tathā ca vaṇṇato vā lakkhaṇato vā upatiṭṭheyya: "It becomes too bright due to its nature becoming too clear and thus he would attend to the colour or characteristic." The Chinese translator apparently read and misunderstood sabhāvavibhāvato.

[476] S-a II 308: Mukhanimittan-ti mukhapaṭibimbaṃ. Taṅhi parisuddhaṃ ādāsamaṇḍalaṃ paṭicca paññāyati. … ādāsaṃ pana nissāya nibhāsarūpaṃ nāma taṃ paññāyatī ti vadanti.

Whenever he sees the sign go away and scatter, [becoming] without demarcation, then he should attend to inner demarcating.

Whenever he sees a small sign or sees half a disk, then having caused the arising of the full disk, he attends to it as complete.

Whenever the mind is wavering or indolent, then he should urge and encourage it, like a potter [turns] the wheel.

Whenever the mind attains stability, then he should see the disk everywhere without deficiency, and he should observe it equanimously.

Thus "through the skills" should be understood. 413b28

Abandoning wavering

Q. How [is the sign grasped] through abandoning of wavering?

A. There are four kinds of wavering (vikkhepa): the first is overexertion; [413c] the second is overly sluggish exertion; the third is elation; the fourth is depression.[477]

Q. What is overexertion?

A. It means attending hastily, without staying [all] the time. He sits [to meditate] in the morning, but by the evening he ceases [to exert] because of weariness of the body. This is called "overexertion."

Q. What is "overly sluggish exertion"?

A. It means "absence of skill in attending." Although he sees the disk, he does not attend to it with reverence. Frequently he gets up; frequently he lies down.

If he overexerts, his body wearies and his mind declines. Due to the mind going outside, agitation arises. If he exerts overly sluggishly, his body and mind become indolent, and drowsiness arises.[478] 413c07

"Elation": When the mind declines through the arising of agitation, he becomes bored with the meditation subject. If there is boredom (arati), his mind becomes elated due to desire (chanda) at the first merry discursive thinking.

Again, if he attains the sign of the meditation-subject,[479] because of the desire for rapture and happiness, the mind becomes elated.

"Depression": Owing to decline through agitation, he does not delight in the meditation subject. If he does not delight in the meditation subject from the start, a state of ill-will is created. Because of ill-will, his mind becomes depressed.

Again, his mind fatigues due to thinking and exploring, falls from distinction and, because of feelings of distress (domanassa), becomes depressed.

If this meditator's mind quickly declines and falls into a state of agitation, by means of the faculty of mindfulness and the faculty of concentration he should control, overcome and abandon the agitation.

If his mind, while exerting, declines and falls into a state of indolence, by means of the faculty of mindfulness and the faculty of energy he should control, overcome and abandon that indolence.

If the elated mind declines and falls into a state of desire, he should abandon desire on becoming aware of it.

If the depressed mind declines and falls into a state of ill-will, he should abandon ill-will on becoming aware of it. 413c17

In these four places one accomplishes purity of mind and unification of mind.

Clearly understanding these three ways of concentrating, the mind is able to see at will the appearance of the disk.

The Sign

There are two kinds of signs, namely, the grasping sign (uggaha-nimitta) and the counterpart sign (paṭibhāga-nimitta). 413c19

Q. What is "grasping sign"?

A. When a meditator, with unwavering mind, is watching the disk, from the disk arises the sign, which is seen as if it were in space, sometimes far, sometimes near, sometimes to the left, sometimes to the right, sometimes big, sometimes small, sometimes ugly, sometimes beautiful, sometimes [multiplied]

---

[477] Khp-a 69–70: Atha vā yaṃ pubbe anupubbato, nātisīghato, nātisaṇikato, vikkhepappahānato, paṇṇatti-samatikkamanato, anupubbamuñcanato, lakkhaṇato, tayo ca suttantā ti evaṃ dasavidhaṃ manasikārakosallaṃ vuttaṃ.

[478] A III 375: Accāraddhaviriyaṃ uddhaccāya saṃvattati atilīnaviriyaṃ kosajjāya saṃvattati. Tasmā ti ha tvaṃ soṇa viriyasamataṃ adhiṭṭhaha indriyānañ ca samataṃ paṭivijjha tattha ca nimittaṃ gaṇhātī ti.

[479] 413c09: 若得諸相行.

many [times] and sometimes few [times]. Without watching the disk with his eyes, the grasping sign arises through skill in attending. This is called "the grasping sign." 413c24

After much practising of that [grasping sign], the counterpart sign arises.

"Counterpart sign" means that when he attends [to the sign], it appears as he wishes and promptly: not seeing the disk, it arises when the mind recollects it. It is seen as before, but now mind made, with eyes closed. If he attends to it as far, he promptly sees it as far. As regards seeing it near, to the left, to the right, before, behind, within, without, above and below, it is the same. It appears as he wishes and promptly.

This is called "the counterpart sign." 413c29

Q. What is the meaning of "sign" (nimitta)?

A. The meaning of "cause" (kāraṇa) is the meaning of "sign."[480] It is as the Buddha taught the bhikkhus: [414a] "All evil unwholesome states arise with a sign."[481] This is the meaning of "cause."

Again, it is also said that the meaning of "perceiving" (sañjānana) is the meaning of "sign."[482] The Buddha declared: "Through perceiving one will abandon."[483] This is called "knowing."

Again it is also said that the meaning of "image" is the meaning of "sign." It is like seeing the image of one's own face, a perceptual image.[484]

"Counterpart" is not different in meaning. 414a04

When he acquires the sign, the meditator should, with a reverential mind towards his teacher, protect that excellent sign. If he does not protect it, then he will lose it.

Q. How should he protect it?

A. He should protect the sign through three kinds of practice: through refraining from unwholesomeness, through the development and practice of wholesomeness, and through constant practice.

Q. How does one refrain from unwholesomeness?

A. Delight in work, delight in the various kinds of frivolous talk, delight in sleeping, delight in company, delight in contact, 414a09 non-guarding doors of the sense-faculties,[485] non-moderation as regards food, not rising to practice meditation (jhāna) in the first and last watches of the night, non-reverence for the training, luxuriousnes,[486] bad friends, the frequenting of unsuitable places, and unsuitable food and postures—the overcoming of these is wholesomeness and should be constantly practised. 414a11

---

[480] Cf. A-a IV 24: Nimittanti kāraṇaṃ. A-a II 153: sanimittā ti sakāraṇā. Cf. Ap-a 424, Net-a 256 (Be).

[481] A-a I 32: Subhanimittan ti rāgaṭṭhāniyaṃ ārammaṇaṃ. Sanimittā, bhikkhave, uppajjanti pāpakā akusalā dhammā, no animittā ti (A I 82) ettha nimittan ti paccayassa nāmaṃ. Adhicittam anuyuttena, bhikkhave, bhikkhunā pañca nimittāni kālena kālaṃ manasikātabbānī ti ettha kāraṇassa. So taṃ nimittaṃ āsevati bhāvetī ti ettha samādhissa. Yaṃ nimittaṃ āgamma yaṃ nimittaṃ manasikaroto anantarā āsavānaṃ khayo hotī ti ettha vipassanāya. Idha pana rāgaṭṭhāniyo iṭṭhārammaṇadhammo subhanimittan ti adhippeto. Cf. D I 70.

[482] Cf. Dhs-a 321: Nimittan-ti sañjānananaṃ. M-a III 38: gihibhāvassa sañjānananimittatāya nimittā ti vuttā. Cf. D-a II 500, A-a II 252. The character 智 is elsewhere in Vim corresponding to ñāṇa. Judging from the usage of saññā, 作想 (lit. "to do/make perception") in the untraced quotation, and the Pali parallels, probably the original text had sañjānana here.

[483] 義相義。如佛說以作想當捨. Untraced. The intended meaning seems to be that through developing a right perception wrong perception is abandoned. Cf. D I 181: Sikkhā ekā saññā uppajjanti, sikkhā ekā saññā nirujjhanti. M I 424: Aniccasaññañhi te, rāhula, bhāvanaṃ bhāvayato yo asmimāno so pahīyissati. A III 447: Assādadiṭṭhiyā pahānāya aniccasaññā bhāvetabbā. Peṭ 127: Aniccasaññāya niccasaññaṃ samugghāteti, dukkhasaññāya sukhasaññaṃ samugghāteti, anattasaññāya attasaññaṃ samugghāteti, asubhasaññāya subhasaññaṃ samugghāteti.

[484] Cf. M-a II 67, S-a II 308: Mukhanimittan-ti mukhapaṭibimbaṃ. Vism XVIII.16: Yathā hi cakkhumato purisassa aparisuddhe ādāse mukhanimittaṃ olokentassa nimittaṃ na paññāyati …

[485] A IV 331: Aṭṭhime, bhikkhave, dhammā sekhassa bhikkhuno parihānāya saṃvattanti. Katame aṭṭha? Kammārāmatā, bhassārāmatā, niddārāmatā, saṅgaṇikārāmatā, indriyesu aguttadvāratā, bhojane amattaññutā, saṃsaggārāmatā, papañcārāmatā. Cf. A-a III 348: Kammārāmo ti ādīsu āramaṇaṃ ārāmo, abhirati ti attho. Vihārakaraṇādimhi navakamme ārāmo assā ti kammārāmo. Tasmiṃ yeva kamme rato ti kammarato. Tadeva kammārāmataṃ punappunaṃ yutto ti anuyutto. Esa nayo sabbattha. Ettha ca bhassanti ālāpasallāpo. Niddā ti soppaṃ. Saṅgaṇikā ti gaṇasaṅgaṇikā. Sā ekassa dutiyo hoti, dvinnaṃ hoti tatiyako ti ādinā nayena veditabbā. Saṃsaggo ti dassanasavanasamullāpasambhogakāyasaṃsaggavasena pavatto saṃsaṭṭhabhāvo. Cf. A III 116, 293.

[486] M I 32: … indriyesu aguttadvārā, bhojane amattaññuno, jāgariyaṃ ananuyuttā, sāmaññe anapekkhavanto, sikkhāya na tibbagāravā, bāhulikā sāthalikā, okkamane pubbaṅgamā, paviveke nikkhittadhurā … A III 70, 300: … indriyesu aguttadvāro, bhojane amattaññū, jāgariyaṃ ananuyutto, avipassako kusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ, pubbarattāpararattaṃ bodhipakkhiyānaṃ dhammānaṃ bhāvanānuyogaṃ ananuyutto … Cf. S IV 103.

Q. What is the meaning of "constant practice"?

A. The meditator grasps well the sign and always contemplates its qualities as if he were perceiving a gem. He always practices gladly. He practises constantly and practices much. He practises by day and by night. Whether standing, sitting or lying down his mind is happy. Everywhere his mind is at ease. When taking the sign, he grasps it. Having grasped, he causes it to arise. Having caused it to arise, he contemplates it. Having contemplated, he develops it. Having developed, he constantly contemplates the disk. Thus through constant endeavour, he sees the sign, protects the sign and acquires mastery.[487] When the sign [appears] as he wishes, he attains access-jhāna (upacārajjhāna). [488] And when there is access, his mind, depending on that, attains fixedness (appanā). 414a18

Access-jhāna and Jhāna

Q. What is "access-jhāna"? 414a18

A. The mind follows the object. One attends non-distracted [to it].[489] because of overcoming the hindrances, but one does not practise thinking and exploring, rapture, happiness, unification of mind, and the five faculties of faith and so forth. Though one obtains the power of concentration (samādhibala), it arises momentarily yet. This is called "access-jhāna."

As for fixedness (appanā): it follows upon access. This state causes the mind to obtain the power of development (bhāvanābala).[490] The states of thinking, faith, etc., are immovable in the object[491]—this is called "fixedness." 414a22

Q. What is the difference between access and fixedness?

A. When one overcomes the five hindrances, there is access. When one has overcome these five [hindrances], there is fixedness.

Through access-jhāna, one will attain distinction (visesa) in concentration. When one attains distinction in concentration, it is called "fixedness."

When one has not yet attained to seclusion of body and mind, then in access-concentration the mind moves like a ship on waves. When one has attained to seclusion of body and mind, then [the mind] abides concentrated and immovable, like a ship on windless water.

414a27 Due to the faculties (indriya)[492] not being powerful, in access-jhāna practice one does not dwell long on the object, like a young child. Due to the faculties being powerful, [in fixedness] one dwells fixed, peacefully and long on the object, like a strong man.

Because of the practice not being facile in access-jhāna, unification is not attained. [414b] It is like a discourse-reciter who has neglected [his recitations] for a long time and therefore forgets.[493] Because of the practice being facile, in fixedness unification is attained. It is like a discourse-reciter who persistently repetes and does not forget. 414b02

If one does not overcome well the hindrances, one is just like a blind man: in access-jhāna one becomes blind.[494] Thus it is taught as being equal to impurity.

If one overcomes well the hindrances, [one is just like a man who is not blind]: in attaining fixedness-concentration, one becomes not blind. Thus it is taught as being equal to purity.[495]

---

[487] Cf. Vism IV.50: Nimittakosallaṃ nāma pathavīkasiṇādikassa cittekaggatānimittassa akatassa karaṇakosallaṃ, katassa ca bhāvanākosallaṃ, bhāvanāya laddhassa rakkhaṇakosallañca, taṃ idha adhippetaṃ.

[488] The Chinese text does not use "access-concentration," upacārasamādhi, but "access-jhāna," upacārajjhāna (禪外行), a term which is also commonly used Pali commentarial texts.

[489] Transl. by RB. EKS: "It means that the man follows the object unimpeded by his inclinations."

[490] Paṭis II 170: Kāmacchandaṃ pajahanto nekkhammaṃ bhāvetī ti: bhāvanābalaṃ. Byāpādaṃ pajahanto abyāpādaṃ bhāvetī ti bhāvanābalaṃ. Thinamiddhaṃ pajahanto ālokasaññaṃ bhāvetī ti bhāvanābalaṃ. Uddhaccaṃ pajahanto avikkhepaṃ bhāvetī ti bhāvanābalaṃ. Vicikicchaṃ pajahanto dhammavavatthānaṃ bhāvetī ti bhāvanābalaṃ. Avijjaṃ pajahanto ñāṇaṃ bhāvetī ti bhāvanābalaṃ. Aratiṃ pajahanto pāmojjaṃ bhāvetī ti bhāvanābalaṃ. Nīvaraṇe pajahanto paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ bhāvetī ti bhāvanābalaṃ ….

[491] Cf. Vibh-a 313: Samādhiyatī ti sammā ādhiyati, niccalaṃ hutvā ārammaṇe ṭhapīyati, appanāppattaṃ viya hoti.

[492] At 414a20 at the start of this section on access-jhāna, the "five faculties of faith, etc," are mentioned as being absent in access and immovable in fixedness.

[493] Dhp 241, A IV 195: Asajjhāyamalā mantā. A V 135: asajjhāyakiriyā bāhusaccassa paripantho. Cf. S V 121.

[494] Cf. S V 97: Pañcime bhikkhave nīvaraṇā andhakaraṇā acakkhukaraṇā.

[495] The Chinese text (414b04) is corrupt here: "If one overcomes well the hindrances, one becomes not-blind: in attaining fixedness-concentration thus it is taught as being equal to purity." It has been ammended in accordance with the preceding sentence.

[The state] from the mastery in the sign at first, until the state of repelling [the hindrances] is called "access." The continuous repelling of the hindrances is called "fixedness."

Q. What is the meaning of "access"?

A. Because it is near jhāna, it is called "acces." It is like a path near a village which is called a "village path": the meaning is the same, though the names differ.

Q. What is the meaning of "fixedness"?

A. "Fixedness" means "unification."[496] It is like entering the disk.

There is no difference in meaning between renunciation, jhāna and fixedness. 414b09

Increasing of the Kasiṇa

Now, the meditator who is dwelling in acces, fixedness-concentration or the first jhāna should increase the kasiṇa.

Q. How should he increase? 414b11

A. Namely, the sign, which is a span and four fingers at the start, should be increased gradually. Thus attending and acquiring mastery, he should gradually increase it to [the size of] a wheel, a canopy, the shadow of a tree, a cultivated field, a small neighbourhood, a village, a village boundary, and a town boundary. Gradually he causes it to increase all over this great earth.

He should not attend to uneven and protruding things such as rivers and mountains, heights and depths, tree stumps and thorn bushes, but he should attend to earth as if he were perceiving the great ocean.[497] Increasing it in this way, his mind attains to supreme concentration. 414b17

Skilfulness in Jhāna

If the meditator attains to access-jhāna but is unable to obtain fixedness-concentration, he should produce skill in fixedness-concentration in two ways: the first, through causes (kāraṇa); the second, through steadying (adhiṭṭhāna).[498]

By means of ten ways he effects skill in fixedness-concentration through causes: (1) through the cleansing of the physical basis; (2) effecting equality of the faculties; (3) skill in the sign; (4) controlling and subduing the mind; (5) subduing indolence, (6) and listlessness of mind; (7) encouraging the mind;[499] (8) concentrating the mind and being equanimous; (9) avoidance of persons who do not practise concentration and associating with persons who practise concentration; (10) intentness on fixedness-concentration.[500] 414b23

(1) What is the cleansing of the physical basis? Through three ways there is the cleansing of the physical basis, namely, by being able to practice comfortably through suitable food, suitable climate and

---

[496] Vism-mhṭ I 328 (Be): Samādhippadhānā pana appanā ti āha ṭhapanā ti appanā ti. Vism III.2: … yā ca appanāsamādhīnaṃ pubbabhāge ekaggatā, ayaṃ upacārasamādhi … yā parikammānantarā ekaggatā, ayaṃ appanāsamādhī ti.

[497] Cf. M III 105: Seyyathā pi, ānanda, āsabhacammaṃ saṅkusatena suvihataṃ vigatavalikaṃ; evameva kho, ānanda, bhikkhu yaṃ imissā pathaviyā ukkūlavikkūlaṃ nadīviduggaṃ khāṇukaṇṭakaṭṭhānaṃ pabbatavisamaṃ taṃ sabbaṃ amanasikaritvā pathavīsaññaṃ paṭicca manasikaroti ekattaṃ. Tassa pathavīsaññāya cittaṃ pakkhandati pasīdati santiṭṭhati adhimuccati. M-a IV 153: Pathavīsaññaṃ paṭicca manasikaroti ekattan-ti kasiṇapathaviyaṃ yeva paṭicca sambhūtaṃ ekaṃ saññaṃ manasi karoti. Cf. Vism IV.129.

[498] EKS "good standing" See Paṭis II 23 in note 404 below, where Ñāṇamoli renders "steadying."

[499] A III 435: Chahi, bhikkhave, dhammehi samannāgato bhikkhu bhabbo anuttaraṃ sītibhāvaṃ sacchikātuṃ. Katamehi chahi? Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu yasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ niggahetabbaṃ tasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ niggaṇhāti, yasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ paggahetabbaṃ tasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ paggaṇhāti, yasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ sampahaṃsitabbaṃ tasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ sampahaṃseti, yasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ ajjhupekkhitabbaṃ tasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ ajjhupekkhati, paṇītādhimuttiko ca hoti, nibbānābhirato ca.

Cf. Nidd I 508: Kāle paggaṇhati cittaṃ, niggaṇhati punāpare / Sampahaṃsati kālena, kāle cittaṃ samādahe. / Ajjhupekkhati kālena, so yogī kālakovido … / Līne cittamhi paggāho, uddhatasmiṃ viniggaho; / Nirassādagataṃ cittaṃ, sampahaṃseyya tāvade. / Sampahaṭṭhaṃ yadā cittaṃ, alīnaṃ bhavatinuddhataṃ; / Samathassa ca so kālo, ajjhattaṃ ramaye mano. / Etena mevupāyena, yadā hoti samāhitaṃ; / Samāhitacittamaññāya, ajjhupekkheyya tāvade. / Evaṃ kālavidū dhīro, kālaññū kālakovido; / Kālena kālaṃ cittassa, nimittamupalakkhayeti.

[500] See Vism 128/IV.42 and Vibh-a 283: Api ca ekādasa dhammā samādhi-sambojjhaṅgassa uppādāya saṃvattanti: vatthuvisadakiriyatā, indriyasamattapaṭipādanatā, nimittakusalatā, samaye cittassa paggahaṇatā, samaye cittassa niggahaṇatā, samaye sampahaṃsamatā, samaye ajjhupekkhanatā, asamāhitapuggalaparivajjanatā, samāhitapuggalasevanatā, jhānavimokkha-paccavekkhanatā, tad-adhimuttatā ti.

suitable postures.[501]

(2) Effecting equality of faculties: The five faculties of faith, etc., are not interrupted and there is no indolence. It is comparable to driving a swift horse-chariot.[502] 414b26

(3) Skill in the sign: One grasps well the mental sign, i.e., neither too hastily nor too slowly.[503] It is like a skilled carpenter who attends without haste and lets go of the inked-string at the right moment and thereby marks an even, undeviating line.[504]

(4) Controlling and subduing[505] the mind are [both] of two kinds.

Through two ways one controls (paggaṇhāti) the mind: (1) through arousing much energy (viriya); [414c] and (2) through controlling excessiveness. Otherwise the mind goes towards a coarse state (duṭṭhulla?) or to a different sign, and thus increases mental wavering. If the meditator arouses much energy, excessiveness is to be controlled.[506]

Through two ways one subdues (niggaṇhāti) the mind: through arousing energy and through equalizing [the faculties].[507] If the mind goes towards a coarse state or to a different sign, one increases control over the mind. One subdues it in two ways: through considering the numerous kinds of suffering and through considering the results of evil deeds. 414c05

(5) (6) & (7) Subduing indolence of mind: Through two ways the mind becomes indolent: through failure to attain distinction in concentration, (and) causing the mind to become listless (nirassāda). When there is much indolence, then there is desire to sleep. When the meditator does not gain distinction in concentration, his mind becomes listless due to being indolent.

Through two ways one should subdue [indolence]: namely, through the reflection on the benefits [of concentration] and through the arousing of energy. 414c10

If there are indolence, torpor and listlessness, then these can be subdued in four ways. If he is one who has eaten [too] much [and] grasps the sign of indolence, he adverts to practising the four postures; attends to the sign of light,[508] dwells in the open; and encourages the mind without becoming further attached.

---

[501] In the Pali commentaries "cleansing of the basis/site" is explained quite differently, as cleaning the body and the surroundings. See S-a I 787, M-a I 290, Vibh-a 276: Vatthuvisadakiriyā ti ajjhattikabāhirānaṃ vatthūnaṃ visadabhāvakaraṇaṃ. Yadā hissa kesanakhalomāni dīghāni honti, sarīraṃ vā ussannadosañceva sedamalamakkhitañca, tadā ajjhattikaṃ vatthu avisadaṃ hoti aparisuddhaṃ. Yadā pana cīvaraṃ jiṇṇaṃ kiliṭṭhaṃ duggandhaṃ hoti, senāsanaṃ vā uklāpaṃ, tadā bāhiravatthu avisadaṃ hoti aparisuddhaṃ. … Visade pana ajjhattikabāhire vatthumhi uppannesu cittacetasikesu ñāṇampi visadaṃ hoti parisuddhāni dīpaka-pallavaṭṭitelāni nissāya uppannadīpasikhāya obhāso viya. …

[502] The Vism has a much longer explanation. It could be that the Chinese translator has summarised here. Vism IV.45–49: Indriyasamattapaṭipādanaṃ nāma saddhādīnaṃ indriyānaṃ samabhāvakaraṇaṃ. Sace hissa saddhindriyaṃ balavaṃ hoti itarāni mandāni, tato vīriyindriyaṃ paggahakiccaṃ, …

Cf. Dhp 222: Yo ve uppatitaṃ kodhaṃ, rathaṃ bhantaṃva vāraye / tamahaṃ sārathiṃ brūmi, rasmiggāho itaro jano. S I 26: Tatra bhikkhavo samādahaṃsu, cittamattano ujukamakaṃsu / Sārathīva nettāni gahetvā, indriyāni rakkhanti paṇḍitā. Cf. Dhp 94. Cf. S IV 176; M III 97; A III 28.

[503] Cf. Th-a I 192: Tattha cittanimittassa kovido ti bhāvanācittassa nimittaggahaṇe kusalo, imasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ paggahetabbaṃ, imasmiṃ sampahaṃsitabbaṃ, imasmiṃ ajjhupekkhitabban-ti evaṃ paggahaṇādiyogyassa cittanimittassa gahaṇe cheko.

[504] This is a traditional, universal carpenter's technique to mark the straight line to be followed by the saw on long pieces of timber. First a string is wetted with ink and stretched taut about a centimeter above the timber by fastening or holding its ends. It is then pulled up in the middle and then let gone of. The inked string hits against the wood below it, leaving a neat, straight marker line.

[505] The following methods are related to the Visuddhimagga's fourfold scheme of exerting the mind, paggaṇhāti, restraining it, niggaṇhāti, encouraging it, sampahaṃseti, and being equanimous to it, ajjhupekkhati..

Vism IV.128: yasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ paggahetabbaṃ tasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ paggaṇhāti, yasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ niggahetabbaṃ tasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ niggaṇhāti, yasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ sampahaṃsitabbaṃ tasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ sampahaṃseti, yasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ ajjhupekkhitabbaṃ tasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ ajjhupekkhati. A-a . Yasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ niggaṇhitabbantiādīsu uddhaccasamaye cittaṃ samādhinā niggahetabbaṃ nāma, kosajjānupatitakāle vīriyena paggahetabbaṃ nāma, nirassādagatakāle samādhinā sampahaṃsitabbaṃ nāma, samappavattakāle bojjhaṅgupekkhāya ajjhupekkhitabbaṃ nāma.

[506] This is related to the upakkilesa. Cf. M-a IV 208 (on M III 157 ff.): Duṭṭhullan-ti mayā vīriyaṃ gāḷhaṃ paggahitaṃ, tena me uppilaṃ uppannan-ti vīriyaṃ sithilamakāsi, tato kāyadaratho kāyaduṭṭhullaṃ kāyālasiyaṃ udapādi. Accāraddhavīriyan-ti mama vīriyaṃ sithilaṃ karoto duṭṭhullaṃ uppannan-ti puna vīriyaṃ paggaṇhato accāraddhavīriyaṃ udapādi.

[507] 每中調適. This means equalizing or balancing (samatta) the faculties. Cf. 中方便調適 414c20 below.

[508] Paṭis-a I 102: Ālokasaññā ti thinamiddhassa paṭipakkhe ālokanimitte saññā. A-a III 357: Ālokasaññan-ti ālokanimitte uppannasaññaṃ.

Through three ways there is listlessness: through lack of skill, dullness of wisdom, and not attaining the happiness of stilness.[509]

Hence, if a meditator's mind is listless, he encourages it in these two ways: through frightening and through gladdening.

If he considers birth, ageing, death and the four bad destinations (duggati), then seeing what is fearful, [his] mind gives rise to urgency.[510]

If he practises the recollections of the Buddha, the Dhamma, the Saṅgha, virtue, liberality and gods, then seeing the benefits of these six ways [of recollection], his mind gives rise to gladness. 414c17

(8) By concentrating the mind and being equanimous:

Through two ways [the mind becomes concentrated]: by abandoning the hindrances the mind becomes concentrated in the plane of access-concentration or by manifesting the jhāna factors the mind becomes concentrated in the plane of attainment (paṭilābhabhūmi).[511]

There are two ways [of practice] for the meditator whose mind is concentrated: he should be equanimous without there being stagnation (ṭhiti?), and [he should] even [the faculties] by the skilful means of equalising.[512]

(9) Avoidance of persons who do not practice concentration: One should not follow, practise with, and serve persons who do have fixedness-concentration, access-concentration or restraint-concentration.[513]

Association with persons who practise concentration: one should follow, practise with, and serve persons who have fixedness-concentration, access-concentration or restraint-concentration.

(10) By intentness upon fixedness-concentration: The meditator is always intent upon and reveres [concentration] and practises it much, he is inclined to it, leaning to it, and tending to it.[514]

The practice of these ten methods is the cause for effecting skill in fixedness-concentration. 414c26

Q. How does one effect skill in fixedness-concentration through determination?[515]

A. The meditator, having well understood the causes for the arising [of fixedness-concentration], enters into seclusion. With the sign of concentration upon which he is resolved (adhimutta), he develops concentration as he wishes and with facility. He arouses desire (chanda) to cause the mind to obtain the arising [of fixedness-concentration]. Due to this [desire], the body and mind are capable and fit (kammanīya?) to cause [the mind] to become determined. Due to [capability] arises gladness, causing the mind to become determined. Due to [gladness] arises happiness, causing the mind to become determined. Due to [happiness] arises illumination (obhāsa), causing the mind to become determined. [415a] Due [illumination] arises urgency,[516] causing the mind to become determined. Because of that urgency he causes the mind to become calm. Well exerting that calm mind, the mind becomes determined. Thus well exerting, he arouses equanimity [toward the exertion], causing the mind to become determined. Due to [equanimity] the mind becomes free from limitless defilements and becomes determined. Because of the freedom, those [states] accomplish a single function. Because of that single function the mind becomes determined. Having developed [this single function], due to this excellence the mind obtains

---

[509] See Vism IV.63 in next fn.

[510] 心生愁惱. The parallel in Vism IV.63 indicates that 愁惱 soka-upāyāsa, correspond to saṃvega, "urgency." Vism IV.63: Kathaṃ yasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ sampahaṃsitabbaṃ, tasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ sampahaṃseti? Yadāssa paññāpayogamandatāya vā upasamasukhānadhigamena vā nirassādaṃ cittaṃ hoti, tadā naṃ aṭṭhasaṃvegavatthupaccavekkhaṇena saṃvejeti. Aṭṭha saṃvegavatthūni nāma jātijarābyādhimaraṇāni cattāri, apāyadukkhaṃ pañcamaṃ, … Buddhadhammasaṅghaguṇānussaraṇena cassa pasādaṃ janeti.

Cp Nidd I 371: Jātibhayaṃ jarābhayaṃ byādhibhayaṃ maraṇabhayaṃ … duggatibhayaṃ.

[511] Cf. Vism IV.32/p. 126.: Dvīhākārehi cittaṃ samādhiyati upacārabhūmiyaṃ vā paṭilābhabhūmiyaṃ vā. Tattha upacārabhūmiyaṃ nīvaraṇappahānena cittaṃ samāhitaṃ hoti. Paṭilābhabhūmiyaṃ aṅgapātubhāvena.

[512] 中方便調適故. See Vim 414c04.

[513] Vim 414c23: 威儀定. The meaning of this term is unclear. Perhaps it refers to a person who has sense restraint (indriyasaṃvara) or is restrained in conduct. In Sn-a I 262: "concentration of postures," iriyāpathasamādhi, is mentioned.

[514] The Chinese has "The meditator, like a deep spring, like a fountain spring and like a low tree, …" (如彼深源如彼奔泉如彼低樹) but this would be a misinterpretation of samādhininna-samādhipoṇa-samādhipabbhāratā; see Vism IV.65/p.135: Tadadhimuttatā nāma samādhiadhimuttatā samādhigaru-samādhininna-samādhipoṇa-samādhipabbhāratā ti attho.

[515] See note 197.

[516] 悲傷 Lit "compassion-sorrow." This is a mistranslation for saṃvega. Similarly, a few paragraphs above, at 414c16, the Chinese text has "terror," 恐怖, whereas the Vism has saṃvega.

growth.[517]

When established in determination in this manner, the meditator effects skill in fixedness-concentration.

When well understanding the causes for the effecting [of fixedness-concentration] and mental determination in this manner, before long he will arouse concentration.

First Jhāna

"The meditator, secluded from sense-pleasures, [secluded] from unwholesome states, dwells having entered upon the first jhāna which is accompanied by thinking and exploring, and the rapture and happiness born of seclusion."[518] 415a08

This is a reward of the earth kasiṇa.[519]

Seclusion from Sense-pleasures

"Secluded from sense-pleasures": There are three kinds of seclusion (viveka), i.e., [seclusion] of the body, [seclusion] of the mind and [seclusion] from the defilements.[520]

Q. What is "seclusion of the body"?

A. To be secluded from defilements one departs and dwells on a mountain or in a wilderness.[521]

Q. What is seclusion of the mind?

A. Reaching an excellent station by means of a pure mind.[522]

Q. What is seclusion from defilements?

A. Free from bondages, free from birth and death, a man dwells.[523] 415a13

Again, there are five kinds of seclusion, namely, seclusion through suspending, seclusion through that (opposing) aspect, seclusion through eradication, seclusion through tranquillizing, seclusion through escaping.[524]

Q. What is seclusion through suspending?

A. Namely, the suspending of the five hindrances through the practice of the first jhāna.

Q. What is seclusion through the (opposing) aspect?

A. Namely, the suspending of [wrong] views through the practice of concentration partaking of [517] This sequence is related to a sequence in Paṭis on the faculties. Parts are identical. Cf. Paṭis II 23–25: Kathaṃ adhimattaṭṭhena indriyāni daṭṭhabbāni? Saddhindriyassa bhāvanāya chando uppajjati—chandavasena saddhāvasena saddhindriyaṃ adhimattaṃ hoti. Chandavasena pāmojjaṃ uppajjati—…. Pāmojjavasena pīti uppajjati—…. Passaddhivasena sukhaṃ uppajjati—…. Sukhavasena obhāso uppajjati—…. Obhāsavasena saṃvego uppajjati—…. Saṃvejetvā cittaṃ samādahati—…. Tathā samāhitaṃ cittaṃ sādhukaṃ paggaṇhāti—…. Tathāpaggahitaṃ cittaṃ sādhukaṃ ajjhupekkhati—…. Upekkhāvasena nānattakilesehi cittaṃ vimuccati—…. Vimuttattā te dhammā ekarasā honti—ekarasaṭṭhena bhāvanāvasena saddhāvasena saddhindriyaṃ adhimattaṃ hoti. Bhāvitattā tato paṇītatare vivaṭṭanti . … Kathaṃ adhiṭṭhānaṭṭhena indriyāni daṭṭhabbāni? … …pe….

---

[518] A III 25: Idha bhikkhave bhikkhu vivicc'eva kāmehi vivicca akusalehi dhammehi savitakkaṃ savicāraṃ vivekajaṃ pīti-sukhaṃ paṭhamajjhānaṃ upasampajja viharati.

[519] This refrain is found after the ḍefinition of each of the 4 jhānas.

[520] a. Nidd I 26: Vivekā ti tayo vivekā, kāyaviveko, cittaviveko, upadhiviveko.

[521] Nidd I 26: Katamo kāyaviveko? Idha bhikkhu vivittaṃ senāsanaṃ bhajati araññaṃ rukkhamūlaṃ pabbataṃ kandaraṃ giriguhaṃ susānaṃ vanapatthaṃ abbhokāsaṃ palālapuñjaṃ. Kāyena vivitto viharati. So eko gacchati, eko tiṭṭhati…

[522] Nidd I 27: … cittaviveko ca parisuddhacittānaṃ paramavodānappattānaṃ … Nidd I 26: Katamo cittaviveko? Paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ samāpannassa nīvaraṇehi cittaṃ vivittaṃ hoti. Dutiyaṃ jhānaṃ … Arahato rūpārūparāgā mānā uddhaccā avijjāya mānānusayā bhavarāgānusayā avijjānusayā, tadekaṭṭhehi ca kilesehi bahiddhā ca sabbanimittehi cittaṃ vivittaṃ hoti. Nidd-a 103: Cittaviveko ti mahaggatalokuttaracittānaṃ kilesehi suññabhāvo, tucchabhāvoti attho. Ud-a 230: Aṭṭha samāpattiyo pana cittaviveko nāma.

[523] Transl. by RB. EKS: "A man is cut off from kindred, birth and death." Nidd I 27: Katamo upadhiviveko? Upadhi vuccanti kilesā ca khandhā ca abhisaṅkhārā ca. Upadhiviveko vuccati amataṃ nibbānaṃ. Cf. Sn-a I 298: Tattha paviveko ti kilesavivekato jātattā aggaphalaṃ vuccati.

[524] Paṭis II 220: Sammādiṭṭhiyā katame pañca vivekā? Vikkhambhanaviveko tadaṅgaviveko samucchedaviveko paṭippassaddhiviveko nissaraṇaviveko. Vikkhambhanaviveko ca nīvaraṇānaṃ paṭhamajjhānaṃ bhāvayato, tadaṅgaviveko ca diṭṭhigatānaṃ nibbedhabhāgiyaṃ samādhiṃ bhāvayato, samucchedaviveko ca lokuttaraṃ khayagāmimaggaṃ bhāvayato, paṭippassaddhiviveko ca phalakkhaṇe, nissaraṇaviveko ca nirodho nibbānaṃ. See also the five kinds of vimutti at p. (introduction.)

penetration.

Q. What is seclusion through eradication?

A. Namely, the abandoning of defilements by the practice of the supramundane Path.

Q. What is seclusion through tranquillizing?

A. It is the happiness [experienced] at the time when one attains the [Noble] Fruit.

Q. What is seclusion through escaping?

A. Namely, Nibbāna.

There are two kinds of sense-pleasures: the first are sense-pleasures as bases (vatthu-kāma); the second is sense-pleasures as defilements (kilesa-kāma).

Heavenly and human lovely forms, odours, flavours and tangibles—these are called "sense-pleasures as bases." The arising of greedy intentions regarding these sense-pleasures—this is called "sense-pleasure as defilement."[525]

Hence, the seclusion from these sense-pleasures through seclusion of the mind and seclusion through suspending—this is renunciation, this is freedom, this is the unassociated.

This is called "seclusion from sense-pleasures." 415a21

Seclusion from Unwholesome States

["Secluded from unwholesome states":]

Q. What is "seclusion from unwholesome states"?

A. The roots of unwholesomeness (akusalamūla) are of three kinds: the first is greed, the second is hatred and the third is delusion.[526] The feelings, perceptions, formations, and consciousness associated with these [roots] and the actions of body, speech and mind associated with these [roots]—these are called "unwholesome states."

415a24 It is said that there are three kinds of unwholesomeness: the first is intrinsic (sabhāva or pakati); the second is associated; the third is causally produced intrinsic. The three roots of unwholesomeness—i.e. greed, hatred and delusion—these are called "intrinsic." The feelings, perceptions, formations and consciousness which are associated with these [roots]—these are called "associated." The places where actions of body, speech and mind originate—these are called "causally [produced] intrinsic."

The seclusion from these three unwholesome states is called renunciation, freedom, the unassociated."

This is called "seclusion from unwholesome states."

Again,"seclusion from sense-pleasures" means seclusion from the hindrance of sense-desire (kāmacchanda). "Seclusion from unwholesome states" is seclusion from the other hindrances.[527] [415b]

Q. Since "seclusion from unwholesome states" has already been taught, and sense-pleasures (kāma), being unwholesome states, are covered by it, why should seclusion from sense-desire be taught separately?

A. The opposite of sense-desire is renunciation.[528] What the Buddha said of sense-pleasures can also [be said] of removing defilements. "Seclusion from sense-pleasures is renunciation"[529]—this is the teaching of the Buddha. Likewise, "For one who obtains the first jhāna, perceptions and attention connected to sense-pleasures occur—this is a state partaking of falling back."[530] Therefore sense-pleasures

---

[525] Nidd I 1–2: Dve kāmā, vatthukāmā ca kilesakāma ca. Katame vatthukāmā? Manāpikā rūpā, … saddā, … gandhā, … rasā, … phoṭṭhabbā; … dibba kāmā; … ime vuccanti vatthukāmā. Katame kilesakāmā? Chando kāmo … rāgo … chandarāgo … saṅkapparāgo kāmo; yo kāmesu kāmacchando kāmarāgo kāmanandi kāmataṇhā kāmasneho kāmapariḷāho kāmamucchā kāmajjhosānaṃ kāmogho kāmayogo kāmūpādānaṃ kāmacchandanīvaraṇaṃ … ime vuccanti kilesakāmā. Cp. Vism IV.83.

[526] D III 214, 275: Tīṇi akusalamūlāni: lobho akusalamūlaṃ, doso akusalamūlaṃ, moho akusalamūlaṃ.

[527] Vibh 256: Vivicc'eva kāmehi vivicca akusalehi dhammehī ti: tattha katame kāmā? Chando kāmo, rāgo kāmo, chandarāgo kāmo; saṅkappo kāmo, rāgo kāmo, saṅkapparāgo kāmo: ime vuccanti kāmā. Tattha katame akusalā dhammā? Kāmacchando vyāpādo thīnamiddhaṃ uddhaccakukkuccaṃ vicikicchā: ime vuccanti akusalā dhammā—here see Vism IV.87/p. 141: Vivicca akusalehi dhammehī ti iminā pañcannam pi nīvaraṇānaṃ, agahitaggahaṇena pana paṭhamena kāmacchandassa, dutiyena sesanīvaraṇānaṃ.

[528] Peṭ 160: Tattha kāmacchandassa nekkhammavitakko paṭipakkho; Paṭis-a I 103: Nekkhamman-ti kāmacchandassa paṭipakkho alobho.

[529] It 61: Kāmānam-etaṃ nissaraṇaṃ yad-idaṃ nekkhammaṃ.

[530] Paṭis I 35: Paṭhamassa jhānassa lābhiṃ kāmasahagatā saññāmanasikārā samudācaranti—hānabhāgiyo dhammo.

S IV 262: So khvāhaṃ, āvuso, vivicceva kāmehi vivicca … paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharāmi. Tassa mayhaṃ, āvuso, iminā vihārena viharato kāmasahagatā saññāmanasikārā samudācaranti. … Mā, brāhmaṇa, paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ are connected with defilements. If there is seclusion from sense-pleasures, there is seclusion from all defilements. Therefore seclusion from sense-pleasures is taught separately.

Again, "seclusion from sense-pleasures" means: Having achieved renunciation, one accomplishes seclusion from sense-pleasures. 415b06

"Seclusion from unwholesome states" is thus: When there is the obtaining of non-hatred, there is seclusion from hatred; when there is the obtaining of the sign of light, there is seclusion from sloth (thīna); through the obtaining non-distraction, there is seclusion from agitation and worry (uddhacca-kukucca); when there is the obtaining of non-remorse, there is seclusion from remorse; when there is the obtaining of fixedness-concentration, there is seclusion from uncertainty; when there is the obtaining of wisdom, there is seclusion from ignorance; when there is the obtaining of right intention, there is seclusion from wrong thought; when there is the obtaining of gladness, there is seclusion from unhappiness; when there is the obtaining of happiness of mind, there is seclusion from suffering; when there is the obtaining of all wholesome states, there is seclusion from all unwholesomeness.[531]

As is taught in the Tipiṭaka (= Peṭaka)[532]: "By fulfilling non-greed, one accomplishes seclusion from sense-pleasures. By fulfilling non-hatred and non-delusion, one accomplishes seclusion from unwholesome states." 415b13

And again, seclusion from sense-pleasures is taught as seclusion of the body, and seclusion from unwholesome states is taught as the seclusion of the mind.

And again, seclusion from sense-pleasures is taught as the abandoning of sensual thoughts (kāma-vitakka), and the seclusion from unwholesome states is taught as the abandoning of thoughts of hate and harm (byāpāda- & vihiṃsa-vitakka). 415b16

And again, seclusion from sense-pleasures is taught as the shunning of sensual-pleasure (kāmasukha), and seclusion from unwholesome states is taught as the shunning of the pursuit of wearying-out-oneself (attakilamathānuyoga).[533]

And again, seclusion from sense-pleasures is taught as the cutting off of the six joys,[534] and of the delight, gladness and happiness [therein]. Seclusion from unwholesome states is taught as the abandoning of frivolous discursive thoughts and of distress and suffering, etc. Also it is taught as the cutting off of the [six] joys, and as equanimity.[535] 415b19

And again, seclusion from sense-pleasures is obtaining the happiness of going beyond sensual happiness,[536] and seclusion from unwholesome states is obtaining the happiness of a mind without obstructions.

And again, seclusion from sense-pleasures is to go beyond the torrent of sense-desire (kāmogha) entirely. Seclusion from unwholesome states is the transcending of all other defilements which cause rebirth in sensuous existence (kāmabhava) and the material realm (rūpāvacara or rūpadhātu). 415b22

[This is called "seclusion from unwholesome states."]

---

pamādo, paṭhame jhāne cittaṃ saṇṭhapehi, …. S-a III 89: Kāmasahagatā ti pañcanīvaraṇasahagatā. Tassa hi paṭhamajjhānavuṭṭhitassa pañca nīvaraṇāni santato upaṭṭhahiṃsu. Tenassa taṃ paṭhamajjhānaṃ hānabhāgiyaṃ nāma ahosi.

[531] Cf. Paṭis I 100: … nekkhammena kāmacchandaṃ sammā samucchindati. Abyāpādena byāpādaṃ … . Ālokasaññāya thinamiddhaṃ … Avikkhepena uddhaccaṃ … Dhammavavatthānena vicikicchaṃ … Ñāṇena avijjaṃ … Pāmojjena aratiṃ … Paṭhamena jhānena nīvaraṇe … arahattamaggena sabbakilese sammā samucchindati.

[532] The Chinese has Sāng Tsāng, which corresponds to "Tipiṭaka," but the quotation referred to here and the ones elsewhere in Vim are from the Peṭakopadesa, which is referred to as "Peṭaka" in the Pali aṭṭhakathā. It is understandable that the Chinese translator, not knowing that a book with this name existed, understood it to be the Tipiṭaka/Tipeṭaka. Cf. Bapat 1937, p. lv and Appendix A 3.

Peṭ 141: Tattha alobhassa pāripūriyā, vivitto hoti kāmehi. Tattha adosassa pāripūriyā amohassa pāripūriyā ca vivitto hoti pāpākehi akusalehi dhammehi.

[533] Cf. S IV 330, V 420: Dveme … antā pabbajitena na sevitabbā: yo cāyaṃ kāmesu kāmasukhallikānuyogo hīno gammo pothujjaniko anariyo anatthasaṃhito, yo cāyaṃ attakilamathānuyogo dukkho anariyo anatthasaṃhito. Ete te … ubho ante anupagamma …

[534] Vim 415b18: 六戲笑. The characters 戲笑 elsewhere stand for pahāsa. S-a III 82: Cha gehasitāni somanassānītiādīsu cakkhuviññeyyānaṃ rūpānaṃ iṭṭhānaṃ kantānaṃ manāpānaṃ manoramānaṃ lokāmisapaṭisaṃyuttānaṃ paṭilābhaṃ vā paṭilābhato samanupassato pubbe vā paṭiladdhapubbaṃ atītaṃ niruddhaṃ vipariṇataṃ samanussarato uppajjati somanassaṃ. Yaṃ evarūpaṃ somanassaṃ, idaṃ vuccati gehasitaṃ somanassan-ti. Evaṃ chasu dvāresu vuttakāmaguṇanissitāni somanassāni cha gehasitasomanassāni nāma.

[535] The character 捨 can also mean "giving up," "getting rid of". It is unclear which meaning is intended here.

[536] Ud 10: Sukhā virāgatā loke, kāmānaṃ samatikkamo.

Thinking and Exploring

"Accompanied by thinking and exploring":

Q. What is "thinking"?

A. The diverse kinds of thought (vitakka), intention (saṅkappa), (mental) fixing (appanā), mentation (cintana), mental implanting (abhiniropana), right intention—this is what is called "thinking."[537]

Owing to the fulfilment of thinking the first jhāna is accompanied by thinking.

Again, having entered upon the earth kasiṇa depending on the earth sign there is uninterrupted thinking and intention (vitakka-saṅkappa).[538] It is comparable to the reciting of discourses by heart.

Q. What are the characteristic, function, manifestation and near cause of thinking?

A. [……] Development of tranquil perception is its function. Mindfully arousing a depressed mind is its manifestation. Perception is its near cause.[539]

Q. What is "exploring"?

A. Practising, exploring, reflection, investigation, mental connecting, consideration—this is called exploring.[540]

By means of this [earth] sign one ought to accomplish the first jhāna which is accompanied by exploring. [415c]

Again, when the meditator enters upon the earth kasiṇa due to developing the earth sign, the mind reaches a state of exploring. It is comparable to exploring phenomena (attha, dhamma) for the sake of exploring.

Q. What are the characteristic, function, manifestation and near cause of exploring?

A. The exploring that follows selection is its characteristic. Causing mental tranquillity (cittapassaddhi) is its function. The discerning (dassana) that follows thinking (vitakka) is its near cause.[541] 415c04

The difference between thinking and exploring

Q. What is the difference between thinking and exploring?

A. It is comparable to the striking of a bell: The first sound is thinking; the reverberation is exploring.

Again, it is comparable to the relation of the mind to its object. The beginning is thinking; the rest is exploring.

And again, to wish for jhāna is thinking; to maintain it is exploring.

And again, to recollect is thinking; not to abandon [the recollection] is exploring.

And again, retaining a mind [state] which is coarse is thinking and retaining a mind [state] which is fine is exploring.

Where there is thinking, there is exploring, but where there is exploring, there may or may not be thinking.

It is taught in the Tipiṭaka (= Peṭaka)[542] thus: "The first impact-instance (abhinipāta) of the mind on an object is thinking. The investigation of the obtained thinking is exploring.[543] 415c10

---

[537] EKS's rendering "to aspire rightly, though without understanding," for 心不覺知入正思惟 literally is "unintended entry into right thought." The Chinese translator probably misunderstood abhiniropana as a-viniropana or had a text with this reading.

Vibh 256, Dhs § 7: Tattha katamo vitakko? Yo takko vitakko saṅkappo appanā vyappanā cetaso abhiniropanā sammāsaṅkappo—ayaṃ vuccati vitakko. Cf. M III 73.

[538] Transl. by RB. Lit. "without interval." EKS: "without end."

[539] The explanation of the "salient characteristic" is missing in the Chinese. The characters 下心, "depressed mind" or "inferior mind" are also found at Vim 413c16.

Cf. Vism IV.88–92. Cf. Hayashi, 1999 p. 35.

[540] 於修觀時隨觀所擇心住隨捨. The Chinese could literally be translated as "By practising exploring, consequently to the exploring, the mind dwells following equanimously that [sign] which it has selected…" but the passage is clearly a translation of Vibh 256 & Dhs § 8: Tattha katamo vicāro? Yo cāro vicāro anuvicāro upavicāro cittassa anusandhanatā anupekkhanatā—ayaṃ vuccati vicāro."

[541] Cf. Vism IV.88–92.

[542] 三藏, i.e. the Peṭakopadesa. What follows is a long quotation from Peṭ 142–43 of which the Pali will be given in the next footnotes.

[543] Vim 415c09–10: 得覺未定是觀. LIt "the obtained thought not yet settled is …" The Peṭaka parallel has a different, and more sensible, explanation for vicāra: Tattha paṭhamābhinipāto vitakko, paṭiladdhassa vicaraṇaṃ vicāro.

"To see a person coming in the distance, without knowing whether it is a man or woman and then [when the person has arrived] to know that it is a male or a female with such a colour and such a shape is thinking. Thereafter to investigate whether [the person] is virtuous or unvirtuous, is rich or poor, noble or humble, is exploring.

"Thinking wishes [a thing], draws it and brings it near. Exploring keeps it, holds it and goes after it.[544] 415c12

"Like a bird which takes off into the sky from a mound exerts its wings, is thinking. Like the gliding [of a bird in the sky] is exploring.

"Like the first spreading [of the wings] is thinking. The continued spreading [of the wings] is exploring.[545]

"With thinking one maintains; with exploring one searches and investigates. 415c15 With thinking one thinks; with exploring one explores upon.[546]

The action of thinking is non-attention to evil states; the action of exploring is resolving upon the jhānas.[547]

"Like a reciter[548] who is silently reciting a discourse, [is thinking]; when he contemplates its meaning, it is exploring.[549]

Like [trying] to understand what has [yet] to be understood is thinking; understanding what has already been understood is exploring.[550]

The discrimination of derivation and the discrimination of elucidation are thinking; the discrimination of the Dhamma and the discrimination of meaning is exploring.[551]

The mind's skill in distinction is thinking; the mind's skill in aspiration is exploring.[552]

These are the differences between thinking and exploring.

Seclusion

"Born of seclusion": It is called "seclusion" because of seclusion from the five hindrances. This is called "seclusion."

Ñāṇamoli's translation, Piṭaka Disclosure, p. 190: "Herein, 'thinking' is the first instance while 'exploring' is the exploration of what is got thus."

[544] Peṭ 142: Vitakkā ti tayo vitakkā: nekkhammavitakko abyāpādavitakko avihiṃsāvitakko. Tattha paṭhamābhinipāto vitakko, paṭiladdhassa vicaraṇaṃ vicāro. Yathā puriso dūrato purisaṃ passati āgacchantaṃ na ca tāva jānāti—eso itthi ti vā puriso ti vā. Yadā tu paṭilabhati: itthi ti vā puriso ti vā evaṃvaṇṇo ti vā evaṃsaṇṭhāno ti vā, ime vitakkayanto uttari upaparikkhanti: kiṃ nu kho ayaṃ sīlavā udāhu dussīlo aḍḍho vā duggato ti vā? Evaṃ vicāro vitakke apeti vicāro cariyati, ca, anuvattati ca. Vism IV.89/p.142: ... avippayoge oḷārikaṭṭhena pubbaṅgamaṭṭhena ca ghaṇḍābhighāto viya cetaso paṭhamābhinipāto vitakko. Sukhumaṭṭhena anumajjanasabhāvena ca ghaṇḍānuravo viya anuppabandho vicāro. ...

[545] Peṭ 142: Yathā pakkhī pubbaṃ āyūhati pacchā nāyūhati yathā āyūhanā evaṃ vitakko, yathā pakkhānaṃ pasāraṇaṃ evaṃ vicāro. Vism IV.89/p.142: Dukanipātaṭṭhakathāyaṃ pana ākāse gacchato mahāsakuṇassa ubhohi pakkhehi vātaṃ gahetvā pakkhe sannisīdāpetvā viya ārammaṇe cetaso abhiniropanabhāvena pavatto vitakko; so hi ekaggo hutvā appeti; vātagahaṇatthaṃ pakkhe phandāpayamānassa gamanaṃ viya anumajjanasabhāvena pavatto vicāro ti vuttaṃ.* (*Not traced in the Aṅguttara-aṭṭhakathā.) Dhs-a 115: ākāse uppatitukāmassa pakkhino pakkhavikkhepo viya. ... ākāse uppatitassa pakkhino pakkhappasāraṇaṃ viya.

[546] Peṭ 142: Anupālati vitakketi, vicarati vicāreti. Vitakkayati vitakketi, anuvicarati vicāreti.

The next sentence in the Pali Peṭaka is not found in the Vim here: Kāmasaññāya paṭipakkho vitakko, byāpādasaññāya vihiṃsasaññāya ca paṭipakkho vicāro.

[547] Peṭ 142: Vitakkānaṃ kammaṃ akusalassa amanasikāro, vicārānaṃ kammaṃ jeṭṭhānaṃ saṃvāraṇā.

Ñāṇamoli notes in Piṭaka Disclosure p. 191 n. 582/2 that jeṭṭhānaṃ, "forerunners," in the Pali text is "an odd expression." The Pali corresponding to 受持於禪 would be jhānaṃ/jhānāni adhiṭṭhānaṃ.

[548] The Chinese text has 人有力, "strong man." The Chinese translator apparently misunderstood the Pali pali in paliko as balin, "strong."

[549] Peṭ 142/Be 262: Yathā paliko (= corruption of pāḷikārako) tuṇhiko sajjhāyaṃ karoti evaṃ vitakko, yathā taṃ yeva anupassati evaṃ vicāro.

[550] 如覺所覺覺已能知觀. Cf. Peṭ 142: Yathā apariññā evaṃ vitakko, yathā pariññā evaṃ vicāro. Cf. Peṭ 143: Idaṃ kusalaṃ idaṃ akusalaṃ idaṃ bhāvetabbaṃ idaṃ pahātabbaṃ idaṃ sacchikātabban-ti vitakko, yathā pahānañca bhāvanā ca sacchikiriyā ca evaṃ vicāro.

[551] Peṭ 142: Niruttipaṭisambhidāyañ ca paṭibhānapaṭisambhidāyañ ca vitakko, dhammapaṭisambhidāyañ ca atthapaṭisambhidāyañ ca vicāro.

[552] 心解於勝是覺心解分別是觀. Peṭ 142: Kallitā kosallattaṃ cittassa vitakko, abhinīhārakosallaṃ cittassa vicāro.

Again, it is the wholesome root (kusala-mūla) of the material realm.

Again, it is said that it is the access of the first jhāna.

Again, it is said that it is the jhāna-mind. What is produced from this [jhāna-] mind is called "born of seclusion,"[553] like the flower which is produced from earth or water is called "earth-flower" or "water-flower."

Rapture and Happiness

"Rapture and happiness" (pītisukha): [What is rapture?] The mind at this time is very glad and joyful. The mind is filled with coolness. This is called "rapture."[554] 415c22

Q. What are the characteristic, function, manifestation and near cause of rapture and how many kinds of rapture are there?

A. To please and to pervade are its characteristic; delight is its function; overcoming of wavering of the mind is its manifestation;[555] exulation is its near cause.[556]

Q. How many kinds of rapture are there?

A. There are six kinds of rapture: one is produced from sense-pleasures; one from faith; one from non-remorse; one from seclusion; one from concentration and one from the awakening factors.

Q. Which rapture is produced from sense-pleasures?

A. The rapture defiled by greed and desire is called "rapture that arises from sense-pleasures."[557]

Q. Which rapture arises from faith?

A. The rapture of a man of great faith and the rapture produced on seeing a potter, etc.[558]

Q. Which rapture arises from non-remorse?[559] [416a]

A. Developing the purity of keeping the precepts, a man arouses much gladness and rapture.

Q. Which rapture arises from seclusion?

A. The rapture of the person who enters upon the first jhāna.[560]

Q. Which rapture arises from concentration?

A. The rapture of entering upon the second jhāna.[561]

Q. Which rapture arises from the awakening factors?

A. The rapture of the development of the supramundane path in the second jhāna.

Again, it is said that there are five kinds of rapture, namely, minor rapture (khuddakā-pīti),[562] momentary rapture (khaṇikā-pīti), streaming rapture (okkantikā-pīti), uplifting rapture (ubbegā-pīti), pervasive rapture (pharaṇā-pīti).

---

[553] Cf. Vibh 257: Vivekajan-ti vitakko, vicāro, pīti, sukhaṃ, cittassekaggatā, te imasmiṃ viveke jātā honti sañjātā nibbattā abhinibbattā pātubhūtā.

[554] Cf. Vibh 257: Tattha katamā pīti? Yā pīti pāmojjaṃ āmodanā pamodanā hāso pahāso vitti odagyaṃ attamanatā cittassa, ayaṃ vuccati pīti.

Dhs-a 181: Tassa tālavaṇṭavātadāyako viya imassāpi cetaso sītalabhāvadāyikā pīti.

[555] This might be based on a misunderstanding on the part of the Chinese translator of odagya/udagga, "exultation," (see next note) perhaps taking it as the opposite of ekagga, unification, or as uddhacca, agitation.

[556] There is a similar definition of joy in the list of similes of saṅkhāras in chapter 11. Cf. Hayashi (2005, p.6).

Cf. Mohavicchedanī 12: Pīṇayatī ti pīti. … odagyapaccupaṭṭhānā, somanassasahagatacittapadaṭṭhānā. Vism IV.94: Pīṇayatī ti pīti. Sā sampiyānalakkhaṇā, kāyacittapīṇanarasā, pharaṇarasā vā odagyapaccupaṭṭhānā. M-a 84: Pīṇayatī ti pīti. Sā pharaṇalakkhaṇā, tuṭṭhilakkhaṇā vā, kāyacittānaṃ pīṇanarasā, tesaṃ yeva odagyapaccupaṭṭhānā.

[557] S IV 235: Katamā ca bhikkhave sāmisā pīti. Pañcime bhikkhave kāmaguṇā. Katame pañca? Cakkhuviññeyyā rūpā iṭṭhā manāpā piyarūpā kāmūpasaṃhitā rajanīyā … kāyaviññeyyā phoṭṭhabbā iṭṭhā kantā … rajanīyā. Ime kho bhikkhave pañca kāmaguṇā. Yā kho bhikkhave ime pañca kāmaguṇe paṭicca uppajjati pīti, ayaṃ vuccati bhikkhave sāmisā pīti.

[558] What is meant by 'potter' is not clear. An allusion to the Ghaṭīkāra sutta from Majjhima Nikāya?

[559] 不悔. Non-remorse is the cause for pāmojja and pīti (e.g., A V 1). See note @@ The text has 不退, which normally corresponds to aparihāna…"@@

[560] A II 126: Idha ekacco puggalo vivicc'eva kāmehi vivicca akusalehi dhammehi savitakkaṃ savicāraṃ vivekajaṃ pītisukhaṃ paṭhamajjhānaṃ upasampajja viharati.

[561] Ibid. 127: Vitakkavicārānaṃ vūpasamā ajjhattaṃ sampasādanaṃ cetaso ekodibhāvaṃ avitakkaṃ avicāraṃ samādhijaṃ pītisukhaṃ dutiyajjhānaṃ upasampajja viharati.

[562] The text here and in the explanation (416a04 & 05) has "smiling wisdom" or hāsa-pīti, 笑喜 (cf. hāsa-paññā). However, the following classification of the types of pīti in relation to the types of concentration (Vim 416a09) has "minor rapture" or khuddika-pīti, 小喜, which corresponds to Vis IV.94, Dhs-a 115, Nidd-a I 129: Khuddikāpīti, khaṇikāpīti, okkantikāpīti, pharaṇāpīti, ubbegāpītī ti pañcavidhā hoti.

Minor rapture causes all the hairs of the body to be raised. It is like a drizzle moistening the body. Momentary rapture arises and passes away without staying. It is like an evening showers. Steaming rapture is like oil that flows down slowly, flowing into to the extremities of the body, but without spreading everywhere. As to uplifting rapture: the mind gives rise to joy and rapture [which spread] all over [the body], completely, but which vanish before long. It is like a poor man finding a buried treasure. Pervasive rapture pervades the body completely and stays on. It is like a thunder-cloud full of rain. 416a09

Herein, minor rapture and momentary rapture through faith arises in access [-jhāna]. Streaming rapture, through being powerful, arises in access. Uplifting rapture: dwelling rightly or not rightly with regards to the [kasiṇa-] disk, all [rapture] is produced [through] skilful means.[563] Pervading rapture arises in fixedness-concentration.

Happiness

Q. What is "happiness"?

A. At that time one is able to experience (vedeti) mental happiness produced by mental contact—this is called "happiness."[564] 416a13

Q. What are the characteristic, function, manifestation and near cause of happiness? How many kinds of happiness are there? What are the differences between rapture and happiness?

A. It has experiencing (vedayita or anubhavana) as its characteristic. Enjoyment of agreeable objects (iṭṭhakāra-sambhoga) is its function. Assisting (anuggaha) is its manifestation. Tranquillity is its near cause.[565]

Q. How many kinds of happiness are there? 416a16

A. There are five kinds of happiness, namely, caused happiness (hetu-sukha), happiness as prerequisite (sambhāra-sukha), happiness of seclusion (viveka-sukha), happiness of non-defilement, and feeling of happiness (sukha-vedanā).[566]

Q. What is "caused happiness"?

A. As the Buddha said: "The happiness of virtue lasts long."[567] This happiness [of virtue] is "caused happiness" in the sense of being a benefit of virtue "Happiness as prerequisite," as the Buddha said, is: "The arising of Buddhas in the world is

---

[563] This sentence is illegible and corrupt. 416a11: 於曼陀羅正與不正皆起處[5]處方便. EKS: "...: dwelling on the (kasiṇa) disk causes the arising of both the good and the bad, and depends on skill."

[564] Vibh 257: Tattha katamaṃ sukhaṃ? Yaṃ cetasikaṃ sātaṃ cetasikaṃ sukhaṃ cetosamphassajaṃ sātaṃ sukhaṃ vedayitaṃ cetosamphassajā sātā sukhā vedanā ...

[565] Dhs-a 109: Vedayatī ti vedanā. Sā vedayitalakkhaṇā, anubhavanarasā iṭṭhākārasambhogarasā vā, cetasika-assādapaccupaṭṭhānā, passaddhipadaṭṭhānā. Dhs-a 110: ... sabbā anubhavanarasā ti vatvā ayamattho dīpito—ārammaṇarasānubhavanaṭṭhānaṃ patvā sesasampayuttadhammā ekadesamattakameva anubhavanti. Phassassa hi phusanamattakameva hoti, saññāya sañjānanamattakameva, cetanāya cetanāmattakameva, viññāṇassa vijānanamattakameva. Ekaṃsato pana issaravatāya vissavitāya sāmibhāvena vedanāva ārammaṇarasaṃ anubhavati. ... Dutiye atthavikappe ayaṃ idha adhippetā vedanā yathā vā tathā vā ārammaṇassa iṭṭhākārameva sambhuñjatīti iṭṭhākārasambhogarasāti vuttā. Cetasika-assādato panesā attano sabhāveneva upaṭṭhānaṃ sandhāya cetasikaassādapaccupaṭṭhānāti vuttā. Yasmā pana passaddhakāyo sukhaṃ vedeti, tasmā passaddhipadaṭṭhānā ti veditabbā.

Vibh-mṭ Be 79: Iṭṭhaphoṭṭhabbānubhavanalakkhaṇaṃ sukhindriyaṃ, iṭṭhākārasambhogarasaṃ, kāyikassādapaccupaṭṭhānaṃ, kāyindriyapadaṭṭhānaṃ. Vism XIV.128: Tattha iṭṭhaphoṭṭhabbānubhavanalakkhaṇaṃ sukhaṃ, sampayuttānaṃ upabrūhanarasaṃ, kāyika-assādapaccupaṭṭhānaṃ, kāyindriyapadaṭṭhānaṃ. Vism IV.100/I 45: Itaraṃ pana sukhanaṃ sukhaṃ, suṭṭhu vā khādati, khanati ca kāyacittābādhanti sukhaṃ, taṃ sātalakkhaṇaṃ, sampayuttānaṃ upabrūhanarasaṃ, anuggahapaccupaṭṭhānaṃ.

[566] Dhs-a 40–41: Sukhāya vedanāyāti-ādīsu sukha-saddo tāva sukhavedanā-sukhamūla-sukhārammaṇa-sukhahetu-sukhapaccayaṭṭhāna-abyābajjhanibbānādīsu dissati. Ayañhi sukhassa ca pahānā ti-ādīsu sukhavedanāyaṃ dissati. Sukho buddhānaṃ uppādo, sukhā virāgatā loke ti-ādīsu sukhamūle yasmā ca kho, mahāli, rūpaṃ sukhaṃ sukhānupatitaṃ sukhāvakkantan-ti-ādīsu sukhārammaṇe. Sukhassetaṃ, bhikkhave, adhivacanaṃ yadidaṃ puññāni ti-ādīsu sukhahetumhi. Yāvañcidaṃ, bhikkhave, na sukaraṃ akkhānena pāpuṇituṃ yāva sukhā saggā, na te sukhaṃ pajānanti ye na passanti nandanan-ti-ādīsu sukhapaccayaṭṭhāne. Diṭṭhadhammasukhavihārā ete dhammā ti-ādīsu abyābajjhe. Nibbānaṃ paramaṃ sukhan-ti-ādisu nibbāne. Idha panāyaṃ sukhavedanāyameva daṭṭhabbo. Cf Th-a I 27: Sukha-saddo pana vipiṭṭhikatvāna sukhaṃ dukhañca, pubbeva ca somanassadomanassan-ti ādīsu sukhavedanāyaṃ āgato. Sukho buddhānamuppādo, sukhā saddhammadesanā tiādīsu sukhamūle. ... Cf. It-a 74–75.

[567] Cf. Dhp 333: Sukhaṃ yāva jarā sīlaṃ. Bv-a 120: Sīlaṃ nāmetaṃ idhalokaparalokasampattīnaṃ mūlaṃ. Sīlaṃ sukhānaṃ paramaṃ nidānaṃ, sīlena sīlī tidivaṃ payāti..."

happiness."[568]

"The happiness of seclusion" is equanimity born of concentration[569] and the concentration of the attainment of cessation.

p0416a19‖謂生定捨及滅禪定

"The happiness of non-defilement," as the Buddha said, is: "Nibbāna is the highest happiness."[570]

As for the so-called "feeling of happinesss," this is feeling as well as happiness. In this Treatise "feeling of happiness" is preferred.[571]

Q. What are the differences between rapture and happiness?

A. Exultation of mind is rapture. Tranquillity of mind is happiness. Concentration of mind is rapture. Rapture is coarse; happiness is fine. Rapture belongs to the formations-aggregate; happiness belongs to the feeling-aggregate. Where there is rapture there is happiness, but where there is happiness there may or may not be rapture. The first is the basis for producing the second.

Explanation of First Jhāna and its Factors

416a25 Endowed with access-concentration, one enters upon the first jhāna. The jhāna factors are thinking and exploring, rapture, happiness and unification of mind.[572]

Q. What is "jhāna"?

A. It is reflecting evenly on an object. It also is the suspending (vikkhambhana) of the five hindrances.[573] It also is to reflect and oppose.

"Having entered upon the first jhāna"[574] (means): gaining entry upon (upasampadā); having gained, having touched, having realized one dwells.[575]

Again, "secluded from sense-pleasures and unwholesome states": [Seclusion] from the plane of sense-pleasures (kāmadhātu) is taught as the special characteristic of the first jhāna. [Seclusion] from the state of thinking and exploring is taught as the special characteristic of the second jhāna.[576] [416b]

Through seclusion (viveka) [the first jhāna] is accompanied by rapture and happiness; rapture and happiness born of seclusion is said to be the special characteristic [of the first jhāna.][577]

Again, "Seclusion from sense-pleasures and unwholesome states" means the ability to eliminate and overcome.

"With thinking and exploring" is said to be the characteristic of [the first] jhāna. 416b03

"Rapture and happiness born of seclusion": is said to be the characteristic of the entry upon [the first] jhāna.

The Factors, Characteristics, Qualities, etc.

"Dwells having entered upon": One gains the first jhāna; which is secluded from five factors; is endowed with five factors[578] and three kinds of goodness, possesses ten characteristics; and is associated with

---

568 Nt. EKS: "The Awakened One produces worldly happiness." Cf. Dhp 194: Sukho Buddhānaṃ uppādo, sukhā virāgatā loke. It-a I 74: Tattha sukhasaddo sukho buddhānaṃ uppādo, sukhā virāgatā loke ti-ādīsu sukhamūle āgato.

569 生定捨, perhaps "concentration born of equanimity." Cf. Peṭ 142: samādhijā pīti rati ca jāyati.

570 Dhp 204: Nibbānaṃ paramaṃ sukhaṃ.

571 Vim 416a20–21: 於此論中受樂是可樂. See note above in 418b.

572 Vibh § 569: "jhānan-ti vitakko vicāro, pīti, sukhaṃ, cittassekaggatā."

573 Cf. Vism IV 87/p. 141: … vikkhambhanappahānañca nīvaraṇānaṃ paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ bhāvayato ti (= Paṭis I 26) nīvaraṇānaññeva vikkhambhanaṃ vuttaṃ …

574 EKS rendered "Enters the first meditation, jhāna, and acquires good standing:…" (for "good standing" see note @@ above). 正受, corresponds to the Pali term samāpatti, however the Pali parallel, see next note, suggests that it corresponds to upasampadā, "entering upon" or "attainment"." Cf. note 230 below.

575 Vibh § 581: Upasampajjā ti yo paṭhamassa jhānassa lābho paṭilābho patti sampatti phusanā sacchikiriyā upasampadā.

576 Peṭ 147–8: Tattha katame jhānavisesā? Vivicc'eva kāmehi vivicca pāpakehi akusalehi dhammehi cittacetasikasahagatā kāmadhātusamatikkamanatā pi, ayaṃ jhānaviseso. Avitakkā c'eva avicārā ca sappītikāya satisahagatāya pītisahagatā aññāmanasikārā samudācaranti; ayaṃ jhānaviseso. Avitakkāya bhūmiyā avicāreyeva sati anugatā upekkhāsahagatā manasikārā samudācaranti. Tadanudhammatāya ca sati saṇḍahati. Tañca bhūmiṃ upasampajja viharati, ayaṃ jhānaviseso.

577 The second part of this sentence is probably corrupt. Literally: "…; [seclusion] from seclusion is rapture and happiness is said to be "the special characteristic."

578 Cf. M I 294–5: Paṭhamaṃ kho āvuso jhānaṃ pañcaṅgavippahīnaṃ pañcaṅgasamannāgataṃ: Idh'āvuso twenty-five qualities[579] by which there is a fortunate, good and superior rebirth as a Brahmā god with a special, excellent dwelling place.

Five Hindrances

"Secluded from five factors": This is seclusion from the five hindrances. Which five? Sense-desire (kāmacchanda), ill-will (vyāpāda), sloth and torpor (thīna-middha), agitation and worry (uddhacca-kukkucca), uncertainty (vicikicchā).

"Sense-desire" means the mind is giving rise to the taint of sensual-desire (kāmāsava) towards the five sense-pleasures (kāma-guṇa).[580]

"Ill-will": This is doing the ten grounds of annoyance (āghāta-vatthu).[581] 416b09

"Sloth" (thīna): This is indolence and sluggishness of the mind.[582]

"Torpor" (middha): This is oppressiveness and heaviness of the body, the desire to fall asleep.[583]

There are three kinds of torpor: the first proceeds from food (āhāraja); the second from season (utuja); the third from the mind (cittaja).[584]

If it proceeds from the mind, one eliminates it with reflection. If it proceeds from food and time as in the case of the torpor of the Arahant, because it does not proceed from the mind, it is not a hindrance.[585] If it proceeds from food and time, one can eliminate it with energy as the [Arahant] Anuruddha taught: "Since first I destroyed the taints, for fifty-five years, I have no torpor [that proceeds] from the mind. And during this period, for twenty-five years I have discontinued the lying down [that proceeds] from food and time."[586] 416b16

Q. If torpor is a bodily state, how can it be a mental defilement?

A. The body always produces mental defilements. For example, we see that a man who drinks wine and eats [may be overcome by torpor].[587] In that way it should it be known.

Q. If torpor is a bodily state and sloth is a mental state, how do these two states unite and become one hindrance?

A. These two kinds of state have the same object (ārammaṇa) and same characteristic (lakkhaṇa), therefore they are one hindrance. What are called "sloth and torpor" are together as one [hindrance].[588] paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ samāpannassa bhikkhuno kāmacchando pahīno hoti byāpādo pahīno hoti, thīnamīddhaṃ pahīnaṃ hoti, uddhaccakukkuccaṃ pahīnaṃ hoti, vicikicchā pahīnā hoti. Vitakko ca vattati, vicāro ca pīti ca sukhañca cittekaggatā ca. Vism 139: Pañcaṅgavippahīnaṃ pañcaṅgasamannāgataṃ tividhakalyāṇaṃ dasa-lakkhaṇa-sampannaṃ paṭhamajjhānaṃ. c. Peṭ 136, 143: Iti paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ pañcaṅgavippayuttaṃ pañcaṅgasamannāgataṃ.

---

[579] 功德, this could stand for guṇa, good quality, as well as ānisaṃsa, benefit. It is unclear which of the two is intended here, but the explanation below might favor the former.

[580] Cf. Peṭ 94: pañcasu kāmaguṇesu ajjhāvahanena kāmāsavo.

Cf. Vibh § 538: Yo rāgo sārāgo anunaya anurodho nandī nandirāgo cittassa sārāgo—ayaṃ vuccati abhijjhā. Vibh § 564: Chando kāmo, rāgo kāmo, chandarāgo kāmo, saṅkappo kāmo, rāgo kāmo, saṅkapparāgo kāmo—ime vuccanti kāmā.

[581] A V 150: Dasayimāni, bhikkhave, āghātavatthūni. Katamāni dasa? Anatthaṃ me acarī ti āghātaṃ bandhati; anatthaṃ me caratī ti … anatthaṃ me carissatī ti … piyassa me manāpassa anatthaṃ acarī ti … anatthaṃ caratī ti … anatthaṃ carissatī ti … appiyassa me amanāpassa atthaṃ acarī ti … atthaṃ caratī ti … atthaṃ carissatī ti āghātaṃ bandhati; aṭṭhāne ca kuppati. Nidd I 215: Dasahākārehi kodho jāyati: anatthaṃ me acarī ti kodho jāyati, … aṭṭhāne vā pana kodho jāyati. Cf. Peṭ 158: Tattha yo byāpādaṃ uppādeti, acari carissatī ti. Evaṃ nava āghātavatthūni kattabbāni.

Cf. Vibh § 542: Yo cittassa āghāto paṭighāto … anattamanatā cittassa—ayaṃ vuccati byāpādo.

[582] Cf. Vibh § 546: Yā cittassa akalyatā akammaññatā olīyanā sallīyanā līnaṃ līyanā līyitattaṃ thinaṃ thiyanā thiyitattaṃ cittassa—idaṃ vuccati thinaṃ.

[583] Cf. Vibh § 546: Yā kāyassa akalyatā akammaññatā onāho pariyonāho antosamorodho middhaṃ suppaṃ pacalāyikā suppaṃ suppanā suppitattaṃ—idaṃ vuccati middhaṃ.

[584] Dhs-a 281: Tividhañhi middhaṃ: cittajaṃ utujaṃ āhārajañca.

[585] Cf. Peṭ 161: Atthi pana arahato kāyakilesamiddhañca okkamati na ca taṃ nīvaraṇaṃ tassa thinamiddhaṃ nīvaraṇanti. Na ekaṃsena. Ayaṃ vibhattihāro. Cf. the ten physical states over which the arahant has no control in Mil 253: "Dasayime, mahārāja, kāyānugatā dhammā bhave bhave kāyaṃ anudhāvanti anuparivattanti. Katame dasa? Sītaṃ uṇhaṃ jighacchā pipāsā uccāro passāvo middhaṃ jarā byādhi maraṇaṃ. …, tattha arahā anissaro assāmī avasavattī" ti.

Dhs-a 277–83 has a lengthy argument against torpor being a material quality and thus not being a hindrance. Cf. Dhs-a 340.

[586] Th 904 Pañcapaññāsa vasāni yato nesajjiko ahaṃ, pañcavīsati vassāni yato middhaṃasamūhataṃ.

[587] RB. EKS: "The body is produced only by mental defilement. It is like a man drinking wine and taking food."

[588] Moh Be 142 Thinaṃ middhañcā ti idaṃ dvayaṃ nīvaraṇaṭṭhāne ekanīvaraṇaṃ vuttaṃ, tathā

"Agitation": This is non-stillness of mind.[589]

"Worry": This is vexation of mind, non-concentration.[590]

Because the characteristics, etc., of these [two], they are one hindrance.

"Uncertainty": This is the mind not taking to one [side].[591]

There are four kinds of uncertainty: 416b21 the first is an impediment to serenity (samatha—translit.); the second, to insight (vipassanā—translit.); the third, to both; and the fourth, to things unrelated to the Dhamma.

If there is uncertainty about the requirements for attaining serenity[592], or if there is uncertainty about oneself; "Can I attain calm (upasama or viveka), or can I not attain calm?"—this is an impediment to serenity.

Uncertainty about the Four Noble Truths or about the three worlds—this is an impediment to insight.

Uncertainty about the Buddha, the Dhamma, or the Sangha—this is a impediment to both [serenity and insight].

Uncertainty about a country, a town, a road, or the name and clan of a man or woman—[this] is an impediment to things unrelated to the Dhamma.

In this Treatise[593] "uncertainty" is taken as "obstruction to calm."

Q. What is the meaning of "hindrance"?

A. It has the meaning of obstacle, the meaning of concealment, the meaning of defilement, and the meaning of bondage. These are obvious in meaning. [416c]

Q. There are many subtle bonds such as depreciation, spite and so on. Then, why are only five hindrances taught?

A. Through assembly and coherence (abhinivesa) there are five.

Again, through coherence as sensual desire all desires can be encompassed; through coherence as ill-will, all unwholesome states can be encompassed; and through coherence as sloth and torpor, agitation and worry and uncertainty, all deluded, unwholesome states can be encompassed. Thus through the coherence as five hindrances all defilements can be encompassed.[594]

Thus through this characteristic [of coherence] there are five hindrances.

Five Jhāna Factors

"Is endowed with five factors": thinking and exploring, rapture, happiness, and unification of mind. 416c06

---

uddhaccakukkuccañcā ti idaṃ dvayaṃ.

[589] Cf. Vibh § 556: Yaṃ cittassa uddhaccaṃ avūpasamo cetaso vikkhepo bhantattaṃ cittassa—idaṃ vuccati uddhaccaṃ.

[590] Cf. Vibh § 556: Tattha katamaṃ kukkuccaṃ? Akappiye kappiyasaññitā, kappiye akappiyasaññitā, avajje vajjasaññitā, vajje avajjasaññitā, yaṃ evarūpaṃ kukkuccaṃ kukkuccāyanā kukkuccāyitattaṃ cetaso vippaṭisāro manovilekhā—idaṃ vuccati kukkuccaṃ. Peṭ 136: Yo cetaso vilekho alañcanā vilañcanā hadayalekho vippaṭisāro, idaṃ kukkuccaṃ.

[591] Vim 416b21: 心執不一, corresponding to anekaṃsagāha. Nidd-a II 429: Ekaṃsaṃ gahetuṃ asamatthatāya na ekaṃsaggāho ti anekaṃsaggāho. Vibh § 557, Dhs 85, Nidd I 414: Yā kaṅkhā kaṅkhāyanā kaṅkhāyitattaṃ vimati vicikicchā dveḷhakaṃ dvidhāpatho saṃsayo anekaṃsaggāho āsappanā parisappanā apariyogāhaṇā chambhitattaṃ cittassa manovilekho—ayaṃ vuccati vicikicchā.

Peṭ 131: Kathaṃ vicikicchā na bhavati? Idha ariyasāvako buddhe na kaṅkhati, na vicikicchati abhippasīdati, itipi so bhagavāti sabbaṃ. Dhamme na kaṅkhati na vicikicchati sabbaṃ. Yāva taṇhakkhayo virāgo nirodho nibbānanti, iminā dutiyena ākaṅkhiyena dhammena samannāgato hoti. Saṅghe na kaṅkhati … pe … yāva pūjā devānañca manussānañcāti, iminā tatiyena ākaṅkhiyena dhammena samannāgato hoti. Sabbe saṅkhārā dukkhā ti na kaṅkhati na vicikicchati adhimuccati abhippasīdati. Taṇhā dukkhasamudayo ti na kaṅkhati na vicikicchati. Taṇhānirodhā dukkhanirodhoti na kaṅkhati na vicikicchati. Ariyo aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo dukkhanirodhagāminī paṭipadāti na kaṅkhati na vicikicchati adhimuccati abhippasīdati. Yāva buddhe vā dhamme vā saṅghe vā dukkhe vā samudaye vā nirodhe vā magge vā kaṅkhāyanā vimati vicikicchā dvedhāpathā āsappanā parisappanā anavaṭṭhānaṃ adhiṭṭhāgamanaṃ anekaṃso anekaṃsikatā, te tassa pahīnā bhavanti paṇunnā ucchinnamūlā tālāvatthukatā anabhāvaṃkatā āyatiṃ anuppādadhammā. Peṭ 137: Yo buddhe vā dhamme vā saṅghe vā … pe … ayaṃ vicikicchā.

[592] Vim 416b23: 於是具足為得奢摩他

[593] I.e. the Vimuttimagga. The Chinese text has 經 which literally means "sūtra," instead of 論 "treatise," niddesa, as used in headings, etc., but "treatise" seems appropriate.

[594] Cf. Vism IV.87/p.141.

Q. If it is said that the first jhāna endowed with five factors constitutes jhāna, it should not also be said that there is a jhāna outside the five factors. If it is said that there is a jhāna outside the five factors, how can it be said that the first jhāna consists of the five factors?

A. Owing to the jhāna factors, there is jhāna. Separate from the jhāna factors, there is no jhāna. It is Likewise, one can speak of a chariot owing to each of the chariot parts;[595] separate from the parts there is no chariot. Likewise, one can speak of an army owing to each of the parts of an army; separate from the parts there is no army. Thus owing to jhāna factors, it is called "jhāna." There is no jhāna separate from the jhāna factors.[596]

Through unity they are called "jhāna." Through partibility they are called "factors."

It is taught that the object (ārammaṇa) is called "jhāna," and the qualities, "factors." By way of (general) designation (paññatti) they are "jhāna." By way of essential designation they are "factors."[597]

Q. There being mindfulness, energy and other states, why are only five factors taught?

A. Because through coherence there are five.

Q. What is the characteristic of coherence?

A. Thinking directs the mind onto the object. Exploring holds the mind [on the object]. When thinking and exploring are unwavering, application (payoga) arises. When application is fulfilled, rapture and happiness arise. The rapture of mind grows, and the happiness of mind is fulfilled. With these four qualities the mind is not wavering. When the mind is unwavering, it attains to concentration.[598] This is called the "characteristic of coherence" Thus, through coherence, there are five. 416c20

Again, there are the five opposites (paṭipakkha) of the five hindrances. The opposite of the first hindrance is the first jhāna. To the degree the five hindrances are opposed, there are the five jhānas. The first jhāna has thinking as special factor; through thinking sense-pleasures are abandoned. If thinking enters upon right concentration, the other factors also arise. Among the five factors, exploring first arises [as special factor] in the second jhāna; rapture first arises in the third jhāna; happiness first arises in the fourth jhāna; and unification of mind first arises in the fifth jhāna.

Thus, through the special factors, there are five. 416c25

And again, through the opposites of the five hindrances, there are five. As is said in the Tipiṭaka (= Peṭaka): "Unification of mind is the opposite of sensuous desire; rapture is the opposite of ill-will; thinking is the opposite of sloth and torpor; happiness is the opposite of agitation and worry; exploring is the opposite of uncertainty."[599]

---

595 S I 135: Yathā hi aṅgasambhārā hoti saddo ratho iti.

596 Vin-a I 146: Yathā pana sarathā sapattisenā ti vutte senaṅgesu eva senā eva senā sammuti—evam idha pañcasu aṅgesu yeva jhānasammuti veditabbā.

597 416c14: 以說依制名禪。以說依性制名枝. Elsewhere in Vim (419c13, 428a12, 449a28) 制 and 制名 are used in the sense of "designation;" and also as "restraint" (vāritta) (401b14). 性 is used for pakati or sabhāva. The term sabhāva-paññatti is used in Pāli commentaries.

598 Cf Vism IV.106: Yasmā pana vitakko ārammaṇe cittaṃ abhiniropeti, vicāro anuppabandhati, tehi avikkhepāya sampāditappayogassa cetaso payogasampattisambhavā pīti pīṇanaṃ, sukhañca upabrūhanaṃ karoti. Atha naṃ sasesa-sampayuttadhammaṃ etehi abhiniropanānuppabandhanapīṇanaupabrūhanehi anuggahitā ekaggatā ekattārammaṇe samaṃ sammā ca ādhiyati, tasmā vitakko vicāro pīti sukhaṃ cittekaggatā ti imesaṃ pañcannaṃ uppattivasena pañcaṅga-samannāgatatā veditabbā. Uppannesu hi etesu pañcasu jhānaṃ uppannaṃ nāma hoti.

Vism-mhṭ (Be I 170): Tehī ti jhānādhigamassa paccayabhūtehi vitakkavicārehi. Avikkhepāya sampāditappayogassā ti tato evaṃ samādhānāya nipphāditabhāvanāpayogassa. Cetaso payogasampattisambhavā ti yathāvuttabhāvanā-payogasampattisamuṭṭhānā.

599 Vism IV.86, Paṭis-a I 181, Nidd-a 127: Tathā hi samādhi kāmacchandassa paṭipakkho, pīti vyāpādassa, vitakko thīnamiddhassa, sukhaṃ uddhacca-kukkuccassa, vicāro vicikicchāyā ti Peṭake vuttaṃ.

Cf. Peṭ 160: Ye ime pañca nīvaraṇā jhānapaṭipakkho so dukkhasamudayo. Yaṃ phalaṃ, idaṃ dukkhaṃ. Tattha kāmacchandassa nekkhammavitakko paṭipakkho; byāpādassa abyāpādavitakko paṭipakkho; tiṇṇaṃ nīvaraṇānaṃ avihiṃsāvitakko paṭipakkho.

Bapat (1937, p. xliii) suggests that the term Peṭaka might refer to a work now lost, but Ñāṇamoli (The Piṭaka Disclosure, PTS, London, 1964, p. xxix–xxx) disagrees: "... this can be ruled out since the term is used in the Nett-a of a quotation traceable in the Peṭ ... as to the other quotation attributed to the Peṭaka by the commentaries but not found in the Peṭ as it exists now, two explanations are possible. The one is that there may be have been variant versions of the Peṭ current at the time the Commentaries were composed, some of which lacked the missing quoted passages, ... The other is that that the missing passages were from that part of Ch. VI which is now lost. The explanation may actually be either or both. The work calls itself Peṭakopadesa ... and Peṭaka (§ 572)."

A. K. Warder (1982, plix) notes: "As Ñāṇamoli points out ... it is not found in the Peṭakopadesa. ... The Gaṇṭhipada (p. 106*), however, provides the positive information that this Peṭaka is a book of the Mahiṃsāsakas, an aṭṭhakathā

Thus, through the opposites of the hindrances, there are five.

Q. When this meditator is attending to the sign of the earth kasiṇa, [417a] then how is there the arising of rapture and happiness?

A. The sign of the earth kasiṇa does produce rapture and happiness, because seclusion from the heat of the five hindrances is the consequence (anu-bhāva) of practice (bhāvana).[600] Through the Son of Truth[601] he should arouse rapture and happiness.

Q. If that is so, why does the Son of Truth not arouse rapture and happiness in the fourth jhāna? 417a03

A. Because it is not their place (ṭhāna, vatthu). Also, upon gaining the fourth jhāna, rapture and happiness have already been removed. Again because of having skilfully overcome and removed the rapture and happiness which arose at first, and because of seeing the disadvantage [of happiness], and desiring the higher peace (uparima santi), he abandons happiness. Therefore, it does not arouse rapture and happiness. 417a06

Three Kinds of Goodness

The three kinds of goodness are the initial, medial and final goodness (kaḷyāna).

Purity of practice is the initial goodness; the intensification of equanimity is the medial goodness; rejoicing is the final goodness.[602]

Q. What is "purity of practice"?

A. It is the prerequisite (parikkhāra) for [the other kinds of] goodness.

Q. What is the "intensification of equanimity"?

A. It is fixedness-concentration (appanā-samādhi).

Q. What is "rejoicing"?

A. It is the reviewing [of the jhāna].[603]

Thus the first jhāna has three kinds of goodness. 417a10

Ten Characteristics

"Possesses ten characteristics" through the three characteristics of the purity of practice, the three characteristics of the intensification of equanimity, and the four characteristics of rejoicing.[604] made for the purpose of the Suttantapiṭaka. This implies that it was a work similar to the Peṭakopadesa … Thus both schools had a recension of this work, but differing in such details as this. …" (* Paṭisambhidāmaggagaṇṭhipadatthavaṇṇanā, ed. Ariyavaṃsa, Semage, Colombo, 1967.)

---

The passage in the Gaṇṭhipada that Warder refers to is "Suttante piṭakatthāya kataṭṭhakathā peṭakaṃ mahiṃsakānaṃ gantho."

[600] 隨性修. Perhaps "follows a natural (sabhāva) development/practice (bhāvana)."

[601] 法子 could represent dhamma-putta, "child of the Dhamma," (DDB: "one who makes his living by following Buddhism"). As an everyday Chinese word it means simply "method," and it could have this sense here, but other characters (門, 方便) are used for "method" in the Vim. Apparently, dhammaputta is here a honorific name for the earth-kasiṇa, see Vism IV.29.

[602] Cf. Vism IV.11: Paṭhamassa jhānassa paṭipadā-visuddhi ādi, upekkhānubrūhaṇā majjhe, sampahaṃsanā pariyosānaṃ.

[603] Cf. Vism IV.114: Paṭipadā-visuddhi nāma sasambhāriko upacāro, upekkhānubrūhaṇā nāma appanā, sampahaṃsanā nāma paccavekkhaṇā ti evam eke vaṇṇayanti. Vism-mhṭ Sinh. Ed. I 144: eke ti Abhayagirivāsino Cf. Bapat, 1939, p. 49 and S. Mori, 1988, p. 9.

[604] Cf. Vism 147f/ IV.111ff, quoting Paṭis 167–68: Paṭhamassa jhānassa paṭipadāvisuddhi ādi, upekkhānubrūhanā majjhe, sampahaṃsanā pariyosānaṃ, paṭhamassa jhānassa paṭipadāvisuddhi ādi, ādissa kati lakkhaṇāni? Ādissa tīṇi lakkhaṇāni, yo tassa paribandho, tato cittaṃ visujjhati, visuddhattā cittaṃ majjhimaṃ samathanimittaṃ paṭipajjati, paṭipannattā tattha cittaṃ pakkhandati. Yañca paribandhato cittaṃ visujjhati, yañca visuddhattā cittaṃ majjhimaṃ samathanimittaṃ paṭipajjati, yañca paṭipannattā tattha cittaṃ pakkhandati. Paṭhamassa jhānassa paṭipadāvisuddhi ādi, ādissa imāni tīṇi lakkhaṇāni. Tena vuccati paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ ādikalyāṇañceva hoti tilakkhaṇasampannañca. Paṭhamassa jhānassa upekkhānubrūhanā majjhe, majjhassa kati lakkhaṇāni? Majjhassa tīṇi lakkhaṇāni, visuddhaṃ cittaṃ ajjhupekkhati, samathapaṭipannaṃ ajjhupekkhati, ekattupaṭṭhānaṃ ajjhupekkhati. Yañca visuddhaṃ cittaṃ ajjhupekkhati, yañca samathapaṭipannaṃ ajjhupekkhati, yañca ekattupaṭṭhānaṃ ajjhupekkhati. Paṭhamassa jhānassa upekkhānubrūhanā majjhe, majjhassa imāni tīṇi lakkhaṇāni. Tena vuccati paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ majjhekalyāṇañceva hoti tilakkhaṇasampannañca. Paṭhamassa jhānassa sampahaṃsanā pariyosānaṃ, pariyosānassa kati lakkhaṇāni? Pariyosānassa cattāri lakkhaṇāni, tattha jātānaṃ dhammānaṃ anativattanaṭṭhena sampahaṃsanā, indriyānaṃ ekarasaṭṭhena sampahaṃsanā, tadupagavīriyavāhanaṭṭhena sampahaṃsanā, āsevanaṭṭhena sampahaṃsanā. Paṭhamassa jhānassa

Q. How are there three characteristics through purity of practice?

A. The mind purifies itself of obstacles to that jhāna; because of purity, the mind acquires the medial sign of serenity, and because of having acquired [that sign], the mind leaps into it.[605] These are called "the three characteristics of the purity of practice."

Q. How are there three characteristics through intensification of equanimity"?

A. If the mind is pure, it is equanimous; if it obtains calm (upasama or samatha), it is equanimous; if it dwells one-pointedly (on the object), it is equanimous. These are called the three characteristics [of the development of equanimity]."

Q. How are there four characteristics through rejoicing? 417a17

A. It means that there is rejoicing [by reason of] the pursuit and development of the states produced in these ten characteristics;[606] there is rejoicing by reason of the faculties having a single function; there is rejoicing by reason of the appropriate energy being effective; and there is rejoicing by reason of the ability to practice. These are called "the four characteristics [of rejoicing]."

Thus, the first jhāna possesses ten characteristics.

Twenty-Five Qualities 417a20

"Is associated with twenty-five qualities": the first jhāna is endowed with thinking and exploring, rapture, happiness and unification of mind; with faith, energy, mindfulness, concentration and wisdom; with the initial, medial and final stages [of goodness]; with embracing (pariggaha); with development (bhāvana); with seclusion (viveka); with supporting (nissaya); with assisting (anuggaha); with encompassing (parivāra); with contemplation (anupassanā, vipassanā); with practice (āsevanā); with power (bala); with freedom (vimutti); with purity (visuddhi), and the super-excellent purity (parama-visuddhi).

Practice of, accomplishment of, and dwelling in [the first jhāna] is associated with these twenty-five qualities. 417a25

This excellent divine abiding (dibbavihāra)[607] is born of seclusion. It is an abiding in rapture and happiness [it is dwelling in a state] surpassing the human (uttarimanussa), a divine abiding, an excellent place.

Hence the Blessed One, the Buddha, declared to the bhikkhus:

> "Just as a dextrous bath-attendant or his apprentice, having filled a nice copper vessel with bath-powder, mixes it with water, kneads it, and makes it into a ball, saturating it with moisture inside and out so that it adheres and does not scatter, just so a bhikkhu, drenches his body-mind with rapture and happiness born of seclusion; [417b] there is no place in his body-mind that is not

---

sampahaṃsanā pariyosānaṃ, pariyosānassa imāni cattāri lakkhaṇāni. Tena vuccati paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ pariyosānakalyāṇañceva hoti catulakkhaṇasampannañcā ti

[605] In the Vism parallel, Ñāṇamoli (Vism IV.111 & 115) renders majjhima samathanimitta as central [state of equilibrium, which is] the sign of serenity."

[606] This passage appears to be corrupt. The corresponding Pali (see Paṭis 167f quoted two notes above) is tattha jātānaṃ dhammānaṃ anativattanaṭṭhena sampahaṃsanā, "in the sense of non-excess of the states produced therein" meaning that concentration and wisdom are coupled together so that neither overpowers the other; see Vism IV.117 on the meaning of this term and the following.

There is nothing corresponding to the "10 characteristics" in the Pali parallel and they seem out of place. The rejoicing is rather towards the 6 preceding characteristics. The Chinese translator or a copyist apparently could not make sense of this difficult phrase and supplied "10 characteristics" or just "10" as the object of tattha, "therein." He also misunderstood anativattana, "non-excess" as anuvattana, "acting in accordance," or had a text with this reading.

Cf. Patis-a I 132: tattha jātānaṃ dhammānaṃ anativattanaṭṭhena ti tattha nekkhammādīsu bhāvanāvisesesu jātānaṃ samādhipaññāsaṅkhātānaṃ yuganaddhadhammānaṃ aññamaññaṃ anatikkamanabhāvena. Indriyānaṃ ekarasaṭṭhena ti tattheva saddhādīnaṃ indriyānaṃ nānākilesehi vimuttattā vimuttirasena ekarasabhāvena. Tadupagavīriyavāhanaṭṭhenā ti tesaṃ anativattanaekarasabhāvānaṃ anucchavikassa vīriyassa vāhanabhāvena. Āsevanaṭṭhenā ti yā tassa tasmiṃ samaye pavattā āsevanā. Tassā āsevanāya āsevanabhāvena.

[607] See the conclusions of the first and the next 3 jhānas. Cf Peṭ 138: Tayo vihārā dibbavihāro brahmavihāro ariyavihāro. Dibbavihāro cattāri jhānāni, brahmavihāro cattāri appamāṇāni, ariyavihāro sattatiṃsa bodhipakkhiyā dhammā. Cf. A II 183: Kathañca, bhikkhave, bhikkhu devappatto hoti? Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu vivicceva kāmehi … paṭhamaṃ … catutthaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharati.

permeated with rapture and happiness born of seclusion."[608]

Like the dextrous bath-attendant or his apprentice is the meditator. Like the copper vessel is the sign of the kasiṇa. Thus it should be understood.

Q. What is the sign of the kasiṇa?

A. Like the solid copper vessel contains the bath-powder [which is made] fine and bright, so the well taken kasiṇa sign has the solidness [i.e., earth] that produces soft and pure rapture and the accompanying bright mind and mental properties (cetasika dhamma).

Because of being the object, the copper vessel is said to be like the sign of the kasiṇa. The mind and mental properties are like the bath-powder. Thus it should be understood.

Q. Why is the bath-powder likened to the mind and the mental properties?

417b09 A. Like coarse bath-powder, since it does not cohere, is blown away and scattered by the wind, so the mind and mental properties when they are secluded from rapture and happiness, become coarse. When secluded from concentration, they do not cohere and are scattered by the winds of the five hindrances. Therefore it is said that the bath-powder is like the mind and mental properties.

Q. What is the water [used for moistening]?

A. Rapture, happiness and concentration. Like water moistens and softens the bathpower for [making] a ball, so rapture and happiness moisten and soften the mind and mental properties for [producing] concentration. Therefore the water is like rapture, happiness and concentration.

Like the desire (chanda, icchā) to mix [the bath-powder] with water and making it adhere are thinking and exploring. Thus it should be understood.

Q. What is the ball?

A. Namely, thinking and exploring, which are likened to the desire and inclination [to mix]. Because of desire the bath-attendant puts the bathpowder into the middle of the copper vessel; mixes it with water, makes a ball with his hand, and having made a ball, kneads the [remaining bits of] moist powder together into a non-scattering ball and places it into the middle of the copper vessel.

Just so the meditator who places his mind and mental properties in the middle of the object can produce the seclusion of the first jhāna. With rapture and happiness as the water, with thinking and exploring as the hand that kneads and makes the ball, he is able to produce seclusion. The mind and mental properties accompanying the rapture and happiness become a single ball of non-scattering jhāna mind placed in the jhāna object. 417b21 Thus the ball is like thinking and exploring.

Just as the bath-powder when inside and outside saturated with moisture, adheres and does not scatter, so the body of the meditator in the first jhāna is permeated with rapture and happiness from top till bottom, from the skullcap to the feet and from the feet to the skullcap, skin and hair, inside and outside. And he dwells without falling back. Thus he dwells like a Brahmā god. 417b24

Q. Rapture and happiness are said to be immaterial states which are not impinging the sign.[609] How then can they stay permeating the body?

A. Name depends on matter. Matter depends on name. Therefore, if name has rapture, matter also has rapture. If name has happiness, matter also has happiness.

Again, matter born from happiness[610] causes the arising of tranquillity (passaddhi) of body, and when the entire body is tranquillized there is happiness due to the tranquillity of matter.[611]

Therefore there is no contradiction.

Three Kinds of Rebirth

Causing rebirth as a Brahmā god is its reward.

There are three kinds of first jhāna, namely: lower, middling and superior.

---

[608] D I 74 and A III 25: Seyyathāpi bhikkhave dakkho nahāpako vā nahāpakantevāsī vā kaṃsathāle nahāniyacuṇṇāni ākiritvā udakena paripphosakaṃ paripphosakaṃ sanneyya, sā'ssa nahāniyapiṇḍi snehānugatā snehaparetā santarabāhirā phuṭā snehena na ca paggharati, evam eva kho bhikkhave bhikkhu imam eva kāyaṃ vivekajena pītisukhena abhisandeti parisandeti paripūreti parippharati, nāsa kiñci sabbāvato kāyassa vivekajena pīti-sukhena apphuṭaṃ hoti.

[609] 無有對相.

[610] 色從樂生. This would refer to the derived material qualities of lightness, softness and wieldiness. Cf. Vism XIV.36–71/pp.444–450: … rūpassa lahutā, rūpassa mudutā, rūpassa kammaññatā …

[611] Cf. M-a I 124, A-a IV 87: Passaddho kāyoti kāyacittappassaddhisambhavena kāyopi me passaddho ahosi. Tattha yasmā nāmakāye passaddhe rūpakāyopi passaddhoyeva hoti, tasmā nāmakāyo rūpakāyoti avisesetvāva passaddho kāyoti vuttaṃ.

If a meditator contemplates the special conditions (visesapaccaya),[612] but does not remove well the five hindrances [417c] and does not attain at will and with facility, it is called lower jhāna.

If he contemplates the special conditions and removes well the five hindrances, but does not attain at will and with facility, it is called middling jhāna.

If he contemplates the special conditions, removes well the hindrances and attains at will and with facility, it is called superior jhāna.

If a meditator practises the lower first jhāna, after death he is reborn [as a god] in the retinue of Brahmā (brahmapārisajja) with a life-span of a third of an aeon (kappa).

If he practises the middling first jhāna, after death he is reborn as a [chief] Brahmā god (Brahma-purohita) with a life-span of half an aeon.

If he practises the superior first jhāna, after death he is reborn as a Great Brahmā god (mahā-brahmā) with a life-span of one aeon.[613]

Falling back, Stability, Distinction and Penetration

There are four kinds of persons who acquire the benefit of rebirth as a Brahmā god: (1) one who partakes of falling back, (2) one who partakes of stability, (3) one who partakes of distinction, and (4) one who partakes of penetration.[614] 417c10

---

[612] 觀勝緣. Perhaps the jhānaṅga are the special conditions or the nimitta. Cf. Abhidh-s 207 (Be): rūpajanane visesapaccayehi jhānaṅgehi sampayogābhāvato. Vibh-mṭ 74 (Be): Sīlaṃ samādhissa visesapaccayo, samādhi vipassanāyāti.

[613] See Vibh § 1024: Paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ parittaṃ bhāvetvā kattha upapajjanti? Paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ parittaṃ bhāvetvā brahmapārisajjānaṃ devānaṃ sahabyataṃ upapajjanti. Tesaṃ kittakaṃ āyuppamāṇaṃ? Kappassa tatiyo bhāgo. Paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ majjhimaṃ bhāvetvā kattha upapajjanti? Paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ majjhimaṃ bhāvetvā brahmapurohitānaṃ devānaṃ sahabyataṃ upapajjanti. Tesaṃ kittakaṃ āyuppamāṇaṃ? Upaḍḍhakappo. Paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ paṇītaṃ bhāvetvā kattha upapajjanti? Paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ paṇītaṃ bhāvetvā mahābrahmānaṃ devānaṃ sahabyataṃ upapajjanti. Tesaṃ kittakaṃ āyuppamāṇaṃ? Eko kappo.

[614] Cf. D III 277, Paṭis I 48: Cattāro samādhi: hānabhāgiyo samādhi, ṭhitibhāgiyo samādhi, visesabhāgiyo samādhi, nibbedhabhāgiyo samādhi. Paṭis I 35: Paṭhamassa jhānassa lābhiṃ kāmasahagatā saññāmanasikārā samudācaranti hānabhāgiyo dhammo. Tadanudhammatā sati santiṭṭhati ṭhitibhāgiyo dhammo. Avitakkasahagatā saññāmanasikārā samudācaranti visesabhāgiyo dhammo. Nibbidāsahagatā saññāmanasikārā samudācaranti virāgūpasaṃhitā nibbedhabhāgiyo dhammo.

This section is cryptic and confused in the Chinese text. Fortunately it has a parallel in the commentary on the Paṭisambhidāmagga (p.139). In the Vim, after the first type of jhāna, the one partaking of decline, there is a passage on the two kinds of "conduct in jhāna" of which only the part about delighting in work, etc, is found in the Paṭis-a. Then there is an answer which seems confused. In the Paṭis parallel three kinds of falling away are given: occurrence of defilements (which is divided into two kinds, one leading to quick decline and the other leading to slow decline), unsuitable conditions and non-practice, while in the Vim four different opinions are given, the third of which seems redundant. Then, finally, the other three types of jhāna are given, but there is no distinction between the two types of persons with sharp faculties; both just dwell heedfully. The Paṭis-a paralles distinguishes the two types of persons with sharp faculties into one with a craving temperament and the other with a view temperament (see the end of chapter 6 on these two temperaments).

This is a translation of the first part of the Paṭis-a passage followed by the Pali and other related passages:

"When jhāna is falling away, it falls away due to three causes: the occurrence of defilements, or unsuitable conditions or non-practice. When it falls away due to the occurrence of defilements, it falls away rapidly. When, because of delighting in work, talk, sleep, company, it falls away due to unsuitable actions, it falls away slowly. When, through the obstructions of deficient requisites [such as] for treating sickness, etc., there is no frequent entering upon [jhāna], there is falling away due to non-practice, it falls away slowly. Herein, when showing the strongest cause, the occurrence of defilements is said. When the second jhāna, etc, falls away, it falls away due to the occurrence of attachment to the lower jhāna(s). To what degree it has fallen away? When one can't enter upon [jhāna], to this degree it has fallen away."

Paṭis-a 139–40: Saññāmanasikārā ti javanasaññā ca tadāvajjanamanasikāro ca, saññāsampayuttamanasikāropi vaṭṭati. Jhānā parihāyanto tīhi kāraṇehi parihāyati kilesasamudācārena vā asappāyakiriyāya vā ananuyogena vā. Kilesasamudācārena parihāyanto sīghaṃ parihāyati, kammārāmatābhassārāmatāniddārāmatāsaṅgaṇikārāmatānuyoga-vasena asappāyakiriyāya parihāyanto dandhaṃ parihāyati, gelaññapaccayavekallādinā palibodhena abhikkhaṇaṃ asamāpajjanto ananuyogena parihāyantopi dandhaṃ parihāyati. Idha pana balavakāraṇameva dassento kilesasamudācāramevāha. Dutiyajjhānādīhi pana parihāyanto heṭṭhimaheṭṭhimajjhānanikantisamudācārena pi parihāyati. Kittāvatā parihīno hotīti? Yadā na sakkoti samāpajjituṃ, ettāvatā parihīno hotīti.

Tadanudhammatāti anupavatto dhammo anudhammo, jhānaṃ adhikaṃ katvā pavattassa nikantidhammassetaṃ adhivacanaṃ. … Satīti nikanti. Santiṭṭhatīti patiṭṭhāti. Taṃ paṭhamajjhānaṃ anuvattamānā nikanti pavattatīti vuttaṃ hoti. … Nibbidāsahagatāti vipassanārammaṇā. … Virāgūpasaṃhitāti ariyamaggapaṭisaññuttā vipassanā. Vipassanā hi

(1) When one of dull faculties abides heedlessly (pamāda), perceptions and attentions [accompanied by] sensual desire occur—this jhāna partakes of falling back.

Again, through two kinds of conduct in jhāna, there is partaking of falling back:

(1) Owing to great obsessions (pariyuṭṭhāna, vinibandha), there is no putting forth of energy. When a person has given rise to evil thoughts (vitakka) from the start, he is incapable of getting rid of them. Through these great obsessions he falls back rapidly.

(2) When he is desirous of jhāna but delights in work, talk and sleep and does not put forth energy, he falls back.[615] 417c13

Q. Who falls back and how?

A. Some say that when defilements arise quickly, there is falling back. Again, it is also said[616] that when defilements arise slowly, there is falling back.[617] Again, it is also said that when one loses serenity (samatha), there is falling back. Again, it is also said that if one does not practise the sign for a long time, 417c15 one becomes incapable of causing it to arise wherever [one likes]. Through not attaining [the sign of] concentration, there is [jhāna] partaking of falling back.

(2) When one of dull faculties dwells heedfully, he obtains mindfulness in comformity [with that jhāna] and accomplishes jhāna that partakes of stability.

(3) When one of sharp faculties [with a craving/greed temperament] dwells heedfully, perceptions and attentions not [accompanied by] thought occur, and he will attain the second jhāna with facility—this jhāna partakes of distinction.

(4) When one of sharp faculties [with a view/intelligence temperament] dwells heedfully, perceptions and attentions accompanied by disenchantment and connected with fading away (virāga) sikhāppattā maggavuṭṭhānaṃ pāpeti. Tasmā vipassanārammaṇā saññāmanasikārā virāgūpasaṃhitā ti vuccanti, … Sabbo pi cesa lokiyo samādhi pamādavihārissa mudindriyassa hānabhāgiyo hoti, appamādavihārissa mudindriyassa ṭhitibhāgiyo hoti, taṇhācaritassa tikkhindriyassa visesabhāgiyo hoti, diṭṭhicaritassa tikkhindriyassa nibbedhabhāgiyo hotīti vuccati.

---

Cf. Vibh-a 418: Paṭhamassa jhānassa lābhītiādīsu yvāyaṃ appaguṇassa paṭhamajjhānassa lābhī. Taṃ tato vuṭṭhitaṃ ārammaṇavasena kāmasahagatā hutvā saññāmanasikārā samudācaranti tudanti codenti. Tassa kāmānupakkhandānaṃ saññāmanasikārānaṃ vasena sā paṭhamajjhānapaññā hāyati parihāyati; tasmā hānabhāginīti vuttā. Tadanudhammatāti tadanurūpasabhāvā. Sati santiṭṭhatīti idaṃ micchāsatiṃ sandhāya vuttaṃ, na sammāsatiṃ. Yassa hi paṭhamajjhānānurūpasabhāvā paṭhamajjhānaṃ santato paṇītato disvā assādayamānā abhinandamānā nikanti uppajjati, tassa nikantivasena sā paṭhamajjhānapaññā neva hāyati, na vaḍḍhati, ṭhitikoṭṭhāsikā hoti. Tena vuttaṃ ṭhitibhāginī paññāti. Avitakkasahagatāti avitakkaṃ dutiyajjhānaṃ santato paṇītato manasikaroto ārammaṇavasena avitakkasahagatā. Samudācarantīti paguṇato paṭhamajjhānato vuṭṭhitaṃ dutiyajjhānādhigamatthāya tudanti codenti. Tassa upari dutiyajjhānānupakkhandānaṃ saññāmanasikārānaṃ vasena sā paṭhamajjhānapaññā visesabhūtassa dutiyajjhānassa uppattiṭṭhānatāya visesabhāginīti vuttā. Nibbidāsahagatāti tameva paṭhamajjhānato vuṭṭhitaṃ nibbidāsaṅkhātena vipassanāñāṇena sahagatā. Vipassanāñāṇañhi jhānaṅgabhede vattante nibbindati ukkaṇṭhati, tasmā nibbidāti vuccati. Samudācarantīti nibbānasacchikiriyatthāya tudanti codenti. Virāgūpasañhitāti virāgasaṅkhātena nibbānena upasaṃhitā. Vipassanāñāṇamhi sakkā iminā maggena virāgaṃ nibbānaṃ sacchikātunti pavattito virāgūpasañhitanti vuccati. Taṃsampayuttā saññāmanasikārāpi virāgūpasañhitā eva nāma. Tassa tesaṃ saññāmanasikārānaṃ vasena sā paṭhamajjhānapaññā ariyamaggapaṭivedhassa padaṭṭhānatāya nibbedhabhāginīti vuttā. Evaṃ catūsu ṭhānesu paṭhamajjhānapaññāva kathitā. Dutiyajjhānapaññādīsupi iminā va nayena attho veditabbo. A similar explanation is given at Vism III.22/p.88. Cf. S-a II 233.

[615] Cf. A V 163: Abhijjhālu kho pana ayamāyasmā; abhijjhāpariyuṭṭhitena cetasā bahulaṃ viharati. Abhijjhāpariyuṭṭhānaṃ kho pana tathāgatappavedite dhammavinaye parihānametaṃ. Byāpanno … Thinamiddho … Uddhato … Vicikiccho … Kammārāmo … Bhassārāmo … Niddārāmo … Saṅgaṇikārāmo kho pana ayamāyasmā saṅgaṇikarato saṅgaṇikārāmataṃ anuyutto. Saṅgaṇikārāmatā kho pana tathāgatappavedite dhammavinaye parihānametaṃ. Cf. A V 161: Dussīlo … Assaddho … Appassuto … Dubbaco … Pāpamitto … Kusīto … Muṭṭhassati … Kuhako … Dubbharo … Duppañño kho pana ayamāyasmā; duppaññatā kho pana tathāgatappavedite dhammavinaye parihānametaṃ. A V 20: Katamassa pañca cetasovinibandhā susamucchinnā honti? Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu kāmesu vītarāgo hoti … vigatataṇho. Yo so, bhikkhave, bhikkhu kāmesu vītarāgo hoti …, tassa cittaṃ namati ātappāya anuyogāya sātaccāya padhānāya. Yassa cittaṃ namati ātappāya anuyogāya sātaccāya padhānāya, evamassāyaṃ paṭhamo cetasovinibandho susamucchinno hoti. Puna caparaṃ, bhikkhave, bhikkhu kāye vītarāgo hoti … rūpe vītarāgo hoti … na yāvadatthaṃ udarāvadehakaṃ bhuñjitvā seyyasukhaṃ passasukhaṃ middhasukhaṃ anuyutto viharati, na aññataraṃ devanikāyaṃ paṇidhāya brahmacariyaṃ carati … padhānāya. Yassa cittaṃ namati ātappāya anuyogāya sātaccāya padhānāya, evamassāyaṃ pañcamo cetasovinibandho susamucchinno hoti. Imassa pañca cetasovinibandhā susamucchinnā honti. Yassa kassaci, bhikkhave, bhikkhussa vā bhikkhuniyā vā ime pañca cetokhilā pahīnā ime pañca cetasovinibandhā susamucchinnā, tassa yā ratti vā divaso vā āgacchati vuddhiyeva pāṭikaṅkhā kusalesu dhammesu no parihāni. Cf. A V 123–25, 155–158, etc.

[616] 復說, aparampi vutta or perhaps apare vadanti, "others say."

[617] Or "arise forcefully/hurriedly (sahasā?) … gently/unhurriedly (dandha?) …." 急疾煩惱成起退失 復說悠悠煩惱故退.

occur, and he will attain insight with facility—this jhāna partakes of penetration. [418a]

Second Jhāna

First Mastering the First Jhāna

Here I show how to attain the second jhāna. I consider the dangers of the first jhāna and the benefits of the second.[618]

Now, the meditator who wishes to arouse the second jhāna has to attain the first jhāna with facility. Why? If he is not yet attaining the first jhāna with facility, although he considers and wishes to remove thinking and exploring and hopes to attain to the second jhāna, he nevertheless falls back and is not able to arouse the concentration of the second jhāna. Moreover,he cannot again enter the first jhāna.

Hence the Blessed One taught the bhikkhus the simile of the mountain calf: "There is a mountain calf, which is foolish and inexperienced, knows not the pasture, does not yet understand the places to go, yet desires to visit a far off precipitous place. It occurs to her: "What if I were to go to the place not yet gone before, eat the grass not yet eaten before and drink the water not yet drunk before"? Without planting her foreleg firmly, she raises her hind leg; erring, she trembles and becomes restless. She is not able to go forward; is not able to go to the place not yet gone before, eat the grass not yet eaten before and drink the water not yet drunk before. And when she considers to return, she can't go back to that that former territory of fitting wealth of food and drink. 418a19

Just so, a foolish, inexperienced bhikkhu who has not yet reached [jhāna], who does not know the pasture, enters upon the first jhāna which is separate from sense-pleasures [etc.]. He does not develop this state, nor train much in it, but it occurs to him: "What if I were to attain the second jhāna which is separate from thinking and exploring [etc.]"? Not separating [from thinking and exploring [etc.]] and not establishing himself [in the second jhāna], he again thinks: "I cannot attain the second jhāna which is separate from thinking and exploring [etc.]. What if I withdraw [from this] and attain the first jhāna which is separate from sense-pleasures [etc.]. [But he is unable to do so.]" This foolish bhikkhu is as ignorant and inexperienced as the young mountain cow who does not yet understand the places to go."[619]

Therefore, he should develop the first jhāna and should let his mind acquire facility in it. 418a24

Disadvantage of the First Jhāna

Before and after his meal, in the first and in the last watches of the night, he adverts, enters upon, [establishes], emerges and reflects [wherever, whenever] and for as long as he wishes, without difficulty.[620] If he, whether for a very short time or for a very long time, enters upon [the jhāna] often

---

[618] In the Chinese text a new fascicle and section starts here and there are introductions to the different topics from here on until the perceptions of foulness. The current section stars with: "Here I show how to attain the second jhāna. I consider the dangers of the first jhāna and the benefits of the second." EKS note: "This passage does not occur in the Sung Dynasty edition in the library of the Japanese Imperial household."

[619] A IV 418, Vism IV.130/p.153: Seyyathāpi, bhikkhave, gāvī pabbateyyā bālā abyattā akhettaññū akusalā visame pabbate carituṃ. Tassā evamassa yaṃnūnāhaṃ agatapubbañceva disaṃ gaccheyyaṃ, akhāditapubbāni ca tiṇāni khādeyyaṃ, apītapubbāni ca pānīyāni piveyya'nti. Sā purimaṃ pādaṃ na suppatiṭṭhitaṃ patiṭṭhāpetvā pacchimaṃ pādaṃ uddhareyya. Sā na ceva agatapubbaṃ disaṃ gaccheyya, na ca … piveyya; yasmiṃ cassā padese ṭhitāya evamassa yaṃnūnāhaṃ agatapubbañceva disaṃ gaccheyyaṃ, … piveyya'nti tañca padesaṃ na sotthinā paccāgaccheyya. Taṃ kissa hetu? Tathā hi sā, bhikkhave, gāvī pabbateyyā bālā abyattā akhettaññū akusalā visame pabbate carituṃ. Evamevaṃ kho, bhikkhave, idhekacco bhikkhu bālo abyatto akhettaññū akusalo vivicceva kāmehi … paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharati; so taṃ nimittaṃ na āsevati na bhāveti na bahulīkaroti na svādhiṭṭhitaṃ adhiṭṭhāti. Tassa evaṃ hoti yaṃnūnāhaṃ vitakkavicārānaṃ vūpasamā … dutiyaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja vihareyya'nti. So na sakkoti vitakkavicārānaṃ vūpasamā … dutiyaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharituṃ. Tassa evaṃ hoti yaṃnūnāhaṃ vivicceva … paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja vihareyya'nti. So na sakkoti … paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharituṃ. Ayaṃ vuccati, bhikkhave, bhikkhu ubhato bhaṭṭho ubhato parihīno, seyyathāpi sā gāvī pabbateyyā bālā abyattā akhettaññū akusalā visame pabbate carituṃ.

[620] Paṭis I 99–100: Vasīti pañca vasiyo. Āvajjanavasī, samāpajjanavasī, adhiṭṭhānavasī, vuṭṭhānavasī, paccavekkhaṇāvasī. Paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ yatthicchakaṃ yadicchakaṃ yāvaticchakaṃ āvajjati; āvajjanāya dandhāyitattaṃ natthīti āvajjanavasī. … yāvaticchakaṃ samāpajjati; … adhiṭṭhāti; … vuṭṭhāti; … paccavekkhati; paccavekkhaṇāya dandhāyitattaṃ natthīti paccavekkhaṇāvasī.

and emerges from it often and acquires facility in the practice of the first jhāna, he acquires the happiness of facility, causes the arising of the second jhāna and transcends the first jhāna.

Again, he thinks thus: "This first jhāna is coarse; the second jhāna is fine." And he sees the disadvantage of the first jhāna and the benefit of the second jhāna. [418b]

Q. What is the disadvantage of the first jhāna?

A. The proximity to the five hindrances, as the adversaries (paccatthika) [of this jhāna], stirs up thinking and exploring, [thereby] the body is wearied and the mind is made to waver. All these states make concentration coarse and not directed to the direct knowledges.[621] Owing to [attachment to] the happiness of the first jhāna,[622] he does not partake of distinction. This is the disadvantage of the first jhāna. The benefit of the second jhāna consists in the overcoming [of this disadvantage]. Thus one sees the disadvantage of the first jhāna and the benefit of the second jhāna. 418b05

He practices by attending to the sign of the kasiṇa as the object of the second jhāna. He does not attend to what is connected with the first jhāna, that is, he does not attend to thinking and exploring. Through facility in rapture and happiness born of concentration, he causes the mind to be steady (adhiṭṭhāti). The meditator, attending thus, before long accomplishes the cessation of thinking and exploring. Through concentration giving rise to facility in rapture and happiness he causes the mind to settle [in the second jhāna].

Factors of the second jhāna

This is the explanation of the four factors of the second jhāna:

418b10 "The meditator, with the stilling of thinking and exploring, dwells having entered upon the second jhāna, which has internal confidence and the state of unification of mind, is without thinking and exploring, and is with rapture and happiness born of concentration."[623]

This is a benefit of the earth kasiṇa.

"Stilling of thinking and exploring": is the stilling of thinking and exploring through thorough analysis. "Stilling of thinking and exploring"is also called "the removing [of thinking and exploring]."

Q. What is "stilling of thinking and exploring"?

A. It is the cessation of the disadvantage of initial and exploring pertaining to the first jhāna. It is the cessation of all roots[624] of thinking and exploring. It is the abandoning of the disadvantage of thinking and exploring, the roots of thinking and exploring, and also thinking and exploring together with the roots of thinking and exploring.. This is "the stilling of thinking and exploring."

Again, through removing the lower coarse jhāna, he obtains the higher, finer jhāna. Again, he causes gradual cessation.[625]

"Internal" (ajjhatta): what is individual (paccatta) is called "internal."418b16

There are three kinds of "internal": the first is internal in the sense of personal (niyaka); the second is internal concentration; the third is internal object (visaya).[626]

Q. What is "internal in the sense of personal"?

A. The six internal sense-bases.

---

[621] Peṭ 149: … vitakkavicāro ca tattha cittaṃ khobhenti, kāyo cettha kilamati, kāyamhi cettha kilante cittaṃ vihaññati, anabhinīhārakkhamova abhiññānaṃ, ime ādīnavā paṭhame jhāne. Vism IV.137–38/p.155: … paguṇapaṭhamajjhānato vuṭṭhāya ayaṃ samāpatti āsannanīvaraṇapaccatthikā, vitakkavicārānaṃ oḷārikattā aṅgadubbalā ti ca tattha dosaṃ disvā dutiyajjhānaṃ santato manasikatvā paṭhamajjhāne nikantiṃ pariyādāya dutiyādhigamāya yogo kātabbo. Athassa yadā paṭhamajjhānā vuṭṭhāya satassa sampajānassa jhānaṅgāni paccavekkhato vitakkavicārā oḷārikato upaṭṭhahanti, pītisukhañceva cittekaggatā ca santato upaṭṭhāti … Cf. A IV 440: So kho ahaṃ Ānanda aparena samayena vivicc' eva kāmehi … paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharāmi. Tassa mayhaṃ Ānanda iminā vihārena viharato kāmasahagatā saññāmanasikārā samudācaranti, svāssa me hoti ābādho.

[622] See the parallel sections in other jhānas at 420c18 and 421b08.

[623] A I 53: Vitakka-vicārānaṃ vūpasamā ajjhattaṃ sampasādanaṃ cetaso ekodibhāvaṃ avitakkaṃ avicāraṃ samādhijaṃ pītisukhaṃ dutiyajjhānaṃ upasampajja viharati.

[624] The character 根 can mean both mūla, root, and indriya, faculty.

[625] Cf. Nett-a 134: Oḷārikassa pana oḷārikassa aṅgassa samatikkamā paṭhamajjhānato paresaṃ dutiyajjhānādīnaṃ adhigamo hotīti.

[626] Vism IV.141: Ajjhattanti idha niyakajjhattaṃ adhippetaṃ, vibhaṅge (Vibh § 573) pana "ajjhattaṃ paccattan"ti. Iti-a II 167: Tattha gocarajjhattaṃ, niyakajjhattaṃ, visayajjhattaṃ, ajjhattajjhattanti catubbidhaṃ ajjhattaṃ. Tesu ajjhattarato samāhito ti evamādīsu vuttaṃ idaṃ gocarajjhattaṃ nāma. "Ajjhattaṃ sampasādanan"ti āgataṃ idaṃ niyakajjhattaṃ nāma. Sabbanimittānaṃ amanasikārā ajjhattaṃ suññataṃ upasampajja viharatī ti evamāgataṃ idaṃ visayajjhattaṃ nāma. Ajjhattikā dhammā, bāhirā dhammā ti ettha vuttaṃ ajjhattaṃ ajjhattajjhattaṃ nāma. Cf. Dhs-a 46.

"Internal concentration" is called "the contemplation of one's own body." This is called "internal concentration."

"Internal object" is internal, own thought [i.e. subjective], does not go outwards, and the nature of which is to comprehend. This is called "internal object."

In this Treatise "internal in the sense of personal" is preferred.[627]

"Confidence" is called "faith (saddhā), right faith, trusting, and increasing faith."[628] In internal concentration this is "internal confidence."

Q. What are the characteristic, function, manifestation and near cause of internal confidence?

A. Non-wavering is the characteristic of internal confidence. Stilling (upasama) is its function. Non-turbidness is its manifestation. Thinking and exploring are its near cause.[629]

418b23 "The state of unification of mind" (cetaso ekodibhāva): the dwelling of the mind in right concentration is called the "the state of unification of mind."

Q. What is the meaning of "state of unification of mind"?

A. "Mind" (ceta) means mentality (mano).

"Unification" (ekodi) is said to be a name for mindfulness (sati).[630]

"State" (bhāva): as taught in grammar (saddasattha),[631] it is "arisen state" (pabhāva?). "State" (bhāva) is taught as having the meaning of "natural state" (pakati).

The unification of mind of this second jhāna is capable of stilling of thinking and exploring. Through unification [the second jhāna] obtains arising. [632]

Q. What are the characteristic, function, manifestation and near cause of the state of unification of mind?

A. Rightness of focus[633] is its characteristic; stilling (upasama, viveka) is its function; absence of wavering is its manifestation;[634] and the stilling of thinking and exploring is its near cause.

Q. [It is said that the meditator has] "internal confidence and the state of unification of mind." If that be so, why are these not included in the first jhāna? [418c]

A. In the first jhāna, owing to the movement of the waves of thinking and exploring, the mind is turbid. It is like seeing the unclear reflection of one's face on water that has become turbid due to stormy waves, just so in the first jhāna because of turbidity due to the movement of the waves of thinking and exploring, internal confidence and the state of unification of mind are not clear. Therefore, internal confidence and the state of unification of mind are not included in the first jhāna.

"Without thinking and exploring": With the abandoning of thinking, there is no thinking. With the seclusion from exploring, there is no exploring.

---

[627] This phrase occurs elsewhere too in Vim to denote the preferred meaning. 可樂 corresponds to adhippeta.

[628] Vibh 258: Sampasādanan-ti yā saddhā saddahanā okappanā abhippasādo.

[629] Peṭ 182: Yā cetasikā passaddhi savitakkaṃ savicāraṃ virodhanaṃ, yo kileso ca paridāho, so paṭhame jhāne niruddho. Tathā yā ca kilesapassaddhi yā ca vitakkavicārānaṃ passaddhi, ubhayepi ete dhamme passaddhāyaṃ. M-a I 84: Kāyacittadarathapassambhanato passaddhi. Sā upasamalakkhaṇā, kāyacittadarathanimmaddanarasā, āyacittānaṃ apariphandanabhūtasītibhāvapaccupaṭṭhānā.

[630] Samādhi would be expected here. Probably the Chinese translator did not understand the passage, which has a parallel at Dhs-a 169, Nidd-a I 135, Vism IV.143/p.156, etc: Eko udeti ti ekodi, vitakkavicārehi anajjhārūḷhattā aggo seṭṭho hutvā udeti ti attho. Seṭṭhopi hi loke eko ti vuccati. Vitakkavicāravirahito vā eko asahāyo hutvā ti pi vattuṃ vaṭṭati. Atha vā sampayuttadhamme udāyatī ti udi, uṭṭhāpeti ti attho. Seṭṭhaṭṭhena eko ca so udi cāti ekodi, samādhissetaṃ adhivacanaṃ. Iti imaṃ ekodiṃ bhāveti vaḍḍhetī ti idaṃ dutiyajjhānaṃ ekodibhāvaṃ. Cf. Dhs-a 118, Vibh-a 17.

[631] 聲論 RB: "Treatise on Sound." EKS "science of sound." Saddasattha means the "science of language," i.e. "grammar" and is frequently mentioned in Pali literature. Dr. Ole Pind (personal correspondence): "Saddasattha usually refers to Paninian grammar (śabdaśāsana/śabdaśāstra). The quotations seem to presuppose grammatical discussions concerning prakṛti. Kāṣikā on Pāṇ vi 1 115 glosses the prakṛti as svabhāva, which resurfaces in the quotation above as sabhāva."

Cf. Dhs-a 40: Dhamma-saddo sabhāvadhāraṇādiatthajotakattena. M-ṭ II 281 (Be): Sabhāvo ti pakati-attho hi ayaṃ dhammasaddo, jātidhammā jarādhammā ti ādīsu viya tasmā.

[632] Dhs-a 169, Nidd-a I 135, Vism, etc.: … vitakkavicārehi anajjhārūḷhattā … imaṃ ekodiṃ bhāveti vaḍḍhetī ti … ekodibhāvaṃ. See three notes above.

[633] 專正 = lit. focus/unify right/straight. Hayashi, 1999 p. 36: "proper unification." Perhaps it is pāmokkha or ekagga: Peṭ 127: Ekaggalakkhaṇo samādhi, avikkhepa-paccupaṭṭhāno. Dhs-a 118: Cittassekaggatā ti cittassa ekaggabhāvo; samādhissetaṃ nāmaṃ. Lakkhaṇādīsu panassa aṭṭhakathāyaṃ tāva vuttaṃ: pāmokkhalakkhaṇo ca samādhi avikkhepalakkhaṇo ca.

[634] 無浪 Lit. "absence of waves." EKS: "imperturbability." Perhaps avikkhepa or anāvila.

0418c06 Q. Are "stilling of thinking and exploring" and "without thinking and exploring"" two kinds of abandoning of thinking and exploring? Why are two taught?

A. The "stilling of thinking and exploring" is [the cause] for the appearance of "internal confidence." The "state of unification of mind" is the cause for "without thinking and exploring," which is [the cause] for the appearance of the excellent characteristic of "rapture and happiness born of seclusion."[635]

Again, the "stilling of thinking and exploring": Discerning thinking and exploring and the disadvantage of thinking and exploring, he abandons the state of disadvantage. 418c10 "Without thinking and exploring" is the stilling of thinking and exploring of the material realm.

And again, there are two kinds of "without thinking and exploring": the first is "without thinking and exploring" that is not due to the "stilling of thinking and exploring"; [the second] is "without thinking and exploring" that is due to the stilling of thinking and exploring.

Thus, the five direct knowledges and the third jhāna, etc., are "without thinking and exploring" that is not due to the "stilling of thinking and exploring.". The second jhāna through the skilful means of stilling is "without thinking and exploring" that is due to the "stilling of thinking and exploring." These are the two kinds.

"Born of concentration": This refers to concentration. The first jhāna is born from that knowledge (ñāṇa) and the second jhāna is born from the concentration of the first jhāna.

Again, "concentration" means that the second jhāna is born together with unification of mind. 418c16

"Rapture and happiness born of concentration": Rapture and happiness have been analysed in the first [jhāna].

"The second jhāna": obtains its name depending on the first.

"Enters upon the second jhāna," means that one enters the second jhāna. 418c18

"Jhāna": Internal confidence, rapture and happiness and unification of mind—this is called "jhāna."

"Dwells having entered upon the second jhāna" one attains the second jhāna, which is secluded from two factors, is endowed with two factors and three kinds of goodness, possesses ten characteristics and is associated with twenty-three qualities.[636]

This divine abiding (dibbavihāra), and the reward of rebirth as a radiant god[637] are [to be explained] as taught at length before [in the first jhāna].

"Divine abiding" means that one dwells [in a state] surpassing the human because of the rapture and happiness that are born from concentration—this is called "divine abiding."

Hence the Blessed One taught the bhikkhus thus:

> "It is like a pond fed by a spring and into which no water flows from the four directions, nor rain falling in from time to time. From that spring cool water wells up and saturates, steeps, fills and pervades [the pond]. Even so the bhikkhu makes the rapture and happiness born from concentration refresh and saturate his body without exception. The rapture and happiness born from concentration pervade his body and mind all over."[638] 418c27

Like the spring in this simile, the body of the meditator who enters upon the second jhāna should be understood. The absence of any water flowing from any of the four directions and the absence of rain falling in, should be understood as the stilling of thinking and exploring. As the water welling up from the spring, causing the body [of water] to become full without causing waves to arise in it, [419a] so rapture and happiness born of concentration pervade the name and form body without causing wavering of mind. As cool water causes the body to become refreshed (sītibhavati) and pervades it all over, so rapture and happiness born of concentration cause the whole name and form body to become

---

[635] Cf. the discussion in Vism IV.147/p. 157.

[636] The 25 qualities mentioned under the first jhāna minus thinking and exploring.

[637] A II 127: Puna ca paraṃ bhikkhave idh' ekacco puggalo vitakkavicārānaṃ vūpasamā ajjhattaṃ sampasādo cetaso ekodibhāvaṃ avitakkaṃ avicāraṃ samādhijaṃ pītisukhaṃ dutiyajjhānaṃ upasampajja viharati. So tad assādeti … tabbahulavihārī aparihīno kālaṃ kurumāno ābhassarānaṃ devānaṃ sahavyataṃ uppajjati.

[638] M I 276–7; D I 74; A III 25–6*: Seyyathā pi bhikkave udakarahado ubbhidodaka tassa nev' assa puratthimāya … na pacchimāya … na uttarāya … na dakkhiṇāya disāya udakassa āyamukhaṃ, devo ca na kālena kālaṃ sammādhāraṃ anuppaveccheyya.atha kho tamhā ca udakarahadā sītā vāridhārā ubbhijjitvā tam eva udakarahadaṃ sītena vārinā abhisandeyya parisandeyya paripūreyya parippahareyya, nāssa kiñci sabbāvato udakarahadassa sītena vārinā apphuṭaṃ assa, evam eva kho bhikkhave bhikkhu imam eva kāyaṃ samādhijena pītisukhena abhisandeti parisandeti paripūreti parippharati, nāssa kiñci sabbāvato kāyassa samādhijena pītisukhena apphuṭaṃ apphuṭaṃ hoti.*

satisfied.

The rewards of the development of this concentration are thus: divine abiding, rebirth as a radiant god (ābhassaradeva), and [twenty-three] qualities..

There are three kinds of second jhāna: lower, middling and superior.

The meditator who practises the lower jhāna, after death he is reborn as a god with limited radiance with a life-span of two aeons.

If he practises the middling jhāna, after death he is reborn as a god with measureless radiance with a life-span of four aeons.

If he practises the superior jhāna, after death he is reborn as a radiant god with a life-span of eight aeons.[639] 419a08

Third Jhāna

Disadvantage of the second jhāna

As to the disadvantages of the second jhāna: At that time, a meditator, having developed the second jhāna and acquired facility therein [wishes to cause the arising of the third jhāna, and to transcend the second jhāna. He][640] thinks: "The second jhāna is coarse; the third jhāna is fine." Knowing the disadvantages of the second jhāna, and seeing the benefits of the third jhāna, he produces the third jhāna.

Q. What is the disadvantage of the second jhāna?

A. This concentration has proximity to thinking and exploring as its adversary. This jhāna, because of being accompanied by pervasive rapture, is coarse. 419a12 Through rapture being pervasive there is great exultation (udagga) of mind and one is not able to arouse other [higher] jhāna factors. If one is attached to rapture, then that is a flaw. If one understands this flaw, then one becomes flaw-free. If not, one is not able to acquire direct knowledges (abhiññā)[641]; and owing to [attachment to] the happiness of the second jhāna, one is not able to partake of distinction. One understand the disadvantage of the second jhāna and sees that the advantage of the third jhāna is the overcoming of this [disadvantage]. Having considered the disadvantage of the second jhāna and the benefit of the third jhāna, dependent on the attending to the sign of the kasiṇa, one causes the cessation of mental rapture through the mind resolving on the happiness free from rapture.[642] Attending thus, his mind in no long time obtains the peace and liberation[643] of the third jhāna, through happiness free from rapture. 419a17

Factors of the third jhāna

The meditator "with the fading away of rapture, dwells equanimous, mindful and aware, experiencing with the body that happiness of which the Noble Ones declare: 'He is equanimous, mindful, one who dwells in happiness' and he dwells having entered upon the third jhāna."[644]

This is a benefit of the earth kasiṇa.

"Through the fading away of rapture": Rapture has already been explained.

"Fading away": abandoning rapture, he dwells equanimous.

Q. What is "equanimity"? 419a22

A. That which is equanimity, equipoise, non-retreating, non-advancing, evenness of mind—this is called "equanimity."[645]

---

[639] Vibh § 1025: Dutiyaṃ jhānaṃ parittaṃ bhāvetvā parittābhānaṃ devānaṃ sahavyataṃ uppajjanti. Tesaṃ kittakaṃ āyuppamāṇaṃ? Dve kappā. Dutiyaṃ jhānaṃ majjhimaṃ bhāvetvā appamāṇābhānaṃ devānaṃ sahavyataṃ uppajjanti. Tesaṃ kittakaṃ āyuppamāṇaṃ? Cattāro kappā. Dutiyaṃ jhānaṃ paṇītaṃ bhāvetvā ābhassarānaṃ devānaṃ sahavyataṃ uppajjanti. Tesaṃ kittakaṃ āyuppamāṇaṃ? Aṭṭha kappā.

[640] The part in brackets is found in the parallel sections in the other jhānas and attainments, but not here. Presumably it has gone lost.

[641] Cf. Pet 150: Dutiye jhāne ime ādīnavā pītipharaṇasahagato ca eso dhammo, … abhiññādukkhatāya ca …

[642] Reading 以無喜樂 for 以由喜樂, as later in this sentence; Vim 419a17.

[643] 安解 or "peaceful liberation," (also at 420a16), but the term santavimokkha applies to the formless attainments (arūpa-samāpatti); see Vism-mhṭ I 394: Santavimokkhato ti arūpajjhānato. Tāni hi ye te santā vimokkhā atikkamma rūpe āruppā ti ādīsu (M I 33, etc.) santavimokkhā ti āgatā.

[644] A I 53: Pītiyā ca virāgā upekkhako ca viharati sato ca sampajāno sukhañ ca kāyena paṭisaṃvedeti yan taṃ ariyā ācikkhanti upekkhako satimā sukhavihārī ti tatiyajjhānaṃ upasampajja viharati.

[645] Cf. Vibh § 584. Upekkhako ti tattha katamā upekkhā? Yā upekkhā upekkhanā ajjhupekkhanā majjhattatā

There are eight kinds of equanimity: equanimity as feeling (vedanā), as effort (viriya), as insight (vipassanā or dassana),[646] as awakening factor (bojjhaṅga), as immeasurable state (appamāṇa), as six-sense-factored (chaḷaṅga), as jhāna factor (jhānaṅga) and as purity (pārisuddhi).[647]

"Equanimity as feeling" is the equanimity of the five faculties.[648]

Attending to the sign of equanimity from time to time is "the equanimity as effort."[649]

When [resolving] "I shall abandon the cause of suffering," one attains to equanimity, it is called "equanimity as insight."

The practising of the awakening factor [of equanimity] is "equanimity as awakening factor."

[The equanimity of the immeasurable states of] loving-kindness, compassion, appreciative joy and equanimity—this is called "equanimity as immeasurable state."

When, on seeing a form with the eye [etc.], one is neither happy nor sad, but is equanimous, it is called "six-sense-factored equanimity."

When, because of the fading away [of rapture in the third jhāna] one dwells equanimous, it is called "equanimity as jhāna factor."

The purity of mindfulness due to equanimity (upekkhāsatipārisuddhi) [in the fourth jhāna] is "equanimity as purity."[650] [419b]

In this eight [type of] equanimity, feeling as equanimity is abandoned. The other seven equanimity states are "equanimity as equipoise (tatramajjhattatā)."

Again, there are three kinds of equanimity: (1) as conveying (associated states) evenly;[651] (2) as [a cittassa—ayaṃ vuccati upekkhā. Nidd I 501: upekkhā ti yā catutthe jhāne upekkhā upekkhanā ajjhupekkhanā cittasamatā cittappassaddhatā majjhattatā cittassa. Nidd-a I 137: Upekkhako ca viharatī ti ettha upapattito ikkhati ti upekkhā, samaṃ passati, apakkhapatitā hutvā passatī ti attho

---

[646] The character 見 is normally used for dassana, vision or seeing.

[647] Cf. Vism IV.158–170, Nidd-a I 137, Dhs-a 172, Paṭis-a I 187, Upekkhā pana dasavidhā hoti: chaḷaṅgupekkhā brahmavihārupekkhā bojjhaṅgupekkhā vīriyupekkhā saṅkhārupekkhā vedanupekkhā vipassanupekkhā tatramajjhattupekkhā jhānupekkhā pārisuddhupekkhā ti. Tattha yā idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu cakkhunā rūpaṃ disvā neva sumano hoti na dummano, upekkhako ca viharati sato sampajāno ti evamāgatā khīṇāsavassa chasu dvāresu iṭṭhāniṭṭhachaḷārammaṇāpāthe parisuddhapakatibhāvāvijahanākārabhūtā upekkhā, ayaṃ chaḷaṅgupekkhā nāma. Yā pana upekkhāsahagatena cetasā ekaṃ disaṃ pharitvā viharatī ti evamāgatā sattesu majjhattākārabhūtā upekkhā, ayaṃ brahmavihārupekkhā nāma. Yā pana upekkhāsambojjhaṅgaṃ bhāveti vivekanissitan ti evamāgatā sahajātānaṃ dhammānaṃ majjhattākārabhūtā upekkhā, ayaṃ bojjhaṅgupekkhā nāma. Yā pana kālena kālaṃ upekkhānimittaṃ manasi karotī ti evamāgatā anaccāraddhanātisithilavīriyasaṅkhātā upekkhā, ayaṃ vīriyupekkhā nāma. Yā pana kati saṅkhārupekkhā samathavasena uppajjanti, kati saṅkhārupekkhā vipassanāvasena uppajjanti? Aṭṭha saṅkhārupekkhā samathavasena uppajjanti, dasa saṅkhārupekkhā vipassanāvasena uppajjantī ti evamāgatā nīvaraṇādipaṭisaṅkhā-santiṭṭhanāgahaṇe majjhattabhūtā upekkhā, ayaṃ saṅkhārupekkhā nāma. Yā pana yasmiṃ samaye kāmāvacaraṃ kusalaṃ cittaṃ uppannaṃ hoti upekkhāsahagatan ti evamāgatā adukkhamasukhasaṅkhātā upekkhā, ayaṃ vedanupekkhā nāma. Yā pana yadatthi yaṃ bhūtaṃ, taṃ pajahati, upekkhaṃ paṭilabhati ti (= M II 264, A IV 69) evamāgatā vicinane majjhattabhūtā upekkhā, ayaṃ vipassanupekkhā nāma. Yā pana chandādīsu yevāpanakesu āgatā sahajātānaṃ samavāhitabhūtā upekkhā, ayaṃ tatramajjhattupekkhā nāma. Yā pana upekkhako ca viharatī ti evamāgatā aggasukhepi tasmiṃ apakkhapātajananī upekkhā, ayaṃ jhānupekkhā nāma. Yā pana upekkhāsatipārisuddhiṃ catutthaṃ jhānan ti evamāgatā sabbapaccanīkaparisuddhā paccanīkavūpasamanepi abyāpārabhūtā upekkhā, ayaṃ pārisuddhupekkhā nāma.

[648] Probably this refers to the equanimity of the five feeling faculties given at S V 207: Pañcimāni, bhikkhave, indriyāni. Katamāni pañca? Sukhindriyaṃ, dukkhindriyaṃ, somanassindriyaṃ, domanassindriyaṃ, upekkhindriyaṃ.

[649] Cf. A I 256: kālena kālaṃ upekkhānimittaṃ manasi kātabbaṃ.

[650] Vibh 261, § 597: Upekkhāsatipārisuddhin-ti, tattha katamā upekkhā? Yā upekkhā upekkhanā ajjhupekkhanā majjhattatā cittassa—ayaṃ vuccati upekkhā. Tattha katamā sati? Yā sati anussati … pe … sammāsati—ayaṃ vuccati sati. Ayaṃ sati imāya upekkhāya vivaṭā hoti parisuddhā pariyodātā. Tena vuccati upekkhāsatipārisuddhin-ti.

[651] 相應乘 lit. "conascent/associated vehicle" = lit. sampayutta-yāna. See Yā pana chandādīsu yevāpanakesu āgatā sahajātānaṃ samavāhitabhūtā upekkhā, ayaṃ tatramajjhattupekkhā nāma at Vism IV.164, etc, quoted a few notes above, where samavāhita-bhūtā is translated by Ñāṇamoli as "equanimity consisting in the equal efficiency of conascent states" at Vism IV.164 and samavāhita as "conveying evenly" at XIV.153, see below. PED: "evenly borne along (of equanimity)." The characters 相應 can correspond to saha-vartin, sahita, samanvāgata, samanvita according to DDB. So the Chinese translator probably understood samavahita as saṃ/saha + vāha/vāhana, "associated vehicle," or he rendered sahajātānaṃ/ sampayuttesu as 相應 samavāhitabhūtā/ samavāhitabhāvena as 乘.

Cf. Vism XIV.153/p.466, Dhs-a 133: Tesu dhammesu majjhattatā tatramajjhattatā. Sā cittacetasikānaṃ samavāhitalakkhaṇā, ūnādhikanivāraṇarasā, pakkhapātupacchedanarasā vā; majjhattabhāvapaccupaṭṭhānā. Cittacetasikānaṃ ajjhupekkhanavasena samappavattānaṃ ājāneyyānaṃ ajjhupekkhanasārathi viya daṭṭhabbā. Cf. Vism-mhṭ I 173 Be (to Vism IV.116/p.149): Paripanthavisuddhimajjhimasamathapaṭipattipakkhandanehi vuddhippattiyā state of] little activity; and (3) as unconcern (avyāpāra).

(1) The skilful means of equipoise that is neither hasty nor sluggish and that is present in all jhānas is "equanimity as conveying (associated states) evenly." This inferior equanimity is proximate to the second jhāna and is able to remove great exultation of mind.

(2) If the mind is not active, it is called "equanimity as [a state of] little activity." This equanimity is proximate to the third jhāna and is able to remove all exultation of mind.

(3) When through imperturbability of body and mind, the mind is not actively concerned with objects, it is called "equanimity as unconcern." This equanimity is proximate to the fourth jhāna.

Q What are the characteristic, function, manifestation and near cause of equanimity? 419b08

A. Equipoise is its characteristic. Disinterest (anābhoga)[652] is its function. Unconcern (avyāpāra) is its manifestation. Fading away [of rapture] is its near cause.[653]

Q. Why is this equanimity taught in this jhāna, and not in the second and the first jhāna?

A. The attachment of mind to those [two] places (vatthu) that are pervaded with rapture has not yet ceased. Because of the non ceasing of rapture and happiness, there is great exultation of mind. Therefore, equanimity is not taught in the second [and the first] jhāna.

In this third jhāna, owing to the non-pervasion with and the fading away of rapture and owing to the cessation of attachment to it, this jhāna factor arises. Because of facility in the jhāna factors, it is said "[dwells] equanimous, mindful and aware."

Q. What is "mindfulness"? 419b14

A. When there is mindfulness, recollection (anussati), remembering, [the mindfulness which is] , recalling, retaining, holding, not forgetting, the mindfulness which is the faculty of mindfulness, the power of mindfulness, right mindfulness—this is called "mindfulness."[654]

Q. What are the characteristic, function, manifestation and near cause of mindfulness?

A. Recollectedness is its characteristic; non-forgetting is its function; guarding is its manifestation; and the four [foundations of] mindfulness are its near cause.[655]

419b17 What is "awareness" (sampajañña)? Knowledge (ñāṇa), knowing (pajānana), investigation (vicaya), wisdom (paññā), and right view (sammādiṭṭhi)—this is called "awareness."[656]

There are four kinds of awareness. They are awareness of purpose; awareness of suitability;[657] undeluded awareness; awareness of the resort.[658] anubrūhite jhānacitte laddhokāsā tatramajjhattupekkhā sampayuttesu samavāhitabhāvena pavattamānā te anubrūhentī viya hotīti āha tatramajjhattupekkhāya kiccavasena upekkhānubrūhanā veditabbā ti.

---

[652] 無所, "nothing"; cf. 無所有, akiñcañcana. Cf. Vibh § 766/p.321: Pañca viññāṇā anābhogā ti pañcannaṃ viññāṇānaṃ natthi āvaṭṭanā vā ābhogo vā samannāhāro vā manasikāro vā. M-a IV 90: Passaddhattā cetaso anābhogo ti yo so yadeva tattha sukhan-ti cetaso ābhogo, etenetaṃ oḷārikamakkhāyatī ti evaṃ passaddhattā cetaso anābhogo vutto, tassa abhāvā ti attho.

[653] Vism IV.171, Dhs-a 174: Sā majjhattalakkhaṇā anābhogarasā abyāpārapaccupaṭṭhāṇā, pītivirāgapadaṭṭhāṇā ti.

[654] EKS rendered sati as "recollectedness." RB: "There is some arbitrariness in this translation, since 'mindfulness' and 'remembering' both represent the same character, 念, which has both meanings. Outside of the Buddhist context 念 means 'remember, remembrance; recollect, recollection' and also just 'think, thought,' and it is similarly multivalent in Chinese translations of Buddhist texts."

Cf. Vibh § 586, Dhs § 14. Yā sati anussati paṭissati sati saraṇatā dhāraṇatā apilāpanatā asammussanatā sati satindriyaṃ satibalaṃ sammāsati, ayaṃ vuccati sati.

[655] Vism XIV.141/Dhs-a 122: apilāpanalakkhaṇā sati, asammosanarasā, ārakkhapaccupaṭṭhānā visayābhimukhībhāvapaccupaṭṭhānā vā, thirasaññāpadaṭṭhānā, kāyādisatipaṭṭhānapadaṭṭhānā vā….

[656] The text is corrupt here and has been reconstructed with the help of the Vibh parallel. The Chinese has: "What is knowledge (ñāṇa)? Knowing and understanding for wisdom (paññā), that right awareness (sampajaññā) is called "knowledge." However, the context of the discussion the meanings of sati and sampajaññā requires a definition of sampajañña, not ñāṇa.

Cf. Vibh § 525/p.250: Sampajāno ti tattha katamaṃ sampajaññaṃ? Yā paññā pajānanā vicayo pavicayo … paññā … amoho dhammavicayo sammādiṭṭhi – idaṃ vuccati sampajaññaṃ..

The Chinese translation of sampajañña above and below is 正智, lit., sammā-ñāṇa, "right knowledge,".

[657] EKS, in accordance with the Chinese text (自相智), translated "one's distinctive mark," (sallakkhaṇa/svalakṣaṇa or svayaṃ + lakṣaṇa), which would be due to the Chinese translator misunderstanding sappāya or understanding it as svayaṃ + lakṣaṇa, "peculiar characteristic of oneself" in the sense of what is suitable for oneself.

[658] Cf. D-a I 184, Th-a II 269, A-a III 198, Paṭis-a I 322: Sātthaka-sampajaññaṃ sappāya-sampajaññaṃ gocara-sampajaññaṃ asammoha-sampajaññan ti catubbidhaṃ sampajaññaṃ.

Here, to be aware of the four postures is awareness of purpose. Entering seclusion is awareness of suitability. To know the eight worldly states (aṭṭha loka-dhammā) is undeluded awareness. [To attend to] the meditation subject[659] is awareness of the resort. In this Treatise [awareness] is taken as awareness of the resort.

Q. What are the characteristic, function, manifestation and near cause of awareness?

A. Non-delusion is its characteristic; decision is its function; investigation of states is its manifestation; reasoned attention (yoniso manasikāra) is its near cause.[660]

Q. Isn't there mindfulness and awareness everywhere [in the jhānas] and not just in the excellent ones?

A. If someone is forgetful (muṭṭhassati) and is not aware, he is not even able to cause the arising of access-concentration.[661] 419b26

Q. Then why is it taught in the third jhāna and not in the first and the second jhānas?

A. Herein [the third jhāna], because the coarse jhāna factors headed by rapture are stilled, and because awareness is fine, this concentration enters a fine place (vatthu). Thus, through awareness one is able to give rise to the third jhāna and gain facility in its jhāna factors.

Again, [when] this [third] jhāna easily arises, one reaches that place of happiness, the sweetest plane. But because [this happiness] also deludes the mind, it is called a place of attachment. [419c] Knowing this, one acquires facility sufficient to abandon rapture.

Again, it is said that rapture and happiness are together as intimate friends. So, distinguishing them with mindfulness and awareness, [the mind] becomes established in the object of happiness without rapture.

It is like a calf following its mother: If it is not held back by both ears, it will rush and follow its mother. Like this is happiness without rapture: Through distinguishing with mindfulness and awareness, [the mind] obtains establishment in [just] the object of happiness.But if one is slack in distinguishing, one re-enters rapture and partakes of falling back in jhāna. Therefore, for facility in the jhāna factors, mindfulness and awareness are taught. Therefore equanimity, mindfulness and awareness are accomplished. Therefore, it is said "equanimous, mindful and aware, experiencing with the body that happiness."

Q. What is "mental happiness"?

A. Mental pleasure (sāta) is mental happiness. The pleasure born born from mental contact is the feeling of mental happiness. This is the meaning of "mental happiness." This is called "happiness."[662]

Q. What is "body"?

A. The aggregate of perception, aggregate of formations, and aggregate of consciousness—these are called "body."[663]

This happiness is experienced with the body means "experiencing with the body that happiness."

Q. Then why is happiness without rapture not a feeling experienced with the [physical] body? 419c11

A. In the third jhāna, the faculty of [physical] happiness ceases. Why? The Blessed One taught that in the third jhāna the faculty of happiness ceases.[664] 419c12

"That happiness of which the Noble Ones declare": "Noble Ones" means the Buddha and his disciples. "Say" means to disclose, announce, teach, analyse, point out. This is the meaning of "that [659] 事處, lit. kamma-vatthu. It is used as a synonym for 行處, which is here already used for gocara.

---

[660] Vism IV.172: asammohalakkhaṇaṃ sampajaññaṃ, tīraṇa-rasaṃ, pavicaya-paccupaṭṭhānaṃ.

[661] Cf. Vism IV.174, Paṭis-a I 188, Dhs-a 174: Tattha kiñcā pi idaṃ satisampajaññaṃ purimajjhānesupi atthi. Muṭṭhasatissa hi asampajānassa upacāramattampi na sampajjati, pageva appanā. Oḷārikattā pana tesaṃ jhānānaṃ bhūmiyaṃ viya purisassa cittassa gati sukhā hoti, abyattaṃ tattha satisampajaññakiccaṃ. Oḷārikaṅgappahānena pana sukhumattā imassa jhānassa purisassa khuradhārāyaṃ viya satisampajaññakiccapariggahitā eva cittassa gati icchitabbāti idheva vuttaṃ. Kiñca bhiyyo, yathā dhenupago vaccho dhenuto apanīto arakkhiyamāno punadeva dhenuṃ upagacchati, evamidaṃ tatiyajjhānasukhaṃ pītito apanītaṃ, taṃ satisampajaññārakkhena arakkhiyamānaṃ punadeva pītiṃ upagaccheyya, pītisampayuttameva siyā. Sukhe vāpi sattā sārajjanti, idañca atimadhuraṃ sukhaṃ, tato paraṃ sukhābhāvā. Satisampajaññānubhāvena panettha sukhe asārajjanā hoti, no aññathāti imampi atthavisesaṃ dassetuṃ idamidheva vuttanti veditabbaṃ.

[662] Vibh § 587: … tattha katamaṃ sukhaṃ? Yaṃ cetasikaṃ sātaṃ cetasikaṃ sukhaṃ cetosamphassajaṃ sātaṃ sukhaṃ vedayitaṃ cetosamphassajā sātā sukhā vedanā, idaṃ vuccati sukhaṃ.

[663] Vibh § 587: Tattha katamo kāyo? Saññākkhandho, saṅkhārakkhandho, viññāṇakkhandho….

[664] S V 213: Kattha cuppannaṃ sukhindriyaṃ aparisesaṃ nirujjhati? Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu pītiyā ca virāgā upekkhako ca viharati sato ca sampajāno sukhañca kāyena paṭisaṃvedeti yaṃ taṃ ariyā ācikkhanti upekkhako satimā sukhavihārī ti tatiyaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharati, ettha cuppannaṃ sukhindriyaṃ aparisesaṃ nirujjhati.

happiness of which the Noble Ones declare."[665]

Q. Why do the Noble Ones declare it in this jhāna[666] and not the other places (sesa-vatthu, -ṭhāna)?

A. This third jhāna arises easily when one reaches that place of happiness which is without [physical] feelings of happiness. The Noble Ones dwell inclined towards this happiness. This is an accomplishment of the Noble Ones. Therefore, the Noble Ones declare this excellent jhāna.

"Equanimous, mindful, one who dwells in happiness": Equanimity, mindfulness and happiness have already been explained nearby [above].

"Dwells having entered upon the third jhāna": "Third": It is called "third" because it depends upon the second. "Third jhāna" is equanimity, mindfulness, awareness, happiness and unification of mind. The accomplishment of these is called "[third] jhāna." 419c20

"Dwells having entered upon" means that one attains the third jhāna, which is separated from one factor, is endowed with five factors and three kinds of goodness, possesses ten characteristics and is associated with twenty-two qualities.

[The rewards are:] a divine abiding and rebirth as a refulgent lustre god (subhakiṇṇadeva) as taught fully before [in the first jhāna].

"Divine abiding": free from rapture one dwells in happiness, one dwells [in a state] surpassing the human—this is called "divine abiding."

Hence, the Buddha taught the bhikkhus thus:

> "Just, bhikkhus, as in a blue lotus flower-pond or a red lotus flower-pond or in a white lotus flower-pond, blue, red and white lotuses are born, grow and rise from the water, standing fully immersed in the water from root to the tip, just so a bhikkhu fills and saturates this body with happiness that is free from rapture. His entire body-mind is pervaded with happiness free from rapture."[667]

Herein, like the blue, red and white lotuses flowers rise standing in the water, so he enters upon the third jhāna.

His body should be understood thus: as the lotuses born in the water [420a] are completely immersed from root to the tip, so when he enters upon the third jhāna, his entire body-mind is pervaded with the happiness that is free from rapture.

The reward of developing this concentration is rebirth as a lustrous god.

There are three kinds [of third jhāna], namely: lower, middling and superior.

The meditator who practises the lower jhāna, after death he is reborn as a god with limited lustre with a life-span of sixteen aeons.

If he practises the middling jhāna, after death he is reborn as a god with measureless lustre with a life-span of thirty-two aeons.

If he practises the superior jhāna, after death he is reborn as a refulgent lustre god with a life-span of sixty-four aeons. [668] 420a07

---

[665] Vibh § 588. Yaṃ taṃ ariyā ācikkhantī ti tattha katame ariyā? Ariyā vuccanti buddhā ca buddhasāvakā ca. Te imaṃ ācikkhanti desenti paññapenti paṭṭhapenti vivaranti vibhajanti uttāniṃ karonti pakāsenti. Tena vuccati yaṃ taṃ ariyā ācikkhantī ti.

[666] The Chinese text has "body," 身, but the answer is about the third jhāna and this seems more appropriate here. Cf. 419b26 above: "Q. Then why is it taught in the third jhāna and not in the first and the second jhānas?"

[667] M II 16; A III 26: Seyyathāpi, udāyi, uppaliniyaṃ vā paduminiyaṃ vā puṇḍarīkiniyaṃ vā appekaccāni uppalāni vā padumāni vā puṇḍarīkāni vā udake jātāni udake saṃvaḍḍhāni udakānuggatāni anto nimuggaposīni, tāni yāva caggā yāva ca mūlā sītena vārinā abhisannāni parisannāni paripūrāni paripphuṭāni, nāssa kiñci sabbāvataṃ, uppalānaṃ vā padumānaṃ vā puṇḍarīkānaṃ vā sītena vārinā apphuṭaṃ assa; evameva kho, udāyi, bhikkhu imameva kāyaṃ nippītikena sukhena abhisandeti parisandeti paripūreti parippharati, nāssa kiñci sabbāvato kāyassa nippītikena sukhena apphuṭaṃ hoti.

[668] Vibh 424–5: Tatiyaṃ jhānaṃ parittaṃ bhāvetvā parittasubhānaṃ devānaṃ sahavyataṃ uppajjanti. Tesaṃ kittakaṃ āyuppamānaṃ? Soḷasa kappā … Tatiyaṃ jhānaṃ majjhimaṃ bhāvetvā appamāṇasubhānaṃ devānaṃ sahavyataṃ uppajjanti. Tesaṃ kittakaṃ āyuppamānaṃ? Dvattiṃsa kappā … Tatiyaṃ jhānaṃ paṇītaṃ bhāvetvā subhakiṇhānaṃ devānaṃ sahavyataṃ uppajjanti. Tesaṃ kittakaṃ āyuppamānaṃ? Catusaṭṭhi kappā.

Fourth Jhāna

Disadvantages of the third jhāna

As to the disadvantages of the third jhāna: Now, when a meditator, having practised the third jhāna, and acquired facility therein, wishes to cause the arising of the fourth jhāna, and to transcend the third jhāna [he thinks,] "The third jhāna is coarse; the fourth is fine." He sees the disadvantage of the third jhāna, and the benefit of the fourth jhāna.

Q. What is the disadvantage of the third jhāna?

A. Proximity to rapture is its adversary. Right concentration becomes coarse through the factor of happiness. It is not adequate for obtaining the direct knowledges.[669] [Owing to attachment to happiness,][670] the third jhāna does not partake of distinction. Thus he sees the disadvantage of the third jhāna and that the benefit of the fourth jhāna is the overcoming of this [disadvantage].

Thus the meditator, having seen the disadvantage of the third jhāna and the benefit of the fourth jhāna only attends to the arisen sign of the kasiṇa and causes the cessation of happiness. Because of equanimity the mind becomes steady (adhiṭṭhāti). Attending thus, in no long time, because of equanimity, his mind gains the peace and liberation[671] of the fourth jhāna. 420a16

Factors of the fourth jhāna

The meditator, "with the abandoning of pleasure, with the abandoning of pain, with the previous ending of joy and distress, dwells having entered upon the fourth jhāna, which has neither-pain-nor-pleasure and has purity of mindfulness due to equanimity."[672]

This is a benefit of the earth kasiṇa.

"Abandoning pleasure": This is the abandoning of bodily pleasure.

"Abandoning pain": This is abandoning of bodily pain.

"Previous ending of joy and distress": "Joy" is mental happiness. "Distress" is mental suffering. All these are finished and ceased.[673] 420a20

Q. Pleasure, pain, and distress have been abandoned. Where did they cease?

A. They ceased at the first [access] moments of the jhānas.[674] The Buddha taught the cessation of joy in this fourth jhāna.[675]

Q. Where does the faculty of pain which has arisen cease entirely?

A. The Buddha taught the bhikkhus thus: "[Here a bhikkhu,] secluded from sense-pleasures, […]

---

[669] Cf. Peṭ 150: anabhihārakkhamaṃ cittaṃ hoti abhiññāya sacchikiriyāsu.

[670] See parallel sections in the other jhānas at 420c18, etc.

[671] See note 596 (3d jhāna parallel) @@@ above.

[672] A III 26–7; M II 16: Puna ca paraṃ, Udāyi, bhikkhu sukhassa ca pahānā dukkhassa ca pahānā pubbe va somanassadomanassānaṃ atthagamā adukkhaṃ asukhaṃ upekhāsatipārisuddhiṃ catutthajjhānaṃ upasampajja viharati.

[673] Vibh § 595: Pubbeva somanassadomanassānaṃ atthaṅgamā ti atthi somanassaṃ, atthi domanassaṃ. Tattha katamaṃ somanassaṃ? Yaṃ cetasikaṃ sātaṃ cetasikaṃ sukhaṃ cetosamphassajaṃ sātaṃ sukhaṃ vedayitaṃ cetosamphassajā sātā sukhā vedanā idaṃ vuccati somanassaṃ. Tattha katamaṃ domanassaṃ? Yaṃ cetasikaṃ asātaṃ cetasikaṃ dukkhaṃ cetosamphassajaṃ asātaṃ dukkhaṃ vedayitaṃ cetosamphassajā asātā dukkhā vedanā idaṃ vuccati domanassaṃ. Iti idañca somanassaṃ idañca domanassaṃ pubbeva santā honti samitā vūpasantā atthaṅgatā abbhatthaṅgatā appitā byappitā sositā visositā byantīkatā. Tena vuccati pubbeva somanassadomanassānaṃ atthaṅgamā ti. Cf. Vism IV.184.

[674] Lit. "They ceased at the time of the first jhāna." Vism IV.185: "For joy is only abandoned at the moment of fourth jhāna access, while pain, grief, and pleasure are abandoned respectively at the moments of access of the 1st, 2nd and 3d jhānas." (After Ñāṇamoli's rendering in Path of Purification.)

[675] The Chinese text has "… cessation of pain in this fourth jhāna," 苦滅, not mentioning the other two feelings/faculties. It is strange that in the whole discussion below there is no mention of the faculty of joy, somanassa, which ceases in the fourth jhāna. The parallel in the Vism mentions the cessation of this faculty here. So somehow in the Chinese the character 喜 for somanassa was replaced by the somewhat similar character 苦 for dukkha, probably because of the following question about the faculty of pain. Because the character 滅 for nirodha/nirujjhati is used, and there is reference to the Buddha like below the discussion is about a faculty. All three other ones are mentioned below so somanassa is required here. Cf. Vism IV.185/p. 165: Kadā pana nesaṃ pahānaṃ hotī ti. Catunnaṃ jhānānaṃ upacārakkhaṇe. Somanassañhi catutthajjhānassa upacārakkhaṇeyeva pahīyati. Dukkhadomanassasukhāni paṭhamadutiyatatiyajjhānānaṃ upacārakkhaṇesu. S V 215: Kattha c'uppannaṃ somanassindriyaṃ aparisesaṃ nirujjhati. Idha bhikkhave bhikkhu … catutthaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharati.

dwells having entered upon the first jhāna. Here the faculty of pain which has arisen ceases entirely."[676]

Q. Why does the faculty of pain cease in the first jhāna?

A. Because the body is pervaded with rapture, there is bodily pleasure (sukha).[677] Because of bodily pleasure, the faculty of pain ceases. Because of abandoning its opposite (paṭipakkha), therefore, the faculty of pain ceases in the first jhāna.

In the second jhāna, the faculty of distress ceases; there is the abandoning of the faculty of distress. As the Buddha taught: "Where does the faculty of distress that has arisen cease entirely? Here a bhikkhu, with the stilling of thinking and exploring, dwells having entered upon the second jhāna, ... Here, the faculty of distress which has arisen ceases entirely."[678]

Q. Why does the faculty of distress cease in the second jhāna?

A. If one has thinking and exploring for long, consequentially the body becomes slothful and the mind becomes idle. [420b] If the mind becomes idle, the faculty of distress appears. In the second jhāna, thinking and exploring are stilled and [therefore] it is taught that the faculty of distress ceases.

In the third jhāna, the faculty of pleasure (sukha) ceases. As the Buddha taught: "Where does the faculty of pleasure which has arisen cease entirely? Here a bhikkhu, with the fading away of rapture, ... dwells having entered upon the third jhāna. Here the faculty of happiness which has arisen ceases entirely."[679]

Q. Why does the faculty of pleasure cease in the third jhāna?

A. Because rapture ceases, the pleasure (sukha) that depends on rapture also ceases. Therefore, in the third jhāna the faculty of pleasure ceases. 420b07

Q. If the faculties of pain, pleasure and distress have already ceased in the third jhāna, why is their cessation taught in the fourth jhāna?

A. The third jhāna is the approach to the fourth jhāna. The feelings have already ceased in the third jhāna, therefore their cessation is taught in the fourth jhāna.

Again, [they cease] through the opposition (paṭipakkha) of the feeling of neither-pain-nor-pleasure, therefore it is said that the feeling of neither-pain-nor-pleasure is the opposite of pain and pleasure.

And again, it is because the fourth jhāna occurs together with and includes the opposite feeling [of neither-pain-nor-pleasure].[680]

And again, equanimity removes the [higher] defilements entirely.[681]

"Neither-pain-nor-pleasure": the mind neither accepts nor rejects—this is called "neither-pain-nor-pleasure." [682]

Q. What are the characteristic, function, manifestation and near cause of the feeling of "neither-pain-nor-pleasure"? 420b13

A. Neutrality (majjhatta) is the characteristic. Equipoise is the function. Removing[683] is the

---

[676] S V 213: Kattha c'uppannaṃ dukkhindriyaṃ aparisesaṃ nirujjhati? Idha bhikkhave bhikkhu vivicc'eva kāmehi vivicca akusalehi dhammehi savitakkaṃ savicāraṃ vivekajaṃ pītisukhaṃ paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharati.

[677] A III 285: Pītimanassa kāyo passambhati, passaddhakāyo sukhaṃ vediyati.

[678] S V 213–4: Kattha c'uppannaṃ domanassindriyaṃ aparisesaṃ nirujjhati? Idha bhikkhave bhikkhu ... dutiyaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharati.

[679] S V 214: Kattha c'uppannaṃ sukhindriyaṃ aparisesaṃ nirujjhati? Idha bhikkhave bhikkhu ... tatiyaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharati.

[680] 四禪共對治受收合故. It is not clear what the character combination, if it is one, 收合, means. It is not in DDB, etc., and doesn't occur elsewhere in Vim. According to DDB 收 can correspond to apakassana, "remove," "withdraw," but in combination with 合 I can't see how it can have this meaning.

[681] Cf. A I 166; M I 22, etc.: Idha ... catutthaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharati. So evaṃ samāhite citte parisuddhe pariyodāte anaṅgaṇe vigatūpakkilese mudubhūte kammaniye ṭhite āneñjappatte pubbenivāsānussatiñāṇāya cittaṃ abhininnāmeti.

Sn-a 119: Visuddhan-ti pañcanīvaraṇavitakkavicārapītisukhasaṅkhātehi navahi paccanīkadhammehi vimuttattā visuddhaṃ, niddhantasuvaṇṇamiva vigatūpakkilesan-ti attho.

[682] S IV 71: Phassena phuṭṭho na sukhena majje / dukkhena phuṭṭho pi na sampavedhe / phassadvayaṃ sukhadukkhe upekkhe, / anānuruddho aviruddha kenaci. S-a II 381: Phassadvayaṃ sukhadukkhe upekkhe ti sukhaphassañca dukkhaphassañcā ti idaṃ phassadvayaṃ upekkhe, upekkhāmevettha uppādeyyā ti attho. Phassadvayaṃ sukhadukkhaṃ upekkho ti vā pāṭho, phassahetukaṃ sukhadukkhaṃ upekkho, sukhe anurodhaṃ dukkhe ca virodhaṃ anuppādento upekkhako bhaveyyāti pi attho. Anānuruddho aviruddho kenacī ti kenaci saddhiṃ neva anuruddho na viruddho bhaveyya. Cf. D-ṭ II 423: Anurodhavirodhavippahānavasena majjhattabhāvo upekkhāsambojjhaṅgassa kāraṇaṃ...

[683] 除 usually corresponds to pahāna, paṭivinodana, and the like in Vim, but here it might be a (mis)translation for avibhūta, "non-evident," as used in the Vism IV.193 parallel (quoted in the next fn). According to DDB, vibhūta and manifestation. Cessation of rapture is its near cause.[684]

Q. What is "purity of mindfulness due to equanimity"?

A. "Equanimity": that which is equanimity, being equanimous, equipoise (majjhattatā)—this is called "equanimity."

"Mindfulness": that which is mindfulness, recollection and right mindfulness—this is called "mindfulness."

The mindfulness that is clarified and purified by equipoise is called "purity of mindfulness due to equanimity."[685] 420b17

Q. Why is this mindfulness clarified and purified by equanimity?

A. Because this equanimity is separate from all [lesser] defilements, and because this feeling is associated with unopposing states, imperturbability (āneñja) and unconcern (avyāpāra) are fulfilled. Because this unconcern is associated with the sign of equanimity, mindfulness attains imperturbability and fulfils unconcern. Therefore, this mindfulness is clarified and purified by equanimity.[686]

"Fourth": depending on the third jhāna, the fourth is accomplished.

"Enters upon": This means the equanimity, mindfulness and unification of mind of the fourth jhāna.[687] The accomplishment of these is called the [fourth] jhāna.

"Dwells having entered upon ": one attains the fourth jhāna, which is separated from one factor, endowed with three factors and three kinds of goodness, possesses ten characteristics, and is associated with twenty-two qualities. 420b24

The rewards [of this jhāna] are a divine abiding, a superior rebirth as a god of great fruit (vehapphala) and the [twenty-two] qualities, as was taught at length before [in the first jhāna].

"Divine abiding": This is to dwell in the happiness of equanimity; to dwell [in a state] surpassing the human. This is called "divine abiding."

Therefore the Blessed One taught the bhikkhus thus:

> "It is like a man were sitting with his body covered from head to foot with a white cloth, and no part of his body would be untouched by the white cloth, so too a bhikkhu pervades all of his body and limbs with a purified mind, without there being any part that is not touched."[688]

Like the man who has covered himself with a white cloth in this simile, so the meditator is to be abhāva can correspond to 除.

---

[684] Cf. Vism IV.171, Dhs-a 174: Sā majjhattalakkhaṇā anābhogarasā abyāpārapaccupaṭṭhāṇā, pītivirāgapadaṭṭhāṇā ti. Vism IV.193: Sā iṭṭhāniṭṭhaviparītānubhavanalakkhaṇā, majjhattarasā, avibhūtapaccupaṭṭhānā, sukhadukkhanirodhapadaṭṭhānā ti veditabbā. XIV.128: Majjhattavedayitalakkhaṇā upekkhā, sampayuttānaṃ nātiupabrūhanamilāpanarasā, santabhāvapaccupaṭṭhānā, nippītikacittapadaṭṭhānā ti.

[685] Vibh p.261, § 597. Upekkhāsatipārisuddhin ti, tattha katamā upekkhā? Yā upekkhā upekkhanā ajjhupekkhanā majjhattatā cittassa: ayaṃ vuccati upekkhā. Tattha katamā sati? Yā sati anussati … pe … sammāsati, ayaṃ vuccati sati. Ayaṃ sati imāya upekkhāya vivaṭā hoti parisuddhā pariyodātā. Tena vuccati upekkhāsatipārisuddhin ti.

[686] The Chinese has "similar" instead of "unopposing." EKS: "Here imperturbability and inactivity are fulfilled, owing to the abandoning of all defilements and owing to resemblance and closeness to that attainment. …" RB: "The mysterious 似相應, 'resemblance and closeness,' appears to be a translation, in the positive, of paccanīkā, 'opposing states' or of apaccanīka 'unopposing states.'"

Cf. Vism IV.166/p. 161; Dhs-a 173: Yā pana upekkhāsatipārisuddhiṃ catutthaṃ jhānan-ti evamāgatā sabbapaccanīkaparisuddhā paccanīkavūpasamanepi abyāpārabhūtā upekkhā, ayaṃ pārisuddhupekkhā nāma. Vism-mhṭ I 186 (Be): Nīvaraṇavitakkavicārādisabbapaccanīkehi vimuttattā sabbapaccanīkaparisuddhā. Tesaṃ vūpasantattā paccanīkavūpasamanepi abyāpārabhūtā abyāpārabhāvena pavattā, abyāpārataṃ vā pattā. Paṭis-a 193; Vism IV.194/Vism 167f.: Upekkhāsatipārisuddhin-ti upekkhāya janitasatiyā pārisuddhiṃ. Imasmiñhi jhāne suparisuddhā sati, yā ca tassā satiyā pārisuddhi, sā upekkhāya katā, na aññena. Tasmā etaṃ upekkhāsatipārisuddhin-ti vuccati. Yāya ca upekkhāya ettha satiyā pārisuddhi hoti, sā atthato tatramajjhattatā ti veditabbā. Na kevalañcettha tāya satiyeva parisuddhā, api ca kho sabbe pi sampayuttadhammā, satisīsena pana desanā vuttā. Cf. Moh 246 (Be) (Cf. Dhs 178): Upekkhāsatipārisuddhin-ti tatramajjhattatāsaṅkhātāya upekkhāya janitasatiyā pārisuddhi. Nirupaklesatāya hi taṃ parisuddhattaṃ. Nett-a 205 (Be): catutthajjhānaṃ upekkhāsatipārisuddhiāneñjappattaṃ āneñjavihārānaṃ visesato paccayo hoti. Nidd II 159 (Be) … catutthe jhāne upekkhā ca sati ca suddhā honti … vigatūpakkilesā mudubhūtā kammaniyā ṭhitā āneñjappattāti – upekkhāsatisaṃsuddhaṃ.

[687] Vibh § 599: Jhānan-ti: upekkhā, sati, cittassekaggatā.

[688] M II 16, 17; A III 27: Seyyathā pi bhikkhave puriso odātena vatthena sasīsaṃ pārupitvā nisinno assa, nāssa kiñci sabbāvato kāyassa odātena vatthena apphuṭaṃ assa, evam eva kho bhikkhave bhikkhu imam eva kāyaṃ parisuddhena cetasā pariyodātena pharitvā nisinno hoti, nāssa kiñcī sabbāvato kāyassa parisuddhena cetasā pariyodātena apphuṭaṃ hoti.

understood. [420c] Secluded from all lesser defilements (upakkilesa), he dwells in the fourth jhāna. Like the man whose body is covered from head to foot with a white cloth [experiences] no heat and no cold, but a moderate temperature, and his body-mind is clear, so too when the meditator enters upon the fourth jhāna, there is neither pain nor pleasure. He pervades his body with the happiness of equanimity.[689]

The rewards of the development of this concentration are a divine abiding, rebirth as a god of great fruit, and the [twenty-two] qualities.

A commoner who practises the fourth jhāna, after death is reborn as a god of great fruit. If his mind is dispassionate [with regards perception],[690] he is reborn as a non-percipient god with a life-span of fife-hundred aeons.[691] If he is a recluse (samaṇa), he is reborn as a god of great fruit or in one of the five Pure Abodes.[692] Such are the benefits of this jhāna.

420c08 Q. Why are the lower, middling and superior distinctions of fruit (phala) and plane (bhūmi) taught in the [first] three jhānas and not in the fourth?

Dependent upon the [first] three jhānas, coarser or finer states are obtained on account of [coarser or finer] factors whereby distinctions of fruit and plane are taught. This fourth jhāna has reached the perfection of fine factors. Following this, there are no more fine factors, and therefore this [fourth jhāna] is without distinctions of fruit and plane.[693]

Base of boundless space

Disadvantage of the fourth jhāna

Now, the meditator who has acquired facility in the fourth jhāna, wishes to give rise to the concentration of space and to transcend the material realm.

Again, he considers thus: "Material [realm] concentration is coarse; concentration of space is fine." The [689] Cf. M-a II 323, D-a I 219, etc.: Catutthajjhānasukhaupamāyaṃ parisuddhena cetasā pariyodātenāti ettha nirupakkilesaṭṭhena parisuddhaṃ. Pabhassaraṭṭhena pariyodātaṃ veditabbaṃ. Odātena vatthenāti idaṃ utupharaṇatthaṃ vuttaṃ. Kiliṭṭhavatthena hi utupharaṇaṃ na hoti, taṅkhaṇadhotaparisuddhena utupharaṇaṃ balavaṃ hoti. Imissā hi upamāya vatthaṃ viya karajakāyo. Utupharaṇaṃ viya catutthajjhānasukhaṃ. Tasmā yathā sunhātassa purisassa parisuddhaṃ vatthaṃ sasīsaṃ pārupitvā nisinnassa sarīrato utu sabbameva vatthaṃ pharati, na koci vatthassa aphuṭokāso hoti. Evaṃ catutthajjhānasukhena bhikkhuno karajakāyassa na koci okāso aphuṭo hotīti evamettha attho daṭṭhabbo. Catutthajjhānacittameva vā vatthaṃ viya, taṃsamuṭṭhānarūpaṃ utupharaṇaṃ viya. Yathā hi katthaci odātavatthe kāyaṃ apphusantepi taṃsamuṭṭhānena utunā sabbatthakameva kāyo phuṭṭho hoti. Evaṃ catutthajjhānasamuṭṭhitena sukhumarūpena sabbatthakameva bhikkhuno karajakāyo phuṭo hotīti evamettha attho daṭṭhabbo. D-ṭ I 343, M-.t II 238 (Be): Utupharaṇanti uṇhautupharaṇaṃ. M-ṭ II 139 (Be): Pakatiyā utupharaṇamevā ti chādite yādisaṃ utu, chadane uttiṇabhāve pi tamhi gehe tādisameva utupharaṇaṃ ahosi.

---

[690] Or perhaps "If he is disenchanted with his mind," see the Vibh-a passage below. 厭患 usually means nibbidā, but here it seems be used in the sense of virāga, as in 厭欲 kāmesu vītarāga at 426b17 and 445b13-14. Cf. Vibh-a 520: Asaññasattānan-ti saññāvirahitānaṃ sattānaṃ. Ekacce hi titthāyatane pabbajitvā cittaṃ nissāya rajjanadussanamuyhanāni nāma hontī ti citte dosaṃ disvā acittakabhāvo nāma sobhano, diṭṭhadhammanibbānametan-ti saññāvirāgaṃ janetvā tatrūpagaṃ pañcamaṃ samāpattiṃ bhāvetvā tattha nibbattanti. … Abhidh-av-pṭ I 225 (Be): *… tadeva titthiyehi saññāvirāgavasena bhāvitaṃ pañcakappasatāyukeyeva asaññasatte.*D-a I 118: Asaññasattāti …, acittuppādā rūpamattakaattabhāvāti attho. Tesaṃ evaṃ uppatti veditabbā ekacco hi titthāyatane pabbajitvā vāyokasiṇe parikammaṃ katvā catutthajjhānaṃ nibbattetvā jhānā vuṭṭhāya citte dosaṃ passati, citte sati hatthacchedādidukkhañceva sabbabhayāni ca honti, alaṃ iminā cittena, acittakabhāvova santoti, evaṃ citte dosaṃ passitvā aparihīnajjhāno kālaṃ katvā asaññasattesu nibbattati, cittamassa cuticittanirodhena idheva nivattati, rūpakkhandhamattameva tattha pātubhavati. … Evameva jhānavegakkhittā upapajjitvā yattako jhānavego, tattakameva kālaṃ tiṭṭhanti, jhānavege pana parihīne tattha rūpakkhandho antaradhāyati, idha pana paṭisandhisaññā uppajjati. …

[691] The Chinese text has "fifty aeons" which obviously is an error, given that the life span in the previous attainment is 64 aeons. The life spans in the next three attainments are also 10 times too little in the Chinese. Vibh § 1027/p.425: Catutthaṃ jhānaṃ bhāvetvā … appekacce asaññasattānaṃ devānaṃ sahavyataṃ uppajjanti … Asaññasattānañ ca vehapphalānañ ca devānaṃ kittakaṃ āyuppamāṇaṃ? Pañca kappasatāni.

'Fifty aeons' is obviously an error and it should read 'five hundred.'

[692] D III 237: Pañca suddhāvāsa: avihā, atappā, sudassā, sudassī, akaniṭṭhā. Vibh 425: Catunnaṃ jhānaṃ bhāvetvā … appekacce avihānaṃ devānaṃ sahavyataṃ uppajjanti … appekacce atappānaṃ devānaṃ … appekacce sudassānaṃ devānaṃ … appekacce sudassānaṃ devānaṃ … appekacce akaniṭṭhānaṃ devānaṃ sahavyataṃ uppajjanti.

[693] Cf. Vism X.5: Aṅgoḷārikatā panettha natthi. Ñāṇamoli: "There is, however, no [comparative] grossness of factors here [as in the case of the four fine-material jhānas]…"

meditator sees the disadvantage of matter and the benefit of concentration of space.

Q. What is the disadvantage of matter? 420c15

A. There all sorts of practices such as the taking up of sticks and weapons, beating one another, quarrelling, slander, lying, maiming[694] and so on. There are many sufferings such as disease of the eye and other bodily ills, cold and heat, hunger and thirst. This is the disadvantage of matter.

Q. What is the disadvantage of the fourth jhāna?

A. Its proximity to happiness is its adversary. It depends on material objects; this is why it is called coarse. Owing to attachment to happiness, [this jhāna] does accomplish partaking of distinction. Depending on space, there is peaceful liberation. This [jhāna] concentration is coarser than this [peaceful liberation].[695]

Thus the meditator sees the disadvantage of the fourth jhāna and of matter and that the benefit of the concentration of space is the overcoming of these.

Attaining the base of boundless space

The meditator having thus seen the disadvantage of matter and the fourth jhāna and the benefit of the concentration of space recollects entering the fourth jhāna and knows the concentration of boundless space. He emerges from this [fourth jhāna] concentration and removes the sign of the earth kasiṇa. When he practises the concentration of space, the sign of earth vanishes. He should then dwell on space [left by the earth kasiṇa], attending to it as an boundless object. Attending thus, before long the earth sign vanishes and 420c25 his mind emerges from the earth sign and passes into space. Depending on space, his mind enters the sign with facility and attains to fixedness (appanā).

Definition of the base of boundless space

The meditator, [by] entirely transcending perceptions of matter, [by] the disappearance of the perceptions of impact, not attending to perceptions of diversity, [thinking, 'Boundless is space,'] dwells having entered upon the base of boundless space."[696]

"Entirely" means without remainder.

"By transcending perceptions of matter": What are "perceptions of matter"? The perception, the perceiving, the state of having perceived of one who has entered upon concentration of the material realm—these are called perceptions of matter.[697]

"Transcending" means the emerging from these [perceptions of matter]. [421a]

"By the disappearance of the perceptions of impact": What are the perceptions of impact? The perceptions of visible objects, of sounds, of odours, of flavours, and of tangibles—these are called the perceptions of impact. "Disappearance" means the ending of these perceptions [of impact-].[698]

"Not attending to perceptions of diversity": What are perceptions of diversity? The perception, the perceiving, the state of having perceived of one who has not attained to concentration and who is endowed with the mind element and the mind-consciousness element—these are called perceptions of diversity. One does not attend to these perceptions of diversity therefore this is called not attending to [695] Vim 420c19: 於此定成麁. Cf. Vism X.5/p.327: tasmiṃ jhāne … santavimokkhato oḷārikan-ti ca ādīnavaṃ passati. "He sees the disadvantage in that jhāna in this way … 'It is coarser than the peaceful liberations.'" Nett 87: Cattāri indriyāni dukkhindriyaṃ domanassindriyaṃ sukhindriyaṃ somanassindriyañca catutthajjhāne nirujjhanti, tassa upekkhindriyaṃ avasiṭṭhaṃ bhavati. So uparimaṃ samāpattiṃ santato manasikaroti, tassa uparimaṃ samāpattiṃ santato manasikaroto catutthajjhāne oḷārikā saññā saṇṭhahati ukkaṇṭhā ca paṭighasaññā, so sabbaso rūpasaññānaṃ samatikkamā paṭighasaññānaṃ atthaṅgamā nānattasaññānaṃ amanasikārā anantaṃ ākāsan-ti ākāsānañcāyatanasamāpattiṃ sacchikatvā upasampajja viharati. Abhiññābhinīhāro rūpasaññā vokāro nānattasaññā samatikkamati paṭighasaññā cassa abbhatthaṃ gacchati, evaṃ samādhi tassa samāhitassa obhāso antaradhāyati dassanañca rūpānaṃ.

---

[694] Lit. "cutting off hands and feet."

[696] M I 383: Puna caparaṃ, brāhmaṇa, bhikkhu sabbaso rūpasaññānaṃ samatikkamā paṭighasaññānaṃ atthaṅgamā nānattasaññānaṃ amanasikārā 'ananto ākāso'ti ākāsānañcāyatanaṃ upasampajja viharati.

[697] Vibh § 602. Sabbaso rūpasaññānaṃ samatikkamā-ti tattha katamā rūpasaññā? Rūpāvacara-samāpattiṃ samāpannassa vā upapannassa vā diṭṭhadhammasukhavihārissa vā saññā sañjānanā sañjānitattaṃ–imā vuccanti rūpasaññāyo. Imā rūpasaññāyo atikkanto hoti vītikkanto samatikkanto. Tena vuccati sabbaso rūpasaññānaṃ samatikkamā ti.

[698] Vibh § 603. Paṭighasaññānaṃ atthaṅgamā-ti tattha katamā paṭighasaññā? Rūpasaññā saddasaññā …pe… phoṭṭhabbasaññā- imā vuccanti paṭighasaññāyo. Imā paṭighasaññāyo santā honti samitā vūpasantā atthaṅgatā abbhatthaṅgatā appitā byappitā sositā visositā byantīkatā. Tena vuccati "paṭighasaññānaṃ atthaṅgamā-ti.

perceptions of diversity.[699]

421a05 Q. Why is that only the transcending of perceptions [of matter] is taught and not the transcending of feeling, formations and consciousness?

A. If one transcends perceptions of matter, then there is a total transcending of all [the others]. Why? If one is not free from perceptions of matter, the mind is not capable of transcending [the others].

Again, the Blessed One, desiring to teach the transcending of material objects, taught the transcending of perceptions of matter because all objects of the [material] attainments are completely dependent upon perception.[700] 421a08

Q. If that does not happen,[701] are there perceptions of impact and perceptions of diversity for one who enters upon an material attainment (samāpatti or samādhi) or are there also no [perceptions herein] because they were [already] abandoned [upon entering the material attainment]?

A. When someone enters upon a material realm attainment (rūpāvacara-samāpatti, or -samādhi), there are perceptions of impact and diversity,[702].

Q. Why doesn't he continue to develop that [material attainment]?

A. [He doesn't continue because it does not lead] to dispassion towards matter. Because these [perceptions of impact and diversity] do not cease and stop therein. [Therefore] the Buddha taught that sound is a thorn to one who enters upon the first jhāna.[703] By continuing to develop these [immaterial attainments] one becomes dispassionate towards matter. Therefore, there is abandoning [of these perceptions] in these [immaterial attainments].

Because these [perceptions] are abandoned herein, the immaterial attainments are [said to be] imperturbable formations and perceptions[704] and are peaceful liberations (santā vimokkhā).[705] It is like Āḷāra Kālāma, who, when he entered upon an attainment without perceptions [of matter][706] did not see

---

[699] Vibh § 604. Nānattasaññānaṃ amanasikārā-ti tattha katamā nānattasaññā? Asamāpannassa manodhātu samaṅgissa vā manoviññāṇadhātu samaṅgissa vā saññā sañjānanā sañjānitattaṃ—imā vuccanti nānattasaññāyo. Imā nānattasaññāyo na manasi karoti. Tena vuccati nānattasaññānaṃ amanasikārā-ti.

[700] Dhs-a 200: Rūpasaññānanti saññāsīsena vuttarūpāvacarajjhānānañceva tadārammaṇānañca. Rūpāvacarajjhānampi hi rūpanti vuccati 'rūpī rūpāni passatī'ti ādīsu. Tassa ārammaṇampi "bahiddhā rūpāni passati suvaṇṇadubbaṇṇānī"tiādīsu; tasmā idha rūpe saññā rūpasaññāti evaṃ saññāsīsena vuttarūpāvacarajjhānassetaṃ adhivacanaṃ. Rūpaṃ saññā assāti rūpasaññaṃ, rūpamassa nāmanti vuttaṃ hoti. Evaṃ pathavīkasiṇādibhedassa tadārammaṇassa cetaṃ adhivacananti veditabbaṃ. Samatikkamāti virāgā nirodhā ca. Kiṃ vuttaṃ hoti? Etāsaṃ kusalavipākakiriyavasena pañcadasannaṃ jhānasaṅkhātānaṃ rūpasaññānaṃ, etesañca pathavīkasiṇādivasena aṭṭhannaṃ ārammaṇasaṅkhātānaṃ rūpasaññānaṃ, sabbākārena anavasesānaṃ vā virāgā ca nirodhā ca virāgahetu ceva nirodhahetu ca ākāsānañcāyatanaṃ upasampajja viharati. Na hi sakkā sabbaso anatikkantarūpasaññena etaṃ upasampajja viharitunti. Tattha yasmā ārammaṇe avirattassa saññāsamatikkamo na hoti, samatikkantāsu ca saññāsu ārammaṇaṃ samatikkantameva hoti, tasmā ārammaṇasamatikkamaṃ avatvā, Tattha katamā rūpasaññā? Rūpāvacarasamāpattiṃ samāpannassa vā upapannassa vā diṭṭhadhammasukhavihārissa vā saññā sañjānanā sañjānitattaṃ, imā vuccanti rūpasaññāyo. Imā rūpasaññāyo atikkanto hoti, vītikkanto, samatikkanto, tena vuccati sabbaso rūpasaññānaṃ samatikkamā"ti (vibha. 602) evaṃ vibhaṅge saññānaṃyeva samatikkamo vutto. Yasmā pana ārammaṇasamatikkamena pattabbā etā samāpattiyo, na ekasmiṃyeva ārammaṇe paṭhamajjhānādīni viya, tasmā ayaṃ ārammaṇasamatikkamavasenāpi atthavaṇṇanā katāti veditabbā.

[701] I.e., if he does not transcend the perception of matter. This and the next question and answer are quite cryptic in the Chinese, but fortunately there is a close parallel in the Vism. Perhaps the Chinese translator or a copyist unsuccessfully remoulded the original passage into questions and answers.

Vism X.18/p.330: Atha vā kiñcāpi tā rūpāvacaraṃ samāpannassāpi na santi, atha kho na pahīnattā na santi. Na hi rūpavirāgāya rūpāvacarabhāvanā saṃvattati, rūpāyattā ca etāsaṃ pavatti. Ayaṃ pana bhāvanā rūpavirāgāya saṃvattati. Tasmā tā ettha pahīnāti vattuṃ vaṭṭati. Na kevalañca vattuṃ, ekaṃseneva evaṃ dhāretumpi vaṭṭati. Tāsañhi ito pubbe appahīnattāyeva paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ samāpannassa saddo kaṇṭako ti vutto bhagavatā. Idha ca pahīnattāyeva arūpasamāpattīnaṃ āneñjatā (Vibh p. 135) santavimokkhatā ca vuttā (M I 33). Āḷāro ca Kālāmo arūpasamāpanno pañcamattāni sakaṭasatāni nissāya nissāya atikkamantāni neva addasa, na pana saddaṃ assosīti. (D II 130).

[702] Vibh 261 (§ 602): Rūpāvacarasamāpattiṃ samāpannassa vā upapannassa vā diṭṭhadhammasukhavihārissa vā saññā sañjānanā sañjānitattaṃ – imā vuccanti rūpasaññāyo. Imā rūpasaññāyo atikkanto hoti vītikkanto samatikkanto.

[703] A V 134–5: Paṭhamassa jhānassa saddo kaṇṭako.

[704] Cf. D-a 998 on D III 217: Āneñjaṃ niccalaṃ santaṃ vipākabhūtaṃ arūpameva abhisaṅkharotīti āneñjābhisaṅkhāro. Catunnaṃ arūpāvacarakusalacetanānaṃ etaṃ adhivacanaṃ. M II 263: … yā ca diṭṭhadhammikā rūpasaññā, yā ca samparāyikā rūpasaññā; yā ca āneñjasaññā, yā ca ākiñcaññāyatanasaññā, sabbā saññā. Yatthetā aparisesā nirujjhanti etaṃ santaṃ etaṃ paṇītaṃ, yadidaṃ nevasaññānāsaññāyatanan-ti.

[705] M I 33; S II 123; A IV 314: ye te santā vimokkhā atikkamma rūpe āruppā, …

[706] Or "concentration of non-perception," 無想定. These characters are also used for asaññāsamādhi at 407c24. See fn. 288. This might be a corruption for 無色定, non-material concentration, as found in the preceding line.

or hear the five hundred carts coming and going in front of him,[707] and therefore it is taught as "the cessation of the [five] sense-bases." 421a16 Thus, "transcending of all perceptions of matter" is taught as the abandoning of the states of the realm of matter and the disappearance of the perceptions of impact.

"Not attending to perceptions of diversity" means the abandoning of the states of the realm of sensual-desires (kāmadhātu).

Again, "entirely transcending perceptions of matter" is taught as the attainment of the immaterial realm.

The "disappearance of the perceptions of impact" is taught as the abandoning of the external disturbances to that attainment and the manifestation of imperturbability.

"Not attending to perceptions of diversity" is taught as the abandoning of the inner disturbances to that attainment and the manifestation of the peaceful liberations. 421a21

"Boundless space": What is space? It is the base of space, the element of space and vacuity. That which is untouched by the four great entities—this is called "space."

In that space one establishes the mind and causes it to pervade it boundlessly—this is called "boundless." "Boundless space" is the base of boundless space. The mind and the mental properties of one who has entered upon the base of [boundless] space are called "base of [boundless] space."[708]

Q. What is the meaning of "base of [boundless] space"?

A. That space has the nature (sabhāva) of being boundless. That boundless-natured space is the "base of [boundless] space." This is called the "base of [boundless] space."

Like a "gods' base" is for gods, that boundlessness space is a "base" in the sense of being the foundation for this attainment. This is called "base of boundless space."[709]

"Dwells having entered upon the base of boundless space" means that he attains the attainment of the base of boundless space, which transcends material objects, is endowed with three factors and three kinds of goodness, possesses and ten characteristics and is associated with twenty-two qualities.

Dwelling in peace is the reward (vipāka) of developing this attainment. [421b] [By reason of] these qualities, there is rebirth in the base of boundless space. This was fully taught before [in the first jhāna].

As to the benefit of rebirth in the base of boundless space": having developed the attainment of the base of boundless space, after death he is reborn in the base of boundless space with a life-span of twenty thousand aeons.[710]

Base of Boundless Consciousness

Disadvantage of the base of boundless space

Now, the meditator, having acquired facility in the base of boundless space, wishes to cause the arising of the attainment of the boundless consciousness kasiṇa and to transcend the space kasiṇa. He thinks thus: "The attainment of [boundless] space is coarse; the attainment of the base of the consciousness is fine." And again, he sees the disadvantage of [the base of boundless] space and the benefit of the base of [boundless] consciousness.

---

[707] D II 130–31: Bhūtapubbaṃ Āḷāro Kālāmo addhānamaggapaṭipanno maggā okkamma avidūre aññatarasmiṃ rukkhamūle divā vihāre nisīdi. … na pana saddaṃ sossatīti. Āḷāre Kālāme uḷāraṃ pasādaṃ pavedetvā pakkāmī ti.

[708] Vibh § 605–606. Ananto ākāso-ti, tattha katamo ākāso? Yo ākāso ākāsagataṃ aghaṃ aghagataṃ vivaro vivaragataṃ asamphuṭṭhaṃ catūhi mahābhūtehi- ayaṃ vuccati ākāso. Tasmiṃ ākāse cittaṃ ṭhapeti saṇṭhapeti anantaṃ pharati. Tena vuccati ananto ākāso-ti. Ākāsānañcāyatanan-ti ākāsānañcāyatanaṃ samāpannassa vā upapannassa vā diṭṭhadhammasukhavihārissa vā cittacetasikā dhammā.

[709] Vim a421 26–27: 如住天處名天處彼虛空處定. Lit. "Like dwelling in a sphere of gods is called "sphere of gods," so [dwelling in] the concentration of the sphere of [boundless] space is called sphere of [boundless] space."

The construction of the parallel Pali passage in Vism is difficult. The Chinese translator did not understand it and translated it differently in the next two immaterial spheres. He could not make sense of the construction with the word adhiṭṭhānaṭṭhena, "in the sense of being foundation," which he translates here as "dwelling," 住 (or didn't translate), and as "upholding/foundation," 受持, in the next two spheres (421b24, 421c19).

Vism X.31: Ākāsānañcāyatanaṃ upasampajja viharatīti ettha pana nāssa antoti anantaṃ, ākāsaṃ anantaṃ ākāsānantaṃ, ākāsānantameva ākāsānañcaṃ, taṃ ākāsānañcaṃ adhiṭṭhānaṭṭhena āyatanamassa sasampayuttadhammassa jhānassa devānaṃ devāyatanamivāti ākāsānañcāyatanaṃ.

[710] The Chinese text has 'two thousand' which is obviously an error. The life-spans of the gods in the other immaterial spheres, except the last one, are also incorrectly put ten times too little. Cf. Vibh 425; A I 267: Ākāsānañcāyatanūpagānaṃ bhikkhave devānaṃ vīsatiṃ kappa-sahassāni āyuppamāṇaṃ.

Q. What is the disadvantage of the base of boundless space? 421b06

A. This attainment has proximity to matter as its adversary. The object of the attainment of boundless space is coarse as it is not far secluded from perceptions of impact and perceptions of diversity.[711] Owing to the recollection of these [perceptions] there is attachment, and there is no partaking of distinction. Thus he sees the disadvantage of [the base of boundless] space and that the benefit of the consciousness kasiṇa is the overcoming of this [disadvantage]. b10

Attaining the base of boundless consciousness

The meditator, having seen the disadvantage of [attainment of the base of] boundless space and the benefit of the base of boundless consciousness, recollects and peacefully enters upon [the base of boundless space] and peacefully emerges. He attends to the consciousness that proceeds pervading space [thinking], "Boundless is consciousness." Owing to the perception of the base of boundless consciousness, the mind resolves [to attain it]. Attending thus, before long the mind emerges from the perception of the base of boundless space, and passes into the base of boundless consciousness. 421b13 Depending on the perception of the base of boundless consciousness, the mind attains fixedness.

Definition of the base of boundless consciousness

The meditator "entirely transcending the base of boundless space, thinking, 'Boundless is consciousness,' dwells having entered upon the base of boundless consciousness."[712]

"Entirely" means without remainder. "Transcending the base of boundless space" means that he has transcended this base of boundless space, gone beyond it, surpassed it. This is called "entirely transcending the base of boundless space."[713]

"Boundless consciousness": He attends to just that space [touched by] consciousness and causes it to pervade it boundlessly.[714] This is called the "base of boundless consciousness."

Q. Among the material and immaterial states, which can be taken as boundless?

A. Only immaterial states are boundless, as there are no bounds to the immaterial. Why? The immaterials are states that have no limits and are not apprehensible (anupalabbhanīya?).[715] 421b21 Again, because space is without a bound—it is called "boundless."

"Boundless": because it creates a boundless mind, it is "boundless"; hence there is unobstructed, [boundless] consciousness.[716]

"Enters upon the base" means enters upon the base [of boundless] consciousness..

The mind and the mental properties [of one who has enters upon the base of boundless consciousness] are called "the base of boundless consciousness."[717]

Q. What is the meaning of "base of boundless consciousness"?

A. When consciousness is without bounds it is called "boundless consciousness."

Like a "gods' base" is for gods, that boundless consciousness is a "base" in the sense of being the foundation for this attainment. This is called "base of boundless consciousness." [718]

---

[711] 與有對想種種想不相遠離.

[712] M I 383: Puna caparaṃ, brāhmaṇa, bhikkhu sabbaso ākāsānañcāyatanaṃ samatikkamma 'anantaṃ viññāṇan'ti viññāṇañcāyatanaṃ upasampajja viharati.

[713] Vibh § 609: Sabbaso ākāsānañcāyatanaṃ samatikkamma-ti imaṃ ākāsānañcāyatanaṃ atikkanto hoti vītikkanto samatikkanto. Tena vuccati sabbaso ākāsānañcāyatanaṃ samatikkamma-ti.

[714] Vibh § 610: Anantaṃ viññāṇan-ti taṃyeva ākāsaṃ viññāṇena phuṭṭhaṃ manasikaroti anantaṃ pharati. Tena vuccati anantaṃ viññāṇan-ti.

[715] Cf. Vism X.23/p.331: Ananto ākāso ti ettha nāssa uppādanto vā vayanto vā paññāyatī ti ananto. Abhi-av-pṭ I 230 (Be): ... anantatā pana uppādavayantābhāvato anantamanasikāravasena vā veditabbā. Na hi etassa uppādanto, vayanto vā paññāyati asabhāvadhammattā. Sabhāvadhammo hi ahutvā sambhavanato, hutvā ca vinassanato uppādavayantaparicchinno, netaro. Na ca panetaṃ manasi karonto yogāvacaro tassa paricchedasaṅkhātamantaṃ gaṇhāti, atha kho rūpavivekamattasseva gahaṇena anantapharaṇākāreneva manasikāraṃ pavatteti, tasmā uppādavayantavirahato manasikāravasena vā etamanantanti veditabbaṃ.

[716] Transl. by RB. See Vism X.31: ettha pana nāssa antoti anantaṃ. Anantameva ānañcaṃ. Viññāṇaṃ ānañcaṃ viññāṇānañcanti avatvā viññāṇañcanti vuttaṃ. Ñāṇamoli, Path of Purification X.31: "... it has no bound (anta, lit. end), thus it is unbounded. What is unbounded is called 'boundless' (ānañca, lit. unboundedness), and unbounded consciousness is called 'boundless consciousness.'"

[717] Vibh § 611. Viññāṇañcāyatanan-ti viññāṇañcāyatanaṃ samāpannassa vā upapannassa vā diṭṭhadhammasukhavihārissa vā cittacetasikā dhammā.

[718] 421b25: 如天住處名天處。此識已受持定. See note @@@ (sphere of boundless space parallel). Lit. "As "Dwells having entered upon the base of boundless consciousness" means that one attains the attainment of the base of boundless consciousness, which transcends the object of space, which is endowed with three factors and three kinds of goodness, possesses ten characteristics and is associated with twenty-two qualities.

Dwelling in peace is the reward of developing this attainment. [By reason of] these qualities, he is reborn in the base of boundless consciousness. This was fully taught before [in the first jhāna].

As to the benefit of rebirth in the base of boundless consciousness: one who practises [the attainment of] boundless consciousness is after death reborn as a god of the base of boundless consciousness with a life-span of fourty thousand aeons.[719] [421c]

The base of consciousness is finished.

Base of Nothingness

Disadvantage of the base of boundless consciousness

Now, the meditator, having acquired facility in the the attainment of the base of boundless consciousness, wishes to cause the arising of the attainment of the base of nothingness, and to pass beyond the base of boundless consciousness. He thinks thus: "The attainment of the base of boundless consciousness is coarse; the attainment of the base of nothingness is fine." And he sees the disadvantage of the base of boundless consciousness and the benefit of the attainment of the base of nothingness.

Q. What is the disadvantage of the base of boundless consciousness?

A. This attainment has proximity to space as its adversary. The consciousness object is coarse. Through reflecting on the perception of boundlessness, owing to the recollection of that [perception] there is attachment and no partaking of distinction. The benefit of the base of nothingness is the overcoming of this [disadvantage].

Attaining the base of nothingness

The meditator, having seen the disadvantage of the base of boundless consciousness and seeing the benefit of the base of nothingness, emerges from the base of boundless consciousness peacefully, does not develop that consciousness again, makes it cease to be, and makes it vanish. Having seen the sign of the base of nothingness with facility, the mind aspires and resolves [to attain to it]. Attending thus, before long the mind emerges from the perception of consciousness and, depending on the perception of the base of nothingness, attains fixedness (appanā). 421c12

Definition of the base of nothingness

The meditator, passing entirely beyond the base of boundless consciousness, thinking, "There is nothing whatsoever," dwells having entered upon the base of nothingness.[720]

"Entirely" means without remainder.

"Transcending the base of boundless consciousness" means that he has transcended this base of consciousness, has gone beyond it, surpassed it. This is called "entirely transcending the base of boundless consciousness."

"Nothingness" means that he does not develop that consciousness again; makes it cease to be; makes it vanish, and sees only nothingness. This is called the "base of nothingness."[721]

"Base [of nothingness]": The mind and the mental properties of one who has entered the base of dwelling in a sphere of gods is called a "sphere of gods," so dwelling in the concentration of boundless consciousness is called "the sphere of boundless consciousness." When this consciousness is already the foundation of concentration, it is called "sphere of boundless consciousness." Vism X.31: Taṃ viññāṇañcaṃ adhiṭṭhānaṭṭhena āyatanamassa sasampayuttadhammassa jhānassa devānaṃ devāyatanamivā ti viññāṇañcāyatanaṃ.

---

[719] The Chinese text has 'four thousand,' which is an error, see note @@ above (end space sphere section.) Cf. Vibh 425; A I 267: Viññāṇañcāyatanūpagānaṃ bhikkhave devānaṃ cattārīsaṃ kappasahassāni āyuppamāṇaṃ.

[720] M I 383: Puna caparaṃ, brāhmaṇa, bhikkhu sabbaso viññāṇañcāyatanaṃ samatikkamma 'natthi kiñcī'ti ākiñcaññāyatanaṃ upasampajja viharati.

[721] Vibh § 615: Natthi kiñcī-ti taṃyeva viññāṇaṃ bhāveti vibhāveti antarabhāveti, natthi kiñcī-ti passati. Vism X.38 however, reads: Yampi Vibhaṅge vuttaṃ natthi kiñcīti taññeva viññāṇaṃ abhāveti vibhāveti antaradhāpeti

... It is also found in Nidd II 104 (Be): Viññāṇañcāyatanasamāpattiṃ sato samāpajjitvā tato vuṭṭhahitvā taññeva viññāṇaṃ abhāveti, ...

nothingness, are called "base of nothingness." 421c17

Q. What is the meaning of "base of nothingness"?

A. It is that which has the nature of being devoid of consciousness. It is nothingness. That nothingness is a "base" in the sense of being the foundation for this attainment [like a "gods' base" is for gods]. This is called "base of nothingness."[722]

"Dwells having entered upon ": He attains to the attainment of [the base of] nothingness, which transcends the object of consciousness, which is endowed with three factors and three kinds of goodness, possesses ten characteristics and is associated with twenty-two qualities.

Dwelling in peace is the reward of developing this attainment. [By reason of] these qualities, he is reborn in the base of nothingness. This was fully taught before [in the first jhāna].

As to the benefit of rebirth in the base of nothingness: He who practises the attainment of the base of nothingness is reborn, after death, as a god of the base of nothingness with a life-span of sixty thousand aeons.[723]

The attainment of the base of nothingness is finished.

Base of Neither-perception-nor-non-perception

Reflecting on the disadvantage of the base of nothingness

Now, the meditator, having acquired facility in the attainment of the base of nothingness, desires to cause the arising of the attainment of neither-perception-nor-non-perception, and to pass beyond the base of nothingness. Again he reflects thus: "The base of nothingness is coarse; the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception is fine." And he sees the disadvantage of the base of nothingness and the benefit of the attainment of the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception. [422a]

Q. What is the disadvantage of the attainment of the base of nothingness?

A. It has proximity to consciousness as its adversary. It is associated with evident perception,[724] therefore it is coarse. Owing to the recollection of that [evident perception] there is attachment and no partaking of distinction. Thus he sees the disadvantage of the base of nothingness and that the benefit of the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception is the overcoming of it.

Again, he considers "Perception is a disease, a boil, and a thorn. Non-perception is delusion.[725] This is peaceful; this is excellent, that is, the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception."

Attaining the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception

The meditator, having thus seen the [danger of the base of nothingness and the benefit of the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception], having recollected, and having entered upon [the base of nothingness], 422a06 peacefully emerges from it. Attending to that base of nothingness as peaceful, he develops the attainment which has a remainder [of formations].[726] Attending thus, before long the mind

---

[722] See note @@@ above (parallel in Sphere of boundless space). 421c19: 無所有處者說受持言無所有受持正定 Lit.: "The sphere of nothingness is spoken of as a foundation; nothingness as the foundation for right concentration."

Vism X.39: Ākiñcaññāyatanaṃ upasampajja viharatīti ettha pana nāssa kiñcananti akiñcanaṃ, antamaso bhaṅgamattampi assa avasiṭṭhaṃ natthīti vuttaṃ hoti. Akiñcanassa bhāvo ākiñcaññaṃ, ākāsānañcāyatanaviññāṇapagamassetaṃ adhivacanaṃ. Taṃ ākiñcaññaṃ adhiṭṭhānaṭṭhena āyatanamassa jhānassa devānaṃ devāyatanamivāti ākiñcaññāyatanaṃ. Sesaṃ purimasadisamevāti.

[723] The text has 'six thousand,' with one variant reading having ten instead of six. See note @@@ above (parallel in Sphere of boundless space). Cf. Vibh 426; A I 268; Ākiñcaññāyatanūpagānaṃ bhikkhave devānaṃ saṭṭhiṃ kappasahassāni āyuppamāṇaṃ.

[724] 分明想. The character combination 分明 means "clear," "visible," etc, and can correspond to pātu (-bhavati), vyatta.

[725] M II 231: Saññā rogo saññā gaṇḍo saññā sallaṃ, asaññā sammoho, etaṃ santaṃ etaṃ paṇītaṃ yadidaṃ-nevasaññānāsaññan-ti. "Perception is a disease, a tumour, a dart. Non-perception is stupefaction; this is peaceful, sublime, that is, neither-perception-nor-non-perception." Cf. Vism X.40. Cf. Nett 41: Tattha avijjāya nāmakāyo padaṭṭhānaṃ. Taṇhāya rūpakāyo padaṭṭhānaṃ. Taṃ kissa hetu? Rūpīsu bhavesu ajjhosānaṃ, arūpīsu sammoho.

Apparently the Chinese translator, or his source MS, read asaññā sammā, or misunderstood it as such, in place of asaññā sammoho. Because "non-perception" can't be "right," this has been translated in accordance with the Pali sammoha.

[726] Vibh § 619: Nevasaññīnāsaññī ti taṃyeva ākiñcaññāyatanaṃ santato manasikaroti saṅkhārāvasesasamāpattiṃ emerges from the perception of the base of nothingness and, depending on the [subtle] perception of the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception, attains fixedness.

Definition of the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception

422a10 The meditator "entirely transcending the base of nothingness, dwells having entered upon the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception."[727]

"Entirely" means without remainder.

"Transcending the base of nothingness" means that he has transcended this base of nothingness, has gone beyond it, surpassed it. This is called "entirely transcending the base of nothingness."

"Neither-perception-nor-non-perception": Attending to the base of nothingness as peaceful, he develops the attainment which has a remainder [of formations]—this is called "neither-perception-nor-non-perception."

"Base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception": The mind and the mental properties of one who has entered the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception are called "base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception."[728]

Q. What is the meaning of "base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception"?

A. When evident perception has ceased[729] and there being a remainder of subtle perception in [that state] without [evident] perception, the base neither has perception nor non-perception.[730] This is called "base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception."

"Dwells having entered upon ": He attains to the attainment of the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception, which transcends the base of nothingness, is endowed with three factors and three kinds of goodness, possesses ten characteristics, and is associated with twenty-two qualities.

Dwelling in peace[731] is the reward of developing this attainment. 422a19 By reason of these qualities, he is reborn as a god of the base of neither-perception nor-non-perception. This is as was fully taught before.

As to the benefit of rebirth as a god of the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception: He who develops the attainment of neither-perception-nor-non-perception is reborn, after death, as a god of the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception with a life-span of eighty-four thousand aeons.[732]

Q. Why is this called "base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception," and not "base of boundless consciousness"?

A. Because of seclusion from the grasping to boundlessness and because of the arising of subtle perception, it is not the base of boundless consciousness.

Q. Why is there no destruction of the taints in dependence upon this attainment?

A. Apart from evident perception, one is not able to gain vision of the Path. Again, this attainment is extremely subtle. So one cannot investigate [the nature of] neither-perception-nor-non-perception. Therefore there is no destruction of the taints.[733] bhāveti. Tena vuccati nevasaññīnāsaññī ti. Cf. the discussion of this in Vism X.44–47/p.336 and Dhs-a 206.

---

[727] M I 383–84: Puna ca paraṃ, brāhmaṇa, bhikkhu sabbaso ākiñcaññāyatanaṃ samatikkamma nevasaññānāsaññāyatanaṃ upasampajja viharati.

[728] Vibh § 620: Nevasaññānāsaññāyatananti nevasaññānāsaññāyatanaṃ samāpannassa vā upapannassa vā diṭṭhadhammasukhavihārissa vā cittacetasikā dhammā.

[729] 422a15–16: 滅分明想故. Perhaps "Cessation of the factors of knowing and perception." 明 was used to translate vijjā, and 分明 for vyatta.

[730] Cf. Vism X.49: … oḷārikāya saññāya abhāvato sukhumāya ca bhāvato nevassa sasampayuttadhammassa jhānassa saññā nāsaññanti nevasaññānāsaññaṃ. ¨… that jhāna with its associated states neither has perception nor has no perception because of the absence of gross perception and the presence of subtle perception, thus it is 'neither-perception-nor-non-perception.'" Cf. Vibh § 619: Nevasaññīnāsaññī-ti taṃ yeva ākiñcaññāyatanaṃ santato manasikaroti saṅkhārāvasesasamāpattiṃ bhāveti. Nidd-a I 44: Atha vā oḷārikāya saññāya abhāvā sukhumāya ca bhāvā nevasaññānāsaññā asmiṃ bhaveti nevasaññānāsaññābhavo…

[731] The text adds 明, which can mean vijjā, knowledge, as well as pabhā, āloka, etc. In the preceding immaterial bases, only the reward of "dwelling in peace" (住於寂寂) is given. (421a29, 421b27–28, 421c22). According to the following discussion no insight can take place dependent upon this base, so vijjā is out of place. The character 明 is used a few lines above in "evident perception" (422a15) and apparently the character got misplaced from there to here during copying or preparation of printing blocks.

[732] Vibh 426: Nevasaññānāsaññāyatanūpagānaṃ devānaṃ āyuppamāṇaṃ? Caturāsīti kappasahassāni.

[733] A IV 426: Iti kho, bhikkhave, yāvatā saññāsamāpatti tāvatā aññāpaṭivedho. Yāni ca kho imāni, bhikkhave,

The attainment of neither-perception-nor-non-perception is finished. 422a27

Miscellaneous Topics on the Attainments

Q. What are the miscellaneous topics on the attainments and the bases?

A. Cessation, sounds, inversion, emerging, transcending, access, thinking, feeling, and uncertainty. [422b]

"Cessation": for one who has entered upon the first jhāna [the faculty of] speech has ceased. On entering upon the fourth jhāna, breathing has ceased.[734]

"Gradual cessation of sounds": When someone enters upon an attainment (samāpatti or samādhi), he hears sounds but is not able to speak. Why? Because one who enters upon an attainment is not possessed of ear-consciousness.[735]

Again, to one who enters upon a material attainment, sound is disturbing. As was said by the Blessed One: "To one who enters upon jhāna, sound is a thorn."[736] 422b05

"Inversion" (vipallāsa, vipariyesa): When one enters upon the earth kasiṇa one also has the perception of non-earth in the perception of earth.

Q. If that is so, why is there no inversion [of perception]?

A. Because it differs from the four inversions of perception (vipallāsa), one knows that this earth perception is its sign (i.e., of the earth kasiṇa), therefore there is no inversion.[737]

"Emerging" (vuṭṭhāna): Through five conditions one emerges from an attainment, namely, through painfulness of posture; through multiplicity of objects;[738] through the arising of hindrances; through uneven effort;[739] and according to one's wish.[740]

If one enters upon an immaterial attainment (arūpa-samāpatti), one cannot emerge because of a multiplicity of objects because one dwells in imperturbability (āneñja).

---

nissāya dve āyatanāni, nevasaññānāsaññāyatanasamāpatti ca saññāvedayitanirodho ca, jhāyī hete, bhikkhave, samāpattikusalehi samāpattivuṭṭhānakusalehi samāpajjitvā vuṭṭhahitvā sammā akkhātabbānī ti vadāmī-ti. A-a IV 197: Atha nevasaññānāsaññāyatanaṃ kasmā na gahitanti? Sukhumattā. Tasmiñhi cattāro pi arūpakkhandhā sukhumā na sammasanūpagā. Tenevāha iti kho, bhikkhave, yāvatā saññāsamāpatti tāvatā aññāpaṭivedho ti. Idaṃ vuttaṃ hoti: yāvatā sacittakasamāpatti nāma atthi, tāvatā oḷārike dhamme sammasato aññāpaṭivedho hoti, arahattaṃ sampajjati. Nevasaññānāsaññāyatanaṃ pana sukhumattā saññāsamāpattīti na vuccati.

[734] D III 266: Catutthajjhānaṃ samāpannassa assāsa-passāsā niruddhā honti.

[735] Cf. Kv 202: Na vattabbaṃ: samāpannassa atthi vacībhedo ti? Āmantā. Nanu paṭhamassa jhānassa saddo kaṇṭako vutto bhagavatāti? Āmantā. Hañci paṭhamassajhānassa saddo kaṇṭako vutto bhagavatā, tena vata re vattabbe–samāpannassa atthi vacībhedo ti. Kv 572-3: Samāpanno saddaṃ suṇāti ti? Āmantā. Sotaviññāṇasamaṅgī samāpanno ti? Na hevaṃ vattabbe. Nanu samādhi manoviññāṇasamaṅgissā ti? Āmantā. Hañci samādhi manoviññāṇasamaṅgissa, no ca vata re vattabbe samāpanno saddaṃ suṇāti ti. … Na vattabbaṃ: samāpanno saddaṃ suṇātī"ti? Āmantā. Nanu paṭhamassa jhānassa saddo kaṇṭako vutto bhagavatā ti? Āmantā. Hañci paṭhamassa jhānassa saddo kaṇṭako vutto bhagavatā, tena vata re vattabbe samāpanno saddaṃ suṇāti ti.

[736] A V 134–5: Saddakaṇṭakā hi bhikkhave jhānā vuttā mayā … Paṭhamassa jhānassa saddo kaṇṭako.

[737] The meaning of this obscure passage is elucidated in the Viparītakathā section of the Kathāvatthu and its commentary. Kv 305f: § 424: Pathavīkasiṇaṃ samāpattiṃ samāpannassa viparīte ñāṇanti? Āmantā. Anicce niccan-ti vipariyesa ti? Na hevaṃ vattabbe … Kv-a 81: Tattha yvāyaṃ pathavīkasiṇe pathavīsaññī samāpajjati, tassa taṃ ñāṇaṃ viparītañāṇan-ti yesaṃ laddhi, seyyathāpi andhakānaṃ, te sandhāya pucchā sakavādissa, paṭiññā itarassa. Pathaviṃ nissāya uppannanimittañhi na pathavīyeva, tatra cāyaṃ pathavīsaññī. Tasmā viparītañāṇanti ayametassa adhippāyo. Tato sakavādī lakkhaṇapathavī pi sasambhārapathavī pi nimittapathavī pi pathavīdevatā pi sabbā pathavīyeva, tāsu pathavīti ñāṇaṃ viparītaṃ na hoti. Anicce niccanti-ādivipariyeso pana viparītañāṇaṃ nāma. Kiṃ te idaṃ etesu aññataran-ti codetuṃ anicce niccanti-ādimāha. Itaro vipallāsalakkhaṇābhāvaṃ sandhāya paṭikkhipati, pathavīnimittaṃ sandhāya paṭijānāti.

[738] 最多境界 = bahu- or vicitta- or nāna-visaya. It can't be the same as nānattasaññā, for which 種種想 is used (e.g. at 420c27). Elsewhere in Vim 最多 corresponds to adhika, most, exceeding. Cf. M III 160: nānattasaññā kho me udapādi, nānattasaññādhikaraṇañca pana me samādhi cavi.

[739] 方便不平. Lit. upāya asamatā or payoga asamatā. Probably this is related to the indriya samatā of A III 375, A-a III 390, etc. Cf. M III 159: accāraddhavīriyaṃ kho me udapādi, accāraddhavīriyādhikaraṇañca pana me samādhi cavi. … atilīnavīriyaṃ kho me udapādi, atilīnavīriyādhikaraṇañca pana me samādhi cavi. S-a III 121: … cittuppādassa līnuddhaccabhāvaṃ haritvā payogamajjhatte cittaṃ ṭhapeti. Cf. 414c20: 中方便調適故, "adjust [the faculties] by the skilful means of equalising."

[740] 隨意 = yathākāma or yathāruciṃ, "according to one's wish," "as one pleases." Cf. Paṭis-a I 232" Samādhissa vuṭṭhānakusalatā ti santativasena yathāruci pavattassa samādhissa yathāparicchinnakāleyeva vuṭṭhānena samādhissa vuṭṭhāne chekabhāvo.

If one enters upon the attainment of cessation (nirodha-samāpatti) 422b10 or the Fruit attainment (phala-samāpatti), one can only emerge through previous preparation[741] and not through another cause.

"Transcending": In transcending there are two kinds, namely, transcending the factor (aṅga-samatikkama) and transcending the object (ārammaṇa-samatikkama).

To pass from one material attainment to another is called "transcending the factor."

To pass from a material attainment to an immaterial attainment, and to pass from one immaterial attainment to another is called "transcending the object."

"Access-concentration" is the access to all attainments. It consists of five factors.

"Thinking": immediately after the change-of-lineage of the second jhāna, etc., there is [the state] without thinking and exploring.

"Feeling": immediately after the change-of-lineage of the fourth jhāna, etc., there is the arising of [the state] accompanied by equanimity (upekkhāsahagata).

"Uncertainty" (vicikicchā): If one has not yet cut off the hindrances of sensual desire and so on, and dwells in the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception which is called "with a remainder [of formations]," it is as if, fearing a poisonous snake, one were to climb up a tree.[742]

There are four kinds of men who cannot obtain concentration. They, surely, will be reborn in the bad destinations (duggati). They [committed] the five [immediately effective deeds, and] have perverted views of no-cause [etc.].[743]

(With the finishing of the miscellaneous topics, the [discussion of the] earth kasiṇa is completed.)

Other Kasiṇas

Water kasiṇa

Q. What is "water kasiṇa"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? How is its sign grasped?

A. The thought (citta) that is produced relying on the sign of water—this is called "water kasiṇa." The unwavering dwelling of the mind [in the sign]—this is called "development." The mind leaping into the [sign of the] water kasiṇa is its characteristic. The non-abandoning of water perception is its

---

[741] Pubbe abhisaṅkhāra. Cf. Vism 705: Tathā ākiñcaññāyatanaṃ samāpajjitvā vuṭṭhāya catubbidhaṃ pubbakiccaṃ karoti: nānābaddha-avikopanaṃ, saṅghapaṭimānaṃ, satthu pakkosanaṃ addhānaparicchedan ti. Cf. 461a13, where previous preparation is said to be the condition for persistence of the attainment of fruit. Cf. M I 296–97: Tayo kho, āvuso, paccayā animittāya cetovimuttiyā ṭhitiyā: … pubbe ca abhisaṅkhāro.

[742] Perhaps the meaning of this is that one who has not become a sotāpanna and still has uncertainty about the Dhamma, might have fully developed samatha and dwell in the highest immaterial sphere through fear of the hindrances, etc, but nevertheless has not yet escaped the hindrances through fully cutting them off with wisdom. The snake of the defilements can climb up the tree and bite the fearful person.

[743] This passage, quite cryptic in the Chinese text, appears to be related to the discussion in Vism V. 40–43/p. 177 of the Vibh passage (also in Paṭis) on the kinds of persons who can not attain the noble path: 1. ones hindered by kamma, 2. by defilement, 3. by result (vipāka), and 4. those with a lack of faith, zeal, or understanding.

"Five" could refer to the five kinds of ānantariyakamma in the explanation of the Vibh passage in Vism, Paṭis-a, of "hindered by kamma." "Without cause," ahetuka, could be ahetuka-diṭṭhi, "view of no-cause," as an example of "perverse view" or ahetukapaṭisandhiyā, "rebirth-linking with no (wholesome) root-cause."

Vibh 341; Pug 13; Paṭis I 124: Katame te sattā abhabbā? Ye te sattā kammāvaraṇena samannāgatā kilesāvaraṇena samannāgatā vipākāvaraṇena samannāgatā assaddhā acchandikā duppaññā abhabbā niyāmaṃ okkamituṃ kusalesu dhammesu sammattaṃ, ime te sattā abhabbā. Paṭis-a II 401: Kammāvaraṇenā ti pañcavidhena ānantariyakammena. Samannāgatā ti samaṅgībhūtā. Kilesāvaraṇenā ti niyatamicchādiṭṭhiyā. Imāni dve saggamaggānaṃ āvaraṇato āvaraṇāni. Bhikkhunīdūsakādīni kammānipi kammāvaraṇeneva saṅgahitāni. Vipākāvaraṇenā ti ahetukapaṭisandhiyā. Yasmā pana duhetukānam pi ariyamaggapaṭivedho natthi, tasmā duhetukā paṭisandhi pi vipākāvaraṇamevā ti veditabbā, assaddhā ti buddhādīsu saddhārahitā. Acchandikā ti kattukamyatākusalacchandarahitā. Uttarakurukā manussā acchandikaṭṭhānaṃ paviṭṭhā. Duppaññā ti bhavaṅgapaññāya parihīnā. Bhavaṅgapaññāya pana paripuṇṇāya pi yassa bhavaṅgaṃ lokuttarassa pādakaṃ na hoti, so pi duppañño yeva nāma. Abhabbā niyāmaṃ okkamituṃ kusalesu dhammesu sammattan ti kusalesu dhammesu sammattaniyāmasaṅkhātaṃ ariyamaggaṃ okkamituṃ abhabbā. Ariyamaggo hi sammā sabhāvoti sammattaṃ, so yeva anantaraphaladāne, sayam eva vā acalabhāvato niyāmo, taṃ okkamituṃ pavisituṃ abhabbā.

Vibh 378: Tattha katamāni pañca kammāni ānantarikāni? Mātā jīvitā voropetā hoti, pitā jīvitā voropetā hoti, arahā jīvitā voropetā hoti, duṭṭhena cittena tathāgatassa lohitaṃ uppāditaṃ hoti, saṅgho bhinno hoti: imāni ānantarikāni.

function. Undivided attention is its near cause.[744]

There are five distinctive kinds of benefits belonging to [the practice of] the water kasiṇa: (1) sinking into the earth and emerging from it with facility; (2) to shake the earth, mountains and palaces; (3) to cause rainfall;[745] (4) to make the body produce water; and (5) to create rivers and seas.

The [other] benefits of the water kasiṇa are the same as those of the earth kasiṇa. Also, one who practises the water kasiṇa well, can see water anywhere.

Q. How is its sign grasped?

A. When taking up the water kasiṇa, the sign is grasped in water, i.e., natural or prepared water.[746]

Here, an experienced meditator can grasp the sign of water in a place where there is no [prepared] water.[747] [422c] The meditator sees [the sign of] water everywhere, in a well, jar, pond, lake river, or in the sea. He observes [the sign] at will, and promptly obtains the arising of the counterpart sign of water.

This is not so for the beginner meditator. The beginner meditator grasps the sign in a prepared place. He is not able to grasp it in an unprepared place. He practices the expedients (upāya) [in the practice] of the water kasiṇa.[748] The meditator, at first, should select a secluded place: a hut in the monastery or in a rock-abode or a place under a tree, [a place] which is not too dark and not scorched by sunlight. It should be a place where there is no dust or wind and where there are no mosquitoes, gadflies or other impediments. In such a place, he buries a bowl or a water pot in clean earth, and makes the rim level with the ground. The circumference should be one fathom. It should be filled with rain-water and unmixed with any colour. The bowl or pot should be full to the brim. Herein he should attend to the perception of water. Through three ways he grasps the sign: through even gazing, skills and the abandoning of wavering.[749]

The rest is as fully taught before under the earth kasiṇa and the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception.

The water kasiṇa is finished.

Fire kasiṇa

Q. What is "fire kasiṇa"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? How is its sign grasped?

A. The thought that is produced relying on the sign of fire—this is called "fire kasiṇa." The unwavering dwelling of the mind in it—this is called "development." The mind leaping into the sign of fire is its characteristic. Non-abandonment of the perception of fire is its function. Undivided attention is its near cause.

Q. What are its benefits?

A. There are five distinctive benefits in undertaking the fire kasiṇa: (1) to produce smoke and flames; (2) to reveal things through producing light;[750] (3) to extinguish light[751] (4) to burn [things] at will through creating fire;[752] and (5) bright understanding of the fire-element. 422c18

---

[744] See fn. @@意無異念為處@@ in the corresponding section in the explanation of the earth kasiṇa.

[745] S IV 289: Atha kho āyasmā mahako tathārūpaṃiddhābhisaṅkhāraṃ abhisaṅkhari, yathā sītako ca vāto vāyi, abbhasampilāpo ca assa , devo ca ekamekaṃ phusi.

[746] Cf. Vism V.1: … evaṃ āpokasiṇampi bhāvetukāmena sukhanisinnena āpasmiṃ nimittaṃ gaṇhitabbaṃ, kate vā akate vāti… Cf. Vism V.9: Vuttañhetaṃ aṭṭhakathāsu: vāyokasiṇaṃ uggaṇhanto vāyusmiṃ nimittaṃ gaṇhāti…

[747] The Chinese text is corrupt here; the character "prepared" īs lost. In the other kasiṇas, the practised yogi grasps the sign in any place where there is the required element or colour.

[748] This might refer back to the reflection on the disadvantage of sense-pleasures and the medhod of practice as described under the earth kasiṇa above on p. @@.

[749] See the detailed explanation of these under the earth kasiṇa on p. @@.

[750] Cf. VIn II 75–76: Yepi te bhikkhū vikāle āgacchanti tesampi tejodhātuṃ samāpajjitvā teneva ālokena senāsanaṃ paññapeti; … Tesaṃ āyasmā dabbo mallaputto tejodhātuṃ samāpajjitvā aṅguliyā jalamānāya purato purato gacchati.

[751] Vin I 25: Disvā isiṃ paviṭṭhaṃ, / ahināgo dummano padhūpāyi; / sumanamanaso adhimano, /manussanāgopi tattha padhūpāyi. / Makkhañca asahamāno, / ahināgo pāvakova pajjali; / tejodhātusu kusalo, / manussanāgo pi tattha pajjali. / Ubhinnaṃ sajotibhūtānaṃ; / agyāgāraṃ ādittaṃ hoti /sampajjalitaṃ sajotibhūtaṃ; / … Atha tassā rattiyā accayena; hatā nāgassa acciyo honti, / iddhimato pana ṭhitā / anekavaṇṇā acciyo honti. / Nīlā atha lohitikā; / mañjiṭṭhā pītakā phalikavaṇṇāyo; / aṅgīrasassa kāye; / anekavaṇṇā acciyo honti. / Pattamhi odahitvā; / ahināgaṃ brāhmaṇassa dassesi; / ayaṃ te kassapa nāgo; / pariyādinno assa tejasā tejo ti. Cf. Vin IV 109.

[752] The first four are similar to those of Vism V.30. Cf. S IV 289: Atha kho āyasmā mahako vihāraṃ pavisitvā sūcighaṭikaṃ datvā tathārūpaṃ iddhābhisaṅkhāraṃ abhisaṅkhari yathā tālacchiggaḷena ca aggaḷantarikāya ca acci nikkhamitvā tiṇāni jhāpesi, uttarāsaṅgaṃ na jhāpesi. Ud93: Atha kho āyasmato dabbassa mallaputtassa vehāsaṃ

The other benefits are equal to those of the earth kasiṇa. [Also,] owing to the practice of the fire kasiṇa, one is able to see fire everywhere.

Q. How is the sign grasped?

A. One who takes up the fire kasiṇa grasps the sign in fire, i.e., in a natural or a prepared place. Here, an experienced meditator grasps the sign in a natural fire. He sees it everywhere, i.e., a grass-fire, a wood-fire, a forest-fire or a house that is on fire—flaming, burning and blazing. According to where there is fire first, he observes it, whether he is in pleasure or in pain, and promptly obtains the arising of the counterpart sign of fire.

The beginner meditator is different. He is able to grasp the sign only in a prepared place and not in an unprepared place. He practises the expedients [in the practice] of the fire kasiṇa. The beginner meditator should at first undertake to cut firewood, heap it up in a clean place and burn it. He burns it from below, at about the time the sun rises or sets. He should not attend to the mass of straw or firewood or to the smoke and flames that rise above. He produces the sign of fire in the middle of the mass of flames. He grasps the sign through three ways: through even gazing, skills [423a] and the abandoning of wavering.

The rest is as was fully taught before [in the earth kasiṇa].

The fire kasiṇa is finished.

Wind kasiṇa

Q. What is the "wind kasiṇa"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? How is its sign grasped?

A. The thought (citta) that is produced relying on the sign of wind (vāyo-nimitta)—this is called "wind kasiṇa." The development of it and unwavering dwelling of the mind (in it)—this is called "the development of the wind kasiṇa." The mind leaping into the sign of wind is its characteristic. The non-abandoning of the perception of wind is its function. Undivided attention is its near cause.

Q. What are its benefits?

A. There are three distinctive benefits in the wind kasiṇa: (1) to go about swiftly like the wind with facility,[753] (2) to cause wind to arise and (3) coolness to prevail.[754]

[As to the other benefits:] One amends the benefits taught in the earth kasiṇa according to what is expedient in the practice of the wind kasiṇa.

Q. How is its sign grasped?

A. The beginner meditator grasps the wind kasiṇa through two ways: through sight and touch.

Q. How does he grasp the sign through sight?

A. The beginner meditator, seeing a field of sugarcane, a bamboo grove or land with rank grass moved by the wind, causes the perception of wind. He grasps the sign through three ways: through even gazing, skills and the abandoning of wavering. Thus he grasps the sign through sight.

Q. How does he grasp the sign through touch?

A. A beginner meditator sits down in a secluded place and notices the place where the wind comes to. At that place he bores through the wall, makes a hole and inserts a tube of bamboo or reed into it. He should sit down near the tube, letting the wind [that comes through it] touch his body. [Herein] he attends and grasps the sign of wind. Thus he grasps the wind sign through touch.

An experienced meditator, sees the arising of the sign of wind in any body-part which the wind touches. If the wind touches his body when he is sitting, walking, standing or lying down, then, wherever the wind first moves, he observes it. Whether he is in pleasure or pain, he promptly obtains the arising of the counterpart sign of wind. He is not like the beginner meditator.

The wind kasiṇa is finished. 423a20

Blue Kasiṇa

Q. What is "blue kasiṇa"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near abbhuggantvā ākāse antalikkhe pallaṅkena nisīditvā tejodhātuṃ samāpajjitvā vuṭṭhahitvā parinibbutassasarīrassa jhāyamānassa ḍayhamānassa neva chārikā paññāyittha na masi. Cf. S I 145, D III 27.

---

[753] Vism-mhṭ I 198 (Be) (on Vism V.31). Vāyugatiyā gamanaṃ vāyugatigamanaṃ, atisīghagamanaṃ. Cf. MW s.v. vāyugati.

[754] In the Vism (V.31) this benefit is not mentioned. Cf. S IV 289: Atha kho āyasmā mahako tathārūpaṃiddhābhisaṅkhāraṃ abhisaṅkhari, yathā sītako ca vāto vāyi, abbhasampilāpo ca assa , devo ca ekamekaṃ phusi.

cause? What are its benefits? How is its sign grasped?

A. The thought (citta) [that is produced relying] on the blue kasiṇa[755]—this is called "blue kasiṇa." The development of it and unwavering dwelling of the mind in it are called "development." The mind leaping into the blue sign is its characteristic. Non-abandoning of the perception of blue is its function. Undivided attention is its near cause.

Q. What are its benefits?

A. There are five distinctive benefits[756] in the blue kasiṇa: (1) to attain at will to the liberation of the beautiful; (2) to acquire the base of mastery (abhibhāyatana) of the blue like a blue flower;[757] (3) the mind resolves [upon blue colour] 423a25 (4) to change various things to the colour blue; and (5) when practising the blue kasiṇa, to see the colour of blue everywhere. [The other benefits are equal to those taught under the earth kasiṇa.][758]

Q. How is the sign grasped?

A. The sign of the blue kasiṇa is grasped in a prepared place or in a natural place.

The experienced meditator grasps the sign in a non prepared place. The meditator sees [the sign] everywhere: in blue flowers, blue clothes or in blue-coloured objects (rūpa). He constantly sees it before his eyes, whether he is in pleasure or in pain, and [423b] promptly sees the arising of the counterpart sign of blue.

A beginner meditator is different. He grasps the sign in a prepared place. He is not able to grasp it in an unprepared place. He practices the expedients [in the practice] of the blue kasiṇa. . On a cloth, board or wall, this meditator should make a disk-flower[759]—or a triangle or square—with a blue colour like that of the Asita flower.[760] He edges it around with a different colour. Herein he produces the blue sign. He grasps the sign through three ways: even gazing, skills and abandoning of wavering. The rest is as was fully taught before.

The blue kasiṇa is finished.

Yellow Kasiṇa

Q. What is "yellow kasiṇa"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? How is its sign grasped?

A. The thought [that is produced relying] on the yellow sign—this is called "yellow kasiṇa." The development of it and the unwavering dwelling of the mind in it—these are called "the development of it." The mind leaping into the yellow sign is its characteristic. Non-abandoning of the perception of yellow is its function. Undivided attention is its near cause.

Q. What are its benefits? 423b12

A. There are five[761] distinctive benefits in the yellow kasiṇa: (1) to attain at will to the liberation of the beautiful; (2) to acquire the base of mastery of the yellow like the Kaṇikāra[762] flower; (3) to resolve [on yellow colour]; (4) to [change] various things to the colour yellow (5) when practising the yellow kasiṇa, to see yellow everywhere. [The other benefits are equal to those taught under the earth kasiṇa.]

---

[755] 心於青相, lit. "mind on/in blue sign." Cf. the corresponding passage in the earth kasiṇa section at 412b24 是心依地相生.

[756] EKS have only four benefits: "... (2) he acquires the base of mastery of the blue, which is a blue flower; (3) he can change all things to blue; ..." Cf. Vism V.40.

[757] Cf . D II 110, D III 260, A V 61, etc.: Ajjhattaṃ arūpasaññī eko bahiddhā rūpāni passati nīlāni nīlavaṇṇāni nīlanidassanāni nīlanibhāsāni. Seyyathāpi nāma umāpupphaṃ nīlaṃ nīlavaṇṇaṃ nīlanidassanaṃ nīlanibhāsaṃ. Seyyathā vā pana taṃ vatthaṃ bārāṇaseyyakaṃ ubhatobhāgavimaṭṭhaṃ nīlaṃ nīlavaṇṇaṃ nīlanidassanaṃ nīlanibhāsaṃ. Evameva ajjhattaṃ arūpasaññī eko bahiddhā rūpāni passati nīlāni nīlavaṇṇāni nīlanidassanāni nīlanibhāsāni. Tāni abhibhuyya jānāmi passāmī ti evaṃsaññī hoti. Idaṃ pañcamaṃ abhibhāyatanaṃ.

[758] The "other benefits" clause found in the other kasiṇas in this chapter is lost here in the Chinese text.

[759] Or "a disk of flowers." Only here in the 4 colour kasiṇas the characters 曼陀羅花, disk-flower, maṇḍala-puppha, is used instead of just 曼陀羅, maṇḍala. This suggests that the discussion might be just about making a disk with flowers as is first described in Vism V.13, instead of using blue cloth, etc., as described later in Vism V.13, etc. However, it would be difficult to make a disk of flowers on a wall. Perhaps 曼陀羅花 means "disk like a flower." I could not trace any word resembling maṇḍala-puppha in Pali or Sanskrit.

[760] 阿多思 = āduōsī or atosi. Apparently the characters for si and ta got inverted in the transliteration. The asita is the indigo plant, Indigofera tinctoria. PED: Black colour of ashes, black-blue, black.

[761] Cf. Vism V.33.

[762] The tree Petrospermum acerifolium, Bayur Tree or Dinner Plate Tree, whose flowers are of golden colour.

Q. How is its sign grasped?

A. When taking up the yellow kasiṇa [sign], one grasps the yellow sign either in a prepared place or in a natural place. [The experienced meditator] grasps the sign in a non-prepared place. The meditator sees the yellow colour in yellow flowers or in yellow clothes or in yellow objects (rūpa). He constantly sees it [before him], whether pleasant or unpleasant, (??or whether in pleasure or in pain, whether he enjoys it or not. See above.) 423b17 and promptly sees the arising of the counterpart sign of yellow.

The beginner meditator is different. The beginner meditator grasps the sign in a prepared place. He is not able to grasp it in a non-prepared place. He practices the expedients [in the practice] of the yellow kasiṇa. On a cloth, board or wall, this meditator should make a disk-flower—or a triangle or square—with a yellow colour like the colour of a Kaṇikāra flower. He edges it with a different colour. Herein he produces the yellow sign. He grasps the sign through three ways: even gazing, skills and the abandoning of wavering. The rest is as was fully taught before.

The yellow kasiṇa is finished. 423b23

Red Kasina

Q. What is "red kasiṇa"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? How is its sign grasped?

A. The thought [that is produced relying] on the red sign—this is called "red kasiṇa." The development of it and unwavering dwelling of the mind in it—these are called "the development of it." The mind leaping into the red sign is its characteristic. The non-abandoning of the perception of red is its function. Undivided attention is its near cause.

Q. What are its benefits?

A. There are four distinctive benefits in the red kasiṇa: (1) to attain at will to the liberation of the beautiful ; (2) to acquire the base of mastery of the red; (3) to change various things to the colour red; (4) to see the colour red everywhere. These are the distinct benefits. The other benefits are equal to those taught under the earth kasiṇa. [423c]

Q. How is its sign grasped?

A. When taking up the red kasiṇa [sign], one grasps the sign of red either in a prepared place or in a natural place. The experienced meditator grasps the sign in a natural place. He sees the sign everywhere: in red flowers, in red clothes or in red objects. He constantly sees it [before him], whether pleasant or unpleasant, and promptly sees the arising of the counterpart sign of red. 423c05

The beginner meditator is different. The beginner meditator grasps the sign in a prepared place, and is not able to do so in a non-prepared place. He practices the expedients [in the practice] of the fire kasiṇa.

On a cloth, board or wall, this meditator should make a disk-flower—or a triangle or square—with a red colour like that of the Bandhujīvaka flower,[763] or with bright red. He edges it with a different colour. Herein he produces the red sign. He grasps the sign through three ways: through even gazing, skills and the abandoning of wavering. The rest is as was fully taught before.

The red kasiṇa is finished.

White Kasiṇa

Q. What is "white kasiṇa"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? How is its sign grasped?

A. The thought [that is produced relying] on the white sign—this is called "white kasiṇa." The development of it and unwavering dwelling of the mind in it—these are called "the development of it." The mind leaping into the white sign is its characteristic. The non-abandoning of the perception of white is its function. Undivided attention is its near cause.

Q. What are its benefits?

A. There are eight[764] distinctive benefits in the white kasiṇa: (1) to attain to the liberation of the beautiful, (2) and the base of mastery of the white; (3) to overcome sloth and torpor, (4) dispel darkness, (5) produce light and (6) acquire the arising of the divine eye; [(7) to change things to the colour white]; (8) and to see the colour white everywhere. The other benefits are the same as those taught in the earth

---

763 The herb Pentapetes phoenicea, the Scarlet Pentapetes or Noon Flower.

764 Only seven are given. The missing seventh appears to be the ability to change things into the colour white This benefit is given with each of the other colour kasiṇas. Cf. Vism V.35.

kasiṇa.

Q. How is its sign grasped? 423c19

A. When taking up the white kasiṇa, one grasps the white sign either in a prepared or natural place. The experienced meditator grasps the sign in a natural place. He sees the sign everywhere: in white flowers, in white clothes, in white objects, in moonlight, in sunlight, in starlight or in a round mirror.., He constantly sees it before him, whether pleasant or unpleasant, and promptly sees the arising of counterpart sign.

The beginner meditator is different. The beginner meditator grasps the sign in a prepared place. He is not able to grasp it in a non-prepared place. He practices the expedients [in the practice] of the fire kasiṇa. On a cloth, board or wall, this meditator should make a disk-flower—or a triangle or square—with a white colour like that of the morning star.[765] He edges it with a different colour. Herein he produces the white sign. He grasps the sign through three ways: even gazing, skills and the abandoning of wavering. The rest is as was fully taught before. [424a]

The white kasiṇa is finished.

Light Kasiṇa

Q. What is "light kasiṇa"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? How is its sign grasped?

A. The thought that is produced relying on the sign of light—this is called "light kasiṇa." The development of it and unwavering dwelling of the mind in it—these are called "the development of it." The mind leaping into the sign of light is its characteristic. The non-abandoning of the perception of light is its function. Undivided attention is its near cause.

Q. What are its benefits?

A. They are equal to those of the white kasiṇa.

Q. How is its sign grasped?

A. When taking up the light kasiṇa, one grasps the sign of light in a prepared or in a natural place. The experienced meditator grasps the sign in a natural place. He sees the sign everywhere—in moonlight, sunlight, lamplight or in the light of gems. He constantly sees it before him, whether in pleasure or in pain, and promptly sees the appearance of the counterpart sign of light. 424a10

The beginner meditator is different. The beginner meditator grasps the sign in a prepared place. He is not able to do so in a non-prepared place. He practices the expedients [in the practice] of the fire kasiṇa. This meditator chooses a wall facing east or west. Siting down, he fills a bowl with water and places it in a sunlit place. From the sunlit water a disk of light rises and is reflected on the wall. Herein he sees the light sign. He grasps it in three ways: through even gazing, skills and the abandoning of wavering. The rest is as was fully taught before.

The light kasiṇa is finished.

Space Kasiṇa

Q. What is "space kasiṇa"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? How is its sign grasped?

A. In the space kasiṇa, there are two kinds: space separated from matter; space not separated from matter. The sign of the base of [boundless] space is "space separated from matter."[766] A well or hole [in a wall][767] is "space not separated from matter." The development of it and unwavering dwelling of the mind in it—these are called "the development of it." [424b] The mind leaping into the sign of space is its characteristic. The non-abandoning of the perception of space is its function. Undivided attention is its near cause.

---

765 Cf. D II 111: Seyyathā pi nāma osadhi-tārakā odātā odāta-vaṇṇā odāta-nidassanā odāta-nibhāsā.

766 "Space separated from matter" is the sphere of space of the immaterial attainment called "the sphere of infinite space" (ākāsānañcāyatana). See the discussion of "sphere of space," 空入, in the explanation of the sphere of infinite space at p0421a24. The separated space kasiṇa is only mentioned twice by name in the Vim, i.e. 分別虛空一切入 at 0411b14 and 442a13.

Cf. Paṭis-a I 80: Ākāsakasiṇan-ti paricchedākāso, tadārammaṇañca jhānaṃ, kasiṇugghāṭimākāso, tadārammaṇañca ākāsānañcāyatanaṃ, and Paṭis-a I 128: Ākāsakasiṇan-ti kasiṇugghāṭimākāso paricchedākāsakasiṇañca.

767 EKS simply had "opening," but Bapat (1937, p. 59) has "as an hollow in a wall," in accordance with the Taisho edition, and this makes better sense.

Q. What are its benefits?

A. There are two [distinctive] benefits: (1) In the space kasiṇa, obstructions can not obstruct him, whether walls, ramparts, mountains and so on; his body goes unobstructed, freely; and (2) he becomes fearless.

Q. How is its sign grasped?

A. In the space kasiṇa the sign of space is grasped in a prepared place or a natural place. The experienced meditator grasps the sign in a natural place. He sees the sign everywhere—in holes (in walls, etc), in [the space which is] between the frame of a window, in [the space which is] between the branches of trees. He constantly sees it [before him], whether in pleasure or in pain, and he promptly sees the appearance (paccupaṭṭhāna) of the counterpart sign of space. 424b08

The beginner meditator is different. The beginner meditator grasps the sign in a prepared place; he is not able to do so in a non-prepared place. The meditator makes a circular opening [in a wall] inside a building or outside a building—a place where there are no obstructions—and, herein he produces the sign of space. Through three ways he grasps the space sign: through even gazing, skills and the abandoning of wavering. In this space kasiṇa, the four and the five jhānas are produced. The rest is as was fully taught before.

The space kasiṇa is finished.

Consciousness Kasiṇa

Q. What is "consciousness kasiṇa"?

A. It is said to be the attainment of the base of boundless consciousness. This is called "consciousness kasiṇa." The rest is as was fully taught before.

The ten kasiṇas are finished.

Miscellaneous Topics on the Kasiṇas

Q. What are the miscellaneous topics on these kasiṇas?

A. If one acquires facility in attending to one sign, all other signs follow. If one acquires facility in the first jhāna through one kasiṇa object, one can take on the other kasiṇas and is able to produce the second jhāna. In the same way, if one acquires facility in the second jhāna, one is able to produce the third jhāna. If one acquires facility in the third jhāna, one is able to produce the fourth jhāna.

Q. Which are the most excellent of all kasiṇas? 424b19

A. The four colour kasiṇas are the most excellent, because through them one accomplishes the liberations (vimokkha) and attains the bases of mastery (abhibhāyatana). The white kasiṇa is the most excellent, because it illumines and because facility of mind is acquired. 424b22

Here, [the meditator] establishes and produces the eight kasiṇas and the eight concentrations, in sixteen ways:

(1) Wherever he wishes and (2) whichever he wishes (3) whenever he wishes, (4) without obstruction, (5) in ascending order, (6) in descending order, and (7) in ascending and descending order, (8) by increasing each one (9) by increasing both together, (10) limiting [towards] the centre, (11) by limiting the [jhāna-] factors, (12) by limiting the objects, (13) by limiting the factors and the objects, (14) by factors both together, (15) by objects both together, (16) by factors and the objects both together.[768]

(1) "Wherever he wishes": whether in the village or forest, wherever he wishes he enters upon [a concentration attainment] (samāpajjati).

(2) "Whichever he wishes": whichever jhāna he wishes, he enters upon that jhāna-concentration.

(3) "Whenever he wishes": at whatever time he wishes, he enters upon [a concentration attainment] and he enters upon it for as much time [as he wishes].[769] [424c]

(5) "In ascending order": entering upon concentration in the first jhāna, he in order [ascends the jhānas] until the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception.[770]

---

[768] The Chinese text appears to be corrupt and deficient in several places in the following explanations. Cf. the parallel at Vism XII.2–7.

[769] Cf. Paṭis I 99–100: Paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ yatthicchakaṃ yadicchakaṃ yāvaticchakaṃ āvajjati; … samāpajjati; … adhiṭṭhāti; … vuṭṭhāti; … paccavekkhati; paccavekkhaṇāya dandhāyitattaṃ natthīti paccavekkhaṇāvasī.

"Without obstruction" is not explained; perhaps because the meaning is obvious.

[770] Cf. D II 156 Atha kho Bhagavā paṭhamajjhānaṃ samāpajji. Paṭhamajjhānā vuṭṭhahitvā dutiyajjhānaṃ samāpajji. … Tatiyajjhānā vuṭṭhahitvā catutthajjhānaṃ samāpajji. Cf. Vism XII. 374: Paṭhamajjhānato pana paṭṭhāya paṭipāṭiyā yāva nevasaññānāsaññāyatanaṃ, tāva punappunaṃ samāpajjanaṃ jhānānulomaṃ nāma. Nevasaññānāsaññāyatano paṭṭhāya

(6) "In descending order": [starting] from the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception, he in order [descends the jhānas] until the first jhāna.

(7) "In ascending and descending order": he surpasses [jhānas] on ascending and on descending. From the first jhāna, he enters upon the third jhāna . From the third jhāna, he enters upon the second jhāna, and from the second jhāna, he enters upon the fourth jhāna. And so on until he enters upon the concentration of the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception.

(8) "By increasing each one": through entering upon the fourth jhāna in order, he ascends or descends.

(9) "By increasing both together (ubhaya, sahita)": he enters upon the fourth jhāna. From this [he enters upon the base of] space, and [then] enters upon the third jhāna. Thus there are two kinds of entering upon concentration.[771]

(10) "By limiting [towards] the centre": He enters upon the first jhāna. From this he enters upon the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception. From this he enters upon the second jhāna, and therefrom enters upon the base of nothingness. Entering upon and attaining thus, he can accomplish the base of boundless space.

(11) "By limiting the [jhāna-] factors": He enters upon the concentration of one jhāna on the eight kasiṇas.

(12) "By limiting the objects": He enters upon the eight concentrations on two[772] kasiṇas.

(13) "By limiting the factors and the objects": [He enters upon] two concentrations, on [one] kasiṇa.

(14) "By the factors both together": on two kasiṇas, he enters upon two pairs of jhānas.[773]

(15) "By the objects both together": on two pairs of kasiṇas, he enters upon two jhānas.

(16) "By the factors and the objects both together": this consists of the [preceding] two sentences.

The miscellaneous topics are finished. 424c14

Ten Perceptions of the Foul

1. Perception of the bloated

Q. What is the "perception of the bloated"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? How is its sign grasped?

A. "The perception of the bloated": a corpse that is swollen everywhere like a loathsome bag full of stinking filth—this is called "the bloated."[774]

The awareness (sampajañña) of the sign of the bloated—this is called "perception of the bloated." The development of that perception and the unwavering dwelling of the mind in it—these are called "the development of it." The retaining[775] of the sign of the bloated is its characteristic. Disenchantment yāva paṭhamajjhānaṃ, tāva punappunaṃ samāpajjanaṃ jhānapaṭilomaṃ nāma. Paṭhamajjhānato paṭṭhāya yāva nevasaññānāsaññāyatanaṃ, nevasaññā-nāsaññāyayatano paṭṭhāya yāva paṭhamajjhānan'ti evaṃ anulomapaṭilomavasena punappunaṃ samāpajjanaṃ jhānānulomapaṭilomaṃ nāma.

---

[771] This is what the Chinese text, which appears to be corrupt here like elsewhere in this explanation of these skills, literally has.

[772] Several editions given in the footnote in the Taishō edition have "two," 二, instead of Taishō's "three," 三.

[773] Lit. "enters two and two jhānas," 入二二禪. Perhaps "enters two [times] the second jhāna"? Two editions given in the footnote in Taishō have 分, "factor" instead of 禪, jhāna.

[774] Cf. a. A III 323–24; M I 58; D II 295: Puna ca paraṃ bhikkhave bhikkhu seyyathā pi passeyya sarīraṃ sīvatikāya chaḍḍitaṃ … uddhumātakaṃ…so imam eva kāyaṃ upasaṃharati: Ayam pi kho kāyo evaṃ-dhammo evam-bhāvī etam anatīto ti.

[775] Or "contemplating," upadhāraṇā. The text has 隨觀, "contemplating" used for anupassanā and the like, here, but in the other nine asubhasaññā it instead has 受持, "retaining" or "upholding," upadhāraṇā, which can have both the senses of contemplating and holding in mind.

Vism-mhṭ I 207 (Be): Sādhukaṃ upadhāretabbañceva vavatthapetabbañcā ti sakkaccaṃ satiyā sallakkhetabbañceva paññāya nicchetabbañca. Sati hi dhāraṇā ti niddiṭṭhā, dhāraṇañcettha sallakkhaṇaṃ. Paññā pavicayo ti niddiṭṭhā, pavicayo cettha nicchayoti. Atha vā upadhāretabbanti satipubbaṅgamāya paññāya upalakkhetabbaṃ. Na hi kadāci satirahitā paññā atthi. Vavatthapetabbanti paññāpubbaṅgamāya satiyā nicchinitabbaṃ. Paññāsahitā eva hi sati idhādhippetā, na tabbirahitā. Paṭis-a III 553 (on Paṭis II 38): Nīlasaññaṃ paṭilabhatī ti tasmiṃ nīlanimitte nīlamitisaññaṃ paṭilabhati. Suggahitaṃ karotī ti parikammabhūmiyaṃ suṭṭhu uggahitaṃ karoti. Sūpadhāritaṃ upadhāretīti upacārabhūmiyaṃ suṭṭhu upadhāritaṃ katvā upadhāreti. Svāvatthitaṃ avatthāpeti ti appanābhūmiyaṃ suṭṭhu nicchitaṃ nicchināti. Vavatthāpetī ti pi pāṭho. Ajjhattañhi nīlaparikammaṃ karonto kese vā pitte vā akkhitārakāyaṃ vā karoti. Cf. Paṭis-a I 15, Nidd-a I 121:

(nibbidā) connected with the perception of the bloated is its function. Attending to malodour and foulness are its near cause.

Q. What are its benefits?

A. Nine are the benefits of the perception of the bloated: (1) A man is able to gain mindfulness of the body (kāyagatāsati); (2) he is able to gain the perception of impermanence and (3) the perception of death; (4) he has great disenchantment (nibbidā-bahula); (5) he overcomes sensual desire (kāmarāga); (6) he abandons the vanity of (a beautiful physical) form (rūpa-mada);[776] (7) he abandons vanity of health (arogya-mada); (8) he is destined to a good destination (sugati); and (9) is destined to the deathless (amataparāyaṇa). 424c23

Q. How is its sign grasped? [777]

A. The beginner meditator who is grasping the sign of the bloated and the foul, goes without a companion to the place of foul corpses, with mindfulness that is unshaken and unmuddled, with his faculties drawn in and his mind not going outside. Avoiding contrary winds, he remains there, standing or sitting, facing the sign of the foul, and not too far from it nor too near to it. And if there is a rock, an ant-hill, tree, bush or a creeper near the sign of the foul, for the purpose of making [the sign of the foul with] signs and objects the meditator considers: "This is a rock; this is the sign of the foul. This the sign of the foul; this is a rock."[778] And so also with the ant-hill, etc.[425a]

Having made [it with] signs and objects, he should define the sign of the bloated and the foul according to the state of its intrinsic nature (sabhāvabhāva) in ten ways: (1) by colour, (2) shape, (3) direction, (4) location, (5) limitation, (6) joints, (7) cavities, (8) low place, (9) high place, and (10) entirely.

(1) "By colour": If [the skin is] black he defines it as black; if it is neither black nor white he contemplates it as neither black nor white; if white, he contemplates it as white; and if it is fishy skin, he contemplates it as fishy skin."[779] 425a06

(2) "By shape" (saṇṭhāna): [he does not define] whether it has a female shape or a male shape, [but] he defines it as is young or full-grown or old. If long, he contemplates it as long; if short, as short; if fat, as fat; if small, as small.

(3) "By direction" He defines thus, "In this direction the head is cast; in this, the hands; in this, the Upadhāraṇaṃ vā, kusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ patiṭṭhānavasena ādhārabhāvo ti attho.

---

[776] Sn-a I 250: Svāyamevaṃvidho kāyo yadā āyuusmāviññāṇāpagamena mato vātabharitabhastā viya uddhumātako vaṇṇaparibhedena vinīlako susānasmiṃ niratthaṃva kaliṅgaraṃ chaḍḍitattā apaviddho seti, atha na dānissa puna uṭṭhānaṃ bhavissatī ti ekaṃsatoyeva anapekkhā honti ñātayo. Tattha matoti aniccataṃ dasseti, setīti nirīhakattaṃ. Tadubhayena ca jīvitabalamadappahāne niyojeti. Uddhumātoti saṇṭhānavipattiṃ dasseti, vinīlakoti chavirāgavipattiṃ. Tadubhayena ca rūpamadappahāne vaṇṇapokkharataṃ paṭicca mānappahāne ca niyojeti. Cf. Sn-a I 242: Abhirūpanandā abhirūpā eva ahosi dassanīyā pāsādikā, tenevassā abhirūpanandāti nāmamakaṃsu. Janapadakalyāṇī nandāpi rūpena attanā sadisaṃ na passati. Tā ubhopi rūpamadamattā … A I 146: Tayome, bhikkhave, madā. Katame tayo? Yobbanamado, ārogyamado, jīvitamado. J V 100: Madāti, mahārāja, ārogyayobbanajīvitamadasaṅkhātā tividhā madā pamādo nāma jāyati.

[777] A parallel of the following passage is quoted at Vism VI.19–22 giving the source as the "commentaries."

Vism VI.19–20: Aṭṭhakathāsu vuttena vidhinā gantabbaṃ, vuttañhetaṃ: Uddhumātakaṃ asubhanimittaṃ uggaṇhanto eko adutiyo gacchati upaṭṭhitāya satiyā asammuṭṭhāya antogatehi indriyehi abahigatena mānasena gatāgatamaggaṃ paccavekkhamāno. Yasmiṃ padese uddhumātakaṃ asubhanimittaṃ nikkhittaṃ hoti, tasmiṃ padese pāsāṇaṃ vā vammikaṃ vā rukkhaṃ vā gacchaṃ vā lataṃ vā sanimittaṃ karoti, sārammaṇaṃ karoti. Sanimittaṃ katvā sārammaṇaṃ katvā uddhumātakaṃ asubhanimittaṃ sabhāvabhāvato upalakkheti, vaṇṇatopi liṅgatopi saṇṭhānatopi disatopi okāsatopi paricchedatopi sandhito vivarato ninnato thalato samantato. So taṃ nimittaṃ suggahitaṃ karoti, sūpadhāritaṃ upadhāreti, suvavatthitaṃ vavatthapeti. So taṃ nimittaṃ suggahitaṃ katvā sūpadhāritaṃ upadhāretvā suvavatthitaṃ vavatthapetvā eko adutiyo gacchati … paccavekkhamāno.

[778] Cf. Vism VI.19 (see previous fn), of which Ñāṇamoli's translation is: "In the place where the bloated sign of foulness has been left he notes any stone or ant-hill or tree or bush or creeper there each with its particular sign and in relation to the object." Cf. the explanation of this at Vism VI.28–34. Cf. Vism-mhṭ I 104 (Be, ∫ 109): Sanimittaṃ karotīti saha nimittaṃ karoti, asubhaṃ pāsāṇādinimittena saha karoti vavatthapeti. Atha vā asubhanimittaṃ, pāsāṇādinimittañca saha ekajjhaṃ karonto vavatthapento sanimittaṃ karotī ti vutto. … Sārammaṇanti asubhārammaṇena saddhiṃ pāsāṇādiṃ samānārammaṇaṃ karoti, saha vā ārammaṇaṃ karoti, ekārammaṇaṃ viya ubhayaṃ ārammaṇaṃ karoti, ekajjhaṃ viya ca aparāparaṃ sallakkhento pāsāṇādiṃ, asubhanimittañcāti dvayaṃ ārammaṇaṃ karotīti attho.

[779] See Vism VI.36: kāḷassa vā odātassa vā maṅguracchavino vā : "… of someone having black, white, or brown-yellow skin." Cf. Nidd-a I 30: Tattha yādiso ti liṅgavasena yādiso vā tādiso vā hotu, dīgho vā rasso vā kāḷo vā odāto vā maṅguracchavi vā kiso vā thūlo vā ti attho. M II 40: dīghā vā rassā vā majjhimā vā kāḷī vā sāmā vā maṅguracchavī vāti… Cf. S-a II 560. The Chinese text has 臭皮 "malodourous skin." but because we deal with colour here this is obviously wrong. It is likely a mistranslation of maṅgura-cchavino. Because a maṅgura is a kind of fish (see M-a II 290: Maṅguracchavīti maṅguramacchacchavi) this could be the reason why "malodorous" was chosen.

legs; in this, the back; in this, the abdomen; in this direction I sit; in that direction is the sign of the foul."

(4) "By location": He defines thus, 'In this location the hands are cast; in this, the legs; in this, the head; in this location I sit; in that location is the sign of the foul.'

(5) "By limitation": He defines [the body] from head to foot, from below up to the head-hair, and edged by the skin, as a mass of excrement. 425a14

(6) "By the joints": He defines thus, 'There are six joints in the two hands, six joints in the two legs, and there is one joint at the waist and one in the neck.'" These are called "the fourteen great joints."

(7) "By the cavities": He defines whether the mouth is open or closed, and whether the eyes are open or closed. He defines the cavities between the arms and between the legs.[780]

(8–9) "By low and high place": He defines where the sign of the foul is located, whether in a low place or in a high place; and again, he defines thus: "I am in a lower place, the sign of the foul is in a higher place," or, "The sign of the foul is in a lower place, I am in a higher place."[781]

(10) "Entirely (samanta)": He defines at a distance of two or three fathoms[782] from the sign, because he does not grasp the sign by being too near it or too far from it. The meditator, thus rightly defining it entirely, sees the sign [thinking], "Sādhu! Sādhu!" ("Good, Good!".) Thus he retains [the sign in his mind] through defining well. 425a23

The meditator, having grasped the sign well, having retained it well and defined it well,[783] goes back the way he came, alone, without a companion, with mindfulness unshaken and unmuddled, with his faculties drawn in and his mind not going outside, and reflecting on the path of going and coming Whether he walks or sits, his mind constantly retains the sign of the foul.[784]

Q. What is the purpose of (kimattha) going without a companion?

A. It is for acquiring seclusion of body (kāya-viveka or -upasama).

"Unshaken mindfulness": "Owing to unmuddledness, owing to the faculties being drawn in, the mind does not go outside."

Q. What is the purpose of going back the way he came?

A. It is for acquiring seclusion of body (kāya-viveka or –upasama, calm).

Q. What is the purpose of avoiding contrary winds?

A. It is for avoiding the stench.

Q. What is the purpose of grasping [the sign] sitting neither too far nor too near [the sign]? [425b]

A. If he grasps it too far, he excludes the sign. If he grasps too near, he cannot get disenchantment (nibbidā) for it, not seeing its intrinsic nature. If he does not see its intrinsic nature, the sign does not arise. Therefore, he grasps from neither too far nor from too near.

Q. What is the purpose of characterizing (upalakkhaṇā) the surrounding signs?

A. It is for non-delusion.[785]

"Non-delusion": When a meditator goes to a secluded place and sees the sign of the foul as if it were [rising up and standing] in front of him, his mind gives rise to fear. The meditator, if the corpse rises up to pursue him, does not rise up [himself too], but considers the surrounding signs that he has already known, recollected, contemplated, retained [in mind] and defined. His attending to the surrounding signs in this way is called "non-delusion."

Q. What is the purpose of grasping the sign in ten kinds of ways?

A. It is for fastening the mind.[786]

Q. What is the purpose of reflecting on the path of going and coming?

---

[780] 隨觀手間脚間孔穴. The characters 手 and 脚 can also mean "hands and feet."

[781] This corresponds to the two methods given at Vism VI.47–48.

[782] 尋. CJKV-English Dictionary: "the distance measured by the two arms extended—eight Chinese feet."

[783] See Vism-mhṭ I 207 and Paṭis-a III 553 in note @@@. The Chinese has 善自安. The characters 自安 are elsewhere used for adhiṭṭhāti, suggesting that the original text probably had the reading svāvatthitaṃ avatthāpeti of Paṭis-a III 553, which the translator interpreted as svādhiṭṭhitaṃ adhiṭṭhāti of A IV.418, etc.

[784] Cf. Vism VI.20–21: So taṃ nimittaṃ suggahitaṃ katvā sūpadhāritaṃ upadhāretvā suvavatthitaṃ vavatthapetvā eko adutiyo gacchati upaṭṭhitāya satiyā asammuṭṭhāya antogatehi indriyehi abahigatena mānasena gatāgatamaggaṃ paccavekkhamāno. So caṅkamantopi tabbhāgiyaññeva caṅkamaṃ adhiṭṭhāti. Nisīdantopi tabbhāgiyaññeva āsanaṃ paññapeti.

[785] Vism VI.21: Samantā nimittupalakkhaṇā kimatthiyā kimānisaṃsāti? Samantā nimittupalakkhaṇā asammohatthā asammohānisaṃsā.

[786] Vism VI.21: Ekādasavidhena nimittaggāho kimatthiyo kimānisaṃsoti? Ekādasavidhena nimittaggāho upanibandhanattho upanibandhanānisaṃso.

A. It is for proceeding along the track.[787] 425b09

"Proceeding along the track": When a meditator enters a secluded place, his mind is sometimes wavering. When, because of not constantly contemplating it, the sign of the foul does not arise, the meditator, composing his whole mind, should reflect[788] on the path of going and coming; should reflect on the place of meditation; should reflect on the surrounding signs; should reflect on the ten ways of grasping the sign. Thus reflecting repeatedly, the meditator again arouses the sign as if he were seeing it with his eyes. This is "proceeding along the track."

When the beginner meditator accomplishes the perception of a treasure[789] regarding this corpse, he rejoices and retains it,in mind. 425b15 Constantly developing it, the hindrances are suspended and the jhāna factors manifest. Secluded from sensual pleasures and unwholesome states, he enters upon the first jhāna which is with thinking and exploring, born of seclusion and with rapture and happiness and [attains fixedness on] the sign of the foul.

Q. Why is only the first jhāna produced through the foul meditation subject and not the other jhānas?

A. Because this meditation subject does not give rise to [just] exploring, and because it is tied to the base (vatthu), thinking and exploring constantly follow [the object].[790] [Only] when [both] thinking and exploring are persistingly present, its sign manifests. [Only] when not separating from [both] thinking and exploring, the mind gains fixedness (appaṇā). Therefore, the first jhāna is produced and not any other. 425b21

Again, it is said that through considering the manifold aspects (ākāra) of colour, shape, etc, of this sign of the foul, it causes the arising [of just the first jhāna].

"Considering the aspects": The object (ārammaṇa) of thinking and exploring can not bear seclusion from the thinking and exploring as the considering of the aspects. Therefore, only the first jhāna is developed and not the other jhānas.

Again, it is said that this sign of the foul is a repulsive (paṭikkūla) object. On a repulsive object one can not raise the mind [to a higher jhāna]. In a foul place, the mind, depending on rapture and happiness, abandons [the hindrances] through the application (payoga) of thinking and exploring. Through the strength of the application of thinking and exploring there is development that depends on malodour and the like. Therefore, only the first jhāna is developed and not any other.

Q. How do rapture and happiness arise on an repulsive object?

A. The repulsive object is not the [direct] cause for the arising of rapture and happiness. Rapture and happiness arise due to well abandoning the heat of the hindrances through developing the mind with facility.

The rest is as was fully taught above. [425c]

The perception of the bloated is finished.

2. Perception of the livid

Q. What is "the livid"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? How is its sign grasped?

A. When dead one, two or three nights, the body becomes the sign of the livid (i.e., black-and-blue).

---

[787] Vism VI.21: Gatāgatamaggapaccavekkhaṇā kimatthiyā kimānisaṃsāti? Gatāgatamaggapaccavekkhaṇā vīthisampaṭipādanatthā vīthisampaṭipādanānisaṃsā.

起次第法 (Vim 425b09), lit. "giving rise to order/process method." uppādeti/pavattati anukkama/kama/prakama dhamma/paṭipadā. This corresponds to vīthi-sampaṭipādana at Vism VI.21, which Ñm translates as "keeping [the mind] on the track." Cf. Vism-mhṭ 201: Vīthisampaṭipādanatthā ti kammaṭṭhānavīthiyā sammadeva paṭipādanatthā. Vism VI.59/p.187: sā kammaṭṭhānavīthiyā sampaṭipādanatthā ti Vism VI.63/p.188: Kammaṭṭhānaṃ purimākāreneva vīthiṃ paṭipajjati.

[788] 觀. Given the "parallel" at Vism VI.63 this could mean paccavekkhati, but it could also mean "define," vavatthapeti, as further above, or anupassati, contemplates, as in the preceding clause.

[789] I.e. the sign arises dependent upon the bloated corpse. Cf. Vism VI.22/p.181: So ānisaṃsadassāvī ratanasaññī hutvā cittīkāraṃ upaṭṭhapetvā sampiyāyamāno tasmiṃ ārammaṇe cittaṃ upanibandhati addhā imāya paṭipadāya jarāmaraṇamhā parimuccissāmī ti. So vivicceva kāmehi … paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharati. Cf. Vism VI.64ff/pp.188–89.

[790] It is hard to make sense of this passage. Vism VI.86 states that, owing to the weakness of the foul object, the force of applied thought is needed to keep the mind unified and that therefore only the first jhāna can be obtained.

Following the arising [of the sign] it is like it is coloured blue[791]—this is the livid.

The awareness of the sign of the livid—this is called "perception of the livid."[792]

The unwavering dwelling of the mind [on the sign] is the practice of it. The retaining [in mind] (upadhāraṇā) of the blue sign is its characteristic. Disenchantment (nibbidā) is its function. Attending to the repulsive (paṭikūla) is its near cause. Its benefits are equal to those of the bloated. The grasping of the sign is as was fully taught above.

The perception of the livid is finished. 425c07

3. Perception of the festering

Q. What is "the festering"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? How is its sign grasped?

A. "Festering": When dead two or three nights, the body festers and pus exudes from it like curdled milk that is poured—this is the festering of the body. The awareness of the sign of the festering—this is called "perception of the festering."[793]

The unwavering dwelling of the mind [on the sign] is the practice of it. The retaining of the festering sign is its characteristic. Disenchantment is its function. Attending to the repulsive is its near cause. Its benefits are equal to those of the bloated. The way of grasping the sign is as was fully taught above.

The perception of the festering is finished.

4. Perception of the chopped off and scattered

Q. What is the "chopped off and scattered"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? How is its sign grasped?

A. "Chopped off and scattered" (vicchiddaka-vikkhittaka)[794] is body parts chopped off by a sword and separated.[795] Again, it is also said that it is a scattered (vikkhittaka)[796] corpse. This is called "chopped off and scattered."

The awareness of the sign of the chopped off and scattered—this is called "perception of the chopped off and scattered."[797]

The unwavering dwelling of the mind [on the sign] is the practice of it. The retaining of the sign of the chopped off and scattered is its characteristic. Disenchantment is its function. Attending to the foul is its near cause. Its benefits are equal to those of the bloated.

Q. How is its sign grasped?

A. He establishes the "slice, slice" perception in two ears or two fingers [or other separated body parts] and establishes the sign of the chopped off and scattered. The sign thus grasped appears with one or two [inches][798] of space intervening. The rest is as was fully taught above.

The perception of the chopped off and scattered is finished. 425c22

5. Perception of the gnawed

Q. What is the meaning of "the gnawed"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? How is its sign grasped?

A. "The gnawed" (vikkhāyitaka): a corpse which crows, jackdaws, brown kites, owls, eagles, vultures,

---

[791] 如青所染色隨生. Lit. "It is like that which is blue coloured/stained-colour following/after birth/arising." This seems to refer to the colour of the grasping sign. Or perhaps—because in same sections in the other asubha perceptions a simile is given after "it is like…"—it refers to an afterbirth (placenta), which has a bluish colour.

[792] Cf. A III 323–4; M I 58, D II 295: Puna ca paraṃ bhikkhave bhikkhu seyyathā pi passeyya sarīraṃ sīvathikāya chaḍḍitaṃ … vinīlakaṃ … so imam eva kāyaṃ upasaṃharati: 'Ayam pi kho kāyo evaṃ-dhammo ….'

[793] Cf. M III 91: … bhikkhu seyyathā pi passeyya sarīraṃ sīvathikāya chaḍḍitaṃ … uddhumātakaṃ vinīlakaṃ vipubbakajātaṃ; so imam eva kāyaṃ upasaṃharati: ….

[794] While the Vism only has vicchiddaka, the Vim has what corresponds to vicchiddaka-vikkhittaka, 斬斫離散.

[795] Or "scattered" 離散.

[796] Or "rejected," 擲.

[797] Cf. S V 131: Vicchiddakasaññā bhikkhave bhāvitā bahulīkatā mahato phāsuvihārāya saṃvattati.

[798] RB notes that the sentence makes little sense in the Chinese text and seems to be based on the partly similar one from the following perception of the dismembered. Cf. Vism VI.72 & 75.

wild boars, dogs, jackals, wolves, tigers or leopards have gnawed—this is called "gnawed."[799] The awareness of the sign of the gnawed—this is "[the perception of] the gnawed."

The unwavering dwelling of the mind [on the sign]—this is called "the practising of it." The retaining of the sign of the gnawed is its characteristic. Disenchantment is its function. Attending to the foul is its near cause. Its benefits are equal to those of the bloated. The rest is as was fully taught above.

The perception of the gnawed is finished.

6. Perception of the scattered

Q. What is the meaning of "the scattered"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? [426a] How is its sign grasped?

A. "The scattered (vikkhittaka): Hands and feet [and other body parts] scattered everywhere—this is called "scattered."[800] The awareness of the sign of the scattered—this is called "perception of the dismembered."

The unwavering dwelling of the mind [on the sign]—this is called "the practising of it." The retaining of the sign of the scattered is its characteristic. Disenchantment is its function. Attending to the foul is its near cause. Its benefits are equal to those of the bloated.

Q. How is its sign grasped? 426a05

A. All the [scattered] limbs are assembled in one place. The limbs are placed with the joints of the limbs about two inches apart from each other. Having placed them thus, establishing the perception of the scattered, one grasps the sign. The rest is as was fully taught above.

The perception of the scattered is finished.

7. Perception of the slain and scattered

Q. What is the meaning of "the slain and scattered"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? How is its sign grasped?

A. "The slain and the scattered" (hatavikkhittaka): the corpses of those slain by stick, sword or arrow scattered everywhere—these are called "slain and scattered." The awareness of the sign of the slain and scattered—this is called "perception of the slain and scattered."

The unwavering dwelling of the mind [on the sign] is the practice of it. The retaining of the sign of the slain and scattered is its characteristic. Disenchantment is its function. Attending to the foul is its near cause. Its benefits are equal to those of the bloated.

Q. How is its sign grasped? A. This is as was fully taught above. 426a13

The perception of the slain and scattered is finished.

8. Perception of the blood-smeared

Q. What is the meaning of "the blood-smeared"? What is practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? How is its sign grasped?

A. "Blood-smeared": a corpse smeared by bleeding [from the wounds of] severed hands, feet and limbs—this is called "the blood-smeared."[801]

The awareness of the sign of the blood-smeared—this is called "perception of the blood-smeared."

The unwavering dwelling of the mind [on the sign] is the practice of it. The retaining of the blood-smeared sign is its characteristic. Disenchantment is its function. Attending to the foul is its near cause. Its benefits are equal to those of the bloated.

Q. How is its sign grasped? A. This was fully taught above.

The perception of the blood-stained is finished.

---

[799] Cf. A III 324, M I 58, D II 295: … kākehi vā khajjamānaṃ kulalehi vā khajjamānaṃ gijjhehi vā khajjamānaṃ supāṇehi vā khajjamānaṃ sigālehi vā khajjamānaṃ vividhehi vā pāṇakajātehi khajjamānaṃ, …

[800] Cf. A III 324; M I 58; D II 296–7: … aṭṭhikāni apagata-sambandhanāni disā-vidisāsu vikkhittāni aññena hatthaṭṭhikaṃ aññena pādaṭṭhikaṃ aññena jaṅghaṭṭhikaṃ aññena ūraṭṭhikaṃ aññena kaṭaṭṭhikaṃ aññena piṭṭhikaṇṭakaṃ aññena sīsakaṭāhaṃ,…

[801] Cf. A III 324; M I 58; D II 296: … sarīraṃ sīvathikāya chaḍḍitaṃ aṭṭhi-saṃkhalikaṃ sa-maṃsa-lohitaṃ nahāru-sambandhaṃ …

9. Perception of the maggot-infested

Q. What is the "maggot-infested"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? How is its sign grasped?

A. "Maggot-infested" (puḷavaka):[802] Many maggots are born and fill that body. The mass of maggots is like a [mass of] pure white pearls—this is called "maggot-infested." 426a22 The awareness of the sign of the maggot-infested—this is called "perception of the maggot-infested."[803]

The unwavering dwelling of the mind [on the sign] is the practice of it. The retaining of the sign of the maggot-infested is its characteristic. Disenchantment is its function. Attending to the foul is its near cause. Its benefits are equal to those of the bloated.

Q. How is its sign grasped? A. This is as was fully taught above.

The perception of the maggot-infested is finished.

10. Perception of the skeleton

Q. What is "skeleton"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? How is its sign grasped? 426a27

"Skeleton" means [bones] hooked, chained and linked together, or bound with flesh, blood, sinews and veins, or without flesh and blood but tied by sinews, or without flesh and blood [and sinews] is called "skeleton."[804] The awareness of the sign of the skeleton—this is called "perception of the skeleton."

The unwavering dwelling of the mind [on the sign] is the practice of it. [426b] The retaining of the sign of the skeleton is its characteristic. Disenchantment is its function. Attending to the foul is its near cause. Its benefits are equal to those of the perception of the bloated.

Q. How is its sign grasped?

A. This is as was fully taught above.

The perception of the skeleton is finished.

Miscellaneous Topics on Foulness

Q. What are the miscellaneous topics on foulness?

A. The beginner meditator who is affected by strong defilements should not grasp the sign in [a body] which is not of the same kind. "Not of the same kind" means: "Like the body of a woman to a man."[805]

Someone with a foul occupation[806] should not attend to a sign of the foul. Why? Because he, owing to the constant observation of [foul] objects, does not become disenchanted [towards them].

In the bodies of animals the sign of the foul does not arise.[807]

If one causes the arising of the [learning] sign in one bone with facility, [then one does so] in the [whole] collection of bones too.[808]

Again, if the sign of the foul arises through colour, one should contemplate by way of the (colour) kasiṇas. If it arises through emptiness,[809] one should contemplate by way of the elements. If [the sign of] the foul arises through the foul, one should meditate on the foul.[810]

Q. Why are there ten foulnesses and neither more nor less? 426b10

---

[802] 虫臭 lit. "maggot-stinking."

[803] A II 17; A V 106, 310: Puḷuvakasaññā. Also S V 131: Puḷavakasaññā bhikkhave bhāvitā bahulīkatā mahato phāsuvihārāya saṃvattati.

[804] Cf. A III 324; M I 58; D II 296: Aṭṭhi-saṃkhalikaṃ apagata-maṃsa-lohitaṃ nahāru-sambandhaṃ…

[805] Vism VI.11: Tattha visabhāgarūpaṃ āpāthamāgacchati, tadeva vā sarīraṃ visabhāgaṃ hoti. Purisassa hi itthisarīraṃ itthiyā ca purisasarīraṃ visabhāgaṃ, …

[806] I.e., an occupation such as a butcher, cemetary worker or surgeon which involves foul objects.

[807] 不起淨想, which does not make sense. The text should read 不起不淨想.

[808] EKS "One causes the arising of the sign in one bone and grasps the sign in the bone with facility." RB: "In the text (Vim 426b9) fn. 3 states that most other editions of the Chinese canon have not 'grasp' but rather 'collection, aggregation,' a rather similar character. This yields the more coherent reading." Cf. Vism VI.80, where it is said that the perception of the skeleton can also be developed on a single bone.

[809] Cf. Vim 433a05. See fn. @@@.

[810] This means that if the colour aspect appears prominently, then one should develop that as a colour kasiṇa. Similarly, if the aspect of an element becomes clear, then one should develop the appropriate element. Cf. Vibh-a 251f.

A. Because the faults of the body are of ten kinds and because there are ten kinds of perception owing to ten kinds of persons.

A person who has greed [for physical shape (saṇṭhāna)][811] should develop the perception of the bloated. A person who has greed for (physical) colour (vaṇṇa) should develop the perception of the livid. A person who has greed for (physical) beauty[812] should develop the perception of the festering. The others should be understood in the same way. 426b13

Again, the sign of the foul is not easy to obtain. Because all signs of the foul overcome greed, whenever a person with a greed temperament obtains its sign, he should grasp it.

Therefore it is said that all the foulnesses become the ten kinds of perceptions of the foul [in accordance with the ten kinds of greed temperament].[813]

Q. Why are these [perceptions] not increased?

A. When someone wishes to become dispassionate towards sense-pleasures,[814] he produces the perception of the intrinsic nature of the body. Why? Because, if he has the perception of the intrinsic nature of the body, in that perception he quickly obtains dispassion and the counterpart sign. If the perception of the foul is increased, the perception of [the intrinsic nature of] the body will be lost. If he loses the perception of [the intrinsic nature of] the body, he will not be able to obtain dispassion quickly. Therefore, he should not increase.

Again, it is also said that if one obtains dispassion [towards sense pleasures] (vītarāga), one may increase it for the sake of developing the exalted mind (mahaggata-citta). As is said in the Abhidhamma: "Secluded from sense-pleasures, etc., he dwells having entered upon the first jhāna on [the sign of] the bloated and there arises an immeasurable object."[815] And as the great Siṅgālapitā said in this verse:

---

[811] The specific object of greed is missing from the Chinese. It has been supplied in brackets from the parallel at Vism VI.85: uddhumātakaṃ sarīrasaṇṭhānavipattippakāsanato saṇṭhānarāgino sappāyaṃ. The sixth benefit of the perception of the bloated given above is the abandoning of the vanity of (a beautiful physical) form (rūpa-mada).

[812] Or "cleanness." The Chinese character 淨 means "purity," "cleanness," "beauty." Its antonym is "foul" 不淨. The Vism parallel states that the perception of festering is suitable for one who is greedy about nice smells of the body. Vism VI.85: Vipubbakaṃ kāyavaṇapaṭibaddhassa duggandhabhāvassa pakāsanato mālāgandhādivasena samuṭṭhāpitasarīragandharāgino sappāyaṃ.

[813] 是故說一切不淨為十種不淨想, lit. "therefore it is said that all foulnesses becomes (/is for) the tenfold perception of the foul."

This and the preceding passage is related to Vism VI.83–85: Etesu hi yattha katthaci adhigatajjhāno suvikkhambhitarāgattā vītarāgo viya nilloluppacāro hoti. Evaṃ santepi yvāyaṃ asubhappabhedo vutto, so sarīrasabhāvappattivasena ca rāgacaritabhedavasena cāti veditabbo. Chavasarīraṃ hi paṭikkūlabhāvaṃ āpajjamānaṃ uddhumātakasabhāvappattaṃ vā siyā, vinīlakādīnaṃ vā aññatarasabhāvappattaṃ. Iti yādisaṃ yādisaṃ sakkā hoti laddhuṃ, tādise tādise uddhumātakapaṭikkūlaṃ vinīlakapaṭikkūlanti evaṃ nimittaṃ gaṇhitabbamevāti sarīrasabhāvappattivasena dasadhā asubhappabhedo vuttoti veditabbo. Visesato cettha uddhumātakaṃ sarīrasaṇṭhānavipattippakāsanato saṇṭhānarāgino sappāyaṃ. Vinīlakaṃ chavirāgavipattippakāsanato sarīravaṇṇarāgino sappāyaṃ. … Aṭṭhikaṃ sarīraṭṭhīnaṃ paṭikkūlabhāvappakāsanato dantasampattirāgino sappāyanti Evaṃ rāgacaritabhedavasenāpi dasadhā asubhappabhedo vuttoti veditabbo.

It is strange that only the first three of the ten types of greed temperament according to the ten types of perception of the foul are given. Probably the Chinese translator abridged this part.

[814] 厭欲 (p0426b17) is at p0438a10 厭欲人 meaning "those without passion towards sense-pleasures" = kāmesu vītarāga, and at 0445b13-14 ("four kinds of wisdom") the Pali parallel suggests that 厭欲 has this same meaning. In the next paragraph (at 426b20) 無欲, "without passion," vītarāga, is used. According to DDB 厭 can correspond to vairāgya.

[815] Dhs 182–184. Katame dhammā kusalā? Yasmiṃ samaye rūpūpapattiyā maggaṃ bhāveti vivicceva kāmehi … paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharati parittaṃ appamāṇārammaṇaṃ … appamāṇaṃ parittārammaṇaṃ … appamāṇaṃ appamāṇārammaṇaṃ pathavīkasiṇaṃ…. Cf. Dhs-a 197 on Dhs 54 (§263–64): Asubhārammaṇassa ca avaḍḍhanīyattā, paritte uddhumātakaṭṭhāne uppannanimittārammaṇaṃ parittārammaṇaṃ, mahante appamāṇārammaṇaṃ veditabbaṃ. Dhs 54: Yasmiṃ samaye rūpūpapattiyā maggaṃ bhāveti vivicceva kāmehi … pe … paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharati uddhumātakasaññāsahagataṃ, … aṭṭhikasaññāsahagataṃ—tasmiṃ samaye phasso hoti… pe …. Ime dhammā kusalā.

An heir of the Buddha,
A bhikkhu in a fearful forest, who Has developed the skeleton-perception,
And pervades this earth, entirely—
I think that this bhikku will,
Quickly abandon sensual greed.[816] 426b25

The ten perceptions of the foul are finished.

Ten Recollections

Recollection of the Buddha

Q. What is "recollection of the Buddha"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. The Buddha is the Blessed One, the "self-become one" (sayambhū), who, without teacher with regards the teachings (dhamma) not heard before, discovered the Truths by himself, and attained omniscience [therein] and [attained] mastery over the powers. This is the meaning of "Buddha." [817]

When one recollects the qualities of the Buddha, the Blessed One, the Rightly Awakened One, the Path, and the Awakening (bodhi), the mindfulness (sati), recollection (anussati), the mindfulness which is [remembering, recalling, retaining,] [426c] holding, not forgetting (asamussana), the mindfulness which is the faculty of mindfulness, the power of mindfulness, and right mindfulness therein—this is called recollection of the Buddha.[818]

The unwavering dwelling of the mind [in the recollection of the Buddha]—this is the practice of it. To cause the arising [of recollection] of the qualities of the Buddha is its characteristic. Reverence is its function. The growth in faith is its near cause.

He who practises the recollection of the Buddha acquires the following eighteen benefits: (1) increase of faith, (2) increase of mindfulness, (3) increase of wisdom, (4) increase of reverence, (5) increase of merit, (6) much gladness, (7) ability to endure hardship, (8) fearlessness, (9) sense of shame towards evil states, (10) always staying with the Teacher, (11) his mind inclines to the plane of Buddhas, (12) he is destined to a good destination (sugati) (13) or is destined to the deathless,[819] and, as (14) the Sutta-netti-pada (?) states:[820] "if a man is keenly recollecting the Buddha, his [body] becomes as worthy of 816 Th 18: Ahū Buddhassa dāyādo bhikkhu Bhesakaḷāvane, kevalaṃ aṭṭhisaññāya aphari pathaviṃ imaṃ. Maññehaṃ kāmarāgaṃ so khippam eva pahīyatīti.

---

817 Nidd I 457, Paṭis I 174: Buddho ti yo so Bhagavā sayambhū anācariyako pubbe ananussutesu dhammesu sāmaṃ saccāni abhisambujjhi, tattha ca sabbaññutaṃ patto, balesu ca vasībhāvaṃ patto. Paṭis-a II 484: Sayambhū ti upadesaṃ vinā sayameva bhūto. Anācariyako ti sayambhūpadassa atthavivaraṇaṃ. Yo hi ācariyaṃ vinā saccāni paṭivijjhati, so sayambhū nāma hoti. Pubbe ananussutesū ti ādi anācariyakabhāvassa atthappakāsanaṃ. Ananussutesū ti ācariyaṃ ananussutesu. Sāmanti sayameva. Abhisambujjhīti bhusaṃ sammā paṭivijjhi. Tattha ca sabbaññutaṃ pāpuṇīti tesu ca saccesu sabbaññubhāvaṃ pāpuṇi. Yathā saccāni paṭivijjhantā sabbaññuno honti, tathā saccānaṃ paṭividdhattā evaṃ vuttaṃ. Sabbaññutaṃ patto ti pi pāṭho. Balesu ca vasībhāvanti dasasu ca tathāgatabalesu issarabhāvaṃ pāpuṇi.

Sayambhū is an epithet of the Buddha; see Paṭis-a II 484, Vin II 28, Ap I 46, Cp 73. Mil 236: Imasmiñca pana, mahārāja, lokuttare dhamme sabbaññutaññāṇappaṭivedhāya natthi tathāgatassa anuttaro anusāsako, sayambhū, mahārāja, tathāgato anācariyako, tasmā kāraṇā tathāgatena bhaṇitaṃ 'na me ācariyo atthi, sadiso me na vijjati. Sadevakasmiṃ lokasmiṃ, natthi me paṭipuggalo'ti. Cf. Bv-a 48. The ten powers are described below.

818 Cf. Nidd I 10: Buddhānussatiyā sato, dhammānussatiyā sato, saṅghānussatiyā sato, sīlānussatiyā sato, cāgānussatiyā sato, devatānussatiyā sato, ānāpānassatiyā sato, maraṇassatiyā sato, kāyagatāsatiyā sato, upasamānussatiyā sato. Yā sati anussati paṭissati sati saraṇatā dhāraṇatā apilāpanatā asammussanatā sati satindriyaṃ satibalaṃ sammāsati satisambojjhaṅgo ekāyanamaggo, ayaṃ vuccati sati. Imāya satiyā upeto hoti samupeto upagato samupagato upapanno samupapanno samannāgato, so vuccati sato. Cf. the parallel definition at 419b14.

819 Only thirteen benefits are given in the Chinese. Vism VII.67 mentions many of the above and more.

820 修多羅涅底里句, sūtra-niè-dǐ-ri-pada = sūtra-netri-pada? Bapat, 1937 p. 62, mentions the Netripadaśāstra of Upagupta referred to in Abhidharmakoṣaśāstra. Cf. note @@ below. It is strange that sūtra, 多羅, is given before the name, as it is normally is given after the name, e.g. at 438a29, 黃衣脩多羅, "Yellow-garment Sūtra." Cf. Nett-a 33 (Be): … ito vinimutto koci nettipadatthā natthīti attho. Evaṃ tettiṃsapadatthāya nettiyā suttassa atthapariyesanāya … Perhaps it refers to the large section on "suttas dealing good impression" (vāsanābhāgiya sutta), i.e. with gaining confidence through worshipping stupas, recollecting the Buddha, etc., in the Nettippakaraṇa (pp.133–43).

reverential salutation as a place with a Buddha image, etc."[821]

Q. What is the procedure?

A. The beginner meditator goes into solitude (rahogata), composes his whole mind and makes it unwavering.[822] With unwavering mind he recollects the Tathāgata [thus]: "The Blessed One is [such because he is] the Worthy One, the Rightly awakened One, one who is endowed with clear-knowledge and conduct, the well-gone one, the knower of the world, the unexcelled one, the leader of men to be tamed, the teacher of gods and humans, the Buddha, the Blessed One."[823] Consequently, he reached perfection (pāramitā, pāragata) in all qualities.[824] 426c11

"Blessed One" (Bhagavā): Because he is respected by the world,[825] he is called "the Blessed One." Again, because he has attained to the True Dhamma (saddhamma), he is called "the Blessed One." Because he is worthy of offerings (pāhuṇeyya, pūjanīya), he is called "the Blessed One." Because he is endowed with good fortune (bhāgyasampanna),[826] he is called "the Blessed One" and because he is the Lord of the Path-Teaching (maggadhamma), he is called "the Blessed One." For these reasons is he called "the Blessed One." 426c15

"Worthy One" (arahaṃ): Because he is [worthy of] receiving offerings, he is called "the worthy one." Because he has slayed the defilement-foes, he is called "the worthy one." Because he has broken the spokes of the wheel of saṃsāra, he is "the worthy one."[827]

"Rightly awakened one" (sammāsambuddho): Because he has rightly understood all things in every way (sabbākārato), he is called "the rightly awakened one."[828] Because he has slayed ignorance, he is called "the rightly awakened one." Because he has by himself awakened to the Supreme Awakening

---

[821] Cf. Vism VII.67/p.214: "And his body, when the recollection of the Buddha's special qualities dwells in it, becomes as worthy of veneration as a shrine room." (Ñāṇamoli's translation, Path of Purification.) Buddhaguṇānussatiyā ajjhāvutthañcassa sarīrampi cetiyagharamiva pūjārahaṃ hoti. Probably the Chinese translator did not understand the Pali. He misunderstood ajjhāvuttha as adhimutta, ajjhosāna, or the like, 欲, correctly rendered assa as "his," 其, and then misunderstood sarīra as referring to a Buddha image.

[822] See 428b07–8. Cf. Vism VII.2/p.198: yoginā patirūpasenāsane rahogatena paṭisallīnena itipi so bhagavā … bhagavato guṇā anussaritabbā. M-a II 243: Sabbacetasā samannāharitvā ti appamattakampi vikkhepaṃ akaronto sakalacittena samannāharitvā. S-a II 197: Sabbacetasā samannāharitvāti cittassa thokampi bahi gantuṃ adento sabbena samannāhāracittena samannāharitvā.

[823] Cf. A I 206: Idha, visākhe, ariyasāvako tathāgataṃ anussarati itipi so bhagavā arahaṃ sammāsambuddho, vijjācaraṇasampanno sugato lokavidū anuttaro purisadammasārathi satthā devamanussānaṃ buddho bhagavā'ti. Tassa tathāgataṃ anussarato cittaṃ pasīdati, pāmojjaṃ uppajjati. Ye cittassa upakkilesā te pahīyanti, … Cf. D III 76; A I 168; Sn 132 Selasutta.

[824] 於是彼者到一切功德彼岸. This means that he has reached the conclusion, the perfection (pāramītā) of the qualities he developed in order to become a Buddha. Cf. 428a06. This sentence is not part of the preceding formula, nor is it explained below, and it seems to be an appendix.

Cf. It-a 149: Atha vā mutto moceyyan-ti-ādinā nayena pavattitassa mahābhinīhārassa sakalassa vā saṃsāradukkhassa sabbaññuguṇānaṃ pāraṃ pariyantaṃ gato ti pāragato. Ap-a 238: Sabbattha sabbesu guṇesu pāramiṃ patto pariyosānaṃ patto … Ap-a 229*: Sabbattha sakalaguṇagaṇe pāramiṃ pariyosānaṃ gato paramaṃ koṭiṃ sampatto*. Cf. S I 195*: Evaṃ sabbaṅgasampannaṃ, muniṃ dukkhassa pāraguṃ; Anekākārasampannaṃ, payirupāsanti gotaman-ti*. S-a I 284: Dukkhassa pāragun-ti dukkhapāraṃ gataṃ. … Evaṃ sabbaṅgasampannan-ti evaṃ sabbaguṇasampannaṃ. Anekākārasampannan-ti anekehi guṇehi samannāgataṃ.

[825] 世稱譽 The Pali parallel has garuñ hi loke bhagavā. RB: "In Chinese Bhagavā is consistently represented by "World-honoured One," 世尊, (actually lokanātha). This could have influenced the Chinese translation: 'Because he gets the praise of the world, he is called the World-honoured One.'"

A-a I 10 Vism-mhṭ I 106f.: Bhagavā ti garu. Garuñ hi loke bhagavā ti vadanti. Ayañ ca sabbaguṇavisiṭṭhatāya sabba-sattānaṃ garu, tasmā bhagavā ti veditabbo. porāṇehi pi vuttaṃ: bhagavā ti vacanaṃ seṭṭhaṃ, bhagavā ti vacanam uttamaṃ. garugāravayutto so, bhagavā tena vuccatī ti. Ud-a 24, It-a I 5f.: Bhagavā ti garu; garuñ hi loke bhagavā ti vadanti. Ayañ ca sabbaguṇavisiṭṭhatāya sabbasattānaṃ garu, tasmā bhagavā ti veditabbo. …

[826] Vism VII.4/p.198, S-a II 20: Bhagavatoti bhāgyasampannassa. Arahatoti rāgādiarīnaṃ hatattā, saṃsāracakkassa vā arānaṃ hatattā, paccayānaṃ vā arahattā arahāti evaṃ guṇato uppannanāmadheyyassa. Sammāsambuddhassāti sammā nayena hetunā sāmaṃ paccattapurisakārena cattāri saccāni buddhassa.

[827] Cf. Vism 198; Sn-a 441: Ārakā hi so sabbakilesehi maggena savāsanānaṃ kilesānaṃ viddhaṃsitaṭṭā ti ārakattā; te ca anena kilesārayo maggena hatā ti arīnaṃ hatattā pi arahaṃ. See Endo page 173 & 355 n.38.

[828] See Endo p. 176–7. Cf. Vism VII.26/Vism 201: Tathāhi esa sabbadhamme sammā sāmañca buddho, … It-a I 139: … sammāsambuddha; yaṃkiñci ñeyyaṃ nāma, tassa sabbassapi sabbākārato aviparītato sayameva abhisambuddhattāti vuttaṃ hoti.

(anuttaraṃ sammāsambodhiṃ abhisambuddho), he is called "the rightly awakened one."[829]

"Endowed with clear-knowledge and conduct" (vijjā-caraṇa-sampanna): "Clear-knowledge" (vijjā) means the three kinds of clear-knowledge, i.e., the clear-knowledge which is the knowledge of past existences (pubbenivāsa-ñāṇa-vijjā), the clear-knowledge which is the knowledge of the passing away and the arising of beings (cutūpapāta-ñāṇa-vijjā) and the clear-knowledge which is the knowledge of the destruction of the taints (āsavakkhaya-ñāṇa-vijjā). The Blessed One removed the ignorance regarding the past[830] with the clear-knowledge which is the knowledge of past existences, the ignorance regarding the future with the clear-knowledge which is the knowledge of the passing away and the arising of beings, and the ignorance regarding the present with clear-knowledge which is the knowledge of the destruction of the taints. 426c22 Due to having removed the ignorance regarding the past, the Blessed One immediately sees, when he recollects, all past states in every way. Having removed the ignorance regarding the future, the Blessed One immediately sees, when he recollects, all future states in every way. Having removed all ignorance regarding the present, the Blessed One immediately sees, when he recollects, all present states in every way.[831]

"Conduct" (caraṇa) means: "possessed of virtue and concentration."

"Virtue" means: "the base (ṭhāna, vatthu) of all wholesome states."

["Concentration"] means "all attainments" (samāpatti). [Hence he is called "endowed with conduct (caraṇa-sampanna)."]

["Endowed with" means "possessed of."]

["Clear-knowledge"] means "all direct knowledges" (abhiññā). [Hence he is called "endowed with clear-knowledge (vijjā-sampanna)."]

Because he is possessed of clear-knowledge and conduct, he is called "endowed with clear-knowledge and conduct."[832]

Herein, through omniscience, through the three clear-knowledges, and through conduct, the Blessed One obtains great compassion. Through benefitting the world, he acquires facility of clear-knowledge.[833]

---

[829] See previous fn.

[830] 過去無明, lit. "past ignorance," so for the next two ignorances.

[831] According to the Pali commentarial tradition the cutūpapāta-ñāṇa-vijjā, as the dibba-cakkhu, applies to both the present and future, while no time is given for the āsavakkhayañāṇa. See A-a IV 90, Vin-a I 169: … ahaṃ pana pubbe-nivutthakkhandhapaṭicchādakaṃ avijjaṇḍakosaṃ bhinditvā paṭhamaṃ tāva pubbenivāsānussatiñāṇavijjāya jāto, tato sattānaṃ cutipaṭisandhipaṭicchādakaṃ avijjaṇḍakosaṃ padāletvā dutiyaṃ dibbacakkhuñāṇavijjāya jāto, puna catusaccapaṭicchādakaṃ avijjaṇḍakosaṃ padāletvā tatiyaṃ āsavānaṃ khayañāṇavijjāya jāto; evaṃ tīhi vijjāhi tikkhattuṃ jāto. Sā ca me jāti ariyā suparisuddhāti idaṃ dassesi. Evaṃ dassento ca pubbenivāsañāṇena atītaṃsañāṇaṃ, dibbacakkhunā paccuppannānāgataṃsañāṇaṃ, āsavakkhayena sakalalokiyalokuttaraguṇanti evaṃ tīhi vijjāhi sabbepi sabbaññuguṇe pakāsetvā attano ariyāya jātiyā jeṭṭhaseṭṭhabhāvaṃ brāhmaṇassa dassesīti. Cf. M-a I 128.

The Chinese uses 智明, ñāṇavijjā, instead of just 明. Ñāṇavijjā is also used in the Pali passage quoted above. Cf. Vjb 53 (Be): Dibbacakkhuñāṇavijjā ti dibbacakkhumeva dassanaṭṭhena ñāṇaṃ, tassa tassa atthassa vindanaṭṭhena vijjā ti attho. Cf. M I 22–4.

[832] 行者戒定足具戒者謂一切善法處故言明行足者謂一切神通處故名明行足具者謂一切定. The Chinese text is quite garbled here. It literally is: "Virtue means the base of all wholesome states, hence, [he] is called knowledge and conduct endowed with [which] means all direct knowledges, hence [he] is called knowledge and conduct endowed with means all attainments/concentration."

The expected explanations of "concentration" and "endowed with" are misplaced, while the six abhiññās should apply to the field of vijjā; see 437a21 and Vism VII.30: Tatra hi vipassanāñāṇena manomayiddhiyā ca saha cha abhiññā pariggahetvā aṭṭha vijjā vuttā. The sentences "Hence, he is called endowed with higher knowledge and conduct" also are out of place in the context of caraṇa. "All attainments," i.e., all the concentration attainments, should be the explanation of "concentration," which is caraṇa. Cf. Vism VII.30: Bhagavā imāhi vijjāhi iminā ca caraṇena samannāgato, tena vuccati vijjācaraṇasampanno ti.

Cf. M I 398: Yampi mahānāma, ariyasāvako sīlasampanno hoti, idampissa hoti caraṇasmiṃ; … indriyesu guttadvāro … bhojane mattaññū hoti … jāgariyaṃ anuyutto … sattahi saddhammehi samannāgato … catunnaṃ jhānānaṃ ābhicetasikānaṃ diṭṭhadhammasukhavihārānaṃ nikāmalābhī hoti akicchalābhī akasiralābhī, idampissa hoti caraṇasmiṃ. Yañca kho, mahānāma, ariyasāvako anekavihitaṃ pubbenivāsaṃ anussarati, seyyathidaṃ – ekampi jātiṃ dvepi jātiyo … pe … iti sākāraṃ sauddesaṃ anekavihitaṃ pubbenivāsaṃ anussarati, idampissa hoti vijjāya; yampi, mahānāma, ariyasāvako dibbena cakkhunā visuddhena atikkantamānusakena satte passati cavamāne upapajjamāne hīne paṇīte suvaṇṇe dubbaṇṇe sugate duggate…pe… yathākammūpage satte pajānāti, idampissa hoti vijjāya. Yampi, mahānāma, ariyasāvako āsavānaṃ khayā anāsavaṃ cetovimuttiṃ paññāvimuttiṃ diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṃ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharati, idampissa hoti vijjāya. Ayaṃ vuccati, mahānāma, ariyasāvako vijjāsampanno itipi caraṇasampanno itipi vijjācaraṇasampanno itipi. Cf. a. D I 100.

[833] This is what the Chinese text has, but I am not sure whether it is in accordance with the original text. In the [427a] Because he knows what is possible [and impossible],[834] when discussion about the Path arises,[835] no one can surpass him, he who has destroyed all defilements. Through pure right conduct, through being endowed with knowledge, he is the eye of the world, benefitting those who were not benefitted.

Because he is endowed with conduct, he is the refuge (paṭisarana, nissaya) of the world, and rescues the fear-stricken. By means of knowledge and freedom (vijjāvimutti), he penetrated the ultimate truth (paramattha). By means of conduct he crossed over [to the further shore], and does good for the world.[836]

In all matters, he is self-become, without a teacher.[837] His conduct is balanced (sama) and he has acquired supreme peace (santi, viveka).

Because of being possessed of knowledge and conduct, the Blessed One accomplished.

This is called "one who is endowed with clear-knowledge and conduct."

"Well-gone (sugata)": Because he has gone (gata) the good way (gati), he is called "well-gone." Because he does not come back (āgacchati) again, and because he has gone to the Deathless element, the Unconditioned (asaṅkhata), Nibbāna, he is called "well-gone."

Again, it is said that because his teachings (dhamma) are without perversion (vipallāsa), he is called "well-gone." Again, it is said that because his teachings are without untruth, he is called "well-gone." And again it is said that because his teachings are without disadvantage, he is called "well-gone." And again it is said that because his teachings are neither too many nor too few, he is called "well-gone." 427a11

"Knower of the world": "World" is of two kinds, i.e., the world of beings and the world of formations.[838] The Blessed One knows the world of beings in every way (sabbathā).

Through the varying desires of beings, through the differences of faculties, through past lives, through the divine eye, through the passing away and arising [of beings], through categorisation (saṅgaha, sannipāta), through achievements, through varying teachabilities, 427a15 through various abilities and inabilities, through various births, through various destinations, through various planes, through various actions, through various defilements, through various results (vipāka), through various kinds of good and evil and through the various kinds of ties and untying [of ties], through such and other ways, the Blessed One knows the world of beings in every way.

Again, it is said "the world of formations": The Blessed One also knows all formations in every way. Through concentration-signs,[839] through specific charactics (salakkhaṇa), through dependent arising, through the wholesome, unwholesome and the functional (kiriyā), through the various aggregates, through the various elements, through the various sense-bases, through clear-knowledge (vijjā), through impermanence, suffering and not-self and through the arisen and the non-arisen (anuppādā), through such and other ways, the Blessed One knows the world of formations in every way."

This called "knower of the world."

"Unexcelled one": The Blessed One is unsurpassed[840]—this is called "the unexcelled one." Again,

---

Visuddhimagga parallel, the Blessed One's possession of clear vision consists in the fulfilment of omniscience while, while his possession of conduct consists in the fulfilment of great compassion. Through omniscience he knows the benefit and non-benefit for all beings, while through great compassion he keeps them away from non-benefit and steers them towards the good. Vism VII.32: Tattha vijjāsampadā bhagavato sabbaññutaṃ pūretvā ṭhitā. Caraṇasampadā mahākāruṇikataṃ. So sabbaññutāya sabbasattānaṃ atthānatthaṃ ñatvā mahākāruṇikatāya anatthaṃ parivajjetvā atthe niyojeti. Yathā taṃ vijjācaraṇasampanno. Vism-mhṭ I 233 (Be): Caraṇadhammapariyāpannattā karuṇābrahmavihārassa, so cettha mahaggatabhāvappattā sādhāraṇabhāvoti āha caraṇasampadā mahākāruṇikataṃ pūretvā ṭhitā ti. Yathā sattānaṃ anatthaṃ parivajjetvā atthe niyojanaṃ paññāya vinā na hoti, evaṃ nesaṃ atthānatthajānanaṃ satthu karuṇāya vinā na hotīti ubhayampi ubhayattha sakiccakameva siyā. … Ettha ca vijjāsampadāya satthu paññāmahattaṃ pakāsitaṃ hoti, caraṇasampadāya karuṇāmahattaṃ. …

[834] 處 = ṭhāṇa, vatthu, āyatana. See 427c04: 知是處非處. Cf. ṭhānakusala, D III 212, Dhs 229.

[835] This is a guess. 以起論道, lit. "through/because of arising discussion path."

[836] 以行成濟渡。作世間義, lit. "through conduct [he] accomplishes crossing over, he does world good/goal (attha)."

[837] 於一切事自然無師. See 426b27 and fn @@Nidd I 457, Paṭis I 174: Buddho ti yo so@@

[838] Satta-loka, saṅkhāra-loka. Cf. Sn-a II 442: Sabbathā pi viditalokattā lokavidū, … sabbathā sattalokaṃ avedi.

[839] 定相, elsewhere in Vim (e.g. 413b20) this corresponds to samādhi-nimitta. According to DDB it can also mean "Settledness, stability, fixity. … The fixed aspect of something. (*sva-bhāva, niyata-lakṣaṇa)." So, in this context, it could mean "fixed characteristics," niyata-lakkhaṇa, although no corresponding term could be traced in Pali commentarial literature.

[840] 世無有上, lit. "world is without having a superior/is unsurpassed," However, the text should rather read 世尊, because he is without an equal, because he is the best, because he is incomparable and others cannot excel him—he is called "the unexcelled one."[841]

"Coach of men to be tamed": There are three kinds of persons: one who hears the Dhamma and promptly realizes it; one who teaches dependent arising; and one who teaches about past existences. 427a25 But the Blessed One, because he coaches [them along] the eightfold path of freedom,[842] disciplines all beings and therefore is called "the coach of men to be tamed."[843]

"Teacher of gods and humans": The Blessed One is able to save gods and humans from the fearful forest of birth, ageing and death. Therefore, he is called "the teacher of divine and human beings."

Again, he teaches the path of vision and contemplation.[844] Therefore, he is called "the teacher of divine and human beings."

Thus, in these ways and means one should recollect the Tathāgata. [427b]

Again, according to a teaching of the predecessor teachers, one practises the recollection of the Blessed One through four ways: through (1) birth-stories (jātaka), (2) through his withdrawal, (3) through his attainment of excellent states, (4) through his benefitting the world.

(1) From the first aspiration until the final goal (pariyosāna), for a very long time, for twenty immeasurable aeons (asaṅkheyyakappa), when born in this world,[845] he observed the faculties of a hundred thousand trillion (ayuta) commoners (puthujjana). At first[846] he compassionated (anukampati) the world thus: "I have attained to freedom; now, I should free these. I have tamed myself; now, I should tame these. I have attained calm; now, I should calm these. I have reached Nibbāna; now, I should cause these also to reach it."[847]

He all fulfilled (paripūreti) giving, virtue, renunciation, patience, truth, resolution, loving-kindness, equanimity, energy and wisdom in order to gain awakening (bodhi).[848]

The Blessed One taught the birth-stories (jātaka) of the time when he was a Bodhisatta.

One should recollect that [born] as a hare he constantly practiced giving (Sasa Jātaka, J 316, Cp 82–3); One should recollect his virtue through the Saṅkhapāla birth-story (J 524, Cp 91); renunciation, through the Mahā-Govinda birth-story (D II 230–251, Cp 76); patience, through the Khanti birth-story (J 313); truth, through the Universal Radiance birth-story;[849] resolution, through the Dumb-Cripple's birth-story (Mūgapakkha, J 538, Cp 96); loving-kindness through the Sakka birth-story (J 31); equanimity, through the Goose-skin birth-story (Lomahaṃsa, Nidāna-kathā p. 10, Cp 102); [energy,][850] through the Chief of Merchants' birth-story (Seṭṭhi, J 4); and [wisdom] through the Deer[851] birth-story (Kuraṅga-miga, J 206?).

One should recollect the following of the advice of the father in the Dīghiti [-Kosala] birth-story (J 371, Vin I 342f.) and one should recollect the reverence of the Six-tusked White Elephant Sage (Chaddanta, J 514).

"Blessed One," instead of just 世, "world," which is out of place here. "Blessed One," as in the other explanations, would be expected here.

[841] Cf. Sn 237: varo varaññū varado varāharo anuttaro … Sn-a I 277: … etehi lokuttaraguṇehi adhikassa kassaci abhāvato anuttaro … anuttaro tattha tattha asadisatāya … Sn-a II 443: Attano pana guṇehi visiṭṭhatarassa abhāvā anuttaro.

[842] 世尊御八解脫道, lit. "path of the eight liberations." At 407a08 and 428a02 八解脫 stands for aṭṭha-vimokkha, the "eight liberations." 解脫道, "path of freedom," is the title of this book, see 399c20, etc.

[843] Cf. Sn-a II 443: Vicitrehi vinayanūpāyehi purisadamme sāretī purisadammasārathi.

[844] 教誡見思惟道, or "he instructs vision of and reflection on the Path." Not elsewhere in Vim.

[845] 生於此中間. It is not clear what 中間, "middle-between/interval" means. I take to be a corruption of 世間, "world."

[846] I.e. after his awakening, sambodhi. 初慈哀世間.

[847] Cf. a. It 123: Danto damayataṃ seṭṭho, santo samayataṃ isi, mutto mocayataṃ aggo, tiṇṇo tārayataṃ varo. b. D III 54–5: Buddho so Bhagavā bodhāya dhammaṃ deseti, danto so Bhagavā damathāya dhammaṃ deseti, santo so Bhagavā samathāya dhammaṃ deseti, tiṇṇo so Bhagavā taraṇāya dhammaṃ deseti, parinibbuto so Bhagavā parinibbānāya dhammaṃ desetīti.

[848] Viriya and paññā are here not in the usual order of the Pali texts, as given below in the discussion of the pāramīs in the section on loving-kindness, see p. @.

[849] 普明, "universal light/radiance" samantapabhāsa, samantāloka. EKS rendered "Mahāsutasoma birth-story (J 537, Cp 101–1) " but there is no indication in the Chinese to support this.

[850] The text has 正真, "right and true" here, which doesn't make sense. This paragraph and also the next are somewhat garbled, containing several variant readings.

[851] The Chinese has 麋, "elk, reindeer," which don't live in India. Perhaps it is a sambar deer.

One should recollect through the birth-story of the cloud-horse (Valāhassa, J 196), who went to the Laṅkā country to save beings. 427b15 One should recollect the birth-story of the deer (Nigrodhamiga, J 12) who forsook his own life and to protect another's life. One should recollect the birth-story of the monkey (Mahākapi, J 407) who caused [other monkeys] to obtain freedom from subjection and great suffering. Also, one should recollected the the birth-story of the monkey (Mahākapi, J 516) who, seeing a man who had fallen into a pit, compassionately pulled him out, and arranged roots and fruits as offerings for him,[852] and when that man, wishing to eat flesh, broke his head, out of compassion he spoke righteous words to him and [pointed out] the right road. The Blessed One is endowed with such kinds of birth-stories.

Thus, through various ways and means one should recollect the qualities of the Blessed One through the birth-stories.

(2) Q. How should one recollect the qualities of the Blessed One through his withdrawal?[853]

A.[854] When he was young the Blessed one abandoned the longing for all abodes. He abandoned the longing for child, wife, parents and friends. Forsaking that which is hard to forsake, 427b22 he lived alone in the wilderness without having any possessions.[855] He aspired after the unconditioned, Nibbāna, peace, cessation. In the country of Magadha he crossed the Nerañjarā river, sat down under the Bodhi tree and defeated the king of death and his demon armies. In the first watch of the night, he remembered his past lives; in the middle watch of the night, he gained the divine eye; and in the last watch of the night, he understood suffering and its cause and realized the deathless element (amata-dhātu).[856] 427b26 Through developing the eight noble path factors,[857] he was able to realize the destruction of the taints and attain Awakening (bodhi). He withdrew himself from the world to dwell in the plane of supreme purity of the destruction of the taints.

Thus through various ways and means one should recollect the qualities of the Blessed One through his withdrawal.

(3) Q. How should one recollect the qualities of Blessed One through the excellent states he attained? [427c]

A. The Blessed One gained freedom, freedom of mind, through being endowed with the ten powers of the Tathāgata, the fourteen kinds of Buddha-knowledge (buddha-ñāṇā) and the eighteen Buddha-qualities (buddha-dhammā); through the various meditation states,[858] he reached the further shore. Thus one should recollect.

Q. What are the ten powers that the Blessed One achieved?

A. The Tathāgata knows according to reality (yathābhūta) what is possible and what is not possible; he knows according to reality the results of wholesome [and unwholesome] actions, in the past, future and present by means of causes (nidāna); he knows according to reality the course leading to every destination; he knows according to reality the world with its many, diverse kinds of dispositions; he knows according to reality the various inclinations of beings; he knows according to reality the various faculties of beings; he knows according to reality the purification and defilement[859] of the jhānas, liberations, concentrations and attainments; knows according to reality his past existences; knows [852] 設樹根菓以為供養, lit. "prepared/arranged/set up tree root fruit as offering." Perhaps it means "prepared the root of a tree (as seat) and fruits as offerings." In the Pali version there is no mention of the monkey offering fruits.

---

[853] 自拔身, "pulls himself out." At b27 拔出自身 is used instead. 拔出 is used in other Chinese translations in the context of pulling out arrows, pulling someone out of the mud, etc., and above at 427b17 it is used when the monkey pulled out the man from the pit.

[854] This paragraph starts with a sentence which might be translated as "The Blessed One is endowed with such kinds of birth-stories." RB suggests that this sentence was misplaced and belongs at the end of the last section, i.e., p0427b20 should read 以慈悲說法語其善道。世尊有如是等本生具足。如是以眾願門。當念世尊本生功德。云何當念-世尊自拔身功德。世尊為年少時斷一切居止著。However, the sentence does not make sense. The corruption 願, "aspirations" instead of the normal (e.g. in 427b28) 行, "ways," in the preceding line (427b19) also suggest that Chinese characters got scrambled at some stage.

[855] 無所有處 normally correspond to ākiñcaññāyatana, but seems out of place here.

[856] M I 248–9: Iti sākāraṃ sauddesaṃ anekavihitaṃ pubbenivāsaṃ anussarāmi. Ayaṃ kho me Aggivessana rattiyā paṭhame yāme paṭhamā vijjā adhigatā, avijjā vihatā vijjā uppannā, tamo vihato āloko uppanno….

[857] Or: "the factors of the noble eightfold path."八正道分, aṭṭha ariya magga aṅga. Cf. 428a01, 457a15.

[858] The characters 禪法, jhāna-dhamma, can be taken as "meditation methods," or "jhāna methods." This appears to refer to the various wholesome states (the bodhipakkhiyā dhammā, etc.) mentioned at the end of this section.

[859] Vuṭṭhāna, "emergence," (see next fn.) is missing from the Chinese.

according to reality the passing away and the arising of beings; knows according to reality the destruction of the taints.[860]

These are the ten powers the Blessed One achieved.

Q. What are the fourteen kinds of Buddha-knowledge that the Blessed One achieved?

A. They are namely, knowledge of suffering; knowledge of suffering's cause; knowledge of suffering's cessation; knowledge of the path [leading to the cessation of suffering]; knowledge of the discrimination of meaning; knowledge of the discrimination of the Dhamma; knowledge of the discrimination of derivation; knowledge of the discrimination of elucidation; knowledge of the causes and consequences leading to the world of gods; humans and others; knowledge of the differences in the faculties of beings; knowledge of the twin miracle; knowledge of the attainment of great compassion; omniscience; and knowledge that is unobstructed.[861]

These are the fourteen kinds of knowledge is the Blessed One achieved. 427c16

Q. What are the eighteen qualities the Blessed One attained?[862]

A. Unobstructed Buddha-knowledge of the past; unobstructed Buddha-knowledge of the future; unobstructed Buddha-knowledge of the present; all bodily actions arise consequent to Buddha-knowledge; all verbal actions arise consequent to Buddha-knowledge; all mental actions arise consequent to Buddha-knowledge—these are the six qualities that the Blessed One achieved.

Non-impairment of the will; non-impairment of energy; non-impairment of mindfulness; non-impairment of concentration; non-impairment of wisdom; non-impairment of freedom—these are the twelve qualities that the Blessed One achieved.

Absence of dubiousness; absence of impetuousness; absence of that which is not clear; absence of hurry; absence of any state that is not known; absence of any equanimity that is not due to reflection.

"Absence of dubiousness": There is no craftiness in his conduct.

"Absence of impetuousness": There is no rashness in his conduct.[863]

"Absence of that which is not clear": There is nothing that his knowledge cannot touch.

"Absence of hurry": There is no hastiness in his conduct.

"Absence of any state that is not known": There is not any mental action that is not recollected with knowledge..

"Absence of equanimity that is not due to reflection": There is no equanimity that is not known.[864]

---

860 Cf. Paṭis II 175–6, M I 70–1, S V 304–6: Ṭhānāṭhāna-, kammavipāka-, nānādhimutti-, nānādhātu-, sabbatthagāmini paṭipadā-, indriyaparopariyatti-, jhānavimokkha-samādhi-samāpatti-saṃkilesa-vodānavuṭṭhāna-, pubbenivāsānussati-, cutūpapāta-, āsavakkhayañāṇa. They are explained in Vibh 335–43.

861 Cf. Paṭis I 3, 133: Dukkhe-, dukkhasamudaye-, dukkhanirodhe-, dukkhanirodhagāminiyā paṭipadāya-, atthapaṭisambhide-, dhammapaṭisambhide-, niruttipaṭisambhide-, paṭibhānapaṭisambhide-, indriya-paropariyatte-, sattānaṃ āsayānusaye-, yamakapāṭihīre-, mahākaruṇā-samāpattiyā-, sabbaññuta-, anāvaraṇañāṇaṃ.

862 The list of the 18 Buddhadhamma, or rather "exclusive qualities or attributes of the Buddha" (āveṇika buddhadhamma) exactly corresponds to that mentioned in the Vibhaṅga Mūlaṭīkā with the variant reading mentioned at the end: Vibh-mṭ 2 (Be): Atītaṃse, anāgataṃse, paccuppannaṃse, buddhassa bhagavato appaṭihataṃ ñāṇaṃ. Sabbaṃ kāyakammaṃ, sabbaṃ vacīkammaṃ, sabbaṃ manokammaṃ ñāṇapubbaṅgamaṃ ñāṇānuparivattaṃ. Natthi chandassa hāni, natthi dhammadesanāya hāni, natthi viriyassa hāni, natthi samādhissa hāni, natthi paññāya hāni, natthi vimuttiyā hāni, natthi davā, natthi ravā, natthi apphuṭaṃ, natthi vegayittataṃ, natthi abyāvaṭamano, natthi appatisaṅkhānupekkhā. … Katthaci (Ce: keci) pana natthi dhammadesanāya hānī ti alikhitvā (Ce: apaṭhitvā) natthi chandassa hāni, natthi vīriyassa, natthi satiyā ti likhanti (Ce: paṭhanti). Cf. D-pṭ 257, Mil 105, 285, Nidd I 178, Paṭis II 195. Lal V 183, 343. b. D-a III 994: Aṭṭhārasa Buddhadhammā nāma: N'atthi Tathāgatassa kāya-duccaritaṃ, n'atthi vacīduccaritaṃ, n'atthi mano-duccaritaṃ: atīte Buddhassa appaṭihataṃ ñāṇaṃ, anāgate …, paccuppanne Buddhassa appaṭihataṃ ñāṇaṃ: sabbaṃ kāya-kammaṃ Buddhassa Bhagavato ñāṇānuparivatti, sabbaṃ vacī-kammaṃ …, sabbaṃ mano-kammaṃ Buddhassa Bhagavato ñāṇānuparivatti: n'atthi chandassa hāni, n'atthi viriyassa hāni, n'atthi satiyā hāni, n'atthi davā, n'atthi ravā, n'atthi khalitaṃ (Be: calitaṃ), n'atthi sahasā, n'atthi avyavaṭo mano, n'atthi akusala-cittan ti.

863 The second quality in the Chinese is literally: "'Absence of deception: he has no hurried movements'" Har Dayal, in The Bodhisattva Doctrine in Buddhist Sanskrit Literature, p. 23, gives the Skt version of the first two qualities as: "He is free from errors and faults. He is not noisy or loquacious. …" Perhaps the Chinese translator understood ravita as rahita, "secretiveness"? Dayal notes that the Tibetan for rava is ca-co-med-pa, "not rash or noisy in speech, free from noise or chatter, without fuss, noiseless, silent, to make no exclamation or noise." See next fn.

864 LC: "The paragraph beginning with 'absence of impetuousness' is probably a rendering of the following commentary cited in Vibh-mṭ and subsequent ṭīkās: Vibh-mṭ 2 (Be): Tattha natthi davā ti khiḍḍādhippāyena kiriyā natthi. Natthi ravā ti sahasā kiriyā natthi. Natthi aphuṭan ti ñāṇena aphusitaṃ natthi. Natthi vegāyitattan ti turitakiriyā natthi. Natthi abyāvaṭamano ti niratthako cittasamudācāro natthi. Natthi appaṭisaṅkhānupekkhā ti aññāṇupekkhā natthi. Note, however, that D-pṭ III 67 (Ee): Tattha natthi davā ti khiḍḍādhippāyena kiriyā natthi. Natthi ravā ti sahasā kiriyā

These are the eighteen qualities that the Blessed One achieved. 427c27–28

Again, the Blessed One reached the further shore with facility through the four confidences,[865] through the four establishings of mindfulness, through the four right efforts, through the four bases of supernormal power, through the five faculties, the five powers, the six kinds of supernormal knowledge, [428a] the seven factors of awakening, through the eight noble path factors, through the eight bases of mastery, through the eight liberations, through the nine successive attainments, through the ten noble abodes (ariyāvāsa), through the ten powers of one who has destroyed the taints,[866] and through various other wholesome states.[867]

Thus through these ways and means one should recollect the qualities of Blessed One by means of the excellent states he attained.

(4) Q. How should one recollect the qualities of the Blesssed one through his benefiting the world?

A. The Blessed one, accomplished in all practices (carita), reached the perfection of all qualities.[868] 0428a06 Out of loving-kindness and compassion for all beings he turned the Wheel of the Dhamma, which the world was incapable of turning. Without making an esoteric and an exoteric [division of doctrine] by way of a closed [fist],[869] he opened the gates of the deathless.[870] He established innumerable gods and humans in the fruits of recluseship.[871] He made innumerable beings acquire and fullfill good qualities, By [performing] the three miracles, namely, the miracle of supernormal power, the miracle of mind reading and the miracle of instruction[872] he aroused faith in people. He defeated all teachers of wrong views and soothsayers. He closed the bad road and opened the good road[873] and made men go to heaven or gain the fruit of freedom. He established his disciples in calm [through teaching] the disciples natthī ti vadanti. Sahasā pana kiriyā davā, aññaṃ karissāmī ti aññassa karaṇaṃ ravā… Vim might to be following the second interpretation of ravā."

---

Vibh-mhṭ "Herein, 'there is no playfulness:' there is no action [done] with the intention of having fun. 'There is no impetuousness:' there is no sudden action. 'There is nothing unclear:' there is nothing which is inaccessible by [his] knowledge. 'There no hurriedness:' there is no hasty action. 'There is no unoccupied mind:' there is no purposeless mental activity. 'There is no equanimity of non-reflection:' there is no equanimity of non-knowledge.'' D-a-pṭ "… Again, sudden action is impetuousness; blundering/faltering is doing one thing while intending to do something else."

Cf. Vin IV 4: Anāpatti davā bhaṇati, ravā bhaṇati. Davā bhaṇati nāma sahasā bhaṇati. Ravā bhaṇati nāma aññaṃ bhaṇissāmī ti aññaṃ bhaṇati.

LC remarks about appaṭisaṅkhānupekkhā: "If one starts from the Sanskrit apratisaṅkhyāyopekā, then this indicates that the Buddha only has upekkhā after having previously applied deep exploration. This is an āveṇika quality of Buddhas—so one which an arhat would not have. Most, if not all Northern abhidharma systems do not acknowledge the existence of ñāṇavippayutta-kiriya-citta ('functional mind dissociated from knowledge'); so this must be something which precedes upekkhā. The upekkhā in question is presumably the brahmavihāra. So apratisaṅkhyāya can either be used non-technically or to refer to advanced insight. The first seems more likely; so I take it as meaning that karuṇā is the normal response of Buddhas to beings but after evaluation they may respond with upekkhā. It is possible that the Pali means the same in the context of this list. At all events, for Pali sources too, this is an āveṇika quality of Buddhas. An arhat would not have akusala-citta; so that cannot be meant here. But he does have ñāṇavippayutta-kiriya-citta. Possibly a Buddha does not have that." Cf. Endo, 2002, p. 121–133.

[865] M I 71: Cattārimāni Sāriputta Tathāgatassa vesārajjāni. Cf. Vism XVII.33/524.

[866] A V 174–76; Paṭis II 173: Dasa, bhante, khīṇāsavassa bhikkhuno balāni, yehi balehi samannāgato khīṇāsavo bhikkhu āsavānaṃ khayaṃ paṭijānāti khīṇā me āsavā ti. Katamāni dasa? Idha, bhante, khīṇāsavassa bhikkhuno aniccato sabbe saṅkhārā yathābhūtaṃ sammappaññāya sudiṭṭhā honti. Yampi, … khīṇā me āsavā ti. … bhikkhuno aṅgārakāsūpamā kāmā yathābhūtaṃ sammappaññāya sudiṭṭhā honti … vivekaninnaṃ cittaṃ hoti vivekapoṇaṃ vivekapabbhāraṃ vivekaṭṭhaṃ nekkhammābhirataṃ byantībhūtaṃ sabbaso āsavaṭṭhāniyehi dhammehi. … bhikkhuno cattāro satipaṭṭhānā bhāvito hoti subhāvito … cattāro sammappadhānā … cattāro iddhipādā … pañcindriyāni… pañca balāni … satta bojjhaṅgā … ariyo aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo bhāvito hoti subhāvito. … Cf. D III 283, [867] A longer list of qualities of the Tathāgata, including the above qualities, is found at D-a III 874.

[868] See note @ Ap-a 238: Sabbattha sabbesu guṇesu pāramiṃ patto pariyosānaṃ patto …@ above.

[869] D II 99, S V 153: Desito, Ānanda, mayā dhammo anantaraṃ abāhiraṃ karitvā. Natthānanda, tathāgatassa dhammesu ācariyamuṭṭhi.

[870] D II 39: Apārutā tesaṃ amatassa dvārā.

[871] D III 227: Cattāri sāmaññaphalāni: sotāpattiphalaṃ, sakadāgāmiphalaṃ, anāgāmiphalaṃ, arahattaphalaṃ.

[872] D I 212 ff.; III 220: Tīṇi pāṭihāriyāni. Iddhi-pāṭihāriyaṃ, ādesanā-pāṭihāriyaṃ, anusāsani-pāṭihāriyaṃ. Ime kho āvuso tena Bhagavatā jānatā passatā … tayo dhammā sammadakkhātā.

[873] M I 118: Iti kho, bhikkhave, vivaṭo mayā khemo maggo sovatthiko pītigamanīyo, pihito kummaggo, ūhato okacaro, nāsitā okacārikā.

the Dhamma.[874] He declared the rules (of discipline), and taught the Pātimokkha. He won the victory, gained the [highest] gain, attained the supreme state of Buddha, and attained sovereignity (issara) over the whole world. All beings venerate and honour him. As far as there are gods and humans, they all listen to him and understand him. Thus the Blessed One, dwelling peacefully and unshakeable, out of loving kindness and compassion benefited the world. 428a16

Through these ways and these means one should recollect the qualities of the Blessed One through his benefiting the world.

When the meditator has recollected the qualities of the Tathāgata through these ways and these means, his mind gets faith. Because of the facility of faith, because of the facility of recollection, his mind is not wavering. When the mind is unwavering, the hindrances are suspended, the jhāna factors manifest and [the mind] becomes concentrated in access-jhāna.[875]

Q. How is it that one who meditates on the Buddha attains to access and not to fixedness (appaṇā)?

A. The qualities of the Buddha, in the highest sense (paramattha), are a subject of profound wisdom. In this subject of profound wisdom, this highest sense object, the meditator cannot attain to fixity because of its subtility and abstruseness.

Again, the meditator has to recollect different qualities. When he recollects different qualities, the mind attends to various objects and therefore cannot attain to fixity. This meditation subject's sign leads to access-concentration. 428a24

Q. If he recollects different qualities, his mind is not unified and this is unsuitable for accomplishing access-jhāna. [Only] if the mind is unified, access-jhāna is established.

A. If he recollects the qualities of the Tathāgata, recollects the Buddha, his mind is unified. So there is no contradiction.

Again, it is said that through the recollection of the Buddha the four jhānas also arise.[876] 428a27

The recollection of the Buddha is finished.

Recollection of the Dhamma

Q. What is "recollection of the Dhamma"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. "The Dhamma" means "Nibbāna" and "the practice leading to Nibbāna."[877]

---

[874] This sentence is obscure. 428a11–12: 已安聲聞住聲聞法, lit: "concentration disciples abide disciples dhamma." Cf. A V 194: Abhiññāya kho ahaṃ, uttiya, sāvakānaṃ dhammaṃ desemi sattānaṃ visuddhiyā sokaparidevānaṃ samatikkamāya dukkhadomanassānaṃ atthaṅgamāya ñāyassa adhigamāya nibbānassa sacchikiriyāyā"ti. D III 132: atthi kho, āvuso, tena bhagavatā … sāvakānaṃ dhammā desitā paññattā yāvajīvaṃ anatikkamanīyā.

[875] This phrase is found at the end of each recollection. Cf. Vism IV.31/Vism 125f.: Tassevaṃ karontassa anukkamena nīvaraṇāni vikkhambhanti, kilesā sannisīdanti, upacārasamādhinā cittaṃ samādhiyati, paṭibhāganimittaṃ uppajjati. … upacārasamādhinā cittaṃ samāhitamevā ti. Duvidho hi samādhi upacārasamādhi ca appanāsamādhi ca. Dvīhākārehi cittaṃ samādhiyati upacārabhūmiyaṃ vā paṭilābhabhūmiyaṃ vā. Tattha upacārabhūmiyaṃ nīvaraṇappahānena cittaṃ samāhitaṃ hoti. Paṭilābhabhūmiyaṃ aṅgapātubhāvena. M-a IV 49: Tassa nīvaraṇā vikkhambhanti, sati santiṭṭhati, upacārena cittaṃ samādhiyati. M-ṭ II 253 (Be): Upacārena samādhiyati upacārajjhānena samādhiyati. Duvidho hi samādhi … aṅgapātubhāvena.

[876] A III 285: Yasmiṃ mahānāma samaye ariyasāvako tathāgataṃ anussarati, nev' assa tasmiṃ samaye rāgapariyuṭṭhitaṃ cittaṃ hoti, na dosapariyuṭṭhitaṃ cittaṃ hoti, na mohapariyuṭṭhitaṃ cittaṃ hoti, ujugatam ev' assa tasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ hoti Tathāgataṃ ārabbha. Ujugatacitto kho pana Mahānāma ariyasāvako labhati atthavedaṃ, labhati dhammavedaṃ, labhati dhammūpasaṃhitaṃ pāmujjaṃ, pamuditassa pīti jāyatī, pītimanassa kāyo passambhati, passaddhakāyo sukhaṃ vediyati, sukhino cittaṃ samādhiyati. (=Pamuditassā ti duvidhena pītipāmujjena pamuditassa; pīti jāyatī ti pañcavidhā pīti nibbattati; kāyo passambhatī ti nāmakāyo ca karajakāyo ca darathapaṭippassadhiyā paṭippassambhati; sukhan ti kāyikacetasikaṃ sukhaṃ; samādhiyatī ti ārammaṇe sammā ṭhapitaṃ hoti. A-a III 337). D I 73: Tass'ime pañca nīvāraṇe pahāya attani samanupassato pāmujjaṃ jāyati, pamuditassa … cittaṃ samādhiyati. So vivicceva kāmehi … paṭhamajjhānaṃ upasampajja viharati.

[877] 修行至泥洹 = nibbānagāminī paṭipadā. Cf. Nidd I 365: Paṭipadaṃ vadehi: … cattāro satipaṭṭhāne cattāro sammappadhāne cattāro iddhipāde pañcindriyāni pañca balāni satta bojjhaṅge ariyaṃ aṭṭhaṅgikaṃ maggaṃ nibbānañca nibbānagāminiñca paṭipadaṃ vadehi. M-a I 130–31: … adhigatamagge sacchikatanirodhe yathānusiṭṭhaṃ paṭipajjamāne ca apāyesu apatamāne dhāretīti dhammo, so atthato ariyamaggo ceva nibbānañca. Vuttañhetaṃ: yāvatā, bhikkhave, dhammā saṅkhatā, ariyo aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo tesaṃ aggamakkhāyati ti vitthāro. Na kevalañca ariyamaggo ceva nibbānañca, apica kho ariyaphalehi saddhiṃ pariyattidhammo pi. Vuttañhetaṃ chattamāṇavakavimāne Rāgavirāgamanejamasokaṃ, dhammam-asaṅkhatamappaṭikūlaṃ … Khp-a 19: maggaphalanibbānāni dhammo ti eke. Bhāvitamaggānaṃ sacchikatanibbānānañca apāyesu apatanabhāvena dhāraṇato paramassāsavidhānato ca maggavirāgā eva imasmiṃ atthe dhammo ti amhākaṃ khanti. Th 1247: Desentaṃ virajaṃ dhammaṃ, nibbānaṃ akutobhayaṃ. Nidd II-a 22: Kittayissāmi te dhamman-ti

Q. What is "Nibbāna"? [428b]

A. The calming of all formations, the relinquishing of all acquisitions, the destruction of craving, fading away, cessation[878]—this is called "Nibbāna."

Q. What is "the practice leading to Nibbāna"?

A. Namely, the four establishings of mindfulness, the four right efforts, the four bases of supernormal power, the five faculties, the five powers, the seven factors of Awakening, and the eight noble path factors—this is called "the practice leading to Nibbāna."

When one recollects the Dhamma, the qualities of renunciation (nekkhamma) and the qualities of the vehicle (yāna), the mindfulness, recollection, [the mindfulness which is remembering, recalling, retaining, holding, not forgetting, the mindfulness which is the faculty of mindfulness, the power of mindfulness,][879] and right mindfulness therein—this is called "recollection of the Dhamma."

The unwavering dwelling of the mind [in this recollection] is the practice of it. To cause the arising [of recollection] of the qualities of the Dhamma is its characteristic. Investigation of the Dhamma (dhammavicaya) is its function. The understanding of the meaning is its near cause. Its benefits are equal to those of the recollection of the Buddha.

Q. What is the procedure?

A. The beginner meditator goes into solitude, sits down and composes his whole mind. With unwavering mind, he recollects thus: "The Dhamma is well-declared by the Blessed One, is realizable, 428b09 immediate,[880] inviting, leading onward, to be known by the wise, each one for himself."[881]

"The Dhamma is well-declared by the Blessed One": It is free from extremes,[882] therefore it is called "well-declared" (svākkhāto). There is no perversion [of meaning][883] in it, therefore it is called "well-declared." There are no faults in it and it is endowed with the three kinds of goodness (kalyāna), therefore it is called "well-declared." It is completely pure, therefore it is called "well-declared." It causes Nibbāna and the practice leading to Nibbāna[884]—therefore it is called "well-declared."

"Realizable" (sandiṭṭhika): One gains the Paths and the Fruits in succession, therefore is called "realizable." It makes one realize Nibbāna and the Paths and the Fruits—therefore it is called "realizable."

"Immediate" (akālika): One does not gain the fruit at a different time[885]—therefore it is called "immediate."

"Inviting (ehi-passika)": One can teach another (saying) "Come to my place and see my good nibbānadhammaṃ nibbānagāminipaṭipadādhammañca te desayissāmi. Nidd II 77 (Be): Dhammamuttaman-ti dhammamuttaṃmaṃ vuccati amataṃ nibbānaṃ. Yo so sabbasaṅkhārasamatho sabbūpadhipaṭinissaggo taṇhakkhayo virāgo nirodho nibbānaṃ. Sn-a I 163: Akkhāti vibhajate idheva dhamman-ti nibbānadhammaṃ akkhāti, attanā paṭividdhattā paresaṃ pākaṭaṃ karoti: idaṃ nibbānan-ti, maggadhammaṃ vibhajati: ime cattāro satipaṭṭhānā … aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo ti. Paṭis II 162: Amatogadhaṃ nibbānaṃ pariyosānaṭṭhena dhammo. Taṃ dhammaṃ pavattetīti – dhammacakkaṃ.

---

[878] M I 167: Adhigato kho myāyaṃ dhammo gambhīro duddaso duranubodho santo paṇīto atakkāvacaro nipuṇo paṇḍitavedanīyo. …. Ālayarāmāya kho pana pajāya ālayaratāya ālayasammuditāya duddasaṃ idaṃ ṭhānaṃ yadidaṃ idappaccayatāpaṭiccasamuppādo. Idampi kho ṭhānaṃ duddasaṃ yadidaṃ sabbasaṅkhārasamatho sabbūpadhipaṭinissaggo taṇhākkhayo virāgo nirodho nibbānaṃ. M I 435: So tehi dhammehi cittaṃ paṭivāpetvā amatāya dhātuyā cittaṃ upasaṃharati etaṃ santaṃ etaṃ paṇītaṃ yadidaṃ sabbasaṅkhārasamatho…

This definition is also given in the 16th step of mindfulness of breathing.

[879] From now on the text abbreviates the definition of sati. The whole definition is given in the explanation of the third jhāna at 419b14 and buddhānussati at 426b29.

[880] 無時節 EKS "not subject to time." Lit. "without occasion, without time-period, without time-interval."

[881] S II 69; A I 207; D III 5: Svākkhāto bhagavatā dhammo sandiṭṭhiko akāliko ehi-passiko opanayiko paccattaṃ veditabbo viññūhīti.

[882] Vin I 10; S V 421: Dve me bhikkhave antā pabbajitena na sevitabbā. Katame dve? Yo cāyaṃ kāmesu kāmasukhallikānuyogo hīno gammo pothujjaniko anariyo anatthasaṃhito. Yo cāyaṃ attakilamathānuyogo dukkho anariyo anatthasaṃhito. Ete te bhikkhave ubho ante anupagamma majjhimā paṭipadā Tathāgatena abhisambuddhā …

Vism VII.745: Ariyamaggo cettha antadvayaṃ anupagamma majjhimā paṭipadābhūtova majjhimā paṭipadā 'ti akkhātattā svākkhāto.

[883] 不異 Vism VII.73: Atthavipallāsābhāvato vā suṭṭhu akkhāto ti svākkhāto.

[884] 令現泥洹及修行至泥洹. Vism VII.74: Lokuttaradhammo pana nibbānānurūpāya paṭipattiyā paṭipadānurūpassa ca nibbānassa akkhātattā svākkhāto. Yathāha supaññattā kho pana tena bhagavatā sāvakānaṃ nibbānagāminī paṭipadā saṃsandati nibbānañca paṭipadā ca. Seyyathāpi nāma gaṅgodakaṃ yamunodakena saṃsandati sameti, evameva supaññattā tena bhagavatā sāvakānaṃ nibbānagāminī paṭipadā saṃsandati nibbānañca paṭipadā cā ti.

[885] Vism VII.81: Na pañcāhasattāhādibhedaṃ kālaṃ khepetvā phalaṃ deti, attano pana pavattisamanantarameva phalado ti vuttaṃ hoti.

Dhamma-nature (sudhammatā)." 428b16—therefore it is called "inviting."

"Leading onward" (opanayika):[886] If one accepts it and complies to it, one will succeed in entering the deathless element—therefore it is called "leading onward." It leads to the fruits of recluseship—therefore it is called that which is "leading onward."

"To be known by the wise, each one for himself": If one accepts it and complies to it and does not accept other teachings, one causes the arising of the knowledge of cessation, the knowledge of non-rearising and the knowledge of freedom[887]—therefore it is called that which is "to be known by the wise, each one for himself." 428b20

Further, the meditator should recollect the Dhamma in other ways thus: "It is the eye (of understanding); it is knowledge; it is the happiness of tranquillity; it is the vehicle[888] and entrance to the deathless;[889] it is leading out (of saṃsāra) (niyyāna, nissaraṇa); it is the means (naya, upāya); it reaches cessation; it reaches the deathless; it is non-regression; it is the deathless, the unconditioned (asaṅkhata), the peaceful, the subtle, it has no sign where the master (of the army of death) can go;[890] it is the [most] excellent knowledge to be known; it is the crossing over to the further shore; it is the place of refuge (saraṇa)."

Thus when the meditator through these ways and means, and through these qualities, recollects the Dhamma, his mind gets faith. Because of this [facility of] faith, [because of this facility of] recollection, his mind becomes unwavering. Because of the mind being unwavering, the hindrances are suspended, the jhāna factors manifest and access-jhāna is established.

The rest is as was fully taught above.

The recollection of the Dhamma is finished.

Recollection of the Saṅgha

Q. What is "recollection of the Saṅgha"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. The Saṅgha is the congregation of the Noble Individuals (ariya-puggala-samūha, ariya-samūha)[891]—this is called "Saṅgha." [428c]

When one recollects the qualities of the practice (paṭipadā) of the Saṅgha,[892] the mindfulness, recollection, [the mindfulness which is remembering, recalling, retaining, holding, not forgetting, the mindfulness which is the faculty of mindfulness, the power of mindfulness,] and right mindfulness therein—this is called "recollection of the Saṅgha."

The unwavering dwelling of the mind in this recollection is the practice of it. To cause the arising [of recollection] of the qualities of the Saṅgha is its characteristic; reverence (gārava) is its function; gladness (pamoda) about the qualities of the Saṅgha is its near cause. Its benefits are equal to those of the recollection of the Buddha.

Q. What is the procedure?

A. The beginner meditator goes into solitude, sits down and composes his whole mind. With unwavering mind, he recollects thus: "the Blessed One's Saṅgha of disciples is practising well, the Blessed One's Saṅgha of disciples is practicing uprightly, the Blessed One's Saṅgha of disciples is practising rightly, the Blessed One's Saṅgha of disciples is practising properly. The Blessed One's Noble Saṅgha, namely, the four pairs [of men] and the eight kinds [of individuals], the Blessed One's Saṅgha of disciples is worthy of hospitality, worthy of offerings, worthy of gifts, worthy of reverential salutation, is [886] 乘相應, lit. yāna-anurūpa/paṭirūpa, etc. "conducive to the vehicle/way,' or yāna-sampayutta/saṃyutta, "connected with the way."

---

[887] D III 214: Vijjā ca vimutti ca. Khayeñāṇaṃ anuppādeñāṇaṃ. D-a 985: Khaye ñāṇan-ti kilesakkhayakare ariyamagge ñāṇaṃ. Anuppāde ñāṇan-ti paṭisandhivasena anuppādabhūte taṃtaṃmaggavajjhakilesānaṃ vā anuppādapariyosāne uppanne ariyaphale ñāṇaṃ.

[888] Cf. S V 5:... ariyassa aṭṭhaṅgikassa maggassa adhivacanaṃ–brahmayānaṃ iti pi, dhammayānaṃ itipi, anuttaro saṅgāmavijayo iti pī ti.

[889] Cf. M I 169: Apārutā tesaṃ amatassa dvārā, ye sotavanto pamuñcantu saddhaṃ; / vihiṃsasaññī paguṇaṃ na bhāsiṃ, dhammaṃ paṇītaṃ manujesu brahme ti.

[890] 非相師所行, i.e. it is beyond the reach of Māra.

[891] A-a II 193: Saṅghan-ti aṭṭhaariyapuggalasamūhaṃ. Sp-ṭ I 13 (Be): Ariyānaṃ saṅgho samūho ti ariyasaṅgho. Ud-a 125: Tassa yathāvuttaguṇassa bhagavato dhammassavanante jātattā sīladiṭṭhisāmaññena saṃhatattā ca sāvakasaṅgho ti laddhanāmo aṭṭhaariyapuggalasamūho. Cf. Th-a 205, It-a 207.

[892] Ud-a 267: suppaṭipanno ti ādinā ariyasaṅghassa ca guṇe anussari. Cf. Paṭis-a I 311.

the unsurpassed field of merit of the world."[893]

Herein, "the Blessed One's Saṅgha of disciples is practising well": It is "practising [well]"[894] because it practises the well taught Dhamma. It is "practising [well]" because it benefits itself and others. 428c10 It is "practising [well]" because it has reached the [right] way (paṭipadā). It is "practising [well]" because it [practises] the way without opposition (apaccanīka-paṭipadā). It is "practising [well]" because it avoids the two extremes and [practices] the middle way.

It is "practicing uprightly" because it has abandoned deceptiveness. It is "practicing uprightly" because it has abandoned bodily and verbal wrong, crookedness and wickedness.

"Is practising rightly": It is practising rightly because it follows the Noble Eightfold Path. Again, "rightness" (ñāya) is an appellation of Nibbāna. It is "practising rightly," because it is practising for the purpose of attaining Nibbāna. It is "practising rightly," because it follows and rightly knows the Four Noble Truths taught by the Buddha.

"Is practising properly: 428c18 It is "practising properly," because it practices the way of propriety of the disciples. When practising thus, it does acts which are proper (sāmīcikamma), it accomplishes great fruit, great benefit. Because of practising thus, it "is practising properly."

"The four pairs [of men] and the eight kinds [of individuals]": Because those who are established in the Path of Stream-entry and those who are established in its Fruit are one pair; because those who are established in the Path of Once-returning and those who are established in its Fruit are one pair; because those who are established in the Path of Non-returning and those who are established in its Fruit are one pair; because those who are established in the Path of Arahantship and those who are established in its Fruit are one pair—they are called "the four pairs [of men]."[895] Because they are established in the Paths and in the Fruits of the Paths (maggaphala), they are called "the four pairs [of men]." 428c23

"The eight kinds [of individuals]": They who practise [on the Path] and [they who are established in] the four Fruits[896]—these are called "the eight kinds of individuals."

"Disciples": Because of accomplishment due to hearing [the Buddha's teachings], they are called "disciples (sāvaka)."

"Saṅgha": The congregation of Noble Ones, which is worthy of hospitality, worthy of offerings, worthy of gifts, worthy of reverential salutation, and is the unsurpassed field of merit of the world.

"Worthy of hospitality ": Worthy of hospitality means fit to receive hospitality.

---

[893] S II 69; A I 208; D III 5: Supaṭipanno Bhagavato sāvaka-saṅgho ujupaṭipanno Bhagavato sāvaka-saṅgho, ñāya-paṭipanno Bhagavato sāvaka-saṅgho, sāmīci-paṭipanno Bhagavato sāvaka-saṅgho, yadidaṃ cattāri purisayugāni aṭṭha-purisa-puggalā, esa Bhagavato sāvaka-saṅgho āhuṇeyyo pāhuṇeyyo dakkhiṇeyyo añjali-karaṇīyo anuttaraṃ puññakkhettaṃ lokassā ti.

[894] Whereas in the preceding 能修行 "well practising," is used, from here onwards until the end of this paragraph 修行隨從, "practising-following" is used instead, which does not make sense. The characters 隨從 are used in the preceding and next paragraphs to render paṭipajjati/paṭipanna, "practising/enter upon a path," alongside 修行, which is normally used for bhāveti, etc. In the Vism the sentence on avoiding the two extremes and following the middle path is part of the explanation of ujupaṭipanno, which is rendered with 軟善, "soft-good," mudu-kusala/su-, which might be a transliteration. This section is somewhat garbled/corrupt.

Vism VII.90–92: Tattha suppaṭipanno ti suṭṭhu paṭipanno, sammāpaṭipadaṃ anivattipaṭipadaṃ anulomapaṭipadaṃ apaccanīkapaṭipadaṃ dhammānudhammapaṭipadaṃ paṭipannoti vuttaṃ hoti. Bhagavato ovādanusāsaniṃ sakkaccaṃ suṇantīti sāvakā. Sāvakānaṃ saṅgho sāvakasaṅgho, sīladiṭṭhisāmaññatāya saṅghātabhāvamāpanno sāvakasamūhoti attho. Yasmā pana sā sammāpaṭipadā uju avaṅkā akuṭilā ajimhā, ariyo ca ñāyo ti pi vuccati, anucchavikattā ca sāmīcītipi saṅkhaṃ gatā. Tasmā tampaṭipanno ariyasaṅgho ujuppaṭipanno ñāyappaṭipanno sāmīcippaṭipannotipi vutto. Ettha ca ye maggaṭṭhā, te sammāpaṭipattisamaṅgitāya suppaṭipannā. Ye phalaṭṭhā, te sammāpaṭipadāya adhigantabbassa adhigatattā atītaṃ paṭipadaṃ sandhāya suppaṭipannāti veditabbā. Apica svākkhāte dhammavinaye yathānusiṭṭhaṃ paṭipannattāpi apaṇṇakapaṭipadaṃ paṭipannattāpi suppaṭipanno. Majjhimāya paṭipadāya antadvayamanupagamma paṭipannattā kāyavacīmanovaṅkakuṭilajimhadosappahānāya paṭipannattā ca ujuppaṭipannattā ca ujuppaṭipanno. Ñāyo vuccati nibbānaṃ. Tadatthāya paṭipannattā ñāyappaṭipanno. Yathā paṭipannā sāmīcippaṭipannārahā honti, tathā paṭipannattā sāmīcippaṭipanno.

[895] Cf. Khp-a 182, Sn-a I 278: Cattāri etāni yugāni hontīti te sabbepi aṭṭha vā aṭṭhasataṃ vāti vitthāravasena uddiṭṭhapuggalā saṅkhepavasena sotāpattimaggaṭṭho phalaṭṭhoti ekaṃ yugaṃ, evaṃ yāva arahattamaggaṭṭho phalaṭṭhoti ekaṃ yuganti cattāri yugāni honti. D-a 1030, M-a II 68:… ujuppaṭipannotiādīnaṃ padānaṃ vasena evarūpaṃ paṭipadaṃ paṭipanno cattāro maggaṭṭhā cattāro phalaṭṭhāti aṭṭhannaṃ puggalānaṃ samūhabhūto saṅgho nāma …

[896] Cf. S I 233, A IV 292: Cattāro ca paṭipannā, cattāro ca phale ṭhitā; Esa saṅgho ujubhūto, … Khp-a 182, Sn-a I 278: Te hi cattāro ca paṭipannā cattāro ca phale ṭhitāti aṭṭha honti. Pug 13: Katamo ca puggalo paṭipannako? Cattāro maggasamaṅgino puggalā paṭipannakā, cattāro phalasamaṅgino puggalā phale ṭhitā.

"Worthy of offerings": In giving to the Saṅgha one accomplishes great fruit. It is fit to receive offerings.

"Worthy of gifts": In giving to the Saṅgha one acquires great reward (vipāka).

"Worthy of reverential salutation": It is fit to receive acts of reverential salutation. Therefore it is called "worthy of reverential salutation."

"Unsurpassed": Because it has the most qualities, it is called "unsurpassed."

"Field of merit of the world": [429a] Because it is the place of merit for [all] beings, it is called the field of merit of the world.

One should recollect the Saṅgha through other ways thus: "The victorious Saṅgha, the true Saṅgha is called 'the cream.' It is endowed with virtue, endowed with concentration, endowed with wisdom, endowed with freedom and endowed with knowledge of freedom."

When the meditator through these ways and means, recollects the qualities of the Saṅgha, his mind gets faith. Because of the [facility of] faith and recollection, his mind is not wavering. When the mind is unwavering, the hindrances are suspended, the jhāna factors manifest and [the mind] becomes concentrated in access-jhāna.

The rest is as was fully taught above.

The recollection of the Saṅgha is finished.

Recollection of Virtue

Q. What is "recollection of virtue"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. When recollects the purity of one's virtue through one's (virtuous) qualities (guṇa), the mindfulness, recollection, [the mindfulness which is remembering, recalling, retaining, holding, not forgetting, the mindfulness which is the faculty of mindfulness, the power of mindfulness,] and right mindfulness therein—this is called "recollection of virtue."

The unwavering dwelling of the mind in the recollection of virtue is the practice of it. To cause the arising [of awareness] of the qualities of virtue is its characteristic. Seeing fear in (any) fault (vajja) is its function. Rejoicing in the happiness of faultlessness (anavajjasukha) is its near cause.

When someone practises the recollection of virtue, there are twelve benefits: (1) One esteems the Teacher; (2) the Dhamma; and (3) the Saṅgha; (4) esteems the training of virtue (sīla-sikkhā); (5) offerings; (6) and heedfulness; (7) one always sees fear the smallest faults;[897] (8) one protects oneself; (9) and others; (10) one is free of fear from this world; (11) one is free of fear from the other world and (12) much rejoices and delights in all virtuous qualities. These are the benefits of the recollection of virtue.

Q. What is the procedure? 429a16

A. The beginner meditator goes into seclusion, sits down, and composes his whole mind. With a mind unwavering, he recollects thus: "My virtues are unbroken, without defect, unspotted, unblemished, liberating, praised by the wise, not held on to, conducive to concentration."[898]

If [virtues are] unbroken, they are without defect. If without defect, they are unspotted. And so on.

Again, when virtues are fully pure and they are the support (patiṭṭhā) of all good states, they are called "unbroken" and "without defect." Because they are praised by the lineage (gotta), they are called "unspotted" and "unblemished." Because they cut off craving, they are called "liberating." Because they delight the Noble Ones and are faultless, they are "praised by the wise." Because they are free from being grasped,[899] they are called "not held on to." Because of being the bases for non-remorse (avippaṭisāra-vatthuka),[900] they are "conducive to concentration."[901] 429a24

---

[897] D I 63: Aṇumattesu vajjesu bhaya-dassāvī.

[898] A III 286: … ariyasāvako attano sīlāni anussarati akhaṇḍāni acchiddāni asabalāni akammāsāni bhujissāni viññūpasaṭṭhāni aparāmaṭṭhāni samādhisaṃvattanikāni. Cf. M I 322.

[899] 離戒盜, lit. "abstain/secluded virtue stealing/theft." This sentence is corrupt.

[900] The text has 不退, which normally corresponds to aparihāna, non-retrogression. However, normally avippaṭisāra, non-remorse, is given as the supportive condition for samādhi, e.g. Paṭis I 46: … Evarūpāni sīlāni cittassa avippaṭisārāya saṃvattanti. The Chinese translator misunderstood avippaṭisāra as apratisāra; see note @@ to 400b13. Cf. Paṭis I 43: Evarūpāni sīlāni khaṇḍāni chiddāni sabalāni kammāsāni na bhujissāni na viññuppasatthāni parāmaṭṭhāni asamādhisaṃvattanikāni na avippaṭisāravatthukāni na pāmojjavatthukāni na pītivatthukāni na passaddhivatthukāni na sukhavatthukāni na samādhivatthukāni … na nibbānāya saṃvattanti.

[901] Cf. Paṭis-a I 216: Sīlānī ti gahaṭṭhasīlāni vā hontu pabbajitasīlāni vā, yesaṃ ādimhi vā ante vā ekaṃ bhinnaṃ,

And in other ways he should practise recollection of virtue thus: "What is called 'virtue' is the happiness of faultlessness. It is the honourable lineage (gotta) . Through wealth it liberates." It is to be fully understood in accordance with the benefits of virtue taught before.[902]

The meditator, through these ways and means, through these qualities, recollects his virtue [and his mind gets faith.] Because of the [facility of] faith and recollection, his mind is not wavering. When the mind is unwavering, the hindrances are suspended, the jhāna factors arise and [the mind] becomes concentrated in access-jhāna.

The rest is as was fully taught above. [429b]

The recollection of virtue is finished.

Recollection of Liberality

Q. What is "recollection of liberality"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. "Liberality" means that for the welfare of others, wishing to benefit others, one gives up one's wealth for other people's needs. Thus is "liberality" to be understood.

When recollecting the giving up [of one's wealth][903] through the recollection of the qualities of liberality, the mindfulness, recollection, [the mindfulness which is remembering, recalling, retaining, holding, not forgetting, the mindfulness which is the faculty of mindfulness, the power of mindfulness,], and right mindfulness therein—this is called "recollection of liberality."

The unwavering dwelling of the mind in this recollection is the practice of it. To cause the arising [of awareness] of the qualities (guṇa) of liberality is its characteristic. Non-hoarding is its function. Non-stinginess (macchara) is its near cause.

A man who practises the recollection of liberality gains ten benefits thus: (1) He gives as he wishes (yathāsukha, yathāsaya?); (2) without stinginess; (3) without greediness; (4) he thinks for the benefit of many people; (5) is dear to others; (6) has no fear in others' company; (6) rejoices much; (7) has a compassionate mind; (8) is destined to a good destination; and (9) is destined to the deathless. 429b08

Q. What is the procedure?

A. The beginner meditator goes into seclusion, sits down, and composes his whole mind. With unwavering mind he recollects his own liberality through things he has given away: "It is a gain for me, it is well gained for me, that in a generation obsessed by the stain of of stinginess, I dwell with a mind free from the stain of stinginess. Always I am open-handed and giving; always I delight in giving, always I provide and distribute."[904]

The meditator, through these ways and means, through these qualities, recollects his liberality and his mind gets faith. Because of the [facility of] faith and recollection, his mind becomes unwavering. Because of the mind being unwavering, the hindrances are suspended, the jhāna factors arise and [the mind] becomes concentrated in access-jhāna.

The rest is as was fully taught above.

The recollection of liberality is finished.

---

tāni pariyante chinnasāṭako viya khaṇḍāni. Yesaṃ vemajjhe ekaṃ bhinnaṃ, tāni majjhe vinividdhasāṭako viya chiddāni. Yesaṃ paṭipāṭiyā dve vā tīṇi vā bhinnāni, tāni piṭṭhiyā vā kucchiyā vā uṭṭhitena dīghavaṭṭādisaṇṭhānena visabhāgavaṇṇena kāḷarattādīnaṃ aññatarasarīravaṇṇā gāvī viya sabalāni. Yesaṃ antarantarā ekekāni bhinnāni, tāni antarantarā visabhāgavaṇṇabinduvicitrā gāvī viya kammāsāni. Avisesena vā sabbānipi sattavidhena methunasaṃyogena kodhūpanāhādīhi ca pāpadhammehi upahatattā khaṇḍāni chiddāni sabalāni kammāsānī ti. Tāniyeva taṇhādāsabyato mocetvā bhujissabhāvākaraṇena na bhujissāni. Buddhādīhi viññūhi na pasatthattā na viññuppasatthāni. Taṇhādiṭṭhīhi parāmaṭṭhattā, kenaci vā "ayaṃ te sīlesu doso"ti parāmaṭṭhuṃ sakkuṇeyyatāya parāmaṭṭhāni. Upacārasamādhiṃ appanāsamādhiṃ vā, atha vā maggasamādhiṃ phalasamādhiṃ vā na saṃvattayantī ti asamādhisaṃvattanikāni. Na samādhisaṃvattanikānī ti pi pāṭho. Keci pana khaṇḍānī ti kusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ appatiṭṭhābhūtattā, chiddānī ti pi evaṃ. Sabalānī ti vivaṇṇakaraṇattā, kammāsānī ti pi evaṃ. Na bhujissānī ti taṇhādāsabyaṃ gatattā. Na viññuppasatthānī ti kusalehi garahitattā. Parāmaṭṭhānī ti taṇhāya gahitattā. Asamādhisaṃvattanikānī ti vippaṭisāravatthubhūtattā ti evamatthaṃ vaṇṇayanti.

[902] I.e. as at 401a08 in the Benefits of Virtue section in Chapter 2,.

[903] Cf. Paṭis I 167: Dānavosaggupaṭṭhānekattaṃ cāgādhimuttānaṃ, Paṭis-a II 473: Dānūpasaggupaṭṭhānekattanti dānavatthusaṅkhātassa dānassa upasaggo vosajjanaṃ dānūpasaggo, dānavatthupariccāgacetanā. … Etena paduddhāravasena cāgānussatisamādhi vutto.

[904] A III 287: … ariyasāvako attano cāgaṃ anussarati lābhā vata me suladdhaṃ vata me, yohaṃ maccheramalapariyuṭṭhitāya pajāya vigatamalamaccherena cetasā agāraṃ ajjhāvasāmi muttacāgo payatapāṇī vossaggarato yācayogo dānasaṃvibhāgarato ti.

Recollection of Gods

Q. What is "recollection of gods"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. With reference to the qualities (guṇa) of those born as gods,[905] one recollects one's own qualities—that recollection, recollection, [the mindfulness which is remembering, recalling, retaining, holding, not forgetting, the mindfulness which is the faculty of mindfulness, the power of mindfulness,] and right recollectedness therein—this is called "recollection of gods."

The unwavering dwelling of the mind in this recollection is the practice of it. To cause the arising [of awareness] of both one's own qualities and the qualities of the gods is its characteristic. The affection for qualities is its function. Faith in the fruit of qualities is its near cause. 429b20

A man who practises the recollection of gods gains eight benefits, namely, (1) he increases five qualities (dhamma), namely, faith, virtue, learning, liberality and wisdom; (2) gods and humans think of him with affection; (3) he has great joy, gladness and exultation in the rewards of the qualities taught; (4) he conducts himself with dignity; (5) he is honoured by gods and humans; (6) by [practising it he also practices] recollection of virtue and recollection of liberality;[906] (7) he is destined to a good destination; and (8) he is destined to the deathless. 429b24

Q. What is the procedure?

A. The beginner meditator goes into solitude, sits down and composes his whole mind. With unwavering mind he recollects gods thus: "There are the Gods of the Four Regents; there are the Gods of the Thirty-three; there are the Yāma Gods; there are the Contented Gods; there are the Gods who Delight in Creation; there are the Gods who Delight in Wielding Power over Others' Creations; there are the Gods of the Retinue of Brahmā and there are gods [higher than that].[907] Those gods, being endowed with such faith, [having passed away] from here, were born there. I too have such faith. Endowed with such virtue, … such learning, … such liberality … such wisdom, those gods [having passed away] from here, were born there. [429c] I too have such wisdom."[908] Thus he should recollect his own and the gods' faith, virtue, learning, liberality and wisdom.

The meditator, through these ways and means, through these qualities, recollects gods and his mind gets faith. Because of the [facility of] faith and recollection, his mind becomes unwavering. Because of the mind being unwavering, the hindrances are suspended, the jhāna factors arise and [the mind] becomes concentrated in access-jhāna.

Q. Why does one recollect the qualities of gods and not the qualities of humans?

A. The qualities of the gods are the most excellent. Being born in the most excellent planes, they have excellent states of mind. In excellent states of mind, practice (bhāvanā) is excellent. Therefore one recollects the qualities of the gods and not the qualities of humans. The rest is as was fully taught above.

The recollection of gods is finished.

Mindfulness of Breathing

Q. What is "mindfulness of breathing (ānāpānasati)"?[909] What is the practising of it? What are its [905] 依生天功德. Cf. Vism VII.1 & 115: devatā sakkhiṭṭhāne ṭhapetvā attano saddhādiguṇārammaṇāya satiyā etamadhivacanaṃ. D-a III 792: yehi guṇehi samannāgatā devatā devattaṃ pattā, tathārūpānaṃ guṇānaṃ attani atthitaṃ paccavekkhantassāpi …

---

[906] The Chinese text is cryptic here, 念戒念施以入其內, lit. "recollection of virtue and recollection of liberality through entering its inside."

[907] The text has 有天常生, lit. "there are gods constantly born." The Pali text, see next fn. has santi devā taduttari.

[908] A III 287; … ariyasāvako devatānussatiṃ bhāveti santi devā Cātummahārājikā, santi devā Tāvatiṃsā, … Tusitā, … Nimmānaratino, … Paranimmitavasavattino, … Brahmakāyikā, santi devā taduttari; yathārūpāya saddhāya samannāgatā. Ito devatā ito cutā tattha uppannā, mayham pi tathārūpā saddhā … sīlaṃ … sutaṃ saṃvijjati; … cāgo … paññā saṃvijjatī ti. Yasmiṃ, mahānāma, samaye ariyasāvako attano ca tāsañca devatānaṃ saddhañca … paññañca anussarati nevassa tasmiṃ samaye rāgapariyuṭṭhitaṃ cittaṃ hoti, … sukhino cittaṃ samādhiyati. Cf. A I 210, A V 331.

[909] The Chinese characters 安般 are a transliteration of ānā-pāna. 念安般, ānāpānasati, thus means "mindfulness of inhalation and exhalation."

Cf. Th-a II 234: Tattha ānanti assāso. Apānanti passāso. Assāsapassāsanimittārammaṇā sati ānāpānasati. Paṭis I 171: Ānanti assāso, no passāso. Apānanti passāso, no assāso. Assāsavasena upaṭṭhānaṃ sati, passāsavasena upaṭṭhānaṃ sati. Paṭis-a II 467: Ānanti abbhantaraṃ pavisanavāto. Apānanti bahinikkhamanavāto. Keci pana vipariyāyena vadanti. Apānañhi apetaṃ ānatoti apānanti vuccati, niddese (=Paṭis) pana nā-kārassa dīghattamajjhupekkhitvā āpānanti. Tasmiṃ ānāpāne characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. Āna is inhaling; apāna is exhaling.[910] That mindfulness (sati), recollection, [the mindfulness which is remembering, recalling, retaining, holding, not forgetting, the mindfulness which is the faculty of mindfulness, the power of mindfulness,] and right mindfulness regarding the sign (nimitta)[911] of the inhaling and exhaling—this is called "mindfulness of breathing" (ānāpānasati).

The unwavering dwelling of the mind [in this mindfulness] is the practice of it. Giving rise to the sign[912] of breathing (ānāpāna, transl.) is its characteristic. Attending to touching (phassa or saṅghāta) [of the inhalations and exhallations] is its function. Elimination of thought (vitakka) is its near cause.

Benefits

Q. What are its benefits?

A. If someone practises mindfulness of breathing, one accomplishes the peaceful, the excellent, the sublime, and the lovely, enjoyable happiness. One causes evil and unwholesome states to disappear and subside whenever they arise.[913] Neither one's body nor his eyes are wearied.[914] One's body and mind do not waver or tremble.[915] It causes to fulfil the four establishings of mindfulness, [which] causes to fulfil the seven awakening factors, [which] causes to fulfil freedom.[916] This has been praised by the Blessed One. This is the dwelling of the Noble Ones, of Brahmā and of the Tathāgata.[917]

Procedure

Q. What is the procedure?

A. The beginner meditator, having gone to a forest, to the foot of a tree or to a solitary place, sits down crosslegged, with the body [held] erect, [with mindfulness] present in front. Mindfully he breathes in; mindfully he breathes out. When he breathes in long, he knows: "I breathe in long." [430a] When he breathes out long, he knows: "I breathe out long." When he breathes in short, he knows: "I breathe in short." When he breathes out short, he knows: "I breathe out short."

He trains,[918] "[Experiencing the whole body]" I breathe in. He trains, "[Experiencing the whole body]" "I breathe out. … ["Calming the bodily formations …] "Experiencing rapture … "Experiencing happiness … "Experiencing the mental formation … "Calming the mental formation … ["Experiencing the mind …] "Gladdening the mind … "Concentrating the mind … "Freeing the mind … "Contemplating impermanence … "Contemplating fading away … "Contemplating cessation … "Contemplating renunciation, … "Contemplating renunciation, I breathe in." He trains, "Contemplating renunciation, I breathe out."[919] sati ānāpānassati, assāsapassāsapariggāhikāya satiyā etaṃ adhivacanaṃ. Vin-a II 408: Assāso-ti bahi nikkhamanavāto. Passāso-ti anto pavisanavāto.

---

[910] The Chinese text literally has "Ān is coming in; pān is going out." 安者入。般者出.

[911] The character 相 can mean both lakkhaṇa and nimitta. In the present context nimitta is more appropriate. Cf. Paṭis-a I 311, Nidd I-a 36: Ānāpāne ārabbha uppannā sati ānāpānasati. Ānāpānanimittārammaṇāya satiyā etaṃ adhivacanaṃ.

Paṭis I 185: … oḷārikānaṃ assāsapassāsānaṃ nimittaṃ suggahitattā sumanasikatattā sūpadhāritattā niruddhepi oḷārike assāsapassāse, atha pacchā sukhumakā assāsapassāsā pavattanti. Sukhumakānaṃ assāsapassāsānaṃ nimittaṃ suggahitattā sumanasikatattā sūpadhāritattā niruddhepi sukhumake assāsapassāse, atha pacchā sukhumakaassāsapassāsānaṃ nimittārammaṇatāpi cittaṃ na vikkhepaṃ gacchati.

[912] The text has "perception," 想, but elsewhere in Vim and in other Chinese texts this is often confused with "sign" 相.

[913] S V 321–22: Ānāpānasati-samādhi bhāvito bahulīkato santo ceva paṇīto ca asecanako ca sukho ca vihāro uppannupanne ca pāpake akusale dhamme ṭhānaso antaradhāpeti vūpasameti.

[914] SN 54:8 gives as a benefit of mindfulness of breathing: "neither the body nor eyes become fatigued" (neva kāyo kilamati na cakkhūni).

[915] S V 316: Ānāpānasatisamādhissa bhikkhave bhāvitattā bahulīkatattā neva kāyassa iñjitattaṃ vā hoti phanditattaṃ vā na cittassa iñjitattaṃ vā hoti phanditattaṃ vā.

[916] M III 82: Ānāpānasati, bhikkhave, bhāvitā bahulīkatā cattāro satipaṭṭhāne paripūreti. Cattāro satipaṭṭhānā bhāvitā bahulīkatā satta bojjhaṅge paripūrenti. Satta bojjhaṅgā bhāvitā bahulīkatā vijjāvimuttiṃ paripūrenti.

[917] S V 326: Ānāpānasatisamādhiṃ sammāvadamāno vadeyya ariyavihāro iti pi brahma-vihāro iti pi tathāgatavihāro iti pī ti.

[918] Read 學, sikkhati, instead of 覺, vitakka. The Chinese text has several omissions in this passage, which might have been abridged in the original, but they can easily be inferred from the following explanations and the Pali parallel.

[919] S V 311–12: Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu araññagato vā rukkhamūlagato vā suññāgāragato vā nisīdati pallaṅkaṃ

Training grounds 1 to 2

Here, "[mindfulness] present in front" means: "mindfulness is fixed at the nose-tip or on the lip"[920] which are the support places (ārammaṇa-ṭhāna) of the in and out breaths.

The meditator, through establishing mindfulness at these places at the nose-tip or on the lip, mindfully observes the touching of the in and out breaths.

Mindfully, he should breathe in; mindfully, he should breathe out: He does not attend to the phases[921] of the breath coming in, and he also does not attend to the phase of the breath going out, rather he mindfully observes and knows the place of touching of the in breaths and the out breaths at the nose-tip or on the lip.

Mindfully, he should breathe in; mindfully, he should breathe out: 430a13 It is as if a man touches wood with a saw blade[922] and does not attend to the perception of the going back and forth of the saw. So too the meditator does not attend to the perception of the breath coming in and going out, but he mindfully observes and knows the place of touching of the in breaths and the out breaths at the nose-tip or on the lip.[923]

Mindfully, he should breathe in; mindfully, he should breathe out: If the meditator attends to the [phases of the] incoming in outgoing breath, his mind wavers inside or outside. If his mind is wavering, his body and mind fatigue, and move and tremble. This is an obstacle (paripantha).[924]

He should not attend to very long or very short breaths. If he attends to very long or very short breaths, his body and mind fatigue and waver and tremble. This is an obstacle.[925] 430a20

ābhujitvā ujuṃ kāyaṃ paṇidhāya parimukhaṃ satiṃ upaṭṭhapetvā. So satova assasati, satova passasati. Dīghaṃ vā assasanto … passasanto dīghaṃ passasāmīti pajānāti; rassaṃ vā assasanto … passasanto rassaṃ passasāmīti pajānāti; sabbakāyappaṭisaṃvedī … passasissāmīti sikkhati; passambhayaṃ kāyasaṅkhāraṃ … pītippaṭisaṃvedī … sukhappaṭisaṃvedī … cittasaṅkhārappaṭisaṃvedī … passambhayaṃ cittasaṅkhāraṃ … cittappaṭisaṃvedī … abhippamodayaṃ cittaṃ … samādahaṃ cittaṃ … vimocayaṃ cittaṃ … aniccānupassī … virāgānupassī … nirodhānupassī … paṭinissaggānupassī passasissāmīti sikkhati.

[920] D-a I 210, A-a III 202; S-a I 238: Parimukhaṃ satiṃ upaṭṭhapetvā ti, kammaṭṭhānābhimukhaṃ satiṃ ṭhapayitvā, mukha-samīpe vā katvā ti attho. Ten' eva Vibhaṅge: ayaṃ sati upaṭṭhitvā hoti supaṭṭhitā nāsik' agge vā mukha-nimitte vā. Tena vuccati parimukhaṃ satiṃ upaṭṭhapetvā ti. [Vibh 252]

[921] I.e. the beginning, middle or end of the breath. 時, kāla, velā, samaya. Cf. Paṭis I 165: Assāsādimajjhapariyosānaṃ satiyā anugacchato ajjhattaṃ vikkhepagatena cittena kāyo pi cittam pi sāraddhā ca honti iñjitā ca phanditā ca, passādimajjhapariyosānaṃ satiyā anugacchato bahiddhā vikkhepagatena cittena kāyo pi … pe… phanditā ca.

[922] The text has 鋸力, "strong blade," which is a copyist's error for 鋸刀, "the blade of a saw" .

[923] Cf. Paṭis I 171: Seyyathā pi rukkho same bhūmibhāge nikkhitto. Tamenaṃ puriso kakacena chindeyya. Rukkhe phuṭṭhakakacadantānaṃ vasena purisassa sati upaṭṭhitā hoti; na āgate vā gate vā kakacadante manasi karoti. Na āgatā vā gatā vā kakacadantā aviditā honti, padhānañca paññāyati, payogañca sādheti. Yathā rukkho same bhūmibhāge nikkhitto. Evaṃ upanibandhanā nimittaṃ. Yathā kakacadantā, evaṃ assāsapassāsā. Yathā rukkhe phuṭṭhakakacadantānaṃ vasena purisassa sati upaṭṭhitā hoti, na āgate vā gate vā kakacadante manasi karoti, na āgatā vā gatā vā kakacadantā aviditā honti, padhānañca paññāyati, payogañca sādheti. Evamevaṃ bhikkhū nāsikagge vā mukhanimitte vā satiṃ upaṭṭhapetvā nisinno hoti, na āgate vā gate vā assāsapassāse manasikaroti na āgatā vā gatā assāsapassāsā aviditā honti, padhānañ ca paññāyati, payogañ ca sādheti, visesaṃ adhigacchati.

[924] Paṭis III.6: Assāsādimajjhapariyosānaṃ satiyā anugacchato ajjhattavikkhepagataṃ cittaṃ samādhissa paripantho. Passāsādimajjhapariyosānaṃ satiyā anugacchato bahiddhāvikkhepagataṃ … Paṭis III.12: Assāsādimajjhapariyosānaṃ satiyā anugacchato ajjhattaṃ vikkhepagatena cittena kāyopi cittampi sāraddhā ca honti iñjitā ca phanditā ca. Passāsādimajjhapariyosānaṃ … Paṭis-a 470: Paṭhamacchakke assāsādimajjhapariyosānanti abbhantarapavisanavātassa nāsikaggaṃ vā mukhanimittaṃ vā ādi, hadayaṃ majjhaṃ, nābhi pariyosānaṃ. Taṃ tassa ādimajjhapariyosānaṃ satiyā anugacchato yogissa ṭhānanānattānugamanena cittaṃ ajjhattaṃ vikkhepaṃ gacchati, taṃ ajjhattavikkhepagataṃ cittaṃ ekatte asaṇṭhahanato samādhissa paripantho. …

[925] Paṭis III.6: Assāsapaṭikaṅkhanā nikanti taṇhācariyā samādhissa paripantho. Passāsapaṭikaṅkhanā …. Assāsenābhitunnassa passāsapaṭilābhe mucchanā samādhissa paripantho. Passāsenābhitunnassa … Paṭis III.12: Assāsapaṭikaṅkhanāya nikantiyā taṇhācariyāya kāyopi cittampi sāraddhā … Passāsapaṭikaṅkhanāya … Assāsenābhitunnassa passāsapaṭilābhe mucchitattā kāyopi … Passāsenābhitunnassa … Paṭis-a 470: Assāsapaṭikaṅkhanā nikantitaṇhācariyāti nāsikāvātāyattamidaṃ kammaṭṭhānanti sallakkhetvā oḷārikoḷārikassa assāsassa patthanāsaṅkhātā nikāmanā eva taṇhāpavatti. Taṇhāpavattiyā sati ekatte asaṇṭhahanato samādhissa paripantho. Passāsapaṭikaṅkhanā nikantīti puna assāsapubbakassa passāsassa patthanāsaṅkhātā nikanti. … Assāsenābhitunnassā ti atidīghaṃ atirassaṃ vā assāsaṃ karontassa assāsamūlakassa kāyacittakilamathassa sabbhāvato tena assāsena viddhassa pīḷitassa. Passāsapaṭilābhe mucchanāti assāsena pīḷitattāyeva passāse assādasaññino passāsaṃ patthayato tasmiṃ passāsapaṭilābhe rajjanā. Passāsamūlakepi eseva nayo.

He should not attend to various signs[926] caused by breathing in and breathing out.[927] If he does so, other mental states will waver. If his mind wavers, his body and mind fatigue, and move and tremble. [This is an obstacle.]

Thus, because the [points of] contact of the incoming breath and the outgoing breath are countless, countless obstacles can arise. He should attend [to one point of touching], so the mind is not wavering.[928]

He should not exert the mind too strenuously or too laxly.[929] If he exerts too laxly, there will be fatigue and torpor. If he exerts too strenuously, he gives rise to restlessness. If accompanied by fatigue and torpor or accompanied by restlessness, his body and mind fatigue, and move and tremble.[930] This is an obstacle.

Arising of the sign

When the meditator purifies the mind of the nine lesser defilements[931] by attending to the in and out breaths, he obtains the arising of the sign.

"The sign": It is like the pleasant touch of spinning silk or spinning cotton wool touching the body or it is like the pleasant touch of a cool breeze touching the body. [932] [430b]

Thus, contemplation of the touching of wind of the in and out breaths at the nose or on the lip gives rise to the sign[933] of wind, which is not is due to shape or colour.[934] This is called "the sign."

If the meditator practises and much practises the sign, he can increase it at the nose-tip, at the glabella, on the forehead or he can establish it in many places.[935] He pervades his head with wind.

---

[926] 種種相, or "manifold/variegated signs."

[927] Paṭis I 164 (III.8–9): Nimittaṃ āvajjato assāse cittaṃ vikampati samādhissa paripantho. … Passāsaṃ āvajjato assāse cittaṃ vikampati …. Atītānudhāvanaṃ cittaṃ vikkhepānupatitaṃ … Anāgatapaṭikaṅkhanaṃ cittaṃ vikampitaṃ … Paṭis I 164 (III.12): Nimittaṃ āvajjato assāse cittaṃ vikampitattā kāyo pi cittam pi sāraddhā … Paṭis-a 155. … nimittan-ti assāsapassāsānaṃ phusanaṭṭhānaṃ. Assāsapassāsā hi dīghanāsikassa nāsāpuṭaṃ ghaṭṭentā pavattanti, rassanāsikassa uttaroṭṭhaṃ. Yadi hi ayaṃ yogī taṃ nimittameva āvajjati, tassa nimittameva āvajjamānassa assāse cittaṃ vikampati, na patiṭṭhāti ti attho. Tassa tasmiṃ citte appatiṭṭhite samādhissa abhāvato taṃ vikampanaṃ samādhissa paripantho. Yadi assāsameva āvajjati, tassa cittaṃ abbhantarapavesanavasena vikkhepaṃ āvahati, nimitte na patiṭṭhāti, tasmā nimitte vikampati. … Paṭis-a 156. … atītānudhāvanaṃ cittanti phusanaṭṭhānaṃ atikkamitvā gataṃ assāsaṃ vā passāsaṃ vā anugacchamānaṃ cittaṃ. Vikkhepānupatitan ti vikkhepena anugataṃ, vikkhepaṃ vā sayaṃ anupatitaṃ anugataṃ. Anāgatapaṭikaṅkhanaṃ cittanti phusanaṭṭhānaṃ appattaṃ assāsaṃ vā passāsaṃ vā paṭikaṅkhamānaṃ paccāsīsamānaṃ cittaṃ.

[928] This paragraph, which is either corrupt or a Chinese mistranslation, could be covering the two missing obstructions/lesser defilements which are required to give the nine upakkilesa mentioned below. The variant reading in the Taishō text has been translated here, instead of the text's "negligence", 懈: "In this way limitless obstacles will arise because of limitless negligence regarding the incoming and outgoing breath."

[929] Cf. A III 375, Vin I 183: accāraddhavīriyaṃ uddhaccāya saṃvattati, atilīnavīriyaṃ kosajjāya saṃvattati.

[930] Paṭis I 165 (III.10): Līnaṃ cittaṃ kosajjānupatitaṃ samādhissa paripantho. Atipaggahitaṃ cittaṃ uddhaccānupatitaṃ samādhissa paripantho. Paṭis I 165 (III.12): Līnena cittena kosajjānupatitena kāyo pi cittam pi sāraddhā ca honti iñjitā ca phanditā ca. Atipaggahitena … Paṭis-a 471: Līnan ti atisithilavīriyatādīhi saṅkucitaṃ. Kosajjānupatitan ti kusītabhāvānugataṃ. Atipaggahitan ti accāraddhavīriyatādīhi atiussāhitaṃ. Uddhaccānupatitan-ti vikkhepānugataṃ.

[931] The Chinese characters 九小煩惱 correspond to nava upakkilesa. The nine could be the obstacles mentioned in the preceding section, which appears to be partly corrupt in the Chinese. The more extensive list in Paṭis I 116 (III.6–14) gives 18 obstacles, which are also said to be upakkilesa.

[932] Vism VIII.214: Api ca kho kassaci sukhasamphassaṃ uppādayamāno, tūlapicu viya, kappāsapicu viya, vātadhārā viya ca upaṭṭhātī ti ekacce āhu. Ayaṃ pana aṭṭhakathāsu vinicchayo:…

Cf. D III 175: Tassa kho panānanda, itthiratanassa evarūpo kāyasamphasso hoti, seyyathāpi nāma tūlapicuno vā kappāsapicuno vā. S V 444: Seyyathāpi, bhikkhave, tūlapicu vā kappāsapicu vā lahuko vātūpādāno same bhūmibhāge nikkhitto…

[933] The text has "perception," saññā, not 想 "sign," 相. Because of their similarity the two characters are often confused. Vāyosaññā is not used in the Pali or in the Āgamas in this context. In the Vimuttimaggga it is mentioned in the description of the wind kasiṇa.

[934] P0430b02 形色, saṇṭhāna-rūpa/vaṇṇa. Cf. the 4 ways of grasping the sign of the 32 parts of the body at p0432c28–29. Cf. Vism VIII.221: Athānena taṃ nimittaṃ neva vaṇṇato manasikātabbaṃ, na lakkhaṇato paccavekkhitabbaṃ.

[935] Cf. Manual of a Mystic (transl. of Bambaragalē Vidaraśanā Bhāvanā Pota,) P.T.S., p. 8 ff. and Amatākāravaṇṇanā. Both manuals are apparently based on Thai meditation manuals brought to Sri Lanka in the 18th century. A similar method was taught by the Thai meditation master Ajahn Lee Dhammadharo; see Keeping the

Through increasing in this way he can pervade his whole body with the happiness of tranquillity (passaddhi-sukha). This is called "fulfilment."[936]

Again, there is a meditator who sees deviant signs[937] from the beginning such as smoke, mist, dust, gold sand, or [he experiences] the pricking of a needle or an ant's bite, or he sees various colours/forms[938] (vaṇṇa, rūpa). If the meditator's mind does not clearly comprehend these deviant signs, his mind will give rise to deviant perceptions,[939] and there is distortion [of perception] (vipallāsa, vipariyāya), not the perception of breathing.

If [however] the meditator clearly comprehends, he does not attend to strange signs. When mindfully breathing in and mindfully breathing out, he prevents the arising of other perceptions. If he attends thus, deviant signs promptly cease, he acquires the subtle sign[940] and his mind becomes diligent (appamāda).

When mindfully breathing in and mindfully breathing out, there is facility in the sign.[941] Due to facility in the sign, desire (chanda) to practise (bhāvana) arises. Due to facility of desire, when mindfully breathing in and mindfully breathing out, rapture arises. Due to the facility of rapture, and due to the facility of desire, when mindfully breathing in and mindfully breathing out, equanimity (upekkhā) arises. Due the facility of equanimity, due to the facility of rapture, due to the facility of desire, when mindfully breathing in and mindfully breathing out, his mind is not wavering. When his mind is not wavering, the [936] Vism III.113 states that the ānāpānanimitta should not be increased because only a small amount of wind can be increased. The Vism-mhṭ comments that because of the limited amount of space in location of the nimitta at the nose or mouth, etc, there is no good characteristic for developing the wind-kasiṇa. Thus the Vism-mhṭ implies that the ānāpānanimitta is identical with the vāyokasiṇa. This is supported by the Mohavicchedanī, which states that the jhāna based on ānāpānasati is to be included in the wind-kasiṇa. According to Dhs-a, the wind-kasiṇa is grasped, the jhāna based on ānāpānasati is grasped. This suggests that the Pali commentarial tradition regarded ānāpānasati-samādhi to be a kind of wind-kasiṇa practice. At Vism III.119 it is said that ānāpānasati is to be apprehended by touch and the wind kasiṇa by sight and touch. In the preceding paragraph (in Vim) it is said that the ānāpānasati sign is caused by the touching of wind, not by shape or colour.

---

Breath in Mind, Bangkok, 1993.

Vism III.113: Tesu hi ānāpānanimittaṃ tāva vaḍḍhayato vātarāsiyeva vaḍḍhati, okāsena ca paricchinnaṃ. Iti sādīnavattā okāsena ca paricchinnattā na vaḍḍhetabbaṃ. Vism-mhṭ I 131 (Be): Picupiṇḍādivasena upaṭṭhahantam pi nimittaṃ vātasaṅghātasannissayan-ti katvā vuttaṃ vātarāsiyeva vaḍḍhatī ti. Okāsena paricchinnan-ti nāsikaggamukhanimittādi-okāsena saparicchedaṃ. Vāyokasiṇavaḍḍhane viya na ettha koci guṇo, kevalaṃ vātavaḍḍhanamevā ti āha sādīnavattā ti. Moh 40 (Be): Ānāpānajjhānassāpi panettha vāyokasiṇe saṅgaho daṭṭhabbo ti. Dhs-a 200: Vāyokasiṇe pana gahite ānāpānajjhānaṃ gahitameva.

[937] Or "deviant signs," (異相) i.e. signs other than the breathing sign. The character 異 means "different, alien, strange, peculiar, heretical."

[938] 色 = rūpa/vaṇṇa, (visual) form or colour. Both meanings could be intended here, but see note @@ "Cf. the 4 ways of grasping the sign of the 32 parts of the body at p0432c28–29:@@ above.

[939] The Chinese text has "perceptions," 想, saññā, here and in the next four occurrences, see note @@ above..

[940] Cf. Paṭis I 185: Sukhumakānaṃ assāsapassāsānaṃ nimittaṃ suggahitattā sumanasikatattā sūpadhāritattā niruddhepi sukhumake assāsapassāse, atha pacchā sukhumakaassāsapassāsānaṃ nimittārammaṇatāpi cittaṃ na vikkhepaṃ gacchati.

Dr. Chu's tentative rendering: "It is called nimitta because it is like a cotton fiber or the smooth [surface of a] shell touching the body, giving rise to pleasant sensations. It is like a wisp of cool wind touching the body, giving rise to pleasant sensations. It is the perceiving of the inhalations and exhalations as wind touching [the contact point]—either at the nostrils or on the lips—giving the impression of wind that is not born of visual cues. This is called nimitta. Suppose the meditator practices extensively, the nimitta will grow from the tip of the nose, maybe to the point between eyebrows, maybe to the point of the forehead, to the point of encompassing many locations [in the head], and to the point of becoming the air that fills the entire head. As the nimitta grows, tranquility and pleasure pervade the whole body. This is called the completion [of the practice].

Furthermore, there are meditators who may initially see deviant nimittas—those like [wisps of] smoke or fog, and those like dust or golden powders. They feel like the prickling of needles, or the gnawing of ants, and may be accompanied by visual manifestations. Suppose the meditator's mind is not clearly comprehending and mindful, he may give rise to deviant perceptions of those deviant nimittas, and he no longer develops the [proper] perception of the breath. But suppose the meditator's mind is clearly comprehending and mindful, and he does not give rise to deviant perceptions of those deviant nimittas. [Instead,] he develops mindfulness on the inhalations and exhalations of the present moment, abandoning all other kinds of perceptions. Should he develop his attention in such a manner, those deviant nimittas would fade away, and the meditator would be able to acquire sublime nimittas."

[941] 自在 elsewhere in the Vim has the meaning of being "at ease," or "facility," perhaps corresponding to phāsu. However, here it might have the meaning of being "unrestricted," "free," perhaps even aparitta or appamāṇa.

hindrances are suspended and the jhāna factors manifest.[942] Thus this meditator, having attained tranquillity (upasama), attains the concentration of the four jhānas,[943] as was fully taught above.

Four ways of practising

Again, the ancient teachers 430b17 taught four ways of practising mindfulness of breathing, namely, counting (gaṇana), following (anubandhana), establishing (ṭhapana) and oberving (sallakkhaṇa).[944]

Q. What is "counting"?

A. The beginner meditator counts the breaths from one to ten; beginning with the outgoing breath and ending with the incoming breath. He does not count beyond ten. Again, it is said that he can count from one to five, but not beyond five.

He should not miss [any breath]. 430b20 When [he misses], he should count [the next breaths] until the end of that count. Thus he mindfully dwells on the object of the in and out breaths—this is called "counting."

"Following": Having attended to counting, he uninterruptedly follows the in and out breaths with mindfulness. This is called "following."

"Establishing": He makes mindfulness stay at the sign[945] of wind at the place of the touching of the breaths at the nose-tip or on the lip. This is called "establishing."

"Observing": When there is facility in touching,[946] he should observe the sign, and he should observe the states of rapture, happiness and so on, which arise thereon. This is called "observing."

"Counting" is for the elimination of thought and causes one to attain release from thought.

"Following" is for the elimination of coarse thought and causes uninterupted mindfulness of breathing.

"Establishing" is for cutting off wavering and making a steady sign.[947]

---

[942] Cf. Paṭis I 177: Chandavasena tato sukhumataraṃ dīghaṃ assāsapassāsaṃ addhānasaṅkhāte assasato pi passasato pi pāmojjaṃ uppajjati. Pāmojjavasena tato sukhumataraṃ dīghaṃ assāsaṃ addhānasaṅkhāte assasati, … passāsaṃ … passasati, … assāsapassāsaṃ addhānasaṅkhāte assasati pi passasati pi. Pāmojjavasena … assasatopi passasatopi dīghaṃ assāsapassāsā pi cittaṃ vivattati, upekkhā saṇṭhāti. Imehi navahākārehi dīghaṃ assāsapassāsā kāyo. Paṭis-a II 509: Chando uppajjatīti bhāvanābhivuddhiyā bhiyyobhāvāya chando jāyati. Sukhumataranti passambhanasabbhāvato vuttaṃ. Pāmojjaṃ uppajjatīti bhāvanāpāripūriyā pīti jāyati. Assāsapassāsāpi cittaṃ vivattatīti assāsapassāse nissāya paṭibhāganimitte uppajjante pakatiassāsapassāsato cittaṃ nivattati. Upekkhā saṇṭhātīti tasmiṃ paṭibhāganimitte upacārappanāsamādhipattiyā puna samādhāne byāpārābhāvato tatramajjhattupekkhā saṇṭhāti nāma.

[943] 此坐禪人已得寂滅勝四禪定. It is unclear whether 四禪 stands for the four jhānas, i.e. in plural, or the fourth jhāna in singular (as, e.g., in 408a02). Because the meditator has not yet attained the jhānas in the preceding exposition, which ends with the jhāna factors, it seems more likely that this sentence refers to the four jhānas in plural.

[944] 隨逐, anubandhana, lit. "follow in pursuit." Vism VIII.189/p. 278: Tatrāyaṃ manasikāravidhi: Gaṇanā, anubandhanā, phusanā, ṭhapanā sallakkhaṇā, vivaṭṭana, pārisuddhi, tesañca paṭipassanā ti. Tattha gaṇanā ti gaṇanāyeva. Anubandhanā ti anuvahanā. Phusanā ti phuṭṭhaṭṭhānaṃ. Ṭhapanā ti appaṇā. Sallakkhaṇā ti vipassanā. Vivaṭṭanā ti maggo. Pārisuddhī ti phalaṃ. Tesañca paṭipassanā ti paccavekkhaṇā.

It is noteworthy that Buddhaghosa Thera does not ascribe this teaching to ekacce as he usually does; nor does he go to the Aṭṭhakathā for authority.

In the Abhidharmakośa-bhāṣya, p. 339–40, there are six ways: (1) counting (gaṇanā), i.e. from one to ten without failure; (2) pursuing (anugama), the intent following the inhalation as it enters the body, moves through the throat, heart, navel, kidneys, thighs, to the toes, and then the reverse for the exhalation until it leaves the body; then (3) fixing (sthāpanā), focussing one's attention on a part of the body from the tip of the nose to the big toe. In the step of (4) observation (upalakṣanā), one observes that the breath as well as form (rūpa), mind (citta), and mental functions (caitta) are dependent upon the four great elements (mahābhūta), and thus analyzes the five aggregates (khandhā). The next step (5) turning away (vivarta) consists of changing the object of observation from the breath to the roots of wholesomeness (kuśalamūla) and ultimately to the highest mundane dharma (aggradharma). The final step is (6) purification (pariśuddhi) marking the entering the stage of realization of the way (darśanamārga) i.e. stream-entry. See "Mindfulness of Breathing in the Dhyāna Sūtras" by Florin Deleanu, in Transactions of the International Conference of Orientalists in Japan, No. 37 (1992), pp. 42–57.

[945] Again, due to the similarity of the Chinese characters this could be "perception," saññā, i.e. "wind-perception," instead of "wind-sign."

[946] The text has 觸 "touching," not "establishing." The third method given in Vism VIII.189 (see two notes above) is phusanā, "touching," which is explained later on (Vism VIII.198) as a method that can not be separated from the method of establishing, ṭhapana.

[947] EKS "steady perception." The variant reading 相 is more appropriate than 想, with which it is often confused. The same applies for the next method, where EKS also had "perception" instead of "sign."

"Observing" is for retaining the sign in order to know the supreme Dhamma (aggadhamma).[948]

Training grounds 2 to 16

(2)"When he breathes in long … when he breathes out short, he knows,[949] 'I breathe out short,'" [430c] Skillfully, he exceedingly [attends] to that characteristic (sabhāva) [as], "This is 'long,'" [so that] the characteristic [leads to] the manifestation of wisdom knowledge, not to the manifestation of delusion in regard to the object.

Q. What is "non-delusion (asammoha) in regard to the object" (ārammaṇa)?

A. When the beginner meditator gains tranquillity (passaddhi) of body and mind through dwelling in mindfulness of breathing, his breaths become subtle. Because of the subtlety of the breaths, they can't be taken hold of. If at that time the meditator's breathing is long, he contemplates that it is long, and so on, until[950] the sign arises and stays. When the sign has arisen and stays, he should attend by way of its characteristics (sabhāva). This is "non-delusion."

Again, his mind should notice that the breath is sometimes long and sometimes short. Thus he should practice. 430c08

And again, through the object [of breaths] the meditator causes the arising of a clearly demarcated sign. Thus he should practice.

(3) "He trains, 'Experiencing the whole body, I [shall] breathe in …'": Through two ways he experiences the whole body: through non-delusion and through the object.

Q. How does he experience the whole body through non-delusion?

A. If the meditator [practises the] concentration of mindfulness of breathing, the pervasion (phusana) with rapture and happiness of the body and mind becomes complete.[951] Owing to the pervasion with rapture and happiness, the whole body constitutes non-delusion.

Q. How does he experience the whole body through the object?

A. The in and out breaths are called "the material body (rūpakāya) established in one place."[952] 430c14 The object of breathing, the mind and the mental properties, and the name body (nāmakāya)—these are called "material body and name body."[953] This is the meaning of "whole body." The meditator

---

[948] Ways 2, 3, and 5 are translated in Leo M. Pruden's English transl. from de Louis de La Vallée Poussin French transl. of the Abhidharmakośa-bhāṣya, Vol III, pp. 922–923 as: "2. Following. Without contention, follow the progress of the air which enters and leaves until it goes into two senses: does the air breathed in occupy all of the body or does it go into only one part of the body? The ascetic follows the air breathed in into the throat, the heart, the navel, the kidneys, the thigh, and so on to the two feet; the ascetic follows the air breathed out to a distance of a hand and a cubit. … 3. Fixing.* Fix the attention on the tip of the nose, or between the eyebrows, or in another area all the way down to the toes; fix the mind; see the breath held in the body like the thread of a pearl necklace; state that it is cold or hot, unfavorable or favorable. 4. … 5. Modifying. The ascetic modifies the mind that had the air as its object and now directs his mind to better and better dharmas up to and including the transworldly dharmas." (* See Vibhāṣā, TD 27, p. 135a15. Paramārtha: Either between the eyebrows, or on the tip of the nose, in the desired place and as far as the toes, hold mindfulness in the center like a thread which holds pearls together. Tibetan: Like a manisūtra placed at the end of the nose to the tips of the toes, ascertain if the breaths are favorable or unfavorable, cold or hot.)

[949] Read 知之, pajānati, instead of 學之, sikkhati.

[950] Vim 430c05-06. 乃至, also meaning "from … to," corresponds to the Pāli word peyāla or yāva … tāva, and indicates that there is an abbreviation here, which runs from the "short" counterpart of the long breath to the arising of the sign, which have been discussed earlier in this section.

[951] Cf. Th-a I 222: Phuṭṭho ca pītisukhena vipulenāti sabbatthakameva pharantena mahatā uḷārena pītisahitena sukhena phuṭṭho ca me kāyo ti yojanā. … Pādakajjhānārammaṇena rūpakāyārammaṇena vā iddhicittena sahajātaṃ sukhasaññañca lahusaññañca okkamati pavisati phusati sampāpuṇāti ti ayampi tattha attho.

[952] 一處住, lit. "established/standing in one place." 一處住 is used below at 457c28–29, etc., in the context of the defilements eliminated by the paths, as "conjoined to that, established on that," tadekaṭṭha. Here, however, it appears to correspond to ekaṭṭhāne.

[953] Cf. Paṭis I 183: Kathaṃ sabbakāyapaṭisaṃvedī assasissāmī … passasissāmī ti sikkhati? Kāyo ti dve kāyā: nāmakāyo ca rūpakāyo ca. Katamo nāmakāyo? Vedanā, saññā, cetanā, phasso, manasikāro, nāmañca nāmakāyo ca, ye ca vuccanti cittasaṅkhārā ayaṃ nāmakāyo. Katamo rūpakāyo? Cattāro ca mahābhūtā, catunnañca mahābhūtānaṃ upādāyarūpaṃ, assāso ca passāso ca, nimittañca upanibandhanā, ye ca vuccanti kāyasaṅkhārā, ayaṃ rūpakāyo. Paṭis-a 501: Yathā hi kammāragaggariyā dhamamānāya bhastañca purisassa ca tajjaṃ vāyāmaṃ paṭicca vāto saṅcarati, evamevaṃ kāyañca cittañca paṭicca assāsapassāsāti. Tato assāsapassāse ca kāyañca rūpanti, cittañca taṃsampayutte ca dhamme arūpanti vavatthapeti. Evaṃ nāmarūpaṃ vavatthapetvā … Cf. S V 329–30: Kāyaññatarāhaṃ ānanda etaṃ vadāmi yad idaṃ assāsapassāsaṃ.

through contemplating [impermanence, etc.], experiences the whole body thus: "Although there is the body, there is no being, no soul (nissata, nijjīva)."[954]

"He trains" means the three trainings. The first is the training of the higher virtue, the second is the training of the higher thought, the third is the training of the higher wisdom.

The virtue of such a one (i.e., one who trains, tathābhūtassa) is called "the training of the higher virtue"; the concentration of such a one is called "the training of the higher thought"; and the wisdom of such a one is called "the training of the higher wisdom." The meditator, he trains, repeatedly practices, much practices these three trainings on that object by means of mindfulness and attention. This is the meaning of "he trains." [955]

(4) "He trains, 'Calming the bodily formations, I [shall] breathe in […]'"

Why is it called "bodily formations"? This means that when he breathes in and out with such bodily formations as bending back the body, bending forward, moving, trembling, shaking and swaying [of the body],[956] he [trains in] calming and stopping [these] bodily formations.[957]

Again, he calms and stops the coarse bodily formations and through the subtle bodily formations develops the first jhāna. From there, through the more subtle bodily formations, he develops the second jhāna. From there, through the (still) more subtle bodily formations, he develops the third jhāna. Then, having stopped [the bodily formations] without remainder, he develops the fourth jhāna.[958]

Q. If breathing ceases without remainder [in the fourth jhāna],[959] how is he able to practise mindfulness of breathing?

A. Although breathing has ceased, because he has initially well grasped the sign, that attained sign arises to serve as the practice sign.

---

954 Dhs-a 38 § 93: Tasmiṃ kho pana samaye dhammā honti dhammesu dhammānupassī viharatī ti ādisu nissattanijjīvatāyaṃ. Svāyam idhā pi nissattanijjīvatāyam eva vattati.

The Sāriputrābhidharma (T28, 706) explains "'Experiencing the whole body he breathes out; … breathes in—a bhikṣu, having filled/pervaded the whole body with breath, breathes out. When the whole body is empty [of breath], he breathes in. Just as a skilful potter or his pupil, having filled his bellows, presses it to release the air, and when the bag becomes empty, opens its mouth to get it filled with air." The Satyasiddhi Śāstra (T32, 356b) explains: "'Whole body'—when the meditator has resolved that the body is hollow, he sees air going out and in the pores of the body," while the Śrāvaka-bhūmi (II 99) has "'Experiencing the whole body…'—he trains thus when he takes as cognitive object the in and out breathings through the pores of his whole body and becomes resolute with regard to them." (yadā sūkṣmasauṣiryagatān āśvāsapraśvāsān romakūpānupraviṣṭān kāye 'dhimucyate, ālambanīkaroti tadā sarvakāyapratisaṃvedī bhavati) (Transl. K. L. Dhammajoti, 2009.) Cf. The Mahāvibhāṣā of the Sarvāstivādins (T 27, 136a–b): "Question: As one observes the wind of breath as entering by the nose and getting out by the nose, why it is said that 'I breathe in and out perceiving the whole body'? Answer: When mindfulness of breathing is not yet accomplished, one observes in-and-out-breath as entering and getting out by the nose. When mindfulness of breathing is accomplished, one observes breath as entering and going out through all the pores of the body, which is like a lotus root." (Quoted in Mindfulness in Early Buddhism, Tse-fu Kuan, 2008, p. 71–2.)

955 Cf. Vism VIII.173, Paṭis-a 491: Tattha sikkhatīti evaṃ ghaṭati vāyamati. Yo vā tathābhūtassa saṃvaro, ayamettha adhisīlasikkhā. Yo tathābhūtassa samādhi, ayaṃ adhicittasikkhā. Yā tathābhūtassa paññā, ayaṃ adhipaññāsikkhā ti. Imā tisso sikkhāyo tasmiṃ ārammaṇe tāya satiyā tena manasikārena sikkhati āsevati bhāveti bahulīkarotīti evamettha attho daṭṭhabbo.

Paṭis I 184: Sabbakāyapaṭisamvedī assāsapassāsānaṃ saṃvaraṭṭhena sīlavisuddhi, avikkhepaṭṭhena cittavisuddhi, dassanaṭṭhena diṭṭhivisuddhi; yo tattha saṃvaraṭṭho ayaṃ adhisīlasikkhā, yo tattha avikkhepaṭṭho ayaṃ adhicittasikkhā, yo tattha dassanaṭṭho ayaṃ adhipaññāsikkhā.

956 Cf. Paṭis I 184–5: Yathārūpehi kāyasaṅkhārehi yā kāyassa ānamanā, vinamanā, sannamanā, paṇamanā, iñjanā, phandanā, calanā, kampanā, 'passambhayaṃ kāyasaṅkhāraṃ assasissāmīti' sikkhati, 'passambhayaṃ kāyasaṅkhāraṃ passasissāmīti' sikkhati.

957 Paṭis I 184: Te kāyasaṅkhāre passambhento nirodhento vūpasamento sikkhati.

958 Vism VIII.179: Pariggahepi oḷāriko, paṭhamajjhānupacāre sukhumo. Tasmimpi oḷāriko, paṭhamajjhāne sukhumo. Paṭhamajjhāne ca dutiyajjhānupacāre ca oḷāriko, dutiyajjhāne sukhumo. Dutiyajjhāne ca tatiyajjhānupacāre ca oḷāriko, tatiyajjhāne sukhumo. Tatiyajjhāne ca catutthajjhānupacāre ca oḷāriko, catutthajjhāne atisukhumo appavattimeva pāpuṇātīti.

The Sāriputrābhidharma (T28, 706b) gives the similes from MN 20: "… Just as a bhikṣu subdues a gross bodily activity with a subtle one, removes an inferior one with a superior one, in the manner of that a skilled carpenter or his pupil removes a bigger peg with a smaller one. In this manner, a bhikṣu subdues a gross bodily activity with a subtle one. Just as a man running reflects: 'Why do I run? I should walk slowly' and he then walks slowly. … stands … lies down. In this way this man removes a gross bodily activity and practises a subtle one. Likewise, a bhikṣu …" (Transl. K. L. Dhammajoti, 2009.)

959 D III 266: Catutthajjhānaṃ samāpannassa assāsa-passāsā niruddhā honti.

How [is mindfulness of breathing developed] through the jhāna factors?

(5) "He trains, 'Experiencing rapture,[960] I [shall] breathe in [...].'" [431a]

When he is mindfully breathing and and mindfully breathing out, rapture arises in two jhānas. This rapture is experienced through two ways: through non-delusion and through the object.[961] Accordingly, the meditator enters concentration and experiences rapture through non-delusion, through contemplation, through overcoming and through the object.

(6) "He trains, 'Experiencing happiness, I [shall] breathe in [...].'" 431a04

When he is mindfully breathing and and mindfully breathing out, happiness arises in three jhānas. This happiness is experienced through two ways: through non-delusion and through the object. [The rest is] as was taught above.

(7) "He trains, 'Experiencing the mental formations, I [shall] breathe in [...].'"

"Mental formations" means "perception and feeling." These mental formations arise in four jhānas. They are experienced through two ways: through non-delusion and through the object. [The rest is] as was taught above.

(8) "He trains, 'Calming the mental formations, I [shall] breathe in [...].'"

"Mental formations" means "perception and feeling." He trains calming the coarse mental formations. [The rest is] as was taught above.

(9) "He trains, 'Experiencing the mind, I [shall] breathe in [...].'"

When he is mindfully breathing and and mindfully breathing out, his mind and the object of [the breath] coming in and going out are experienced[962] through two ways: through non-delusion and through the object. [The rest is] as was taught above.

(10) "He trains, 'Gladdening the mind, I [shall] breathe in [...].'"

"Gladdening" means rejoicing (pamodana).[963] In two jhāna sites he causes exultation of mind (udaggacitta) through rejoicing. Thus he trains. [The rest is] was taught above. 431a15

(11) "He trains, 'Concentrating the mind, I [shall] breathe in [...].'"

When the meditator is mindfully breathing and and mindfully breathing out, through mindfulness, through attending (manasikāra), the mind becomes established and unified on the object. Through that establishing and unification of mind, the mind becomes concentrated.[964] Thus he trains.

(12) "He trains, 'Freeing the mind, I [shall] breathe in [...].'"

When the meditator is mindfully breathing and and mindfully breathing out, if his mind is lax, he frees it from sloth (thīna); if it is overly straining (accāraddha), he frees it from agitation (uddhacca)—thus he trains. If his mind is elated, he frees it from (sensual) desire ([kāma-]rāga)—thus he trains. If it is depressed, he frees it from ill-will (vyāpāda)—thus he trains. If his mind is defiled, he frees it from the lesser defilements (upakkilesa)—thus he trains. Again, if his mind has no delight (arati) in the object, he causes his mind to delight in it. Thus he trains.[965] [966] [960] The text literally has "Experiencing rapture as object, ,..." (喜為事知) but at the start of the chapter (430a03–4) this step is given as just "experiencing rapture," (知喜), which is in accordance with the Pali suttas and the other steps explained here in Vim.

---

[961] Cf. Paṭis-a 501: Pītipaṭisaṃvedī ti pītiṃ paṭisaṃviditaṃ karonto pākaṭaṃ karonto assasissāmi passasissāmīti sikkhati. Tattha dvīhākārehi pīti paṭisaṃviditā hoti ārammaṇato ca asammohato ca. Kathaṃ ārammaṇato pīti paṭisaṃviditā hoti? Sappītike dve jhāne samāpajjati, tassa samāpattikkhaṇe jhānapaṭilābhena ārammaṇato pīti paṭisaṃviditā hoti ārammaṇassa paṭisaṃviditattā. Kathaṃ asammohato? Sappītike dve jhāne samāpajjitvā vuṭṭhāya jhānasampayuttaṃ pītiṃ khayato vayato sammasati, tassa vipassanākkhaṇe lakkhaṇapaṭivedhena asammohato pīti paṭisaṃviditā hoti. Eteneva nayena avasesapadānipi atthato veditabbāni. Idaṃ panettha visesamattaṃ: tiṇṇaṃ jhānānaṃ vasena sukhapaṭisaṃviditā hoti. Catunnampi jhānānaṃ vasena cittasaṅkhārapaṭisaṃviditā veditabbā. Cf. Vism VIII.227/p.287.

[962] Paṭis I 189: Kathaṃ cittapaṭisaṃvedī assasissāmī ... passasissāmī ti sikkhati? Katamaṃ taṃ cittaṃ? Dīghaṃ assāsavasena ... passāsavasena ... passambhayaṃ cittasaṅkhāraṃ assāsavasena ... passāsavasena viññāṇaṃ cittaṃ. Yaṃ cittaṃ mano mānasaṃ hadayaṃ paṇḍaraṃ mano māyatanaṃ manindriyaṃ viññāṇaṃ viññāṇakkhandho tajjā manoviññāṇadhātu idaṃ cittaṃ. Kathaṃ taṃ cittaṃ paṭividitaṃ hoti? Dīghaṃ assāsavasena ... passāsavasena cittassa ekaggataṃ avikkhepaṃ pajānato sati upaṭṭhitā hoti. Tāya satiyā tena ñāṇena taṃ cittaṃ paṭividitaṃ hoti ... sacchikātabbaṃ sacchikaroto taṃ cittaṃ paṭividitaṃ hoti. Evaṃ taṃ cittaṃ paṭividitaṃ hoti.

[963] Paṭis I 190: Katamo cittassa abhippamodo? Dīghaṃ assāsavasena cittassa ekaggataṃ avikkhepaṃ pajānato uppajjati cittassa abhippamodo. Yā cittassa āmodanā pamodanā hāso pahāso vitti odagyaṃ attamanatā.

[964] Cf. Paṭis I 191: Dīghaṃ assāsavasena cittassa ekaggatā avikkhepo samādhi, dīghaṃ passāsavasena. ..., yā cittassa ṭhiti saṇṭhiti avaṭṭhiti avisāhāro avikkhepo ... Paṭis-a 312: Samādahaṃ cittan-ti ārammaṇe cittaṃ samaṃ ṭhapento.

[965] Paṭis I 191: Kathaṃ vimocayaṃ cittaṃ ... passasissāmī ti sikkhati? Rāgato ... dosato ... mohato ... mānato ... diṭṭhiyā ... vicikicchāya ... thinato ... uddhaccato ... ahirikato ... anottappato vimocayaṃ cittaṃ passasissāmī ti sikkhati. Paṭis I 162:

431a24 (13) "He trains, 'Contemplating impermanence, I [shall] breathe in [...].'"

When he is mindfully breathing and and mindfully breathing out, he sees the arising and passing away of that in-breath and out-breath, the object of the in-breath and out-breath, the mind and the mental properties. Thus he trains.

(14) "He trains, 'Contemplating fading away, I [shall] breathe in [...].'"

When the meditator is mindfully breathing and and mindfully breathing out, [he sees]: "This is an impermanent state; the fading away of this state is Nibbāna."[967] Thus he trains.

(15) "He trains, 'Contemplating cessation, I [shall] breathe in [...].'"

Seeing as it really is "This impermanent state is disadvantage (ādīnava); its cessation is Nibbāna."[968] Seeing peace (santi, viveka),[969] he trains. [431b]

(16) "He trains, 'Contemplating renunciation, I [shall] breathe in [...].'"

Seeing as it really is "This impermanent state is disadvantage." On [seeing] that disadvantage, equanimity (upekkhā) manifests and he dwells established in peace,[970] cessation, Nibbāna.[971] Causing ease (phāsu, sukha) of mind, he trains.

[Nibbāna should be understood thus:] "This is the peaceful, this is the sublime, namely, the calming of all formations, the relinquishing of all acquisitions; the destruction of craving; fading away, cessation, Nibbāna."[972]

Kāmacchando samādhissa paripantho, nekkhammaṃ samādhissa upakāraṃ. Byāpādo ... abyāpādo ... Thinamiddhaṃ ... ālokasaññā ... Uddhaccaṃ ... avikkhepo ... Vicikicchā ... dhammavavatthānaṃ ... Avijjā ... ñāṇaṃ ... Arati samādhissa paripantho, pāmojjaṃ samādhissa upakāraṃ.

[966] The Sāriputrābhidharma (T28, 709a–b) has "The citta is disposed towards it, esteems it, and is inclined towards it; it is liberated with respects to it, hence 'liberating.'" (Transl. K. L. Dhammajoti, 2009.)

[967] Paṭis I 192: Kathaṃ virāgānupassī assasissāmī ... passasissāmī ti sikkhati? Rūpe ... vedanāya ... saññāya ... saṅkhāresu ... viññāṇe... cakkhusmiṃ... pe ... jarāmaraṇe ādīnavaṃ disvā jarāmaraṇavirāge chandajāto hoti saddhādhimutto, cittañcassa svādhiṭṭhitaṃ. Paṭis-a 523: Virāgānupassīniddese rūpe ādīnavaṃ disvā ti bhaṅgānupassanato paṭṭhāya parato vuttehi aniccaṭṭhādīhi rūpakkhandhe ādīnavaṃ disvā. Rūpavirāge ti nibbāne. Nibbānañhi āgamma rūpaṃ virajjati apunaruppattidhammataṃ āpajjanena nirujjhati, tasmā nibbānaṃ rūpavirāgo 'ti vuccati. Chandajāto hotī ti anussavavasena uppannadhammacchando hoti. Saddhādhimutto ti tasmiṃyeva nibbāne saddhāya ca adhimutto nicchito. Cittañcassa svādhiṭṭhitan ti assa yogissa cittaṃ khayavirāgasaṅkhāte rūpabhaṅge ārammaṇavasena, accanta virāgasaṅkhāte rūpavirāge nibbāne anussavavasena suṭṭhu adhiṭṭhitaṃ suṭṭhu patiṭṭhitaṃ hotīti sambandhato veditabbaṃ. Rūpe virāgānupassī ti rūpassa khayavirāgo rūpe virāgo ti pakatibhummavacanena vutto. Rūpassa accantavirāgo rūpe virāgo ti nimittatthe bhummavacanena vutto. Taṃ duvidhampi virāgaṃ ārammaṇato ajjhāsayato ca anupassanasīlo rūpe virāgānupassī ti vutto. Esa nayo vedanādīsu. Nirodhānupassīpadaniddese pi eseva nayo.

[968] See Paṭis-a 523 Rūpavirāge ti nibbāne, etc., in previous fn.

[969] This refers to the ādīnavañāṇa, the knowledge of disadvantage. See Paṭis I 59: Uppādo dukkhan-ti bhayatupaṭṭhāne paññā ādīnave ñāṇaṃ. ... Anuppādo sukhan-ti santipade ñāṇaṃ.

[970] This refers to the saṅkhārupekkhāñāṇa, the knowledge of equanimity towards formations. See Paṭis I 60: Uppādo dukkhan-ti muñcitukamyatāpaṭisaṅkhāsantiṭṭhanā paññā saṅkhārupekkhāsu ñāṇaṃ.

Vism XXI.62–63: Evamevāyaṃ sabbasaṅkhārehi muñcitukāmo hutvā paṭisaṅkhānupassanāya saṅkhāre pariggaṇhanto ahaṃ mamāti gahetabbaṃ adisvā bhayañca nandiñca vippahāya sabbasaṅkhāresu udāsīno hoti majjhatto. Tassa evaṃ jānato evaṃ passato tīsu bhavesu ... cittaṃ patilīyati patikuṭati pativattati na sampasāriyati, upekkhā vā pāṭikulyatā vā saṇṭhāti. ... Iccassa saṅkhārupekkhāñāṇaṃ nāma uppannaṃ hoti. Taṃ panetaṃ sace santipadaṃ nibbānaṃ santato passati, sabbaṃ saṅkhārappavattaṃ vissajjetvā nibbānameva pakkhandati.

Paṭis-a 217: Nirodhāya upasamāya ti nibbānaṃ. Th-a I 58: Padaṃ santan-ti nibbānaṃ sandhāya vadati. Evarūpo hi bhikkhu santaṃ padaṃ santaṃ koṭṭhāsaṃ sabbasaṅkhārānaṃ upasamabhāvato saṅkhārūpasamaṃ paramasukhatāya sukhaṃ nibbānaṃ adhigacchati vindati yeva. Thī-a 13: Nirodhaṃ phusehī ti kilesanirodhaṃ phussa paṭilabha. Saññāvūpasamaṃ sukhaṃ, ārādhayāhi nibbānan-ti kāmasaññādīnaṃ pāpasaññānaṃ upasamanimittaṃ accantasukhaṃ nibbānaṃ ārādhehi.

[971] Paṭis I 194: Paṭinissaggā ti dve paṭinissaggā pariccāgapaṭinissaggo ca pakkhandanapaṭinissaggo ca. Rūpaṃ pariccajati ti pariccāgapaṭinissaggo. Rūpanirodhe nibbāne cittaṃ pakkhandati ti pakkhandanapaṭinissaggo. Paṭis-a 524: Rūpaṃ pariccajati ti ādīnavadassanena nirapekkhatāya rūpakkhandhaṃ pariccajati. Pariccāgapaṭinissaggo ti pariccāgaṭṭhena paṭinissaggo ti vuttaṃ hoti. Etena paṭinissaggapadassa pariccāgaṭṭho vutto, tasmā kilesānaṃ pajahananti attho. Ettha ca vuṭṭhānagāminī vipassanā kilese tadaṅgavasena pariccajati, maggo samucchedavasena. Rūpanirodhe nibbāne cittaṃ pakkhandati ti vuṭṭhānagāminī taṃninnatāya pakkhandati, maggo ārammaṇakaraṇena. Pakkhandanapaṭinissaggo ti pakkhandanaṭṭhena paṭinissaggo ti vuttaṃ hoti. Etena paṭinissaggapadassa pakkhandanaṭṭho vutto, tasmā cittassa nibbāne vissajjanan-ti attho.

[972] M I 435: Etaṃ santaṃ, etaṃ paṇītaṃ, yad idaṃ sabbasaṅkhārasamatho sabbūpadhipaṭinissaggo taṇhakkhayo virāgo nirodho nibbānan ti.

The Chinese translation literally has "Such is the peaceful, such is the sublime: ...," i.e. evaṃ santaṃ, evaṃ paṇītaṃ, 如是寂寂如是妙, which would be due to a misunderstanding of etaṃ as evaṃ.

Of these sixteen grounds (soḷasa-vatthu), the first twelve grounds are serenity and insight. As for the last four grounds beginning with impermanence, these are only insight. Thus it should be understood through serenity and insight.[973]

And again, all these [sixteen training grounds] are of four kinds.[974]

(1) Practicing thus produces the fulfilment of insight.[975] When one is mindfully breathing in and mindfully breathing out, sometimes one discerns [that the breath is short and sometimes one discerns that it is long]—this is called "developing knowledge of the long and the short [breath]."[976]

431b10 (2) Calming the bodily formations, calming the mental formations, gladdening the mind, concentrating the mind and freeing the mind—these are called "producing."

(3) Experiencing the whole body, experiencing [rapture, experiencing] happiness, experiencing the mental formations, and experiencing the mind—these are called the "fulfilment of insight."

(4) The four ways beginning with "contemplating impermanence"—these are called "sometimes one discerns."

And again, "practice" by way of mindfulness of breathing supports planes [of jhāna] (bhūmi).. That practice, that mindfulness of breathing supporting planes, that supporting, is with thought (savitakka).[977] The plane is with thinking and with exploring (savicāra). 431b15 "Experiencing rapture" is the plane of the second jhāna. "Experiencing happiness" is the plane of the third jhāna. "Experiencing the mind" is the plane of the fourth jhāna.[978]

And again, all these [sixteen grounds] are of two kinds: development and fulfilment (pāripūri). Herein, development is only the means. Fulfilment is non-decline of the sixteen means.

Development is like a seed, [since] it is the cause of benefits. Fulfilment is like a flower or a fruit, since it resembles their manifestation.

If mindfulness of breathing is thus developed, the four establishings of mindfulness are fulfilled. If the four establishings of mindfulness are developed, the seven awakening factors are fulfilled. If the seven awakening factors are developed, wisdom and freedom (vijjā-vimutti) are fulfilled.[979]

Q. How is this obtained?

A. The four grounds beginning with the long out-breath and in-breath fulfil the foundation of [973] Vism 291: Idaṃ catutthacatukkaṃ suddhavipassanā vasen'eva vuttaṃ. Purimāni pana tīṇi samathavipassanā vasena. Evaṃ catunnaṃ catukkānaṃ vasena soḷasavatthukāya ānāpānasatiyā bhāvanā veditabbā.

---

[974] The following explanation of these four is corrupt. The "these are called …" conclusions are missing and/or garbled. The explanation of no. 1 starts of with a conclusion. (The "number one," 一, in Taishō is missing from most editions and because no numbers are found with the following three, it does not belong here.) The conclusion of no. 2 appears incomplete, and the fourth conclusion has a clause ("sometimes one discerns") that makes no sense here and belongs to the explanation of no. 1.

What do the conclusions refer to? To serenity and insight, or to the development of insight and the fulfilment of insight? The latter, mentioned below as the two kinds of development and complete attainment, is more likely. But this would give the problem of the third kind not being the fulfilment of insight.… No parallel could be traced in the Pali.

[975] 觀具足 would correspond to vipassanā- or dassana-pāripūri, or –samannāgata or -sampadā. At 417a24 however the same characters are used in the sense of the jhāna being endowed, samannāgata, with vision, dassana, or insight or some related term.

[976] The Chinese text appears corrupt here. Cf. 430c07 "his mind should notice that the breath is sometimes long and sometimes short."

[977] 彼有覺有觀有觀地, lit. "that with thinking, with exploring, with exploring plane." This, again, cryptic passage seems to state that the development of the first two tetrads leads to the first and jhāna plane of the five-fold jhāna scheme, the jhāna which is with thinking and exploring, and the jhāna with mere exploring. The third tetrad—experiencing rapture, etc.—leads to the other jhānas. This section might be related to the discussion of jhāna planes in Cf. Dhs § 1275ff: Katame dhammā savitakkā? Savitakkabhūmiyaṃ kāmāvacare rūpāvacare apariyāpanne, vitakkaṃ ṭhapetvā, taṃsampayutto vedanākkhandho…pe… viññāṇakkhandho – ime dhammā savitakkā. … § 1277. Katame dhammā savicārā? Savicārabhūmiyaṃ …

[978] Cf. Nett-a 204 (Be): Kāyānupassanāya kāmarāgassa ujuvipaccanīkabhāvato paṭhamo satipaṭṭhāno bhāvito bahulīkato kāmapaṭipakkhaṃ paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ paripūretī ti vuttaṃ. Tathā pītipaṭisaṃvedanādivasena pavattamānaṃ dutiyaṃ satipaṭṭhānaṃ, sappītikassa dutiyajjhānassa cittassa abhippamodanavasena pavattamānaṃ tatiyaṃ satipaṭṭhānaṃ ukkaṃsagatasukhassa tatiyajjhānassa aniccavirāgādivasena pavattiyā saṅkhāresu upekkhakaṃ catutthaṃ satipaṭṭhānaṃ upekkhāsatipārisuddhibhāvato catutthajjhānassa pāripūriyā saṃvattati.

[979] S V 329: Ānāpānasatisamādhi kho Ānanda eko dhammo bhāvito bahulīkato cattāro satipaṭṭhāne paripūreti. Cattāro satipaṭṭhānā bhāvitā bahulīkatā satta bojjhaṅge paripūrenti. Satta bojjhaṅgā bhāvitā bahulīkatā vijjāvimuttiṃ paripūrenti.

mindfulness of the body. The ones beginning with the experiencing of rapture fulfil the foundation of mindfulness of feeling. The ones beginning with the experiencing of the mind fulfil the foundation of mindfulness of the mind. The ones beginning with the contemplation of impermanence fulfil the foundation of mindfulness of states. Thus the development of mindfulness of breathing fulfils the four establishings of mindfulness.[980] 431b24

Q. How are the seven awakening factors fulfilled through the development of the [four] establishings of mindfulness?

A. On the occasion that the establishings of mindfulness are developed, unmuddled mindfulness is established—this is called "awakening factor of mindfulness." The meditator, with mindfulness established thus, knows and investigates formations as impermanent and suffering; this is called "the awakening factor of investigation of the Dhamma." Investigating the Dhamma thus, he initiates energy and without slackening—this is called "the awakening factor of energy." Owing to initiating energy, non-carnal rapture arises—this is called "the awakening factor of rapture." [431c] Owing to the rapture of mind, his body and mind become tranquil—this is called "the awakening factor of tranquillity." Owing to the tranquillity of body and happiness, his mind becomes concentrated; this is called "the awakening factor of concentration." Being concentrated thus, the mind becomes equanimous; this is called "the awakening factor of equanimity." Thus, through the development of the four establishings of mindfulness, the seven awakening factors are fulfilled.[981]

Q. How does the development of the seven awakening factors fulfill knowledge and freedom (vijjā-vimutti)?

A. When much practising (bahulīkaroti) and developing the seven awakening factors in this manner, in a [single] moment (khaṇa) the path is attained and knowledge is fulfilled; in a [single] moment the fruit is attained and freedom is fulfilled. Thus the development of the seven awakening factors fulfills knowledge and freedom.[982]

Miscellaneous Topics 431c06

Q. All formations (saṅkhārā), depending on the plane (bhūmi), are endowed with thought or are without thought.[983] That being so, why is it only said that mindfulness of breathing eliminates thought (vitakka), and why is this not said of the other [meditation subjects]?

A. Thought (vitakka) is used in a different sense here. The proper sense here is that thought is a hindrance to jhāna and therefore is abandoned.[984]

Thought is like a heavenly musician (gandhabba) who when hearing a sound follows it. Therefore thought is eliminated. Again, [mindfulness of breathing] is like walking on the embankment of a pond:

---

[980] S V 323–4: Yasmiṃ samaye Ānanda bhikkhu dīghaṃ vā … passasissāmī ti sikkhati, kāye kāyānupassī Ānanda bhikkhu tasmiṃ samaye viharati … dhammesu dhammānupassī Ānanda bhikkhu tasmiṃ samaye viharati …

[981] S V 331–33: Yasmiṃ samaye Ānanda bhikkhu kāye kāyānupassī viharati upaṭṭhitasati, tasmiṃ Ānando bhikkhuno sati hoti asammuṭṭhā; yasmiṃ samaye Ānanda bhikkhuno upaṭṭhitasati asammuṭṭhā, satisambojjhaṅgo tasmiṃ samaye bhikkhuno āraddho hoti; … Evaṃ bhāvitā kho Ānanda cattāro satipaṭṭhānā evaṃ bahulikathā sattabojjhaṅge paripūrenti.

[982] Cf. S V 333: Kathaṃ bhāvitā ca sattabojjhaṅgā kathaṃ bahulikatā vijjāvimuttiṃ paripūrenti? Idhānanda bhikkhu … upekhāsambojjhaṅgaṃ bhāveti vivekanissitaṃ virāganissitaṃ nirodhanissitaṃ vossaggapariṇāmiṃ.

S-a III 274: Ettha pana soḷasakkhattukā ānāpānassati missakā kathitā, ānāpānamūlakā satipaṭṭhānā pubbabhāgā, tesaṃ mūlabhūtā ānāpānassati pubbabhāgā. Bojjhaṅgamūlakā satipaṭṭhānā pubbabhāgā, tepi bojjhaṅgā pubbabhāgāva. Vijjāvimuttipūrakā pana bojjhaṅgā nibbattitalokuttarā, vijjāvimuttiyo ariyaphalasampayuttā. Vijjā vā catutthamagga-sampayuttā, vimutti phalasampayuttā ti. M-a IV 142: Ettha pana ānāpānapariggāhikā sati lokiyā hoti, lokiyā ānāpānā lokiyasatipaṭṭhānaṃ paripūrenti, lokiyā satipaṭṭhānā lokuttarabojjhaṅge paripūrenti, lokuttarā bojjhaṅgā vijjāvimuttiphalanibbānaṃ paripūrenti. Iti lokiyassa āgataṭṭhāne lokiyaṃ kathitaṃ, lokuttarassa āgataṭṭhāne lokuttaraṃ kathitanti. Thero panāha aññattha evaṃ hoti, imasmiṃ pana sutte lokuttaraṃ upari āgataṃ, lokiyā ānāpānā lokiyasatipaṭṭhāne paripūrenti, lokiyā satipaṭṭhānā lokiye bojjhaṅge paripūrenti, lokiyā bojjhaṅgā lokuttaraṃ vijjāvimuttiphalanibbānaṃ paripūrenti, vijjāvimuttipadena hi idha vijjāvimuttiphalanibbānaṃ adhippetanti.

[983] 無覺. Later in Ch. 12 (459b07), in a discussion of the two types of insight, 無覺 also occurs as part of "a plane without thought," 無覺地 in contrast to a plane with thought, 覺地.

Cf. Dhs 222, § 1275. Katame dhammā savitakkā? Savitakkabhūmiyaṃ kāmāvacare rūpāvacare apariyāpanne, vitakkaṃ ṭhapetvā, taṃsampayutto vedanākkhandho…pe… viññāṇakkhandho, ime dhammā savitakkā. § 1276. Katame dhammā avitakkā? Avitakkabhūmiyaṃ kāmāvacare rūpāvacare arūpāvacare apariyāpanne; vedanākkhandho…pe… viññāṇakkhandho; vitakko ca, sabbañca rūpaṃ, asaṅkhatā ca dhātu, ime dhammā avitakkā.

[984] The question and answer about the touch of breath being pleasant have been moved from here to below because it appears to be an intrusion (due to a copyist error) in this discussion of vitakka. EKS had "calms the mind," but the character character 樂 is the same as the character for "pleasant" in the question. See fn. there.

the mind is focussed, and mindfulness is settled on one object and does not wander. Therefore mindfulness of breathing is taught for the abandoning of thought.[985]

Q. Why is the touch of wind pleasant?

A. Because it pleases the mind.

Mindfulness of breathing is finished. 431c12

Recollection of Death

Q. What is recollection of death? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. The cutting off of the life-force—this is called "death." The unwavering mindfulness of this—this is called the practising of it. [The awareness of] the cutting off of one own life is its characteristic. Disenchantment (nibbidā) is its function. Non-delight (arati) is its near cause.

Q. What are its benefits?

A. One who practises mindfulness of death is diligent (appamāda) as regards the higher wholesome states, and has dislike as regards unwholesome states. One does not much accept and hoard requisites and one has no avarice towards them. One can see one's own life-span.[986] One's mind is not attached to life. One fulfils the perceptions of impermanence, of suffering and not-self. One is destined to a good destination or is destined to the deathless. At the end of life, the mind is not bewildered.[987]

Q. What is the procedure?

A. The beginner meditator goes to a secluded place, sits down and composes his whole mind. With unwavering mind he recollects: "All beings die. I [too] am of the nature to die; I am destined to die; I have not gone beyond death."[988] As is taught in the Nettipada Sutta:[989] "If a person wishes to contemplate death, he should contemplate a person who has been killed and and should see the cause (nidāna, kāraṇa) of his death."

Here there are four kinds of recollection of death: associated with sorrow (soka), associated with shock (santāsa), associated with indifference (majjhatta), and associated with knowledge (ñāṇa).[990]

Recollecting the loss of a beloved child gives rise to thoughts [of sorrow]—this is recollection of death associated with sorrow.

Recollecting the sudden death of a child—this is recollection of death associated with shock.

When one who cremates [corpses] recollects a lifeless body—this is recollection of death associated with indifference.

---

[985] See the introduction to this section on ānāpānasati. Cf. A IV 353, 358, Ud 37, Vism VIII.238/Vism 291: Ānāpānasati bhāvetabbā vitakkūpacchedāya. A-a IV 163: Ānāpānassatīti soḷasavatthukā ānāpānassati. Vitakkupacchedāyā ti vuttanayeneva uppannānaṃ vitakkānaṃ upacchedanatthāya. It-a II 89: Byāpādavitakko, vihiṃsāvitakko, ñātivitakko, janapadavitakko, amarāvitakko, anavaññattipaṭisaṃyutto vitakko, lābhasakkārasilokapaṭisaṃyutto vitakko, parānuddayatāpaṭisaṃyutto vitakkoti aṭṭha, kāmavitakkena saddhiṃ navavidhā mahāvitakkā ānāpānassatisamādhinā tannissitāya ca vipassanāya pubbabhāge vikkhambhitā. Taṃ pādakaṃ katvā adhigatena ariyamaggenayathārahaṃ anavasesato pahīyanti. Vuttampi cetaṃ "ānāpānassati bhāvetabbā vitakkupacchedāyā ti. A III 449: Cetaso vikkhepassa pahānāya ānāpānasati bhāvetabbā.

[986] This benefit is not in the Vism. The Chinese is not clear and could be corrupt: "to see body/own life-span/life mind not attached," 見身壽命心不貪著.

[987] Vism VIII.41: … satataṃ appamatto hoti, sabbabhavesu anabhiratisaññaṃ paṭilabhati, jīvitanikantiṃ jahāti, pāpagarahī hoti, asannidhibahulo parikkhāresu vigatamalamacchero, aniccasaññā cassa paricayaṃ gacchati, tadanusāreneva dukkhasaññā anattasaññā ca upaṭṭhāti. … abhayo asammūḷho kālaṃ karoti. Sace diṭṭheva dhamme amataṃ nārādheti, kāyassa bhedā sugatiparāyano hoti.

[988] S I 97: Seyyathā pi, mahārāja, yāni kānici kumbhakārabhājanāni āmakāni ceva pakkāni ca sabbāni tāni bhedanadhammāni bhedanapariyosānāni bhedanaṃ anatītāni; evameva kho, mahārāja, sabbe sattā maraṇadhammā maraṇapariyosānā maraṇaṃ anatītā ti. A III 71: Maraṇadhammomhi, maraṇaṃ anatīto ti abhiṇhaṃ paccavekkhitabbaṃ itthiyā vā purisena vā gahaṭṭhena vā pabbajitena vā. A III 74: Sa kho so, bhikkhave, ariyasāvako iti paṭisañcikkhati: na kho ahaññeveko maraṇadhammo maraṇaṃ anatīto, atha kho yāvatā sattānaṃ āgati gati cuti upapatti sabbe sattā maraṇadhammā maraṇaṃ anatītā'ti. Tassa taṃ ṭhānaṃ abhiṇhaṃ paccavekkhato maggo sañjāyati. Cf. M III 182.

[989] 涅底履波陀脩多羅, niè-dǐ-lǚ-bō-tuó-xiū-duō-luó, which could be a transliteration of Netripada-sūtra. According to Bapat this might be the Netripadaśāstra of Upagupta referred to in Abhidharmakoṣaśāstra, but, in keeping with the*Vimuttimagga* being of Theravada origins, it could simply refer to a sutta in the Suttapiṭaka for which this name was used or it could refer to the Nettippakaraṇa. The term nettipada is found in the Netti commentary (Nett-a).

[990]

When constantly contemplating [the impermanent nature of] the world, the mind gives rise to disenchantment (nibbidā)—this is recollection of death associated with knowledge.

Here the meditator should not practise the recollection associated with sorrow, shock or indifference. Why? [432a] Because through them he is not able to remove obstacles (paripantha, ādīnava). Only the diligent development of recollection associated with knowledge is able to remove obstacles.

There are three kinds of death: conventional death (sammuti), death as cutting off (samuccheda), and momentary death (khaṇika).[991]

What is "conventional death"? [That which is] dependent upon the designation (paññatti) of beings[992] is called "conventional death."

"Death as a cutting off" means: "[The death of] the Arahant who has cut off the defilements."

"Momentary death" means: "The momentary dissolution of formations."

And again, there are two kinds of death: untimely death and timely death.

Death in the midst of life through suicide, murder or disease, or without [assignable] cause is called "untimely death."

Death through the exhaustion of the life-span and through ageing is called "timely death."[993]

One should recall these two kinds of death.

432a08 And again, the ancient teachers taught the practice of mindfulness of death through these eight ways: (1) through being closely followed by an executioner, (2) through there being no means, (3) through comparison, (4) through the body being shared with many, (5) through the frailty of life, (6) through the limitedness of the extent, (7) through signlessness (8) and through momentariness.[994]

(1) Q. How should one develop mindfulness of death through being followed by an executioner?

A. It is like a man who is going to be executed, is about to go to to the place of execution, and is followed closely by the executioner who has drawn his sword. When that man sees the executioner with the drawn sword closely following him, he thinks: "This man will kill me; at what time shall I die? I go step by step; at which step shall I die? When I walk, I certainly shall die. When I stand, I certainly shall die. When I sit, I certainly shall die. When I lie down, I certainly shall die."

Thus the meditator should develop recollection of death through being followed by an executioner.

(2) Q. How should one develop mindfulness of death through there being no means (kāraṇa)?

A. When one is born, there is no means or way that can cause one not to die. Just as when the sun and the moon rise, there is no means or way that can cause them not to set. Thus one practises recollection of death through there being no means.[995]

(3) Q. How does one develop mindfulness of death through comparison?

A. Those kings of old who had great wealth, great vehicles,[996] great eminence: Mahā Sudassana, Mandhātu and others—all of those kings came to death. Again, the sages of old who had great supernormal power and great eminence: Vessāmitta and Yamataggi [and so on],[997] who caused fire and [991] Cf. Paṭis-a I 146, Nidd-a I 73: Puna khaṇikamaraṇaṃ sammutimaraṇaṃ samucchedamaraṇan-ti ayampi bhedo veditabbo. Pavatte rūpārūpadhammānaṃ bhedo khaṇikamaraṇaṃ nāma. Tisso mato phusso mato ti idaṃ paramatthato sattassa abhāvā, sassaṃ mataṃ, rukkho mato ti idampi jīvitindriyassa abhāvā sammutimaraṇaṃ nāma. Khīṇāsavassa appaṭisandhikā kālakiriyā samucchedamaraṇaṃ nāma. Bāhirasammutimaraṇaṃ ṭhapetvā itaraṃ sammutimaraṇañca idha yathāvuttappabandhavicchedanabhāvena saṅgahitaṃ, dukkhassa pana vatthubhāvato dukkhaṃ. Cf. D-a 799. Vism VIII.2/p. 229: Yam pan'etaṃ arahantānaṃ vaṭṭadukkhasamucchedasaṅkhātaṃ samuccheda-maraṇaṃ, saṅkhārānaṃ khaṇabhaṅgasaṅkhātaṃ khaṇikamaraṇaṃ, rukkho mato, lohaṃ matan-ti ādisu sammutimaraṇañ ca, na tam idha adhippetaṃ.

---

[992] 432a02–03: 依假眾生. The variant reading 假, paññatti, is translated here instead of 修. This would be related to … phusso mato ti idaṃ paramatthato sattassa abhāvā in Paṭis-a, see previous note.

[993] Vism VIII.2: Tattha kālamaraṇaṃ puññakkhayena vā āyukkhayena vā ubhayakkhayena vā hoti. Akālamaraṇaṃ kammupacchedakakammavasena.

[994] Cf. Vism VIII.8ff./p.230ff.: tena vadhakapaccupaṭṭhānato, sampattivipattito, upasaṃharaṇato, kāyabahusādhāraṇato, āyudubbalato, animittato, addhānaparicchedato, khaṇaparittatoti imehi aṭṭhahākārehi maraṇaṃ anussaritabbaṃ.

[995] Not found in Vism but cf.: Vism VIII.11: … esa satto jātakālato paṭṭhāya yathā nāma uṭṭhito sūriyo atthābhimukho gacchateva, gatagataṭṭhānato īsakampi na nivattati. … Yamekarattiṃ paṭhamaṃ, gabbhe vasati māṇavo; / Abbhuṭṭhitova so yāti, sa gacchaṃ na nivattatī ti.

[996] 大乘, mahāvāhana. Cf. Ud @@ … mahaddhanataro vā mahābhogataro vā mahākosataro vā mahāvijitataro vā mahāvāhanataro vā mahabbalataro vā mahiddhikataro vā mahānubhāvataro vā rājā … Ud-a @@ Mahanto hatthiassādivāhano etassāti mahāvāhano.

[997] Cf. D I 104: … ye te ahesuṃ brāhmaṇānaṃ pubbakā isayo mantānaṃ kattāro mantānaṃ pavattāro, … seyyathidaṃ water to issue forth from their bodies—they also came to death. Disciples of old who had great wisdom, great supernormal power and great eminence: Sāriputta, Moggallāna and so on—they also came to death. Again, the Paccekabuddhas who were self-become (sayambhū), who without having a teacher, accomplished all good qualities[998]—they also came to death. Again, the Tathāgatas, the Arahants, the Rightly Awakened Ones (sammāsambuddhā), who are immeasurable (appamāṇa), unexcelled (anuttara), who are endowed with clear-knowledge and conduct (vijjācaraṇasampanna), who reached perfection in all qualities[999]—they also came to death. How then, could I, with my brief life-span, not come to death?

Thus one practises recollection of death through comparison.

(4) Q. How does one develop mindfulness of death through the body being shared with many? [432b]

A. Through an upset of the wind and phlegm [humours], one comes to death. Through an upset of the families of (internal) worms or through food not digesting one comes to death. Or through being bitten by poisonous snakes, centipedes, scorpions, or rats, one comes to death. Or [through being attacked by] lions, tigers, leopards, elephants, or cattle one comes to death. Or through being killed by humans or non-humans one comes to death. 432b04

Thus one practises recollection of death through the body being shared with many.

(5) Q. How does one develop mindfulness of death through the frailty of life?

A. In two ways one practises recollection of death through the frailty of life: Through frailty of the place (vatthu) and through frailty of the dependence (nissaya), there is frailty of life.

Q. How is there frailty of life because of frailty of the place?

A. "This body (kāya) is without intrinsic nature (asabhāva) as is taught in the simile of the water-bubble, in the simile of the plantain [-trunk] and in the simile of [the lump of] foam,[1000] because it is devoid of essence (sāra) and it is separate from an essence." Thus through the frailty of the place, there is frailty of life.

Q. How is there frailty of life because of frailty of the dependence?

A. "This name (nāma) is tied to the breath, tied to the four great entities, tied to nutriment, tied up the four postures and tied to heat."[1001] Thus through frailty of the dependence, there is frailty of life.

Thus one practises recollection of death through the frailty of life in two ways.

(6) Q. How does one develop mindfulness of death through the limitedness of the extent?

A. "All of those born long ago and who are [still] living now come to death without exceeding a hundred years."[1002]

Thus one practises recollection of death through the limitedness of the extent. 432b17

Again, one practises thus: "If I could live for a day and a night and reflect on the Teaching of the Blessed One, I would obtain great benefit! If I could live for a day, … If I could live for half a day, … If I could live for a few hours, … If I could live long enough to partake of a single meal, … long enough to partake of half a meal, … long enough to partake of four or five morsels of food … [long enough to partake of one morsel of food] … long enough to breathe out [after] having breathed in, … long enough to breathe in [after] having breathed out."[1003]

Thus one practises recollection of death through the limitedness of the extent.

(7) Q. How does one develop mindfulness of death through signlessness?

A. Because of having no sign, death has no [fixed] time.

Thus one practises recollection of death through signlessness. 432b25

(8) Q. How does one develop mindfulness of death through momentariness?

A. If one does not reckon the past or the future but only reckons the present condition, a being's aṭṭhako vāmako vāmadevo vessāmitto yamataggi aṅgīraso bhāradvājo vāseṭṭho kassapo bhagu ….

---

[998] Nidd-a I 177: Taṃ taṃ kāraṇaṃ paṭicca ekakāva anācariyakāva catusaccaṃ bujjhitavanto ti paccekabuddhā … Mil 104: … paccekabuddhā sayambhuno anācariyakā ekacārino … Cf. the definition of Buddha at 426b27 and footnote.

[999] Sabbesu guṇesu pāramiṃ patto. Cf. note @@ to 426c11.

[1000] S III 140–42: … yaṃ kiñci rūpaṃ … passato nijjhāyato yoniso upaparikkhato rittakaññeva khāyati, tucchakaññeva khāyati, asārakaññeva khāyati. Kiñhi siyā, bhikkhave, rūpe sāro? … Pheṇapiṇḍūpamaṃ rūpaṃ, vedanā bubbulupamā; marīcikūpamā saññā, saṅkhārā kadalūpamā; māyūpamañca viññāṇaṃ dīpitādiccabandhunā.

[1001] Vism VIII.27: Tathā hi sattānaṃ jīvitaṃ assāsapassāsūpanibaddhañceva iriyāpathūpanibaddhañca sītuṇhūpanibaddhañca mahābhūtūpanibaddhañca āhārūpanibaddhañca.

[1002] Cf. Vism VIII.35: natthi jātassa amaraṇaṃ. Yo, bhikkhave, ciraṃ jīvati, so vassasataṃ, appaṃ vā bhiyyo ti.

[1003] A III 305–6: Yvāyaṃ bhikkhave bhikkhu evaṃ maraṇasatiṃ bhāveti 'aho vatāhaṃ rattindivaṃ jīveyyaṃ, Bhagavato sāsanaṃ manasikareyyaṃ, bahu vata me kataṃ assā' ti, … Appamattā viharissāma, tikkhaṃ maraṇasatiṃ bhāvessāma āsavānaṃ khayāyā ti. Evaṃ hi vo bhikkhave sikkhitabban ti.

life-span lasts a single mind-moment (citta-khaṇa); it does not last for two mind-moments. Thus all beings vanish in a mind-moment.[1004] As is said in the Abhidhamma: "In the past mind-moment, one did not live, one will not live, and one is not living. In the future mind-moment, one did not live, one is not living, and one will not live. [432c] In the present mind-moment, one did not live, one will not live, [but] one is living."[1005]

It is also as is said in the verses:

> Life and selfhood, suffering, happiness and everything, > are joined to one mind (-moment); quickly the moment occurs.
> In the unproduced [mind the world] is not born; in the present there is life.
> With the mind's dissolution, the world dies; so the world's end was taught.[1006]

Thus one practises mindfulness of death through momentariness.

The meditator developing recollection of death through these ways and means, arouses disenchantment (nibbidā). Because of facility in disenchantment and because of facility in recollection, his mind is not wavering. When his mind is unwavering, the hindrances are suspended, the jhāna factors manifest, and [the mind] becomes concentrated in access-jhāna.

Q. What are the differences between the perception of impermanence and recollection of death?

A. The [perception of the] object (ārammaṇa) of the arising and passing away of the aggregates is called "perception of impermanence."[1007] The recollection of the disintegration of the sense-faculties is called "recollection of death."

Through the practice of the perception of impermanence and the perception of not-self, conceit (māna) are eliminated. Through the practice of recollection of death, the perception of impermanence and the perception of suffering are established. Through the cutting off of life, the mind ceases. These are the differences.

Recollection of death is finished.

Recollection of the Body

Q. What is "recollection of the body"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic function, [and manifestation]? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. The practice of recollection as regards the nature of the body,[1008] that mindfulness, recollection, [the mindfulness which is remembering, recalling, retaining, holding, not forgetting, the mindfulness which is the faculty of mindfulness, the power of mindfulness,] and right mindfulness—this is called "recollection of the body."

The unwavering dwelling of the mind in this recollection is the practice of it. The becoming manifest of the nature of the body is its characteristic. Disenchantment is its function. Seeing insubstantiality is its manifestation.

[1004] 一切眾生於剎那心沒, lit. "all beings in a moment mind vanishes." This could perhaps also mean "The minds of all beings vanish in a moment," but I take 剎那心 to be an inversion of 心剎那, "mind-moment" and take it in the same sense as citte niruddhamatte satto niruddhoti of Vism.

Cf. Vism VIII.39/p.238: Khaṇaparittatoti paramatthato hi atiparitto sattānaṃ jīvitakkhaṇo ekacittappavattimattoyeva. Yathā nāma rathacakkaṃ pavattamānampi ekeneva nemippadesena pavattati, tiṭṭhamānampi ekeneva tiṭṭhati, evameva ekacittakkhaṇikaṃ sattānaṃ jīvitaṃ. Tasmiṃ citte niruddhamatte satto niruddhoti vuccati.

[1005] Nidd I 42: Atīte cittakkhaṇe jīvittha, na jīvati na jīvissati; anāgate cittakkhaṇe jīvissati, na jīvati na jīvittha; paccuppanne cittakkhaṇe jīvati, na jīvittha na jīvissati.

The Chinese text uses the character 生, which normally corresponds to "birth, arises," etc, but according to dictionaries 生 can also mean "life" and it would be used in this sense here.

[1006] Nidd I 42, 117–18: Jīvitaṃ attabhāvo ca sukhadukkhā ca kevalā, ekacittasamāyuttā lahuso vattati-kkhaṇo … Anibbattena no jāto, paccuppannena jīvati, cittabhaṅgā mato loko … Vism-mhṭ: Anibbattena na jātoti anuppannena cittena jāto na hoti ajāto nāma hoti. Paccuppannena vattamānena cittena jīvati jīvamāno nāma hoti. Cittabhaṅgā mato lokoti cuticittassa viya sabbassapi tassa tassa cittassa bhaṅgappattiyā ayaṃ loko paramatthato mato nāma hoti niruddhassa appaṭisandhikattā.

[1007] Cf Nidd-a II 107: Imāni tīṇipi lakkhaṇāni udayabbayaṃ passantasseva ārammaṇāni honti.

[1008] The Chinese term is 身性, which corresponds to kāyasabhāva, a term very rarely used in Pali commentarial literature, e.g., in Vism II.67/p.77, kāyasabhāvadassanaṃ; Vv-a 92, kāyasabhāvaṃ pakāsetvā paṭikūlamanasikāre niyojesuṃ, D-ṭ I 266: asubhe subhan-ti vipallattadiṭṭhi satibalena yathābhūtaṃ kāyasabhāvaṃ sallakkhetvā sammattaniyāmaṃ okkamati. Cf. Th-a II 211.

Q. What are its benefits?

A. Through practising recollection of the body one can endure [delight and boredom]; one can bear fear and dread, and one can tolerate heat, cold, etc. One fulfills the perception of impermanence, the perception of not-self, the perception of the foul and the perception of disadvantage. One is one who attains to the four jhānas at will. Through the clear understanding of all things,[1009] one's practice comes to completion. One is destined to a good destination or is destined to the deathless.[1010] 432c21

Q. What is the procedure?

A. The beginner meditator goes to a secluded place, sits down and composes his whole mind. With unwavering mind, he practises recollection of the nature of the body.

Q. How does he develop recollection of the body?

A. That which is called "this body" is (1) head-hair, (2) body-hair, (3) nails, (4) teeth, (5) skin, (6) flesh, (7) sinews, (8) bones, (9) bone-marrow, (10) brain,[1011] (11) liver, (12) heart, (13) spleen, (14) lungs, (15) bile, (16) stomach, (17) fat, (18) grease, (19) brain-membrane, (20) large intestine, (21) small intestine, (22) excrement, (23) urine, (24) pus, (25) blood, (26) phlegm, (27) sweat, (28) synovial fluid, (29) tears, (30) nasal mucus, (31) saliva, which are impure (asuci).[1012]

The beginner meditator [should recite] these thirty-two aspects in forward and reverse order. Verbally wording them well, he should constantly utter them and contemplate them. Constantly contemplating them well, he should constantly verbally word them. Thereafter he should contemplate them only mentally in these four ways: through colour, direction,[1013] shape and location. He may, with discrimination, take one or two or more [parts] and grasp the coarse sign. [433a]

The meditator by means of three kinds of attention (manasikāra) achieves the arising [of the sign], i.e., through [attending to] colour, repulsiveness and emptiness.[1014] If the meditator gives rise to the sign

---

[1009] This appears to refer to the six direct-knowledges referred to in M III 97–98 (see next note) and Vism VIII.144.

[1010] Cf. M III 97–98: Kāyagatāya, bhikkhave, satiyā āsevitāya … susamāraddhāya dasānisaṃsā pāṭikaṅkhā. Aratiratisaho hoti, na ca taṃ arati sahati, uppannaṃ aratiṃ abhibhuyya viharati. Bhayabheravasaho hoti, … Khamo hoti sītassa uṇhassa jighacchāya pipāsāya ḍaṃsamakasavātātapasarīsapasamphassānaṃ duruttānaṃ durāgatānaṃ vacanapathānaṃ, uppannānaṃ sārīrikānaṃ vedanānaṃ dukkhānaṃ tibbānaṃ kharānaṃ kaṭukānaṃ asātānaṃ amanāpānaṃ pāṇaharānaṃ adhivāsakajātiko hoti. Catunnaṃ jhānānaṃ ābhicetasikānaṃ diṭṭhadhammasukhavihārānaṃ nikāmalābhī hoti akicchalābhī akasiralābhī. So anekavihitaṃ iddhividhaṃ paccānubhoti. … Dibbāya sotadhātuyā visuddhāya atikkantamānusikāya ubho sadde suṇāti dibbe ca mānuse ca, ye dūre santike ca …. Parasattānaṃ parapuggalānaṃ cetasā ceto paricca pajānāti. Sarāgaṃ vā cittaṃ … avimuttaṃ cittan'ti pajānāti. So anekavihitaṃ pubbenivāsaṃ anussarati, … Dibbena cakkhunā visuddhena atikkantamānusakena satte passati cavamāne … Āsavānaṃ khayā anāsavaṃ cetovimuttiṃ paññāvimuttiṃ diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṃ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharati.

[1011] The Chinese text (432c24) has 腦 or "brain," which is later mentioned again in the list as item 19. The Pali list and the list in the description of the earth-element in the body at 439c27 have "kidneys," which is missing from this list, as well as kilomaka, "pleura, midriff." See Vism VIII.115/p.257.

[1012] M I 57; III 90; D II 293–94; Khp @@; Vibh 193: … bhikkhu imameva kāyaṃ uddhaṃ pādatalā adho kesamatthakā tacapariyantaṃ pūraṃ nānappakārassa asucino paccavekkhati: Atthi imasmiṃ kāye kesā lomā nakhā dantā taco maṃsaṃ nahārū aṭṭhī aṭṭhimiñjā vakkaṃ hadayaṃ yakanaṃ kilomakaṃ pihakaṃ papphāsaṃ antaṃ antaguṇaṃ udariyaṃ karīsaṃ pittaṃ semhaṃ pubbo lohitaṃ sedo medo assu vasā khelo siṅghānikā lasikā muttan ti.

Matthaluṅga is not listed in these references, but is included as the final part at Paṭis I 7 & 137; Vibh-a 56, Mil 26, Nett 74. According to Vism VIII.44 it is included in bonemarrow in the former list.

[1013] Vism VIII.48 & 58f and Khp-a 41 have colour (vaṇṇato), shape (saṇṭhānato), direction (disato), location (okāsato), delimitation (paricchedato). The character 行 can represent saṅkhāra, cariyā, caraṇa, paṭipadā, gati, gamaṇa and even "line" or "series." Here it appears to represent Pali disa, "direction," in the sense of being a course, a general line of orientation.

[1014] EKS: "space." (p0433a05) 空, kong, means ākāsa, space, or suññatā, emptiness. In p0438b28 空 is used in the sense of "emptiness": "The comprehension of emptiness is its function" (i.e., of the contemplation of the elements). (Cf. Vism XI.117.) This comprehension is not in the Vism but is mentioned in the extensive explanation of the 32 parts of the body in the commentary to the Khuddakapāṭha. Khp-a 73: Yassa pana te dhammā suññato upaṭṭhahanti, so lakkhaṇato manasi karoti, lakkhaṇato manasikaronto tattha catudhātuvavatthānavasena upacārajjhānaṃ pāpuṇāti. Atha manasikaronto te dhamme aniccadukkhānattasuttattayavasena manasi karoti. Ayamassa vipassanānayo. Khp-a 74: Suññato ti dvattiṃsākāre aṭṭhavīsatisataṃ suññatā honti, yāsaṃ vasena yogāvacaro dvattiṃsākāraṃ suññato vipassati. Seyyathidaṃ kese tāva pathavīdhātu āpodhātvādīhi suññā, tathā āpodhātvādayo pathavīdhātvādīhī ti catasso suññatā honti. Evaṃ lomādīsu.

This mode therefore refers to "calm preceded by insight," (vipassanāpubbaṅgama samatha; see Paṭis II 96) i.e. insight into the empty nature of the body. Cf. Vism VIII.60: Kāyagatāsatisutte pana yassa vaṇṇato upaṭṭhāti, taṃ sandhāya cattāri jhānāni vibhattāni. Tattha dhātuvasena kathitaṃ vipassanākammaṭṭhānaṃ hoti. Paṭikkūlavasena kathitaṃ samathakammaṭṭhānaṃ.

through colour, he should attend with facility by way of the colour kasiṇas. If he gives rise to the sign through repulsiveness, he should attend by way of the foul. If the meditator gives rise to the sign through emptiness, he should attend by way of the elements.

If the meditator depends on the [colour-] kasiṇas, he gives rise to the fourth jhāna. If the meditator depends on a foulness object, he gives rise to the first jhāna. If he depends on an element object, he gives rise to access-jhāna.

Here a person with a hatred temperament gives rise to the sign through colour; a person with a greed temperament through repulsiveness; and a person with a intelligent temperament through the elements.

Again, a person with a hatred temperament should pay attention through colour; a person with a greed temperament through repulsiveness and a person with a intelligent temperament through the elements.

Mindfulness in thirteen ways

Again, one should be mindful of the nature of the body through thirteen ways: 433a11 through seed, location, condition, oozing, gradual formation, worms, supporting, assemblage, repulsiveness, foulness, dependence, ungratefulness and finitude.

Seed

Q. How should one be mindful of the nature of the body through seed?

A. As cornel cherries and kosātakī gourds,[1015] and so on, are all produced from poisonous seeds, so this body, produced from the impure seeds of mother and father, is also impure.

Thus one should be mindful of the nature of the body through seed. 433a17

Location

Q. How should one be mindful of the nature of the body through location?

A. This body is not born (nibbattati) in the flower of a blue lotus (uppala) or a white waterlily (kumuda) or a white lotus (puṇḍarīka).[1016] It is born in the belly of the mother, in a cramped, impure, stinking and filthy place. Born, it is cooked between the two receptables [for undigested and digested food (i.e. the stomach and rectum)]. It stays in the placenta's sack, between the flanks, bound up and leaning against the spine. This place is impure, and therefore the body is also impure.[1017]

Thus should one be mindful of the nature of the body through location. 433a21

Condition

Q. How should one be mindful of the nature of the body through condition?

A. When this impure body grows, it can not do so through gold, silver or gems and the like. It does not grow through sandalwood (candana), crape-jasmine-wood (tagara), agar-wood (agalu)[1018] and the like. This body is born in the belly of the mother. The food eaten by the mother gets mixed with nasal mucus, saliva, snot, and phlegm. It is born in the mother's womb where it grows through stinking nutriment fluids and juices.[1019] Upon getting out of that place, it eats rice, milk and beans, which are [1015] 茱萸 is (the berry of) Japanese cornel, Cornus officinalis. 拘沙多紀 = jū-shā-duō-jì, which could be a transliteration of kosātakī, which is a name one or more kinds of gourds, i.e., Luffa acutangula, Luffa petandra, or Trichosanthes dioeca.

---

[1016] Blue lotus: Nymphaea coerulea. White water-lily: Nymphaea esculenta. White lotus Nymphaea alba.

[1017] Vism XVI.37/p.500, Paṭis-a 143, etc.: Tatridaṃ gabbhokkantimūlakādibhedaṃ dukkhaṃ: ayañhi satto mātukucchimhi nibbattamāno na uppalapadumapuṇḍarīkādīsu nibbattati, atha kho heṭṭhā āmāsayassa upari pakkāsayassa udarapaṭalapiṭṭhikaṇṭakānaṃ vemajjhe paramasambādhe tibbandhakāre nānākuṇapagandhaparibhāvita-paramaduggandhapavanavicarite adhimattajegucche kucchippadese pūtimacchapūtikummāsacandanikādīsu kimi viya nibbattati. So tattha nibbatto dasamāse mātukucchisambhavena usmanā puṭapākaṃ viya paccamāno piṭṭhapiṇḍi viya sediyamāno samiñjanapasāraṇādivi-rahito adhimattaṃ dukkhaṃ paccanubhotī ti.

[1018] Candana is the Indian sandalwood tree, Santalum album and its fragrant wood from which bathing powder, incense etc., was prepared. Tagara is the flowering shrub Ervatamia divaricata = Tabernaemontana coronaria and its fragrant wood. Agalu (Skt aguru), also called aloe-wood or eagle-wood, is the resinous heartwood of the Agara tree Aquilaria mallacensis = A. agallocha.

[1019] Cf. S I 206: Yañ c'assa bhuñjate mātā, annaṃ pānañ ca bhojanaṃ, tena so tattha yāpeti, mātukucchigato naro ti.

S-a I 301: Tena so tattha yāpetī ti tassa hi nābhito uṭṭhito nāḷo mātu udarapaṭalena ekābaddho hoti, so uppaladaṇḍako viya chiddo, tena āhāraraso saṃsaritvā āhārasamuṭṭhānarūpaṃ samuṭṭhāpeti. Evaṃ so dasa māse yāpeti. S-ṭ 307 (Be): Tassā ti gabbhaseyyakasattassa. Mātu-udarapaṭalena ekābaddho hoti yato mātarā paribhuttaāhāro āmāsaye patiṭṭhite mixed and blended with nasal mucus, saliva, snot and phlegm. This body grows by means of stinking, filthy fluids.

Thus should one be mindful of the nature of the body through condition.

Oozing

Q. How should one be mindful of the nature of the body through oozing?

A. Like a leather bag filled with excrement and urine with many holes through which the filth oozes out, this body is also filled with excrement and urine. [433b] In this body, tasty foods and drinks become mingled with the stinking filths of nasal mucus, saliva, excrement and urine. Various filths ooze out from the [body's] nine openings. Because of having many holes, the body does not become full.[1020]

Thus should be mindful of the nature of the body through oozing.

Gradual formation

Q. How should one be mindful of the nature of the body through gradual formation?

A. This body gradually forms according to previous kamma: In the first week the embryo (kalala) comes to be; in the second week the growth (abbuda) comes to be; in the third week the lump (pesi) comes to be; in the fourth week the solid (ghana) comes to be; in the fifth week five parts come to be;[1021] in the sixth week four parts come to be; in the seventh week again four parts are produced; in the eighth week again twenty-eight parts are produced; in the ninth and tenth weeks the backbone is produced; in the eleventh week three hundred bones are produced; in the twelfth week eight hundred parts are produced; in the thirteenth week nine hundred parts are produced; in the fourteenth week one hundred lamps of flesh are produced; in the fifteenth week blood arises; in the sixteenth week the membranes[1022] are produced; in the seventeenth week the skin is produced; in the eighteenth week the colour of the skin is produced; in the nineteenth week, according to kamma, wind (i.e., motion) appears throughout [the body]; in the twentieth week the nine orifices come to be; in the twenty-fifth week the seventeen thousand tissues are produced; in the twenty-sixth week the body's firmness comes to be; in the twenty-seventh week it has (physical) power; in the twenty-eighth week the ninety-nine thousand pores arise; in the twenty-ninth week it is possessed of all of the body parts.

Again, it is also said[1023] that in the seventh week it has a physical frame (sarīra) and that it leans against the back of the mother with a lowered head in a crouching position.

In the forty-second week, according to kamma, wind arises, it reverses its position, turns its feet upwards and its head down towards the gate of birth. At this time it is born. The world [now] designates and calls it "a human."

Thus one should be mindful of the nature of the body through gradual formation.

Worms

Q. How should one be mindful of the nature of the body through the kinds of worms? 433b20

A. This body is eaten by the eighty thousand families of worms (asīti kimikulāni):[1024] gabbhassa nābhināḷānusārena gabbhagatassa sarīraṃ sampatvā āhārakiccaṃ karoti. Āhārasamuṭṭhānarūpaṃ samuṭṭhāpetīti gabbhagatassa kāye ojāya paccayo hoti. Sā ca taṃ paccayaṃ labhitvā ojaṭṭhamakaṃ rūpaṃ samuṭṭhāpeti. Evaṃ mātarā paribhutta-āhārapaccayena gabbhagato dasa māse yāpeti attano nābhināḷānusāragateneva tena yāva āhārasamuṭṭhānasattāho, tato paṭṭhāya āharaṇato. Keci pana mātarā paribhutta-āhāro bāhiravaggo viya tassa kāyaṃ abhisanneti parisanneti, tena so yāpetī ti vadanti. Kucchigataṃ udarapaṭalena tirohitattā bahi ṭhitanti vattabbataṃ na arahati ti kucchiyā abbhantaragato ti āha.

---

[1020] Cf. Sn 197: Ath' assa navahi sotehi asucī savati sabbadā. Th 1134: Na jātu bhastaṃ dubhato mukhaṃ chupe; dhiratthu pūraṃ navasotasandani. Th 394: Āturaṃ asuciṃi pūtiṃi passa kulla samussayaṃ, uggharantaṃ paggharantaṃ bālānaṃ abhinanditaṃ. Nidd I 181 on Sn 70: Kimevidaṃ muttakarīsapuṇṇaṃ, pādā pi naṃ samphusituṃ na iccheti. Kimevidaṃ sarīraṃ muttapuṇṇaṃ karīsapuṇṇaṃ semhapuṇṇaṃ ruhirapuṇṇaṃ aṭṭhisaṅghātanhārusambandhaṃ rudhiramaṃsāvalepanaṃ cammavinaddhaṃ chaviyā paṭicchannaṃ chiddāvachiddaṃ uggharantaṃ paggharantaṃ kimisaṅghanisevitaṃ nānākalimalaparipūraṃ…

[1021] Cf. S I 206: Paṭhamaṃ kalalaṃ hoti, kalalā hoti abbudaṃ, abbudā jāyate pesī, pesī, pesī nibbattati ghano, ghanā pasākhā jāyanti, kesā lomā nakhāni ca. Yañ c'assa bhuñjate mātā, annaṃ pānañ ca bhojanaṃ, tena so tattha yāpeti, mātukucchigato naro ti. Cf. S-a I 300–1.

[1022] 膜 E.g. midriff, pleura, etc. See Vism VIII.115/p.257 and Ñāṇamoli's note to it in PoP.

[1023] 復說, aparampi vutta, or perhaps apare vadanti, "others say."

[1024] 八萬戶虫. Only 90 families are listed below. In the Pali commentaries usually 80 families are mentioned (asītikimikulāni), e.g., Vism VIII.25, Khp-a 51, S-a II 321, but in a passage in M-a I 129/Nidd-a I 94 the number is 80000 (asītimattāni kimikulasahassāni): Yathā ca vammikassa anto nānappakārā pāṇakā tattheva jāyanti, uccārapassāvaṃ

The worms that rely on the hair are called "iron hair (loha-kesa or kesa-loha)." The worms that rely on the skull are called "swollen ear."[1025]

The worms that rely on the brain are called "maddener." There are four kinds of maddeners:. The first are called ukurimba.[1026] The second are called sipāla The third are called daraka. The fourth are called dakasira.

The worms that rely on the eye are called "eye-licker." The worms that rely on the ear are called "ear-licker."

The worms that rely on the nose are called "nose-licker." There are three kinds of them: The first are called rukamukha. The second are called aruka. The third are called manarumukha.

The worms that rely on the tongue are called mukha. The worms that rely on the root of the tongue are called motanta. The worms that rely on the teeth are called kuba. The worms that rely on the roots of the teeth are called ubakuba. The worms that rely on the throat are called abasaka.

The worms that rely on the neck are of two kinds: [433c] The first are called rokara. The second are called virokara.

The worms that rely on the hair of the body are called "body-hair licker." The worms that rely on the nails are called "nail-licker."

The worms that rely on the skin are of two kinds. The first are called tuna. The second are called tunanda.

The worms that rely on the membranes[1027] are of two kinds: The first are called viramba. The second are called mahāviramba.

The worms that rely on the flesh are of two kinds: The first are called araba. The second are called rasāba.

The worms that rely on the blood are of two kinds. The first are called bara. The second are called badara.

The worms that rely on the tendons are of four kinds: The first are called rotara. The second are called kitaba. The third are called baravatara. The fourth are called ranavarana.

The worms that rely on the veins are called karikuna.

The worms that rely on the roots of the veins are of two kinds: The first are called sivara. The second are called ubasisira.

The worms that rely on the bones are of four kinds: The first are called kachibida. The second are called anabida. The third are called chiridabida. The fourth are called kachigokara.

The worms that rely on the marrow are of two kinds: the first are called bisa. The second are called bisasira.

The worms that rely on the spleen are of two kinds: The first are called nira. The second are called bita.

The worms that rely on the heart are of two kinds: The first are called sibita. The second are called karonti, gilānā sayanti, matā patanti. Iti so tesaṃ sūtigharaṃ vaccakuṭi gilānasālā susānañca hoti. Evaṃ khattiyamahāsālādīnampi kāyo ayaṃ gopitarakkhito maṇḍitappasādhito mahānubhāvānaṃ kāyo ti acintetvā chavinissitā pāṇā cammanissitā pāṇā maṃsanissitā pāṇā nhārunissitā pāṇā aṭṭhinissitā pāṇā aṭṭhimiñjanissitā pāṇā ti evaṃ kulagaṇanāya asītimattāni kimikulasahassāni antokāyasmiṃ yeva jāyanti, uccārapassāvaṃ karonti, gelaññena āturitāni sayanti, matāni patanti, iti ayampi tesaṃ pāṇānaṃ sūtigharaṃ vaccakuṭi gilānasālā susānañca hotī ti vammiko tveva saṅkhaṃ gato.

---

Cf. Śikṣāsamuccaya p. 81 (Bendall ed.): aśītiṃ krimikulasahasrāṇi yāni tiṣṭhanti antare | aha bālā na paśyanti mohajālenâvṛtāḥ. Cf. Śikṣ p. 129. Cf. Thī 469. Kimiva tāhaṃ jānantī, vikulakaṃ maṃsasoṇitupalittaṃ; kimikulālayaṃ sakuṇabhattaṃ, kaḷevaraṃ kissa dīyati. Khp-a 47, Sn-a I 247: Navapesisatā maṃsā, anulittā kaḷevaraṃ; nānākimikulākiṇṇaṃ, mīḷhaṭṭhānaṃva pūtikan-ti. Pv-a 192: nānāvidhakimikulākulaṃ.

Below, in the reflection on the repulsiveness of the body through "assemblage" (at Vim 434a24), 80000 kinds of worms are also mentioned. (see p. @@) The term is also found in other Chinese translations, e.g. T01n0007_p0194c12.

Elsewhere in the Pali 32 families of worms are mentioned, but only the names of the first families are given: Vism VIII.121/p.258, Vibh-a 242, Khp-a 57: yattha takkoṭaka (Khp-a: takkolaka) gaṇḍuppādakā tālahīrakā sūcimukhakā paṭatantasuttakā iccevamādidvattiṃsakulappabhedā kimayo ākulabyākulā saṇḍasaṇḍacārino hutvā nivasanti. Vism-ṭ I 416 (Be) mentions two families of 32 worms: ukkocakādayo, takkoṭakādayo ca dvattiṃsa dvattiṃsa kulappabhedā kimayo ca naṃ upanissāya jīvantī ti. A-ṭ II 351 (Be) mentions perhaps another list: Kaṭukīṭakādayo dvattiṃsakulappabhedā kimiyo naṃ upanissāya jīvantī ti.

[1025] 耳腫. V.l. 耳種 "ear-kind" (sota-bīja).

[1026] All the following names of types of worms are EKS's transliterations from the Chinese transliterations. Bapat (1937, p. 131f), also gives this list of worms with different transliterations.

[1027] 膜 E.g. midriff, pleura, etc. See Vism VIII.115/p.257 and Ñāṇamoli's note to it in PoP.

ubadabita.

The worms that rely on the root of the heart are of two kinds: The first are called manka. The second are called sira.

The worms that rely on the fat are of two kinds: The first are called kara. The second are called karasira.

The worms that rely on the bladder are of two kinds: The first are called bikara. The second are called mahākara.

The worms that rely on the root of the bladder are of two kinds: The first are called kara. The second are called karasira.[1028]

The worms that rely on the placenta are of two kinds: The first are called supāla. The second are called mahāsupāla.

The worms that rely on the root of the placenta are of two kinds: The first are called rata. The second are called mahārata.

The worms that rely on the small intestine are of two kinds: The first are called sorata. The second are called mahārata.

The worms that rely on the root of the [small] intestine are of two kinds: The first are called siba. The second are called mahāsiba.

The worms that rely on the root of[1029] the large intestine are of two kinds: The first are called anabaka. The second are called kababaka.

The worms that rely on the stomach are of four kinds: The first are called ujuka. The second are called ushaba. The third are called chisaba. The fourth are called sensiba.

The worms that rely on the rectum are of four kinds: The first are called vakana. The second are called mahāvakana. The third are called unaban. The fourth are called [434a] punamaka.

The worms that rely on the bile are called hitasoka. The worms that rely on saliva are called senka. The worm the relies on sweat are called sudasaka. The worms that rely on grease are called jidasaka.

The worms that rely on strength are of two kinds: The first are called subakama. The second is called samakita.

The worms that rely on the root of strength are of three kinds: The first are called sukamukha. The second are called darukamukha. The third are called sanamukha.

There are five[1030] kinds of worms: those that rely on the front of the body and feed on the front of the body; those that rely on the back of the body and feed on the back of the body; those that rely on the left side of the body and feed on the left side of the body; those that rely on the right side of the body and feed on the right side of the body; and worms called candasira, sinkasira, hucura and so forth.

There are three kinds of worms that rely on the two lower orifices. The first are called kurukulayuyu. The second are called sarayu. The third are called ganduppada.

Thus one should be mindful of the nature of the body through its resident worms. 0434a11

Supporting

Q. How should one be mindful of the nature of the body through supporting (patiṭṭhā)?

A. The foot-bones hold up the shin-bones; the shin-bones hold up the thigh-bones, the thigh-bones hold up the pelvic bone; the pelvic bone holds up ports the spine bones; the spine bones hold up the shoulder-blades; the shoulder-blades hold up the arm bones; the arm-bones hold up the neck bones; the neck-bones hold up the skull; the skull holds up the jaw bones. The jaw-bones hold up the teeth bones.[1031]

[1028] These two names are also given for the 2 worms feeding on fat, two lines above. This section appears to be corrupt, see next footnote.

[1029] The first part of the pair, i.e., the large intestine (without "root of"), apparently is missing here, or "root of" is a corruption.

[1030] Only four are explained here.

[1031] Cf. Vism XI.55/p.355 Aṭṭhīsu paṇhikaṭṭhi gopphakaṭṭhiṃ ukkhipitvā ṭhitaṃ. Gopphakaṭṭhi jaṅghaṭṭhiṃ ukkhipitvā ṭhitaṃ. Jaṅghaṭṭhi ūruṭṭhiṃ ukkhipitvā ṭhitaṃ. Ūruṭṭhi kaṭiṭṭhiṃ ukkhipitvā ṭhitaṃ. Kaṭiṭṭhi piṭṭhikaṇṭakaṃ ukkhipitvā ṭhitaṃ, piṭṭhikaṇṭako gīvaṭṭhiṃ ukkhipitvā ṭhito. Gīvaṭṭhi sīsaṭṭhiṃ ukkhipitvā ṭhitaṃ. Sīsaṭṭhi gīvaṭṭhike patiṭṭhitaṃ. … Gopphakaṭṭhi paṇhikaṭṭhike patiṭṭhitaṃ. Khp-a 51: … sīsaṭṭhīni gīvaṭṭhikesu patiṭṭhitāni, gīvaṭṭhīni piṭṭhikaṇṭakaṭṭhīsu patiṭṭhitāni, piṭṭhikaṇṭakaṭṭhīni kaṭiṭṭhīsu patiṭṭhitāni, kaṭiṭṭhīni ūruṭṭhikesu patiṭṭhitāni, uruṭṭhīni jaṇṇukaṭṭhikesu, jaṇṇukaṭṭhīni jaṅghaṭṭhikesu, jaṅghaṭṭhīni gopphakaṭṭhikesu, gopphakaṭṭhīni piṭṭhipādaṭṭhikesu patiṭṭhitāni, piṭṭhipādaṭṭhikāni ca gopphakaṭṭhīni ukkhipitvā ṭhitāni, gopphakaṭṭhīni jaṅghaṭṭhīni … pe … gīvaṭṭhīni sīsaṭṭhīni ukkhipitvā ṭhitānīti etenānusārena avasesānipi aṭṭhīni veditabbāni.

Thus this body is a conjunction of bones, wrapped in a hide, hidden by the outer skin. This filthy body is born of kamma; no other [being] is able to create it.[1032]

Thus should one recall the nature of the body through supporting.

Assemblage

How should one reflect on the nature of the body through assemblage (samāsa)? There are nine bones of the head, two cheek bones, thirty-two teeth, seven neck-bones, fourteen chest-bones, twenty-four flank-bones, eighteen back bones, two hip-bones, sixty-four hand-bones, sixty-four foot-bones, and sixty-four cartilage-bones which depend on the flesh. There are three hundred bones, eight hundred joints, nine hundred tendons, nine hundred muscles, seventeen thousand tissues, eight million hairs of the head, ninety-nine thousand hairs of the body, sixty interstices, eighty thousand kinds of worms.[1033] Bile, saliva and brain are each a palata in weight and blood is one attha in weight.[1034] Thus these countless kinds of forms, which are only a mass of excrement and an accumulation of urine, are called "body."

Thus should one be mindful of the nature of the body through assemblage.

Loathesomeness

Q. How should one be mindful of the nature of the body through repulsiveness?

A. That which is valued most is clean. That which is dear are clothes and ornaments, such as garlands, perfumes and cosmetics (māla-gandha-vilepana), splendid clothes, and bedspreads, pillows, mattresses, rugs and cushions used for sleeping and sitting, bolsters, blankets, canopies, bedding, etc. [434b] and also various kinds of food and drink, residences and gifts. A man likes and appreciates these [when they are clean] but later [when they are dirty] loathes them.

Thus should one be mindful of the nature of the body through repulsiveness.

Uncleanness

Q. How should one be mindful of the nature of the body through uncleanness (aparisuddhi)?

A. When clothes and various kinds of ornaments become dirty, they can be washed and treated and made clean again. Why? Because their nature is clean. But this unclean body can not be cleaned.

Again, through applying perfumes and through washing in perfumed water it can not become clean. Why? Because its nature is unclean.

Thus should one be mindful of the nature of the body through uncleanness. 434b07

Dependence

Q. How should one be mindful of the nature of the body through dependence (nissaya)?

A. Depending on a pond, lotus flowers are born, and depending on an orchard, fruits are born, in the same way depending on this body various annoyances, diseases and afflictions are born. Thus there are eye ache, ear ache, nose ache, tongue ache, body ache, head ache, mouth ache and teeth ache, cough, asthma, chills and fevers, abdominal ache, heart-disease, epilepsy, colic, diarrhoea, leprosy, goitre, vomiting of blood, ringworm, sores, itch, scabies, gonorrhoea, colds and so on.[1035] This body has innumerable afflictions.

Thus one should one be mindful of the nature of the body through dependence.

[1032] Nidd I 181: aṭṭhisaṅghātanhārusambandhaṃ rudhiramaṃsāvalepanaṃ cammavinaddhaṃ chaviyā paṭicchannaṃ. Sn 196: Aṭṭhinahārusaṃyutto, tacamaṃsāvalepano; Chaviyā kāyo paṭicchanno, yathābhūtaṃ na dissati. Th 569: Saṭṭhikaṇḍarasambandho, maṃsalepanalepito; cammakañcukasannaddho, pūtikāyo niratthako. 570: Aṭṭhisaṅghātaghaṭito, nhārusuttanibandhano; nekesaṃ saṃgatībhāvā, kappeti iriyāpathaṃ. 574: Evāyaṃ vattate kāyo, kammayantena yantito; sampatti ca vipatyantā, nānābhāvo vipajjati.

[1033] Cf. Khp-a 51: Kevalaṃ tu imāni sādhikāni tīṇi aṭṭhisatāni navahi nhārusatehi navahi ca maṃsapesisatehi ābaddhānulittāni, ekaghanacammapariyonaddhāni, sattarasaharaṇīsahassānugatasinehasinehitāni, navanavutilomakūpa-sahassaparissavamānasedajallikāni asītikimikulāni, kāyo tveva saṅkhyaṃ gatāni, yaṃ sabhāvato upaparikkhanto yogāvacaro na kiñci gayhūpagaṃpassati, kevalaṃ tu nhārusambandhaṃ nānākuṇapasaṅkiṇṇaṃ aṭṭhisaṅghāṭameva passati.

[1034] The Chinese text adds: "in Liáng this is equal to four ryo" and "in Liáng this is equal to three sho" after the measurements.

[1035] Cf. A V 109: Bahudukkho kho ayaṃ kāyo bahuādīnavo. Iti imasmiṃ kāye vividhā ābādhā uppajjanti, seyyathidaṃ cakkhurogo sotarogo ghānarogo jivhārogo kāyarogo sīsarogo kaṇṇarogo mukharogo dantarogo oṭṭharogo kāso sāso pināso ḍāho jaro kucchirogo mucchā pakkhandikā sūlā visūcikā kuṭṭhaṃ gaṇḍo kilāso soso apamāro daddu kaṇḍu kacchu nakhasā vitacchikā lohitapittaṃ madhumeho aṃsā piḷakā bhagandalā… Cf. Nidd I 12.

Ungratefulness

Q. How should one be mindful of the nature of the body through ungratefulness (akataññutā)?[1036]

A. Even if one takes care of one's body with the best food and drink, or washes, bathes, rubs or perfumes it, and whether sleeping or sitting, clothes it with garments in order to adorn it, this body, , which is like a poisonous tree, on the contrary is ungrateful and goes towards ageing, disease and death. The body is like an intimate friend who does not know gratitude.

Thus one should be mindful of the nature of the body through "ungratefulness."

Finitude 434b17

Q. How should one be mindful of the nature of the body through finitude?

A. This body will be cremated or devoured [by animals] or decompose, or be worn away. This body is finite.

Thus one should be mindful of the nature of the body through finitude.

Conclusion

The meditator through these ways and means should recollect the nature of the body. Because of the facility of recollection and the facility of wisdom, his mind is not wavering. When the mind is unwavering, the hindrances are suspended, the jhāna factors manifest and he accomplishes distinction as he wishes.

Recollection of the body is finished.

Recollection of Stilling

Q. What is "recollection of stilling"?[1037] What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and near cause? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. "Stilling" is the ceasing of mental and physical perturbations (iñjita). Because of their elimination, it is called "stilling." When one is recalling stilling, that mindfulness, recollection, [the mindfulness which is remembering, recalling, retaining, holding, not forgetting, the mindfulness which is the faculty of mindfulness, the power of mindfulness,] and, right recollectedness—this is called "recollection of stilling."

The unwavering dwelling of the mind in this recollection is called the practising of it. To cause the arising of the qualities of the imperturbable (āneñja) is its characteristic. Non-agitation is its function. Sublime freedom is its near cause.

Q. What are its benefits?

A. If one practises the recollection of stilling, one sleeps comfortably and wakes comfortably, one has a calm mind and has calm faculties, one is endowed with resolve, one is pleasing, one is endowed with conscience and shame, one is always respected and esteemed by people, one is destined to a good destination (sugati) or is destined to the deathless.[1038] [434c]

Q. What is the procedure?

A. The beginner meditator goes to a secluded place, sits down and composes his whole mind. With his mind unwavering [he recollects thus]: "Such a bhikkhu's faculties are still; his mind is still. He enjoys sure (ekanta) stillness. Dwelling accordingly, that bhikkhu, [is still] by body, speech and mind, whether seeing or hearing, through the recollection of stilling and the benefits of stilling."

As the Blessed One taught: "The bhikkhus who are endowed with virtue, endowed with concentration, endowed with wisdom, endowed with freedom and is endowed with the knowledge and vision of freedom—seeing those bhikkhus, I say, is of great benefit. Hearing those bhikkhus, I say, is of great benefit. Approaching those bhikkhus, I declare, is of great benefit. Attending those bhikkhus, … recollecting those bhikkhus, … going forth in imitation of those bhikkhus, I say, is of great benefit. Why [1036] Th-a III 16: Ukkaṇṭhāmi sarīrenā ti asārakena abhinudena dukkhena akataññunā asuciduggandhajegucchapaṭikkūlasabhāvena iminā kāyena ukkaṇṭhāmi imaṃ kāyaṃ nibbindanto evaṃ tiṭṭhāmi.

---

Cp-a 293: … mayā mahādukkhe akataññuke niccāsucimhi kāye paresaṃ upakārāya viniyujjamāne aṇumattopi micchāvitakko na uppādetabbo.

[1037] Because upasama has a more psychologically active sense than "peace," santi, and because the Chinese also conveys this active meaning, "stilling" is used here as translation. Cf. Vism VII.1/p.197: Upasamaṃ ārabbha uppannā anussati upasamānussati, sabbadukkhūpasamārammaṇāya satiyā etamadhivacanaṃ.

[1038] Cf. Vism VII.251/p.294: Imañca pana upasamānussatiṃ anuyutto bhikkhu sukhaṃ supati, sukhaṃ paṭibujjhati, santindriyo hoti santamānaso hirottappasamannāgato pāsādiko paṇītādhimuttiko sabrahmacārīnaṃ garu ca bhāvanīyo ca. Uttari appaṭivijjhanto pana sugatiparāyano hoti.

is that so? By listening to the Dhamma taught by those bhikkhus one gains the two seclusions, namely, seclusion of the body and seclusion of the mind."[1039]

"When that bhikkhu enters upon the first jhāna, through the recollection of stilling, the hindrances cease.[1040] When he enters upon the second jhāna, through the recollection of stilling, thinking and exploring cease. When he enters upon the third jhāna, through the recollection of stilling, rapture ceases. When he enters upon the fourth jhāna, through the recollection of stilling, happiness ceases. When he enters upon the base of boundless space, through the recollection of stilling, perceptions of matter, perceptions of impact and perceptions of diversity cease. When he enters upon the base of boundless consciousness, through the recollection of stilling, the perception of base of boundless space ceases. When he enters upon the base of nothingness, through the recollection of stilling, the perception of the base of boundless consciousness ceases. When he enters upon the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception, through the recollection of stilling, the perception of the base of nothingness ceases. When he enters upon the state of the cessation of perception and feeling, through the recollection of stilling, perception and feeling ceases. When he gains the Fruit of Stream-entry, through the recollection of stilling, the defilements related to views cease. When he gains the Fruit of Once-returning, through the recollection of stilling, coarse sensual desire (kāma-rāga), coarse hatred (paṭigha) and coarse defilements cease. When he gains the Fruit of Non-returning, through the recollection of stilling, fine defilements, fine sensual desire and fine hate cease. When he gains the Fruit of Arahantship, through the recollection of stilling, all defilements cease.[1041] When he enters upon Nibbāna,[1042] through the recollection of stilling, everything ceases."

The meditator, through these ways and these means, and through these qualities, recollects stilling, his mind is filled with faith. Because of the facility of faith, because of the facility of recollection, his mind is unwavering. When his mind is unwavering, the hindrances are suspended, the jhāna factors manifest and [the mind] becomes concentrated in access-jhāna.

The recollection of stilling is finished.

The ten recollections are finished. 434c24

Miscellaneous Topics on the Ten Recollections

The following are the miscellaneous topics concerning these ten recollections.

If one recollects the qualities of the Buddhas of the past and the future, it is called "the practice of the recollection of the Buddha." In the same way one recollects the qualities of the Paccekabuddhas.

If one recollects one of the doctrines (dhamma) that have been well taught, it is called "the practice of the recollection of the Dhamma."

If one recollects the qualities of the practice (paṭipadā) of one disciple, it is called "the recollection of the Saṅgha."

[1039] S V 67, It § 104: Ye te bhikkhave bhikkhu sīlasampannā samādhisampannā paññāsampannā vimuttisampannā vimuttiñāṇadassanasampannā dassanaṃ pāhaṃ bhikkhave tesaṃ bhikkhūnaṃ bahūpakāraṃ vadāmi. Savanaṃ … Upasaṅkamanaṃ … Payirūpāsanaṃ … Anussatiṃ … Anupabbajjaṃ pāhaṃ bhikkhave tesaṃ bhikkhūnaṃ bahūpakāraṃ vadāmi. Taṃ kissa hetu? Tathārūpānaṃ, bhikkhave, bhikkhūnaṃ dhammaṃ sutvā dvayena vūpakāsena vūpakaṭṭho viharati kāyavūpakāsena ca cittavūpakāsena ca. …

[1040] It is unclear whether "through the recollection of stilling," 以寂寂念, goes with the preceding clause or the succeeding one; normally it goes with the latter. In the following clauses with the jhānas and attainments, except for Nibbāna, this clause is abbreviated to just 念, recollection. It is also not clear it refers to the bhikkhu who is recollected before the preceding quotation or whether it is a new quotation. The character 滅 is normally used for nirujjhati, nirodheti, but also for passambhati, samatha, etc.

[1041] Cf. Nidd I 74: Tisso santiyo accantasanti, tadaṅgasanti, sammutisanti. Katamā accantasanti? Accantasanti vuccati amataṃ nibbānaṃ. Yo so sabbasaṅkhārasamatho … nibbānaṃ. … Katamā tadaṅgasanti? Paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ samāpannassa nīvaraṇā santā honti; … nevasaññānāsaññāyatanaṃ samāpannassa ākiñcaññāyatanasaññā santā hoti. Ayaṃ tadaṅgasanti. Katamā sammutisanti? Sammutisantiyo vuccanti dvāsaṭṭhi diṭṭhigatāni diṭṭhisantiyo. Cf. S IV 217: Paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ samāpannassa vācā vūpasantā hoti. Dutiyaṃ jhānaṃ samāpannassa vitakkavicārā vūpasantā honti … pe… saññāvedayitanirodhaṃ samāpannassa saññā ca vedanā ca vūpasantā honti. Khīṇāsavassa bhikkhuno rāgo vūpasanto hoti, doso vūpasanto hoti, moho vūpasanto hoti. Cf. Paṭis I 101: Paṭhamena jhānena nīvaraṇe nirodheti; … ākiñcaññāyatana-saññaṃ. Sotāpattimaggena diṭṭhekaṭṭhe kilese … arahattamaggena sabbakilese nirodheti.

[1042] I.e. at the break up of his body, all experience will completely cease, which is the Nibbāna element without remainder, anupādisesa-nibbāna-dhātu. The preceding destruction of all defilements/Fruit of Arahantship is the Nibbāna element with remainder, saupādisesa-nibbānadhātu, because the arahant still has the five physical faculties with which he experiences feelings. See It It 2:7/It 38.

If one recollects virtue, it is called "the practice of the recollection of virtue."

If one recollects liberality, it is called "the recollection of liberality." If one delights in the recollection of liberality, [in the] giving to men who have good qualities, one should grasp and uphold [that] sign. [435a] If one accepts a gift [of food] and has not yet given even a morsel (piṇḍa, ālopa) [from it to someone else], one should not eat.

The recollection of gods: If one is endowed with the five qualities (dhamma) of faith [and so on], one should practice the recollection of gods.[1043]

The Four Immeasurables

The Immeasurable Mind of Loving-kindness

Q. What is "loving-kindness" (mettā)? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and manifestation? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. As parents with only one child, on seeing their dear child, arouse the mind of loving-kindness (metta-citta) and the mind of benevolence (hita-citta), just so one arouses the mind of loving-kindness and the mind of benevolence towards all beings.[1044] This is the meaning of "loving-kindness."

The unwavering dwelling in this practice is the practice of it. To cause the arising of benevolence is its characteristic. Affection is its function.[1045] Non-ill-will is its manifestation.

If one practises loving-kindness, one accomplishes and gains eleven benefits:[1046] (1) one sleeps comfortably; (2) one awakes comfortably; (3) one does not see bad dreams; (4) one is dear to humans; (5) one is dear to non-humans; (6) gods protect one; (7) fire, poison, sword and stick[1047] cannot touch one; (8) one's mind quickly concentrates; (9) one's complexion is bright; (10) at the time of death one is not bewildered; (11) if one attains not the supreme state, one is reborn in the world of Brahmā. 435a19

Disadvantages of anger and resentment

Q. What is the procedure?

A. The beginner meditator who desires to practise loving-kindness should start with reflecting on the disadvantages of anger and resentment and on the advantages of patience, and he should resolve upon patience.

Q. What is meant by "should start with reflecting on the disadvantages of anger and resentment"?

A. If someone arouses anger and resentment, his mind of loving-kindness is consumed and his mind becomes troubled. Thereafter, increasingly angry, he frowns; thereafter, increasingly angry, he utters harsh words; thereafter, increasingly angry, he looks in the four directions; thereafter, increasingly angry, he lays hold of stick and sword; thereafter, increasingly angry, he convulses with rage and spits blood; thereafter, increasingly angry, he hurls valuables hither and thither; thereafter, increasingly angry, he hits and breaks many things; thereafter, increasingly angry, he kills others or kills himself.

[1043] RB's transl. EKS: "There are five doctrines. One should practise the recollection of deities." Probably this refers to the five qualities (confidence, virtue, learning, liberality and wisdom) that the deities are endowed with and which one is supposed to recollect; see the section on dealing with the recollection of deities.

[1044] Cf. A I 54. Accharāsaṅghātamattampi ce, bhikkhave, bhikkhu mettacittaṃ bhāveti; ayaṃ vuccati, bhikkhave, bhikkhu arittajjhāno viharati satthusāsanakaro ovādapatikaro, amoghaṃ raṭṭhapiṇḍaṃ bhuñjati. Ko pana vādo ye naṃ bahulīkarontī ti. (Cf. S II 264, A IV 395) A-a IV 186: Mettacittanti sabbasattānaṃ hitapharaṇacittaṃ. Taṃ pana appanāvaseneva gahitaṃ.. M I 123: ... evaṃ sikkhitabbaṃ na ceva me cittaṃ vipariṇataṃ bhavissati, na ca pāpikaṃ vācaṃ nicchāressāmi, hitānukampī ca viharissāmi mettacitto, na dosantaro ti. Th 648: Sabbamitto sabbasakho, sabbabhūtānukampako; Mettacittañca bhāvemi, abyāpajjarato sadā. D-a I 71: ... appamāṇena mettena cittena sakalaṃ sattalokaṃ anukampati. ... Appamāṇaṃ hitaṃ cittan-ti appamāṇaṃ katvā bhāvitaṃ sabbasattesu hitacittaṃ. J-a II 61: Dayāpanno ti dayaṃ mettacittataṃ āpanno. Sabbapāṇabhūtahitānukampī ti; sabbe pāṇabhūte hitena anukampako. Tāya dayāpannatāya sabbesaṃ pāṇabhūtānaṃ hitacittako ti attho.

[1045] Ap-a 224: Tattha aparimāṇesu cakkavāḷesu aparimāṇā sattā sukhī hontu ti ādinā sinehalakkhaṇāya mettāya pharitvā viharanti ... Vism IX.92, Dhs-a 192: tāva mejjati ti mettā, siniyhati ti attho. Vism IX.93, Dhs-a 193: hitākārappavattilakkhaṇā mettā, hitūpasaṃhārarasā, āghātavinayapaccupaṭṭhānā, sattānaṃ manāpabhāvadassanapadaṭṭhānā. Byāpādūpasamo etissā sampatti, sinehasambhavo vipatti.

[1046] A V 342; Paṭis II 130; Mil 197: ... Sukhaṃ supati, sukhaṃ paṭibujjhati, na pāpakaṃ supinaṃ passati, manussānaṃ piyo hoti, amanussānaṃ piyo hoti, devatā rakkhanti nāssa aggi vā visaṃ vā satthaṃ vā kamati, tuvaṭaṃ cittaṃ samādhiyati, mukhavaṇṇo vippasīdati, asammūḷho kālaṃ karoti, uttariṃ appaṭivijjhanto brahmalokūpago hoti.

[1047] 'Stick,' 杖, is not mentioned in the sutta of the previous endnote.

Again, if someone is constantly angry and resentful, he does such fearful deeds as murdering his mother or father, or murdering an Arahant, or dividing the Saṅgha, or, with a wicked mind, spilling blood from the body of a Buddha.[1048] Thus should one reflect.

And again, one should reflect thus: "I am called a disciple (sāvaka); I shall be put to shame if I do not eliminate anger and resentment. I remember the simile of the saw.[1049] [435b] I desire wholesome states [of mind]; if now I increase anger and resentment, and approve of hatred, I am like a man who is desirous of taking a bath, but instead enters a cesspool. I am one who has heard much (bahussuta); if I do not overcome anger and resentment, I shall be rejected and despised like a physician who is afflicted with vomiting and diarrhoea. I am esteemed by the world; if I do not remove anger and resentment, I shall be rejected and despised like a painted vase containing and exposing filth. 435b05

[Further, one reflects thus:] "If a man has wisdom and nevertheless gives rise to anger and resentment, he is like a man who deliberately eats food mixed with poison.[1050] Why? Because he has more to get rid of and diminish this anger and resentment, and the result (vipāka) is painful.

He is like a man who is bitten by a snake and has the antidote but is not willing to swallow it. That man is to be known as one who relishes suffering and not happiness. In the same way, if a bhikkhu who gives rise to anger and resentment does not suppress these quickly, he is to be known as one who relishes suffering and not happiness. Why? Because he has more to fear from this anger and resentment."

And again, one should reflect on anger and resentment thus: "One who arouses anger and resentment makes his enemies smile, and makes his friends feel ashamed. Though he may have deep virtue, he is despised. If he was originally respected, he becomes disrespected. If seeking happiness, he gets suffering. Having obtained imperturbility (āneñja), he becomes perturbed. Having vision, he becomes blind. If wise, he becomes foolish."

Thus one should reflect on the disadvantages of anger and resentment.

Q. What is meant by "one should reflect on the advantages of patience"?

A. [One should reflect:] "Patience is power.[1051] This is an armour capable of protecting the body and removing anger and ill-will. This is honour. This is praised by the wise. This gives the happiness of non-remorse.[1052] This is a guardian which gives full protection. This is a skill that gives insight into phenomena. This is a designation for 'conscience and shame' (hiri-ottappa)."

And further, one should reflect thus: "Having shorn off the hair of the head, I should be very patient.[1053] Having received the alms of the country, 435b20 through having a mind of patience I will give great fruit and reward (mahāphala-vipāka) to the givers. I bear the appearance and the apparel of the Noble Ones;[1054] this patience is a practice of the Noble Ones, When I have anger, I will give rise to non-anger. I am called a disciple (sāvaka); now I will truly be called a disciple. The givers of alms give me various things; through this patience I will cause them to obtain great reward. I have faith; this patience is my base (vatthu) of faith. I have wisdom; this patience is my base of wisdom. If there is the poison of anger and resenment in me, this patience is the antidote."

Thus one should reflect on the disadvantages of anger and resentment and on the advantages of patience, and resolve: "I will reach patience. When people blame me, I will be patient. I will be meek and not haughty."[1055] Thus the meditator proceeds towards patience, wishing to benefit himself.

[1048] These are the five immediately retributive actions, ānantarikāni kammāni or ānantariya-kammāni, which prevent one from becoming an stream-enterer or from fully entering the Sangha as a bhikkhu. Probably 可畏事, "fearful deeds" is the translation of ānantariya-kammāni. Cf. Vibh 378: Tattha katamāni pañca kammāni ānantarikāni? Mātā jīvitā voropitā hoti, pitā jīvitā voropito hoti, arahanto jīvitā voropito hoti, duṭṭhena cittena tathāgatassa lohitaṃ uppāditaṃ hoti, saṅgho bhinno hoti – imāni pañca kammāni ānantarikāni. Vin II 193: Idaṃ, bhikkhave, devadattena paṭhamaṃ ānantariyaṃ kammaṃ upacitaṃ, yaṃ duṭṭhacittena vadhakacittena tathāgatassa ruhiraṃ uppāditan-ti. Vin I 135: na mātughātakassa … na pitughātakassa … na arahantaghātakassa … na saṅghabhedakassa … na lohituppādakassa … nisinnaparisāya pātimokkhaṃ uddisitabbaṃ.

[1049] Cf. Th 445: Uppajjate sace kodho āvajja kakacūpamaṃ. M I 129, 186, 189: Ubhatodaṇḍakena ce pi bhikkhave kakacena corā ocarakā aṅgamaṅgāni okanteyyuṃ, tatra pi yo mano padoseyya na me so tena sāsanakaro ti.

[1050] RB's transl: "When a wise man grows angry and resentful, he inflicts severe sufferings. So he will be poisoned out of the fear of terrible punishment."

[1051] a. Dhp 399: Khantibalaṃ balāṇīkaṃ. b. Paṭis II 171: Byāpādassa pahīnattā abyāpādo khantī ti khantibalaṃ.

[1052] 不退; see note @@ to 400b13 on the confusion of aparihāna/apratisāra and vippaṭisāra.

[1053] Cf. M-a I 79: Āvuso, pabbajito nāma adhivāsanasīlo hotī 'ti.

[1054] Th 961: Surattaṃ arahaddhajaṃ.

[1055] Cf. Ud 45: Sutvāna vākyaṃ pharusaṃ udīritaṃ adhivāsaye bhikkhu aduṭṭhacitto 'ti.

He enters a place of seclusion, and with mind unwavering begins to fill his body [with the thought] thus: "I am happy. My mind is happy and admits no suffering." [435c] [Or:] "I am without enmity; I have no malevolence; I am happily free from all anxiety and am endowed with all good qualities"[1056]

The meditator subdues his mind and makes it soft and wieldy. If his mind is soft, and able to bear the object, then he should develop loving-kindness towards all beings as to himself.

435c05 When developing loving-kindness towards all beings, the meditator cannot at the start arouse loving-kindness for enemies, neutral persons, wicked persons, persons without good qualities, and dead persons. The meditator should arouse loving-kindness for one whom has benefited him, one whom he respects, one who arouses a sense of conscience and shame (hiri-ottappa) in him, but not for one whom he despises, nor for one whom is neutral to him. He should at the start arouse loving-kindness for one whom he has no jealousy or ill-will. At the start he should recollect his benevolent and respectable qualities thus: "Because of his being endowed with a good character, because of being endowed with renown, learning, virtue, concentration and wisdom I honour and respect him. Because of his generosity, kind speech, beneficial acts and participation[1057] I am benefitted."

Thus he well recollects the qualities of the one he respects and whom has benefitted him and generates the perception of respect and the perception of friendship towards that person he should develop loving-kindness, 435c14 should give rise the benevolent mind and always think and reflect and wish him to have a mind that is without enmity. One should wish him to be without malevolence. One should wish him to be without anxiety (anīgha), to be endowed with all benefits, to gain good rewards, to have renown, to have faith, to have happiness, to have virtue, learning, generosity and wisdom. One should wish him to sleep comfortably and to wake comfortably. One should wish [him] to see no bad dream. One should wish him to be dear to humans. One should wish him to be dear to non-human beings. One should wish him to be protected by gods. One should wish him to be unaffected by fire, poison, sword or stick and the like. One should wish that his mind concentrates quickly. One should wish him to have a bright complexion.[1058] One should wish him to be born in the Middle Country (majjhimadesa); to meet good men (sappurisa); to perfect himself; to be free from disease; to have a long life; and to always obtain comfort (phāsu). 435c22

And again, one should reflect thus: If one has not yet given rise to unwholesome states (akusala dhamma) towards him, one resolves (paṇidahati) not to give rise to them; if one has already given rise to them, one resolves to stop and abandon them. If one has not yet given rise to wholesome states, one

---

[1056] Cf. Vism IC.8: Sabbapaṭhamaṃ pana ahaṃ sukhito homi niddukkhā ti vā, avero abyāpajjo anīgho sukhī attānaṃ pariharāmī ti vā evaṃ punappunaṃ attaniyeva bhāvetabbā.

In the Chinese text there are the characters indicating a question at the start of this sentence, but the characters indicating the answer are missing. The question seems out of place and doesn't fit the answer and has therefore been left out. A similar out of place question marker occurs at the start of Chapter 3. Perhaps the translator or a copyist entered it here by mistake. Elsewhere similar questions* refer back to something said earlier (i.e. "I have no enemy…"). Perhaps is it an explanation of the preceding sentence? ("He enters a place of seclusion, and with mind unwavering begins to fill his body [with the thought] thus: 'I am happy. My mind admits no suffering.' What is meant by this? 'I am happy. My mind admits no suffering' means 'I have no enemy; I have no anger; I am happily free from all defilements and perform all good.'") Either of these seems reasonable, though neither is supported by the Chinese text.

(* E.g. in the miscellaneous section of the 4 Divine abidings: Q. "That meditator transcends the sphere of infinite space through appreciative joy." What is the meaning of this? A. That meditator, when he practises…) Cf. Vism IX.8: Sabbapaṭhamaṃ pana ahaṃ sukhito homi niddukkho"ti vā, avero abyāpajjo anīgho sukhī attānaṃ pariharāmī ti vā evaṃ punappunaṃ attaniyeva bhāvetabbā. Vism IX.9: Yañca paṭisambhidāyaṃ (Patis II 130) Katamehi pañcahākārehi anodhisopharaṇā mettā cetovimutti bhāvetabbā, sabbe sattā averā hontu abyāpajjā anīghā sukhī attānaṃ pariharantu. Sabbe pāṇā… sabbe bhūtā… sabbe puggalā… sabbe attabhāvapariyāpannā averā abyāpajjā anīghā sukhī attānaṃ pariharantu ti.

Ñāṇamoli: "First of all it should be developed only towards oneself, doing it repeatedly thus: 'May I be happy and free from suffering' or 'May I keep myself free from enmity, affliction and anxiety and live happily." "… in the Paṭisambhidā: 'In what five ways is the mind-deliverance of loving-kindness [practiced] with unspecified pervasion? May all beings be free from enmity, affliction and anxiety and live happily. May all breathing things … all who are born … all persons … all those who have a personality be free from enmity, affliction and anxiety and live happily' (Paṭis II 130); …"

[1057] These are the four saṅgahavatthu or "bases of social unity"; see A II 32: Dānaṃ, peyyavajjaṃ, atthacariyā, samānattatā, imāni kho, bhikkhave, cattāri saṅgahavatthūnī ti.

[1058] A V 341, Paṭis II 129: Sukhaṃ supati, sukhaṃ paṭibujjhati, na pāpakaṃ supinaṃ passati, manussānaṃ piyo hoti, amanussānaṃ piyo hoti, devatā rakkhanti, nāssa aggi vā visaṃ vā satthaṃ vā kamati, tuvaṭaṃ cittaṃ samādhiyati, mukhavaṇṇo vippasīdati.

resolves to give rise to them; if one has already given rise to them, one resolves to increase them.[1059]

And again, one resolves not to give rise to unkind (apiya) states, and if one has given rise to them, one resolves to stop them. [One resolves to give rise to] kind states [and if one has] given rise to them, one resolves to increase them.

Owing the mind of loving-kindness, the meditator gains faith. Through facility of faith, he can grasp the mind (citta).[1060] Through facility of grasping, he causes steadiness of mindfulness. Through facility of faith, grasping and mindfulness, his mind is not wavering.[1061] He, knowing the unwaveringness, through these ways and means develops the mind of loving-kindness for that person and much practices it. The meditator, knowing the unwavering mind, [436a] and having through these ways and means developed the mind of loving-kindness for that person, and having much practised it, with a soft and wieldy mind, gradually develops the mind of loving-kindness for a person whom he holds dear. After having developed the mind of loving-kindness for a person whom he holds dear, he gradually develops the mind of loving-kindness for a neutral person. After having developed the mind of loving-kindness for a neutral person, he should gradually develop the mind of loving-kindness for an enemy. Thus he pervades and defines (paricchindati) all beings just as if they were himself.

If loving-kindness for the neutral person object does not develop, or if the meditator temporarily does not arouse loving-kindness, he should be disgusted: "In me there is unwholesomeness and unkindness, but wishing to develop wholesome states, I went forth (from home to homelessness, pabbajjā) out of faith. Again, I am said to be dependent on the Great Teacher who benefited all beings and gave rise to great compassion [for all beings], but I do not arouse the mind of loving-kindness [even] for a neutral person, how much less for an enemy."[1062] 436a10

If the meditator is still unable to stop the anger, he should not endeavour to develop loving-kindness, but should develop the other skilfull means for removing the anger for that person.

Skillful means for removing anger

Q. What are the skillfull means (upāya) for removing anger (āghāta-paṭivinodana)?

A. (1) One should give to him and interact with him. One should consider (2) his good qualities, (3) benevolence, (4) ownership of kamma, (5) freedom from debt, (6) kinship, (7) one's own faults. One should (8) not attend. One should contemplate (9) one's own suffering; (10) the nature of the sense-faculties, (11) momentary cessation, (12) combination, (13) emptiness.

(1) ["Giving" (dāna):] One should accept him. Even if he gives rise to anger, one should willingly give him what he asks for and also accept willingly what he gives. And in speaking with him, one should always use good words. One should follow along with what the other does. Because of accepting him thus, the cessation of the anger towards one another takes place.

(2) "Good qualities" (guṇa): if one sees his good qualities, one should think: "These are good qualities. These are not bad qualities." It is like a pond covered with waterplants, and one, having removed the waterplants, takes the water.[1063] If he has no good qualities, one should be compassionate

---

[1059] A II 15; IV 462: Cattārimāni, bhikkhave, sammappadhānāni. Katamāni cattāri? Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu anuppannānaṃ pāpakānaṃ akusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ anuppādāya chandaṃ janeti vāyamati vīriyaṃ ārabhati cittaṃ paggaṇhāti padahati; uppannānaṃ pāpakānaṃ akusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ pahānāya chandaṃ janeti vāyamati vīriyaṃ ārabhati cittaṃ paggaṇhāti padahati; anuppannānaṃ kusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ uppādāya chandaṃ janeti vāyamati vīriyaṃ ārabhati cittaṃ paggaṇhāti padahati; uppannānaṃ kusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ ṭhitiyā asammosāya bhiyyobhāvāya vepullāya bhāvanāya pāripūriyā chandaṃ janeti vāyamati vīriyaṃ ārabhati cittaṃ paggaṇhāti padahati.

[1060] Perhaps this refers to the sign of loving-kindness (mettānimitta, cf. D-a III 779: mettānimittassa uggaho, … odissakaanodissakadisāpharaṇānañhi aññataravasena mettaṃ uggaṇhantassāpi byāpādo pahīyati; cf. D-a II 441: Verīnaṃ mettacittapaṭilābho catubrahmavihārapaṭilābhassa pubbanimittaṃ. D-ṭ II 400: Sattesu mettāyanassa hitūpasaṃhārassa uppādanaṃ pavattanaṃ mettānimittassa uggaho, paṭhamuppanno mettāmanasikāro parato uppajjanakassa kāraṇabhāvato mettāmanasikārova mettānimittaṃ.), or to grasping the sign of the mind, cittanimitta (cf. Th-a I 192: Tattha cittanimittassa kovido ti bhāvanācittassa nimittaggahaṇe kusalo: imasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ paggahetabbaṃ, …), or the Chinese translator misunderstood *paggahaṇhāti, "*exerts," for *gaṇhāti, "*grasps," or he had a corrupt text.

[1061] Cf. 432c09: "Owing to facility in disenchantment and owing to facility in mindfulness, his mind is unwavering. When his mind is unwavering, the hindrances are suspended, the jhāna factors manifest …" Cf. Paṭis I 192: … jarāmaraṇavirāge chandajāto hoti saddhādhimutto, cittañcassa svādhiṭṭhitaṃ. Cf. Th 649: Asaṃhīraṃ asaṃkuppaṃ cittaṃ āmodayāmahaṃ; Brahmavihāraṃ bhāvemi, akāpurisasevitaṃ.

[1062] 436a08–09: 我復說言依大師故饒益眾生起大慈悲於一中人不起慈心何況於怨家. It is difficult to make sense of the first part of this sentence.

[1063] A III 187–8: Seyyathā pi āvuso pokkharaṇī sevālapaṇakapariyonaddhā, … Evaṃ tasmiṃ puggale āghāto paṭivinetabbo.

thus: "This man has no good qualities; surely, he will go to a bad destination (duggati)."[1064]

(3) "Benevolence":[1065] One should think of him with benevolence: "If someone is unkind [to me], let me give rise to benevolence. If I have been unkind towards another, I should act meritoriously [toward him]. Again, having stopped unwholesomeness, I will have a good destination." Thus the turning of anger into benevolence is to be known.[1066]

(4) "Ownership of kamma (kammassakatā)": One should consider evil kamma: "One who is doing evil kamma is a base for anger."[1067]

(5) "Freedom from debt" (ānaṇya): "If someone insults and harms me, it is owing to my past evil kamma.. Now I witness that I am free from debt. Considering this, I should be glad."[1068]

(6) "Kinship" (ñāti): "In saṃsāra, the succession of beings,[1069] he and I are relatives." Reflecting thus, one should give rise to the perception of kinship.[1070]

(7) "One's own faults" (dosa): I am the reason (nimitta) of his [anger]: "His anger is born on account of me; because of that he acquires demerit." [Thinking] "I am the reason," one gives rise to perception of one's own faults.[1071] [436b]

(8) "One should not attend" (amanasikāra): [to be] without the sign of anger (āghāta-nimitta),[1072] one should not attend to it, like someone who does wish to see forms shuts his eyes.[1073]

(9) "[One's own] suffering (dukkha)": For one's own suffering not to be a hindrance one should give rise to the sign [of loving-kindness]. Why like a fool create one's own suffering by not attending to loving-kindness? Because of this [non attending] one obtains mental suffering. [Suffering] is experienced in an enemy's place, therefore one should leave his place. One should live in a place where one does not not see and hear the aggravator (apakāraka).[1074]

(10) "Nature of the sense-faculties" (indriya-sabhāva): one should contemplate: "The nature of the sense-faculties is to be joined to agreeable and disagreeable sense-objects (iṭṭhaniṭṭha-visaya). Towards these I have anger. Because of that I am not attending [to loving-kindness]." [1075]

(11) "Momentary cessation" (khaṇika-nirodha): [1076] one should contemplate: "Through the arising of

---

[1064] Ibid. 189: Seyyathā pi āvuso puriso ābādhiko dukkhito bāḷhagilāno addhānamaggapaṭipanno… Māyam āyasmā kāyassa bhedā parammaraṇā apāyaṃ duggatiṃ vinipātaṃ nirayaṃ uppajjatī' ti. Evaṃ tasmiṃ puggale āghāto paṭivinetabbo. Cf. D-ṭ I 104: Aparādhake ca sati guṇe guṇavati mayā na kopo kātabbo ti ca asati guṇe visesena karuṇāyitabbo ti.

[1065] 恩 = kataññu, upakāra, paṭikāra, vara.

[1066] Cf. Cp-a 298, D-ṭ I 104: apakārake asati kathaṃ mayhaṃ khantisampadā sambhavati ti ca yadipāyaṃ etarahi apakārako, ayaṃ nāma pubbe anena mayhaṃ upakāro kato ti ca apakāro eva vā khantinimittatāya upakāro ti ca.

[1067] Cf. Vism IX.23. A V 88: Kammassako 'mhi kammadāyādo; M I 390: Evaṃ pahaṃ Puṇṇa: kammadāyādā sattā ti vadāmi. Cf. Cp-a 298, D-ṭ I 104: Ete sattā khantisampattiyā abhāvato idhaloke tappanti paraloke ca tapanīyadhammānuyogato ti ca.

[1068] Cf. Cp-a 298, D-ṭ I 104: Yadipi parāpakāranimittaṃ dukkhaṃ uppajjati, tassa pana dukkhassa khettabhūto attabhāvo bījabhūtañca kammaṃ mayāva abhisaṅkhatanti ca tassa ca dukkhassa āṇaṇyakāraṇametanti ca apakārake asati kathaṃ mayhaṃ khantisampadā sambhavati ti ca yadipāyaṃ etarahi apakārako, ayaṃ nāma pubbe anena mayhaṃ upakāro kato ti.

[1069] Satta-santāna or satta-santati. Cf. Th-a II 219: sattasantānaṃ saṃsāre papañcenti …

[1070] Cf. Cp-a 298, D-ṭ I 104: Sabbepime sattā mayhaṃ puttasadisā, puttakatāparādhesu ca ko kujjhissatī ti. S II 189–90: Na so bhikkhave satto sulabharūpo, yo na mātābhūtapubbo … na pitābhūtapubbo … na bhātābhūtapubbo … na bhaginībhūtapubbo … na puttabhūtapubbo … iminā dīghena addhunā. … Cf. Vism IX.36, [1071] Cf. Cp-a 298, D-ṭ I 104: Yena apakārena idaṃ mayhaṃ dukkhaṃ uppannaṃ, tassa ahampi nimittan-ti. Cf. Vism IX.22: Yaṃ dosaṃ tava nissāya, sattunā appiyaṃ kataṃ, / tameva dosaṃ chindassu, kimaṭṭhāne vihaññasi. Dukkhaṃ karoti yo yassa, taṃ vinā kassa so kare / sayampi dukkhahetuttamiti kiṃ tassa kujjhasī ti.

[1072] 無嗔恚相. This can also mean "perception of ill-will," abyāpāda-saññā.

[1073] Cf. M I 120: … Tassa tesaṃ vitakkānaṃ asati-amanasikāraṃ āpajjato ye pāpakā akusalā vitakkā chandūpasaṃhitāpi dosūpasaṃhitāpi mohūpasaṃhitāpi te pahīyanti te abbhatthaṃ gacchanti. Tesaṃ pahānā ajjhattameva cittaṃ santiṭṭhati sannisīdati ekodi hoti samādhiyati. Seyyathāpi, bhikkhave, cakkhumā puriso āpāthagatānaṃ rūpānaṃ adassanakāmo assa; so nimīleyya vā aññena vā apalokeyya.

[1074] This passage is cryptic. Cf. Vism IX.22.

[1075] Cf. Cp-a 298, D-ṭ I 104: Indriyapakatiresā, yadidaṃ iṭṭhāniṭṭhavisayasamāyogo, tattha aniṭṭhavisayasamāyogo mayhaṃ na siyāti taṃ kutettha labbhā ti.

[1076] Cf. Vism IX.22: Khaṇikattā ca dhammānaṃ, yehi khandhehi te kataṃ / amanāpaṃ niruddhā te, kassa dānīdha kujjhasi. Cp-a 298, D-ṭ 104: Yehi dhammehi aparādho kato, yattha ca kato, sabbepi te tasmiṃyeva khaṇe niruddhā, kassidāni kena kodho kātabbo. Cf. 432a04 … 名念念死者諸行念念滅.

suffering, one obtains suffering.[1077] All these states cease in a single mind-moment (citta-khaṇa). How [can I be angry] at him when there is no ground (vatthu) for anger?"

(12) "Combination" (saṃyojana, sannipāta): one should contemplate: "Suffering arises because of the combination of various internal and external parts. I can not be angry with a single part."[1078] 436b11

(13) "Emptiness" (suññattā): one should contemplate: "In the absolute sense (paramattha) it can not be obtained (anupalabbhiya), 'This person creates suffering' or 'This person experiences suffering.' This body is produced by conditions: it is without a being, without a self,[1079] it is a bunch of elements, just like a bunch of straw."[1080] Therefore the Blessed One uttered this verse:

Whether dwelling in the village
Or in the middle of the forest
Being touched by pleasures and pains,
Do not take them as oneself or another,[1081]
Dependent upon defilements one is touched 436b16
If one's mind were without defilements,
Who could touch that one immaculate?[1082]

Cultivating loving-kindness

The meditator, having clearly understood the skilfull means for getting rid of anger, having defined himself, friends, neutral ones and enemies, and acquired facility, he should gradually arouse the mind of loving-kindness and 436b20 develop it for various bhikkhus in his dwelling-place. Then he should develop loving-kindness for the whole community (of bhikkhus) in his dwelling-place. Then he should develop loving-kindness for the gods in his dwelling-place. Then he should develop loving-kindness for all beings in his dwelling-place. Then he should develop loving-kindness for all beings in the village outside his dwelling place. Thus [he develops loving-kindness for all beings] from village to village, from country to country. Then he should develop [loving-kindness for all beings] in one quarter (disa). The meditator [abides] having pervaded one quarter with the mind of loving-kindness; then the second quarter; then the third quarter; then the fourth quarter; then the four intermediate quarters, and above and below. He releases loving-kindness towards all beings. He pervades the whole world with the mind of loving-kindness, which is extensive, exalted and immeasurable, without enmity, without ill-will.[1083]

The meditator, developing loving-kindness in this manner, causes fixed-jhāna (appaṇā-jhāna) in three ways: 436b27 through fully including (sabba-saṅgaha) beings, through fully including village-domains (gāmakkhetta) and through fully including quarters.

He causes fixed jhāna [by developing] loving-kindness[1084] for one being, and in the same way, for two, three as far as many beings. [436c]

[1077] 以彼生苦彼得苦. "Lit. Through that/his birth/arising/arises suffering, that/he obtains suffering." Perhaps the first "suffering," 苦, is a corruption. If so, then the translation could be "Through birth/arising, one obtains suffering."

[1078] Cf. Vism IX.38.

[1079] Cp-a 298, D-ṭ 104: anattatāya sabbadhammānaṃ ko kassa aparajjhatī ti.

[1080] Cf. Khp-a 74: Evañcassa vijānato tiṇakaṭṭhasamūho viya kāyo khāyati. Yathāha: Natthi satto naro poso, puggalo nūpalabbhati. / Suññabhūto ayaṃ kāyo, tiṇakaṭṭhasamūpamo. Vism XVIII.31: Nāmañca rūpañca idhatthi saccato, na hettha satto manujo ca vijjati. / Suññaṃ idaṃ yantamivābhisaṅkhataṃ, dukkhassa puñjo tiṇakaṭṭhasādiso ti. Th 717: Tiṇakaṭṭhasamaṃ lokaṃ, yadā paññāya passati, / mamataṃ so asaṃvindaṃ natthi me ti na socati. Nidd II 185–86 (Be): Suddhaṃ dhammasamuppādaṃ, suddhasaṅkhārasantatiṃ; passantassa yathābhūtaṃ, na bhayaṃ hoti gāmaṇi. Tiṇakaṭṭhasamaṃ lokaṃ, yadā paññāya passati; nāññaṃ patthayate kiñci, aññatrappaṭisandhiyā ti. Evampi suññato lokaṃ avekkhati.

[1081] 非從自他燒, lit. "Not from oneself or another burns." The Chinese translator misunderstood dahetha (Cf. Skt √dadh, redupl. of √dāh), "take, consider," as dahati (√ḍah): "is burned." See next fn.

[1082] Ud 12: Gāme v'āraññe sukhadukkhapuṭṭho, nev' attato no parato dahetha, phusanti phassā upadhiṃ paṭicca, nirupadhiṃ kena phuseyyuṃ phassā 'ti.

[1083] D II 186; D III 223–4: Idh' āvuso bhikkhu mettā-sahagatena cetasā ekaṃ disaṃ pharitvā viharati, tathā dutiyaṃ, tathā tatiyaṃ, tathā catutthaṃ. Iti uddham adho tiriyaṃ sabbadhi sabbattatāya sabbāvantaṃ lokaṃ mettā-sahagatena cetasā vipulena mahaggatena appamāṇena averena avyāpajjhena pharitvā viharati.

[1084] 以一眾生令安慈禪, lit. "By way of one being he causes fixed loving-kindness jhāna," the context (i.e. the preceding and following) however, indicate that he causes jhāna by developing mettā.

He causes fixed jhāna [by developing] loving-kindness for beings of one village-domain, and in the same way as far as [beings of] many villages.

He causes fixed jhāna [by developing] loving-kindness for one being in one direction, and in the same way as far as the four directions.

Here, when one develops loving-kindness dependent on one being, if that being is dead, that object (ārammaṇa) is lost. If he loses the object, he cannot arouse loving-kindness. Therefore he should extensively (vipula) develop the mind of loving-kindness, as far as the extent goes. When well-developed, there is great fruit and great benefit.

Q. What are the roots, manifestation, fulfilment, non-fulfilment and object of loving-kindness?

A. It has non-greed (alobha) as a root (mūla); non-hatred (adosa) as a root; non-delusion (amoha) as a root; desire (chanda) as a root; reasoned attention (yoniso manasikāra) as a root.

Q. What is its manifestation?

A. It has these roots is its manifestation.

Q. What is its fulfilment?

A. When one is endowed with loving-kindness, one abandons hatred, abandons unwholesome affection (pema) and purifies one's bodily, verbal and mental actions. This is called "fulfilment."

Q. What is its non-fulfilment? 436c10

A. Through two [pairs of][1085] causes one loses loving-kindness: through giving rise to resentment towards one's friends and through unwholesome affection; and through giving rise to resentment towards opponents (paṭipakkha) and through giving rise to hatred. This is called "non-fulfilment."

Q. What is its object?

A. Beings are its object.[1086]

Q. That is not so. In the absolute sense (paramattha) a "being" is unobtainable (anupalabbhiya). Why then is it said that beings are its object?

A. Owing to the different kinds of faculties, in worldly parlance (loka-sammuti, -vohāra) it is said that there are beings.[1087]

Loving-kindness and the ten perfections

Now, the Bodhisattas, the Mahāsattas[1088] develop loving-kindness for all beings everywhere and fulfil the ten perfections (pāramī).[1089]

Q. How is it so? 436c15

A. The Bodhisattas, the Mahāsattas, develop loving-kindness for all beings. For the sake of benefitting all beings, they help[1090] beings and give them fearlessness (abhaya).[1091] Thus they fulfil the [1085] Why are four causes given, and not two as stated? The Visuddhimagga (Vism IX.98) gives one near enemy and one far enemy for each brahmavihāra: āsannadūravasena dve dve paccatthikā. The Vim give two near and two far causes for each brahmavihāra.

---

[1086] Sattārammaṇa—Cf. A-a II 41: Ime pana cattāro brahmavihārā vaṭṭā honti, vaṭṭapādā honti, vipassanāpādā honti, diṭṭhadhammasukhavihāra honti, abhiññāpādā vā nirodhapādā vā, lokuttarā pana na honti. Kasmā? Sattārammaṇattā ti. Cf. Peṭ 147: appamāṇasahagatā sattārammaṇā paṭhame jhāne jhānabhūmi [1087] Cf. S I 134: Kiṃ nu satto ti paccesi, māra diṭṭhigataṃ nu te; Suddhasaṅkhārapuñjoyaṃ, nayidha sattupalabbhati. Yathā hi aṅgasambhārā, hoti saddo ratho iti; Evaṃ khandhesu santesu, hoti satto ti sammuti. S-a I 193: … nayidha sattupalabbhatīti imasmiṃ suddhasaṅkhārapuñje paramatthato satto nāma na upalabbhati. Khandhesu santesūti pañcasu khandhesu vijjamānesu tena tenākārena vavatthitesu. Sammutīti sattoti samaññāmattameva hoti. Cf. Kv-a 35: Iti iminā lokavohārena lokasammutiyā lokaniruttiyā atthi puggalo ti … D-ṭ III 91: Lokavohāravasenāti lokasammutivasena. Lokavohāro hesa, yadidaṃ satto puggalo ti ādi.

[1088] 菩薩摩訶薩 = pú-sà, mō-hē-sà, transliteration. The terms also occur together in the Buddhavaṃsa and Cariyapiṭaka commentaries; e.g. Cp-a 217: Dānasīlādiguṇavisesayogena sattuttamatāya paramā mahāsattā bodhisattā and Bv-a 263: Atha bodhisatto mahāsatto pathaviyaṃ patiṭṭhahitvā devadattaṃ arahattaddhajamādāya pabbaji. Cf. mahābodhisatta at Cp-a 3, etc. EKS rendered "Bodhisatta and Mahāsatta," but the terms refer to the same being who is a bodhisatta seeking for sammāsambodhi, mahāsatta being a specification for bodhisatta. See Endo, 2002, p. 234, 375.

[1089] Ud-a 128: Yathā vā te Bhagavanto dāna-pāramiṃ pūretvā, sīla-nekkhamma-paññā-viriya–khanti-sacca-adhiṭṭhāna-mettā-upekkhā-pāramī ti imā dasa pāramiyo dasa-upapāramiyo, dasa paramattha-pāramiyo ti samatiṃsa pāramiyo pūretvā, pañca mahā-pariccāge pariccajitvā, pubba-yoga-pubba-cariya-dhamm' akkhānañāt' attha-cariyādayo pūretvā, buddhi-cariyāya koṭim patvā āgatā, tathā ayam pi Bhagavā āgato. Cf. Vism IX.124.

[1090] Or "they accept beings," 攝受眾生.

[1091] Cf. A IV 246: Idha bhikkhave ariyasāvako pāṇātipātaṃ pahāya pāṇātipātā paṭivirato hoti. Pāṇātipātā paṭivirato bhikkhave ariyasāvako aparimāṇānaṃ sattānaṃ abhayaṃ deti averaṃ deti avyāpajjhaṃ deti; aparimāṇānaṃ sattānaṃ abhayaṃ datvā averaṃ datvā avyāpajjhaṃ datvā aparimāṇassa abhayassa averassa avyāpajjhassa bhāgī hoti. …

perfection of giving (dāna).

The Bodhisattas, the Mahāsattas, develop loving-kindness for all beings. For the sake of benefiting all beings, they accomplish harmlessness[1092] and do not lose the practice of Dhamma. It is like the relation of a father to his children. Thus they fulfil the perfection of virtue (sīla).

The Bodhisattas, the Mahāsattas, develop loving-kindness for all beings. For the sake of benefiting all beings, they accomplish the mind free from greed (vītarāga), and in order to remove demerit, they turn towards jhāna,[1093] and go forth into homelessness. Thus they fulfil the perfection of renunciation (nekkhamma).

The Bodhisattas, the Mahāsattas, develop loving-kindness for all beings. For the sake of benefiting all beings, they consider merit and demerit and in accordance with truth they proclaim skilful means to remove the bad and attain the good. Thus they fulfil the perfection of wisdom (paññā).

The Bodhisattas, the Mahāsattas, develop loving-kindness for all beings. For the sake of benefiting all beings, they, without abandoning energy, firmly exert themselves at all times. Thus they fulfil the perfection of energy (viriya).

The Bodhisattas, the Mahāsattas, develop loving-kindness for all beings. For the sake of benefiting all beings, they practise patience and even when others abuse and scold them they do not become angry and resentful. Thus they fulfil the perfection of patience (khanti).

The Bodhisattas, the Mahāsattas, [437a] develop loving-kindness for all beings. For the sake of benefiting all beings, they speak the truth, dwell in the truth and keep the truth. Thus they fulfil the perfection of truth (sacca).

The Bodhisattas, the Mahāsattas, develop loving-kindness for all beings. For the sake of benefiting all beings, they do not abandon their vows and aspirations, even at the risk of their lives, but uphold them firmly.[1094] Thus they fulfil the perfection of resolution (adhiṭṭhāna).

The Bodhisattas, the Mahāsattas, develop loving-kindness for all beings. For the sake of benefiting all beings, they identify themselves with all beings and fulfil the perfection of loving-kindness (mettā).

The Bodhisattas, the Mahāsattas, develop loving-kindness for all beings. For the sake of benefiting all beings, they regard friends, neutral ones and enemies equally, without hatred and without attachment. Thus they fulfil the perfection of equanimity (upekkhā).

In these ways the Bodhisattas, the Mahāsattas, developing loving-kindness [for all beings everywhere], fulfil the ten perfections. 437a09

The four resolves

Now, the Bodhisattas, the Mahāsattas, having practised loving-kindness, having fulfilled the ten perfections, fulfil the four resolves, namely, the resolve of truth, the resolve of liberality, the resolve of stilling and the resolve of wisdom.[1095]

Here, the perfection of truth, the perfection of resolution and the perfection of energy fulfil the resolve of truth. The perfection of giving, the perfection of virtue and the perfection of renunciation fulfil the resolve of liberality. The perfection of patience, the perfection of loving-kindness and the perfection of equanimity fulfil the resolve of stilling. The perfection of wisdom fulfils the resolve of wisdom.[1096]

[1092] The Taishō text reads 無苦, "without suffering" (nidukkha) but the variant reading 無害 makes better sense.

[1093] Cf. M I 246: … Abhijānāmi kho panāhaṃ pitu Sakkassa kammante sītāya jambuchāyāya nisinno vivicc' eva kāmehi … paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ upasampajja viharitā, siyā nu kho eso maggo bodhāyāti. Tassa mayhaṃ Aggivessana satānusāri viññāṇaṃ ahosi: eso va maggo bodhāyāti.

[1094] p0437a03–04‖乃至失命誓不捨。願成[1]堅受持誓願。 Ap-a 113: Katvā daḷhamadhiṭṭhānan-ti mama sarīrajīvitesu vinassantesupi puññakammato na viramissāmī ti acalavasena daḷhaṃ adhiṭṭhānapāramiṃ katvā … Cp-a 275: Katvā daḷhamadhiṭṭhānan-ti kusalasamādānādhiṭṭhānaṃ tassa tassa pāramisamādānassa tadupakārakasamādānassa ca adhiṭṭhānaṃ daḷhataraṃ asithilaṃ katvā, taṃ taṃ vatasamādānaṃ anivattibhāvena adhiṭṭhahitvāti attho. … Ekantena panassa temiyakumārakāle: mātāpitā na me dessā, attā me na ca dessiyo; sabbaññutaṃ piyaṃ mayhaṃ, tasmā vatam-adhiṭṭhahin"ti. Evaṃ jīvitaṃ pariccajitvā vataṃ adhiṭṭhahantassa adhiṭṭhānapāramī paramatthapāramī nāma jātā. (Cf. Bv-a 60, J-a I 47)

[1095] The order is different from D III 229 (Cattāri adiṭṭhānāni. Paññādhiṭṭhānaṃ saccādhiṭṭhānaṃ, cāgādhiṭṭhānaṃ, upasamādhiṭṭhānaṃ) and M III 240, but in the Pali commentaries the order is the same as in the Vim, e.g. Cp-a 322.

[1096] Cf. Cp-a 322: Sabbapāramīnaṃ samūhasaṅgahato hi cattāri adhiṭṭhānāni, seyyathidaṃ saccādhiṭṭhānaṃ, cāgādhiṭṭhānaṃ, upasamādhiṭṭhānaṃ, paññādhiṭṭhānan-ti. … Cf. Vism-mhṭ I 391 (Be): Yathā ca brahmavihārādhiṭṭhānā pāramiyo, evaṃ adhiṭṭhānādhiṭṭhānāpi. Tathā hi yathāpaṭiññaṃ parānuggahāya pāramīnaṃ anuṭṭhānena

Thus the Bodhisattas, the Mahāsattas, having developed loving-kindness [for all beings] everywhere, fulfil the ten perfections, fulfil the four resolves and fulfil two states, namely, serenity and insight (samatha-vipassanā). Here, the resolve of truth, the resolve of liberality and the resolve of stilling fulfil serenity. The resolve of wisdom fulfils insight. Through the fulfilment of serenity, they attain to all the jhānas, liberations, concentrations, attainments and give rise to the attainment of the twin-miracle (yamaka-pāṭihāriya) and the attainment of great compassion (mahākaruṇā). With the attainment of insight, they are endowed with all direct knowledges (abhiññā), discriminations (paṭisambhidā), the powers (bala), and the confidences (vesārajja). Having fulfilled these, they give rise to self-become knowledge (sayambhū-ñāṇa) and omniscience (sabbaññutā-ñāṇa).[1097]

Thus the Bodhisattas, the Mahāsattas, developing loving-kindness, gradually fulfil the stages of Buddhahood (buddha-bhūmi).[1098]

Loving-kindness is finished. 437a23

The Immeasurable Heart of Compassion

Q. What is "compassion"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and manifestation? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. As parents who on seeing the suffering of their dear and only child, arouse compassion, saying, "O, how it suffers!," so one has compassion and pity (anukampā) for all beings—this is called "compassion."

The unwavering dwelling in compassion—this is called the practising of it. The non-manifestation of disadvantage is its characteristic. Happiness is its function. Harmlessness (avihiṃsā)[1099] is its manifestation. Its benefits are equal to those of loving-kindness.

Q. What is the procedure?

A. The beginner meditator goes to a secluded place, sits down and composes his whole mind. With his mind unwavering, [437b] [he recollects as] if he sees or hears of someone stricken with disease, or someone affected by ageing, or someone affected by poverty, and he considers thus: "That being is stricken with suffering. In what way (upāya, naya) would he gain freedom from suffering?"[1100]

And again, if he sees or hears of that being's perverted [mind], being bound with the bondage of defilements, and entering into ignorance, or someone who having done merit in the past does not now saccādhiṭṭhānaṃ, tappaṭipakkhapariccāgato cāgādhiṭṭhānaṃ, pāramīhi sacittupasamato upasamādhiṭṭhānaṃ, tāhi parahitūpāyakosallato paññādhiṭṭhānaṃ. Evaṃ paccekampi pāramitāsu yathārahaṃ netabbaṃ. It-a I 13: Tathā purimena tathāgatassa paṭiññāsaccavacīsaccañāṇasaccaparidīpanena, … ca saccādhiṭṭhānacāgādhiṭṭhānapāripūri pakāsitā hoti; dutiyena sabbasaṅkhārūpasamasamadhigamaparidīpanena, sammāsambodhiparidīpanena ca, upasamādhiṭṭhānapaññādhiṭṭhānapāripūri pakāsitā hoti. Tathā hi bhagavato bodhisattabhūtassa lokuttaraguṇe katābhinīhārassa mahākaruṇāyogena yathāpaṭiññaṃ sabbapāramitānuṭṭhānena saccādhiṭṭhānaṃ, pāramitāpaṭipakkhapariccāgena cāgādhiṭṭhānaṃ, pāramitāguṇehi cittavūpasamena upasamādhiṭṭhānaṃ, pāramitāhi eva parahitūpāyakosallato paññādhiṭṭhānaṃ pāripūrigataṃ. …

---

[1097] Cp. Cp-a 316–17: … tattha āsaṅgaṃ pajahanto pare ca tattha taṃ jahāpento kevalaṃ karuṇāvaseneva yāva na buddhaguṇā hatthatalaṃ āgacchanti, tāva yānattaye satte avatāraṇaparipācanehi patiṭṭhapento jhānavimokkhasamādhisamāpattiyo abhiññāyo ca lokiyā vasībhāvaṃ pāpento paññāya matthakaṃ pāpuṇāti. … idha mahābodhisattassa vasena karuṇūpāyakosallapubbaṅgamaṃ katvā vattabbā, ñāṇadassanavisuddhiṃ apāpetvā paṭipadāñāṇadassanavisuddhiyaṃyeva vipassanā ṭhapetabbāti ayameva viseso. Evamettha paññāpāramiyā paṭipattikkamo veditabbo. Cp-a 284: yathāvuttābhinīhārasamijjhanena hi mahāpurisa sabbaññutaññāṇādhigamanapubbaliṅgena sayambhuñāṇena sammad eva sabbapāramiyo pavicinitvā samādāya anukkamena paripūrenti.

[1098] Cf. Sn-a I 50: Yā cimā ussāho ummaṅgo avatthānaṃ hitacariyā cāti catasso buddhabhūmiyo, tāhi samannāgato hoti. Tattha: Ussāho vīriyaṃ vuttaṃ, ummaṅgo paññā pavuccati; / Avatthānaṃ adhiṭṭhānaṃ, hitacariyā mettābhāvanā ti. Cf. Khp 7: Mittasampadamāgamma, yonisova payuñjato; / Vijjā vimutti vasībhāvo, sabbametena labbhati. / Paṭisambhidā vimokkhā ca, yā ca sāvakapāramī; / Paccekabodhi buddhabhūmi, sabbametena labbhati. Ap-a 297: Buddhabhūmimanuppattanti buddhassa bhūmi patiṭṭhānaṭṭhānanti buddhabhūmi, sabbaññutaññāṇaṃ, taṃ anuppatto paṭividdhoti buddhabhūmimanuppatto, taṃ buddhabhūmimanuppattaṃ, sabbaññutappattaṃ buddhabhūtanti attho.

[1099] Vism IX.94. Cf. a. A I 151: Sabbhi dānaṃ upaññattaṃ ahiṃsāsaññamo damo (= Ahiṃsā ti karuṇā c'eva karuṇā-pubbabhāgo ca—A-a II 250). b. D-a III 982: Avihiṃsā ti karuṇā karuṇā-pubbabhāgo pi. Vuttam pi c'etaṃ: tattha katamā avihiṃsā? Yā sattesu karuṇā karuṇāyanā karuṇāyitattaṃ karuṇā-cetovimutti, ayaṃ vuccati avihiṃsā ti. c. Dhp 300: Yesaṃ divā ca ratto ca ahiṃsāya rato mano (= Ahiṃsāya rato ti 'so karuṇāsahagatena cetasā ekaṃ disaṃ pharitvā viharatī' ti evaṃ vuttāya karuṇābhāvanāya rato—Dhp-a III 459).

[1100] Cf. a. Paṭis I 128: Jarāya anusahagato lokasannivāso ti passantānaṃ Buddhānaṃ Bhagavantānaṃ sattesu mahākaruṇā okkamati … Byādīhi abhibhūto lokasannivāso ti … Taṇhāya uḍḍito lokasannivāso ti … b. S I 40: Taṇhāya uḍḍito loko, jarāya parivārito.

practise and train himself, he considers thus: "That being is stricken with suffering; he will be reborn in a bad destination (duggati). In what way would he gain freedom from suffering?"[1101]

And again, if he sees or hears of a person who follows unwholesome doctrines (akusala dhamma) and does not follow wholesome doctrines, or of a person who follows disagreeable doctrines and does not follow agreeable (iṭṭha, piya) doctrines, he considers thus: "That person is stricken with suffering; he will be reborn in a bad destination. In what way would he gain freedom from suffering?"

The meditator through these ways and means develops the mind of compassion towards these persons and much practices it (bahulīkaroti). Having through these ways and means developed the mind of compassion and much practiced it, with a mind that is soft and wieldable, he gradually develops compassion for a neutral person and then develops compassion towards an enemy. The rest is as was fully taught above until "the pervading of the four directions."[1102]

Q. What is the fulfilment of compassion and what is the non-fulfilment?

A. When endowed with compassion, one abandons harming, one does not give rise to grief, and one abandons unwholesome affection.

Through two causes one loses compassion: through producing resentment towards oneself, and through grief; and through giving rise to resentment towards opponents and through the arising of fear. 437b16

Q. Not all beings suffer. There is not always suffering. Then how is it possible to practice compassion to all beings?

A. Because all beings have already experienced suffering [at some time], it is easy to grasp the sign. Having grasped the sign, there is universal practice of compassion. Also, the suffering of birth, and death is common to all beings. Owing to that, there is universal practice.

Compassion is finished.

The Immeasurable Heart of Appreciative Joy

437b21 Q. What is "appreciative joy"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and manifestation? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. As parents, who on seeing the happiness of their dear and only child give rise to appreciative joy (pamoda) [saying], "Good!," (sādhu), so, one develops appreciative joy towards all beings. This is called "appreciative joy."

437b24 The unwavering dwelling of the mind in appreciative joy—this is called the practising of it. Gladdening is its characteristic. Fearlessness is its function.[1103] Dispelling of boredom (arati) is its manifestation. Its benefits are equal to those of loving-kindness.

Q. What is the procedure?

A. The beginner meditator goes into solitude, sits down and composes his whole mind. With his mind unwavering, [he recollects that he sees or hears] that someone's character is respectable. When seeing or hearing this, he gets ease and happiness, and gives rise to appreciative joy, thinking: "Good! Good! May he continue gladly for a long time!"

Again, when one sees or hears that a certain person does not follow unwholesome doctrines, or that he does not follow disagreeable doctrines and that he follows agreeable doctrines, [437c] one thinks thus: "Good! Good! May he continue joyful for a long time!"

The meditator through these ways and means develops the mind of appreciative joy and much practises it. Having by these ways and means developed the mind of appreciative joy and much practised it, with a mind that is soft and wieldable, he gradually develops appreciative joy towards a neutral person and then develops appreciative joy towards an enemy. The rest is as was fully taught above [under loving-kindness] until "the pervading of the four directions."

Q. What is the fulfilment of appreciative joy and what is the non-fulfilment?

A. When endowed with appreciative joy, one dispells boredom (arati), does not arouse unwholesome affection and does not slander.

Through two [pairs of] causes one loses appreciative joy: through giving rise to resentment towards

---

[1101] Paṭis I 128–9: Mahābandhanabandho lokasannivāso … mohabandhanena … kilesabandhanena … tassa natth' aññ̃o koci bandhaṃ mocetā aññ̃atra mayā ti; … tīhi duccaritehi vipaṭipanno lokasannivāso ti passantānaṃ …

[1102] = 436b18–c02.

[1103] 437b25: 無怖. Vism IX.95: Pamodanalakkhaṇā muditā, anissāyanarasā, arativighātapaccupaṭṭhānā, sattānaṃ sampattidassanapadaṭṭhānā. Perhaps the Chinese translator misunderstood anissāyana, "non-envy."

one's friends and through the arising of mirth;[1104] and through giving rise to resentment towards one's opponents and through giving rise to boredom.

The rest is as was fully taught above. 437c10

Appreciative joy is finished.

The Immeasurable Heart of Equanimity

Q. What is "equanimity"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and manifestation? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. As parents should neither be too attentive nor yet inattentive towards any one of their children, but [should attend to them] equally and have impartiality (majjhattatā) towards them, so through equanimity one maintains impartiality towards all beings. This is called "equanimity."

The dwelling unwavering in equanimity—this is called the practising of it. Non-attachment is its characteristic. Evenness (samatā) is its function. The subduing of disliking and liking is its manifestation.[1105] Its benefits are equal to those of loving-kindness.

Q. What is the procedure? 437c16

A. The meditator at first attains to the third jhāna accompanied by loving-kindness (mettāsahagatā), by compassion and by appreciative joy. Having attained to the third jhāna and acquired facility therein, he sees the disadvantage of loving-kindness, compassion and appreciative joy: because liking and disliking are near, 437c19 and they are accompanied by mirth, exultation, and gladness. Through opposing this disadvantage he sees the benefit of equanimity.

The meditator, having seen the disadvantage of loving-kindness, compassion and appreciative joy and the benefit of equanimity, at first develops the mind of equanimity towards a neutral person.[1106] Having developed and much practised it, with his mind soft and wieldable, he gradually develops it towards an enemy and then towards a friend. The rest is as was fully taught above until "[the pervading of the] the four directions."[1107]

The meditator, thus developing the fourth jhāna accompanied by equanimity causes fixity (appaṇa) in three ways: through fully including beings; through fully including village-domains; and through fully including quarters.

Q. When the meditator is developing equanimity towards all beings, how does he attend?

A. When he attends, it is taught, he should [first] attend to loving-kindness, compassion and appreciative joy. [When he is developing] equanimity towards all beings, he becomes glad, [but with the] continuing of gladness, he attends indifferently to the happiness.[1108] It is like a man who upon first seeing a long-lost friend [438a] waits on him splendidly and is glad, but after having lived together with him [for a long time], his mind becomes indifferent. Likewise, when abiding a long time in loving-kindness, compassion and appreciative joy, there is again the acceptance of equanimity. Attending thus, he develops equanimity. Again, there are some who say that he attends thus: "beings, beings."

Q. What is the fulfilment of equanimity? What is its non-fulfilment?

A. When one is endowed with equanimity, one abandons disliking and liking and does not arouse ignorance.

Through two [pairs of] causes equanimity is not fulfilled: through giving rise to resentment towards one's friends and through the arising of ignorance, [or] through giving rise to resentment towards one's [1104] See Vism IX.95, preceding note.

---

[1105] Cf. Vism IX.96/p.317: Sattesu majjhattākārapavatti-lakkhaṇā upekkhā, sattesu samabhāvadassanarasā paṭighānunayavūpasama-paccupaṭṭhānā … pavattakammassakatādassana-padaṭṭhānā. Cf. fn. @@ (Vism IV.193: Sā iṭṭhāniṭṭhaviparītānubhavanalakkhaṇā ….)

[1106] 非可愛念非不可愛念. Lit. "neither dear (piya) nor not dear."

This passage has been amended in accordance with the parallel passages in the preceding three immeasurables because the Chinese text is corrupt here. It literally has: "… at first develops [the mind]* accompanied by equanimity towards a neutral person and makes his mind at ease (phāsu, or "makes perfect," paripūri), [he increases the equanimous mind]*." 已與捨俱起念令心滿足捨心增長.

*According to a footnote in Taishō the part in brackets is not found in four editions. This passage has been amended in accordance with the parallel passages in the preceding three immeasurables.

[1107] Cf. 436b18–c02.

[1108] 行歡喜作意樂中. It is unclear what 行歡 means. stands for gamana, caraṇa, kamma, pavattana, etc.

Likewise, 樂中, "happiness neutrality" can mean "happiness and /of/due to neutrality" or "desiring happiness."

opponents and the arising of disliking and liking.[1109]

Equanimity is finished.

Miscellaneous Topics on the Four Immeasurables

Q. What are the miscellaneous topics concerning the four immeasurables?

A. The four immeasurables [first] arise by way of one being as object (ārammaṇa), [but] are [further] developed depending on the other bases (sesa-vatthu, -ṭhāna). It is like a mother thinking of her children according to their stage in life. Thus it is to be understood that [when developing the immeasurables] towards animals, immoral persons, virtuous persons, those without passion for sense-pleasures, disciples, Solitary Buddhas (paccekabuddha) and Rightly Awakened Ones (sammāsambuddha),[1110] depending on [these] distinctive bases, there is distinction in the four immeasurables.[1111]

Q. Why do the three jhānas arise on loving-kindness, compassion and appreciative joy, but not the fourth jhāna? 438a12

A. The distress and grief (domanass-upāyāsa) of beings give rise to hatred, cruelty and boredom. By opposing distress and grief, one joyfully practises lovingkindness, compassion, and appreciative joy. Therefore three jhānas are produced but not the fourth jhāna.

Again, the plane of equanimity which is the fourth jhāna is endowed with two kinds of equanimity, namely, equanimity as feeling (vedanupekkhā) and equanimity as equipoise regarding states (tatramajjhattattupekkhā). Dwelling in the plane of equanimity and benefitting[1112] beings, there is equanimity. Owing to the [nature of the] planes of the [first] three immeasurables, the first three jhānas, and not the fourth, is produced.

It is said that the four jhānas are produced on the four immeasurables. As the Blessed One declared: "On the four immeasurables, Bhikkhu, you should develop that concentration which is with thinking and exploring; you should develop that which is without thinking and with exploring; you should develop that which is without thinking and without exploring; you should develop that which is accompanied by rapture; you should develop that which is accompanied by happiness; you should develop that which is accompanied by equanimity.[1113] 438a21

Q. Why are these four immeasurables taught and not three or five?

A. If that were so, all is doubtful.

Again, the four immeasurables are for the overcoming of hatred, cruelty, boredom, dislike and like.

[1109] Cf. Vism IX.96 aññāṇupekkhā dosaguṇāvicāraṇavasena sabhāgattā āsannapaccatthikā. Sabhāgavisabhāgatāya rāgapaṭighā dūrapaccatthikā.

[1110] Cf. the succession at M III 254: tathāgata arahanta sammāsambuddha, paccekabuddha, tathāgatasāvaka arahanta, ..., sotāpattiphalasacchikiriyāya paṭipanna, bāhiraka kāmesu vītarāga, puthujjanasīlavanta, puthujjanadussīla, tīracchānagata.

EKS rendered the Chinese equivalent to kāmesu vītarāga (lit. "those without greed for sense pleasures." Bapat p. 81: kāmesu nibbiṇṇa) as "those who dislike greed," but this does not convey the meaning well because this person is a worldling who has developed samādhi and is therefore without desire for sensuality, see Vin I 295: Yepi te, ānanda, puthujjanā kāmesu vītarāgā, tesampi asuci na muccati, Vin-a 1128: puthujjanā kāmesu vītarāgāti jhānalābhinā. A III 372: Yo kho ... ime cha satthāre titthakare kāmesu vītarāge anekasataparivāre sasāvakasaṅghe paduṭṭhacitto akkoseyya paribhāseyya, bahuṃ so apuññaṃ pasaveyya. M-a V 70: Bāhirake kāmesu vītarāgeti kammavādikiriyavādimhi lokiyapañcābhiññe. (Nt)

[1111] Cf. Vism IX.108, with the simile comparing the 4 immeasurables to a mother regarding her children in 4 stages of youth: "And one abiding in the measureless states should practice lovingkindness and the rest like a mother with four sons, namely, a child, an invalid, one in the flush of youth, and one busy with his own affairs; for she wants the child to grow up, wants the invalid to get well, wants the one in the flush of youth to enjoy for long the benefits of youth, and is not at all bothered about the one who is busy with his own affairs."

[1112] 取饒益, also at 436c25–26, and 438a28.

[1113] Cf. D III 219: Tayo samādhi. Savitakko savicāro samādhi, avitakko vicāra-matto samādhi, avitakko avicāro samādhi (= Samādhisu paṭhama-jjhāna-samādhi savitakkasavicāro. Pañcaka-nayena dutiya-jjhāna-samādhi avitakka-vicāramatto. Seso avitakko-avicāro—S-a III 1003). A IV 300: Mettā ... Karuṇā ... muditā ... upekkhā me cetovimutti bhāvitā bhavissati ... Yato kho te bhikkhu ayaṃ samādhi evaṃ bhāvito hoti bahulīkato, tato tvaṃ bhikkhu imaṃ samādhiṃ savitakkam pi savicāraṃ bhāveyyāsi, avitakkam pi vicāramattaṃ bhāveyyāsi, avitakkam pi avicāraṃ bhāveyyāsi, sappītikam pi bhāveyyāsi, nippītikam pi bhāveyyāsi sātasahagataṃ pi bhāveyyāsi, upekkhāsahagatam pi bhāveyyāsi. Vibh 283: Tisso appamaññāyo siyā savitakkā, siyā avitakkā; upekkhā avitakkā. Tisso appamaññāyo siyā savicārā, siyā avicārā; upekkhā avicārā. Tisso appamaññāyo siyā sappītikā, siyā appītikā; upekkhā appītikā. Tisso appamaññāyo siyā pītisahagatā, siyā na pītisahagatā; upekkhā na pītisahagatā. Tisso appamaññāyo sukhasahagatā, upekkhā na sukhasahagatā. Upekkhā upekkhāsahagatā, tisso appamaññāyo na upekkhāsahagatā.

Again, it is said that these four [are overcome with] just loving-kindness. If a person who often gives rise to hatred, cruelty, and distress, abandons them in the four ways, he attains to distinction.

Equanimity is the purification of loving-kindness, compassion and appreciative joy, because through it disliking and liking are overcome.

It should be understood that the four immeasurables are of one nature although their characteristics are different. They fulfil one characteristic owing to opposing (paṭipakkha) the obstacles,[1114] owing to having beings as object, and owing to the wish to benefit (hita).

Again, it is said that they have different characteristics through opposing distinct states, through taking distinct objects, and through conferring distinct benefits.[1115] As the Blessed One taught in the Yellow Garment Sutta (Haliddavasanasutta): "Loving-kindness has the beautiful as the supreme; [438b] compassion has the base of [boundless] space as the supreme; appreciative joy has the base of [boundless] consciousness as supreme; equanimity has the base of nothingness as the supreme."[1116]

Q. Why are they to be understood thus?

A. They are to be understood thus because they depend on them as support.[1117]

Q. How?

A. When one develops the mind of loving-kindness towards all beings [then beings are not repulsive].[1118] When through constant attending [with loving-kindness, one has become familiar with the not-repulsive] and attends to [the likewise not-repulsive] blue, yellow [or other colour] kasiṇas, one causes the mind to attain fixity (appaṇā) without difficulty (appakasirena). [After attending to] the object of various types of beings, the mind leaps into a beautiful kasiṇa of the material realm.[1119] The meditator then attains the fourth jhāna of the material realm. Therefore it is said that loving-kindness has the beautiful as the supreme.

Then the meditator, depending on compassion[1120] which he has developed in the fourth jhāna of the material realm, transcends that [realm].

Q. How is that simply explained?

[1114] Ādīnava, paripantha. I.e. the above mentioned hatred, cruelty, dislike and like.

[1115] Translating the variant reading (note 6, 438a27) 對治, "opposing," paṭipakkha, instead of 法 "states," dhamma.

[1116] S V 119–21: Kathaṃ bhāvitā ca bhikkhave mettācetovimutti kiṃgatikā hoti … Sace ākaṅkhati appaṭikkūlañca paṭikkūlañca tad ubhayaṃ abhinivajjetvā upekhako vihareyyaṃ sato sampajāno ti, upekhako tattha viharati sato sampajāno. Subhaṃ vā kho pana vimokkhaṃ upasampajja viharati, subhaparamāhaṃ, bhikkhave mettācetovimuttiṃ vadāmi. … Ākāsānañcāyatanaparamāhaṃ, bhikkhave, karuṇaṃ cetovimuttiṃ vadāmi. … Viññāṇañcāyatanaparamāhaṃ, bhikkhave, muditaṃ cetovimuttiṃ vadāmi. … Ākiñcaññāyatanaparamāhaṃ, bhikkhave, upekkhaṃ cetovimuttiṃ vadāmi. Idha paññassa bhikkhuno uttariṃ vimuttiṃ appaṭivijjhanto.

LC: "The logic is that the practice of mettā makes it easy to develop colour kasiṇa and enter the third vimokkha. The practice of compassion makes it easy to detach from the materiality which is the cause of much suffering and enter the fourth vimokkha. The practice of appreciative joy is focussed on the consciousness of those who are glad for various reasons and so makes it easy to focus on nonmaterial consciousness, so entering the fifth vimokkha. The practice of equanimity makes it easy to detach from everything and take nothingness as the object of the mind, so entering the sixth vimokkha."

[1117] The Chinese has 近, "proximate, near" which is due to a misunderstanding of upanissaya as upanissāya. Cf. S-a III 172–3, Vism IX.120: Kasmā pan' etāsaṃ mettādīnaṃ subha-paramāditā vuttā Bhagavatā ti? Sabhāgavasena tassa upanissayatā. Mettāvihārissa hi sattā appaṭikkūlā honti. Ath'assa appaṭikkūlā-paricayā appaṭikkūlesu parisuddha-vaṇṇesu nīlādīsu cittaṃ upasaṃharato appakasiren'eva tattha cittaṃ pakkhandati. Iti mettā subhavimokhassa upanissayo hoti, na tato paraṃ. Tasmā subha-paramā ti vuttā ….

[1118] Cf. M II 12, A I 40: … ajjhattaṃ arūpasaññī bahiddhā rūpāni passati subhanteva adhimutto hoti. M-a III 256, A-a II 75: Subhantveva adhimutto hotīti iminā suvisuddhesu nīlādīsu vaṇṇakasiṇesu jhānāni dassitāni. Tattha kiñcāpi antoappanāyaṃ subhanti ābhogo natthi, yo pana suvisuddhaṃ subhakasiṇārammaṇaṃ katvā viharati, so yasmā subhanti adhimutto hotī ti vattabbataṃ āpajjati, tasmā evaṃ desanā katā. Paṭisambhidāmagge pana kathaṃ subhantveva adhimutto hotīti vimokkho idha bhikkhu mettāsahagatena cetasā ekaṃ disaṃ pharitvā viharati…pe… mettāya bhāvitattā sattā appaṭikkūlā honti. Karuṇāsahagatena … muditāsahagatena … upekkhāsahagatena cetasā ekaṃ disaṃ pharitvā viharati … upekkhāya bhāvitattā sattā appaṭikkūlā honti. Evaṃ subhantveva adhimutto hotīti vimokkho"ti (Paṭis II 38) vuttaṃ.

[1119] See M-a III 256 in preceding fn. Cf. S-a II 134: Subhadhātūti subhakasiṇe uppannajjhānavasena sahārammaṇajjhānameva.

[1120] The Chinese text has "loving-kindness" instead of "compassion" here and in the next sentences. Only in the last sentence of this discussion ("Therefore it is said that compassion is best for the sphere of infinite space") "compassion" is used. Because compassion focusses on the suffering of beings (see Vism IX.94, etc.) and the parallel at Vism IX.121 has "compassion," the translation has been changed accordingly.

A. By developing compassion he knows the disadvantage of the material realm. Why? When seeing the suffering of beings that has matter as its cause, he gives rise to compassion.

Then, through knowing the disadvantages of the material realm, and focuses his mind on the escape from matter, on the base of [boundless] space, and his mind attains to fixity (appaṇā) without difficulty. Because he attains this [base] in dependence on that [compassion], therefore it is said that compassion has the base of [boundless] space as the supreme.[1121] 438b12

Q. What is the meaning of, "the meditator transcends the base of boundless space depending on appreciative joy"?

A. Having developed appreciative joy, his mind is unattached and constantly grasps the boundless consciousness object. Why? Through this appreciative joy, [his mind] being unattached, attains to fixity in the base of boundless consciousness with various kinds of beings as object. Then this unattached mind constantly graps the boundless consciousness object. Separated from matter and attached to [boundless] space,[1122] he focuses his mind on boundless consciousness and his mind attains to fixity without difficulty. Therefore, it is said that appreciative joy has the base of [boundless] consciousness as supreme.[1123]

Q. What is the meaning of "the meditator transcends the base of boundless consciousness depending on equanimity"?

A. Having developed equanimity, his mind accomplishes separation from attachment. Why? Through not developing equanimity, he becomes attached, [thinking,] "This being gets happiness," or "[this being] gets suffering" or he depends on rapture or happiness. Then, his mind separates from attachment, separates from that which is without attachment, and he focuses his mind on the base of nothingness (ākiñcaññāyatana) and his mind attains to fixity (appaṇā) without difficulty. His mind is not attached to any kind of object. Why? Because in the base of nothingness there is no attachment either to consciousness or to boundlessness. Therefore, it is said that equanimity has the base of nothingness as the supreme.[1124]

The miscellaneous topics are finished. 438b24

Defining of the Four Great Entities

Q. What is "defining of the four great entities"? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function and manifestation? What are its benefits? What is the procedure?

A. Investigation-knowledge (vicaya-ñāṇa) as to the specific characteristics (salakkhaṇa)[1125] of the internal four great entities—this is called "defining of the four great entities." The unwavering dwelling of the mind [in this defining]—this is called "the practising of it."

Defining (vavaṭṭhāna) of the four great entities is its characteristic.[1126] The entering into emptiness (suññataṃ avagāhana)[1127] is its function. The elimination of the perception of a being (satta-saññā) is its manifestation.[1128]

[1121] Cf. S-a III 173, Vism IX.121: Karuṇā-vihārissa daṇḍābighātādi-rūpa-nimittaṃ sattadukkhaṃ samanupassantassa karuṇāya pavatti-sambhavato rūpe ādīnavo suparividito hoti. Ath' assa suparividitarusuparividitarūpādinavattā paṭhavī kasiṇādīsu aññataraṃ ugghāṭetvā rūpa-nissaraṇe ākāse cittaṃ upasaṃharato appakasiren' eva tattha cittaṃ pakkhandati. Iti karuṇā ākāsānañcāyatanassa upanissayo hoti, na tato paraṃ. Tasmā 'ākāsānañcāyatanaparamā' ti vuttā.

[1122] 離色著於虛空, perhaps "separated from attachment to matter and space."

[1123] S-a III 173/Vim IX.122: Muditā-vihārissa pana tena tena pāmojja-kāraṇena uppanna-pāmojja-sattānaṃ viññāṇaṃ samanupassantassa muditāya pavatti-sambhavato viññāṇa-ggahana-paricitaṃ cittaṃ hoti. Ath'assa anukkamādhigataṃ ākāsānañcāyatanaṃ atikkamma ākāsa-nimitta-gocare viññāṇe cittaṃ upasaṃharato appakasiren' eva tattha cittaṃ pakkhandati. Iti muditā viññāṇañcāyatanassa upanissayo hoti, na tato paraṃ. Tasmā 'viññāṇañcāyatana-paramā' ti vuttā.

[1124] S-a III 173–4/Vim IX.123: Upekkhā-vihārissa pana 'sattā sukhitā vā hontu, dukkhato vā vimuccantu, sampattasukhato vā mā vigacchantū' ti ābhogābhāvato sukha-dukkhādīhi paramatthaggāha-vimukha-sambhavato avijjamānaggahaṇa-dukkhaṃ cittaṃ hoti. Ath' assa paramatthaggāhato vimukha-bhāva-paricita-cittassa paramatthato avijjamānaggahaṇa-dukkha-cittassa ca anukkamādhigataṃ viññāṇañcāyatanaṃ samatikkama-sabhāvato avijjamāne paramattha-bhūtassa viññāṇassa abhāve cittaṃ upasaṃharato appakasiren' eva tattha cittaṃ pakkhandati. Iti upekkhā ākiñcaññāyatanassa upanissayo hoti, na tato paraṃ. Tasmā ākiñcaññāyatanaparamā ti vuttā ti.

[1125] "Specific" or "own" as opposed to "general." See note 1312 (start Ch. 12).

[1126] Vism XI.27/p.347: Tattha vavatthānanti sabhāvūpalakkhaṇavasena sanniṭṭhānaṃ, catunnaṃ dhātūnaṃ vavatthānaṃ catudhātuvavatthānaṃ.

[1127] Vism-mhṭ 458: Suññataṃ avagāhatī ti dhātumattatādassanena rūpakāyassa anattakataṃ vavatthāpayato tadanusārena nāmakāyassāpi anattakatā supākaṭā hotīti sabbaso attasuññataṃ pariyogāhati tattha patiṭṭhahati.

[1128] Vism XI.117: Idañca pana catudhātuvavatthānaṃ anuyutto bhikkhu suññataṃ avagāhati, sattasaññaṃ

Q. What are its benefits?

A. One accomplishes and gains eight benefits: (1) One who practises the defining of the four great entities overcomes fear and dread, [438c] worldly pleasure and discontent; (2) is even-minded towards agreeable and disagreeable [objects]; (3) eliminates the idea of male and female; (4) is endowed with great wisdom; (5) he is destined to a good destination; (6) he is destined to the deathless; (7) he has clear states of mind; and (8) he completes the whole practice (bhāvanā).

Q. What is the procedure?

A. The beginner meditator grasps the elements in two ways: in brief and at length.

Grasping the elements in brief

Q. What is grasping the elements in brief?

A. The meditator goes into solitude, sits down, and composes his whole mind. With an unwavering mind [he contemplates]: "This body can be defined by way of the four elements thus: In this body all what has the nature of hardness (kakkhaḷa-bhāva) is the earth-element (paṭhavī-dhātu); what has the nature of fluidity (drava-bhāva) is the water-element (āpo-dhātu); what has the nature of heat (uṇha-bhāva) is the fire-element (tejo-dhātu); what has the nature of moving (samudīraṇa-bhāva)[1129] is the wind-element (vāyo-dhātu). Thus in this body consists of mere elements, without a being (nissatta), without a soul (nijjīva)." In this way one grasps the elements in brief.[1130]

Again, some say that the meditator grasps the elements in brief through analysing the body by means of analysing membranes,[1131] their colours, their forms, their locations. The meditator, having grasped the elements in brief by analysing the nature of the whole body by means of analysing membranes, their colours, their forms, their locations, analyses this body by means of flesh, its colours, its forms, its locations. The meditator, having analysed the whole body by means of analysing flesh, its colour, its matter, its location, analyses this whole body by means of analysing the veins, their colours, their forms, their locations. The meditator, having analysed the whole body through analysing the veins, their colours, their forms, their locations, analyses the whole body through analysing the bones, their colour, their forms, their locations.

The meditator in these four ways masters his mind. By mastering his mind, he makes his mind soft and wieldable (mudu & kammanīya). The meditator, having in these four ways mastered his mind and having made his mind soft and wieldable, through these four ways knows "That which has solidity is the earth-element"; knows "That which has fluidity is the water-element"; knows "That which has heat is the fire-element"; knows "That which has motion is the wind-element." Thus the meditator, in these four ways, [knows that this body] consists of mere elements, without a being, without a soul."

Through inference the other ways are established.

Thus one grasps the elements in brief. 438c26

Grasping the elements at length

Q. How does one grasp the elements at length?

A. One grasps the earth-element at length through twenty ways, namely, [through defining] "In this body there are (1) head-hair, (2) body-hair, (3) nails, (4) teeth, (5) skin, (6) flesh, (7) sinews, (8) veins, (8) bones, (9) marrow, (10) kidneys, (11) heart, (12) liver, (13) lungs, (14) spleen, (15) stomach, (16) large intestines, (17) small intestines, (18) bladder (or placenta), (19) excrement and (20) brain."[1132] samugghāteti. So sattasaññāya samūhatattā vāḷamigayakkharakkhasādivikappaṃ anāvajjamāno bhayabheravasaho hoti, aratiratisaho, na iṭṭhāniṭṭhesu ugghātanigghātaṃ pāpuṇāti. Mahāpañño ca pana hoti amatapariyosāno vā sugatiparāyano vāti.

---

[1129] The text is confused here and a few editions introduce the earth-element here. The Palace edition has: "What has the nature of supporting/extending is the wind-element." See the section "word meaning" below.

[1130] Cf. Vism XI.41: Tasmā imaṃ kammaṭṭhānaṃ bhāvetukāmena tikkhapaññena tāva rahogatena paṭisallīnena sakalampi attano rūpakāyaṃ āvajjetvā yo imasmiṃ kāye thaddhabhāvo vā kharabhāvo vā, ayaṃ pathavīdhātu. Yo ābandhanabhāvo vā dravabhāvo vā, ayaṃ āpodhātu. Yo paripācanabhāvo vā uṇhabhāvo vā, ayaṃ tejodhātu. Yo vitthambhanabhāvo vā samudīraṇabhāvo vā, ayaṃ vāyodhātūti evaṃ saṃkhittena dhātuyo pariggahetvā punappunaṃ pathavīdhātu āpodhātūti dhātumattato nissattato nijjīvato āvajjitabbaṃ manasikātabbaṃ paccavekkhitabbaṃ.

[1131] 膜 E.g. midriff, pleura, etc. See Vism VIII.115/p.257 and Ñāṇamoli's note to it in PoP.

[1132] Nett 73: Dvīhi ākārehi dhātuyo pariggaṇhāti saṅkhepena ca vitthārena ca. Kathaṃ vitthārena dhātuyo pariggaṇhāti? Vīsatiyā ākārehi pathavīdhātuṃ vitthārena pariggaṇhāti, dvādasahi ākārehi āpodhātuṃ vitthārena pariggaṇhāti, catūhi ākārehi tejodhātuṃ vitthārena pariggaṇhāti, chahi ākārehi vāyodhātuṃ vitthārena pariggaṇhāti. Katamehi vīsatiyā ākārehi pathavīdhātuṃ vitthārena pariggaṇhāti? Atthi imasmiṃ kāye kesā lomā nakhā dantā taco…

One grasps the water-element at length through twelve ways, namely: "In this body there are (1) bile, (2) saliva, (3) pus, (4) blood, (5) sweat, (6) fat, (7) tears, (8) grease, (9) slobber, (10) nasal mucus, (11) synovial fluid [439a] and (12) urine."

One grasps the fire-element at length through four ways, namely, through (1) heat (of fever), warmth (of the body), (2) warmth (of weather), (3) equality (of cold and heat),[1133] and (4) that by means of which one digests the fluid or solid nutriment that has been taken in. These are called the fire-element.

One grasps the wind-element at length through six ways, namely, through (1) the winds going upwards, (2) the winds going downwards, (3) the winds which depends on the abdomen, (4) the winds which depends on the back,[1134] (5) the winds which depends on the limbs, and (6) the winds of the in breaths and out breaths.[1135]

Thus in forty-two ways one sees this body as mere elements, without a being, without a soul. 439a05

Thus the elements are grasped at length.

Ten Ways of Defining the Great Entities

Again, ancient teachers taught that one should define the four great entities through ten ways, namely: by way of word-meaning (vacanatthato); by way of function (kiccato); groups (kalāpato); pulverizing (cuṇṇato); inseparability (avinibbhogato); condition (paccayato); characteristic (lakkhaṇato); similarity and dissimilarity (sabhāga-visabhāgato); unity and difference (nānattekattato); and element-puppet (dāruyantato).

Word meaning

Q. How should one define the elements by way of analysing [the meaning of] words?

A. The two terms for the elements are specific and general, i.e., general terms and specific terms.

Herein, the four great entities[1136]—these are general terms. Earth-element, water-element, fire-element, wind-element—these are specific terms.

Q. What is the meaning of "four great entities"?

A. "Great apparitions" (mahā-pātubhāva) is the meaning of "great entities." Being great entities,[1137] they are unreal, but they make themselves appear as real (bhūtattha)—therefore they are called "great entities."[1138]

"Great entities": They are resembling the appearances (saṇṭhāna, viggaha) of spirits (bhūta, yakkha), therefore they are called "great entities."

Q. Why are the "great apparitions" called "great entities"?[1139]

A. [Because] the elements are great apparitions. As the Blessed One declared in the following verse:

> The size of the earth is said to be two hundred thousand nahutas and four;
> Water is four hundred thousand nahuta and eight;
> The wind dwelling in the sky (ākāsa), is nine hundred thousand nahutas and six;
> The world is established also through fire.[1140]

[1133] According to RB, the preceding three ways are "heat, warmth, hotness." The Chinese translator would have had difficulties translating these 3 ways, which are also given in Vism XI.31 and M I 188 as "that whereby one is warmed, ages, and burns up, and whereby what is eaten…"

[1134] Vibh-a 5: Vātā ti kucchivāta-piṭṭhivātādi-vasena veditabbā.

[1135] Nett 74: Katamehi chahi ākārehi vāyodhātuṃ vitthārena parigaṇhāti? Uddhaṃgamā vātā adhogamā vātā kucchisayā vātā koṭṭhāsayā vātā aṅgamaṅgānusārino vātā assāso passāso.

[1136] EKS "Great primaries." In Chinese the elements are the "four greats" (from mahābhūta). Translating as "primaries" causes the point to be missed here.

[1137] 有大. DDB gives the meaning of this as bhūtika, "composed from the elements."

[1138] LC: "The two lines given as the answer at present look like a verse on similar lines to that given by Buddhadatta, but with a different third pāda. Abhidh-av 626: Mahantā pātubhūtā ti, mahābhūtasamā ti vā. / Vañcakattā abhūtena, mahābhūtā ti saññitā. The ṭīkā on that: Abhidh-av-ṭ (Be) II 109 = Vism XI.97–100. See Abhidh-s-mhṭ Trsl. p.216." Cf. Vism XI.96: Mahantapātubhāvādīhīti etā hi dhātuyo mahantapātubhāvato, mahābhūtasāmaññato, mahāparihārato, mahāvikārato, mahattā bhūtattā cāti imehi kāraṇehi mahābhūtānīti vuccanti. Cf. Paṭis-a II 515.

[1139] The Chinese character for "great," mahā, as well as "great entity," mahābhūta, is the same, 大, but I presumably the Chinese translator would indicate it when he would intend the former sense here.

[From] the centre of the world, myriad flames,
Rise up as far as the Brahmā worlds,
When, at the final end, the seventh sun [appears].[1141]

The "great apparitions" are thus, therefore they are called "great entities."[1142]

Q. How do the great entities that are unreal make themselves appear as real?

A. What are called "great entities" are neither male nor female. They are seen through the form (rūpa) of a man or a woman. An element is neither long nor short. It is seen through the form of the long and the short. An element is neither a tree nor a mountain, but it is seen through the form of a tree or a mountain. Thus the great entities are not real, but makes themselves appear as real and are called "great entities."'

Q. What is the meaning of "resembling spirits"? 439a25

It is as if a spirit were to enter into a man's body and occupy his body. Through the spirit's appearance there is the manifestation of four functions: hardness, fluidity, heat and movement. Just so, in the body, through being possessed of[1143] the elements, there is the manifestation of four functions:[1144] Through being possessed of the earth-element there is hardness; through being possessed of the water-element, there is fluidity; through being possessed of the fire-element, there is heat; and through being possessed of the wind-element, there is movement.

Thus, because of resembling the appearance of spirits, they are called "great entities." [439b] Thus "great entities" is the word-meaning.

Q. What is the meaning of "earth-element," "water-element," "fire-element" and "wind-element"?

A. Extensiveness and immensity are the meaning of "earth." Drinkability and preservation—these are the meaning of "water." Lighting up is the meaning of "fire." Going and coming (gamanāgamana) is the meaning of "wind."[1145]

Q. What is the meaning of "element"?

A. It has the meaning of "bearing its own characteristics (salakkhaṇa-dhāraṇa)."[1146]

Again, the intrinsic nature (sabhāva) of earth is the earth-element.[1147] The intrinsic nature of water is

---

[1140] Cf. Vism VII.40–41, XI.97, Dhs-a 297f.: Duve satasahassāni, cattāri nahutāni ca; / Ettakaṃ bahalattena, saṅkhātāyaṃ vasundharā. … Cattāri satasahassāni, aṭṭheva nahutāni ca; / Ettakaṃ bahalattena, jalaṃ vāte patiṭṭhitaṃ. … Nava satasahassāni, māluto nabhamuggato; / Saṭṭhiñceva sahassāni, esā lokassa saṇṭhiti. Vism XI.102, Dhs-a 300: Bhūmito vuṭṭhitā yāva brahmalokā vidhāvati; / Acci accimato loke, ḍayhamānamhi tejasā.

LC: "I am unsure whether this is an abbreviated citation and the author of Vim meant to imply the inclusion of the following stanzas too. The arithmetic is quite clear in the Pali. Since according to the ṭīkās a nahuta in this context is 10,000 sc. yojana, the thickness of the underlying earth is 240,000 yojanas. The underlying water is twice that i.e. 480,000 and the wind below that is again twice that i.e. 960,000."

[1141] 乃極七日. For the seventh sun appearing at the end of an aeon and it burning up the world system, including all realms up to the fourth Brahmaloka, see the Sattasuriyasutta, A IV 100–103 and Vism XIII.41/p.416.

[1142] In the Chinese text this line is printed as the last two lines of the verses.

[1143] The Chinese text has "fire-element" but this does not make sense here. The Chinese character for "being possessed by" is 和合, which can also mean "union of," "combined with," etc. In this context 和合 corresponds best to samaṅgī, "being possessed of," or "being endowed with," the Chinese translator misunderstanding samaṅgī for sāmaggi "unity," cf. 422b03. Cf. Vism-mhṭ Be p. 453: Pathavīādīnaṃ kakkhaḷapaggharaṇādivisesalakkhaṇasamaṅgitā apariccattadhātulakkhaṇānaṃyevāti āha dhātulakkhaṇaṃ anatītattā ti.

[1144] Cf. Vism XI.100/Vism I 363: Yathā ca yakkhinīsaṅkhātāni mahābhūtāni manāpehi vaṇṇasaṇṭhānavikkhepehi attano bhayānakabhāvaṃ paṭicchādetvā satte vañcenti, evameva etānipi itthipurisasarīrādīsu manāpena chavivaṇṇena manāpena attano aṅgapaccaṅgasaṇṭhānena manāpena ca hatthapādaṅgulibhamukavikkhepena attano kakkhaḷattādibhedaṃ sarasa-lakkhaṇaṃ paṭicchādetvā bālajanaṃ vañcenti, attano sabhāvaṃ daṭṭhuṃ na dentīti vañcakattena yakkhinīmahābhūtasāmaññatopi mahābhūtāni.

[1145] Cf. Vism XI.87: Tattha vacanatthato manasikarontena patthaṭattā pathavī. Appoti āpiyati apayāti ti vā āpo. Tejatī ti tejo. Vāyatī ti vāyo. Avisesena pana salakkhaṇadhāraṇato…

[1146] Cf. Vism XI.103: Salakkhaṇadhāraṇato pana dukkhādānato ca dukkhādhānato ca sabbāpi dhātulakkhaṇaṃ anatītattā dhātuyo. Cf. Vism XI.87 in preceding note. Elsewhere 自相 as salakkhaṇa has been translated as "specific characteristic."

[1147] Transl. by RB, who notes: "Perhaps the Q and first A were meant to be further up in the text (e.g. as first Q and A under "Meaning of terms"). In that case the remaining four answers would have come immediately after the preceding set of answers, beginning with "Extensiveness…", so could have been an alternative to it."

EKS: "It means the retention of own form, and next the essence of earth is the earth-element.'

the water-element. The intrinsic nature of fire is the fire-element. The intrinsic nature of wind is the wind-element.

Q. What is "the intrinsic nature of earth"?

A. The intrinsic nature of hardness (kakkhaḷa); the intrinsic nature of stiffness (thaddha); the intrinsic nature of solidness (ghana); the intrinsic nature of immobility; the intrinsic nature of fixing (ṭhapana or patiṭṭhāna); and the intrinsic nature of supporting (dhāraṇa). These are called "the intrinsic intrinsic nature of earth."[1148]

Q. What is "the intrinsic nature of water"?

A. The intrinsic nature of fluidity (drava); the intrinsic nature of moisture; the intrinsic nature of oozing; the intrinsic nature of trickling; the intrinsic nature of filling (paripūrana?); the intrinsic nature of increasing (brūhana); the intrinsic nature of floating (uplavana) and the intrinsic nature of cohesion (ābadhana). These are called "the intrinsic nature of water."

Q. What is "the intrinsic nature of fire"?

A. The intrinsic nature of heating (uṇha); the intrinsic nature of warming; the intrinsic nature of evaporating; the intrinsic nature of maturing (paripācana); the intrinsic nature of burning (dahana); and the intrinsic nature of grasping (upādāna).[1149] These are called "the intrinsic nature of fire."

Q. What is "the intrinsic nature of wind"?

A. The intrinsic nature of distention (vitthambhana);[1150] the intrinsic nature of cooling (sītala);[1151] the intrinsic nature of going and coming; the intrinsic nature of movement; the intrinsic nature of inclining; and the intrinsic nature of grasping (upādāna). These are called "the intrinsic nature of wind." 439b10

These are the meanings of the elements.

Thus one should define the four elements by way of word-meaning.

Function

Q. How should one define the elements by way of function?

A. The earth-element has supporting as function. The water-element has cohesion as function. The

---

[1148] Vim XI.94: pathavīdhātu kakkhaḷattalakkhaṇā, patiṭṭhānarasā, sampaṭicchanapaccupaṭṭhānā. Āpodhātu paggharaṇalakkhaṇā, brūhanarasā, saṅgahapaccupaṭṭhānā. Tejodhātu uṇhattalakkhaṇā, paripācanarasā, maddavānuppadānapaccupaṭṭhānā. Vāyodhātu vitthambhanalakkhaṇā, samudīraṇarasā.

[1149] Perhaps this is stands for maddavānuppadāna of Vim XI.94. Cf. M I 487: yo me ayaṃ purato aggi jalati ayaṃ aggi tiṇakaṭṭhupādānaṃ paṭicca jalati.

[1150] In the Theravāda Abhidhamma system "distension" or "expansion," vitthambhana, is given as the characteristic of the wind-element; see Vism XI.37/p.350 and XI.93/p.365. The Chinese text, however, has 持 which normally corresponds to dhāraṇa, "supporting," a characteristic of the earth-element, of which in fact the last nature in the list above is also 持. DDB gives upasthambha, "support" as a correspondence for 持 and it appears that the Chinese translator misunderstood vitthambhana for upatthambhana, which is likely because in Sanskrit the two have the same meaning of "supporting."

[1151] "Coldness" (= Skt/Pali sīta) is not given as a characteristic of any element in the Theravāda canonical and commentarial Abhidhamma system. In the ṭīkā on the Vism sīta is stated to be a characteristic of the fire-element since the discernment of coldness happens when there is a reduced heat. The Vism-mhṭ further says that there are those who say that the water-element has the characteristic of coldness, sītatā, which would correspond this in the Vim. On this topic, cf. Karunadasa, 1967, p. 19–20 & 29.

Vism-mhṭ II 108 (Be): Kimidaṃ phoṭṭhabbaṃ nāmā ti? Pathavītejovāyodhātuttayaṃ. Kasmā panettha āpodhātu aggahitā, nanu sītatā phusitvā gayhati, sā ca āpodhātu ti? Saccaṃ gayhati, na pana sā āpodhātu. Kiñcarahī ti? Tejodhātu eva. Mande hi uṇhabhāve sītabuddhi. Na hi sītaṃ nāma koci guṇo atthi, kevalaṃ pana uṇhabhāvassa mandatāya sītatābhimāno. Kathametaṃ viññātabbanti ce? Anavaṭṭhitattā sītabuddhiyā yathā pārāpāre. Tathā hi ghammakāle ātape ṭhitānaṃ chāyaṃ paviṭṭhānaṃ sītabuddhi hoti, tattheva pana pathavīgabbhato uṭṭhitānaṃ uṇhabuddhi. Yadi hi sītatā āpodhātu siyā, ekasmiṃ kalāpe uṇhabhāvena saddhiṃ upalabbheyya, na ca upalabbhati. Tasmā viññāyati na āpodhātu sītatā ti. Idañca bhūtānaṃ avinibbhogavuttitaṃ icchantānaṃ uttaraṃ, anicchantānampi pana catunnaṃ bhūtānaṃ ekasmiṃ kalāpe kiccadassanena sabhāgavuttitāya sādhitāya uttarameva. Ye pana vāyodhātuyā lakkhaṇaṃ sītatā ti vadanti, tesampi idameva uttaraṃ. Yadi hi vāyodhātu-sītatā siyā, ekasmiṃ kalāpe uṇhabhāvena saddhiṃ sītatā upalabbheyya, na ca upalabbhati. Tasmā viññāyati na vāyodhātu sītatā ti.

"Coldness" is also mentioned below under the heading "Characteristic." Perhaps it means "cooling" because wind cools the body. The other natures also appear to be action nouns related to movement. Two of the benefits of practising the wind kasiṇa (the latter benefit not found in the Visuddhimagga) are the ability to "cause wind to arise and coolness to prevail," suggesting that wind is the cause for coolness. The definition of the external wind-element in the Vibhaṅga (§ 176) includes "cold winds and hot winds": Yaṃ bāhiraṃ vāyo … seyyathidaṃ … sītā vātā uṇhā vātā parittā vātā adhimattā vātā …

fire-element has maturing as function. The wind-element has taking away[1152] as function

Again, the earth-element has standing as function; the water-element has descending as function; the fire-element has raising as function; the wind-element has moving around as function.

And again, owing to the proximity of two elements, there is at first the raising of the foot; and owing to the proximity of two elements, there is afterwards the putting down of the foot.[1153] Owing to the proximity of two elements, there is at first sitting or lying down. And owing to the proximity of two elements, there is afterwards standing and walking. Owing to the proximity of two elements, there is at first sloth and torpor. Owing to the proximity of two elements, there is afterwards inception of energy (viriyārambha). 439b17 Owing to the proximity of two elements, there is at first heaviness. Owing to the proximity of two elements, there is afterwards lightness.

Thus one should define the four great entities by way of function.

Groups

Q. How should one define the four great entities by way of groups (kalāpa)?

A. As to groups: There are the earth-element, the water-element, the fire-element and the wind-element. Dependent upon these elements, there are [the sense-bases of] form, smell, taste and touch.[1154] These eight states (dhamma) are usually (yebhuyyena?) born together (sahajāta) and stay together; they are inseperable (avinibbhoga). This combination is called "group." 439b21

Again, there are four kinds, namely, the earth group, the water group, the fire group and the wind group.

In the earth group of, the earth-element is most (adhika?); and the water-element, the fire-element and the wind-element successively are less. In the water group, the water-element is most; and the earth-element, the wind-element and the fire-element successively are less. In the fire group, the fire-element is most; and the earth-element, the wind-element and the water-element successively are less. In the wind group, the wind-element is most; and the fire-element, the water-element and the earth-element successively are less.[1155]

Thus one should define the elements by way of groups.

Pulverizing

Q. How should one define the four great entities by way of pulverizing?[1156]

A. One defines the earth-element as [pulvarized] into the finest particle of dust.[1157] This earth is [1152] The character 遮. means "check," "prohibit," "avoid," or "intercept." The parallel in Vism XI.93 has abhinīhāra. Ñāṇamoli's made a footnote there on the technical meaning of this word and rendered as "conveying." The Chinese translator would have understood abhinīhāra as nīhāra/nīharaṇa, "ejection, taking out," or parihāra, "keep away, avoid."

---

[1153] The Chinese text has "... owing to the proximity of two elements, there is at first the raising of the foot; and owing to the proximity of two elements, there is afterwards the raising of the foot," which does not make sense. Given the "first this, then afterwards its opposite" structure of the following and the Pali passage below, the translation has been amended to "putting down of the foot."

Cf. M-a I 260–61: Tass' evaṃ abhikkamato ekekapāduddharaṇe paṭhavīdhātu āpodhātū ti dve dhātuyo omattā honti mandā, itarā dve adhimattā honti balavatiyo. Tathā atiharaṇa-vītiharaṇesu. Vossajjane tejodhātu-vāyodhātuyo omattā honti mandā, itarā dve adhimattā balavatiyo. Tathā sannikkhepana-sannirumbhanesu. Tattha uddharaṇe pavattā rūpārūpadhammā atiharaṇaṃ na pāpuṇanti. Tathā atiharaṇe pavattā vītiharaṇaṃ, vītiharaṇe pavattā vossajjanaṃ, vossajjane pavattā sannikkhepanaṃ, sannikkhepane pavattā sannirumbhanaṃ na pāpuṇanti. Tattha tatth' eva pabbapabbaṃ sandhisandhim odhi-odhiṃ hutvā tattakapāle pakkhitta-tilā viya taṭataṭāyantā bhijjanti.

[1154] The original text likely had ojā, "nutritive essence," here. The Chinese translator would not have understood that according to Theravāda Abhidhamma "touch" is not derived matter. The same change he made at the explanation of the eye-decad at 446b19–20, although tangible is not included earlier in the list of derived matters. See fn. @@ to. Vism XI.88/p.364 has ojā instead of phoṭṭhabba, just like in the explanation of the eye-decad: Vaṇṇo gandho raso ojā, catasso cāpi dhātuyo; / Aṭṭhadhammasamodhānā, hoti kesāti sammuti; / Tesaṃyeva vinibbhogā, natthi kesāti sammuti.

[1155] Cf. A III 340–41: Ākaṅkhamāno āvuso bhikkhu iddhimā cetovasippatto amuṃ dārukkhandhaṃ paṭhavī tveva adhimucceyya. Taṃ kissa hetu? Atthi āvuso amusmiṃ dārukkhandhe paṭhavidhātu, yaṃ nissāya bhikkhu iddhimā ... paṭhavī tveva adhimucceyya. ...

[1156] EKS translated this as "powder" however the context seems to indicate a more active sense, also as opposed to the preceding way of aggregation. Ñāṇamoli renders cuṇṇato as "particles" in the parallel at Vism XI.89.

[1157] Lit.: "has become adjacent to the finest particle of space (ākāsaparamāṇu)." LC: "This is partly paramāṇubhedasañcuṇṇā sukhumarajabhūtā '(the earth-element) if it is powdered and broken up to the smallest mixed with water; therefore it does not disperse. Being matured by fire, it is without malodour;[1158] being distented by wind, it moves around. Thus one should define. [439c]

Again, the ancient teachers said: "If the body of an average man is broken up until it becomes dust, the earth-element in the body of an person will amount to one hú (doṇa) and two shēng. Then, if mixed with water, it will become six shēng and five gě.[1159] When matured by fire, wind raises it and swirls it around."

Thus one should define the elements by way of pulverizing.

Inseparability

Q. How should one define the four great entities by way of inseparability?

A. The earth-element is held together by water; is matured by fire; is distended by wind. Thus three elements are united. The water-element rests on earth; is matured by fire; is distended by wind. Thus three elements are held together. The fire-element rests on the earth; is held together by water; distended by wind. Thus three elements are matured. The wind-element rests on earth; is held together by water; is matured by fire. Thus three elements are distended.

Three elements rest on earth. Held together by water, three elements do not disperse. Matured by fire, three elements are without malodour. Distended by wind, three elements roll straight, and remain without dispersing.

Thus the four elements are dependent upon each other (aññamaññña) and stay (together) without dispersing.

Thus one defines the elements by way of inseparability.

Condition

Q. How should one define the elements by way of condition? 439c11

A. There are four causes, four conditions for the arising of the elements. What are the four? They are kamma, mind (citta), season (utu) and nutriment (āhāra).

Q. Why is kamma [a condition]?

A. The elements[1160] that are produced from kamma (kammasamuṭṭhāna) are conditions as two conditions, namely, the producing-condition (janaka-paccaya) and kamma-condition (kamma-paccaya). The other elements are conditions as the support-condition (nissaya- or upanissaya-paccaya).[1161]

Mind (citta): The elements that are produced from mind (cittasamuṭṭhāna) are conditions as six conditions, namely, (1) producing-condition, (2) co-nascence-condition (saha-jāta-paccaya), (3) support-condition, (4) nutriment-condition (āhāra-paccaya), (5) faculty-condition (indriya-paccaya), (6) presence-condition (atthi-paccaya). The other elements become condition as support-condition and presence-possible extent and made into fine dust' (see Vism XI.89). Probably paramāṇu and bheda-sañcuṇṇā have been read as separate words. Raja has been mistakenly understood as rajas in the sense of space (cf. MW) instead of in the sense of dust. There is no such expression as ākāsaparamāṇu." Perhaps the Chinese translator interpreted it in accordance with paramāṇu nāma ākāsakoṭṭhāsiko, "the smallest atom as particle of space" in Dhs-a 343 and Vism-mhṭ. See footnote to Vism XI.89 in The Path of Purification.

---

[1158] EKS render "odourless" but in Vism XI.91 "pūtibhāvaṃ na dasseti" is found. The Chinese character means "foul stench."

[1159] 10 gě = 1 sho = 1.588 quart, 0.48 standard gallon, 1.804 litres. This quotation is untraced.

[1160] The Chinese text adds "four" before "elements" here and below, but there should be no number here; see the parallel in Vism XI.111–113. The Chinese translator may have mistranslated "dhātu" as "four elements," 四界. Below he even changes over to "four great entities," 四大. In the introductory question and answer the number "four" is not given before "elements," and below "other elements" is used, which support that it is an error here.

Vism XI.111f: Paccayavibhāgato ti dhātūnaṃ hi kammaṃ, cittaṃ, āhāro, utū ti cattāro paccayā. Tattha kammasamuṭṭhānānaṃ kammameva paccayo hoti, na cittādayo. Cittādisamuṭṭhānānampi cittādayova paccayā honti, na itare. Kammasamuṭṭhānānañca kammaṃ janakapaccayo hoti, sesānaṃ pariyāyato upanissayapaccayo hoti. Cittasamuṭṭhānānaṃ cittaṃ janakapaccayo hoti, sesānaṃ pacchājātapaccayo atthipaccayo avigatapaccayo ca. Āhārasamuṭṭhānānaṃ āhāro janakapaccayo hoti, sesānaṃ āhārapaccayo atthipaccayo avigatapaccayo ca. Utusamuṭṭhānānaṃ utu janakapaccayo hoti, sesānaṃ atthipaccayo avigatapaccayo ca. Kammasamuṭṭhānaṃ mahābhūtaṃ kammasamuṭṭhānānampi mahābhūtānaṃ paccayo hoti cittādisamuṭṭhānānampi. Tathā cittasamuṭṭhānaṃ, āhārasamuṭṭhānaṃ. Utusamuṭṭhānaṃ mahābhūtaṃ utusamuṭṭhānānampi mahābhūtānaṃ paccayo hoti kammādisamuṭṭhānānampi.

[1161] "The other elements" are those produced by consciousness, season and nutriment. The Chinese text has 依緣, nissaya-paccaya, however, the Vism parallel indicates that it should be upanissaya-paccaya, "decisive-support-condition." The Chinese translator would have misunderstood the difference or lacked the vocabulary to render it.

condition.

At the moment of the mind (citta) entering the womb, the [derived] matters (upādāda-rūpāni) are conditions as seven conditions, namely, co-nascence-condition, reciprocality-condition (aññamaññapaccaya), support-condition, nutriment-condition, faculty-condition, result-condition (vipāka-paccaya), and presence-condition.[1162]

The postnascent mind becomes a condition for the prenascent body as three conditions, namely, post-nascence-condition (pacchā-jāta-paccaya), support-condition and presence-condition.[1163] 439c20

Season: The elements that are produced from season (utusamuṭṭhāna) are conditions as two conditions, namely, producing-condition and presence-condition. The other elements are conditions as two conditions, namely, support-condition and presence-condition.[1164]

Nutriment: The elements that are produced from nutriment (āhārasamuṭṭhāna) are conditions as three conditions, namely, producing-condition, nutriment-condition and presence-condition. The other elements are conditions as two conditions, namely, support-condition and presence-condition.

Here the elements that are produced by kamma are co-nascent conditions for each other (aññamaññā) as four conditions,[1165] namely, co-nascence-condition, reciprocality-condition, support-condition, presence-condition. The other elements are conditions as two conditions, namely, support-condition and presence-condition.[1166]

Thus one should know the elements produced from kamma,[1167] produced from mind, produced from season, and produced from food.

The earth-element is a condition for the other elements as supporting (patiṭṭhā) condition. The water-element is a condition for the other elements as cohesion condition. The fire-element is a condition of the other elements as maturing condition. The wind-element is a condition of the other elements as distension condition.[1168]

Thus one defines the elements by way of condition. [440a]

Characteristic

Q. How should one define the elements by way of characteristic?

A. The characteristic of the earth-element is hardness. The characteristic of the water-element is moistness. The characteristic of the fire-element is heat. The characteristic of the wind-element is coldness.

Thus one defines the elements by way of characteristic.

[1162] LC: "Most of the seven are given in the same order as here in the Paccayaniddesa (Tika-Paṭṭhāna 1ff.) as okkantikkhaṇe. 'Result condition' must be a mistake, as that is purely a mental condition for mental phenomena. Presumably it is an error for 'non-absence condition.' A number of the problems here and below may be due to the Chinese translator not understanding that atthi and avigata are two distinct paccayas. Or, of course, the author of Vim might have been utilizing a slightly different version of Paṭṭh."

Vism-mhṭ II 274: Okkantikkhaṇe ti paṭisandhikkhaṇe. Tasmiṃ hi khaṇe nāmarūpaṃ okkantaṃ viya paralokato āgantvā idha mātukucchiādiṃ pavisantaṃ viya uppajjati, tasmā so khaṇo okkantikkhaṇoti vuccati.

[1163] LC: "Vism has four ways. Avigatapaccaya is again missing. But with that we would have the four cases in the Paccayaniddesa of the Paṭṭhāna where we have the section beginning with, Yaṃ rūpan nissāya manodhātu ca manoviññāṇadhātu ca."

[1164] Vism has presence-condition and non-absence condition here. Likewise in the following nutriment section.

[1165] The Chinese text is not clear here. Literally it translates as "... conascent elements, mutually/each other, they are conditions as four conditions." "Conascent elements" does not make sense. It is likely that the original text had "conascent conditions for each each other." Cf. Vism XVII.74: Cattāro mahābhūtā aññamaññaṃ ... sahajātapaccayena paccayo, "the four great entities are a condition for each other as conascent condition." 439c24: 業生四界共生界。展轉以四緣成緣.

[1166] LC: "Vism has five ways. Avigatapaccaya is again missing. But with that we would have in order the five cases in the Paccayaniddesa where we have the section beginning Cattāro mahābhūtā aññamaññaṃ...."

Paṭṭh I 4 (Be): Sahajātapaccayo ti ... Cattāro mahābhūtā aññamaññaṃ sahajātapaccayena paccayo. ... Aññamaññapaccayo ti ... Cattāro mahābhūtā aññamaññapaccayena paccayo. ... Nissayapaccayoti ... Cattāro mahābhūtā aññamaññaṃ nissayapaccayena paccayo. ...

[1167] Not found in the text, where it must have got lost, but obviously needed.

[1168] Vism XI.112: Tattha kammasamuṭṭhānā pathavīdhātu kammasamuṭṭhānānaṃ itarāsaṃ sahajātaaññamaññanissayaatthiavigatavasena ceva patiṭṭhāvasena ca paccayo hoti, na janakavasena. Itaresaṃ tisantatimahābhūtānaṃ nissayaatthiavigatavasena paccayo hoti, na patiṭṭhāvasena na janakavasena. ...

Similarity and dissimilarity

Q. How should one define the elements by way of similarity and dissimilarity?

A. The earth-element and the water-element are similar because of heaviness. The fire-element and the wind-element are similar because of lightness.

The water-element and the fire-element are dissimilar because the water-element can extinguish [fire] and the fire-element causes dryness; therefore they are dissimilar. The earth-element and the wind-element are not similar to each other because the earth-element hinders the passage of the wind-element and the wind-element is able to destroy the earth-element; therefore they are dissimilar.

Again, the four elements are similar to each other owing to the reciprocality condition or they are not similar to each other owing to their specific characteristics (salakkhaṇa).

Thus one defines the elements according to similarity and dissimilarity.

Unity and difference

Q. How should one define the four great entities by way of unity and difference? 440a10

A. The four elements that are produced from kamma are one, because they are produced from kamma; [but] owing to characteristics they are different. In the same way one should know those that are produced from mind (citta), from season and from nutriment.

The four conditions (nidāna or paccaya) of the earth-element are one owing to characteristics; owing to causes (hetu) they are different. In the same way, one should know the four conditions of the wind-element, the fire-element and the water-element.[1169] 440a14

The four elements are one owing to being elements; owing to being great entities; owing to being states (dhamma); owing to being impermanent; owing to being suffering; owing to being not-self. They are different owing to characteristics; are different owing to function; are different owing to kamma; are different owing to differences in mind (citta); are different owing to differences in season; are different owing to differences in nutriment; are different owing to differences in nature (bhāva); are different owing to differences in arising; are different owing to the differences in birth; are different owing to differences in destination (gati).

Thus one defines the elements by way of unity and difference.

Element-puppet

Q. How should one define the elements by way of the element-puppet?

A. It is like a skilled puppeteer who makes a human [puppet] out of wood, endowed with all body parts, that walks following [him]. The inside [parts] are connected by strings. The fake outside is plastered with clay. Its shape and colour is like a human, male or female, adorned with gems and clothes. When this "human" is pulled by the strings, it walks, dances, leans or sits.

Like that element-puppet is the "body"; the puppeteer who makes the body endowed with all body parts is past defilement; the connecting strings are tendons; the clay is flesh; the colour (i.e., paint) is skin; the apertures are space. By jewellery, clothes and ornaments it is called a man or woman. Its mental acts (citta-kiriya) are the wind-element pulling [the strings]. Whether walking, standing, going or coming, stretching out or drawing in, speaking or teaching—this element-puppet-person is produced together (sahajāta) with the element of consciousness.[1170] Through the cause (nidāna) of sorrow and [1169] This passage refers to the above set of four: kamma. citta, āhāra, and utu, which are sometimes referred to as the four paccayas of rūpa. Cf. "By way of conditions" section above (439c12): "There are four causes, four conditions for the arising of the elements. … kamma, mind, season and nutriment." Cf. Dhs-a 304: sappaccayam evā ti ettha pana kammasamuṭṭhānaṃ kammapaccayam eva hoti, āhārasamuṭṭhānādīni āhārādipaccayān'evā ti evaṃ rūpass'eva vuttacatupaccayavasena attho veditabbo. Sacc 59: kālenāhārajaṃ hoti, cakkhādidasakāni ca. / catupaccayato rūpaṃ, sampiṇḍ' evaṃ pavattati.

---

[1170] Cf. D-a I 197, M-a I 265, S-a III 194, Vibh-a 359: Abbhantare attā nāma koci samiñjento vā pasārento vā natthi, vuttappakāracittakiriyavāyodhātuvipphārena pana suttākaḍḍhanavasena dāruyantassa hatthapādala-calanaṃ viya samiñjanapasāraṇaṃ hotī ti evaṃ parijānanaṃ panettha asammohasampajaññanti veditabbaṃ. Dhs-a 83: … chahi cittehi samuṭṭhitaṃ vāyodhātuṃ upatthambhanapaccayaṃ labhitvā attanā sahajātaṃ rūpakāyaṃ santhambhetuṃ sandhāretuṃ cāletuṃ abhikkamāpetuṃ paṭikkamāpetuṃ ālokāpetuṃ vilokāpetuṃ sammiñjāpetuṃ pasārāpetuṃ sakkoti. Vism XVIII.31/p.594. Tasmā yathā dāruyantaṃ suññaṃ nijjīvaṃ nirīhakaṃ, atha ca pana dārurajjukasamāyogavasena gacchatipi tiṭṭhatipi. Sa-īhakaṃ sabyāpāraṃ viya khāyati, eva-midaṃ nāmarūpampi suññaṃ nijjīvaṃ nirīhakaṃ, atha ca pana aññamaññasamāyogavasena gacchati pi tiṭṭhatipi. Sa-īhakaṃ sabyāpāraṃ viya khāyatīti daṭṭhabbaṃ. S I 134: Nayidaṃ attakataṃ bimbaṃ, nayidaṃ parakataṃ aghaṃ, hetuṃ paṭicca sambhūtaṃ, hetubhaṅgā nirujjhati.

grief, it has sorrow, lamentation, pain, distress and grief (soka-parideva-dukkha-domanassa-upāyāsa), or it laughs or frolics, [440b] or pats another on the shoulder and so on. Nutriment sustains this element-puppet; and the faculty of life (jīvitindriya) upholds it. At the end of life, the element-puppet falls apart. If there is action-defilement (kamma-kilesa),[1171] again there arises a new element-puppet. Its first beginning cannot be known; its end cannot be known.

Thus one defines the elements through the element-puppet.

Conclusion

The meditator through these ways and means defines this body as merely an element-puppet, without a being (nissatta), without a soul (nijjīva). He then defines by the element-object (dhātārammaṇa) and by [defining] the arising of the mental states (cetasika-dhamma) of feeling, perception, the formations and consciousness [that are dependent on that element object]. The meditator having defined name and matter,[1172] [in this manner], then defines "name and matter is suffering"; and "craving is the source of suffering." He defines "the cessation of craving is the cessation of suffering"; and "the Noble Eightfold Path is the complete cessation of suffering." The meditator, having extensively defined the Four Noble Truths, sees the disadvantage of suffering through impermanence, suffering and not-self. Always reflecting [on these signs] unslackeningly, he sees the benefit of the cessation of suffering through wisdom, seclusion (viveka, santi, upasama) and true detachment. In this way, the meditator, seeing the disadvantage of suffering and the benefits of its cessation, establishes the faculties, the powers, and the factors of awakening, and his mind emerges from the sign of formations and realizes the element of the deathless.[1173] 440b13

The definition of the four elements is finished.

Perception of Repulsiveness of Food

Q. What is "perception of the repulsiveness of food" (āhāre paṭikkūla-saññā)? What is the practising of it? What are its characteristic, function, and manifestation? What are its benefits? What is the procedure? p0440b15

A. The meditator, thoroughly attending to the perception of repulsiveness regarding the nourishment that is chewed, licked, drunk or eaten, knows and knows well. This is called "perception of the repulsiveness of food."

The unwavering dwelling of the mind in this perception is the practice of it. The understanding of the disadvantages of food is its characteristic. Disenchantment is its function. The overcoming of desire for taste and smells is its manifestation.

Q. What are its benefits?

A. There are eight benefits: If one practises the perception of the repulsiveness of food: (1) one [fully] knows the [repulsive] characteristic[1174] of material food (kabaḷīkārāhāra); (2) fully knows the five-fold sense-desire; (3) [fully] knows the aggregate of matter; (4) [fully] knows the sign of the foul; (5) recollection of the body is fully developed; (6) the mind shrinks from desiring what is tasty; (7) one is [1171] 業煩惱. Cf. D-a 943: Kammakilesāti tehi kammehi sattā kilissanti, tasmā kammakilesā ti vuccanti. … Kammakileso ti kammañca taṃ kilesasampayuttattā kileso cāti kammakileso. Cf. Ud-a 376: no cassa no ca me siyāti atītakāle mama kilesakammaṃ no cassa na bhaveyya ce, imasmiṃ paccuppannakāle ayaṃ attabhāvo no ca me siyā na me uppajjeyya. Yasmā pana me atīte kammakilesā ahesuṃ, tasmā taṃnimitto etarahi ayaṃ me attabhāvo pavattati. Na bhavissati na ca me bhavissatīti imasmiṃ attabhāve paṭipakkhādhigamena kilesakammaṃ na bhavissati na uppajjissati me, āyatiṃ vipākavaṭṭaṃ na ca me bhavissati na me pavattissatīti. Vism XXII.86: Puthujjanassa sabbasova vaṭṭamūlakilesānaṃ appahīnattā yaṃkiñci kariyamānaṃ kammaṃ kusalaṃ akusalaṃ vā hoti. Iccassa kammakilesapaccayā vaṭṭaṃ vaṭṭati.

---

[1172] M-a I 72, It-a I 63: … imasmiṃ kāye pathavīdhātu, āpodhātū ti ādinā nayena cattāri mahābhūtāni tadanusārena upādārūpāni ca pariggahetvā ayaṃ rūpakkhandho ti vavatthapeti. Taṃ vavatthāpayato uppanne tadārammaṇe cittacetasikadhamme ime cattāro arūpakkhandhā ti vavatthapeti. Tato me pañcakkhandhā dukkhanti vavatthapeti. Te pana saṅkhepato nāmañca rūpañcāti dve bhāgā honti. Idañca nāmarūpaṃ sahetu sappaccayaṃ uppajjati, …

[1173] Cf. Paṭis I 67: Bahiddhā saṅkhāranimittā vuṭṭhahitvā nirodhaṃ nibbānaṃ pakkhandati ti gotrabhu.

[1174] 知揣食想. The Chinese has "perception," saññā, 想, but this character is often confused with 相, lakkhaṇa, ākāra or nimitta. Vism XI.23/346: … paṭikkūlākāravasena kabaḷīkārāhāro pākaṭo hoti. So taṃ nimittaṃ punappunaṃ āsevati bhāveti bahulīkaroti. Vism-mhṭ I 422 (Be): Taṃ nimittanti yathāvuttehi ākārehi punappunaṃ manasi karontassa paṭikkūlākāravasena upaṭṭhitaṃ kabaḷīkārāhārasaññitaṃ bhāvanāya nimittaṃ ārammaṇaṃ, na uggahapaṭibhāganimittaṃ.

destined to a good destination; (8) or is destined to the deathless.[1175] 440b21

Q. What is the procedure?

A. The beginner meditator goes into solitude, sits down and composes his whole mind. With his mind unwavering, he considers the repulsiveness of what is chewed, tasted, drunk or eaten as follows: "Such are the several hundred kinds of tasty preparations that are searched after. When clean, they are relished by the people. Their colour and smell are perfect and they are fit for great nobles. But after these foods and drinks enter into the body, they change and become impure, loathsome, putrid, and repulsive."

Five ways

One practises the perception of the repulsiveness of food in five ways: (1) by way of searching;[1176] (2) by way of breaking up and using; (3) by way of location; (4) by way of oozing; and (5) by way of assemblage.

Searching

Q. How should the meditator practise the perception of the repulsiveness of food by way of "searching"?

A. This meditator sees that beings encounter trouble in working for drink and food; they do various evil deeds such as killing and thieving [for the sake of food]. Also, he sees that beings experience various sufferings [440c] when they know that they will be killed or bound up. Also, he sees that beings commit various evil actions such as demanding, deceiving and pretending to be energetic. Regarding food in this manner gives rise to disenchantment (nibbidā): "Drink and food are impure, they are is discharged as excrement and urine. For the sake of that one does evil deeds."

Again, he sees a one who has gone forth living in a clean mountain forest where fragrant flowers bloom, and where birds and beasts sing and call. That place which the good man has made, is perfectly adorned with shadows of trees, groves and water which captivate the mind of others. 440c06 The ground is flat and exceedingly clean; without unevennesses.[1177] Seeing this, men are amazed. There are no commotions. This place where the homeless man develops Awakening (bodhi) is like the abode of Brahmā (brahmavihāra).[1178] In such a place the mind is free from sensual desire. Constantly practising meditation and recitation, he easily practises wholesome states. But, whether it is cold or hot, windy or dusty, muddy or rainy, hilly or steep, he has to go out searching for food's sake. With bowl in hand, he enters among homes to beg for food. Seeing that, his mind arouses disenchantment as follows: "Drink and food are impure; they are discharged as excrement and urine. For the sake of that one goes in search of food." Thus he should give up [desire for food][1179] and seek the highest happiness. 440c12

And again, the meditator sees the practice of one who has gone forth. When he goes begging for food, he has to go among fierce animals such as horses and elephants, or to places with fierce dogs and pigs, or to places with bad people, or unclean places, where he has to tread on mud or excrement.

He has to stand silently at the gates of other's houses for some time. He has to cover his body with robes. Further, he is unsure as regards obtaining alms.[1180] Seeing that food just as being like dog's food, he arouses disenchantment regarding food thus: "This searching for food is most repulsive. What use is there is searching it? Nevertheless, I continue begging for it from others." 440c17

Thus one practises the perception of the repulsiveness of food by way of "searching for it."

[1175] Vism XI.26: Imañca pana āhāre paṭikkūlasaññaṃ anuyuttassa bhikkhuno rasataṇhāya cittaṃ patilīyati patikuṭati pativaṭṭati. So kantāranittharaṇatthiko viya puttamaṃsaṃ vigatamado āhāraṃ āhāreti yāvadeva dukkhassa nittharaṇatthāya. Athassa appakasireneva kabaḷīkārāhārapariññāmukhena pañcakāmaguṇiko rāgo pariññaṃ gacchati. So pañcakāmaguṇapariññāmukhena rūpakkhandhaṃ parijānāti. Aparipakkādipaṭikkūlabhāvavasena cassa kāyagatāsatibhāvanāpi pāripūriṃ gacchati, asubhasaññāya anulomapaṭipadaṃ paṭipanno hoti. Imaṃ pana paṭipattiṃ nissāya diṭṭheva dhamme amatapariyosānataṃ anabhisambhuṇanto sugatiparāyano hotīti. Cf. Th 580: Rasesu anugiddhassa jhāne na ramatī mano.

[1176] 經營 normally corresponds to "undertaking, activity, work," (byāpāra, samārambha), but here it would correspond to pariyesana. This method covers both the gamana and pariyesana methods given at Vism XI.6–13

[1177] Cf. Th 540, 1103, 1135–37.

[1178] Cf. Th 245: Yathā Brahmā tathā eko yathā devo tathā duve, yathā gāmo tathā tayo, kolāhalaṃ tatuttarin ti.

[1179] The character 捨 can mean "equanimity" as well as "giving up."

[1180] Cf. Sn 711–12: Na muni gāmam āgamma kulesu sahasā care, ghāsesanaṃ chinnakatho na vācam payutaṃ bhaṇe. Alatthaṃ yad, idaṃ sādhu; nālatthaṃ kusalām iti; ubhayen' eva so tādī rukkhaṃ va upanivattati.

Breaking up and using

Q. How should the meditator practise the perception of the repulsiveness of food by way of breaking up and using?

A. The meditator having searched for and obtained drink and food, sits down to eat it. He makes the [solid] food soft by mixing it with fish sauce and kneads it with his hand. With the mouth as mortar, the lips receiving and gathering, the teeth as pestles, and the tongue turning it over, and saliva and phlegm mixing it together, 440c21 it becomes as utterly abhorable and unsightly as the vomit of a dog.

Thus one practises the perception of the repulsiveness of food by way of breaking up and using.

Location

Q. How should one practise the perception of the repulsiveness of food by way of location?

A. Thus the food is swallowed and enters the stomach where it stays and is mixed with impurities. Going into the intestines, it is eaten by the hundred of kinds of worms. Through heat, it is digested and becomes most disgusting. It is like a sick man's vomit put into an unclean vessel.

Thus one practises the perception of the repulsiveness of food by way of location. 440c26

Oozing

Q. How should one practise the perception of the repulsiveness of food by way of oozing?

A. The food is digested by heat and mixed with new and old impurities. Like wine put in a cracked cup, it oozes through the body. Oozing along, it enters into the veins, tissues, face and eyes. the nine holes and ninety-nine thousand pores. Everywhere it oozes and fills this body. Thus through oozing, [441a] the food turns into five parts: one part is eaten by the hundred kinds of worms; one part is spent in the (stomach's) fire; one part sustains the body; one part becomes urine; and one part turns into the physical frame (sarīra).[1181]

Thus one practises the perception of the repulsiveness of food by way of oozing.

Assemblage

Q. How should one practise the perception of the repulsiveness of food by way of assemblage (samāsa)?

A. This oozing nutriment turns into head hair, body hair, nails and so on. It causes the manifestation of the one hundred and one parts of the body. If it does not ooze, it causes the manifestation of the one hundred and one diseases.

Thus one practises the perception of the repulsiveness of food by way of assemblage.

Conclusion

Thus the meditator through these ways and means practises the perception of the repulsiveness of food and establishes disenchantment. Through the facility in disenchantment, his mind is not wavering. When his mind is unwavering, the hindrances are suspended, the jhāna factors manifest and [the mind] becomes concentrated in access-concentration.

The perception of repulsiveness of food is finished. 441a09

The Base of Nothingness and the Base of Neither-perception-nor-non-perception

The base of nothingness and the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception were before taught under the earth kasiṇa. 441a11

Conclusion

Here the verse says:

[1181] Cf. Khp-a 58, Vibh-a 242, Vism VIII.122/p.260: … yattha ca patitaṃ pānabhojanādi pañcadhā vibhāgaṃ gacchati: ekaṃ bhāgaṃ pāṇakā khādanti, ekaṃ bhāgaṃ udaraggi jhāpeti, eko bhāgo muttaṃ hoti, eko karīsaṃ, eko rasabhāvaṃ āpajjitvā soṇitamaṃsādīni upabrūhayati.

The meditation subjects are taught to the meditator as if in person,
It is as if a man were skilfully shown the way to Pāṭaliputta,[1182]
What's told concisely he can get to know in full.
He knows clearly what lies before and what behind 441a14
Constantly observing what's truth and untruth (vitatha).

In what has been here at length set forth,
Namely, the characteristics complete and all benefits,
According to the Dhamma one should discern,
The Path of Freedom's meditation subjects.

[1182] Pāliputta, transliteration. Pāṭaliputta, modern Patna, was the capital of Magadha and India. Its importance to Indians was equivalent to Rome, and the roads leading to it, to Europeans in Roman and mediaeval times.

Chapter 9: The Five Direct knowledges

441a26 Now, the meditator, who has thus mastered concentration and is dwelling in the fourth jhāna, can produce the five direct knowledges (abhiññā), namely: (1) supernormal power (iddhividha, iddhi), (2) divine ear (dibbasota), (3) knowledge of others' minds (cetopariya-ñāṇa), (4) [recollection of] former lives (pubbenivāsānussati), and (5) divine eye (dibbacakkhu).

"Supernormal power" means "miraculous transformation" (vikubbana, pāṭihāriya).

"Divine ear" means "surpassing the human ear."[1183]

"Knowledge of others' minds" means "the understanding of others' minds."[1184]

"[Recollection of] former lives" means "the recollection of previous births."[1185]

"Divine eye" means "surpassing the vision of the human eye."[1186] [441b]

Three kinds of supernormal power

Q. How many kinds of supernormal power[1187] are there? Who practises supernormal power? How should one produce supernormal power?

A. There are three kinds of supernormal power, namely, the supernormal power of resolve (adhiṭṭhānā-iddhi), the supernormal power of miraculous transformation (vikubbanā-iddhi), the supernormal power sprung from mind (manomayā-iddhi).

Q. What is "the supernormal power of resolve"?

A. The meditator, being one, he becomes many; and being many, he becomes one. […] Through the body he extends influence as far as the world of Brahmā—this is called "the supernormal power of resolve."[1188]

Q. What is "the supernormal power of miraculous transformation"?

A. The meditator discards his natural body and manifests the appearance of a boy or a dragon (nāga) or Brahmā, etc.—this is called "the supernormal power of miraculous transformation."[1189]

Q. What is "the supernormal power sprung from mind"?

A. The meditator according to his wish conjures from this body another body created [complete] with all limbs and complete in faculties—this is called "the supernormal power sprung from mind."[1190]

Seven kinds of supernormal power

Again, there are seven kinds of supernormal power, namely, (1) supernormal due to the pervasive force of knowledge (ñāṇa-vipphārā-iddhi), (2) supernormal power due to the pervasive force of concentration (samādhi-vipphārā-iddhi), (3) supernormal power of the noble ones (ariyiddhi, ariyā-iddhi), (4) supernormal power born of kamma-result (kamma-vipākajā-iddhi), (5) supernormal power of the meritorious (puññavato-iddhi), (6) supernormal power sprung from magic knowledge (vijjāmayā-iddhi), and (7) supernormal power due to [right] application (sammāpayoga-paccayā ijjhanaṭṭhena iddhi).[1191]

[1183] D I 79: … So dibbāya sotadhātuyā visuddhāya atikkantamānusikāya ubho sadde suṇāti dibbe ca mānuse ca ye dūre santike ca.

[1184] D I 79: … So parasattānaṃ parapuggalānaṃ cetasā ceto paricca pajānāti, …

[1185] D I 80: … So anekavihitaṃ pubbenivāsaṃ anussarati, seyyathidaṃ ekampi jātiṃ dvepi jātiyo…

[1186] D I 82: So dibbena cakkhunā visuddhena atikkantamānusakena satte passati cavamāne upapajjamāne …

[1187] 變 normally means vikubbana, or pāṭihāriya, as at T32n1648_p0441a28—where 身通 corresponds to iddhividha—but from here onwards in Vim, going by the Pali parallels, it stands for iddhi. Apparently the Chinese translator could not find a suitable character for iddhividha. At 441c14 he shifts over to 變辯 for iddhividha.

[1188] Cf. Paṭis II 207–10: Katamā adhiṭṭhānā iddhi? Idha bhikkhu anekavihitaṃ iddhividhaṃ paccanubhoti: eko pi hutvā bahudhā hoti, bahudhā pi hutvā eko hoti … yāva Brahmalokā pi kāyena vasaṃ vatteti …

[1189] Paṭis II 210: Katamā vikubbanā iddhi? … So pakativaṇṇaṃ vijahitvā kumārakavaṇṇaṃ vā dasseti, nāgavaṇṇaṃ vā dasseti, supaṇṇavaṇṇaṃ vā dasseti, yakkhavaṇṇaṃ vā dasseti, indavaṇṇaṃ vā dasseti, devavaṇṇaṃ vā dasseti, Brahmavaṇṇaṃ vā dasseti.

[1190] Paṭis II 210–11: Katamā manomayā iddhi? Idha bhikkhu imamhā kāyā aññaṃ kāyaṃ abhinimmināti rūpiṃ manomayaṃ sabbaṅgapaccaṅgaṃ ahīnindriyaṃ … Ayaṃ manomayā iddhi.

[1191] Paṭis II 173: Katamāni dasa iddhibalāni? Adhiṭṭhānā iddhi, vikubbanā iddhi, manomayā iddhi, ñāṇavipphārā iddhi,

1. Supernormal power due to the pervasive force of knowledge

Q. What is "supernormal power due to [the pervasive force of] knowledge"?

A. Through the contemplation of impermanence, one succeeds in abandoning the perception of permanence—this is supernormal power due to the pervasive force of knowledge. […][1192] Through the Path of arahantship, one succeeds in abandoning all defilements—this is supernormal power due to pervasive force of knowledge. It is as in the case of Venerable Bakkula, of the Venerable Saṅkicca and of the Venerable Bhūtapāla.[1193]

This is called "supernormal power due to the pervasive force of knowledge."

2. Supernormal power due to the pervasive force of concentration

Q. What is "supernormal power due to the pervasive force of concentration"?

A. Through the first jhāna one succeeds in abandoning the hindrances—this is supernormal power due to the pervasive force of concentration. … Through the attainment of the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception, one succeeds in abandoning the perception of the base of nothingness —this is supernormal power due to the pervasive force of concentration. It is as in the case of the Venerable Elder Sāriputta, of the Venerable Elder Sañjīva, of the Venerable Elder Koṇḍañña, of the lay-sister Uttarā and of the lay-sister Sāmāvatī.

This is called "supernormal power due to the pervasive force of concentration."[1194]

3. Supernormal power of the Noble Ones

Q. What is "supernormal power of the Noble Ones"? 441b18

A. "If a bhikkhu wishes "I should dwell perceiving the non-repulsive in the repulsive," he dwells perceiving the non-repulsive [in that].

If a bhikkhu wishes "I should dwell perceiving the repulsive in the non-repulsive," he dwells perceiving the repulsive [in that].

If a bhikkhu wishes "I should dwell perceiving the non-repulsive in the non-repulsive and in the repulsive," he dwells perceiving the non-repulsive [in that].

If a bhikkhu wishes "I should dwell perceiving the repulsive in the repulsive and in the non-repulsive," he dwells perceiving the repulsive [in that].

If a bhikkhu wishes "I should avoid both the non-repulsive and the repulsive and dwell equanimous, mindfully and aware," he dwells equanimous therein, mindfully and aware."[1195] samādhivipphārā iddhi, ariyā iddhi, kammavipākajā iddhi, puññavato iddhi, vijjāmayā iddhi, tattha tattha sammā payogappaccayā ijjhanaṭṭhena iddhi, imāni dasa iddhibalāni.

---

[1192] There is a long sequence missing here. The same happens at a few of the following powers. Upatissa would have copied one of the abbreviated sequences (peyyāla) in the Paṭisambhidāmagga. The full sequences are given at Paṭis I 45 & 100–101, see Ch. 2 note 68, ch. 8 note 421 and 775.

[1193] Paṭis 211: Katamā ñāṇavipphārā iddhi? Aniccānupassanāya niccasaññā niccasaññāya pahānaṭṭho ijjhatī ti' ñāṇavipphārā iddhi, dukkhānupassanāya sukhasaññāya, anattānupassanāya attasaññāya … paṭinissaggānupassanāya ādānassa pahānaṭṭho ijjhatī ti' ñāṇavipphārā iddhi. Āyasmato Bakkulassa ñāṇavipphārā iddhi, āyasmato Saṅkiccassa ñāṇavippharā iddhi, āyasmato Bhūtapālassa ñāṇavippharā iddhi.

[1194] Cf. Paṭis 211–12: Katamā samādhivippharā iddhi? Paṭhamajjhānena nīvaraṇānaṃ pahānaṭṭho ijjhatī ti samādhivippharā iddhi, … nevasaññānāsaññāyatanasamāpattiyā ākiñcaññāyatanasaññā pahānaṭṭho ijjhatī ti' samādhivippharā iddhi. Āyasmato Sāriputtassa samādhivippharā iddhi, āyasmato Sañjīvassa samādhivippharā iddhi, āyasmato Khāṇukoṇḍaññassa samādhivippharā iddhi; Uttarāya upāsikāya samādhivippharā iddhi, Sāmāvatiyā upāsikāya samādhivippharā iddhi. A I 26: Etad aggaṃ bhikkhave mama sāvikānaṃ upāsikānaṃ (paṭhamaṃ) jhāyīnaṃ yadidaṃ uttarā nandamātā.

[1195] Paṭis II 212–13: Katamā ariyā iddhi? Idha bhikkhu sace ākaṅkhati paṭikūle appaṭikūlasaññī vihareyyan-ti, appaṭikūlasaññī tattha viharati. … Kathaṃ paṭikūle appaṭikūlasaññī viharati? Aniṭṭhasmiṃ vatthusmiṃ mettāya vā pharati, dhātuto vā upasaṃharati. Evaṃ paṭikūle appaṭikūlasaññī viharati. Kathaṃ appaṭikūle paṭikūlasaññī viharati? Iṭṭhasmiṃ vatthusmiṃ asubhāya vā pharati, aniccato vā upasaṃharati. Evaṃ … Kathaṃ paṭikūle ca appaṭikūle ca appaṭikūlasaññī viharati? Aniṭṭhasmiñca iṭṭhasmiñca vatthusmiṃ mettāya vā pharati, dhātuto vā upasaṃharati. … Kathaṃ appaṭikūle ca paṭikūle ca paṭikūlasaññī viharati? Iṭṭhasmiñca aniṭṭhasmiñca vatthusmiṃ asubhāya vā pharati, aniccato vā upasaṃharati. … Kathaṃ paṭikūle ca appaṭikūle ca tadubhayaṃ abhinivajjetvā upekkhako viharati sato sampajāno? Idha bhikkhu cakkhunā rūpaṃ disvā … manasā dhammaṃ viññāya neva sumano hoti na dummano, upekkhako viharati sato sampajāno. … Ayaṃ ariyā iddhi.

M III 301: Kathañcānanda, ariyo hoti bhāvitindriyo? Idhānanda, bhikkhuno cakkhunā rūpaṃ disvā uppajjati manāpaṃ, uppajjati amanāpaṃ, uppajjati manāpāmanāpaṃ. So sace ākaṅkhati paṭikūle appaṭikūlasaññī vihareyyan-ti, … upekkhako tattha viharati sato sampajāno. … Cf. D III 112, S V 119, A III 169.

Q. How does he "dwell perceiving the non-repulsive in the repulsive"?

A. He pervades an unattractive object with loving-kindness or regards it as elements.[1196]

Q. How does he "dwell perceiving the repulsive in the non-repulsive"?

A. He pervades an attractive object with the foul or regards it as impermanent.

Q. How does he "dwell perceiving the non-repulsive in the repulsive and in the non-repulsive"?

A. He pervades non-attractive and attractive objects with loving-kindness or regards them as elements.

Q. How does he "dwell perceiving the repulsive in the non-repulsive and in the repulsive"?

A. He pervades attractive and non-attractive objects with the foul or regards them as impermanent. [441c]

Q. How does he "avoid both the non-repulsive and the repulsive, dwell equanimous, mindful and aware"?

A. Here a bhikkhu, seeing a form with the eye is neither glad nor sad, but dwells equanimous, mindfully and aware. And so for the other sense-doors.

This is called "supernormal power of the Noble Ones."

4. Supernormal power born of kamma-result

Q. What is "supernormal power born of kamma-result"?

A. All gods, all birds, some men, some born in the states of woe, perform the supernormal power of flying in the sky. [1197]

This is called "supernormal power born of kamma-result."

5. Supernormal power of the meritorious

Q. What is "supernormal power of the meritorious"?

A. [The power of a] wheel-turning king, of the householder Jotika, of the householder Jaṭila, and of the householder Ghosita. Again, it is said that the five persons of great merit have it.[1198]

This is called "supernormal power of the meritorious."

6. Supernormal power sprung from magic knowledge

Q. What is "supernormal power sprung from magic knowledge"?

A. Sorcerers who recite charms can fly through the sky and can manifest elephants, horses, chariots, infantry or various arrays of troops.

This is called "supernormal power sprung from magic knowledge."[1199]

7. Supernormal power due to [right] application

Q. What is "supernormal power due to [right] application."

A. Through renunciation, one succeeds in abandoning sensual desire; …; through the Path of arahantship, one succeeds in abandoning all defilements.[1200] It is like a potter, etc., completing his work. Thus, because of effecting through right application, one succeeds in all objectives.

[1196] The last ariya-iddhi in the list and the question and answer about the first ariya-iddhi are omitted in the Taishō text but are given as variant readings in footnotes.

[1197] Paṭis II 213: Katamā kammavipākajā iddhi? Sabbesaṃ pakkhīnaṃ, sabbesaṃ devānaṃ, ekaccānaṃ manussānaṃ, ekaccānaṃ vinipātikānaṃ. Ayaṃ kammavipākajā iddhi.

[1198] Paṭis II 213: Katamā puññavato iddhi? Rājā Cakkavatti vehāsaṃ gacchati saddhiṃ caturaṅginiyā senāya antamaso assabandhagopake purise upādāya; Jotikassa gahapatissa puññavato iddhi, Jaṭilassa gahapatissa puññavato iddhi, Meṇḍakassa gahapatissa puññavato iddhi, Ghositassa gahapatissa puññavato iddhi, pañcannaṃ mahāpuññānaṃ puññavato iddhi. Paṭis-a 685: kesuci potthakesu Ghositānantaraṃ Meṇḍako likhito. Paṭis-a 685: Pañcannaṃ mahāpuññānaṃ puññavato iddhi ti ettha puññiddhi pañcannaṃ mahāpuññānaṃ daṭṭhabbāti attho. Pañca mahāpuññā nāma meṇḍakaseṭṭhi, tassa bhariyā candapadumā, putto dhanañcayaseṭṭhi, suṇisā sumanadevī, doso puṇṇo nāmāti ime pañca janā paccekasambuddhe katādhikārā.

Meṇḍaka is missing from the Chinese text. In Paṭis-a Meṇḍaka is one of a separate list of five persons of mahāpuñña, but Paṭis could have meant to sum up the previous five mentioned.

[1199] Paṭis II 213: Katamā vijjāmayā iddhi? Vijjādharā vijjaṃ parijapetvā vehāsaṃ gacchanti: ākāse antalikkhe hatthim pi dassenti, assam pi dassenti, ratham pi dassenti, pattim pi dassenti, vividham pi senābyūhaṃ dassenti.

[1200] Paṭis II 213–14: Kathaṃ tattha tattha sammāpayogapaccayā ijjhanaṭṭhena iddhi? Nekkhammena kāmacchandassa pahānaṭṭho ijjhatī ti … Arahattamaggena sabbakilesānaṃ pahānaṭṭho ijjhatī ti tattha tattha sammāpayogapaccayā ijjhanaṭṭhena iddhi.

This is called "supernormal power due to [right] application."

Procedure of developing supernormal power

Q. Who practises supernormal power?

A. One who attains to the fourth jhāna with facility on the [nine] kasiṇas with the space kasiṇa as the ninth, or on the [five] kasiṇas with the space kasiṇa as the fifth,[1201] practises supernormal power.

Again, it is said that one who attains to the fourth [jhāna] of the material-realm with distinction, develops supernormal power there. Again, it is said that one who attains the fourth [jhāna] a second time with facility (after emerging from the immaterial attainments), develops supernormal power there.

Q. How should one produce supernormal power? 441c18

A. "Here a bhikkhu develops the basis of supernormal power which is endowed with the activities of endeavour and the concentration due to zeal, … concentration due to energy, … concentration due to mind, … concentration due to scrutiny."[1202]

"Zeal" (chanda) is the wish to do supernormal power.

"Concentration" (samādhi) is non-wavering of the mind.[1203]

The meditator desires and wishes for supernormal power and the bases of supernormal power. He develops concentration and resolves upon the four kinds of energy: [He arouses energy] for the non-arising of evil unwholesome states that have not yet arisen; for the abandoning of the evil unwholesome states that have already arisen; for the arising of wholesome states that have not yet arisen; for the fullness, non-forgetting, increase, development and fulfilment of the wholesome states that have already arisen. These are called "the activities of endeavour" (padhāna-saṅkhārā).[1204]

"Endowed" (samanāgata)[1205] means that one is endowed with just these three states (dhamma) for fulfilling the six factors of the term "endowed."[1206]

"Basis of supernormal power" (iddhipāda): [that which] creates the path for the obtaining of

---

[1201] Lit. "… with the space kasiṇa as the ninth, or with the space kasiṇa as the fifth, …." In the explanations of the divine ear and recollection of past lives, it is said that one "attains the fourth jhāna with facility on the eight kasiṇas and the two kasiṇas" as a prerequisite. These 8 probably refer to the 4 element kasiṇas and 4 colour kasiṇas, which are mentioned together as the "eight kasiṇas" in commentarial Pali works, while the other two kasiṇas, i.e. light and space, are mentioned together separately too (Nett 89, Dhs-a 400). So, what could be intended here is that he attains the 4th jhāna through the nine kasiṇas, i.e., the eight kasiṇas including the space kasiṇa, or the five kasiṇas, i.e., the four element (or colour) kasiṇas and the space kasiṇa. Given that space is also an element, it could be that the four element kasiṇas are intended. In the divine eye section, the same phrase is given with the light kasiṇa.

LC: "The point is that one either practises the nine kasiṇas ending with space kasiṇa or the five elements ending with the space element. When one attains to the fourth jhāna (in these), one develops supernormal power. Alternatively, when one attains to the fourth jhāna of form with distinction (e.g. by breathing mindfulness), one develops supernormal power."

[1202] D I 213: Idha bho bhikkhu chandasamādhippadhānasaṅkhārasamannāgataṃ iddhipādaṃ bhāveti. Vīriyasamādhippadhānasaṅkhārasamannāgataṃ iddhipādaṃ bhāveti. Cittasamādhippadhānasaṅkhārasamannāgataṃ iddhipādaṃ bhāveti. Vīmaṃsāsamādhippadhānasaṅkhārasamannāgataṃ iddhipādaṃ bhāveti. Ime kho, bho, tena bhagavatā jānatā passatā arahatā sammāsambuddhena cattāro iddhipādā paññattā iddhipahutāya iddhivisavitāya iddhivikubbanatāya. Cf. Vism XII.50–54.

[1203] Vibh 216: Yo chando chandikatā kattukamyatā kusalo dhammacchando, ayaṃ vuccati chando. … Yā cittassa ṭhiti saṇṭhiti avaṭṭhiti avisāhāro avikkhepo avisāhaṭamānasatā samatho samādhindriyaṃ samādhibalaṃ sammāsamādhi, ayaṃ vuccati samādhi.

[1204] Vibh 216: Chandaṃ ce bhikkhu adhipatiṃ karitvā labhati samādhiṃ, labhati cittassekaggataṃ, ayaṃ vuccati chandasamādhi. So anuppannānaṃ pāpakānaṃ akusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ anuppādāya chandaṃ janeti vāyamati vīriyaṃ ārabhati cittaṃ paggaṇhāti padahati, uppannānaṃ pāpakānaṃ akusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ pahānāya chandaṃ janeti vāyamati vīriyaṃ ārabhati cittaṃ paggaṇhāti padahati, anuppannānaṃ kusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ uppādāya chandaṃ janeti vāyamati vīriyaṃ ārabhati cittaṃ paggaṇhāti padahati, uppannānaṃ kusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ ṭhitiyā asammosāya bhiyyobhāvāya vepullāya bhāvanāya pāripūriyā chandaṃ janeti vāyamati vīriyaṃ ārabhati cittaṃ paggaṇhāti padahati. Ime vuccanti padhānasaṅkhārā. Iti ayañca chandasamādhi, ime ca padhānasaṅkhārā. Tadekajjhaṃ abhisaññahitvā abhisaṅkhipitvā chandasamādhipadhānasaṅkhārotveva saṅkhaṃ gacchati.

[1205] Vibh 216: Iti iminā ca chandena, iminā ca samādhinā, iminā ca padhānasaṅkhārena upeto hoti samupeto upāgato samupāgato upapanno sampanno samannāgato. Tena vuccati chandasamādhipadhānasaṅkhārasamannāgato ti.

[1206] The three qualities would refer to chanda, samādhi, padhānasaṅkhāra; and the six factors to upeta, samupeta, upāgata, samupāgata, upapanna, sampanna, of the Vibh passage given the previous footnote.

supernormal power, just that state is the basis of supernormal power.[1207]

Again, it is endowed with the activities of endeavour and the concentration due to zeal—this is called the "basis of supernormal power."

"For the obtaining of supernormal power" is the principal meaning.

"Develops" (bhāveti) means: "practises these states and practises much."[1208]

This is called "the development of the basis of supernormal power endowed with the activities of endeavour and the concentration due to zeal."

When [the mind of] the meditator who is thus practising that means (upāya, payoga), falls back or abides, [then] by arousing energy he accomplishes the basis of power which is endowed with activities of endeavour and concentration due to energy.[1209] [442a]

If [while practising] that means [the mind is] sluggish, falls back, or is perturbed, when the mind is sluggish, he attends to the sign of exertion; when the mind falls back, he attends to the sign of concentration; when the mind is perturbed, he attends to the sign of equanimity.[1210] Thus he accomplishes the basis of supernormal power which is endowed with concentration due to mind (citta-samādhi) and the activities of endeavour.

If the mind is without defilement, he easily discriminates benefit and non-benefit. He practises, [thinking]: "It is the time to develop this state," or "It is not the time to develop this state." Thus he accomplishes the basis of supernormal power which is endowed with concentration due to scrutiny (vimaṃsā-samādhi) and the activities of endeavour.

The meditator develops the four bases of supernormal power. Through facility of mind, he makes his mind correspond to his body, and his body correspond to his mind. The meditator settles his mind in his body, and in his body he settles his mind; by means of his body he transforms his mind, and by means of his mind he transforms his body; by means of his body he resolves on his mind, and with his mind he resolves on his body. He dwells imbuing the body with the perception of happiness and the perception of lightness.[1211]

The body of the meditator who is practising thus becomes exceedingly soft, exceedingly light and exceedingly wieldable, just as a ball of iron heated in a fire can be fashioned into any shape one wishes. Thus, through developing the mind, his body becomes light, and, owing to the lightness, he enters upon the fourth jhāna. Mindfully and peacefully emerging therefrom, he adverts to space[1212] and resolves with

---

[1207] Cf. Paṭis II 205: Iddhiyā ime cattāro pādā iddhilābhāya iddhipaṭilābhāya iddhivikubbanatāya iddhivisavitāya iddhivasībhāvāya iddhivesārajjāya saṃvattantīti.

[1208] Vibh 216: Iddhīti: yā tesaṃ dhammānaṃ iddhi samiddhi ijjhanā samijjhanā lābho paṭilābho patti sampatti phusanā sacchikiriyā upasampadā. … Iddhipādaṃ bhāvetī ti. Te dhamme āsevati bhāveti bahulīkaroti.

[1209] Cf. the "roots of success" passage in Paṭis II 206 (§ 8).

[1210] Cf. A I 256: Adhicittamanuyuttena, bhikkhave, bhikkhunā tīṇi nimittāni kālena kālaṃ manasi kātabbāni kālena kālaṃ samādhinimittaṃ manasi kātabbaṃ, kālena kālaṃ paggahanimittaṃ manasi kātabbaṃ, kālena kālaṃ upekkhānimittaṃ manasi kātabbaṃ. Sace, bhikkhave, adhicittamanuyutto bhikkhu ekantaṃ samādhinimittaṃyeva manasi kareyya, ṭhānaṃ taṃ cittaṃ kosajjāya saṃvatteyya. Sace … paggahanimittaṃyeva manasi kareyya, ṭhānaṃ taṃ cittaṃ uddhaccāya saṃvatteyya. Sace … upekkhānimittaṃyeva manasi kareyya, ṭhānaṃ taṃ cittaṃ na sammā samādhiyeyya āsavānaṃ khayāya.

[1211] Cf. the parallel in the "supernormal power of transformation section" below, which is differently translated. Cf. Paṭis I 111: So imesu catūsu iddhipādesu cittaṃ paribhāvetvā paridametvā muduṃ karitvā kammaniyaṃ kāyampi citte samodahati, cittampi kāye samodahati, kāyavasena cittaṃ pariṇāmeti, cittavasena kāyaṃ pariṇāmeti, kāyavasena cittaṃ adhiṭṭhāti, cittavasena kāyaṃ adhiṭṭhāti; kāyavasena cittaṃ pariṇāmetvā cittavasena kāyaṃ pariṇāmetvā kāyavasena cittaṃ adhiṭṭhahitvā cittavasena kāyaṃ adhiṭṭhahitvā sukhasaññañca lahusaññañca kāye okkamitvā viharati. So tathābhāvitena cittena parisuddhena pariyodātena iddhividhañāṇāya cittaṃ abhinīharati abhininnāmeti.

[1212] 能分別虛空, or "he is able to analyze/discriminate/investigate space." 分別 corresponds to paricchindati vibhajjati, as well as vīmaṃsati, but here 能分別, in accordance with Paṭ II 208, it would correspond to āvajjana; cf. DDB s.v. 能分別. According to Vism XII.131–132/p.404 one adverts to the vāyokasiṇa. According to Vism XII.87–90/p.394 the ākāsakasiṇa is used as basis for the iddhi of going through walls, etc.

Cf. Vism XII.98/p.396ff.: Pakkhī sakuṇo ti pakkhehi yuttasakuṇo. Evaṃ kātukāmena pana pathavīkasiṇaṃ samāpajjitvā vuṭṭhāya sace nisinno gantumicchati, pallaṅkappamāṇaṃ ṭhānaṃ paricchinditvā parikammaṃ katvā vuttanayeneva adhiṭṭhātabbaṃ. … sace padasā gantukāmo hoti maggappamāṇanti evaṃ yathānurūpaṃ ṭhānaṃ paricchinditvā vuttanayeneva pathavī hotū ti adhiṭṭhātabbaṃ, saha adhiṭṭhānena pathavī yeva hoti. Tatrāyaṃ pāḷi (Paṭ II 208): Ākāsepi pallaṅkena kamati, seyyathāpi pakkhī sakuṇoti. Pakatiyā pathavīkasiṇasamāpattiyā lābhī hoti, ākāsaṃ āvajjati. Āvajjitvā ñāṇena adhiṭṭhāti, pathavī hotū ti. Pathavī hoti. So ākāse antalikkhe caṅkamatipi tiṭṭhatipi nisīdatipi seyyampi kappeti. ….

knowledge upon it: "Thus his body will rise up in space." By resolving with knowledge, he rises up in the sky like a silk fibre blown by the wind.[1213] 442a15

Therefore, the beginner meditator should not go far away quickly. Why? Because seeing where he has come to could arouse fear. If fear arises, the jhāna falls away. Therefore the beginner meditator should not go far away hastily, but should go gradually. At first one foot, then little by little further with observation. Then again, depending on the indications (nimitta), he applies energy to advance one fathom. Through this skilful means of [going] gradually, he can rise up as he wishes. 442a20

Q. If the meditator who is in the sky falls away from the jhāna, would he fall down to earth from the sky?

A. This is not the case. If he has risen and has gone far from his former sitting place, and would fall away [from jhāna], he returns and reaches his former sitting place. He sees his own body in the former sitting place [and thinks]: "This is the person with supernormal power. This is his state of serenity."[1214]

Thus the meditator goes gradually with observation until he resolves with facility. 442a24

Supernormal power of resolve

He wields the various kinds of miraculous transformation: Being one, he becomes many; being many, he becomes one. He appears or disappears.[1215] He goes unimpeded through a wall; through a wall; through a mountain, just as if [going] through space. He dives into the earth or emerges from it, as if in water. He walks on water as on earth. He goes in the sky as if a flying bird. He strokes the sun and the moon, such is his great supernormal power, such is his great might. His body rises up until the Brahmā world.[1216]

"Being one, he becomes many": He, being one, makes himself many, a hundred or a thousand, or a ten thousand and so on through miraculous transformation. [442b] He enters upon the fourth jhāna and emerging therefrom peacefully, gradually resolves through knowledge: "May I be many," like Cullapanthaka, the Arahant.

"Being many, he becomes one": Desiring to change from many to one, he resolves through knowledge thus: "May I change from many to one!," like venerable Cullapanthaka, the Arahant.[1217] [1213] It is likely that the original text had "tuft of cotton wool," tūlapicu. Cf. S V 283: Yasmiṃ, ānanda, samaye tathāgato kāyampi citte samodahati, cittampi kāye samodahati, sukhasaññañca lahusaññañca kāye okkamitvā viharati; tasmiṃ, ānanda, samaye tathāgatassa kāyo lahutaro ceva hoti mudutaro ca kammaniyataro ca pabhassarataro ca. Seyyathāpi, ānanda, ayoguḷo divasaṃ santatto lahutaro ceva hoti mudutaro ca kammaniyataro ca pabhassarataro ca; evameva … pabhassarataro ca. Yasmiṃ, ānanda, samaye … tathāgatassa kāyo appakasireneva pathaviyā vehāsaṃ abbhuggacchati, so anekavihitaṃ iddhividhaṃ paccanubhoti– ekopi hutvā … yāva brahmalokāpi kāyena vasaṃ vatteti. Seyyathāpi, ānanda, tūlapicu vā kappāsapicu vā lahuko vātūpādāno appakasireneva pathaviyā vehāsaṃ abbhuggacchati; evameva …

Vism XII.131–132/p.404, Paṭis-a III 662: Sukhasaññañca lahusaññañca okkamitvāti pādakajjhānārammaṇena iddhicittena sahajātaṃ sukhasaññañca lahusaññañca okkamitvā pavisitvā phusitvā pāpuṇitvā. Sukhasaññā ca nāma upekkhāsampayuttasaññā. Upekkhā hi santaṃ sukhanti vuttā, sāyeva saññā nīvaraṇehi ceva vitakkādipaccanīkehi ca vimuttattā lahusaññātipi veditabbā. Taṃ okkantassa panassa karajakāyopi tūlapicu viya sallahuko hoti. So evaṃ vātakkhittatūlapicunā viya sallahukena dissamānena kāyena brahmalokaṃ gacchati. Evaṃ gacchanto ca sace icchati, pathavīkasiṇavasena ākāse maggaṃ nimminitvā padasā gacchati. … Sace icchati, vāyokasiṇavasena vātaṃ adhiṭṭhahitvā tūlapicu viya vāyunā gacchati. Apica gantukāmatāva ettha pamāṇaṃ. Sati hi gantukāmatāya evaṃkatacittādhiṭṭhāno adhiṭṭhānavegakkhittova so jiyāvegakkhitto saro viya dissamāno gacchati. Cf. Th-a I 222: Tattha lahuko vata me kāyoti nīvaraṇādivikkhambhanena cuddasavidhena cittaparidamanena caturiddhipādakabhāvanāya suṭṭhu ciṇṇavasībhāvena ca me rūpakāyo sallahuko vata, yena dandhaṃ mahābhūtapaccayampi nāma imaṃ karajakāyaṃ cittavasena pariṇāmemīti adhippāyo. … Tenāha tūlamiva eritaṃ mālutena, pilavatīva me kayo ti. Tassattho yadāhaṃ brahmalokaṃ aññaṃ vā iddhiyā gantukāmo homi, tadā mālutena vāyunā eritaṃ cittaṃ tūlapicu viya ākāsaṃ laṅghantoyeva me kāyo hotīti.

[1214] 止法, "state of serenity" (samatha-dhamma) or "dwelling state" (vāsa-dhamma)? Elsewhere, at T32n1648_p0455b29ff., 止法 is used in the sense of dhammatā.

[1215] Read 或現或不現 as at T32n1648_p0442b04.

[1216] D I 77, Paṭis I 111: So anekavihitaṃ iddhividhaṃ paccanubhoti. Eko pi hutvā bahudhā hoti, bahudhā pi hutvā eko hoti; āvibhāvaṃ tirobhāvaṃ; tirokuṭṭaṃ tiropākāraṃ tiropabbataṃ asajjamāno gacchati, seyyathā pi ākāse; pathaviyā pi ummujjanimujjaṃ karoti, seyyathā pi udake; udake pi abhijjamāne gacchati, seyyathā pi pathaviyaṃ; ākāse pi pallaṅkena kamati seyyathā pi pakkhī sakuṇo ime pi candimasūriye evaṃ mahiddhike evaṃ mahānubhāve pāṇinā parāmasati parimajjati; yāva brahmalokā pi kāyena vasaṃ vatteti.

[1217] Cf. Vism XII.59. Paṭis I 207: … Yathāyasmā Cullapanthako eko pi hutvā bahudhā hoti, evam-evaṃ so iddhimā cetovasippatto eko pi hutvā bahudhā hoti. Bahudhā pi hutvā eko hotī ti. Pakatiyā bahulo ekaṃ āvajjati; āvajjitvā ñāṇena adhiṭṭhāti eko homī ti, eko hoti. …. Cf. A I 24: Etad aggaṃ bhikkhave mama sāvakānaṃ bhikkhūnaṃ manomayaṃ kāyaṃ

"He appears or disappears": What is the meaning of "appears"? It means "revealed."

What is the meaning of "disappears"? It means "not revealed." The meditator reveals what is not revealed.[1218] 442b11

"He goes through a wall; he goes through a wall; he goes through a mountain; he goes unimpeded just as if [going] through space": The meditator, through developing the space kasiṇa, enters upon the fourth jhāna. Emerging therefrom peacefully, he adverts to a wall, a rampart, or a mountain. Having adverted, he resolves through knowledge thus: "Let this be space." There being space, the meditator, in space goes through the wall, goes through the rampart, goes through the mountain. He goes unimpeded, just as if [going] through space.

"He dives into the earth or emerges from it as if in water": The meditator through developing the water kasiṇa enters upon the fourth jhāna. Emerging therefrom peacefully, he adverts to earth, demarcates [an area of earth], and resolves through knowledge: "Let this be water!" [There being water,] the meditator can dive into the earth or emerge it as if in natural water.[1219]

"He can walk on water": unimpeded, just as if going on earth. 442b15 The meditator practises the earth kasiṇa and enters upon the fourth jhāna. Emerging therefrom peacefully, he adverts to water and demarcates [an area of water] and resolves through knowledge thus: "Let this be earth!" There being earth, the meditator is able to go on water unimpeded, just as if going on natural earth.[1220] 442b19

"He goes in the sky as if a flying bird": Here there are three kinds of going: going by foot, going by wind, and going by mind.

Here the meditator attains the attainment of the earth kasiṇa and resolves through knowledge for a path in space, and goes by foot. If he attains the attainment of the wind kasiṇa, he resolves upon wind, and like a silk fibre he goes by wind. To move by mind, he imbues his body and mind with the perception of happiness and the perception of lightness. Through imbuing the body, it becomes light, and he goes like a flying bird by going by mind. Thus he goes by mind.[1221]

"He strokes the sun and the moon, such is his great power, such is his great might": The meditator, having supernormal power, acquires mastery over his mind. Through developing his mind, he attains the fourth jhāna and emerging from it peacefully, he strokes the sun and the moon by resolving through knowledge thus: "Let this be within hand's reach!," and, being within hand's reach, the meditator, whether sitting or lying down, strokes them with his hand.[1222]

---

*abhinimminantānaṃ yadidaṃ Cullapanthako. (*Cf. A-a I 216).

[1218] There is no mention of a method of development of this power, as found in Vism XII.69–70/p. 390 & XII.81/p.392 and Paṭis-a 347. It could be lost, or Upatissa closely follows Paṭis, which also does not mention it.

Paṭis I 207–8: Āvibhavan ti. Kenaci anāvaṭaṃ hoti appaṭicchannaṃ vivaṭaṃ pākaṭaṃ. Tirobhāvan ti. Kenaci āvaṭaṃ hoti paṭicchannaṃ pihitaṃ paṭikujjitaṃ. Tirokuḍḍaṃ tiropākāraṃ tiropabbataṃ asajjamāno gacchati, seyyathāpi ākāse ti. Pakatiyā ākāsakasiṇasamāpattiyā lābhī hoti, tirokuḍḍaṃ tiropākāraṃ tiropabbataṃ āvajjati; āvajjitvā ñāṇena adhiṭṭhāti ākāso hotū ti, ākāso hoti. .... Paṭhaviyā pi ummujjanimujjaṃ karoti, seyyathāpi udake ti. Pakatiyā āpokasiṇa-samāpattiyā lābhī hoti, paṭhaviṃ āvajjati; āvajjitvā ñāṇena adhiṭṭhāti udakaṃ hotū ti udakaṃ hoti. So pathaviyā ummujjanimujjaṃ karoti.

The text is quite garbled in the Chinese: The iddhi of going through walls comes before the iddhi of appearing, which is followed again by the sentence on going through walls, etc. For clarity, the translation has been amended here in accordance with similar instructions earlier in this section and Vism XII.87.

The Visuddhimagga's description of the development is that after emerging from the fourth jhāna, one resolves "Let this what is dark become light" or "Let this what is hidden be revealed," etc. No particular kasiṇa attainment is mentioned for developing these powers, but the dispelling of darkness (andhakāravidhamana) is listed as one of the benefits of the white and the light kasiṇa in both the Vim (423c) and the Vism (V.35/p. 176), while Vism V.37 (but not Vim) lists "revealing what is hidden" (paṭicchannānaṃ vivaṭakaraṇaṃ) as a benefit of the space kasiṇa, and Vism V.3 lists "making darkness" (andhakārakaraṇa) as one of the benefits of the blue kasiṇa.

[1219] Vism XII.92: Pathaviyā pi ummujjanimujjan-ti ettha ummujjanti uṭṭhānaṃ vuccati. Nimujjanti saṃsīdanaṃ. Ummujjañca nimujjañca ummujjanimujjaṃ. Evaṃ kātukāmena āpokasiṇaṃ samāpajjitvā uṭṭhāya ettake ṭhāne pathavī udakaṃ hotūti paricchinditvā parikammaṃ katvā vuttanayeneva adhiṭṭhātabbaṃ. Saha adhiṭṭhānena yathā paricchinne ṭhāne pathavī udakameva hoti. So tattha ummujjanimujjaṃ karoti. Tatrāyaṃ pāḷi: Pakatiyā āpokasiṇasamāpattiyā lābhī hoti. ...

[1220] Paṭis I 208: Udake pi abhijjamāne gacchati, seyyathāpi paṭhaviyan ti. Pakatiyā paṭhavīkasiṇa-saṃāpattiyā lābhī hoti, udakaṃ āvajjati; āvajjitvā ñāṇena adhiṭṭhāti paṭhavī hotū ti paṭhavī hoti.

[1221] Paṭis II 208: Ākāse pi pallaṅkena kamati, seyyathā pi pakkhī sakuṇoti pakatiyā pathavīkasiṇasamāpattiyā lābhī hoti. Ākāsaṃ āvajjati. Āvajjitvā ñāṇena adhiṭṭhāti pathavī hotū ti. Pathavī hoti. So ākāse antalikkhe caṅkamati pi tiṭṭhati pi nisīdati pi...

[1222] Paṭis I 208–9: Ime pi candimasuriye evam-mahiddhike evam-mahānubhāve pāṇinā parāmasati parimajjati ti.

"His body rises up as far as the Brahmā world": The meditator, having supernormal power, acquires mastery over his mind and comfortably goes as far as the Brahmā world.[1223] [442c]

Thus, by means of the four bases of supernormal power, and through such development of mind, he resolves the far as near, or the near as far. He resolves much as little, or little as much. By means of divine eye, he sees Brahmā's form. By means of divine ear, he hears the sound of Brahmā. By means of the knowledge of others' minds, he knows Brahmā's mind.[1224]

The meditator, having three formations (saṅkhārā), goes to Brahmā's world through two formations.[1225]

This is the teaching of the supernormal power of resolve in full.

The supernormal power of resolve is finished.

Supernormal power of miraculous transformation

Now, the meditator who wishes to produce the supernormal power of miraculous transformation and has thus developed the four bases of supernormal power, by acquiring mastery over his mind, settles his mind in his body, and in his body he settles his mind; by means of his body he transforms his mind, and by means of his mind he transforms his body; by means of his body he resolves on his mind, and with his mind he resolves on his body.[1226] He dwells imbuing the body with the perception of happiness and the perception of lightness. The body of the meditator who is practising thus becomes exceedingly soft, exceedingly light and exceedingly wieldable, just as a ball of iron heated in a fire can be fashioned into any shape one wishes.

The meditator, who has practised thus and whose mind is exceedingly soft, light and wieldable, imbues his body with his mind. If the meditator wishes to take the appearance of a boy, he, discarding his material appearance, attains the fourth jhāna and emerging from it peacefully, gradually adverts to the appearance of a boy. Having adverted, he resolves through knowledge: "Let me be in the appearance of a boy!" Attending thus, he accomplishes the appearance of a boy.[1227] In the same way in transforming into the appearance of a dragon (nāga), a harpy (supaṇṇa), a spirit (yakkha), an asura, or into the appearance of Inda[1228] or Brahmā, the ocean, a mountain, a forest, a lion, a tiger, a leopard, an elephant, a horse, infantry and arrays of troops. He resolves through knowledge thus: "Let me be arrays of troops!" Attending thus, he accomplishes the appearance of arrays of troops.[1229]

Idha so iddhimā cetovasippatto nisinnako vā nipannako vā candimasuriye āvajjati; āvajjitvā ñāṇena adhiṭṭhāti hatthapāse hotū ti, hatthapāse hoti, …

[1223] Paṭis II 209: Sace so iddhimā cetovasippatto dissamānena kāyena brahmalokaṃ gantukāmo hoti, kāyavasena cittaṃ pariṇāmeti, kāyavasena cittaṃ adhiṭṭhāti. Kāyavasena cittaṃ pariṇāmetvā, kāyavasena cittaṃ adhiṭṭhahitvā, sukhasaññañca lahusaññañca okkamitvā dissamānena kāyena brahmalokaṃ gacchati.

[1224] Paṭis I 209: Yāva Brahmalokā pi kāyena vasaṃ vattetī ti. Sace so iddhimā cetovasippatto Brahmalokaṃ gantukāmo hoti, dūre pi santike adhiṭṭhāti santike hotū ti santike hoti, Santikepi dūre adhiṭṭhāti dūre hotū ti. Dūre hoti. Bahukampi thokaṃ adhiṭṭhāti thokaṃ hotū ti. Thokaṃ hoti. Thokampi bahukaṃ adhiṭṭhāti bahukaṃ hotū ti. Bahukaṃ hoti. Dibbena cakkhunā tassa brahmuno rūpaṃ passati. Dibbāya sotadhātuyā tassa brahmuno saddaṃ suṇāti. Cetopariyañāṇena tassa brahmuno cittaṃ pajānāti…. Yañňad eva hi so iddhimā karoti, tan tad eva hi so nimmito karotīti.

[1225] This probably refers to not being able to wield bodily power (the bodily formation, kāyasaṅkhāra) in the Brahmāloka, but only verbal and mental power (vacī- and citta-saṅkhāra). Cf. Vism XII.136.

[1226] The Chinese of this passage is corrupt in places; see the parallel above at 442a07–10.

[1227] At Vism XII.138 the resolve is made twice after emerging from the fourth jhāna. First he should emerge and attend to his appearance as a boy. Then he should attain the fourth jhāna again and after emerging he should resolve "Let me be a boy!" The same procedure is found in the next section on supernormal power of mind.

Vism XII.138/p.406: Vikubbanaṃ tāva karontena, so pakativaṇṇaṃ vijahitvā kumārakavaṇṇaṃ vā dasseti, nāgavaṇṇaṃ vā dasseti, supaṇṇavaṇṇaṃ vā dasseti, asuravaṇṇaṃ vā dasseti, indavaṇṇaṃ vā dasseti, devavaṇṇaṃ vā dasseti, brahmavaṇṇaṃ vā dasseti, samuddavaṇṇaṃ vā dasseti, pabbatavaṇṇaṃ vā dasseti, sīhavaṇṇaṃ vā dasseti, byagghavaṇṇaṃ vā dasseti, dīpivaṇṇaṃ vā dasseti, hatthimpi dasseti, assampi dasseti, rathampi dasseti, pattimpi dasseti, vividhampi senābyūhaṃ dassetī ti (Paṭ II 209) kumārakavaṇṇādīsu yaṃ yaṃ ākaṅkhati, taṃ taṃ adhiṭṭhātabbaṃ. Adhiṭṭhahantena ca pathavīkasiṇādīsu aññatarārammaṇato abhiññāpādakajjhānato vuṭṭhāya attano kumārakavaṇṇo āvajjitabbo. Āvajjitvā parikammāvasāne puna samāpajjitvā vuṭṭhāya evarūpo nāma kumārako homīti adhiṭṭhātabbaṃ. Saha adhiṭṭhānacittena kumārako hoti devadatto viya. Esa nayo sabbattha.

[1228] A nāga is a serpent-king or dragon. A supaṇṇa is a mythical bird or a harpy. A yakkha is an (evil) spirit. An asura is a fallen deity or Titan. EKS rendered "Sakka-Inda" but the Pali has Inda. The Chinese text has 帝釋 = "King Sakka," i.e., Inda; see DDB s.v. 帝釋. Cf. sakko devānaṃ indo: "sakka the lord of gods, " M I 252, S I 220, 230.

[1229] Paṭis I 210: Katamā vikubbanā iddhi? Sikkhissa Bhagavato Arahato Sammāsambuddhassa Abhibhū nāma sāvako

Q. What is the difference between the supernormal power of resolve and the supernormal power of miraculous transformation?

A. Through the supernormal power of resolve, one resolves without discarding one's material appearance. Through the supernormal power of miraculous transformation, one discards one's material appearance. This is the difference.

The supernormal power of miraculous transformation is finished.

Supernormal power sprung from mind

Now, the meditator who wishes to produce the supernormal power sprung from mind and has thus developed the four bases of supernormal power, by acquiring mastery over his mind, attains the fourth jhāna. Emerging therefrom peacefully, he attends to the interior of his body [thinking]: "It is like an empty pot." The meditator attending thus [thinks]: "In this empty body of mine I will do miraculous tranformation as I wish." He adverts in accordance to that. Having adverted, he resolves through knowledge thus: "In accordance to that (body), let there be (a mind-created body)!" Thus attending, there is a resemblance [of that body]. Through this means he much practises the miraculous transformation. Having done the miraculous transformation, he goes.

If the meditator wishes to go to the world of Brahmā with a created body, before approaching the Brahmā world, he transforms his body in accordance with the appearance of a Brahmā. [The body] which he created according to his wish is complete with all limbs, lacking no faculty.[1230] [443a]

If the one who possesses supernormal power walks to and fro, that created man also walks to and fro. If the one who possesses supernormal power sits, or lies down, or issues smoke and flames, or asks questions, or answers, that created man also sits or lies down, issues smoke and flames, or asks questions, or answers. Whatever the one who possesses supernormal power and has created the miraculous transformation does, that man created also does.

Supernormal power sprung from mind is finished.

Miscellaneous Topics on supernormal power

Q. What are the miscellaneous topics?

A. Forms created by [the supernormal power of] miraculous transformation disappear when the [previously] determined time is reached. If the determined time has not yet been reached, but he should he wish to speak during this period, he resolves that they shall disappear. If he has not determined a time, they momentarily disappear. 443a08

The created men have no life-faculty. The created drinks and foods, as objects and various kinds of knowledge, are nine objects, namely: limited object, exalted object, object that is not to be said (na vattabba), past object, future object, present object, internal object, external object, internal-external object.[1231]

The miscellaneous topics are finished.

Brahmaloke ṭhito sahassīlokadhātuṃ sarena viññāpeti. So dissamānena pi kāyena dhammaṃ deseti, … vividhaṃ pi senābyūhaṃ dasseti.

[1230] Paṭis I 210–11: Katamā manomayā iddhi? Idha bhikkhu imamhā kāyā aññaṃ kāyaṃ abhinimmināti rūpiṃ manomayaṃ sabbaṅgapaccaṅgaṃ ahīnindriyaṃ. … Vism XII.139: Manomayaṃ kātukāmo pana pādakajjhānato vuṭṭhāya kāyaṃ tāva āvajjitvā vuttanayeneva susiro hotūti adhiṭṭhāti, susiro hoti. Athassa abbhantare aññaṃ kāyaṃ āvajjitvā parikammaṃ katvā vuttanayeneva adhiṭṭhāti, tassa abbhantare añño kāyo hotūti. So taṃ muñjamhā īsikaṃ viya kosiyā asiṃ viya karaṇḍāya ahiṃ viya ca abbāhati. … Paṭis-a III 666: … imamhā kāyā aññaṃ kāyaṃ abhinimminātītiādīsu iddhimā bhikkhu manomayiddhiṃ kātukāmo ākāsakasiṇārammaṇapādakajjhānato vuṭṭhāya attano rūpakāyaṃ tāva āvajjitvā vuttanayeneva susiro hotū ti adhiṭṭhāti, susiro hoti. Atha tassa abbhantare pathavīkasiṇavasena aññaṃ kāyaṃ āvajjitvā parikammaṃ katvā vuttanayeneva adhiṭṭhāti, tassa abbhantare añño kāyo hoti. … Ettha ca yathā īsikādayo muñjādīhi sadisā honti, evamidaṃ manomayaṃ rūpaṃ iddhimatā sabbākārehi sadisameva hotīti dassanatthaṃ imā upamā vuttāti. Manomayena kāyena, iddhiyā upasaṅkamī ti ettha abhiññāmanena katakāyo manomayakāyo nāma. Aññataraṃ manomayaṃ kāyaṃ upapajjatī ti ettha jhānamanena nibbittitakāyo tena manena katattā manomayakāyo nāma. Idha pana abhiññāmanena uppāditakāyo tena manena katattā manomayakāyo nāma.

[1231] Cf. Vism XIII.108/p.430, Paṭis-a 382, : Tattha iddhividhañāṇaṃ parittamahaggataatītānāgatapaccuppannaajjhatta-bahiddhārammaṇavasena sattasu ārammaṇesu pavattati. LC: "Neither Vism XIII.108 nor Vibh-a 373 allows internal-external object. Indeed it is hard to see why ajjhatta and bahiddhā should alternate rapidly here."

Divine ear

Q. Who produces the divine ear? How is it to be produced?

A. One who attains the fourth jhāna with facility on the eight kasiṇas and the two kasiṇas[1232] produces the divine ear element from his natural ear.

Again, it is said, "Why the material realm [as basis for this knowledge]? When the fourth jhāna is obtained with facility, then it can be produced."

And again, it is said "In [all] the four jhānas it is also produced."[1233]

Q. How is it to be produced? 443a15

A. The beginner meditator, having developed the four bases of supernormal power, by acquiring mastery over his mind, enters upon the fourth jhāna. Emerging therefrom peacefully and depending on the natural ear, he gradually [attends to the sound sign]. If hearing a distant sound, he attends to the sound sign; if hearing a nearby sound, he attends to the sound sign. If hearing a gross sound, he attends to the sound sign; if hearing a subtle sound, he attends to the sound sign. If hearing a sound from the eastern direction, he attends to the sound sign. Thus as to all directions.

The meditator, through developing purity of mind and purity of the ear element, increases the mind's range. Through the purified divine ear element the meditator hears what is beyond the reach of the human ear.

He hears both sounds, namely, divine sounds and human sounds, those that are distant as well as near.[1234] 443a23 Here, the ancient teachers said: "The beginner meditator first hears the sounds of the beings inside his own body,[1235] then he hears the sounds of the beings outside his body, and then he hears the sounds of the beings that on his dwelling place. Thus he gradually attends and increases [the range]."

Again, it is said that the beginner meditator cannot thus first hear the sounds of beings inside his own body. Why? He cannot hear fine sounds with the natural ear because they are not within its range.

The beginner meditator hears the sounds of distant conches, drums, and so on. The sounds that depend on the natural ear. For the divine ear knowledge, he should attend to the signs of these sounds as this causes the divine ear knowledge to arise. Subtle sounds or gross sounds, [443b] sounds distant or sounds nearby should be grasped with just the divine ear.

Herein, the beginner meditator should not attend to very fearful sounds. Why? It is said that he [arouses] craving for sense-pleasures towards agreeable sounds, and that he stirs up fear in his mind to fearful sounds.

Knowledge of divine ear occurs with three objects, namely, limited object, present object and external object.[1236] If one loses the natural ear, one also loses the divine ear element

Here, the disciple who acquired mastery hears the sounds of a thousand world-systems. The Solitary Buddhas hear more. There is no limit to the power of hearing of the Tathāgatas.

The Divine Ear is finished. 443b06

Knowledge of Others' Minds

Q. Who can produce the knowledge of others' minds? How is it to be produced?

A. One who acquires facility in the fourth jhāna on the on the light kasiṇa acquires the divine eye

---

[1232] Probably the 4 element kasiṇas and 4 colour kasiṇas, which are mentioned together as the "eight kasiṇas" in non-canonical Pali works, while the other two are mentioned together separately (Nett 89, Dhs-a 400). This is also found at the start of the recollection of past lives section.

[1233] This same passage is also found at the start of the recollection of previous lives section below at 443c05–07. In both places the Chinese text has "four jhānas," 四禪, not "fourth jhāna" 第四禪. This statement would suggest that one can also produce it on the first jhāna, etc. Below, at 443c06, the text has "obtains arising/production," 得起, instead of "also arises/is produced," 亦起.

[1234] D I 79: Seyyathā pi mahā-rāja puriso addhāna-magga-paṭipanno so suṇeyya bheri-saddam pi … Tassa evam assa: "Bheri-saddo" iti pi, "… Evam eva … evaṃ samāhite citte parisuddhe …. dibbāya sota-dhātuyā cittaṃ abhinīharati abhininnāmeti. So dibbāya sota-dhātuyā visuddhāya atikkanta-mānusikāya ubho sadde suṇāti, dibbe ca mānuse ca, ye dūre santike ca.

[1235] Cf. Vism XIII.3 sadehakanissitā pāṇakasaddā.

[1236] LC: "It is surprising that only external object is allowed for dibbasota. Vism XIII.109 & others allow also internal and Dhs-a 426 & Vibh-a have that and internal-external as well. Dhs §1420 indicates that at least one of these knowledges has an internal-external object."

and produces the knowledge of others' minds.

Q. How is it to be produced?

A. The beginner meditator who has thus developed the four bases of supernormal power, by acquiring mastery over his mind, which is pure and immovable, enters upon [the fourth jhāna by way of] the light kasiṇa. Emerging from the fourth jhāna peacefully, he, at first, pervades his own body with light.

He sees the colour of his own mind (cittamano)[1237] through the divine eye. He knows "Dependent upon this colour, mind-consciousness (manoviññāṇa) arises." He sees the changes of colour through the changes in his own mind (citta):[1238] "This colour has arisen from the faculty of joy; this colour has arisen from the faculty of distress; this colour has arisen from the faculty of equanimity."

If there is the arising of mind (citta) accompanied by the faculty of joy, the colour of the mind (mano) is like the colour of curd. If there is the arising of mind accompanied by the faculty of distress, it is like the colour purple. 443b15 If there is the arising of mind accompanied by the faculty of equanimity, it is like the colour of honey. If there is the arising of mind which is accompanied by sensual desire (kāmarāga), it is like the colour yellow. If there is the arising of mind which is accompanied by ill-will (vyāpāda), it is like the colour black. If there is the arising of mind which is accompanied by delusion (moha, avijjā), it is like a murky (āvila) colour. If there is the arising of mind which is accompanied by faith (saddhā), it is like a pure (suddha) colour. Thus the meditator investigates the changes within himself through the changes in colour.

Then he pervades the bodies of others with light. With the divine eye he analyses[1239] the colour of others' minds. He analyses the changes of colours through the changes in their minds, and analyses the changes in their minds through the changes in colours. Having analysed thus, he produces knowledge of others' minds. Having produced the knowledge of others' minds, he abandons analysing the changes of colour and only takes the mind as object.

The meditator, with his mind thus developed and purified, if the mind is with lust, he knows "the mind is with lust." If the mind is without lust, he knows "the mind is without lust." If the mind is with hate, he knows "the mind is with hate." If the mind is without hate, he knows "the mind is without hate."[1240] Thus he knows all [states of mind].

The knowledge of others' minds has eight objects, namely, limited object, exalted object, path object, immeasurable object, past object, future object, present object and external object.[1241]

The knowledge of the minds of those who are without taints (anāsavā) is not within the range of the commoner. The minds of the beings of the immaterial realms are within the range only of the Buddhas. [443c]

If the disciple acquires facility, he knows the minds [of beings] of a thousand world-systems. The Solitary Buddhas know more than. As to the Tathāgatas, there is no limit.

Knowledge of others' minds is finished.

[1237] Whereas the Visuddhimagga states that the meditator sees the colour of the blood of the physical heart, hadaya, the Vimuttimagga, or at least the Chinese translation of it, stresses that he sees the colour of the mind or mind-consciousness.

Vism XIII.9/p.409: Tasmā tena bhikkhunā ālokaṃ vaḍḍhetvā dibbena cakkhunā parassa hadayarūpaṃ nissāya vattamānassa lohitassa vaṇṇaṃ passitvā cittaṃ pariyesitabbaṃ. Yadā hi somanassacittaṃ vattati, tadā rattaṃ nigrodhapakkasadisaṃ hoti. Yadā domanassacittaṃ vattati, tadā kāḷakaṃ jambupakkasadisaṃ. Yadā upekkhācittaṃ vattati, tadā pasannatilatelasadisaṃ. Tasmā tena idaṃ rūpaṃ somanassindriyasamuṭṭhānaṃ, idaṃ domanassindriyasamuṭṭhānaṃ, idaṃ upekkhindriyasamuṭṭhānanti parassa hadayalohitavaṇṇaṃ passitvā cittaṃ pariyesantena cetopariyañāṇaṃ thāmagataṃ kātabbaṃ.

[1238] When contemplating the minds at others at 443b21–22 "and he sees the changes in his mind through the changes in colours" is added. Perhaps the original had it here too.

[1239] 分別 can correspond to vibhaṅga, paricchindana, pariccheda, abhisamaya, etc. The Vism (XIII.9) has pariyesana, "seeking out, investigating."

[1240] Cf. A I 255; D I 79–80; S V 265: Evaṃ bhāvitesu kho bhikkhu catusu iddhipādesu evaṃ bahulīkatesu parasattānaṃ parapuggalānaṃ cetasā ceto paricca pajānāti. Sarāgam vā cittaṃ sarāgam cittan ti … vimuttaṃ vā cittaṃ vimuttaṃ cittan ti pajānāti. Paṭis I 112: So imesu catūsu iddhipādesu cittaṃ paribhāvetvā paridametvā, muduṃ karitvā kammaniyaṃ evaṃ pajānāti idaṃ rūpaṃ somanassindriyasamuṭṭhitaṃ, idaṃ rūpaṃ domanassindriyasamuṭṭhitaṃ, idaṃ rūpaṃ upekkhindriyasamuṭṭhitanti. So tathābhāvitena cittena parisuddhena pariyodātena cetopariyañāṇāya cittaṃ abhinīharati abhininnāmeti. So parasattānaṃ parapuggalānaṃ cetasā ceto paricca pajānāti sarāgaṃ vā cittaṃ sarāgaṃ cittanti pajānāti …

[1241] Vism XIII.110: Cetopariyañāṇaṃ paritta-mahaggata-appamāṇa-magga-atītānāgata-paccuppanna-bahiddhārammaṇa-vasena aṭṭhasu ārammaṇesu pavatti.

Recollection of Past Lives

Q. Who can produce the knowledge of the recollection of past lives? How many kinds of knowledge of the recollection of past lives are there? How is it to be produced?

[Q. Who can produce the knowledge of the recollection of past lives?]

A. One who acquires facility in the fourth jhāna on the eight kasiṇas and the two kasiṇas can produce the knowledge of the recollection of past lives.

Again it is said: "Why is the material realm the basis (rūpa-dhātu-vatthu) [for this knowledge]? The answer is: When the mind attains the fourth jhāna with facility, then it can be produced."443c06

And again, it is said, "In [all] the four jhānas it [also] obtains arising."[1242]

Q. How many kinds of knowledge of the recollection of past lives are there?

A. There are three kinds of recollection of past lives: born of much keeping up (dhāraṇa?), originated naturally,[1243] originated through practice.

"Born of much keeping up": Through four ways there is knowledge of the recollection of past lives: one well grasps the sign, sees the counterpart sign, cleans the faculties and encompasses (saṅgahati?) [previous] births. These four ways born of much keeping up [produce] the recollection of past lives. At the most one recalls seven past lives.

"Originated naturally": gods, dragons (nāga) and harpys (supaṇṇa), remember their past lives naturally. At the most they recall fourteen past lives.

"Originated through practice" is [recollection developed through] the practice of the four bases of supernormal power.

Q. How is the knowledge of the recollection of past lives to be produced?

A. The beginner meditator, having thus developed the four bases of supernormal power, having acquired mastery [over his mind] through confidence (sampasāda or saddhā), becomes pure and immovable [in mind].[1244] He recollects the actions by way of body, speech or mind that he had done in the day [starting] from [the action of] sitting down. Likewise, the actions done in the night. Likewise, he gradually recollects all actions that he had done in one day, in two days until one month. Likewise, he gradually recollects all the actions that he had done during two months, one year, two years, three years, a hundred years until [what is] preceding birth (purejāta).[1245] 443c20

Then [he contemplates] the mind and mental properties of long past existences and rebirths, and the mind and mental properties of the present birth: "Dependent on the preceding mind and mental properties, one obtains birth." Through the mind and the succession of births, he contemplates the causes (nidāna) [of birth]. He recollects the stream of consciousness (viññāṇasota) which is not cut off with regards both birth in this world and birth in the other world.[1246]

The meditator, with his mind thus developed and purified, [recollects] manifold past lives: one birth, two births, three births, four births and so forth.[1247] If the beginner meditator who has recollected everything in this birth is not able to recollect other births, he should not give up making effort. He [1242] This obscure passage is also at the start of the divine ear section above at 443a15.

---

[1243] Read 性所成 "naturally originated" or "produced naturally" (pakatisamuṭṭhāna, pakatija?, instead of 生所成, "birth originated" or "accomplished by birth," jātisamuṭṭhāna. The characters 性 and 生 are very similar.

[1244] In the sections "Knowledge of others' thoughts" and "Divine Sight procedure," this same passage occurs in slightly diffent words. There it is said that the meditator's mind becomes immovable and pure.

[1245] 初生. At 439c19, 448b02, 449a19 this corresponds to purejāta (-paccaya), "prenascent (condition)." Here it could correspond to paṭhamābhinibbatti, "first arising"; cf. Ud-a 43; Vibh-a 95: Tattha tattha bhave paṭhamābhinibbattilakkhaṇā jāti … However, the way the Vim text continues indicates that the meditator has already recollected previous births, which would support purejāta.

[1246] 憶識流轉。兩俱不斷。於此世生。於彼世生. The last two clauses could also be translated as: "in this world-birth and in the other world-birth." Cf. D III 105: … idhekacco samaṇo vā brāhmaṇo vā ātappamanvāya … tathārūpaṃ cetosamādhiṃ phusati, yathāsamāhite citte imameva kāyaṃ uddhaṃ pādatalā adho kesamatthakā tacapariyantaṃ pūraṃ nānappakārassa asucino paccavekkhati: atthi imasmiṃ kāye kesā lomā … lasikā muttanti. Atikkamma ca purisassa chavimaṃsalohitaṃ aṭṭhiṃ paccavekkhati. Purisassa ca viññāṇasotaṃ pajānāti, ubhayato abbocchinnaṃ idha loke patiṭṭhitañca paraloke patiṭṭhitañca. Ayaṃ tatiyā dassanasamāpatti. D-a III 888: Viññāṇasotanti viññāṇameva. Ubhayato abbocchinnanti dvīhipi bhāgehi acchinnaṃ. Idha loke patiṭṭhitañcāti chandarāgavasena imasmiñca loke patiṭṭhitaṃ. … Kammaṃ vā kammato upagacchantaṃ idha loke patiṭṭhitaṃ nāma.

[1247] Paṭis I 113: So tathābhāvitena cittena parisuddhena pariyodātena pubbenivāsānussatiñāṇāya cittaṃ abhinīharati abhininnāmeti. So anekavihitaṃ pubbenivāsaṃ anussarati, seyyathidaṃ ekampi jātiṃ dvepi jātiyo tissopi jātiyo catassopi jātiyo pañcapi jātiyo …

should produce jhāna again and again. He, producing jhāna well, causes facility. It is like the teaching on polishing the mirror.[1248] Having well acquired facility, when he is recollecting [this birth] as before, there will be recollection of the other [births]. If his mind emerges from [this] one birth, then he succeeds in recollecting [his past births]. [444a] Having seen the means, he becomes very glad.

He should not recollect animal births, immaterial births, and, because of non-percipience, non-percipient (asaññā) births.

The Venerable Sobhita is foremost in this [recollection].[1249]

The knowledge of the recollection of past lives has seven objects: limited, exalted, not to be spoken of, past, internal, external and internal-external.[1250]

When one has already attained Paths and Fruits in the past, the country or the village [where one has attained] should be recollected.[1251]

To have perception of the past is knowledge of the recollection of past lives. To recollect the continuity of aggregates through knowledge is knowledge of the recollection of past lives.

Sectarians recollect forty aeons. They cannot recollect more than that, because of weakness.[1252] The noble disciples recollect ten thousand aeons; more than this, the chief disciples; more than this, the Solitary Buddhas (paccekabuddha); and more than this, the Tathāgatas. The Rightly Awakened Ones (sammāsambuddha) recollect their own and others' previous lives, activities, places and everything. The rest recollect only their own previous lives and a few of the previous lives of others.

The Rightly Awakened Ones recollect everything as they wish; the rest recollect only sequentially. The Rightly awakened Ones, whether entering upon concentration or not entering upon concentration, are always able to recollect; the rest can recollect only through entering upon concentration.

The recollection of past lives is finished. 444a12

Divine eye

Q. Who can produce the divine eye? How many kinds of divine eye are there? How is the divine eye to be produced?

A. One who attains the fourth jhāna with facility on the [nine] kasiṇas with the light kasiṇa as the ninth, or on the [five] kasiṇas with the light kasiṇa as the fifth, [1253] can produce the divine eye element from his natural eye.

Q. How many kinds of divine eye are there?

A. There are two kinds of divine eye: born of kamma-result (kammavipākaja) and sprung from development (bhāvānāmaya).

Here, the treasure trove divine eye is "born of [kamma] result." Thereby one can see whether a a [1248] Cf. Vism XVIII.16: Yathā hi cakkhumato purisassa aparisuddhe ādāse mukhanimittaṃ olokentassa nimittaṃ na paññāyati, so nimittaṃ na paññāyatī ti na ādāsaṃ chaḍḍeti, atha kho naṃ punappunaṃ parimajjati. Tassa parisuddhe ādāse nimittaṃ sayameva pākaṭaṃ hoti. Vism-mhṭ II 355: … ādāsassa aparisuddhakālo viya rūpapariggahassa avikkhālitakālo, tadā mukhanimittassa apaññāyanaṃ viya rūpapariggahassa avisuddhatāya arūpadhammānaṃ anupaṭṭhānaṃ, ādāsassa punappunaṃ parimajjanaṃ viya rūpapariggahassa punappunaṃ visodhanaṃ, suparimajjite ādāse subyattaṃ mukhanimittassa paññāyanaṃ viya suvikkhālite nijjaṭe rūpapariggahe arūpadhammānaṃ suṭṭhu upaṭṭhānanti. D I 80; M I 19–20*: Seyyathāpi, Udāyi, itthi vā puriso vā daharo yuvā maṇḍakajātiko ādāse vā parisuddhe pariyadāte acche vā udakapatte sakaṃ mukhanimittaṃ paccavekkhamāno sakaṇikaṃ vā sakanikan ti jāneyya, akaṇikaṃ vā akaṇikan ti jāneyya, evam eva kho, Udāyi, akkhātā mayā sāvakānaṃ paṭipadā, yathā paṭipannā me sāvakā parasattānaṃ parapuggalānaṃ cetasā ceto paricca pajānanti, sarāgaṃ vā cittaṃ: sarāgaṃ cittan ti pajānāti …*

---

[1249] A I 25: Etad aggaṃ mama sāvakānaṃ bhikkhūnaṃ pubbenivāsaṃ annussarantānaṃ yadidaṃ Sobhito.

[1250] Cf. Vism XIII.120/p.433: Pubbenivāsañāṇaṃ paritta-mahaggata-appamāṇa-magga-atīta-ajjhattabahiddhā na vattabbārammaṇavasena aṭṭhasu ārammaṇesu pavattati.

[1251] D I 81–2; M I 20–1: Seyyathāpi, Udāyi, puriso sakamhā gāmā aññaṃ gāmaṃ gaccheyya …

[1252] 身無力故, lit. "because of bodily/body weakness," but this must be a corruption, as this recollection can't refer to the body because it is based on concentration (D I 13) and wisdom (Vism XIII.16).
Cf. D I 13: Idha, bhikkhave, ekacco samaṇo vā brāhmaṇo vā ātappamanvāya padhānamanvāya anuyogamanvāya appamādamanvāya sammāmanasikāramanvāya tathārūpaṃ cetosamādhiṃ phusati, yathāsamāhite citte anekavihitaṃ pubbenivāsaṃ anussarati. Seyyathidaṃ ekampi jātiṃ dvepi … anekānipi jātisatasahassāni amutrāsiṃ evaṃnāmo … Iti sākāraṃ sauddesaṃ anekavihitaṃ pubbenivāsaṃ anussarati. Cf. Vism XIII.16/p.411: Tattha titthiyā cattālīsaṃyeva kappe anussaranti, na tato paraṃ. Kasmā, dubbalapaññattā. Tesañhi nāmarūpaparicchedavirahitattā dubbalā paññā hoti. Pakatisāvakā kappasatampi kappasahassampi anussarantiyeva, balavapaññattā. Asītimahāsāvakā satasahassakappe anussaranti. …

[1253] See note 491 above (under "Procedure of developing supernormal power").

treasure trove is with gems or without gems.[1254]

"Sprung from development": [produced by the] development of the four bases of supernormal power.[1255]

Q. How is divine eye to be produced?

A. The beginner meditator, having developed the four bases of supernormal power, through [acquiring] mastery over his mind, 444a20 which is pure and immovable, enters upon the fourth jhāna on the light kasiṇa. He attends to perception of light and resolves upon the perception of day thus: "This day is like night; this night is like day."[1256] With a mind that is uncovered and unenveloped, he develops a mind accompanied by illumination.

The meditator who develops a mind accompanied with illumination, not covered by darkness, surpasses the sun in illumination.

Developing his mind thus, the meditator pervades [himself] internally with light and attends to forms. When through knowledge he [just] pervades with light, that is not the divine eye; and when through knowledge he sees illuminated forms internally, this is the divine eye.[1257]

The meditator with the divine eye, which is purified, which surpasses the human eye, sees beings passing away and rearising, inferior and superior, fair and ugly, born in good destinations and born in bad destinations, faring according to their deeds.[1258]

Now, if one is to produce the divine eye, [444b] these [lesser] defilements are to be abandoned: uncertainty, inattention, sloth and torpor, fear, exhilaration, grossness, overexertion, overly sluggish exertion, longing, perceptions of diversity, and excessive reflection on forms.[1259] If any one of these [lesser] defilements manifests during the production of the divine eye, his concentration falls away. If concentration falls away, light and vision of objects also disappear.[1260] Therefore these [lesser] defilements should be well abandoned.

[1254] Supposedly 典藏 is a corruption or synonym of 寶藏, nidhi, used later in the same sentence (444a17). Cf. 典藏寶 "treasure store/collection," at T10n0309_p1030b23, etc. Probably 或有珠或無珠, "with gems or without gems (maṇi)" is due to a misunderstanding of sassāmikampi assāmikampi in the Pali parallel; cf. D II 176, M III 175: Puna caparaṃ, ānanda, rañño mahāsudassanassa gahapatiratanaṃ pāturahosi. Tassa kammavipākajaṃ dibbacakkhu pāturahosi yena nidhiṃ passati sassāmikampi assāmikampi.

[1255] Cf. D- II 56: Duvidhañhi dibbacakkhuṃ kammamayaṃ bhāvanāmayanti. Tatridaṃ kammamayanti āha na bhāvanāmayanti. Bhāvanāmayaṃ pana bodhimūle uppajjissati. Cf. D-a II 453: Kammavipākajanti na bhāvanāmayaṃ, kammavipākavasena pana devatānaṃ cakkhusadisameva maṃsacakkhu ahosi. Mil 122: Yaṃ pana sutte vuttaṃ maṃsacakkhusmiṃ naṭṭhe ahetusmiṃ avatthusmiṃ natthi dibbacakkhussa uppādo ti. Taṃ bhāvanāmayaṃ cakkhuṃ sandhāya vuttaṃ.

[1256] Cf. D III 223: Idh' avuso bhikkhu ālokasaññaṃ manasikaroti, divāsaññaṃ adhiṭṭhāti yathā divā tathā rattiṃ, yathā rattiṃ tathā divā, iti vivaṭena cetasā apariyonaddhena sappabhāsaṃ cittaṃ bhāveti.

[1257] Perhaps "[When] through knowledge he sees [with] light forms inside." 以智令滿光明彼非天眼。以智見內光明色此謂天眼. The could stress difference between the development of perception of light, ālokasaññā, which is for repelling sleepiness, and the proper development of light for the seeing of forms. For "seeing forms internally" see D II 109: Ajjhattaṃ rūpasaññī eko bahiddhā rūpāni passati parittāni suvaṇṇadubbaṇṇāni. Tāni abhibhuyya jānāmi passāmī ti evaṃsaññī hoti. Idaṃ paṭhamaṃ abhibhāyatanaṃ. D-a II 561: Ajjhattaṃ rūpasaññītiādīsu pana ajjhattarūpe parikammavasena ajjhattaṃ rūpasaññī nāma hoti. Ajjhattañhi nīlaparikammaṃ karonto kese vā pitte vā akkhitārakāya vā karoti. M III 156: … obhāsañceva sañjānāmi dassanañca rūpānaṃ. So kho pana me obhāso nacirasseva antaradhāyati dassanañca rūpānaṃ.

[1258] It 100; A IV 178: Iti dibbena cakkhunā visuddhena atikkantamānusakena satte passāmi cavamāne upapajjamāne, hīne paṇīte suvaṇṇe dubbaṇṇe sugate duggate yathākammūpage satte pajānāmi. Cf. D III 111–12.

[1259] Cf. M III 158ff: So kho ahaṃ, anuruddhā, vicikicchā cittassa upakkileso ti iti viditvā vicikicchaṃ cittassa upakkilesaṃ pajahiṃ, amanasikāro … thinamiddhaṃ … chambhitattaṃ … ubbillaṃ … duṭṭhullaṃ … accāraddhavīriyaṃ … atilīnavīriyaṃ … abhijappā … nānattasaññā … atinijjhāyitattaṃ rūpānaṃcittassa upakkileso ti iti viditvā atinijjhāyitattaṃ rūpānaṃ cittassa upakkilesaṃ pajahiṃ.

The Chinese translator did not understand some Pali terms, instead of "inattention," amanasikārā, the Chinese has 不正憶 "unreasoned attention," ayoniso manasikār and instead of chambhitatta, "consternation," māna, "conceit," 慢. The characters used for conceit and fright, 慢 and 畏, are somewhat similar and would have been confused. Below, at 444b12, there is a reference back to "fear," 畏怖. ("… should neither delight in forms nor fear forms, as in the faults taught above.") Ubbilla, "exhilaration" or "elation," is rendered as "wrong rapture," 邪喜. Duṭṭhulla, and "grossness" or "inertia," is "wicked speech," 惡口, which would be due to duṭṭhulla being intrepeted as "lewd speech," duṭṭhulla vācā. Abhijappā, meaning "talk" or "prayer," but also "longing," is 多語, "much talk."

[1260] Cf. M III 160: … atinijjhāyitattādhikaraṇañca pana me rūpānaṃ samādhi cavi. Samādhimhi cute obhāso antaradhāyati dassanañca rūpānaṃ.

If he has abandoned these defilements, but does not acquire mastery in concentration, the divine eye is limited due to non-mastery. The meditator perceives limited light with a limited divine eye and the vision of forms is also limited. Therefore the Blessed One taught thus: "At the time when my concentration is limited, at that time my eye is limited; and with a limited eye I perceive limited light and I see limited forms. At the time when my concentration is immeasurable, at that time my divine eye is immeasurable; and with this immeasurable divine eye, I perceive immeasurable light and I see immeasurable forms."[1261] 444b11

Now, the beginner meditator should neither delight in forms nor fear forms, as in the faults taught above.

The divine eye has five objects, namely, limited-object, present-object, internal-object, external-object and internal-external-object.[1262]

Dependent on the divine eye four kinds of knowledge are produced: the knowledge of the future, the knowledge of the ownership of kamma, the knowledge of the faring according to deeds, and the knowledge of the result of deeds.[1263]

Here, through the knowledge of the future, he knows, "In the future [these] forms will arise."[1264]

Through the knowledge of the ownership of kamma, he sees the kamma that another person has created: "Through this kamma this person will go to that destination." 444b16

Through the knowledge of the faring according to deeds, he sees the rebirth-destination of people and knows "Through this deed, this person's former rebirth was here.''

Through the knowledge of the result of deeds, he knows "He arrived at this time. He arrived at this destination. He arrived through this defilement. He arrived through this means. This deed will mature. This deed will not mature. This deed will be experienced much. This deed will be experienced little."[1265]

Here the disciples who acquire mastery see a thousand world-systems; the Solitary Buddhas see more than that; and the Tathāgatas' vision is without limit. 444b22

The Divine Eye is finished.

Miscellaneous Topics

Now, these are the miscellaneous topics: If one develops one kind of concentration for the purpose of seeing forms with the divine eye, one only sees forms and does not hear sounds.

If one develops one kind of concentration for the purpose of hearing sounds with the divine ear, one only hears sounds and does not see forms.

[1261] M III 161: Yasmiṃ kho samaye paritto samādhi hoti, parittam me tamhi samaye cakkhu hoti; so 'haṃ parittena cakkhunā parittañ c' eva obhāsaṃ sañjānāmi parittāni ca rūpāni passāmi. Yasmiṃ pana samaye apparitto me samādhi hoti, appamāṇaṃ me tamhi samaye cakkhu hoti; so 'haṃ appamāṇena cakkhunā appamāṇañ c' eva obhāsaṃ sañjānāmi appamāṇāni ca rūpāni passāmi kevalam pi rattiṃ kevalam pi divasaṃ kevalaṃ pi rattindivan ti.

[1262] Cf. Vism XIII.124/p. 434: Dibbacakkhuñāṇaṃ paritta-paccuppanna-ajjhatta-bahiddhārammaṇa-vasena catūsu ārammanesu pavattati. The fifth, ajjhattabahiddha-ārammaṇa, is not in Vism. Cf. Dhs-a 426: Dibbacakkhucatutthaṃ attano kucchigatādirūpadassanakāle ajjhattārammaṇaṃ, avasesarūpadassanakāle bahiddhārammaṇaṃ, ubhayavasena ajjhattabahiddhārammaṇaṃ.

LC: "It is perhaps incorrect to say that ajjhattabahiddhārammaṇa is excluded by Buddhaghosa in Vism. Possibly the comment at Vism XIII.129/p. 435 is meant to apply to the three preceding knowledges. In any case, it is included at Dhs-a 426f.; Vibh-a 375, but not at Abhidh-av 1153, Nidd-a II 381f.; Paṭis-a I 383."

[1263] Anāgataṃsa-ñāṇa, kammassakata-ñāṇa, yathākammūpaga-ñāṇa, kammavipāka-ñāṇa. Vism mentions only the first and the third.

[1264] Dhs-a 426: Anāgataṃsañāṇacatutthaṃ attano anāgatakkhandhānussaraṇakāle ajjhattārammaṇaṃ, parassa anāgatakkhandhānaṃ vā anindriyabaddhassa vā rūpassa anussaraṇakāle bahiddhārammaṇaṃ, ubhayavasena ajjhattabahiddhārammaṇaṃ. Ākiñcaññāyatanassa navattabbārammaṇatāya kāraṇaṃ heṭṭhā vuttameva. Vibh-a 373: Anāgataṃsañāṇacatutthaṃ anāgate kāmadhātuyā nibbattijānanakāle parittārammaṇaṃ, rūpārūpabhavesu nibbattijānanakāle mahaggatārammaṇaṃ, anāgate buddhapaccekabuddhakhīṇāsavā maggaṃ bhāvessanti, phalaṃ sacchikarissantīti jānanakāle appamāṇārammaṇaṃ, anāgate saṅkho nāma rājā bhavissatītiādinā nayena nāmagottānussaraṇakāle navattabbārammaṇaṃ.

[1265] Cf. A IV 382: Kiṃ nu kho, āvuso sāriputta, yaṃ kammaṃ paripakkavedanīyaṃ, taṃ me kammaṃ aparipakkavedanīyaṃ hotū'ti, ... yaṃ kammaṃ bahuvedanīyaṃ, taṃ me kammaṃ appavedanīyaṃ hotūti, ... M-ṭ II 214 (Be): Catuppañcakkhandhaphalatāya saññābhavūpagaṃ kammaṃ bahuvedanīyanti vuttaṃ. Ekakhandhaphalattā asaññābhavūpagaṃ kammaṃ appavedanīyaṃ. Keci pana, arūpāvacarakammaṃ bahukālaṃ veditabbaphalattā bahuvedanīyaṃ, itaraṃ appavedanīyaṃ. Rūpārūpāvacarakammaṃ vā bahuvedanīyaṃ, parittakammaṃ appavedanīyan-ti vadanti.

If one develops both concentrations for the purpose of seeing [forms] and hearing [sounds], one sees [forms] and also hears [sounds].

If one develops concentration for the purpose of seeing [forms], hearing [sounds] and knowing others' minds, one sees [forms], hears [sounds] and knows others' minds.

If one develops concentration for the purpose of seeing [forms] in one direction, one does not see [forms in] the other directions, does not hear [sounds] and does not know others' minds.

If one much develops [all three kinds of] concentration [in all directions], one sees [forms], hears [sounds] and knows others' minds in all directions.

The five direct knowledges are worldly direct knowledge, [444c] with taints, connected to the material realm and shared with the commoner;[1266] the wholesome direct knowledge of the learner and of the commoner; and the indeterminate direct knowledge of the Arahant.

The five kinds of direct knowledge are not produced in the immaterial realm.

The direct knowledges are finished.

[1266] Paṭis II 191: Puthunānābhiññāsu ñāṇaṃ pavattatīti puthupaññā. Puthujjanasādhāraṇe dhamme atikkamma paramatthe nibbāne ñāṇaṃ pavattatīti puthupaññā. D-a III 931: … puthunānāriyamaggesu sāmaññaphalesu abhiññāsu puthujjanasādhāraṇe dhamme samatikkamma paramatthe nibbāne ñāṇaṃ pavattatī ti puthupaññā. Paṭis-a I 249: … sā āsavuppattihetuto oghaniyato … saṃkilesikato puthujjanasādhāraṇato …

Chapter 10: Treatise on Wisdom (Paññāniddesa)

Definition and Benefits of Wisdom

Q. What is "wisdom" (paññā)? What is its characteristic? What is its function? What is its manifestation? What is its near cause? What are its benefits? What is the meaning of wisdom? How many qualities [are needed] for obtaining wisdom? How many kinds of wisdom are there?

Q. What is "wisdom"?

A. The mind seeing the object as it is—this is called "wisdom."[1267]

Again, the attending to what is benefit (hita) and non-benefit, and to the sublime, is called "wisdom."[1268] 444c07

As is taught in the Abhidhamma: "What is wisdom? This wisdom is understanding, investigation of the Dhamma (dhammavicaya), discerning (sallakkhaṇa), contemplation (anupassanā), insight (vipassanā), cleverness (nepuñña), clarity (vebhavya), analysis (vibhaṅga), consideration (cinta), examination (upaparikkhā), comprehensiveness (bhūri), intelligence (medha), reasoning (pariṇāyika), awareness (sampajañña); the goad of wisdom, faculty of wisdom, power of wisdom, sword of wisdom, palace of wisdom, light of wisdom, splendour of wisdom, lamp of wisdom, gem of wisdom; the non-delusion, investigation of the Dhamma, right view—these are called "wisdom."[1269]

Penetration of reality (yathāsabhāvapaṭivedha) is its characteristic. Investigation is its function. Non-delusion is its manifestation. The Four Noble Truths are its near cause.[1270]

[1267] Tibetan (244b): "Seeing the object as it is (yathāva) by mind—this is called wisdom." (yid kyis ci lta ba bzhin du dmigs pa mthong ba…) Cf. S III 13: Samādhim bhikkhave bhāvetha, samāhito bhikkhave bhikkhu yathābhūtam pajānāti. S II 31–2: … pītūpanisā passaddhi, passaddhūpanisaṃ sukhaṃ, sukhūpaniso samādhi, samādhūpanisaṃ yathābhūtañāṇadassanaṃ, …

[1268] Tibetan (244b): "By attending to benefit and non-benefit, [it is] making much (bahulīkaraṇa) of the sign-aspect of the mind (cittanimitta?)—this is called wisdom." (yang na phan pa dang mi phan pa yid la byed pas yid kyi rgyu rnam pa mang du byed pa.).

"Sublime" is 莊嚴, which corresponds to alaṅkara, sobhana, etc.

Cf. S V 151: Sa kho so, bhikkhave, paṇḍito byatto kusalo bhikkhu lābhī ceva hoti diṭṭheva dhamme sukhavihārānaṃ, lābhī hoti satisampajaññassa. Taṃ kissa hetu? Tathā hi so, bhikkhave, paṇḍito byatto kusalo bhikkhu sakassa cittassa nimittaṃ uggaṇhāti ti. M I 118: … yaṃ nimittaṃ āgamma yaṃ nimittaṃ manasikaroto uppajjanti pāpakā akusalā vitakkā chandūpasaṃhitāpi dosūpasaṃhitāpi mohūpasaṃhitāpi, tena, bhikkhave, bhikkhunā tamhā nimittā aññaṃ nimittaṃ manasi kātabbaṃ kusalūpasaṃhitaṃ. Cf. Th 85: cittanimittassa kovido.

Cf. Nidd-a I 156, Dhs-a 123: Yathā pana cheko bhisakko āturānaṃ sappāyāsappāyāni bhojanādīni jānāti, evaṃ paññā uppajjamānā kusalākusale sevitabbāsevitabbe hīnappaṇīta-kaṇhasukka-sappaṭibhāga-appaṭibhāge dhamme pajānāti. Vuttampi cetaṃ dhammasenāpatinā: Pajānāti pajānātī ti kho, āvuso, tasmā paññavāti vuccati. Kiñca pajānāti? Idaṃ dukkhanti pajānātī ti vitthāretabbaṃ. Evamassā pajānanalakkhaṇatā veditabbā. Ud-a 222: So satiyā kusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ gatiyo samanvesamāno paññāya sattānaṃ hitāhitaṃ yathābhūtaṃ jānitvā, samādhinā tattha ekaggacitto hutvā, vīriyena satte ahitā nisedhetvā hite niyojeti. Cp-a 267: sattānaṃ hitāhitavicāraṇavasena dānasīlādisaṃvidahanavasena ca paññāpāramī. Cp-a 321: sattānaṃ hitāhitavinicchayakaraṇavasena tisso paññāpāramiyo.

[1269] Cf. Dhs 11, § 16: Yā tasmiṃ samaye paññā pajānanā vicayo pavicayo dhammavicayo sallakkhaṇā upalakkhaṇā paccupalakkhaṇā paṇḍiccaṃ kosallaṃ nepuññaṃ vebhavyā cintā upaparikkhā bhūrī medhā pariṇāyikā vipassanā sampajaññaṃ patodo paññā paññindriyaṃ paññābalaṃ paññāsatthaṃ paññāpāsādo paññā-āloko paññā-obhāso paññāpajjoto paññāratanaṃ amoho dhammavicayo sammādiṭṭhi—idaṃ tasmiṃ samaye paññindriyaṃ hoti. Cf. Dhs 191, Vibh 250, Paṭis I 119, Nidd I 44, 77, Nett 76, Pug 125, Kv 595, D-a 759.

The Pali has 30 synonyms. The Chinese, not able to find suitable characters, lists 24 synonyms, several of which are not found in the Pali. The Tibetan (Ssv 244b–45a) lists 29, which are the same as the Pali, except for combining paññā-āloka and paññā-obhāsa into one synonym, shes rab snang ba. Instead of paññāratana, "gem of wisdom," the Tibetan and Chinese version have "reality/thusness of wisdom," paññā + tathatā? The Taisho edition gives 慧寶 = paññāratana as a variant reading.

[1270] Ssv 245a: "… Methodical/reasonable penetration (rigs pas mngon du byed pa) is wisdom. What is the function of wisdom? Thorough investigation (pavicaya) is [the function of] wisdom. … Non delusion is the manifestation of wisdom. The near cause of wisdom [is the four noble truths]."

Cf. Vism 438: … dhammassabhāva-paṭivedhalakkhaṇā paññā; dhammānaṃ sabhāvapaṭicchādakamohandhakāra-viddhaṃsanarasā; asammohapaccupaṭṭhānā; samāhito yathābhūtaṃ jānāti passatī ti vacanato pana samādhi tassā padaṭṭhānaṃ. Nidd-a I 156, Dhs-a 123, It-a II 27, Aparo nayo yathāsabhāvapaṭivedhalakkhaṇā paññā, akkhalitapaṭivedhalakkhaṇā vā, kusalissāsakhitta-usupaṭivedho viya. Visayobhāsarasā, padīpo viya.

Again, elucidating is its characteristic; the entering into the True Dhamma (saddhamma) is its function; the dispelling of the darkness of ignorance is its manifestation; the four discriminations (paṭisambhidā) are its near cause.[1271] 444c14

Q. What are its benefits?

A. Incalculable (appamāṇa) are the benefits of wisdom.[1272] It can be stated in brief by these verses:

Through wisdom one purifies all virtue,
Entering jhāna is the second wisdom,
Through wisdom one develops the Paths,
Through wisdom one sees their Fruits.[1273]

Wisdom is the superior goodness,
The eye of wisdom is unsurpassed,
The decline of wisdom is impurity,
Growth in wisdom is unsurpassed.
Wisdom crushes the arguments of outsiders,
And is not sullied by worldly states.

Those endowed with wisdom, the most excellent,
Expound in good words,
about this world and the other, and freedom.
When hearing about suffering, happiness and the goal, they apply energy.

Those endowed with wisdom,
Fully seeing this whole Dhamma
The teachings of dependent arising,
When instructed about name and form
They are drawn to the teaching of the Four Truths

Those who have wisdom as their pasture (gocara),
Through wisdom abandon the evils
Of craving, hatred, and ignorance,
Through wisdom they abandon saṃsāra,
They abandon what others can not abandon.

Q. What is the meaning of "wisdom"?

A. It means "understanding" (pajānana) and it means "abandoning" (pariññā?).[1274]

Asammohapaccupaṭṭhānā, araññagatasudesako viya. Cp-a 281: Yathāsabhāvapaṭivedhalakkhaṇā paññāpāramī, … araññagatasudesiko viya, samādhipadaṭṭhānā, catusaccapadaṭṭhānā vā. Peṭ 129: Pajānanalakkhaṇā paññā, bhūtatthasantīraṇāpaccupaṭṭhānā, tassa cattāri ariyasaccāni padaṭṭhānaṃ.

[1271] Mil 39: … kiṃlakkhaṇā paññā ti? … api ca obhāsanalakkhaṇā paññā ti. … Paññā, mahārāja, uppajjamānā avijjandhakāraṃ vidhameti, vijjobhāsaṃ janeti, ñāṇālokaṃ vidaṃseti, ariyasaccāni pākaṭāni karoti. Tato yogāvacaro aniccanti vā dukkhanti vā anattā ti vā sammappaññāya passatī ti.

Ssv 245a gives the function differently: "Fathoming the profound is the manifestation of wisdom," gting yongs su dpag pa.

[1272] This sentence is not in the Tibetan.

[1273] Ssv 245a: "Through wisdom one practices virtue, [and] establishes [oneself] in jhāna. Through wisdom one develops the Paths, sees the fruits. Through wisdom there is superior goodness. The unexcelled eye of wisdom, dispels the decline of wisdom. Unexcelled wisdom improves/increases engagement in the arguments of others (? pha rol rgol ba 'jug byed cing). [It] is not sullied by worldly states. Those endowed with wisdom speak in supremely good words (? legs par smras pa shin tu srid) about this world, the other world and release, attainment of fame,* happiness, goal and courageous exertion. Understanding name and form as being dependently originated, they teach beings each truth. The wise who have wisdom as their pasture, get rid of the evils of greed, hatred, delusion and birth and death (or saṃsāra) without remainder. They conquer what is the hardest to conquer."

* grags pa thob pa = "one who has attained fame" or "fame and gain" This might accord with the variant reading 苦＝吉, "suffering = auspicious" in the Taisho edition. It is difficult to make sense of the Tibetan.  Read rnam rtog instead of rnam rtag.

In accordance with the Tibetan 'jig rten chos kyis, the Chinese text should be ammended to 世法, instead of 世至, at 444c20.

Q. How many qualities (dhammā or guṇā) [are needed] for obtaining wisdom? [445a]
A. Eleven qualities, namely, (1) examining the meaning of discourses, (2) many good deeds,[1275] (3) a pure abode,[1276] (4) serenity and insight, (5) [reflecting on the] the Four Noble Truths,[1277] (6) cleansing of the physical basis,[1278] (7) the mind dwelling regularly (abhiṇha?) in jhāna,[1279] (8) a mind without hindrances, (10) avoidance of unwise persons and (10) association with wise persons, and (11) intentness upon that (tadadhimuttatā).[1280]

Two Kinds of Wisdom

Q. How many kinds of wisdom are there?

A. Two kinds, three kinds and four kinds.

Q. What are the two kinds of wisdom?

A. Mundane wisdom and supramundane wisdom. Here, wisdom which is associated with the Noble Path and Fruit is supramundane wisdom. Other wisdom is mundane wisdom.

Mundane wisdom is subject to taints, is subject to fetters, knots, torrents, yokes, hindrances, to holding on to, clinging, defilement.

Supramundane wisdom is without taints, is without fetters, knots, torrents, yokes, hindrances, holding on to, clinging, defilement.[1281]

Three Kinds of Wisdom

The three kinds of wisdom are: wisdom sprung from thought, wisdom sprung from learning and wisdom sprung from development.

Here, when one acquires knowledge of the ownership of kamma[1282] or knowledge in conformity

---

[1274] Tibetan (245a–b): "What is the meaning of 'wisdom'? Understanding (pajānana)—this is wisdom. Also, the abandoning (pahāna) of all faults—this is wisdom." Cf. Paṭis I 87 (§ 415): Taṃ ñātaṭṭhena ñāṇaṃ, pajānanaṭṭhena paññā. Tena vuccati: abhiññā paññā ñātaṭṭhe ñāṇaṃ, pariññā paññā tīraṇaṭṭhe ñāṇaṃ, pahāne paññā pariccāgaṭṭhe ñāṇaṃ, bhāvanā paññā ekarasaṭṭhe ñāṇaṃ, sacchikiriyā paññā phusanaṭṭhe ñāṇaṃ.

[1275] 多善事. Ssv 245b has yang dag pa mang du gtam pa nyid = "much talk," sambahula kathā? = sākacchā? Or paripucchakatā of Paṭis II 1 (see 2 fn below). Cf. M I 294: Pañcahi kho, āvuso, aṅgehi anuggahitā sammādiṭṭhi … paññāvimuttiphalānisaṃsā ca. Idhāvuso, sammādiṭṭhi sīlānuggahitā ca hoti, sutānuggahitā ca hoti, sākacchānuggahitā ca hoti, samathānuggahitā ca hoti, vipassanānuggahitā ca hoti.

[1276] 清淨居. Ssv has btegs gnas su gnas pa nyid, "dwelling in a supportive abode."

[1277] Ssv omits samatha-vipassanā and has "reflection on the Truths," bden pa la rtog pa.

[1278] In the Pali commentaries vatthuvisadakiriyā, "cleansing of the physical basis," is explained as cleaning the body and the surroundings as a preliminary for meditation practice. See Vibh-a 276: Vatthuvisadakiriyāti ajjhattikabāhirānaṃ vatthūnaṃ visadabhāvakaraṇaṃ. Yadā hissa kesanakhalomāni dīghāni honti, sarīraṃ vā ussannadosañceva sedamalamakkhitañca, tadā ajjhattikaṃ vatthu avisadaṃ hoti aparisuddhaṃ. …

[1279] Tibetan: "Practice of virtue and jhāna," sīla ca jhāna anuyoga?

[1280] Cf. Vibh-a 276/Vism IV 54: satta dhammā dhammavicayasambojjhaṅgassa uppādāya saṃvattanti: paripucchakatā, vatthuvisadakiriyā, indriyasamattapaṭipādanā, duppaññapuggalaparivajjanā, paññavantapuggalasevanā, gambhīrañāṇacariyapaccavekkhaṇā, tadadhimuttatā ti. Paṭis II 1: Assaddhe puggale parivajjayato, saddhe puggale sevato bhajato payirupāsato, pasādanīye suttante paccavekkhato imehi tīhākārehi saddhindriyaṃ visujjhati. Kusīte puggale parivajjayato, āraddhavīriye puggale sevato bhajato payirupāsato, sammappadhāne paccavekkhato imehi tīhākārehi vīriyindriyaṃ visujjhati. Muṭṭhassatī puggale parivajjayato, upaṭṭhitassatī puggale sevato bhajato payirupāsato, satipaṭṭhāne paccavekkhato imehi tīhākārehi satindriyaṃ visujjhati. Asamāhite puggale parivajjayato, samāhite puggale sevato bhajato payirupāsato, jhānavimokkhe paccavekkhato imehi tīhākārehi samādhindriyaṃ visujjhati. Duppaññe puggale parivajjayato, paññavante puggale sevato bhajato payirupāsato, gambhīrañāṇacariyaṃ paccavekkhato imehi tīhākārehi paññindriyaṃ visujjhati.

[1281] Vibh 322: Tīsu bhūmīsu kusalābyākate paññā lokiyā paññā, catūsu maggesu catūsu phalesu paññā lokuttarā paññā. … Tīsu bhūmīsu kusalābyākate paññā sāsavā paññā, catūsu maggesu catūsu phalesu paññā anāsavā paññā. … āsavavippayuttā sāsavā paññā, catūsu maggesu catūsu phalesu paññā āsavavippayuttā anāsavā paññā. … saṃyojaniyā … asaṃyojaniyā … saṃyojanavippayuttā saṃyojaniyā … saṃyojanavippayuttā asaṃyojaniyā … ganthaniyā … aganthaniyā … ganthavippayuttā … oghaniyā … anoghaniyā … oghavippayuttā …. yoganiyā … ayoganiyā … yogavippayuttā … nīvaraṇiyā … anīvaraṇiyā … nīvaraṇavippayuttā … parāmaṭṭhā … aparāmaṭṭhā … parāmāsavippayuttā … Tīsu bhūmīsu vipāke paññā upādinnā paññā, tīsu bhūmīsu kusale tīsu bhūmīsu kiriyābyākate … anupādinnā paññā. … upādāniyā … anupādāniyā … upādānavippayuttā … saṃkilesikā … asaṃkilesikā … kilesavippayuttā …. Cf. Dhs 125 § 584: Lokiyaṃ sāsavaṃ saṃyojaniyaṃ ganthaniyaṃ oghaniyaṃ, yoganiyaṃ, nīvaraṇiyaṃ parāmaṭṭhaṃ upādāniyaṃ saṅkilesikaṃ.

[1282] According to the Pali tradition, kammassakata means "ownership of kamma." The Tibetan rang gi las las, and Chinese 自作業 mean "kamma done by oneself." The Pali tradition interprets kammassakatā as kamma + saka [= Skt: svaka] + tā = "one's-own-state/owner-ship" while the Tibetan and Chinese as karma + svakṛta: "kamma + done by with the truths or [knowledge] in the sphere of crafts or the field of sciences, without having heard it from another—this is called "wisdom sprung from thought."

When one aquires wisdom in these areas (vatthu), having heard it from another—this is called "wisdom sprung from learning."

All wisdom developed by one who has attained concentration—this is "wisdom sprung from development."[1283]

Again, there are three kinds of wisdom: skill in improvement, skill in detriment, skill in means.

Here, when one is attending to these [states], unwholesome states decrease and wholesome states increase. The wisdom therein is called "skill in improvement."

Again, when one is attending to these [states], unwholesome states increase, and wholesome states decrease. The wisdom therein is called "skill in detriment."

The wisdom of all the means thereto—this is called "skill in means."[1284]

And again, there are three kinds of wisdom, namely, wisdom leading to accumulation, wisdom leading to disaccumulation, wisdom leading to neither accumulation nor to disaccumulation.

Wisdom regarding the wholesome in the three planes (tebhūmika) is called "wisdom leading to accumulation."[1285]

The wisdom regarding the four Paths is called "wisdom leading to disaccumulation."

The wisdom regarding the result in the four planes and regarding the functional-indeterminate[1286] in the three planes—this is "wisdom leading to neither accumulation nor to disaccumulation."[1287]

Four Kinds of Wisdom

445a20 The four kinds of wisdom are: knowledge of the ownership of kamma, knowledge in conformity with the Truths, knowledge of one who possesses the Paths and knowledge of one who possesses the Fruits.

---

oneself." Cf. Vibh-a 411: Kammassakataṃ vā ti idaṃ kammaṃ sattānaṃ sakaṃ, idaṃ no sakanti evaṃ jānanañāṇaṃ. A III 185: kammassakatā tasmiṃ puggale adhiṭṭhātabbā kammassako ayamāyasmā kammadāyādo kammayoni kammabandhu kammappaṭisaraṇo, yaṃ kammaṃ karissati kalyāṇaṃ vā pāpakaṃ vā tassa dāyādo bhavissatī ti.

[1283] Cf. D III 219: Cintā-mayā paññā, suta-mayā paññā, bhāvanā-mayā paññā. Vibh 324: Tattha katamā cintāmayā paññā? Yogavihitesu vā kammāyatanesu yogavihitesu vā sippāyatanesu yogavihitesu vā vijjāṭṭhānesu kammassakataṃ vā saccānulomikaṃ vā rūpaṃ aniccanti vā vedanā… saññā… saṅkhārā… viññāṇaṃ aniccanti vā, yaṃ evarūpiṃ anulomikaṃ khantiṃ diṭṭhiṃ ruciṃ mudiṃ pekkhaṃ dhammanijjhānakkhantiṃ parato assutvā paṭilabhati—ayaṃ vuccati 'cintāmayā paññā. Tattha katamā sutamayā paññā? Yogavihitesu vā … aniccanti vā, yaṃ evarūpiṃ anulomikaṃ khantiṃ diṭṭhiṃ dhammanijjhānakkhanti… parato sutvā paṭilabhati—ayaṃ vuccati sutamayā paññā. Sabbā pi samāpannassa paññā bhāvanāmayā paññā. Cf. Vism XIV.16/Vibh 324–25.

[1284] D III 220 Tīṇi kosallāni: Āyakosallaṃ, apāyakosallaṃ, upāyakosallaṃ. Vibh 325: Tattha katamaṃ āyakosallaṃ? Ime dhamme manasikaroto anuppannā ceva akusalā dhammā na uppajjanti, uppannā ca akusalā dhammā pahīyanti. Ime vā panime dhamme manasikaroto anuppannā ceva kusalā dhammā uppajjanti, uppannā ca kusalā dhammā bhiyyobhāvāya vepullāya bhāvanāya pāripūriyā saṃvattantī-ti. Yā tattha paññā … sammādiṭṭhi—idaṃ vuccati āyakosallaṃ. Tattha katamaṃ apāyakosallaṃ? Ime dhamme manasikaroto anuppannā ceva kusalā dhammā na uppajjanti, uppannā ca kusalā dhammā nirujjhanti. Ime vā panime dhamme manasikaroto anuppannā ceva akusalā dhammā uppajjanti, uppannā ca akusalā dhammā bhiyyobhāvāya vepullāya saṃvattantī-ti. Yā tattha paññā … sammādiṭṭhi idaṃ vuccati apāyakosallaṃ. Sabbā pi tatrupāyā paññā upāyakosallaṃ. Cf. Vism XIV.16–18/pp.439–440, Vibh-a 414.

[1285] Ssv 246a: "Whatever wisdom regarding the four Paths of stream-entry, once-returning, non-returning, and arahantship—this is wisdom is leading to accumulation. Whatever wisdom regarding the four results (vipāka) of stream-entry … arahantship—this wisdom is leading to disaccumulation. Whatever wisdom regarding the four functional-indeterminates of stream-entry … arahantship—this wisdom is leading to disaccumulation."

[1286] 事有記 = "functional-determinate." The Tibetan (Ssv 246a) has bya ba lung du ma bstan pa, which corresponds to kiriyāvyākata, "functional-indeterminate." The Chinese translator misunderstood the sandhi in kiriyāvyākate as kiriyā-vyākate instead of kiriyā-avyākate.

[1287] Cf. Vibh 326: Tīsu bhūmīsu kusale paññā ācayagāminī paññā. Catūsu maggesu paññā apacayagāminī paññā. Catūsu bhūmīsu vipāke tīsu bhūmīsu kiriyābyākate paññā nevācayagāmināpacayagāminī paññā. Cf. M III 288: Tassa asārattassa asaṃyuttassa asammūḷhassa ādīnavānupassino viharato āyatiṃ pañcupādānakkhandhā apacayaṃ gacchanti. … Evamassāyaṃ ariyo aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo bhāvanāpāripūriṃ gacchati. Cf. A V 242: Sammādiṭṭhi … sammāvimutti—ayaṃ vuccati, bhikkhave, apacayagāmī dhammo ti. Cf. Dhs 238, § 1413 (Be). Katame dhammā nevācayagāmināpacayagāmino? Catūsu bhūmīsu vipāko, tīsu bhūmīsu kiriyābyākataṃ, rūpañca, nibbānañca—ime dhammā nevācayagāmināpacayagāmino. Dhs § 1015/Be 1022. Katame dhammā neva ācayagāmi na apacayagāmino? Kusalākusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ vipākā kāmāvacarā, rūpāvacarā, arūpāvacarā, apariyāpannā; vedanākkhandho… pe… viññāṇakkhandho; ye ca dhammā kiriyā neva kusalā nākusalā na ca kammavipākā; sabbañca rūpaṃ, asaṅkhatā ca dhātu—ime dhammā neva ācayagāmi na apacayagāmino.

Herein, right view endowed with ten grounds[1288]—this is called "knowledge of the ownership of kamma."

When one sees the aggregates as impermanent, suffering, and not-self, such conformable acceptance is called "knowledge in conformity with the Truths." 445a23

The wisdom regarding the four Paths is called "knowledge of one who possesses the Paths."

The wisdom concerning the four Fruits is called "knowledge of one who possesses the Fruits."[1289] 45a24

Again, there are four kinds of wisdom, namely, wisdom regarding the sensuous realm, wisdom regarding the material realm, wisdom regarding the immaterial realm and wisdom regarding the unincluded.

Wisdom regarding the wholesome-indeterminate[1290] in the sensuous realm is "wisdom regarding the sensuous realm." Wisdom regarding the wholesome-indeterminate in the material realm is called "wisdom regarding the material realm." Wisdom regarding the wholesome-indeterminate in the immaterial realm is called "wisdom regarding the immaterial realm." Wisdom regarding the Paths and the Fruits is called "wisdom regarding the unincluded."[1291]

And again, there are four kinds of wisdom, namely, knowledge of the Dhamma, inferential knowledge, knowledge of others' minds, and conventional knowledge.

The wisdom regarding the Four Paths and the Four Fruits is called "knowledge of the Dhamma." [445b]

Endowed with this knowledge of the Dhamma, the meditator has knowledge regarding [the Truths in] the past, future. This knowledge of the Truths in the present is also knowledge of [the Truths in] the past and future. This is called "inferential knowledge."[1292]

Knowledge of the minds of others—this is called "knowledge of others' minds."[1293]

Putting aside these three knowledges, the remaining wisdom is called "conventional knowledge."[1294]

[1288] Cf. Nidd I 188: Dasavatthukā sammādiṭṭhi: atthi dinnaṃ, atthi yiṭṭhaṃ, atthi hutaṃ, atthi sukatadukkaṭānaṃ kammānaṃ phalaṃ vipāko, atthi ayaṃ loko, atthi paro loko, atthi mātā, atthi pitā, atthi sattā opapātikā, atthi loke samaṇabrāhmaṇā sammaggatā sammāpaṭipannā ye imañca lokaṃ parañca lokaṃ sayaṃ abhiññā sacchikatvā pavedentī ti.

Unlike the Niddesa's mundane right view, the Tibetan text (Ssv 246a) gives supramundane right view: "Here, the ten grounds are: (1) knowledge of the truth of suffering, (2) knowledge of the truth of origination, (3) knowledge of the truth of cessation, (4) knowledge of the truth of the path, (4) development of the noble path, (5) knowledge and vision of Nibbāna, (6) the faculty of wisdom, (7) the power of wisdom, (8) the basis of supernormal power of scrutiny, (9) the awakening factor of investigation of the Dhamma, (10) faith in the triple gem."

[1289] Vibh 328: Atthi dinnaṃ …pavedentīti: yā evarūpa paññā … sammādiṭṭhi: idaṃ vuccati kammassakataṃ ñāṇaṃ. Ṭhapetvā saccānulomikaṃ ñāṇaṃ sabbā pi sāsavā kusalā paññā kammassakataṃ ñāṇaṃ. … Rūpaṃ aniccan ti … viññāṇaṃ aniccan ti vā. Yā evarūpā anulomikā khanti … dhammanijjhānakhanti: idaṃ vuccati saccānulomikaṃ ñāṇaṃ. Catūsu maggesu paññā maggasamaṅgissa ñāṇaṃ. Catūsu phalesu paññā phalasamaṅgissa ñāṇaṃ. Maggasamaṅgissa ñāṇaṃ dukkhe p'etaṃ ñāṇaṃ … dukkhanirodhagāminiyā paṭipadāya p'etaṃ ñāṇaṃ.

[1290] 善有記慧 As before [see 事有記 @@10 or so above @@@], the Chinese translator failed to notice the negating prefix a- of avyākata because of the junction with preceding kusala. The Tibetan (Ssv 246b) has lung du ma bstan pa = avyākata.

[1291] See note 301. Vibh 329: Kāmāvacarakusalāvyākate paññā kāmāvacarā paññā. Rūpāvacarakusalāvyākate paññā rūpāvacarā paññā. Arūpāvacarakusalāvyākate paññā arūpāvacarā paññā. Catūsu maggesu ca catūsu phalesu paññā apariyāpannā paññā.

[1292] The Tibetan version (Ssv 246b) is clearer: "Endowed with that Dhamma knowledge in the present, he leads/applies the method to the past and future thus: 'Whosoever in the past directly knew the truths, he directly knew just these truths. Whosoever in the future will directly know the truths, he will know just these truths.' This called 'inferential knowledge.'"

[1293] 他心智, gzhan gyi sems shes pa, thus the Chinese and Tibetan translators understood pariye as para. Pariye means 'knowledge as to the ways (of the mind)' = pariyāya cf. BHS) or it means 'knowledge that pervades/encompasses (the mind)' (cetasā ceto paricca). Paricchede and paricce are variant readings given in some editions (e.g. D III 226 Ee and the Vibh quotation D-a Be; see next fn.).

[1294] Vibh 329: Tattha katamaṃ dhamme ñāṇaṃ? Catūsu maggesu catūsu phalesu paññā dhamme ñāṇaṃ. So iminā dhammena ñātena diṭṭhena pattena viditena pariyogāḷhena atītānāgatena nayaṃ neti: Ye hi keci atītamaddhānaṃ samaṇā vā brāhmaṇā vā dukkhaṃ abbhaññaṃsu dukkhasamudayaṃ … paṭipadaṃ abbhaññaṃsu, imaññeva te dukkhaṃ abbhaññaṃsu, … abbhaññaṃsu. Ye hi keci anāgatamaddhānaṃ samaṇā vā brāhmaṇā vā dukkhaṃ abhijānissanti, … paṭipadaṃ abhijānissantī ti. Yā tattha paññā … sammādiṭṭhi—idaṃ vuccati anvaye ñāṇaṃ. Tattha katamaṃ pariye ñāṇaṃ? Idha bhikkhu parasattānaṃ parapuggalānaṃ cetasā ceto paricca pajānāti. Sarāgaṃ vā cittaṃ sarāgaṃ citan-ti pajānāti, … avimuttaṃ cittanti pajānātī ti. Yā tattha … sammādiṭṭhi—idaṃ vuccati pariye ñāṇaṃ. Ṭhapetvā dhamme ñāṇaṃ anvaye

And again there are four kinds of wisdom, namely, wisdom which is for accumulation and not for disaccumulation; wisdom which is for disaccumulation; and not for accumulation; wisdom which is for accumulation and also for disaccumulation; and wisdom which is neither for accumulation nor for disaccumulation.

Herein, wisdom regarding the wholesome in the sensuous realm is for accumulation and not for disaccumulation. Wisdom regarding the Four Paths is for disaccumulation and not for accumulation. Wisdom regarding the wholesome in the material realm and the immaterial realm is for accumulation and also for disaccumulation. Wisdom regarding the result in the four planes and the functional-indeterminate in the three planes is neither for accumulation nor for disaccumulation.[1295] 445b10

And again, there are four kinds of wisdom, namely, wisdom which is for disenchantment (nibbidā) but not for penetration (paṭivedha). There is wisdom which is for penetration but not for disenchantment. There is wisdom which is for disenchantment and also for penetration. There is wisdom which is neither for disenchantment nor for penetration.

Herein, the wisdom whereby one is passionlessness towards sense-pleasures, but does not penetrate the direct knowledges and the Four Truths—this is called "wisdom which is for disenchantment but not for penetration."

The wisdom whereby one is passionless towards sense-pleasures and penetrates the direct knowledges, but does not penetrate the four Truths—this is wisdom which is for penetration but not for disenchantment.

The wisdom in the Four Paths is for disenchantment and also for penetration.

The remaining wisdoms are neither for disenchantment nor for penetration.[1296] 445b17

And again, there are four kinds of wisdom, namely, discrimination of meaning, discrimination of the Dhamma, discrimination of language and discrimination of perspicuity.

Knowledge in regard to meaning—this is called "discrimination of meaning." Knowledge in regard to Dhamma—this is called "discrimination of the Dhamma." Knowledge in regard to speech and language [of the Dhamma]—this is called "discrimination of language." Knowledge in regard to the knowledges—this is called "discrimination of perspicuity.[1297] ñāṇaṃ pariye ñāṇaṃ, avasesā paññā sammutiñāṇaṃ. D-a 1019: Dhamme ñāṇan-ti ekapaṭivedhavasena catusaccadhamme ñāṇaṃ catusaccabbhantare nirodhasacce dhamme ñāṇañca. … Anvaye ñāṇan-ti cattāri saccāni paccakkhato disvā yathā idāni, evaṃ atīte pi anāgatepi imeva pañcakkhandhā dukkhasaccaṃ, … ayameva maggo maggasaccanti evaṃ tassa ñāṇassa anugatiyaṃ ñāṇaṃ. … Pariye ñāṇan-ti paresaṃ cittapariccheda ñāṇaṃ. … Moh 269 (Be): … Maggānubhāvanibbattaṃ pana atītānāgatesu saccapaṭivedhanayasaṅgahaṇavasena pavattaṃ paccavekkhaṇañāṇaṃ anvaye ñāṇaṃ nāma. Tassa ca yehi nayehi ariyā atītamaddhānaṃ catusaccadhammaṃ jāniṃsu, tepi imaññeva catusaccaṃ evameva jāniṃsu, anāgatamaddhānampi jānissantīti evaṃ jānanavasena pavatti ākāro veditabbo. Sarāgādivasena paracittapariccheda ñāṇaṃ pariye ñāṇaṃ nāma. Dhammanvayapariyañāṇāni pana ṭhapetvā sabbalokiyapaññāñāṇanti sammatattā sammutimhi ñāṇanti sammutiñāṇaṃ nāma.

[1295] Vibh 310 Ācayagāminī paññā, apacayagāminī paññā, nevācayagāmināpacayagāminī paññā. Vibh 330: Tattha katamā paññā ācayāya no apacayāya? Kāmāvacarakusale paññā ācayāya no apacayāya. Catūsu maggesu paññā apacayāya no ācayāya. Rūpāvacara-arūpāvacarakusale paññā ācayāya ceva apacayāya ca. Avasesā paññā neva ācayāya no apacayāya. Cf. Vibh 326: Catūsu bhūmīsu vipāke tīsu bhūmīsu kiriyābyākate paññā nevācayagāmināpacayagāminī paññā. See last two footnotes to the last kind of threes in wisdom @@ above.

There is some confusion in the Tibetan because the translator inadvertedly inverted the meanings of ācaya and apacaya, ācaya is here 'grib pa (which, normally, e.g., at 246a = apacaya) and apacaya here is nye bar 'phel or 'phel ba (normally ācaya).

Moh 399 Be, § 797. Kāmāvacarakusale paññā ti ayañhi ekantena vaṭṭasmiṃ cutipaṭisandhiṃ ācinateva, tasmā ācayāya no apacayāya ti vuttā. Lokuttaramaggapaññā pana yasmā cutipaṭisandhiṃ apacinateva, tasmā apacayāya no ācayāyā ti vuttā. Rūpāvacarārūpāvacarapaññā cutipaṭisandhimpi ācinati, vikkhambhanavasena kilese ceva kilesamūlake ca dhamme apacinati, tasmā ācayāya ceva apacayāya cā ti vuttā. Sesā neva cutipaṭisandhiṃ ācinati na apacinati, tasmā neva ācayāya no apacayāya ti vuttā.

[1296] Vibh 330: Tattha katamā paññā nibbidāya no paṭivedhāya? Yāya paññāya kāmesu vītarāgo hoti, na ca abhiññāyo paṭivijjhati na ca saccāni: ayaṃ vuccati paññā nibbidāya no paṭivedhāya. Sveva paññāya kāmesu vītarāgo samāno abhiññāyo paṭivijjhati, na ca saccāni: ayaṃ vuccati paññā paṭivedhāya no nibbidāya. Catūsu maggesu paññā nibbidāya ceva paṭivedhāya ca. Avasesā paññā neva nibbidāya no paṭivedhāya.

[1297] Vibh 293, 331: Atthapaṭisambhidā, dhammapaṭisambhidā niruttipaṭisambhidā paṭibhānapaṭisambhidā. Atthe ñāṇaṃ atthapaṭisambhidā dhamme ñāṇaṃ dhammapaṭisambhidā. Tatra dhammaniruttābhilāpe ñāṇaṃ niruttipaṭisambhidā. Ñāṇesu ñāṇaṃ paṭibhāṇapaṭisambhidā. Imā catasso paṭisambhidā. A-a I 119 (cf. Paṭis I 119): Tattha atthesu ñāṇaṃ atthapaṭisambhidā, dhammesu ñāṇaṃ dhammapaṭisambhidā, atthadhammaniruttābhilāpe ñāṇaṃ niruttipaṭisambhidā, ñāṇesu ñāṇaṃ paṭibhānapaṭisambhidā. Paṭis-a I 3, Vibh-a 385, Ud-a 136: Atthappabhedassa sallakkhaṇavibhāvanavavatthānakaraṇasamatthaṃ atthe pabhedagataṃ ñāṇaṃ atthapaṭisambhidā. … dhamme

And again, knowledge in regard to cause and consequence (hetu-phala)—this is called "discrimination of meaning." Knowledge in regard to cause—this is called "discrimination of the Dhamma. Knowledge in regard to the speech and language of the Dhamma is discrimination of language. Knowledge in regard to the knowledges—this is called "discrimination of perspicuity."[1298] 445b21

And again, the knowledge of suffering and cessation—this is called "discrimination of meaning." The knowledge of origination and the Path—this is called "discrimination of the Dhamma." Knowledge in regard to the speech and language of the Dhamma—this is called "discrimination of language." Knowledge in regard to the knowledges—this is called "discrimination of perspicuity."[1299]

And again, when one knows the Dhamma, namely, what is called "discourses (sutta, transliteration), recitations (geyya), expositions (veyyākaraṇa), verses (gāthā), inspired utterances (udāna), sayings (itivuttaka), birth-stories (jātaka), marvels (abbhūtadhamma), extensive dialogues (vepulla/vedalla)"—this is called "discrimination of the Dhamma."

When one knows the meaning of what is spoken: "This is the meaning of what is spoken"—this is called "discrimination of meaning."

Knowledge in regard to the speech and language of the Dhamma—this is called "discrimination of language."

Knowledge in regard to the knowledges is called "discrimination of perspicuity."[1300]

And again, eye-knowledge—this is called "discrimination of the Dhamma." Eye-knowledge in the sense of vision (dassana)—this is called "discrimination of meaning."[1301] Knowledge in regard to the speech and language of the Dhamma—this is called "discrimination of language." Knowledge in regard to the knowledges—this is called "discrimination of perspicuity." [445c]

And again, there are four kinds of wisdom, namely, knowledge of suffering, knowledge of the origination of suffering, knowledge of the cessation of suffering and, herein, knowledge of one who possesses the Path.

Knowledge concerning (ārabbha) suffering is knowledge of suffering. Knowledge concerning the origination of suffering is knowledge of the origination of suffering. [Knowledge concerning the cessation of suffering is knowledge of the cessation of suffering.][1302] Knowledge concerning the practice leading to the cessation of suffering, of one who is endowed with knowledge,[1303] is Path-knowledge.[1304] pabhedagataṃ ñāṇaṃ dhammapaṭisambhidā. … niruttābhilāpe pabhedagataṃ ñāṇaṃ niruttipaṭisambhidā. … paṭibhāne pabhedagataṃ ñāṇaṃ paṭibhānapaṭisambhidā.

---

[1298] Vibh 293: Hetumhi ñāṇaṃ dhammapaṭisambhidā, hetuphale ñāṇaṃ atthapaṭisambhidā, tatra dhammaniruttābhilāpe ñāṇaṃ niruttipaṭisambhidā, ñāṇesu ñāṇaṃ paṭibhānapaṭisambhidā.

Paṭis I 36: Tatthāpi paccayuppanno attho dukkhasaccaṃ viya pākaṭo suviññeyyo cāti paṭhamaṃ atthapaṭisambhidāñāṇaṃ uddiṭṭhaṃ, tassa atthassa hetudhammavisayattā tadanantaraṃ dhammapaṭisambhidāñāṇaṃ, tadubhayassa niruttivisayattā tadanantaraṃ niruttipaṭisambhidāñāṇaṃ, tesu tīsupi ñāṇesu pavattanato tadanantaraṃ paṭibhānapaṭisambhidāñāṇaṃ. Cf. Nidd I 234: Idhekaccassa adhigatā honti cattāro satipaṭṭhānā … ariyo aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo cattāro ariyamaggā cattāri sāmaññaphalāni catasso paṭisambhidāyo cha abhiññāyo, tassa attho ñāto dhammo ñāto nirutti ñātā, atthe ñāte attho paṭibhāyati, dhamme ñāte dhammo paṭibhāyati, niruttiyā ñātāya nirutti paṭibhāyati; imesu tīsu ñāṇesu ñāṇaṃ paṭibhānapaṭisambhidā.

[1299] Vibh 293: Dukkhe ñāṇaṃ atthapaṭisambhidā. Dukkhasamudaye ñāṇaṃ dhammapaṭisambhidā. Dukkha-nirodhe ñāṇaṃ atthapaṭisambhidā. Dukkhanirodhagāminiyā paṭipadāya ñāṇaṃ dhammapaṭisambhidā. …

[1300] Vibh 294: Idha bhikkhu dhammaṃ jānāti suttaṃ geyyaṃ veyyākaraṇaṃ gāthaṃ udānaṃ itivuttakaṃ jātakaṃ abbhutadhammaṃ vedallaṃ: ayaṃ vuccati dhammapaṭisambhidā. So tassa tass' eva bhāsitassa atthaṃ jānāti: ayaṃ imassa bhāsitassa attho, ayaṃ imassa bhāsitassa attho ti: ayaṃ vuccati atthapaṭisambhidā.. …

[1301] Cf. Paṭis II 149ff.: Cakkhuṃ dhammo, ñāṇaṃ dhammo, paññā dhammo, vijjā dhammo, āloko dhammo. Ime pañca dhammā dhammapaṭisambhidāya ārammaṇā ceva honti gocarā ca. Ye tassā ārammaṇā te tassā gocarā. Ye tassā gocarā te tassā ārammaṇā. Tena vuccati dhammesu ñāṇaṃ dhammapaṭisambhidā. Paṭis II 150: Cakkhuṃ udapādīti dassanaṭṭhena. Vibh 296: Yasmiṃ samaye akusalaṃ cittaṃ uppannaṃ hoti somanassasahagataṃ diṭṭhigata-sampayuttaṃ, rūpārammaṇaṃ vā … dhammārammaṇaṃ vā yaṃ yaṃ vā panārabbha, tasmiṃ samaye phasso hoti … avikkhepo hoti: ime dhammā akusalā. Imesu dhammesu ñāṇaṃ dhammapaṭisambhidā. Tesaṃ vipāke ñāṇaṃ atthapaṭisambhidā. Yāya niruttiyā tesaṃ dhammānaṃ paññatti hoti, tatra dhammaniruttābhilāpe ñāṇaṃ niruttipaṭisambhidā. Yena ñāṇena tāni ñāṇāni jānāti: imāni ñāṇāni idam atthajotakānīti, ñāṇesu ñāṇaṃ paṭibhāṇapaṭisambhidā.

[1302] The explanation of this knowledge, which is mentioned in the introductory sentence, is missing from the Chinese text.

[1303] The characters 具足 can correspond to samannāgata and sampanna, "being possessed of" or to sampatti or paripūra, "completion."

[1304] D III 227: Dukkhe ñāṇaṃ, samudaye ñāṇaṃ, nirodhe ñāṇaṃ, magge ñāṇaṃ. Vibh 328: Maggasamaṅgissa ñāṇaṃ

The chapter on the Treatise on wisdom is finished.

dukkhepetaṃ ñāṇaṃ, dukkhasamudayepetaṃ ñāṇaṃ, dukkhanirodhepetaṃ ñāṇaṃ, dukkhanirodhagāminiyā paṭipadāyapetaṃ ñāṇaṃ. Tattha katamaṃ dukkhe ñāṇaṃ? Dukkhaṃ ārabbha yā uppajjati paññā pajānanā … pe … amoho dhammavicayo sammādiṭṭhi idaṃ vuccati dukkhe ñāṇaṃ. Dukkhasamudayaṃ ārabbha … dukkhanirodhagāminiṃ paṭipadaṃ ārabbha yā … sammādiṭṭhi idaṃ vuccati dukkhanirodhagāminiyā paṭipadāya ñāṇaṃ.

Chapter 11: The Five Skills

445c12 Now, the beginner meditator who desires release from ageing and death, who desires to abandon the cause of saṃsāra, desires to abandon the darkness of ignorance, desires to cut the rope of craving and desires to acquire noble wisdom, should give rise to five skills (kosalla) in five sites,[1305] namely, the aggregate-skill, sense-base skill, element-skill, dependent-arising-skill and the Noble-Truths-skill.[1306]

Aggregate-skill

Q. What is the aggregate-skill?

A. The five aggregates are: the aggregate of matter (rūpa); the aggregate of feeling (vedanā); the aggregate of perception (saññā); the aggregate of formations (saṅkhārā); and the aggregate of consciousness (viññāṇa).

Aggregate of Matter

Q. What is the aggregate of matter?

A. The four great entities and the matter derived from the great entities.[1307]

Four great entities

Q. What are the four great entities?

A. Earth-element, water-element, fire-element, wind-element.[1308]

Q. What is the earth-element?

A. [Earth has] the intrinsic nature of hardness and the characteristic of hardness. This is the meaning of earth-element.

Q. What is the water-element? 445c18

A. Water moistens and coheres matter. This is called the water-element.

Q. What is the fire-element? Fire heats and matures matter. This is the meaning of fire-element.

Q. What is the wind-element?

A. Wind supports matter. This is the meaning of wind-element.[1309]

The beginner meditator overcomes the hindrances in two ways, namely, through defining [the elements] briefly and through defining at length, as was fully taught in the [section on] defining of the four great entities.

Derived matter

Q. What is matter derived from the four great entities?

A. (1–5) The sense-bases of eye, ear, nose, tongue, and body; (6–9) the sense-bases of form, sound, odour and taste; (10) the feminine faculty, (11) the masculine faculty, (12) the life faculty, (13) body

---

[1305] The Tibetan quotation (179a) has "skill with regards five sites (ṭhāna)." Cf. Skilling 1994, p. 176.

[1306] EKS rendered "method" and supplied the Pali word upāya, "skilful means." The characters used here, 方便, are elsewhere in the Vimuttimagga and in other Chinese works usually used for translation upāya. Dr. Peter Skilling (1994 p. 176 n. 1) pointed out that the Tibetan has mkhas pa which corresponds to the Pali kosalla/kusala and Skt kauśalya. While forms with kosalla/kusala are well attested in this context in other Pali and Sanskrit texts, e.g. D III 312 & M III 61, the use of upāya is not.

In the section on skill in developing the earth-kasiṇa, in chapter 8, 方便 also stands of kosalla. see fn. @@.

Cf. Nidd-a I 99: Khandhakusalā ti pañcasu khandhesu salakkhaṇasāmaññalakkhaṇesu chekā, ñātatīraṇapahānavasena kusalā ti attho. Nidd I 69: Kusalā ti ye te khandhakusalā dhātukusalā āyatanakusalā paṭiccasamuppādakusalā satipaṭṭhānakusalā sammappadhānakusalā iddhipādakusalā indriyakusalā balakusalā bojjhaṅgakusalā maggakusalā phalakusalā nibbānakusalā, ...

[1307] M I 185: Katamo cāvuso, rūpupādānakkhandho? Cattāri ca mahābhūtāni, catunnañca mahābhūtānaṃ upādāya rūpaṃ. Cf. S II 3, M I 52: ... upādāya rūpaṃ. Idaṃ vuccati rūpaṃ. Cf. Dhs 124, para. 584: ... vuccati sabbaṃ rūpaṃ.

[1308] The Tibetan text skips the next part of defining the elements and continues with the 20 derived matters.

[1309] Cf. Visṃ 351–2: Yo imasmiṃ kāye thaddhabhāvo vā, kharabhāvo vā ayaṃ paṭhavidhātu; yo ābandhanabhāvo vā, dravabhāvo vā ayaṃ āpodhātu; yo paripācanabhāvo vā uṇhabhāvo vā, ayaṃ tejodhātu; yo vitthambhanabhāvo vā samudīraṇabhāvo vā, ayaṃ vāyodhātū ti evaṃ saṅkhittena dhātuyo pariggahetvā punappunaṃ: paṭhavīdhātu āpodhātū ti dhātumattato nissattato nijjīvato āvajjitabbaṃ manasikātabbaṃ paccavekkhitabbaṃ.

intimation, (14) speech intimation, (15) the element of space, (16) lightness of matter, (17) softness of matter, (18) wieldabilty of matter, (19 accumulation of matter, (20) continuity of matter, (21) birth of matter (jātirūpa), (22) ageing of matter, (23) impermanence of matter, (24) solid food,[1310] (25) matter as basis (vatthurūpa)[1311] and (26) torpor of matter (middharūpa).[1312] 445c25

Sense-bases

Q. What is the sense-base of eye?

A. By this forms are seen. Dependent upon forms impinging on this, eye consciousness arises. [1313]

Again, the eye sensitivity (cakkhu-pasāda) which depends on the flesh demarcated as the three discs of white, iris, and pupil, and which resides inside the five layers of flesh, blood, wind, phlegm and serum;[1314] is half a mustard-seed in size, like the head of a louse; made by former kamma;[1315] is derived from the four great entities, [in which] the great entity of heat is most (adhika)[1316]—this sensitive matter is called "the sense-base of the eye." [446a]

As was taught by Venerable Sāriputta: "The eye sensitivity by which one sees forms, small or subtle,

---

[1310] Cf. Vism XIV.36–71/pp.444–450: Cakkhu, sotaṃ, ghānaṃ, jivhā, kāyo, rūpaṃ, saddo, gandho, raso, itthindriyaṃ purisindriyaṃ, jīvitindriyaṃ, hadayavatthu, kāyaviññatti, vacīviññatti, ākāsadhātu, rūpassa lahutā, rūpassa mudutā, rūpassa kammaññatā, rūpassa upacayo, rūpassa santati, rūpassa jaratā rūpassa aniccatā, kabaliṅkāro āhāro.

[1311] LC: "Vatthurūpa is a Mahāvihāravāsin term. It is in fact quite common, if a little less common than hadayavatthu which may have been introduced by Buddhaghosa. The Paṭṭhāna uses simply vatthu. It is possible that the use of middha(-rūpa) is evidence that the author of Vim was a follower of the Abhayagiri school, given that this is considered a view of that school in the ṭīkās. However, it is also possible that the position of the Mahāvihāra had not yet been determined at the time that Vim was written. There is quite a fine line between holding that middha like lahutā is a distinct form of rūpa and holding that middha is a modification of the four elements, etc. or the mere absence of lahutā, etc. Although jātirūpa is used in various sources (e.g. Abhidh-av 693) as a designation for upacaya and santati, it is used differently in Vim."

The Tibetan quotation is identical except that it adds the sense base of phoṭṭhabba, touches, which is left out both in the Chinese version and the Vism XIV.36. The Tibetan quotation skips over the next explanatory section and goes straight to the conclusion at 446a28–29, and then skips over the next few sentences to the five ways of analysing matter at 446b05.

[1312] a. Cf. Vism 450: Aṭṭhakathāyam pana balarūpaṃ … rogarūpaṃ, ekaccānaṃ matena middharūpan ti evaṃ aññāni pi rūpāni āharitvā: addhā munī 'si sambuddho, natthi nīvaraṇā tavā ti ādīni vatvā middharūpaṃ tāva natthi yevā ti paṭikkhittaṃ. (= Ekaccānan ti Abhayagirivāsīnaṃ—Vism-mhṭ, 455). b. Abhi-av 72: Tattha: samodhānan ti sabbam eva idaṃ rūpaṃ samodhānato paṭhavīdhātu āpodhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātu, cakkhāyatanaṃ … jaratā aniccatā ti aṭṭhavīsatividhaṃ hoti; ito aññaṃ rūpaṃ nāma natthi. Keci pana middhavādino middharūpaṃ nāma atthīti vadanti, te addhā munī 'si sambuddho, natthi nīvaraṇā tavā ti ca, thīna-middha-nīvaraṇaṃ nīvaraṇañ c' eva avijjānīvaraṇena nīvaraṇa-sampayuttan ti sampayutta-vacanato ca; mahāpakaraṇe Paṭṭhāne: nīvaraṇaṃ dhammaṃ paṭicca nīvaraṇo dhammo uppajjati na purejāta-paccayā ti ca; arūpe pi kāmacchando-nīvaraṇaṃ paṭicca thina-middha-uddhacca-kukkuccāvijjā-nivaraṇāni ti. Evaṃ ādhīhī virujjhanato arūpam eva middhan ti paṭikkhipitabbā.

Skilling (1994 p. 187–88) points out that the Mahāvihāra,Visuddhimagga tradition did not include jātirūpa, vatthurūpa, and middharūpa in their list of 24 types of derived matter Jātirūpa was included in the categories of growth and continuity of matter; the vatthurūpa is identical with the hadayavatthu in the corresponding list in the Visuddhimagga, while the middharūpa was unacceptable to the Mahāvihārins as shown by the references above.

Cf. Abidh-av v. 698. Arūpe pi pan' etassa, middhass' uppatti-pāṭhato / niṭṭham etth' āvagantabbaṃ, na tam rūpan ti viññunā.

[1313] M III 285: Cakkhuñ ca, bhikkhave, paṭicca rūpe ca uppajjati cakkhuviññāṇaṃ.

[1314] RB's rendering. EKS "three small fleshy discs round the pupil, and the white and black of the eye-ball that is in five layers of flesh, …" Cf. Vism XIV.47.

[1315] S IV 132: Cakkhuṃ … mano purāṇakammaṃ abhisaṅkhato abhisañcetayito vedaniyo daṭṭhabbo. S-a II 402: Cakkhu, bhikkhave, purāṇakamman-ti na cakkhu purāṇaṃ, kammameva purāṇaṃ, kammato pana nibbattattā paccayanāmena evaṃ vuttaṃ. Abhisaṅkhatan-ti paccayehi abhisamāgantvā kataṃ.

In the following sense organs the Chinese text does not have 所成, "accomplished" (bhūta, etc.) or "made of" (-maya) as here, but 所造, "made by/of, derived from" (kata, upādāya) which is the same as used with the four elements in this section.

[1316] Cf. Vism XIV.42, Dhs-a 312: Keci pana tejādhikānaṃ bhūtānaṃ pasādo cakkhu, vāyu-pathavī-āpādhikānaṃ bhūtānaṃ pasādā sotaghānajivhā, kāyo sabbesampī ti vadanti. Apare tejādhikānaṃ pasādo cakkhu, vivara-vāyu-āpa-pathavādhikānaṃ sotaghānajivhākāyā ti vadanti. Moh 82 (Be) reads: Apare tejādhikānaṃ bhūtānaṃ pasādo … Cf. Vism-mhṭ II 90 (Be): Tejādīnaṃ viya pana vivarassa bhūtabhāvābhāvato yathāyoga-ggahaṇaṃ. Atha vā rūpādayo viya vivarampi bhūtaguṇoti parādhippāye tejassa ālokarūpena, ākāsasaṅkhātassa vivarassa saddena, vāyussa gandhena, udakassa rasena, pathaviyā phoṭṭhabbenāti evaṃ yathāyogaṃ taṃtaṃbhūtaguṇehīti yojanā. Abhi-av 67: Keci panāhu: Tejādhikānaṃ bhūtānaṃ, pasādo pana cakkhu ti; / Ākāsānilatoyubbiadhikānaṃ tu sesakā.

is comparable to [the head of] a louse."[1317] 446a02

Q. What is the sense-base of ear?

A. By this sounds are heard. Dependent upon sounds impinging on this, ear consciousness arises. This is called "the sense-base of ear."

Again, the sensitive matter that is inside the two ear-holes, is fringed by tawny hair, it resides dependent on the membrane, is [coiling] like the stalk of a runner bean [plant], made by former kamma, is derived from the four great entities, [in which] the element of space is most—this is called "the sense-base of ear."[1318]

Q. What is the sense-base of nose?

A. By this odours are sensed. Dependent upon odours impinging on this, nose consciousness arises. This is called "the sense-base of nose."

Again, the sensitive matter that, in the centre of the nasal passages, where the three [passages] meet,[1319] resides dependent on a small aperture, is like a Koviḷāra[1320] (flower) in shape, made by former kamma, is derived from the four great entities, [in which] the great entity of wind is most—this is called "the sense-base of nose." 446a09

Q. What is the sense-base of tongue?

A. By this tastes are known. Dependent upon tastes impinging on this, nose consciousness arises. This is called "the sense-base of tongue."

Again, the sensory matter that resides in the flesh on top of the tongue, is two fingers in size, is shaped like a blue lotus flower,[1321] made by former kamma, is derived from the four great entities [in which] the primary of water is most—this is called "the sense-base of tongue."

Q. What is the sense-base of body?

A. By this tangibles are sensed. Dependent upon the impinging of tangibles on this, body consciousness arises. This is called the "sense-base of body."

Again, it is the sensitive matter that is in the entire feeling body, excepting body hair, head hair, nails, teeth and other parts without feeling, made by former kamma, is derived from the four great entities [in which] the primary of earth is most—this is called "the sense-base of body." 446a16

Remainder of derived matters

The impingement of form [on the eye]—this is called "sense-base of form." The impingement of sound—this is called "sense-base of sounds." The impingement of smell—this is called "sense-base of smell." The impingement of taste—this is called "sense-base of taste."

The state (bhāva) of femininity is the "feminine faculty." The state of masculinity is the "masculine faculty."

That which maintains the matter brought about by kamma—this is called "life-faculty."

That which by means of the body causes the manifestation of all activities reckoned as activity—this is called "body intimation."

That which by means of speech causes the manifestation of all activities reckoned as activity—this is called "speech intimation." 446a20

That which delimits matter is called "the element of space."

The state of lightness of matter—this is called "lightness of matter."

The state of softness of matter—this is called "softness of matter."

The state of wieldability of matter—this is called "wieldability of matter." These three are the states of non-torpor in the body.

[1317] EKS: "The organ of visual sense …" Vism 446; Abhi-av 66; Dhs-a 307: Vuttam pi c' etaṃ Dhammasenāpatinā: Yena cakkhuppasādena rūpāni samanupassati, parittaṃ sukhumaṃ c' etaṃ ūkāsirasamūpaman ti. The common source of this verse has not been traced. The Chinese text transliterates "louse," ūkā, here as yǒu-kē, 牖柯. Above (445c29), the Chinese text has 蟣子頭, literally "louse-nit-head."

[1318] Cf. Abhi-av 66: Suṇātī ti sotaṃ; taṃ tanu-tamba-lomācite aṅguliveṭhaka-saṇṭhāne padese vuttappakārāhi dhātūhi kat' ūpakāraṃ utu-citt' āhārehi upatthambhiyamānaṃ āyunā paripāliyamānaṃ, sotaviññāṇādīnaṃ, vatthu-dvāra-bhāvaṃ sādhayamānaṃ tiṭṭhati.

[1319] Cf. Ibid: Ghāyatī ti ghāṇaṃ, taṃ sasambhāra-ghāṇabilassa anto ajapada-saṇṭhāne padese yathāvuttappakāraṃ hutvā tiṭṭhati.

[1320] Bauhinia variegata.

[1321] Transliteration of Uppala. Cf. Abhi-av 66: Sāyatīti jivhā; jīvitam avhāyatīti vā jivhā; sā sasambhāra-jivhāmajjhassa upari uppala-dalagga-saṇṭhāne padese yathāvuttapparkārā hutvā tiṭṭhati.

That which the sense-bases accumulate—this is called "accumulation of matter."
This accumulation of matter is called the "continuity of matter."
That which causes the arising (uppāda) of matter is called "birth of matter."
That which causes the maturing of matter is the "ageing of matter."
The disintegration of matter—this is called "impermanence of matter."
The nutritive essence (ojā) which sustains beings[1322]—this is called "solid food."
On matter depend [mind] element and the arising of the mind consciousness element—this is called "matter as basis" (vatthurūpa).[1323]
The torpor of the elements—this is called torpor of matter.
These twenty-six derived matters and the [four] great entities make up thirty [kinds of] matter (rūpa).[1324] [446b]

Difference between the four great entities and derived matter

Q. What is the difference between the four great entities and the matter that is derived from the four great entities?

A. The four great entities are born together (sahajāta) dependent on (nissāya) the four great entities. Matter that is derived from the four great entities arises dependent on the four great entities. Matter that is derived from the four great entities is not dependent on the four great entities and also not dependent on matter that is derived from the four great entities .

答四大依四大共生。四大所造色 46b02‖依四大生。四大所造色非四大所依。亦非四 446b03‖大所造色所依。

The four great entities should be understood to be like three sticks [which stand] dependent on [each other].[1325] The matter that is derived from the four great entities should be understood as the shadow of the three sticks depending on each other.

This is the difference. 446b05

Matter to be known in five ways

Thereupon, the meditator should know these thirty [derived] matters at length in five ways: by way of producing, group, birth, diversity, unity.

By way of producing

Q. How by way of producing (samuṭṭhāna)?[1326]

A. Nine matters are produced through the condition[1327] of kamma, namely, the sense-bases of eye, ear, nose, tongue and body, the feminine faculty, masculine faculty, life faculty , and the material basis (vatthurūpa).

Two [kinds of] matter are produced by the condition of mind (citta), namely, body-intimation and speech-intimation.

One [kind of] matter are produced by the condition of season (utu) and mind, namely, the sense-base of sounds.

Four [kinds of] matter are produced by the condition of season, mind and nutriment, namely, lightness of matter, softness of matter, wieldabilty of matter and torpor of matter.

Twelve [kinds of] matter are produced by (all) the four conditions,[1328] namely, the sense-bases of form, smell and taste, the space-element, accumulation of matter, continuity of matter, birth of matter,

---

[1322] Cf. Vism XIV.70/p.450: Ojālakkhaṇo kabaḷīkāro āhāro, rūpāharaṇaraso … Yāya ojāya sattā yāpenti, tassā etaṃ adhivacanaṃ. D III 211, A V 51, Khp 2: Sabbe sattā āhāraṭṭhitikā.

[1323] Vism XIV.60/p.447: Manodhātumanoviññāṇadhātūnaṃ nissayalakkhaṇaṃ hadayavatthu, tāsaññeva dhātūnaṃ ādhāraṇarasaṃ, … manodhātumanoviññāṇadhātūnañceva taṃsampayuttadhammānañca vatthubhāvaṃ sādhayamānaṃ tiṭṭhati.

[1324] According the Mahāvihāra tradition there are twenty-eight only, see Abhi-av 71, v. 695: Bhūtā rūpāni cattāri, upādā catuvīsati, aṭṭhavīsati rūpāni, sabbān' eva bhavanti hi.

[1325] Cf. Vism XVIII 78/p.535, Yam-a 107: Aññamaññaṃ uppādanupatthambhanabhāvena upakārako dhammo aññam-aññapaccayo aññamaññūpatthambhakaṃ tidaṇḍakaṃ viya. Cf. Abhidharmakoṣa I.51d.

[1326] Cf. Abhidh-av 72–73, Samuṭṭhānanti cattāri rūpasamuṭṭhānāni utucittāhārakammānīti. Kammaṃ utu ca cittañca, āhāro rūpahetuyo; / Eteheva ca rūpāni, jāyanti na panaññato. …

[1327] Cf. Abhidh-av-pṭ 58 (Be): Catusamuṭṭhito kammacittautuāhārasaṅkhātehi catūhi paccayehi samuṭṭhito nibbatto…

[1328] The four conditions are the above mentioned kamma, season, mind and nutriment. Cf. the section on contemplating the four element by way of conditions at 439c.

solid food and the four elements.

Two [kinds of] matter are not produced, namely, ageing of matter and impermanence of matter.

However, with birth as condition, there is ageing; and with ageing as condition, there is impermanence.[1329]

Thus it should be understood at length by way of producing.

By way of groups

Q. How by way of groups (kalāpa)? 446b15

A. Nine groups are produced by kamma. Nine groups are produced by mind. Six groups are produced by season. Three groups are produced by nutriment.[1330]

Q. What are the nine groups that are produced by kamma?

A. They are the eye-decad, ear-decad, nose-decad, tongue-decad, body-decad, feminine-faculty-decad, masculine-faculty-decad, basis-decad, life-faculty-ennead.[1331]

Q. What is the "eye-decad"?

A. Eye-sensitivity (cakkhu-pasāda) with as its basis (vatthu) the four great entities.[1332]

Also it is the forms, smells, tastes, tangibles,[1333] life-faculty and eye-sensitivity dependent on the four great entities.[1334] These ten states occur together (sahavutti, anuvutti) and are inseparable (avinibbhoga)

[1329] The Tibetan and Chinese translations correspond in this "by way of producing" section.

[1330] The Tibetan text omits this sentence and starts: "Groups: nine groups are kamma-produced: eye-decad …"

[1331] Abhidh-s VI § 46: Tattha jīvitaṃ avinibbhogarūpañ ca cakkhunā saha cakkhudasakan ti pavuccati. Tathā sotādīhi saddhiṃ sotadasakaṃ ghānadasakaṃ jivhādasakaṃ kāyadasakaṃ itthibhāvadasakaṃ pumbhāvadasakaṃ vatthudasakañ ceti yathākkamaṃ yojetabbaṃ. Avinibbhogarūpam eva jīvitena saha jīvitanavakan ti pavuccati. Ime nava kammasamuṭṭhānakalāpā.

[1332] Cf. Dhs-a 316: Tattha cakkhupasādassa paccayāni cattāri mahābhūtāni, vaṇṇo gandho raso ojā, jīvitindriyaṃ cakkhupasādo ti idaṃ ekantato avinibhuttānaṃ dasannaṃ nipphannarūpānaṃ vasena cakkhudasakaṃ nāma. Vism XVII.156/553: Tattha vaṇṇo gandho raso ojā catasso cā pi dhātuyo cakkhupasādo jīvitan-ti ayaṃ dasarūpaparimāṇo rūpapuñjo cakkhudasako nāma. Vibh 70/§ 156: Tattha katamaṃ cakkhāyatanaṃ? Yaṃ cakkhu catunnaṃ mahābhūtānaṃ upādāya pasādo attabhāvapariyāpanno anidassano sappaṭigho… Paṭis-a I 246: Oḷārikan-ti cakkhusotaghānajivhākāyarūpa-saddagandharasaṃ phoṭṭhabbasaṅkhātā pathavītejovāyo cā ti dvādasavidhaṃ rūpaṃ ghaṭṭanavasena gahetabbato oḷārikaṃ. Sesaṃ pana āpodhātu itthindriyaṃ purisindriyaṃ jīvitindriyaṃ hadayavatthu ojā ākāsadhātu kāyaviññatti vacīviññatti rūpassa lahutā mudutā kammaññatā upacayo santati jaratā aniccatāti soḷasavidhaṃ rūpaṃ ghaṭṭanavasena agahetabbato sukhumaṃ.

[1333] The Chinese translation has 觸, corresponding to phoṭṭhabbā, "tangibles," which can't be correct because the sense-base of tangible is not given in the above list of derived matters and their explanations. The Tibetan quotation has gzi-brjid, which normally corresponds to teja, but here to ojā, see Skilling, 1994, p. 184, n. 1. Vism and Dhs-a (see preceding fn) have ojā here. The Chinese characters for ojā, as used above at 446a26 are 氣味. Perhaps a corruption occurred during transmission of the text because 味, "tastes," precedes 觸 in this list, i.e. 味觸. The original would have had 味氣味, which could have been misunderstood and "corrected" during the translation's transmission. Because in the "by way groups" section under the contemplation of the elements at 439b20 there is also ojā instead of phoṭṭhabba, it seems likely that the Chinese translator or a copyist held the view that tangibles are derived matter. Probably, not knowing the Theravada Abhidhamma viewpoint, he assumed that there had to be phoṭṭhabba here and that ojā was a corruption. The Sārvāstivādins held that, although the other sense-bases are derived matter, the sense base of tangibles is sometimes primary matter (because the characteristic of tangible solidity of the earth-element, etc) and sometimes secondary/derived matter; see Abhidharmakoṣa I.10d, 23b, 35a–b; II.22a–c. The Vaibhāsikas held that tangibles are only derived matter (see ibid II.22c). See Karunadasa, 1967, pp. 32–33, 154–55

The Theravādins held that tangibles are primary matter consisting of the earth, fire and wind-elements, but not the water-element because of its intangibility, see Dhs 144, § 646: Katamaṃ taṃ rūpaṃ no upādā? Phoṭṭhabbāyatanaṃ, āpodhātu. § 647: Katamaṃ taṃ rūpaṃ phoṭṭhabbāyatanaṃ? Pathavīdhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātu kakkhaḷaṃ mudukaṃ saṇhaṃ pharusaṃ sukhasamphassaṃ dukkhasamphassaṃ garukaṃ lahukaṃ, yaṃ phoṭṭhabbaṃ anidassanaṃ sappaṭighaṃ kāyena anidassanena sappaṭighena phusi vā phusati vā phusissati vā phuse vā phoṭṭhabbo peso phoṭṭhabbāyatanaṃ petaṃ phoṭṭhabbadhātu pesā – idaṃ taṃ rūpaṃ phoṭṭhabbāyatanaṃ. Cf Vism-mhṭ II 108 (Be): Kimidaṃ phoṭṭhabbaṃ nāmā ti? Pathavītejovāyodhātuttayaṃ. Kasmā panettha āpodhātu aggahitā, nanu sītatā phusitvā gayhati, sā ca āpodhātu ti? Saccaṃ gayhati, na pana sā āpodhātu. Kiñcarahī ti? Tejodhātu eva. …

In the definition of the sense-base of tangibles below (@Sense-base skill first section@) all the four elements are given.

[1334] Ssv 179b: "Herein, the eye-decad is eye-sensitivity, with as base the four great entities, colours, scents, tastes, brilliance (=nutritive essence), the life faculty and eye-sensitivity." zhes pa ni rab tu dang ba'i mig gi dngos por gyur pa'i 'byung ba chen po bzhi dang kha dog dang dri dang ro dang gzi brjid dang srog gi dbang po dang mig gi rab tu dang ba'o.

from each other. These are called "group." This is called "eye-decad."[1335]

Their arising is birth; their decay is called ageing; their disintegration is impermanence; what delimits them is the space-element.[1336] These four states (dhamma) and that group occur together. 446b22

This eye-decad gives birth to a second eye-decad, dependent upon [the first in its] ageing phase,; the accrual (ācaya) of these two kinds of decads is called "accumulation" (upacaya), Their being sequentially bound together (anupabandhana) is called "continuity."[1337] These six states [and] that [group] occur together .[1338]

Again, the second eye-decad, dependent upon [the first in its] ageing phase, gives birth to a third decad. These second and third eye-decads are called "groups." The being sequentially bound together of these states is called "continuity."

The disintegration of the first decad, the decay of the second decad, and the arising of the third decad occur in a single moment (eka-khaṇa). The interval between the thus arisen eye-decads cannot be known; because the moment is so quick, in this life (diṭṭhadhamma) it cannot be known.[1339] [446c] There are meditators who see the eye continuity like a flowing stream, like the flame of a lamp.[1340]

This is called the "eye-decad."

In the same way the ear-decad, the nose-decad, the tongue-decad, the body-decad, femine-faculty-decad, masculine-faculty-decad, basis-decad,[1341] and the life-faculty-ennead should be understood at [1335] Ssv 179b: "Because these ten dhammas are conditions/states (ṭhāna) of inseparable conglomeration (piṇḍa), they are called the "eye-decad." (Cf. Skilling, 1994, p. 183.) chos bcu po 'di rnams gnas rnam pa tha dad med pa'i gong bu yin pas mig bcu zhes brjod do mig bcu ni.

---

There is some variation in the Chinese text for the characters for "occur together." In 446b20, c07, 共生, in b22, b24, c10 共起 are used, both meaning "arising together," saha-jāta, saha-vattana, which might correspond to sahavutti of Abhidh-s (see below), while in c09, 隨起, "arising sequentially" is used. The Tibetan parallel of 446b20–24, has only rjes su 'jug par byed pa, corresponding to anu-vattana, anuvattati; rjes su = anu, not saha.

Cf. Abhidh-s 42 (Be), §45: Ekuppādā ekanirodhā ekanissayā sahavuttino ekavīsati rūpakalāpā nāma. Abhidh-s 211 Sahavuttino ti visuṃ visuṃ kalāpagatarūpavasena sahavuttino, na sabbakalāpānaṃ aññamaññaṃ sahuppattivasena.

[1336] Vism-mhṭ II 100 (Be): Ayaṃ hi ākāsadhātu taṃ taṃ rūpakalāpaṃ paricchindantī viya hoti. Tenāha rūpapariyantappakāsanarasā ti.

[1337] Abhidh-av 71: Pavattilakkhaṇā rūpassa santati, anuppabandhanarasā, anupacchedapaccupaṭṭhānā, anuppabandharūpapadaṭṭhānā. Vism-mhṭ II 102: … Tattha yo āyatanānanti yo aḍḍhekādasannaṃ rūpāyatanānaṃ ādicayattā ācayo ti vutto. So eva upacayo paṭhamuppādabhāvato upa-saddo paṭhamatthoti katvā. Yo pana tattheva uppajjamānānaṃ upari cayattā upacayo, sā eva santati anupabandhavasena uppattibhāvato. Atha vā yo āyatanānaṃ ācayo paṭhamabhāvena upalakkhito uppādo, so pana tattheva uppajjamānānaṃ upari cayattā upacayo, vaḍḍhīti attho. Upacayo vaḍḍhibhāvena upalakkhito uppādo, sā eva santati pabandhākārena uppattibhāvato.

[1338] Ssv 180a: "The eye-decad: arising is called 'birth'. Decay is called 'ageing.' Disintegration is called 'impermanence.' Delimitation is called 'space-element'. These four states are a group occuring sequentially (anuvattana?). (chos bzhi po 'di rnams ni tshogs pa de'i rjes su 'jug par byed pa yin no). Again, at the time of aging of the eye-decad itself, depending on that eye-decad, a second eye-decad arises. The accumulating of these two eye-decads is called accumulation. Their being sequentially bound together is called continuity. The arising of the previous four at the beginning and these two: these six states are proceeding sequentially. Again, at the time of ageing of the second eye-decad, depending on that second eye-decad, the third eye-decad arises. The assembling of the second and third is called accumulation. Their being sequentially bound together is called continuity. The disintegration of the previous decad and the ageing of the second and the arising of the third occur at once. The interval or space between the thus occurring eye-decads cannot be known because of the quickness of the moment. It is seen like the radiance of a lamp. This is called eye-decad." yang mig bcu de nyid kyi rga ba'i dus su mig bcu de la brten nas mig bcu gnyis pa skye'o mig bcu de gnyis kyi 'dus pa de ni 'phel pa zhes brjod do gang de rnams kyi rjes su 'brel pa de ni rgyud ces brjod do sngar gyi skye ba la sogs pa bzhi dang gnyis po 'di dag ste chos drug po 'di dag ni de rnams kyi rjes su 'jug byed yin no yang mig bcu gnyis pa'i rga ba'i dus su mig bcu gnyis pa de la brten nas mig bcu ldan gsum pa skye'o gang gnyis pa'am gsum pa 'dus pa de ni 'phel ba zhes brjod do gang de nyid kyi rjes su 'brel pa de ni rgyud ces brjod do bcu ldan sngon ma'i 'jig pa dang gnyis pa'i rga ba dang gsum pa'i skye ba rnams dus gcig du 'jug pa'o de ltar 'jug pa'i mig bcu ldan rnams la ni bar gcod dam go skabs mi shes te skad cig ni myur ba nyid kyi phyir ro sgron me'i 'od bzhin du mthong ba'o 'di ni mig bcu ldan zhes brjod do

[1339] 不現世間知, or "in the present world/life the interval can't be known."

[1340] Abhidh-s VI 10: Catu-samuṭṭhāna-rupā-kalāpa-santati kāmaloke dīpa-jālā viya nadī soto viya.

[1341] The vatthudasaka is not found the Chinese text here, but is listed above at 448b18, and it is found here in the Ssv as dngos po bcu ldan.

After this sentence the Tibetan skips over the rest of this method and resumes at 446c23.

length.[1342]

Q. What are the nine groups produced by mind (citta)?

A. Bare-octad, bare-body-intimation-ennead, bare-speech-intimation-decad, bare-lightness-ennead, lightness-body-intimation-decad, lightness-speech-intimation-undecad, bare-torpor[1343]-ennead, torpor-body-intimation-decad, torpor-speech-intimation-undecad.[1344] 446c05

Q. What is the bare-mind-born-octad?

A. The four elements and the forms, smells, tastes and tangibles dependent on the elements. These eight states occur together and are inseparable. These eight are called the "bare-octad."

The arising of these is birth; the decay of these is ageing; their disintegration is impermanence; what delimits them is the space-element. These four states and that [group] occur sequentially.

At the time of disintegration of that [first] bare octad, a second mind occurs together with a second bare octad.

The disintegration of the first bare [-octad] and the arising of the second bare [-octad] occur in a single moment.[1345] These are not mutual (= aññamañña) as a group. Through the three occurring together, they become a group.[1346] In the same way, the bare-lightness-ennead and the bare-torpor-ennead (should be understood). The six intimation groups[1347] do not disintegrate first and do not arise second, do not occur in one moment. Why? One mind does not produce two intimations. 446c14

The rest should be understood in the way it was fully taught before.

Q. What are the six groups produced by season?

A. Bare-octad, bare-sound-ennead, bare-lightness-ennead, lightness-sound-decad, bare-torpor-ennead, torpor-sound-decad.[1348]

There are two external groups: bare-octad and sound-ennead.

Q. What are the three groups which are produced by nutriment?

A. Bare octad, bare-lightness-ennead and bare-torpor-ennead.[1349]

[1342] Vism-mhṭ 107: Kammato jātanti ettha yaṃ ekantakammasamuṭṭhānaṃ aṭṭhindriyāni, hadayañcāti navavidhaṃ rūpaṃ, yañca navavidhe catusamuṭṭhāne kammasamuṭṭhānaṃ navavidhameva rūpanti evaṃ aṭṭhārasavidhampi kammato uppajjanato kammajaṃ. Abhidh-s 42: Tattha jīvitaṃ avinibbhogarūpañca cakkhunā saha cakkhudasakanti pavuccati. Tathā sotādīhi saddhiṃ sotadasakaṃ ghānadasakaṃ jivhādasakaṃ kāyadasakaṃ itthibhāvadasakaṃ pumbhāvadasakaṃ vatthudasakañceti yathākkamaṃ yojetabbaṃ. Avinibbhogarūpameva jīvitena saha jīvitanavakanti pavuccati. Ime nava kammasamuṭṭhānakalāpā.

[1343] In accordance with the variant reading below, see note @@ Taishō reads "eye," @@ this and the next occurrences of "eye" have been changed to "torpor" upon suggestion by LC, who observes: "It would make perfect sense for 'torpor' to be produced by mind, nutriment and season. Eye groups should not be produced by mind, nutriment and season."

[1344] Cf. Vism-mhṭ 107: Viññattidvayaṃ, saddo, ākāsadhātu, lahutādittayaṃ cittasamuṭṭhānāni avinibbhogarūpānīti etaṃ pañcadasavidhaṃ rūpaṃ cittajaṃ. Abhidh-s 42 (Be) VI § 47: Avinibbhogarūpaṃ pana suddhaṭṭhakaṃ, tadeva kāyaviññattiyā saha kāyaviññattinavakaṃ, vacīviññattisaddehi saha vacīviññattidasakaṃ, lahutādīhi saddhiṃlahutādekādasakaṃ, kāyaviññattilahutādidvādasakaṃ, vacīviññattisaddalahutāditerasakañceti cha cittasamuṭṭhānakalāpā.

The variant reading "ten" instead of "seven," of the The Taishō edition, has been taken here. EKS had 'bare-speech-intimation-heptad' but as LC notes, this is impossible because no kalāpa can have less than the basis eight and that "it should be a dasaka, i.e., one more than the ennead for body intimation. That is because it should be 'bare-speech-intimation-sound-decad.' Lightness-speech-intimation-undecad' is a group of eleven precisely because it includes 'sound'." The Taishō edition has a variant reading "ten" instead of "seven," which has been taken here.

[1345] Because two sentences further it is said that there are "three … produced together" presumably this should, in accordance with the parallel above, be read as "the disintegration of the first bare [octad], the decay of the second bare [octad], and the arising of the third bare [octad] occur in a single moment."

[1346] 446c11–12; 此非展轉為聚。以與三所. It is not clear what is meant here with "three." The text might be corrupt and it might stand for "two." There is a v.l. in the previous sentence which has "third consciousness" instead of "second consciousness."

起所聚. The characters 為聚 can mean "mutually/reciprocally" (aññamañña) "successive/in sequence," (parampara).

[1347] Bare-body-intimation, bare-speech-intimation, lightness-body-intimation, lightness-speech–intimation, eye-body-intimation, eye-speech-intimation.

[1348] Abhidh-s 43 (Be) §48–49. Suddhaṭṭhakaṃ saddanavakaṃ lahutādekādasakaṃ saddalahutādidvādasakañceti cattāro utusamuṭṭhānakalāpā. Suddhaṭṭhakaṃ lahutādekādasakañceti dveāhārasamuṭṭhānakalāpā. Vism-mhṭ 107: Ākāsadhātu, lahutādittayaṃ, āhārasamuṭṭhānāni avinibbhogarūpānīti etaṃ dvādasavidhaṃ rūpaṃ āhārajaṃ. Ettha saddaṃ pakkhipitvā terasavidhaṃ rūpaṃ ututo samuṭṭhitaṃ utujaṃ.

[1349] Taishō reads "eye," but gives a variant reading with "torpor" (middha), which makes more sense here because

Of the groups that are produced by season and nutriment: continuity, kamma and [matter as] basis [groups] should be understood as alike.

The rest is as was taught above.

The life-ennead[1350] of devas is fulfilled in the sensuous realm or in kamma and [matter as] basis.

There are eight[1351] groups through which there is life: nose, tongue, body, and the masculine and feminine faculties. Thus the three [groups] beginning with lightness, and [the group of] torpor do not exist in the material-realm.

The non-percipient Brahmās (asaññabrahmā) [have the] life-ennead group through which there is obtaining of life and [have] in their bodies all of the sense-bases.[1352]

Thus [one should know] through groups.

By way of birth

Q. How through birth?[1353] 446c23

A. Now, when a male or female enters a womb, at the moment of birth (upapattikkhaṇa) thirty matters are produced,[1354] namely, [matter as] basis-decad, body-decad, the feminine-faculty-decad or the masculine-faculty-decad.

In the case of one who is neither a male nor a female (napuṃsaka), twenty matters are produced,[1355] eye-groups are not produced by mind. Middharūpa, torpor of matter, is the last kinds of matter given in the list of kinds of matter, which includes lightness, lahutā, at 445c25. The Chinese characters for eye and torpor, 眼 and 眠, are similar and could have been easily confused.

---

[1350] 命九天聚. " RB: "In the Taishō ed, there are footnotes to the two occurrences of 'divine' here and below at the "life-[faculty]-ennead pertaining to the Brahmās." Regarding the second occurrence the note says 'divine' is missing in most other editions. Re the first, the note says that in one edition 'divine' is replaced by 'not,' this being a character that resembles 'divine' and could have been accidentally substituted for it. In the text, 'divine' does not precede 'life.' Rather, the order is 'life ennead divine group,' which is odd. Deleting 'divine' yields 'life-ennead-group.'" Probably the character for 'divine' was moved from before 'sensuous', where it needs to be, to here due a copyist's mistake.

[1351] LC: "It should be five groups. The error has obviously arisen by the addition of five and the three following. However, it is four of the six season-born groups which do not occur in rūpadhātu, i.e., those with lightness and middha. Nutriment-born groups are not found there."

[1352] RB: "Likely is that the character 无 "there is/are not" has been lost from the sentence: 於其身无一切入 "in their bodies all the sense bases are lacking." Supporting this suggestion is the presence of two nearby occurrences of variant readings involving the character 天 "divine, heaven, deva" (Taishō footnotes 9 and 10 on p. 446; see fn @@ above). One of these involves an apparent misreading of 无 as 天; the other involves an apparent insertion of 天 where it does not belong (in 命九天聚 "the life-ennead"). Perhaps, then, the 无 in 於其身无一切入was somehow moved up half a line and inserted into the phrase 命九聚, at the same time being misread as 天." Perhaps it refers to the fact that these Brahmās have a physical eye, etc. but it does not operate as a sense base as there is no pasādarūpa.

Cf Moh 73 Be: asaññīnaṃ pana sabbāni pi vatthuviññāṇāni na santi. Tesaṃ hi jīvitanavakameva rūpaṃ paṭisandhi, pavattiyaṃ bhavaṅgaṃ, maraṇakāle cuti ca hutvā pavattati. Vibh 419: Asaññasattānaṃ devānaṃ upapattikkhaṇe eko khandho pātubhavati: rūpakkhandho; dve āyatanāni pātubhavanti: rūpāyatanaṃ, dhammāyatanaṃ; dve dhātuyo pātubhavanti: rūpadhātu, dhammadhātu; ekaṃ saccaṃ pātubhavati: dukkhasaccaṃ; ekindriyaṃ pātubhavati: rūpajīvitindriyaṃ. Cf. Vibh-mhṭ Be p. 108. Yam III 170–173 (Be): Asaññasattānaṃ arūpānaṃ tesaṃ tattha jīvitindriyaṃ uppajjittha, no ca tesaṃ tattha cakkhundriyaṃ … manindriyaṃ uppajjittha. Abhidh-s 44 (Be), § 59. Asaññasattānaṃ pana cakkhusotavatthusaddā pi na labbhanti, tathā sabbānipi cittajarūpāni, tasmā tesaṃ paṭisandhikāle jīvitanavakameva, pavattiyañca saddavajjitaṃ utusamuṭṭhānarūpaṃ atiricchati. Cf. Kv 396.

.

[1353] Vism XVII.155–156 / pp. 552–53 clarifies this section somewhat: Tiṃsa nava ceva rūpīsu, / sattati ukkaṃsatotha rūpāni; / Saṃsedupapātayonisu, atha vā avakaṃsato tiṃsa. Rūpībrahmesu tāva opapātikayonikesu cakkhusotavatthudasakānaṃ jīvitanavakassa cāti catunnaṃ kalāpānaṃ vasena tiṃsa ca nava ca paṭisandhiviññāṇena saha rūpāni uppajjanti. Rūpī brahme pana ṭhapetvā aññesu saṃsedajaopapātikayonikesu ukkaṃsato cakkhusotaghānajivhākāyavatthubhāvadasakānaṃ vasena sattati, tāni ca niccaṃ devesu. Tattha vaṇṇo gandho raso ojā catasso cāpi dhātuyo cakkhupasādo jīvitanti ayaṃ dasarūpaparimāṇo rūpapuñjo cakkhudasako nāma. Evaṃ sesā veditabbā. Avakaṃsato pana jaccandhabadhiraaghānakanapuṃsakassa jivhākāyavatthudasakānaṃ vasena tiṃsa rūpāni uppajjanti. Ukkaṃsāvakaṃsānaṃ pana antare anurūpato vikappo veditabbo.

[1354] Abhidh-s 77, V 746: Gabbhaseyyaka-sattassa, paṭisandhikkhaṇe pana tiṃsa rūpāni jāyante, sabhāvass' eva dehino.

[1355] a. Ibid. V 747: Abhāva-gabbhaseyyānaṃ; aṇḍajānañ ca vīsati / bhavanti pana rūpāni, kāyavatthuvasena tu. b. Cf. Vbh-a 169–70: Evaṃ pavattamāne c' etasmiṃ nāmarūpe yasmā abhāvaka-gabbhaseyyakānaṃ aṇḍajānañ ca namely, the basis-decad and the body-decad.[1356]

When a male or a female fully possessed of the sense-faculties and the sense-bases is spontaneously born (opapātika)[1357] in the sensuous realm, seventy matters are produced at the moment of birth, namely, the basis-decad, the body-decad, the eye-decad, the ear-decad, the nose-decad, the tongue-decad, the feminine-faculty-decad or the masculine-faculty-decad.

When a male or female is spontaneously born blind in a bad destination, at the moment of birth sixty matters are produced, namely, [all] except the eye-decad.

Likewise, when one is born deaf [447a] sixty matters are produced, namely, [all] except the ear-decad.

In one born deaf and blind fifty matters are produced namely, [all] except the eye-decad and the ear-decad.

When one who is neither a male nor a female, who is fully possessed of the faculties and the sense-bases, is spontaneously born in a bad destination, or is a human at the beginning of an aeon, at the moment of birth, sixty matters are produced, namely, [all] except the feminine-and-masculine faculty [decad].[1358]

In the case of one who is [born] blind, and who is neither a male nor a female, fifty matters are produced, namely, [all] except the eye-faculty-decad and the neither-feminine-nor-masculine-faculty [decad].

In the case one who is [born] deaf, and who is neither a male nor a female, fifty matters are produced, namely, [all] except the ear-decad and the neither-feminine-nor-masculine-faculty [decad].

In one [born] blind and deaf, who is neither a male nor a female, forty matters are produced: the basis-decad, the body-decad, the nose-decad and the tongue-decad.

At the moment of birth of a Brahmā god forty-nine[1359] matters are produced, namely, the basis-decad, the eye-decad, the ear-decad, the body-decad and the life-faculty-ennead.

At the moment of birth of a non-percipient-being (asaññasatta) nine matters are produced, namely, the life-faculty-ennead.

Thus it should be understood through birth. 447a10

By way of diversity

Two Kinds of Matters

Q. How through diversity?

A. All matters are of two kinds, namely, coarse or subtle. Here, twelve matters[1360] are coarse in the paṭisandhikkhaṇe vatthu-kāyavasena rūpato dve santatisīsāni tayo ca arūpino khandhā pātubhavanti, tasmā tesaṃ vitthārena rūparūpato vīsati-dhammā tayo ca arūpino khandhā ti ete tevīsati-dhammā viññāṇapaccayā nāmarūpan ti veditabbā.

---

[1356] For the Tibetan quotation, see Skilling 1994 p. 184f.

[1357] The characters 化生 correspond to Pali opapātika = Skt upapāduka, "spontaneously reborn." Rdzus skyes in the Tibetan quotation confirms this.

[1358] The Tibetan text instead has 'dod pa bcu ldan, kāma-dasaka, "sensual-decad," or perhaps "sexual-decad," here and in the next two paragraphs.

[1359] The Tibetan text (180b): "At the moment of birth of Brahmās thirty-nine matters arise: the base-decad, the eye-decad, the ear-decad, and the life-faculty-ennead."

The number 39 is confirmed by the Abhidh-s (Mm 38,8 Ch. VI § 27), which states that the body-decad is not found in the Brahmaloka. Therefore the Chinese translation is either incorrect or has been adapted to fit a tenet another Buddhist school. See Skilling 1994 p. 183, n. 1.

[1360] Vim 447a12: 於是十二色大內外色入以有對義. The Chinese text is corrupt. It has "twelve matters are coarse—the internal and external sense-base of forms—in the sense…." "Internal and external form sense-base" appears to be an intrusion from the next pair of matters.

The Tibetan text (180b) has: "All matter is of two kinds: coarse in the sense of having impact, and subtle in the sense of having no impact. Herein the coarse matters are twelve: eye, ear, nose, tongue, body, forms, sounds, smells, tastes, earth-element, fire-element, wind-element. The subtle matters are eighteen: the others, i.e., the life-faculty, etc." (… 'di ltar re zhig de srid du gzugs la gnyis ni).

The 12 matters in the Tibetan quotation correspond to the ones given in the Vism and the Paṭis-a, where the sense base of tangibles are defined as the elements of earth, fire and water. Below, at 447a28, the 12 coarse matters are again not defined, but the water-element is given separately, implying that the other three elements are included in the coarse matters.

Vism XIV.73/p.450: Cakkhādīni nava āpodhātuvajjitā tisso dhātuyo cāti dvādasavidhaṃ ghaṭṭanavasena gahetabbato oḷārikaṃ, sesaṃ tato viparītattā sukhumaṃ. Paṭis-a I 246: Oḷārikan-ti cakkhusotaghānajivhākāyarūpasaddagandharasaṃ sense of being with impact; the other eighteen matters are subtle in the sense of being without impact.

Again, there are two kinds of matter, namely, internal and external. Here, five matters—the five sense-bases of the eye, etc.—are internal in the sense of having a sense-object (visaya);[1361] the other twenty-five are external matter, in the sense of not having a sense-object.

And again, there are two kinds of matter. They are faculty and non-faculty.[1362] Here, eight matters are faculty in the sense of authority[1363]—the five internal [sense-faculties], the feminine faculty, masculine-faculty and life-faculty— the other twenty-two [matters] are non-faculty, in the sense of non-authority.[1364] 447a17

Three Kinds of Matters

All matters are of three kinds, namely, clung-to matter (upādiṇṇa-rūpa), non-clung-to matters (anupādiṇṇa-rūpa) and divided matters (vibhatta-rūpa).[1365]

Here nine matters are clung-to—the eight faculties and matter as basis—in the sense of being produced through kamma-result.

Nine matters are non-clung-to—the sense-base of sound, body-intimation, speech-intimation, lightness of matter, softness of matter, wieldabilty of matter, ageing of matter, impermanence of matter, and torpor—in the sense of not being produced through kamma-result.

The remaining twelve matters are divided in the sense of being both [clung-to and non-clung-to].

Again, matters are of three kinds: visible (sanidassana) and with impact (sappaṭigha), invisible and with impact and invisible and without impact.[1366]

Here, one matter is visible and with impact, that is, the sense-base of form, in the sense of being seeable and being touchable.[1367] phoṭṭhabbasaṅkhātā pathavītejovāyo cā ti dvādasavidhaṃ rūpaṃ ghaṭṭanavasena gahetabbato oḷārikaṃ. Sesaṃ pana āpodhātu itthindriyaṃ purisindriyaṃ jīvitindriyaṃ hadayavatthu ojā ākāsadhātu kāyaviññatti vacīviññatti rūpassa lahutā mudutā kammaññatā upacayo santati jaratā aniccatāti soḷasavidhaṃ rūpaṃ ghaṭṭanavasena agahetabbato sukhumaṃ.

---

[1361] 境界義. The characters 境界 are used below as "sense-object" in the "through sense-object" section in the "Sense-base skill." Tibetan text (180b–181a): "Here, five kinds are internal in the sense of having a sense-object, namely, eye, ear, nose, tongue and body; twenty-five kinds external in the sense of not having a sense-object, namely, forms and the others."

[1362] Lit. "life-faculty and non-life-faculty," (jīvitindriya, ajīvitindriya). Cf. anindriyabaddharūpa, "matter not bound up with the faculties," below at @@.

The Tibetan text has "Furthermore, there are two types of form: form as faculty (indriyarūpa) and form as non-faculty (anindriya-rūpa). Herein, in the sense of exercising sovereignity (adhipatiyaṭṭhena), there are 8 [types of] form as faculty: the eye, ear, nose, tongue, and body, the femininity-faculty, masculinity-faculty, and life-faculty. In the sense of not possessing faculties* there are 22 [types of] matter that are non-faculty, that is the remaining [types of] matter." (* Possibly "sovereignity" as above.) (Skilling 1994 p. 197)

[1363] 以依義. The Chinese translator interpreted adhipatiyaṭṭhena as adhi-paṭicca + atthena. According to DDB 義 can correspond to adhikāra, "supervisor."

[1364] Cf. Dhs 125–27, § 585.

Cf. Vism 381 (§ 73): Pasādarūpaṃ [= cakkhādi pañcavidhaṃ rūpaṃ] eva itthindriyādittayena saddhiṃ adhipatiyaṭṭhena indriyaṃ, sesaṃ tato viparītatā anindriyaṃ. ": "Just the form of the [5] sense-bases together with the three starting with the femininity-faculty are faculty, in the sense of exercising sovereignity; the remaining [22 faculties] are non-faculty for the opposite reason [that is, because they do not exercise sovereignity]." Cf. Abhidh-s (Mm 35,2; Bodhi VI § 7): Pasāda-bhāva-jīvita-saṅkhataṃ aṭṭhavidham-pi indriyarūpaṃ itaraṃ anindriyarūpaṃ.

[1365] As Skilling (1994 p. 189, n.2) points out, the Chinese translation 有壞 "perishable" appears to be a mistranslation of vibhatta, the translator misinterpreting it as vibhūta or vipatta. The Tibetan has rnam par phye ba, which corresponds to vibhakta. Cf. Vibh-mṭ 4 (Be): Cattāro ca mahābhūtā … pe … rūpanti evaṃ vibhatto. Katthāti ce? Ekādasasu okāsesu. Iti-saddena nidassanatthena sabbo vibhajananayo dassito.

[1366] D III 217: Tividhena rūpa-saṅgaho. Sanidassana-sappaṭighaṃ rūpaṃ, anidassana-sappaṭighaṃ rūpam, anidassana-appaṭighaṃ rūpaṃ. S-a III 997: Sanidassan' ādisu attānaṃ ārabbha pavattena cakkhu-viññāṇa-saṅkhātena saha nidassanenāti sanidassanaṃ. Cakkhu-paṭihananasamatthato saha-paṭighenā ti sappaṭighaṃ. Tam atthato rūp'āyataṇam eva. Cakkhu-viññāṇa-saṅkhātaṃ nāssa nidassanan ti anidassanaṃ. Sot' ādi-paṭihananasamatthato saha-paṭighenā ti sappaṭighaṃ. Taṃ atthato cakkhāyatanan' ādīni nava āyatanāni. Vuttappakāraṃ nāssa nidassanan ti anidassanaṃ. Nāssa paṭigho ti appaṭighaṃ. Taṃ atthato ṭhapetvā das' āyatanāni avasesaṃ sukhuma-rūpaṃ. Vism-mhṭ II 107 (Be): Sanidassanakammajādīnaṃ tikānanti sanidassanattikassa, kammajādittikānañca. Oḷāriketi dvādasavidhe oḷārikarūpe. Rūpanti rūpāyatanaṃ. Daṭṭhabbabhāvasaṅkhātena saha nidassanenāti sanidassanaṃ, paṭihananabhāvasaṅkhātena saha paṭighenāti sappaṭighaṃ …

[1367] 可觸. The Tibetan has gegs, "impede, obstruct." The translation "touchable" is used here out of lack of any better term. The Pali term would be paṭihanana as suggested in the commentary in the preceding note.

Eleven matters are invisible and with impact, that is, except the sense-base of form, [all] coarse matters, in the sense of not being seeable but being touchable.

Eighteen matters are invisible and without impact, that is, except subtle matter, [all matters] in the sense of not being seeable and not being touchable. 447a26

Four Kinds of Matters

Again, all matters are of four kinds, namely, intrinsic matter (sabhāva-rūpa), alteration matter (vikāra-rūpa), characteristic matter (lakkhaṇa-rūpa) and delimiting matter (pariccheda-rūpa).[1368]

Here nineteen matters—the twelve coarse matters and the feminine-faculty, masculine-faculty, life-faculty, water-element, solid food, matter as basis and matter as torpor—are intrinsic matter in the sense of being produced (nipphanna).[1369]

Seven matters—namely, body-intimation, speech-intimation, [447b] lightness of matter, softness of matter, wieldabilty of matter, accumulation of matter, and continuity of matter—are alteration matter in the sense of transforming intrinsic matter.

Three matters are characteristic matter—birth of matter, ageing of matter and impermanence of matter—in the sense of characterising.[1370]

One material quality is delimiting matter, namely, the space-element, in the sense of delimiting the groups (kalāpa). Herein, intrinsic matter is delimited (paricchinna); the remainder is not delimited.[1371]

Thus one should analyse through diversity.

By way of unity

Q. How should one analyse through unity? 447b05

A. All materiality is neither a cause (hetu) nor without a cause, is dissociated from cause, is with condition, conditioned, worldly, included, is subject to taints, subject to fetters, knots, torrents, yokes, hindrances, to holding, clinging, defilement, is indeterminate, without object, not a mental factor, dissociated from mind, restricted, connected to the sense-realm, is not fixed, is not leading out, is not accompanied by pleasure, is not accompanied by pain, is not accompanied by neither-pain-nor-pleasure, is neither accumulating nor disaccumulating, is neither training nor non-training, and is neither to be abandoned through seeing nor through contemplative development (bhāvanā).[1372]

Thus one should know at length through unity.

[1368] The Chinese apparently did not understand vikāra and rendered it as 形, "shape," saṇṭhāna- or viggaha, but this is not in accordance with the explanation, the Vism parallel, and the Tibetan rnam par ʻgyur ba, corresponding to vipariṇāma. Cf. Skilling 1994, pp. 192–193 & 193 n. 3. Cf Vism XIV.77/p.451): Nipphannarūpaṃ panettha rūparūpaṃ nāma, ākāsadhātu paricchedarūpaṃ nāma, kāyaviññattiādi kammaññatāpariyantaṃ vikārarūpaṃ nāma, jātijarābhaṅgaṃ lakkhaṇarūpaṃ nāmāti.

Cf. Abhidh-s 39 (Be): Iti ca aṭṭhārasavidhampetaṃ rūpaṃ sabhāvarūpaṃ salakkhaṇarūpaṃ nipphannarūpaṃ rūparūpaṃ sammasanarūpanti ca saṅgahaṃ gacchati. Ākāsadhātu paricchedarūpaṃ nāma. Kāyaviññatti vacīviññatti viññattirūpaṃ nāma. Rūpassa lahutā mudutā kammaññatā viññattidvayaṃ vikārarūpaṃ nāma. Rūpassa upacayo santati jaratā aniccatā lakkhaṇarūpaṃ nāma.

[1369] Vism XIV.73: … sabhāveneva pariggahetabbato nipphannaṃ. Vism XIV.77: Nipphannarūpaṃ panettha rūparūpaṃ nāma, …

[1370] Cf. Abhidh-s 202 (Be): Lakkhaṇarūpaṃ nāma dhammānaṃ taṃtaṃavatthāvasena lakkhaṇahetuttā. Apparently the Tibetan translator misunderstood saṅkhāta, "reckoned" as saṅkhata (ʻdus byas). See Skilling 1994, p. 193.

[1371] See Skilling 1994, p. 193–194.

[1372] Cf. Vibh 12: Sabbaṃ rūpaṃ na hetu, ahetukaṃ, hetuvippayuttaṃ, sappaccayaṃ, saṅkhataṃ, rūpiyaṃ, lokiyaṃ, sāsavaṃ, saṃyojaniyaṃ, ganthaniyaṃ, oghaniyaṃ, yoganiyaṃ, nīvaraṇiyaṃ, parāmaṭṭhaṃ, upādāniyaṃ, saṃkilesikaṃ, abyākataṃ, anārammaṇaṃ, acetasikaṃ, cittavippayuttaṃ, nevavipākanavipākadhammadhammaṃ, asaṃkiliṭṭhasaṃkilesikaṃ, na savitakkasavicāraṃ, na avitakkavicāramattaṃ, avitakkaavicāraṃ, na pītisahagataṃ, na sukhasahagataṃ, na upekkhāsahagataṃ, neva dassanena na bhāvanāya pahātabbaṃ, neva dassanena na bhāvanāya pahātabbahetukaṃ, neva ācayagāmi na apacayagāmi, nevasekkhanāsekkhaṃ, parittaṃ, kāmāvacaraṃ, na rūpāvacaraṃ, na arūpāvacaraṃ, pariyāpannaṃ, no apariyāpannaṃ, aniyataṃ, aniyyānikaṃ, uppannaṃ, chahi viññāṇehi viññeyyaṃ, aniccaṃ, jarābhibhūtaṃ. Also Dhs 124–25. Cf. Vibh 63: … Rūpakkhandho ahetuko. Cattāro khandhā siyā sahetukā, siyā ahetukā. Rūpakkhandho hetuvippayutto. Cattāro khandhā siyā hetusampayuttā, siyā hetuvippayuttā. Rūpakkhandho na vattabbo hetu ceva sahetuko cā tipi, sahetuko ceva na ca hetū tipi. … Rūpakkhandho na vattabbo hetu ceva hetusampayutto cā tipi, hetusampayutto ceva na ca hetū tipi. … Rūpakkhandho na hetu ahetuko. … Cf. Paṭṭh III 21 (Be): Ahetukaṃ dhammaṃ paṭicca sahetuko ca ahetuko ca dhammā uppajjanti hetupaccayā, vicikicchāsahagataṃ uddhaccasahagataṃ mohaṃ paṭicca sampayuttakā khandhā cittasamuṭṭhānañca rūpaṃ; paṭisandhikkhaṇe vatthuṃ paṭicca sahetukā khandhā, mahābhūte paṭicca kaṭattārūpaṃ.

This is called "the aggregate of matter." 447b12

Aggregate of Feeling

Q. What is the aggregate of feeling?

A. By way of characteristic (lakkhaṇa), there is one feeling: the one experienced by the mind.[1373]

By way of basis (vatthu), there are two feelings, namely, bodily feeling and mental feeling.

By way of intrinsic nature (sabhāva), there are three feelings, namely, pleasant feeling, painful feeling, neither pleasant nor painful feeling.[1374]

By way of states (dhamma), there are four feelings, namely, wholesome feelings, unwholesome feelings, resultant (vipāka) feelings and functional (kiriya) feelings.

By way of faculties, there are five feelings, namely, pleasure-faculty, pain-faculty, joy-faculty, distress-faculty, equanimity-faculty.[1375]

By way of black and white (kaṇhasukka), there are six feelings, namely, pleasant feeling subject to taints (sāsava), pleasant feeling free from taints (anāsava), feeling of pain subject to taints, painful feeling free from taints, neither pleasant nor painful feeling subject to taints, feeling of neither pain nor pleasure free from taints.[1376]

By way of door (dvāra),[1377] there are seven feelings, namely, feeling born of eye-contact, feeling born of ear-contact, 447b20 feeling born of nose-contact, feeling born of tongue-contact, feeling born of body-contact, feeling born of mind-element-contact and feeling born of mind-consciousness-element-contact.[1378]

In full (vitthārato), there are one hundred and eight feelings: six feelings [of joy] arisen dependent on desire (of the household-life, gehasita);[1379] six feelings [of joy] arisen dependent on renunciation (nekkhammasita); six feelings of distress arisen dependent on desire (of the household-life); six feelings of distress arisen dependent on renunciation; six feelings of equanimity arisen dependent on desire (of the household-life); six feelings of equanimity arisen dependent on renunciation.[1380] Six times six are thirty-

---

[1373] Ssv 182a: "Feeling: through characteristic it is one, namely, that which is experienced (anubhavana) as the object of mind (cittārammaṇa)." (tshor ba ni mtshan nyid kyis gcig ste 'di ltar gang sems kyi dmigs pa nyams su myong ba'o dngos po'i dbang gis rnam pa gnyis ni 'di ltar lus las byung ba dang sems las byung ba'o.)

Vism-mhṭ II 255 (Be): Vedanā anubhavanalakkhaṇato, lokiyasāsavādibhāvato ca ekavidhā. Vism XIV.125/p.460: Idāni yaṃ vuttaṃ yaṃkiñci vedayitalakkhaṇaṃ, sabbaṃ taṃ ekato katvā vedanākkhandho veditabbo ti, etthāpi vedayitalakkhaṇaṃ nāma vedanāva. Yathāha vedayati vedayatīti kho āvuso, tasmā vedanāti vuccatī ti. Sā pana vedayitalakkhaṇena sabhāvato ekavidhāpi jātivasena tividhā hoti kusalā, akusalā, abyākatā cāti.

D-ṭ I 252: Vedanānan-ti ettha vedanāggahaṇena avasiṭṭhaupādānakkhandhānampi saṅgaho khandhalakkhaṇena ekalakkhaṇattā.

[1374] S IV 231–32: Katamā ca, bhikkhave, dve vedanā? Kāyikā ca cetasikā ca. Imā vuccanti bhikkhave dve vedanā. … Sukhā vedanā dukkhā vedanā adukkhamasukhā vedanā. Imā vuccanti bhikkhave tisso vedanā.

[1375] Ibid. 232: Sukhindriyaṃ dukkhindriyaṃ somanassindriyaṃ domanassindriyaṃ upekkhindriyaṃ. Imā vuccanti bhikkhave pañca vedanā.

[1376] Instead of sāsava, 有漏, and nirāsava, 無漏, Ssv 182a has zang zing dang bcas pa & zang zing med pa, corresponding to sāmisa & nirāmisa, carnal & non-carnal. It is possible that the Chinese translator, like English translators nowadays, could not find a satisfactory translation for sāmisa & nirāmisa and chose this term 有漏, and 無漏, which according to DDB can also correspond to samala & nimmala, lokika & lokuttara.

[1377] Cf. Paṭis-a I 362, Nidd-a I 228: Dvārato vedanā vuttā, cakkhusamphassajādikā; … Vibh-a 178: Cakkhusamphassajāvedanātiādinā hi nayena pāḷiyaṃ imā cakkhusamphassajādikā dvārato chaḷeva vedanā vuttā.

[1378] Cf. Vibh 15, etc.: Sattavidhena vedanākkhandho: cakkhusamphassajā vedanā, sotasamphassajā vedanā, ghānasamphassajā vedanā, jivhāsamphassajā vedanā, kāyasamphassajā vedanā, manodhātusamphassajā vedanā, manoviññāṇadhātusamphassajā vedanā.

[1379] The Pali term geha means "household-life" but in the Pali commentaries it is primarily taken as sensual desire, perhaps due to its similarity to gedha. The Chinese translation gives this latter sense, "dependent upon desire," 依愛, while the Tibetan has both senses, "dependent on desire/longing (āsa) of the household-life," khyim gyi re ba la brten pa. Cf. D-ṭ II 332: Gehasitan-ti kāmaguṇanissitaṃ. Kāmaguṇā hi kāmarāgassa gehasadisattā idha gehan-ti adhippetā. M-a V 21 , Vibh-a 508: Gehasitānī-ti kāmaguṇanissitāni.

[1380] Cf. M III 216: Chattiṃsa sattapadā veditabbā ti. … Cha gehasitāni somanassāni, cha nekkhammasitāni somanassāni, cha gehasitāni domanassāni, cha nekkhammasitāni domanassāni, cha gehasitā upekkhā, cha nekkhammasitā upekkhā. Tattha katamāni cha gehasitāni somanassāni? Cakkhuviññeyyānaṃ rūpānaṃ iṭṭhānaṃ kantānaṃ manāpānaṃ manoramānaṃ lokāmisapaṭisaṃyuttānaṃ paṭilābhaṃ vā paṭilābhato samanupassato pubbe vā paṭiladdhapubbaṃ atītaṃ niruddhaṃ vipariṇataṃ samanussarato uppajjati somanassaṃ. … Cf. S IV 232: Cha gehasitāni somanassāni, … cha nekkhammasitā upekkhā, imā vuccanti, bhikkhave, chattiṃsa vedanā. Katamañca, bhikkhave, aṭṭhasataṃ vedanā? Atītā six, and in the three divisions of time, three times thirty-six [are one hundred and eight feeling].[1381]

This is called the aggregate of feeling. 447b25

Aggregate of Perception

Q. What is the aggregate of perception?

A. By way of characteristic, there is one perception, through the mind knowing the object.[1382]

By way of black and white, there are two perceptions, namely, inverted perception (viparīta-saññā) and non-inverted perception.

By way of unwholesomeness (akusala), there are three perceptions, namely, sense-desire-perception, ill-will-perception and harming-perception.

By way of wholesomeness (kusala), there are three perceptions, namely, renunciation-perception, non-ill-will-perception and non-harming-perception.[1383]

By way of the door of not knowing the grounds of selfhood,[1384] there are four perceptions, [447c] namely, the perception of beauty in what is foul, the perception of happiness in what is suffering, the perception of permanence in what is impermanent, the perception of self in what is not-self.

By way of the door of knowing the grounds of selfhood, there are four perceptions, namely, perception of the foul, perception of suffering, perception of impermanence and perception of not-self.[1385]

According to the Vinaya,[1386] there are five perceptions: [perception of appropriateness (kappiya) chattiṃsa vedanā, anāgatā chattiṃsa vedanā, paccuppannā chattiṃsa vedanā … Cf. Vibh 381/§ 947. Tattha katamāni cha gehasitāni somanassāni? Manāpiyesu rūpesu gehasitaṃ cetasikaṃ sātaṃ cetasikaṃ sukhaṃ cetosamphassajaṃ sātaṃ sukhaṃ vedayitaṃ cetosamphassajā sātā sukhā vedanā, … Tattha katamāni cha gehasitāni domanassāni? Amanāpiyesu rūpesu gehasitaṃ cetasikaṃ asātaṃ … dukkhā vedanā, … Tattha katamā cha gehasitā upekkhā? Upekkhāṭṭhāniyesu rūpesu gehasitaṃ cetasikaṃ neva sātaṃ nāsātaṃ … adukkhamasukhā vedanā, … Cf. D-a III 775, Paṭis-a III 696, M-a I 279: Sāmisaṃ vā sukhantiādīsu sāmisā sukhā nāma pañcakāmaguṇāmisasannissitā cha gehasitasomanassavedanā. Nirāmisā sukhā nāma cha nekkhammasitasomanassavedanā. Sāmisā dukkhā nāma cha gehasitadomanassavedanā. Nirāmisā dukkhā nāma cha nekkhammasitadomanassavedanā. Sāmisā adukkhamasukhā nāma cha gehasitaupekkhāvedanā. Nirāmisā adukkhamasukhā nāma cha nekkhammasitaupekkhāvedanā.

---

[1381] "Here, the three feelings [in] six divisions of six, become 108 feelings," 'di ltar 'di dus gsum la tsor ba drug tshan drug ste tsor ba brgya dang brgyad du 'gyur ro.

[1382] "… through characteristic there is one, namely, that which is perceived as object by the mind." gang sems kyis dmigs pa la 'du shes pa ni.

[1383] D III 215: Tisso akusala-saññā. Kāma-saññā, vyāpāda-saññā vihiṃsā saññā. Tisso kusala-saññā. Nekkhamma-saññā, avyāpāda-saññā, avihiṃsā-saññā.

[1384] 義性處 = attabhāvavatthu, a term only found in the Peṭaka and Netti. There are four bases of self-hood, covering the five aggregates, i.e. the body (= matter), feelings, dhammas (= perception and formations), and mind (citta) (= consciousness). Cf. Peṭ 15, catubbidhaṃ ca attabhāvato ca vatthu, idaṃ dukkhaṃ. Peṭ 121: Tattha pañcakkhandhā cattāri attabhāvavatthūni bhavanti. Yo rūpakkhandho, so kāyo attabhāvavatthu. Yo vedanākkhandho, so vedanā attabhāvavatthu. Yo saññākkhandho ca saṅkhārakkhandho ca, te dhammā attabhāvavatthu. Yo viññāṇakkhandho, so cittaṃ attabhāvavatthu. Iti pañcakkhandhā cattāri attabhāvavatthūni. Tattha kāye asubhe subhan-ti vipallāso bhavati. Evaṃ vedanāsu … citte … dhammesu ca attavipallāso bhavati. Tattha catunnaṃ vipallāsānaṃ samugghātanatthaṃ bhagavā cattāro satipaṭṭhāne deseti paññapeti kāye kāyānupassī viharato asubhe subhan-ti vipallāsaṃ samugghāteti, evaṃ vedanāsu, citte, dhammesu ca kātabbaṃ. Nett 85: So kuhiṃ vipallāsayati? Catūsu attabhāvavatthūsu, rūpaṃ … vedanaṃ … saññaṃ … saṅkhāre … viññāṇaṃ attato samanupassati, viññāṇavantaṃ vā attānaṃ, attani vā viññāṇaṃ, viññāṇasmiṃ vā attānaṃ. Tattha rūpaṃ paṭhamaṃ vipallāsavatthu asubhe subhan-ti. Vedanā dutiyaṃ vipallāsavatthu dukkhe sukhan-ti. Saññā saṅkhārā ca tatiyaṃ vipallāsavatthu anattani attā ti. Viññāṇaṃ catutthaṃ vipallāsavatthu anicce niccan-ti. See also note @@"different than the one found in the Peṭaka"@@@ below.

The Chinese translator was uncertain about the meaning of this term as are three similar translations in Vim: 義性處, attha-bhāva-vatthu here at 447c02, 自性處, sabhāva-vatthu at 450a14 and 身性處, kāyabhāva-vatthu at 453b12. The Tibetan (Ssv 182b) has first bdag gi rang bzhin yongs = attā + sabhāva: "through the door of not fully knowing selfhood," bdag gi rang bzhin yongs su mi shes pa'i sgo nas. In the next paragraph it instead has bdag gi dngos po = attā + vatthu/bhāva = attabhāva.

[1385] A II 52 and Paṭis II 79: Anicce bhikkhave niccan ti saññāvipallāso cittavipallāso diṭṭhivipallāso, adukkhe bhikkhave dukkhan ti saññāvipallāso …, anattani bhikkhave attā ti saññāvipallāso …, asubhe bhikkhave subhan ti saññāvipallāso cittavipallāso diṭṭhivipallāso … Anicce bhikkhave aniccan ti na saññāvipallāso …

[1386] The Chinese text is corrupt here. It has "… five perceptions: the perception of beauty in what is foul, the perception of foulness in what is foul, the perception of foulness in what is beautiful, the perception of beauty in what is beautiful and uncertain perception." The part on the four perversions is an intrusion from above.

Ssv 182b: "By way of the Vinaya there are five, namely, (1) perception of appropriateness (kappiya) regarding the regarding the inappropriate, perception of inappropriateness regarding the appropriate, perception of inappropriateness regarding the inappropriate, perception of appropriateness regarding the appropriate, perception of uncertainty (vimati) regarding the inappropriate and the appropriate.]

By way of object, there are six perceptions: perception of forms, perception of sounds, perception of odours, perception of tastes, perception of tangibles, and perception of mental states.[1387]

By way of door, there are seven perceptions: perception born of eye-contact, perception born of ear-contact, perception born of nose-contact, perception born of tongue-contact, perception born of body-contact, perception born of mind-element-contact and perception born of mind-consciousness-element-contact.[1388]

Thus should the various kinds of perception be known.

This is called the aggregate of perception.[1389]

Aggregate of Formations

Q. What is the aggregate of formations? 447c10

A. (1) Contact (phassa), (2) volition (cetanā), (3) thinking (vitakka), (4) exploring (vicāra), (5) rapture (pīti), (6) faith (saddhā), (7) energy (viriya), (8) mindfulness (sati), (9) concentration (samādhi), (10) wisdom (paññā), (11) life-faculty (jīvitindriya), (12) restraining,(nivāraṇa, vāraṇa) (13) non-greed (alobha), (14) non-hate (adosa),[1390] (15) conscience (hiri), (16) shame (otappa), (17) tranquillity (passaddhi), (18) zeal (chanda), (19) resolve (adhimokkha), (20) equanimity (upekkhā), (21) attention (manasikāra), (22) greed (lobha), (23) hatred (byāpāda), (24) delusion (moha), (25) conceit (māna), (26) (wrong) views (diṭṭhi), (27) agitation (uddhacca), (28) doubt (kukkucca), (29) uncertainty (vicikicchā), (30) sloth (thīna), (31) non-conscience (ahiri), (32) shamelessness (anottappa), and all other mental properties, except feeling and perception, belong to the aggregate of formations.[1391] 447c13

Meaning and similes

Here: [1392] (1) contact means that the mind touches an object. It is likened to a sunbeam touching a inappropriate, (2) perception of inappropriateness regarding the appropriate, (3) perception of inappropriateness regarding the inappropriate, (4) perception of appropriateness regarding the appropriate, (5) perception of uncertainty (vimati) regarding the inappropriate and (6) perception of uncertainty regarding the appropriate." The Tibetan text has six items. Perhaps the last two should be taken as one "uncertainty regarding the inappropriate and appropriate."

---

This refers to the appropriateness of the things that a monk accepts, uses, eats, etc., and the uncertainty about their appropriateness that he might have, for example, when a monk is uncertain (vematika) whether something is appropriate/allowable (kappiya), e.g. whether it is money or not, but nevertheless accepts it and therefore falls into an offence. Cf. Dhs 205: Tattha katamaṃ kukkuccaṃ? Akappiye kappiyasaññitā, kappiye akappiyasaññitā… Vin V 118: Aparepi dve puggalā bālā yo ca akappiye kappiyasaññī, yo ca kappiye akappiyasaññī. Dve puggalā paṇḍitā yo ca akappiye akappiyasaññī, yo ca kappiye kappiyasaññī. Cf. A I 84.

[1387] Vibh 102, 104: Rūpasaññā … dhammasaññā loke piyarūpaṃ etth'esā taṇhā pahīyamānā pahīyati, ettha nirujjhamānā nirujjhati.

[1388] The Tibetan text instead has "By way of elements (khams kyi dbang gis, dhātuso) there are seven kinds, namely, perception that is born of the element of eye-contact … element of [mind-] consciousness-contact."

[1389] Cf. Vibh-a 19: Cakkhusamphassajā saññā ti ādīni atītādivasena niddiṭṭha-saññaṃ sabhāvato dassetuṃ vuttāni. Tattha cakkhusamphassato, cakkhusamphassasmiṃ vā jātā cakkhusamphassajā nāma. Sesesu pi es'eva nayo. Ettha ca purimā pañca cakkhuppasādādivatthukā va. Manosamphassajā hadayavatthukā pi avatthukā pi. Sabbā catubhūmikā-saññā.

[1390] Ssv 183a adds ma rmongs pa = amoha, non-delusion. The Chinese text gives its opposite, moha, below.

[1391] Cf. Dhs 17, 27: Katamo tasmiṃ samaye saṅkhārakkhandho hoti? Phasso cetanā vitakko vicāro pīti cittassekaggatā saddhindriyaṃ vīriyindriyaṃ satindriyaṃ samādhindriyaṃ paññindriyaṃ jīvitindriyaṃ sammādiṭṭhi sammāsaṅkappo sammāvāyāmo sammāsati sammāsamādhi saddhābalaṃ vīriyabalaṃ satibalaṃ samādhibalaṃ paññābalaṃ hiribalaṃ ottappabalaṃ alobho adoso amoho anabhijjhā abyāpādo sammādiṭṭhi hirī ottappaṃ kāyapassaddhi cittapassaddhi kāyalahutā cittalahutā kāyamudutā cittamudutā kāyakammaññatā cittakammaññatā kāyapāguññatā cittapāguññatā kāyujukatā cittujukatā sati sampajaññaṃ samatho vipassanā paggāho avikkhepo; ye vā pana tasmiṃ samaye aññe pi atthi paṭiccasamuppannā arūpino dhammā ṭhapetvā vedanākkhandhaṃ ṭhapetvā saññākkhandhaṃ ṭhapetvā viññāṇakkhandhaṃ—ayaṃ tasmiṃ samaye saṅkhārakkhandho hoti. … ime dhammā kusalā.

Dhs 80: Katamo tasmiṃ samaye saṅkhārakkhandho hoti? Phasso cetanā vitakko vicāro pīti cittassekaggatā vīriyindriyaṃ samādhindriyaṃ jīvitindriyaṃ micchādiṭṭhi micchāsaṅkappo micchāvāyāmo micchāsamādhi vīriyabalaṃ samādhibalaṃ ahirikabalaṃ anottappabalaṃ lobho moho abhijjhā micchādiṭṭhi ahirikaṃ anottappaṃ samatho paggāho avikkhepo; ye vā pana … saṅkhārakkhandho hoti…pe… ime dhammā akusalā.

[1392] Daśabalaśrīmitra skips over the following section and continues with the consciousness-aggregate.

wall.[1393] Perception is its near cause.

(2) Volition means the movement of mind. It is like a house builder planting a foundation in the earth. The doors of action are its near cause.[1394]

(3) Thinking is verbal formation.[1395] It is likened to the recitation of discourses by mind. Perception is its near cause.

(4) Exploring is investigation of objects by mind. It is likened to reflecting upon the meaning (of something).[1396] Thinking is its near cause. 447c17

(5) Rapture is gladness of mind. It is likened to a man gaining something. Exultation[1397] is its near cause.

(6) Faith[1398] is purity of mind. It is likened to a spell[1399] for purifying water. The four factors of Stream-entry[1400] are its near cause.[1401]

(7) Energy (viriya) is mental vigour. It is likened to a strong ox bearing a burden. The eight bases of inception (of energy)[1402] are its near cause.

(8) Mindfulness is the guarding of the mind.[1403] It is likened to holding a bowl of oil.[1404] The four

---

[1393] S II 103: Seyyathāpi bhikkhave kuṭāgāraṃ vā kuṭāgārasālā vā uttarāya vā dakkhiṇāya vā pācīnāya vā vātapānā suriye uggacchante vātapānena rasmi pavisitvā kvāssa patiṭṭhitā ti? …

[1394] 事門 literally means 'object-door,' ārammaṇa-dvāra, but this does not make sense. The term is found nowhere else in the text. 事 here is probably in the sense of 事業, kamma or action, and 事門 could correspond to kammadvāra, "doors of action," as found in Pali texts where cetanā is said to proceed by way of the action door of the body, speech and mind. Dhs-a 82: tīṇi kammadvārāni … Katamāni tīṇi? Kāyakammadvāraṃ, vacīkammadvāraṃ, manokammadvāran-ti. Vibh-a 144: … tāni tīṇi kammadvārāni dassento tattha katamo kāyasaṅkhāro? Kāyasañcetanātiādimāha. Tattha kāyasañcetanāti kāyaviññattiṃ samuṭṭhāpetvā kāyadvārato pavattā aṭṭha kāmāvacarakusalacetanā dvādasa akusalacetanāti samavīsati cetanā; kāyadvāre ādānaggahaṇacopanaṃ pāpayamānā uppannā vīsati kusalākusalacetanātipi vattuṃ vaṭṭati. Vacīsañcetanāti vacīviññattiṃ samuṭṭhāpetvā vacīdvārato pavattā tāyeva vīsati cetanā; … Manosañcetanāti ubhopi viññattiyo asamuṭṭhāpetvā manodvāre uppannā sabbā pi ekūnatiṃsa cetanā. Iti bhagavā aparimāṇesu cakkavāḷesu aparimāṇā sattā kusalākusalakammaṃ āyūhamānā imehi tīhi dvārehi āyūhantīti āyūhanakammadvāraṃ dassesi.

Dhs 110: Cetayatī ti cetanā saddhiṃ attanā sampayuttadhamme ārammaṇe abhisandahati ti attho. Sā cetayitalakkhaṇā, cetanābhāvalakkhaṇāti attho. Āyūhanarasā.

[1395] The Ming dynasty edition reads "mental" instead of verbal (口＝心), but given the simile of reciting discourses in the mind, and the following Pali explanations of vitakkavicārā as "verbal formation" the normal reading makes better sense.

Cf. M I 301, S IV 293: Assāsapassāsā kho, āvuso visākha, kāyasaṅkhāro, vitakkavicārā vacīsaṅkhāro, saññā ca vedanā ca cittasaṅkhāro ti. … … Pubbe kho, āvuso visākha, vitakketvā vicāretvā pacchā vācaṃ bhindati, tasmā vitakkavicārā vacīsaṅkhāro. Cf. Paṭis I 99: Dutiyaṃ jhānaṃ samāpannassa vitakkavicārā vacīsaṅkhārā paṭippassaddhā honti.

[1396] Cf. 415c15: "With initial application of thought one thinks (cinteti); with exploring one reflects upon (anucinteti)."

[1397] There is a similar definition of rapture, as one of the first jhāna factors, in Chapter 8: "To please and to pervade are its salient characteristic; delight is its function; …; exulation is its near cause."

[1398] The text here and above has just 心, "mind," the explanation however, is in accordance with the explanation of saddhā, faith, in Vism XIV.140/p.464. The Tibetan quotation has dad pa, which corresponds to saddhā.

[1399] Vism XIV.140 has udakapapasādamaṇi, "a gem for clearing water."

[1400] S V 347: Sappurisasaṃsevo hi bhante sotāpattiyaṅgaṃ, saddhamma-savaṇaṃ sotāpattiaṅgaṃ, yonisomanasikāro sotāpattiaṅgaṃ, dhamnānudhammapaṭipattisotāpattiaṅgaṃ ti. Cf. Peṭ 128: Avippaṭisāralakkhaṇā saddhā, saddahanā paccupaṭṭhānaṃ. Tassa cattāri sotāpattiyaṅgāni padaṭṭhānaṃ. Evañhi vuttaṃ bhagavatā saddhindriyaṃ bhikkhave, kuhiṃ daṭṭhabbaṃ, catūsu sotāpattiyaṅgesu kusalesu dhammesu.

[1401] This section on the five indriyas is discussed in Hayashi 2003.

[1402] Peṭ 128: Sūrā-apaṭikkhepanalakkhaṇaṃ vīriyindriyaṃ, vīriyindriyārambho paccupaṭṭhānaṃ. Tassa atītā cattāro sammappadhānā padaṭṭhānaṃ. Yathā vuttaṃ bhagavatā vīriyindriyaṃ, bhikkhave, kuhiṃ daṭṭhabbaṃ, catūsu sammappadhānesu.

八事處, lit. means "eight bases of action," or kamma-vatthu. EKS rendered this as "eight bases of agitation" referring to the aṭṭhasaṃvegavatthūni at Paṭis-a III 547. Saṃvega is given as the main explanation at Vism XIV.137, however, the Vism's alternative explanation of viriyārambhavatthu is more likely. Cf. Hayashi 2003, p. 101.

[1403] Vism XIV.144, Nidd-a 44: Tattha saraṇalakkhaṇā sati. Saranti tāya, sayaṃ vā sarati, saraṇamattameva vā esāti sati. Sā panesā apilāpanalakkhaṇā, asammosanarasā, ārakkhapaccupaṭṭhānā, visayābhimukhabhāvapaccupaṭṭhānā vā, thirasaññāpadaṭṭhānā, kāyādisatipaṭṭhānapadaṭṭhānā vā. Ārammaṇe daḷhapatiṭṭhitattā pana esikā viya, cakkhudvārādīnaṃ rakkhaṇato dovāriko viya ca daṭṭhabbā.

[1404] See S V 169. Cf. J 96: Samatittikaṃ anavasekaṃ / telapattaṃ yathā parihareyya / Evaṃ sacittamanurakkhe / patthayāno disaṃ agatapubbanti.

establishings of mindfulness are its near cause.[1405]

(9) Concentration is unification of mind. It is likened to the flame of the lamp inside a hall.[1406] The four jhānas are its near cause.[1407] 447c21

(10) Wisdom is vision of mind. It is likened to a man with eyes. The Four Noble Truths are its near cause.[1408]

(11) Life faculty is life of [material and] immaterial things.[1409] It is like water to a lotus.[1410] Name and matter are its near cause.

(12) Restraining (nivāraṇa)[1411] is the mind stopping and avoiding evil. It is likened to a man who wishes to live, avoiding poison.[1412] The four jhānas are its near cause.

(13) Non-greed is the mind's giving up of attachment. It is likened to getting freed from a debt.[1413]

[1405] Peṭ 129–29: Sati saraṇalakkhaṇā, asammohapaccupaṭṭhānā. Tassa atītā cattāro satipaṭṭhānā padaṭṭhānaṃ. Yathā vuttaṃ bhagavatā satindriyaṃ bhikkhave, kuhiṃ daṭṭhabbaṃ, catūsu satipaṭṭhānesu.

[1406] The Vism XIV.139 has "in a windless place." It apparently refers to a place where a flame can't be moved by wind. Nidd-a 57: Visesato sukhapadaṭṭhāno nivāte padīpaccīnaṃ ṭhiti viya cetaso ṭhitīti daṭṭhabbo. Uddhacce na kampatīti samādhibalaṃ.

[1407] Peṭ 129–29: Ekaggalakkhaṇo samādhi, avikkhepapaccupaṭṭhāno, tassa cattāri ñāṇāni padaṭṭhānaṃ. Yathā vuttaṃ bhagavatā samādhindriyaṃ, bhikkhave, kuhiṃ daṭṭhabbaṃ, catūsu jhānesu.

[1408] Vism XIV.143, Nidd-a 57: Pajānātīti paññā. Kiṃ pajānāti? Idaṃ dukkhanti-ādinā nayena ariyasaccāni. Sā yathāsabhāvapaṭivedha-lakkhaṇā, akkhalitapaṭivedhalakkhaṇā vā kusalissāsakhitta-usupaṭivedho viya, visayobhāsanarasā padīpo viya, asammohapaccupaṭṭhānā araññagatasudesako viya. Th-a III 25: dassanalakkhaṇaṃ paññan-ti

[1409] See Vism XIV.138: Taṃ hi rūpadhammānaṃ jīvitaṃ, idaṃ arūpadhammānan-ti. Vibh 123: Tattha Jīvitindriyaṃ duvidhena: atthi rūpajīvitindriyaṃ, atthi arūpajīvitindriyaṃ. Tattha katamaṃ rūpajīvitindriyaṃ? Yo tesaṃ rūpīnaṃ dhammānaṃ āyu ṭhiti yapanā yāpanā iriyanā vattanā pālanā jīvitaṃ jīvitindriyaṃ. … Tattha katamaṃ arūpajīvitindriyaṃ? Yo tesaṃ arūpīnaṃ dhammānaṃ āyu … jīvitindriyaṃ. Paṭis-a I 85: Jīvan-ti tena taṃsahajātā dhammā ti jīvitaṃ, tadeva anupālanalakkhaṇe indaṭṭhaṃ kāretīti jīvitindriyaṃ. Taṃ rūpajīvitindriyaṃ arūpajīvitindriyanti duvidhaṃ. Sabbakammajarūpasahajaṃ sahajarūpānupālanaṃ rūpajīvitindriyaṃ, sabbacittasahajaṃ sahaja-arūpānupālanaṃ arūpajīvitindriyaṃ.

[1410] D I 75: Seyyathā pi mahā-rāja … nāssa kiñci sabbāvantaṃ uppalānaṃ vā padumānaṃ vā puṇḍarīkānaṃ vā sītena vārinā apphuṭaṃ assa.

[1411] 蓋, corresponds elsewhere in Vim to nīvaraṇa, āvaraṇa "hindrance, obstruction," however, the Tibetan quotation (183a) has sdom pa, which corresponds to saṃvara, "restraint" (e.g., so sor thar pa'i sdom pa = pātimokkha-saṃvara), As both the Chinese and Tibetan words contain the root √var, it is likely that the original had nivāraṇa, which was misunderstood as nīvaraṇa. Cf. PED s.v. nivāraṇa & nivāreti.

Dhp-a III 4 (on Dhp 77 pāpā cittaṃ nivāraye): Pāpā cittanti kāyaduccaritādipāpakammato vā akusalacittuppādato vā sabbathāmena cittaṃ nivāraye. Sn-a I 269: Yatatto, yasmā anuttarāya viratiyā sabbapāpehi uparatacitto ti vuttaṃ hoti. Sn 104: Yāni sotāni lokasmiṃ, sati tesaṃ nivāraṇaṃ; / Sotānaṃ saṃvaraṃ brūmi, paññāyete pidhiyyare. Nidd II 29 (Be): Yāni sotāni lokasminti yāni etāni sotāni mayā kittitāni … seyyathidaṃ taṇhāsoto diṭṭhisoto kilesasoto duccaritasoto avijjāsoto.

LC: "If this is not the equivalent of virati, then three path factors i.e. right speech, action and livelihood will be impossible for Vim, since they are otherwise not in the list of saṅkhāras, as they are in Vism. That seems very unlikely. The position of a single virati is mentioned in Abhidh-av and attributed to the Abhayagirivāsins in the 12th century ṭīkā. Given that the Theriya tradition of the Mahāvihāra generally holds that there is a single virati in lokuttara skilful citta, it would not be a great step to hold the same for jhāna. This would imply virati from the hindrances. Since there are no viratis in rūpāvacara citta, this would have to be true for upacārajhāna. It could easily be extended to all kusala-kāmāvacara-citta. It would then be niyata and appropriate in this list of cetasikas.

Abhidh-av p. 22: Lakkhaṇādito pana etā tisso pi viratiyo kāyaduccaritādivatthūnaṃ avītikkamalakkhaṇā, kāya-duccaritādivatthuto saṅkocanarasā, akiriyapaccupaṭṭhānā, saddhāhiriottappa-appicchatādiguṇapadaṭṭhānā. keci pana imāsu ekekaṃ niyataṃ viratiṃ icchanti. Abhidh-av-ṭ: Kecī ti Abhayagirivāsino. Imāsū ti imāsu tīsu viratīsu. Ekekaṃ niyataṃ viratim icchantī ti aññaṃ ekaṃ catutthaniyataviratim icchanti. Atha vā niddhāraṇatthe bhummavasena imāsaṃ antare ekaṃ niyataṃ viratim icchantī ti attho. Ubhayathā pi pana tesaṃ icchā na yujjati aparāya viratiyā Dhammasenāpatinā pi adesitattā, visayassa ca sadā sannihitattābhāvena niyatāya eva ekissā abhāvato. Ten'eva hi Abhayagirivāsino yeva ca keci imāsaṃ tividhattaṃ aniyatattam eva ca icchanti. Vuttañ hi tehi: "karuṇāmuditā sammāvācākammantaājivā. yebhuyyato aniyatā, honti gocarabhedato" ti ettha pana yebhuyyato ti vacanaṃ lokuttaracittesu sabbadā ekato yeva ca labbhamānataṃ sandhāya vuttaṃ.

This is basically a list of cetasikas which are niyata i.e. necessarily present in one or more cittuppāda. The most obvious variation is the absence of the six pairs, but in the northern abhidharma systems we do meet a single praśrabdhi which is explained as possessing a number of the qualities associated with the six pairs. So perhaps it is not such a great difference."

[1412] Cf. Dhp V 123: Visaṃ jīvitukāmo va, pāpāni parivajjaye, and M II 260.

[1413] Cf. D I 69–72, M I 275: Sohaṃ yāni ca porāṇāni iṇamūlāni tāni ca byantī akāsiṃ, atthi ca me uttariṃ avasiṭṭhaṃ dārabharaṇāyā'ti. So tatonidānaṃ labhetha pāmojjaṃ, adhigaccheyya somanassaṃ. … Seyyathāpi, bhikkhave, Renunciation (nekkhamma)[1414] is its near cause.

(14) Non-hatred is the mind that is not angry.[1415] It is likened to cat-skin.[1416] The four immeasurables are its near cause.

(15) Conscience (hiri) is scruples (lajjā) in respect of doing wrong. It is likened to the loathing for excrement and urine. Having oneself as authority (attādhipateyyā) is its near cause.

(16) Shame (ottappa) is fear of doing wrong. It is like fearing a superior.[1417] Having the world as authority (lokādhipateyyā) is its near cause.[1418] [448a]

(17) Tranquillity is the stilling of movement of mind. It is like a man taking a bath in cool water in the heat of summer. Rapture is its near cause.

(18) Zeal is the wish to do good. It is like a faithful giver of alms. The four bases of supernormal power (iddhipāda) are its near cause.

(19) Resolve is the inclination of the mind. It is like water flowing steeply downwards. Thinking and exploring are its near cause.

(20) Equanimity is the mind not going and coming. It is like a man holding a pair of scales.[1419] Energy and so on are its near cause.

(21) Attention is the mind regulating. It is like a man holding a rudder. Wholesomeness and unwholesomeness are its near cause.

(22) Greed is mental attachment. It is likened to a goose. Lovable and desirable forms are its near cause.[1420]

(23) Hatred is mental irritation. It is like an angry viper. The ten grounds of annoyance[1421] are its near cause. 448a08

(24) Delusion is the mind without vision. It is like a blind man.[1422] The four distortions (vipallāsa) are its near cause.[1423]

(25) Conceit is elevation of mind. It is like [two men] assaulting each another. The three kinds [of conceit][1424] are its near cause.

(26) (Wrong) views are mental graspings. It is like the blind men stroking the elephant.[1425] Hearing the voice of another and unreasoned attention[1426] are its near cause.

(27) Agitation is non-stillness of mind. It is like water that is boiling.[1427] Hasty energy[1428] is its near āṇaṇyaṃ yathā ārogyaṃ yathā bandhanāmokkhaṃ yathā bhujissaṃ yathā khemantabhūmiṃ; evameva bhikkhu ime pañca nīvaraṇe pahīne attani samanupassati. A III 354: Asokaṃ virajaṃ khemaṃ, etaṃ ānaṇyamuttamanti.

---

Peṭ 127: Icchāpaṭisaṃharaṇalakkhaṇo alobho, tassa adinnādānā veramaṇī padaṭṭhānaṃ. Cf. Hayashi 2003, p. 62.

[1414] Cf. Peṭ 121: Attāsayavañcanālakkhaṇo lobho, tassa adinnādānaṃ padaṭṭhānaṃ. Cf. Hayashi 2003, p. 62 and p. 75 note 20.

[1415] Cf. Peṭ 121: Abyāpādalakkhaṇo adoso.

[1416] Cf. M I 128–29: … sabbāvantaṃ lokaṃ biḷārabhastāsamena cetasā vipulena mahaggatena appamāṇena averena abyāpajjhena pharitvā viharissāmāti. Th 1138: biḷārabhastaṃ va yathā sumadditaṃ.

[1417] Cf. M I 188: … Seyyathāpi, āvuso, suṇisā sasuraṃ disvā saṃvijjati saṃvegaṃ āpajjati;

[1418] S-a III 978: Hirī ca ottappañ cā ti yaṃ hiriyati hiriyitabbena ottappati ottappitabbenā ti evaṃ vitthāritāni hiri-ottappāni. Api c' ettha ajjhatta-samuṭṭhānā hirī. Bahiddhā samuṭṭhānaṃ ottappaṃ. Attādhipateyyā hirī. Lokādhipateyyaṃ ottappaṃ. Lajjā sabhāva-saṇṭhitā hirī. Bhaya-sabhāva-saṇṭhitaṃ ottappaṃ.

[1419] A IV 282: Seyyathā pi Byagghapajja tulādhāro vā tulādhārantevāsī vā tulaṃ paggahetvā jānāti 'ettakena vā onataṃ ettakena vā unnatan' ti.

[1420] Peṭ 121: Ajjhosānalakkhaṇā taṇhā, tassā piyarūpasātarūpaṃ padaṭṭhānaṃ. Attāsayavañcanālakkhaṇo lobho, tassa adinnādānaṃ padaṭṭhānaṃ.

[1421] Dasa āghātavatthūni. See note @@ to the hindrance of hatred, jhāna section.

[1422] It 84: Mūḷho atthaṃ na jānāti, mūlho dhammaṃ na passati, Andhaṃ tamaṃ tadā hoti, yaṃ moho sahate naraṃ.

[1423] Peṭ 121: andhakāratimisā appaṭivedhalakkhaṇā avijjā, tassā vipallāsapadaṭṭhānaṃ.

[1424] A III 444: … tayo mānā pahātabbā? Māno, omāno, atimāno. Nidd I 79: Tividhena māno: seyyohamasmī ti māno, sadisohamasmī ti māno, hīnohamasmī ti māno.

[1425] Ud 68: Tena hi bhaṇe jaccandhānaṃ hatthiṃ dassehī ti. … Yehi bhikkhave jaccandhehi hatthissa sīsaṃ diṭṭhaṃ ahosi, te evam āhaṃsu: ediso deva hatthī seyyathā pi kumbho 'ti … Ud-a 341: yathā ekeko jaccandho sīsādikaṃ ekekaṃyeva hatthissa aṅgaṃ phusitvā hatthī mayā diṭṭho ti saññaṃ uppādesi, tathā karohī ti

[1426] Cf. 400a10. Fn. @@ . Cf. A I 87, M I 294: Dve me bhikkhave paccayā micchādiṭṭhiyā. Katame dve? Parato ghoso, ayoniso ca manasikāro.

[1427] Cf. SN 46:55/S V 122f.

[1428] 彼速精進, sahasā vīriya, or "haste and energy."

cause.

(28) Worry is mental decline. It is like desiring the foul. The falling away from good through doing evil is its near cause.[1429]

(29) Uncertainty is the grasping of the mind to various [views]. It is like a man travelling to a distant land who is bewildered at a junction of two roads.[1430] Unreasoned attention (ayoniso manasikāra) is its near cause.

(30) Sloth is indolence and sluggishness of the mind. It is like a torpid viper. The eight grounds of laziness[1431] are its near cause.

(31) Non-conscience is the mind having no scruples in respect of doing wrong. It is like a caṇḍāla (outcaste). Irreverence is its near cause.[1432]

(32) Shamelessness is the mind's non-fear of doing wrong. It is like a wicked king. The six irreverences are its near cause.[1433]

These are called the aggregate of formations. 448a19

Aggregate of Consciousness

Q. What is the aggregate of consciousness?

A. It is eye-consciousness, ear-consciousness, nose-consciousness, tongue-consciousness, body-consciousness, mind-element and mind-consciousness-element.[1434]

Herein, eye-consciousness: dependent upon the condition of the eye and forms, consciousness is produced—this is called eye-consciousness.

Ear-consciousness: dependent upon the condition of the ear and sounds, consciousness is produced—this is called ear-consciousness.

Nose-consciousness: dependent upon the condition of the nose and odours, consciousness is produced—this is called ear-consciousness.

Tongue-consciousness: dependent upon the condition of the tongue and flavours, consciousness is produced—this is called tongue-consciousness.

Body-consciousness: dependent upon the condition of the body and tangibles, consciousness is produced—this is called body-consciousness.[1435]

Mind-element: dependent upon the base (vatthu) and the five objects (ārammaṇa), dependent upon [these] two objects, immediately before and after the five consciousnesses, [mind-] consciousness is produced—this is called mind-element.[1436]

[1429] The explanation here is more fitting for appamāda, negligence. In the enumeration at the start of this section there is 調戲, which elsewhere in Vim is used for uddhacca, while here there is 調 and 悔, which corresponds to uddhacca and kukkucca. At 416b20 the definition of these is "'Agitation': This is non-stillness of mind. 'Worry': This is vexation of mind, non-concentration." (懈共為一調者心不寂寂悔者心恨不定)

[1430] S III 108–9: Dvidhāpatho ti kho Tissa vicikicchāyetaṃ adhivacanaṃ. Vāmamaggo ti kho Tissa aṭṭhaṅgikassetaṃ micchāmaggassa adhivacanaṃ, seyyathīdaṃ micchādiṭṭhiyā … micchāsamādhissa. Dakkhiṇamaggo ti kho Tissa ariyassetaṃ aṭṭhaṅgikassa maggassa adhivacanaṃ, seyyathīdaṃ sammādiṭṭhiyā … sammāsamādhissa.

[1431] Aṭṭha kusītavatthūni, A IV 331–33, D III 255f. The Chinese term 懈怠 is used for the hindrance of thīna at 416b09, etc.

[1432] Outcastes, or dalits, remove excrement and refuse from Indian villages and are therefore considered as not being ashamed of touching dirty things. Elsewhere ahiri is likened to a shameless village pig and anotappa to a reckless moth flying into a fire, i.e. Abhidh-av-pṭ Be I 315: Tesu hi alajjanākārena pāpānaṃ karaṇarasaṃ ahirikaṃ. Anuttāsākārena anottappaṃ. Vuttappakāreneva pāpato asaṅkocanapaccupaṭṭhānāni attani, paresu ca agāravapadaṭṭhānāni. Gāmasūkarassa viya asucito kilesāsucito ajigucchanaṃ ahirikena hoti. Salabhassa viya aggito pāpato anuttāso anottappena hoti. Cf. Vism-mhṭ Be II 149.

[1433] See D III 243: Cha agāravā. Idhāvuso, bhikkhu satthari … dhamme … saṅghe … sikkhāya … appamāde … paṭisanthāre agāravo viharati appatisso.

[1434] For the last two items, the Tibetan text has mind-faculty, manindriya, and mind-consciousness, manoviññāṇa, yid kyi dbang po dang yid kyi rnam par shes pa. After this, the Tibetan skips over the rest of the discussion of the viññāṇakkhandha and continues at 448b25.

[1435] Cf. M I 260: Yaṃ yadeva, bhikkhave, paccayaṃ paṭicca uppajjati viññāṇaṃ, tena teneva viññāṇaṃ tveva saṅkhyaṃ gacchati. Cakkhuñca paṭicca rūpe ca uppajjati viññāṇaṃ, cakkhuviññāṇaṃ tveva saṅkhyaṃ gacchati; … manañca paṭicca dhamme ca uppajjati viññāṇaṃ, manoviññāṇaṃ tveva saṅkhyaṃ gacchati.

[1436] The Chinese is cryptic: "… dependent upon the base and the five objects, dependent upon the two objects and the five consciousnesses, if before and after, immediately consciousness is produced …." Also possible is: "… dependent upon the base and the five objects if before, or dependent upon [these] two objects and the five

Mind-consciousness-element: putting aside these six kinds of consciousness, the remaining mind (citta)—this is called mind-consciousness-element.[1437]

These seven kinds of consciousness should be understood at length in three ways: through bases (vatthu) and objects (ārammaṇa), through objects, and through states (dhamma). 448a27

Bases and objects

Q. How through bases (vatthu) and objects (ārammaṇa)?

A. The five kinds of consciousness have different bases and different objects.[1438] The mind-element and mind consciousness-element are one as to base.[1439]

Five-fold is the object of mind-element; six-fold is the object of mind-consciousness-element.

Five kinds of consciousness are internal as to state; internal as to base, [448b]; external as to object.[1440]

Mind-element is internal as to state; external as to base and object.

Mind-consciousness-element is internal as to state; external as to base; internal and external as to object.

The six kinds of consciousness have a prenascent base and have a prenascent object.[1441]

In respect of the mind-consciousness-element, at the moment of first entering the body (sarīra) there is a conascent (sahajāta) [material] base.[1442] 448b03

Because there is [no] production of [a material] base, in the immaterial bases all objects are without a [material] base.[1443]

Thus it should be understood through bases and objects.

Objects

Q. How through objects?

A. Each of the five kinds of consciousness has its [own] domain. They are not produced one by one, in succession; they are not produced simultaneously; they arise unmixed.[1444]

Through the five kinds of consciousness, no state whatever is known, except the first impactconsciousnesses if after, immediately consciousness is produced ...." LC: "One of the five consciousnesses is a purejáta paccaya for resultant mind element but not for the kiriya mind element."

---

Cf. Vibh 89: Tattha katamā manodhātu? Cakkhuviññāṇadhātuyā ... kāyaviññāṇadhātuyā uppajjitvā niruddhasamanantarā uppajjati cittaṃ mano mānasaṃ hadayaṃ paṇḍaraṃ mano manāyatanaṃ manindriyaṃ viññāṇaṃ viññāṇakkhandho tajjāmanodhātu sabbadhammesu vā pana paṭhamasamannāhāro uppajjati cittaṃ mano mānasaṃ hadayaṃ paṇḍaraṃ mano manāyatanaṃ manindriyaṃ viññāṇaṃ viññāṇakkhandho tajjāmanodhātu ayaṃ vuccati manodhātu.

[1437] Dhs 209, 253: Katame dhammā cittā? Cakkhuviññāṇaṃ, sotaviññāṇaṃ, ghānaviññāṇaṃ, jivhāviññāṇaṃ, kāyaviññāṇaṃ, manodhātu, manoviññāṇadhātu – ime dhammā cittā. Yam I 199 (Be): (Ka) mano manodhātu ti? Manodhātuṃ ṭhapetvā avaseso mano, na manodhātu. Manodhātu mano ceva manodhātu ca. S-a II 131: sabbampi manoviññāṇaṃ manoviññāṇadhātūti.

[1438] Vibh 319, § 762: Nānāvatthukā nānārammaṇāti aññaṃ cakkhuviññāṇassa vatthu ca ārammaṇañca, ..., aññaṃ kāyaviññāṇassa vatthu ca ārammaṇañca. § 763: Na aññamaññassa gocaravisayaṃ paccanubhontīti cakkhuviññāṇassa gocaravisayaṃ sotaviññāṇaṃ na paccanubhoti, sotaviññāṇassa gocaravisayampi cakkhuviññāṇaṃ na paccanubhoti. ...

[1439] Cf. S V 217/M I 295: Pañcimāni, brāhmaṇa, indriyāni nānāvisayāni nānāgocarāni na aññamaññassa gocaravisayaṃ paccanubhonti. Katamāni pañca? Cakkhundriyaṃ, sotindriyaṃ, ghānindriyaṃ, jivhindriyaṃ, kāyindriyaṃ. Imesaṃ kho, brāhmaṇa, pañcannaṃ indriyānaṃ nānāvisayānaṃ nānāgocarānaṃ na aññamaññassa gocaravisayaṃ paccanubhontānaṃ mano paṭisaraṇaṃ, manova nesaṃ gocaravisayaṃ paccanubhotīti.

[1440] Vibh 319, § 762: Ajjhattikavatthukā, bāhirārammaṇāti pañcannaṃ viññāṇānaṃ vatthu ajjhattikā ārammaṇā bāhirā.

[1441] Vibh 319, § 762: Purejātavatthukā, purejātārammaṇā ti purejātasmiṃ vatthusmiṃ purejāte ārammaṇe uppajjanti.

[1442] Cf. Paṭṭh, Tika 3: Okkantikkhaṇe nāmarūpaṃ aññamaññaṃ sahajātapaccayena paccayo. Cf. Vism XIV.60/p.447: Manodhātumanoviññāṇadhātūnaṃ nissayalakkhaṇaṃ hadayavatthu, tāsaññeva dhātūnaṃ ādhāraṇarasaṃ, ... manodhātumanoviññāṇadhātūnañceva taṃsampayuttadhammānañca vatthubhāvaṃ sādhayamānaṃ tiṭṭhati.

[1443] LC: "Formless Brahmās have mental objects, e.g., their own citta and cetasikas, but they do not have five-door processes."

[1444] Vibh 319, § 762: Asambhinnavatthukā, asambhinnārammaṇāti asambhinnasmiṃ vatthusmiṃ asambhinne ārammaṇe uppajjanti. Na apubbaṃ acarimaṃ uppajjantīti na ekakkhaṇe uppajjanti. Dhs §764: na abbokiṇṇā uppajjantī ti na paṭipāṭiyā uppajjanti. Na apubbaṃ acarimaṃ uppajjantī ti na ekakkhaṇe uppajjanti.

instance.[1445]

Through the mind-element, no state whatever is known; except [that to which] the mind is adverting.[1446]

Through the six kinds of consciousness there is no establishing of postures whatever;[1447] through activation (javana) there is the establishing of them.[1448]

Through the six kinds of consciousness there is no initiation of bodily and verbal action;[1449] [through activation these are initiated].

Through the six kinds of consciousness, there is no undertaking of wholesome and unwholesome states;[1450] through activation these are undertaken.

Through the six kinds of consciousness, one does not enter or emerge out of concentration[1451]; through activation, one enters concentration and through the bhavaṅga one emerges.

Through the six kinds of consciousness, there is no passing away or arising;[1452] through the bhavaṅga or through the object there is passing away.

Through result (vipāka) mind-consciousness-element is produced."[1453]

Through the six kinds of consciousness one does not sleep, awake or see dreams;[1454] through the bhavaṅga one sleeps; through the mind's adverting one awakes; through activation one sees dreams.[1455]

Thus it should be understood through objects. 448b14

[1445] Vibh 320, § 766: Pañcahi viññāṇehi na kañci dhammaṃ paṭivijānātīti pañcahi viññāṇehi na kañci dhammaṃ paṭivijānāti. Aññatra abhinipātamattāti aññatra āpāthamattā. Vibh-a 405: Na kañci dhammaṃ paṭivijānātī ti manopubbaṅgamā dhammā ti evaṃ vuttaṃ ekampi kusalaṃ vā akusalaṃ vā na paṭivijānāti. Aññatra abhinipātamattā ti ṭhapetvā rūpādīnaṃ abhinipātamattaṃ. …

The Vim has 初起, which would correspond to paṭhamābhinipāta; cf. Dhs-a 107: Kasmā panettha phassova paṭhamaṃ vuttoti? Cittassa paṭhamābhinipātattā. Ārammaṇasmiñhi cittassa paṭhamābhinipāto hutvā phasso ārammaṇaṃ phusamāno uppajjati, tasmā paṭhamaṃ vutto. Phassena pana phusitvā vedanāya vedayati, saññāya sañjānāti, cetanāya ceteti. …. D-a 722 … tasmiṃ ārammaṇe cittacetasikānaṃ paṭhamābhinipāto taṃ ārammaṇaṃ phusanto uppajjamāno phasso …

[1446] 意轉, mano āvajjana or mano pavattana, "which proceed in the mind." Cf. Vibh 320, § 766: Pañcannaṃ viññāṇānaṃ samanantarā pi na kañci dhammaṃ paṭivijānātīti pañcannaṃ viññāṇānaṃ samanantarā manodhātuyā pi na kañci dhammaṃ paṭivijānāti.

[1447] Vibh 321, § 766: Pañcahi viññāṇehi na kañci iriyāpathaṃ kappetī ti pañcahi viññāṇehi na kañci iriyāpathaṃ kappeti—gamanaṃ vā ṭhānaṃ vā nisajjaṃ vā seyyaṃ vā. Pañcannaṃ viññāṇānaṃ samanantarāpi na kañci iriyāpathaṃ kappetī ti pañcannaṃ viññāṇānaṃ samanantarā manodhātuyāpi na kañci iriyāpathaṃ kappeti—gamanaṃ vā ṭhānaṃ vā nisajjaṃ vā seyyaṃ vā.

[1448] Vibh-a 405: Na hi pañcadvārikajavanena … sabbopi panesa pabhedo manodvārikajavaneyeva labbhati.

[1449] Vibh 321, § 766: Pañcahi viññāṇehi na kāyakammaṃ na vacīkammaṃ paṭṭhapetīti pañcahi viññāṇehi na kāyakammaṃ na vacīkammaṃ paṭṭhapeti. … paṭṭhapetī ti pañcannaṃ viññāṇānaṃ samanantarā manodhātuyā pi na kāyakammaṃ na vacīkammaṃ paṭṭhapeti.

[1450] Vibh 321, § 766: Pañcahi viññāṇehi na kusalākusalaṃ dhammaṃ samādiyatī ti pañcahi viññāṇehi na kusalākusalaṃ dhammaṃ samādiyati. … samādiyatī ti pañcannaṃ viññāṇānaṃ samanantarā manodhātuyā pi na kusalākusalaṃ dhammaṃ samādiyati.

[1451] Vibh 321, § 766: Pañcahi viññāṇehi na samāpajjati na vuṭṭhātī ti pañcahi viññāṇehi na samāpajjati na vuṭṭhāti. … vuṭṭhātī ti pañcannaṃ viññāṇānaṃ samanantarā manodhātuyā pi na samāpajjati na vuṭṭhāti.

[1452] Vibh 321, § 766: Pañcahi viññāṇehi na cavati na uppajjatī ti pañcahi viññāṇehi na cavati na uppajjati. … uppajjatī ti pañcannaṃ viññāṇānaṃ samanantarā manodhātuyā pi na cavati na uppajjati.

[1453] Paṭisandhi and cuti are resultant mind-consciousness-element.

[1454] Vibh 321, § 766: Pañcahi viññāṇehi na supati na paṭibujjhati na supinaṃ passatīti pañcahi viññāṇehi na supati na paṭibujjhati na supinaṃ passati. … passatīti pañcannaṃ viññāṇānaṃ samanantarā manodhātuyāpi na supati na paṭibujjhati na supinaṃ passati.

[1455] Vibh-a 405: …na kiñca supinaṃ passatīti imesu tīsu ṭhānesu saha javanena vīthicittaṃ paṭikkhittaṃ. … Tena cittena ñatvā kiṃ ayaṃ imasmiṃ ṭhāne āloko ti jānāti.

Cf. Vibh-a 406: Na supati na paṭibujjhati na supinaṃ passatīti sabbenāpi ca pañcadvārikacittena neva niddaṃ okkamati, na niddāyati, na paṭibujjhati, na kiñca supinaṃ passatīti imesu tīsu ṭhānesu saha javanena vīthicittaṃ paṭikkhittaṃ. Niddāyantassa hi mahāvaṭṭiṃ jāletvā dīpe cakkhusamīpe upanīte paṭhamaṃ cakkhudvārikaṃ āvajjanaṃ bhavaṅgaṃ na āvaṭṭeti, manodvārikameva āvaṭṭeti. Atha javanaṃ javitvā bhavaṅgaṃ otarati. Dutiyavāre cakkhudvārikaṃ āvajjanaṃ bhavaṅgaṃ āvaṭṭeti. Tato cakkhuviññāṇādīni javanapariyosānāni pavattanti. Tadanantaraṃ bhavaṅgaṃ pavattati. Tatiyavāre manodvārikaāvajjanena bhavaṅge āvaṭṭite manodvārikajavanaṃ javati. Tena cittena ñatvā 'kiṃ ayaṃ imasmiṃ ṭhāne āloko'ti jānāti. … …

States

Q. How through states?

A. Five kinds of consciousness are with[out][1456] thinking and exploring. The mind-element is with thinking and exploring. Mind-consciousness-element is with thinking and exploring, or[1457] is declared without thinking and with a slight degree of exploring, or is declared without thought and exploring.

Five kinds of consciousness are accompanied by (sahagata) with equanimity. Body-consciousness is either accompanied by pleasure or by pain. Mind-consciousness-element is accompanied by joy or distress or equanimity.

Five kinds of consciousness are resultant. Mind-element is either resultant or functional (kiriya). Mind-consciousness-element is wholesome or unwholesome or resultant-functional. 448b20

The six kinds of consciousness are not causes, are without [causes for their] arising,[1458] are worldly states, subject to taints, are subject to fetters, knots, torrents, yokes, hindrances, to holding [to views], clinging, defilement, are neither removed through seeing nor through meditation (bhāvanā). They are neither accumulating nor disaccumulating. They are neither training nor non-training. They are restricted (paritta), are of the sense-plane, are not fixed and are not leading out (aniyyānika). They are [cognized by] mind consciousness-element. They all break up.[1459]

Thus one should know by way of states.

This is called the "aggregate of consciousness."

This is called the "five aggregates."

Four Ways of Knowing the Five Aggregates

448b25 Again, one should know the five aggregates at length in four ways: through word meaning, through characteristic, through distinguishing and through inclusion.

Word Meaning

Q. How through word meaning?

A. Matter has the meaning of materializing (ruppana). Feeling has the meaning of experiencing. Perception has the meaning of perceiving. Formations has the meaning of forming. Consciousness has

---

[1456] LC: "The five kinds of consciousness are with thinking and exploring': this must be an error. It should be 'without thinking and exploring'. Perhaps the Chinese translator has made an error because vitakka and vicāra do accompany the five sense vijñāna (in a very weak form) in the northern abhidharma systems. The original must have had 'without' because otherwise it could have simply referred to the 'six kinds of consciousness' as elsewhere."

[1457] Read 或, "or," instead of 設 "declared," at 448b15–19.

[1458] 無因無起, lit. "without cause, without arising," ahetu & anuppāda. The character 起, "arising," corresponds to uppāda, vuṭṭhāna, and the like. LC: "'Without cause' must be a rendering of na hetum eva i.e., not any of the nine hetus. Then 'without arising' must render Pali ahetukam eva, i.e., entirely without any hetu. This doesn't have a parallel in the Northern abhidharma and so has been misunderstood by the Chinese translator."

Cf. Dhs 244: Katame dhammā na hetū ahetukā? Dvepañcaviññāṇāni, tisso ca manodhātuyo, pañca ca ahetukamanoviññāṇadhātuyo, rūpañca, nibbānañca, ime dhammā na hetū ahetukā. Hetū dhammā na vattabbā, na hetū sahetukātipi, na hetū ahetukā ti pi. Vibh-a 402: Na hetumevāti sādhāraṇahetupaṭikkhepaniddeso. Tattha hetuhetu, paccayahetu, uttamahetu, sādhāraṇahetū ti catubbidho hetū ti-ādinā nayena yaṃ vattabbaṃ siyā, taṃ sabbaṃ rūpakaṇḍe sabbaṃ rūpaṃ na hetumevā ti-ādīnaṃ atthavaṇṇanāyaṃ (Dhs-a § 594) vuttameva. Ahetukamevā ti-ādīsu byañjanasandhivasena makāro veditabbo; ahetukā evāti attho. Sesapadesupi eseva nayo. Apica hetū dhammā nahetū dhammā ti-ādīsu (Dhs dukamātikā 1) dhammakoṭṭhāsesu pañcaviññāṇāni hetū dhammāti vā sahetukā dhammāti vā nahonti. Ekantena pana na hetūyeva, ahetukā yevāti imānipi nayenettha sabbapadesu attho veditabbo. Vism-mhṭ II 106 (Be) to Vism XIV.72: Sampayuttadhammarāsi hinoti etena patiṭṭhahatīhi hetu, mūlaṭṭhena lobhādiko, alobhādiko ca, tādiso hetu na hotī ti nahetu. Nāssa hetu atthī ti ahetukaṃ, sahetukapaṭiyogibhāvato hetunā saha na uppajjatīti attho. Ahetukameva hetunā vippayuttatāya hetuvippayuttaṃ.

[1459] Vibh 318, § 761: Pañca viññāṇā na hetumeva, ahetukameva, hetuvippayuttameva, sappaccayameva, saṅkhatameva, arūpameva, lokiyameva, sāsavameva, saṃyojaniyameva, ganthaniyameva, oghaniyameva, yoganiyameva, nīvaraṇiyameva, parāmaṭṭhameva, upādāniyameva, saṃkilesikameva, abyākatameva, sārammaṇameva, acetasikameva, vipākameva, upādinnupādāniyameva, asaṃkiliṭṭhasaṃkilesikameva, na savitakkasavicārameva, na avitakkavicāramattameva, avitakka-avicārameva, na pītisahagatameva, neva dassanena na bhāvanāya pahātabbameva, neva dassanena na bhāvanāya pahātabbahetukameva, nevācayagāmināpacayagāmimeva, nevasekkhanāsekkhameva, parittameva, kāmāvacarameva, na rūpāvacarameva, na arūpāvacarameva, pariyāpannameva, no apariyāpannameva, aniyatameva, aniyyānikameva, uppannaṃ manoviññāṇaviññeyyameva, aniccameva, jarābhibhūtameva.

the meaning of cognising.[1460] Aggregate has the meaning of aggregation of (similar) kinds [of states].[1461]

Thus it should be understood through word meaning.

Characteristic

Q. How through characteristic?

A. Matter is its own material characteristic. It is like seeing a thorn.[1462] The four great entities are its near cause. [448c]

The characteristic of feeling is experiencing. It is like the disease of leprosy.[1463] Contact is near cause.

To grasp aspects (ākāra) [of an object] is the characteristic of perception.[1464] It is like creating an image.[1465] Contact is its near cause.

The characteristic of formations is aggregation.[1466] It is like the turning of a wheel.[1467] Contact is its near cause.

The characteristic of consciousness is cognising (vijānana). It is likened to the cognising of taste.[1468] Name and matter are its near cause.

Thus it should be understood through characteristic. 448c05

Distinguishing

Q. How through distinguishing?[1469]

A. Three kinds of aggregates are distinguished: the five aggregates (pañcakkhandhā), the five aggregates subject to clinging (pañcupādānakkhandhā), and the five aggregates of the Dhamma (pañcadhammakkhandhā).

Here, the five aggregates are all conditioned phenomena (saṅkhata-dhammā).

The five aggregates subject to clinging are all states subject to taints (sāsava).[1470]

[1460] Cf. S III 86–7: Ruppatī ti kho, bhikkhave, tasmā rūpan ti vuccati. … Vedayatī ti kho, bhikkhave, tasmā vedanā ti vuccati. … Sañjānātī ti kho, bhikkhave, tasmā saññā ti vuccati. … Saṅkhatamabhisaṅkharontī ti kho, bhikkhave, tasmā saṅkhārā ti vuccati. … Vijānātī ti kho, bhikkhave, tasmā viññāṇan ti vuccati. …

[1461] See note @@ 和合, which also means "compounding," "cohering," "connecting … Peṭ 112f.: Tattha katamo khandhattho? @@

種類集. Ssv 183a has rigs mthun pa'i tshogs pa, "coming together/aggregation of similar types/kinds." 集 elsewhere in Vim corresponds to samudaya, origination, but in Chinese texts it normally corresponds to samuccaya, sañcaya, etc. In the discussion of the aggregate of matter above, tshogs pa corresponds to kalāpa, group. Cf. Vibh 1: Yaṃ kiñci rūpaṃ atītānāgatapaccuppannaṃ … santike vā, tadekajjhaṃ abhisaññūhitvā abhisaṅkhipitvā ayaṃ vuccati rūpakkhandho. Abhidh-s 228 (Be): Atītānāgatapaccuppannādibhedabhinnā te te sabhāgadhammā ekajjhaṃ rāsaṭṭhena khandhā. Tenāha bhagavā tadekajjhaṃ abhisaṃyūhitvā abhisaṅkhipitvā ayaṃ vuccati rūpakkhandho … Vism XIV.195/p.473: Tadekajjhaṃ abhisaṃyūhitvā abhisaṅkhipitvāti taṃ atītādīhi padehi visuṃ visuṃ niddiṭṭhaṃ rūpaṃ sabbaṃ ruppanalakkhaṇasaṅkhāte ekavidhabhāve paññāya rāsiṃ katvā rūpakkhandhoti vuccatīti ayamettha attho. Etena sabbampi rūpaṃ ruppanalakkhaṇe rāsibhāvūpagamanena rūpakkhandhoti dassitaṃ hoti. Na hi rūpato aññho rūpakkhandho nāma atthi.

[1462] Ssv 183a: "The characteristic of matter is materializing; like being eaten/prepared (khajjati?)," gzugs kyi mtshan nyid ni gzugs par bya ba ste bzos pa'i gzugs bzhin no.

[1463] Ssv 183a: "it is like experiencing the itching of a leprous sore," mdze rma'i za phrug ro myong bzhin no myong bzhin no.

[1464] Paṭis-a II 514: ākāraggāhikā saññā. S-a II 293: … ārammaṇassa ākārasaṇṭhānagahaṇavasena saññā pākaṭā hoti. Nāmar-p v. 78: Ākāragahaṇaṃ saññā, sā sañjānanalakkhaṇā; Nimittuppādanarasā, upalakkhāti gayhati.

[1465] Bapat: "… maker of images." Ssv 183a: "cause-sign of/created by (?) direct knowledge," mngon par shes pa'i rgyu mtshan bzhin no. Perhaps the Tibetan translator misunderstood nimmita, "created by supernormal power" as nimitta, sign?

[1466] 和合 also means "compounding," "cohering," "connecting," etc. (saṅgaha, sannipāta, saṃyutta, saññoga, etc.)

Cf. 450a08: "the characteristic of the aggregates is aggregation…;" 行者和合為相. Cf. S III 86–7: Rūpaṃ rūpattāya saṅkhatam abhisaṅkharonti, … viññāṇaṃ viññāṇattāya saṅkhatam abhisaṅkharonti.

Ssv 183a: "the characteristic of formation is impelling aggregation/accumulation ('du ba), like the impelling of a wheel" ? 'du ba 'phen par byed pa, ste 'khor lo 'phangs pa bzhin no.

[1467] Cf. A I 111: Atha kho, bhikkhave, rathakāro yaṃ taṃ cakkaṃ chahi divasehi niṭṭhitaṃ taṃ pavattesi. Taṃ pavattitaṃ samānaṃ yāvatikā abhisaṅkhārassa gati tāvatikaṃ gantvā ciṅgulāyitvā bhūmiyaṃ papati. Yaṃ pana taṃ cakkaṃ chahi māsehi niṭṭhitaṃ chārattūnehi taṃ pavattesi. Taṃ pavattitaṃ samānaṃ yāvatikā abhisaṅkhārassa gati tāvatikaṃ gantvā akkhāhataṃ maññe aṭṭhāsi.

[1468] S III 87: Ambilam pi vijānāti, … aloṇikam pi vijānāti. Vijānātī ti kho, bhikkhave, tasmā viññāṇan ti vuccati.

[1469] 分別 correspond to vibhaṅga, vibhajana. The normal translation "analysing" will not work here.

[1470] Cf. S III 47: Katame ca, bhikkhave, pañcakkhandhā? Yaṃ kiñci, bhikkhave, rūpaṃ … viññāṇaṃ

The five aggregates of the Dhamma are: the aggregate of virtue, the aggregate of concentration, the aggregate of wisdom, the aggregate of freedom and the aggregate of the knowledge and discernment of freedom.[1471]

Here the [sense of] five aggregates subject to clinging is preferable.[1472]

Thus it should be understood through distinguishing. 448c08

Inclusion

Q. How through inclusion?

A. There are three kinds of inclusion (saṅgaha): sense-base-inclusion, element-inclusion, Truths-inclusion.

Here the aggregate of matter is included in eleven sense-bases. Three aggregates are included in the sense-base of mental states. The aggregate of consciousness is included in the sense-base of mind.[1473]

The aggregate of matter is included in eleven elements. Three aggregates are included in the element of mental states. The aggregate of consciousness is included in seven elements.

The aggregate of virtue, the aggregate of concentration, the aggregate of wisdom, the aggregate of the knowledge and discernment of freedom are included in the sense-base of mental states and element of mental states. The aggregate of freedom is included in the sense-base of mental states, the sense-base of mind, the element of mental states and the mind-consciousness-element.[1474]

The five aggregates are included in the Truths or not included in the Truths. The five aggregates subject to clinging are included in the Truth of Suffering and in the Truth of Origination.

The aggregates of virtue, concentration and wisdom are included in the Truth of the Path. The aggregate of freedom is not included in the Truths. The aggregate of knowledge and discernment of freedom is included in the Truth of Suffering.[1475]

There are states included in the aggregates and not in the Truths. There are states included in the Truths and not in the aggregates. There are states included in the Truths and in the aggregates. There are states included neither in the Truths nor in the aggregates.

Here, matter not bound up with faculties[1476] and the [states] associated with the Paths and with the fruits of recluseship (sāmaññaphala)[1477] are included in the aggregates and not in the Truths. Nibbāna is atītānāgatapaccuppannaṃ … ayaṃ vuccati viññāṇakkhandho. … Katame ca, bhikkhave, pañcupādānakkhandhā? Yaṃ kiñci, bhikkhave, rūpaṃ … viññāṇaṃ atītānāgatapaccuppannaṃ … sāsavaṃ upādāniyaṃ, ayaṃ vuccati viññāṇupādānakkhandho.

---

[1471] A III 134: Idha bhikkhave bhikkhu asekhena sīlakkhandhena … samādhikkhandhena … paññakkhandhena … vimuttikhandhena … vimuttiñāṇadassanakkhandhena samannāgato hoti.

[1472] Elsewhere in Vim this phrase is used to denote the preferred item, i.e. the sense it is to be taken in this context. 可樂, mngon par ʻdod, corresponds to adhippeta, "is desired, preferred, intended."

[1473] Tibetan (Ssv 183b): "Here, the aggregate of matter is included in eleven sense-bases: the ten [starting with the] sense-base of forms and the one sense-base of states. The portion of the three immaterial aggregates, namely, feeling, perception and formations, is included in the sense-base of mental states. One is included in the sense-base of mind, namely the aggregate of consciousness. The aggregate of matter is included in eleven elements. The three immaterial aggregates are included in the element of mental states. The aggregate of consciousness is included in seven elements."

[1474] The Tibetan translation leaves out the sense-base of mind.

[1475] Tibetan (Ssv 183b): "The five aggregates subject to clinging are included in the Truth of Suffering. Clinging is included in the Truth of Origination.The three aggregates of virtue, concentration and wisdom are included in the Truth of the Path. The aggregate of freedom is included in the Truth of Cessation. The aggregate of the knowledge and discernment of freedom is included in the Truth of Suffering."

[1476] According to Paṭis-a, see below, there are "some" who hold that anindriyabaddharūpa can't be an object of vipassanā. Does the Vimuttimagga implicitly approve of this view when it states that anindriyabaddharūpa is not included in the Truths, but just in the aggregates? The Vism rejects this view, which is mentioned in the Kv.

Paṭis-a I 290: Aññe pana anindriyabaddhā rūpādayo avipassanūpagā ti vadanti. … Tasmā paresaṃ cakkhādivavatthānampi anindriyabaddharūpādivavatthānampi icchitabbameva, tasmā tebhūmakasaṅkhārā avipassanūpagā nāma natthi. Vism XIV.19/p.440: attano khandhe gahetvā āraddhā vipassanā paññā ajjhattābhinivesā. Parassa khandhe bāhiraṃ vā anindriyabaddharūpaṃ gahetvā āraddhā bahiddhābhinivesā. Kv 546f: … yathā indriyabaddhaṃ dukkhaṃ pariññātaṃ na puna uppajjati, evamevaṃ anindriyabaddhaṃ dukkhaṃ pariññātaṃ na puna uppajjatīti? Na hevaṃ vattabbe. Tena hi indriyabaddhaññeva dukkhanti. …

Cf. Dhs 241: Anindriyabaddharūpañca nibbānañca ṭhapetvā, sabbe dhammā siyā ajjhattā, siyā bahiddhā, siyā ajjhattabahiddhā. Anindriyabaddharūpañca nibbānañca bahiddhā.

[1477] Tibetan (Ssv 184a): "Matter not connected with the faculties and the states associated with the path and the fruits of recluseship are included in the aggregates and not in the Truths."

This statement refers to cetasikā which are maggasampayuttā or phalasampayuttā i.e., not maggaṅgāni or included in the Truths and not in the aggregates. Three Truths are included in the aggregates and also in the Truths. Designation (paññatti) is not included in the aggregates and also not in the Truths.[1478]

Thus through these ways one develops skill in knowing and analysing the aggregates..

This is the meaning of "aggregate-skill."

The aggregate-skill is finished. 448c24

Sense-base Skill

Q. What is the sense-base skill?

A. There are twelve sense-bases: sense-base of eye, sense-base of matter, sense-base of ear, sense-base of sound, sense-base of nose, sense-base of odour, sense-base of tongue, sense-base of taste, sense-base of body, sense-base of tangible, sense-base of mind, sense-base of mental states.[1479]

Here, the eye-sense-base is the element of sensitivity[1480] by which one sees forms.[1481]

The sense-base of form is the element of colour-appearance (vaṇṇa-saṇṭhāna?)[1482] which is the sense-object (visaya) of the eye.[1483]

The ear-sense-base is the element of sensitivity by which one hears sounds.

The sense-base of sound is the element of noise (ghosa) which is the sense-object of the ear.

The nose-sense-base is the element of sensitivity [449a] by which one smells.

The sense-base of odours is element of odours which is the sense-object of the nose.

The tongue-sense-base is the element of sensitivity by which one knows tastes.

The sense-base of taste is the element of flavour (rasa)[1484] which is the sense-object of the tongue

The body-sense-base is the element of sensitivity by which one touches fineness, smoothness [and so on].[1485]

The sense-base of tangible is the earth-element, water-element, fire-element, wind-element, phalaṅgāni. The maggasampayuttā are maggacittas which are not maggaṅgā. The sāmaññaphalāni are not included in the truth of the path because their cetasikas do not have maggaṅgas, only phalaṅgas.

---

[1478] The Tibetan (184a) text adds: "Again, designation (btags pa) is eleven states, namely, (1) intention, (2) directions, (3) region, (4) time, (5) transgression, (6) factor of asceticism, (7) kasiṇa sign, (8) the object of the attainment of the base of nothingness, (9) attainment of cessation, (10) correct conception (= existing), (11) incorrect conception (= not-existing)." For a discussion of this passage, see note @@ to the discussion of the sense-base of mental states below in the "condition" method in the sense-base skill, where it is found in the Chinese.

[1479] D III 102: Chayimāni bhante ajjhattika-bāhirāni āyatanāni, cakkhuñ c' eva rūpā ca, sotañ c' eva saddā ca, ghānañ c' eva gandhā ca, jivhā c' eva rasā ca, kāyo c' eva phoṭṭhabbā ca, mano c' eva dhammā ca. Vibh 70/§ 155: Dvādasāyatanāni cakkhāyatanaṃ, sotāyatanaṃ, ghānāyatanaṃ, jivhāyatanaṃ, kāyāyatanaṃ, manāyatanaṃ, rūpāyatanaṃ, saddāyatanaṃ, gandhāyatanaṃ, rasāyatanaṃ, phoṭṭhabbāyatanaṃ, dhammāyatanaṃ.

[1480] The Chinese and Tibetan have 界清淨 & khams rab tu dang ba which correspond to dhātu-pasāda, "element-sensitivity" or "sentivity of the elements." The Vibhaṅga parallels below indicate that the sentient matter derived from the 4 great elements is intended. But see Peṭ 113: cakkhuno pasādo cakkhudhātu, "the sensitivity of the eye is the eye-element" and S-a II 130: … cakkhupasādo cakkhudhātu, rūpārammaṇaṃ rūpadhātu, cakkhupasādavatthukaṃ cittaṃ cakkhuviññāṇadhātu, "… eye-sensitivity is the eye-element …" which suggest that it is to be taken as a kammadhāraya compound the "sensitivity which an element" or "element of sensitivity," or the original could have had two nominatives, "the element, the sensitivity."

[1481] Cf. Vibh 70, § 156: Tattha katamaṃ cakkhāyatanaṃ? Yaṃ cakkhu catunnaṃ mahābhūtānaṃ upādāya pasādo attabhāvapariyāpanno anidassano sappaṭigho, yena cakkhunā anidassanena sappaṭighena rūpaṃ sanidassanaṃ sappaṭighaṃ passi vā passati vā passissati vā passe vā, cakkhumpetaṃ cakkhāyatanampetaṃ cakkhudhātupesā … Vism XV.14: cakkhāyatanaṃ jātivasena cakkhupasādamattameva.

[1482] The Chinese text adds the character 摸, "stroked", v.l. 模, "form, shape" here which is a corruption. It isn't in the Tibetan text.

[1483] Vibh 70, § 162: Tattha katamaṃ rūpāyatanaṃ? Yaṃ rūpaṃ catunnaṃ mahābhūtānaṃ upādāya vaṇṇanibhā sanidassanaṃ sappaṭighaṃ nīlaṃ … yaṃ rūpaṃ sanidassanaṃ sappaṭighaṃ cakkhunā anidassanena sappaṭighena passi vā passati vā passissati vā passe vā, rūpampetaṃ rūpāyatanampetaṃ rūpadhātupesā. Idaṃ vuccati rūpāyatanaṃ.

The character 摸, "to stroke, touch," is elsewhere used in Vim for stroking the sun and the moon with the hand through psychic power (442b27–28) corresponding to parimajjati or parāmasati, and in the simile of the blind men feeling/stroking the elephant (448a10). The Ud-a (Ud-a 341) to this simile at Ud 68 has phusitvā.

[1484] The Chinese text has 氣味, which corresponds to ojā, "nutritive essence," elsewhere in Vim, but this can't be the case here. Ssv 184a just has ro, which corresponds to rasa.

[1485] Ssv 184b just has "by which one touches a touchable." gang gis reg bya la reg pa = yena phoṭṭhabbaṃ phusati, which corresponds to Vibh 71: yena kāyena anidassanena sappaṭighena phoṭṭhabbaṃ anidassanaṃ sappaṭighaṃ phusi vā phusati vā phusissati vā phuse vā.

hardness, softness, coolness, warmth, which are the sense-object of the body.[1486]

The mind sense-base is the seven consciousnesses elements.[1487]

The sense-base of mental states comprises the three immaterial aggregates, the eighteen subtle matters and Nibbāna.[1488]

These are the twelve sense-bases.[1489] 449a06

Five Ways of Knowing the Sense-bases

Again, these twelve sense-bases should be known at length in five ways: through word meaning, sense-object, condition, occurrence of process of mind[1490] and inclusion.

Word meaning.

Q. How through word meaning?

A. Eye means "seeing." Form means "manifestation." Ear means "hearing." Sound means "noise" (ghosa). Nose means "smelling." Odour means "smell." Tongue means "tasting." Taste means "flavour" (rasa). Body means "keeping upright." Tangible means "touchability." Mind means "knowing." Idea means "without soul" (nijjīva). Base means "entrance of [material and] immaterial states";[1491] it means "ground" (vatthu); and it means "basis" (ṭhāna or adhiṭṭhāna).[1492]

Thus it should be understood through word meaning.

Sense–range-object

Q. How through sense-object (visaya)? 449a13

A. The eye and ear do not reach the sense-object.[1493] The nose, tongue and body reach the sense-

---

[1486] The Pali parallels only mention three elements; see above note @@ "The Chinese translation has 觸 " @@). Cf. Skilling 1994 p. 180 n. 2. The Tibetan (Ssv 184B) is identical with the Chinese and has all the four elements too. The only difference is that it has "warmth/heat" (uṇha) before "coolness." At 440a, in the "contemplation of elements" section, heat is given as the characteristic of the fire-element, and coolness, or cooling, sīta, as the characterstic of the wind-element. "Softness," mudu, is not given as a characteristic or nature of the water-element there.

Cf. Vibh 72/§ 166: Tattha katamaṃ phoṭṭhabbāyatanaṃ? Pathavīdhātu tejodhātu vāyodhātu kakkhaḷaṃ mudukaṃ saṇhaṃ pharusaṃ sukhasamphassaṃ dukkhasamphassaṃ garukaṃ lahukaṃ, yaṃ phoṭṭhabbaṃ anidassanaṃ sappaṭighaṃ kāyena anidassanena sappaṭighena phusi vā phusati vā phusissati vā phuse vā, phoṭṭhabbopeso phoṭṭhabbāyatanampetaṃ … Vism XV.14: Phoṭṭhabbāyatanaṃ pathavīdhātutejodhātuvāyodhātuvasena tippabhedaṃ. Cf. Vism XV.30.

[1487] Vibh 71, § 161 Sattavidhena manāyatanaṃ: cakkhuviññāṇaṃ, sotaviññāṇaṃ, ghānaviññāṇaṃ, jivhāviññāṇaṃ, kāyaviññāṇaṃ, manodhātu, manoviññāṇadhātu.

[1488] Cf. Vibh 72, § 167: Tattha katamaṃ dhammāyatanaṃ? Vedanākkhandho, saññākkhandho, saṅkhārakkhandho, yañca rūpaṃ anidassanaappaṭighaṃ dhammāyatanapariyāpannaṃ, asaṅkhatā ca dhātu. Vibh 1, § 5: Itthindriyaṃ … pe … kabaḷīkāro āhāro idaṃ vuccati rūpaṃ sukhumaṃ. Vibh 72 § 167: Itthindriyaṃ purisindriyaṃ… pe … kabaḷīkāro āhāro. Idaṃ vuccati rūpaṃ anidassana-appaṭighaṃ dhammāyatanapariyāpannaṃ. M-a II 261: cakkhāyatanaṃ, sota-ghāna-jivhā-kāyāyatanaṃ, rūpa-sadda-gandha-rasa-phoṭṭhabbāyatanaṃ, itthindriyaṃ, purisindriyaṃ, jīvitindriyaṃ, kāyaviññatti, vacīviññatti, ākāsadhātu, āpodhātu, rūpassa lahutā, mudutā, kammaññatā, upacayo, santati, jaratā, rūpassa aniccatā, kabaḷīkāro āhāro ti Dhs-a 79: Dhammārammaṇe cha ajjhattikāni āyatanāni, tīṇi lakkhaṇāni, tayo arūpino khandhā, pannarasa sukhumarūpāni, nibbānapaññattīti ime dhammāyatane pariyāpannā ca, apariyāpannā ca, dhammā dhammārammaṇaṃ nāma. Vism XV.34: Dhammadhātu tiṇṇaṃ arūpakkhandhānaṃ soḷasannaṃ sukhumarūpānaṃ asaṅkhatāya ca dhātuyā vasena vīsati dhammāti saṅkhaṃ gacchati. (See Ñāṇamoli's footnote on the 16 subtle material qualities in this passage in Path of Purification.) Vism XV.14: Dhammāyatanaṃ vedanāsaññāsaṅkhārakkhandha-sukhumarūpanibbānānaṃ sabhāvanānattabhedato anekappabhedanti.

The Tibetan (Ssv 184b) gives the number ten instead of eighteen.

[1489] Daśabalaśrīmitra skips over the next part and, concluding the sense-base skill, resumes at the Element skill at 449c25.

[1490] 夾勝心起. Vīthicittappavatana. The character 夾 can mean "hold between / lined / narrow lane" (MDBG) and this would to correspond to the Pali & Skt meanings of vīthi as track, street, line. 勝心 means "superior-citta." Ñāṇamoli (in Vism XVII.137) rendered vīthicitta as "cognitive series consciousness."

[1491] The Chinese 無色法門 corresponds to arūpa-dhamma-dvāra or -mukha, lit. "nonmaterial-thing/state entrance." There is no parallel to this in Vism XV.3–7.

[1492] Cf. Vism XV.4–5. Apica nivāsaṭṭhānaṭṭhena ākaraṭṭhena samosaraṇaṭṭhānaṭṭhena sañjātidesaṭṭhena kāraṇaṭṭhena ca āyatanaṃ veditabbaṃ.

[1493] See the discussion in Dhs-a 313f.: … visesavantesu ca etesu cakkhusotāni asampattavisayaggāhakāni attano object. The mind is together with (saha) the sense-object.

Again, some say: "The ear reaches the sense-object. Why? Because one does not hear sounds if there is an nearby obstruction, as when a spell (mantra) is spoken."

Again, it is said, "The eye within its own range (gocara) reaches the sense-object.[1494] Why? Because one cannot see the reverse side of a wall."

Thus should one know through sense-object. 449a17

Condition

Q. How through condition?

A. Depending on eye, form, light and attention, eye-consciousness arises.

Here, the eye is a condition for eye-consciousness as four conditions: prenascence-condition, support-condition, faculty-condition, presence-condition.

Form is a condition as three conditions: prenascence-condition, object-condition, presence-condition.

Light is a condition as three conditions: 449a20 prenascence-condition, support-condition and presence-condition.

Attention is a condition as two conditions: continuity-condition (anantara- or samanantara-paccaya) and non-presence-condition (natthi-paccaya).

Depending on ear, sound, [ear-] cavity and attention, there is the arising of ear-consciousness. One should analyse through this [same] analysis [of conditions].

Depending on nose, smell, wind and attention, there is the arising of nose-consciousness. Depending on tongue, taste, water and attention, there is the arising of tongue-consciousness. Depending on body, tangible and attention, there is the arising of body consciousness. Depending on mind, mental states, resolve (adhimutti)[1495] and attention, there is the arising of mind-consciousness.[1496]

Here "mind" (mano) is bhavaṅga mind (citta).

"Idea" is idea-object (dhammārammaṇa). There are four kinds:

The six internal sense-bases (āyatana) of past, present, and future are the first kind.

Excluding the five external sense-bases of past, present and future—the [other] faculties (indriya) [and the ones] which are not faculties are the second kind.[1497] 449a27 nissayaṃ anallīnanissaye eva visaye viññāṇahetuttā. Ghānajivhākāyā sampattavisayaggāhakā, nissayavasena ceva sayañca attano nissayaṃ allīneyeva visaye viññāṇahetuttā. Aṭṭhakathāyaṃ pana āpāthagatattāva ārammaṇaṃ sampattaṃ nāma. Candamaṇḍalasūriyamaṇḍalānañhi dvācattālīsayojanasahassamatthake ṭhitānaṃ vaṇṇo cakkhupasādaṃ ghaṭṭeti. So dūre ṭhatvā paññāyamānopi sampattoyeva nāma. Taṃgocarattā cakkhu sampattagocarameva nāma. Dūre rukkhaṃ chindantānampi, rajakānañca vatthaṃ dhovantānaṃ dūratova kāyavikāro paññāyati. Saddo pana dhātuparamparāya āgantvā sotaṃ ghaṭṭetvā saṇikaṃ vavatthānaṃ gacchatī"ti vuttaṃ. Tattha kiñcāpi āpāthagatattā ārammaṇaṃ sampattanti vuttaṃ, … …

---

[1494] The Chinese characters, 境界, in both cases is the same. Presumably, the first stands for gocara and the latter for visaya. Elsewhere in Vim 境界 is sometimes corresponding to and sometimes to visaya.

[1495] There is no bhavaṅga here as in Vism XV.39, but adhimokkha, resolve. The Chinese text has 解脫, = vimutti, the same word as in the title of this treatise, but this does not make sense in the context. Presumably the Chinese translator misunderstood adhimutti/adhimokkha or had a corrupt reading here. Below, in the word explanation, 專心, "focus/inclination of mind," ninna, ekaggatā, is used instead, and then in the analysis of the next condition, there is again 解脫 = vimutti.

[1496] Vism 488f.: tenāhu Pubbācariyā: cakkhurūpālokamanasikāre paṭicca uppajjati cakkhuviññāṇaṃ. sotasaddavivaramanasikāre paṭicca uppajjati sotaviññāṇaṃ. ghānagandhavāyumanasikāre paṭicca uppajjati ghānaviññāṇaṃ. jivhārasāpamanasikāre paṭicca uppajjati jivhāviññāṇaṃ. kāyaphoṭṭhabbapathavīmanasikāre paṭicca uppajjati kāyaviññāṇaṃ. bhavaṅgamanadhammamanasikāre paṭicca uppajjati manoviññāṇan" ti.

Vibh-a 358 = Sv I 195: tathā cakkhu nissayapaccayo, rūpaṃ ārammaṇapaccayo, āvajjanaṃ anantarasamanantara-anantarūpanissayanatthivigatapaccayo, āloko upanissayapaccayo, vedanādayo sahajātādipaccayā. evam etesaṃ paccayānaṃ samavāye ālokanavilokanaṃ paññāyati. Dhs-a 282f.: tattha asambhinnattā cakkhussa, āpāthagatattā rūpānaṃ, ālokasannissitaṃ, manasikārahetukaṃ catūhi paccayehi uppajjati cakkhuviññāṇaṃ, saddhiṃ sampayuttadhammehi. tattha matassāpi cakkhu sambhinnaṃ hoti.

[1497] 非入根, lit. non-sense-base-faculty, anāyatana-indriya, which does not make sense. LC: "This is the second kind of dhammārammaṇa. The third kind is the dhammadhātu which includes all cetasika and nibbāna. I think the fourth kind is paññatti. The first kind was the six internal āyatanas i.e. citta plus the five pasādarūpa. So what can the second kind be? it cannot be the five external sense bases because they are not dhammārammaṇa. The only thing I can think of is that the second kind was meant to list the remaining kinds of rūpa, i.e. not visible object, etc. (because they are rūpārammaṇa, etc.) and not eye, etc. (because already covered as part of the first kind). The

The sense-base of mental states is the third kind.

The eleven kinds of designation (paññatti), namely, (1) of beings (sattā), (2) directions (disā), (3) time (kāla), (4) transgression (āpatti), (5) ascetism (dhuta), (6) kasiṇa sign (7) the object of the attainment of the base of nothingness (8) the attainment of cessation (nirodha), [449b] (9) existing (vijjamāna), and (10) not existing (avijjamāna) are the fourth kind.[1498]

This is called "the mental states-object."[1499]

"Resolve" is the mind following [the object], like a bright light.

"Attention" is the adverting of the mind at the mind-door.

"Consciousness" is the activation mind (javana-citta).

Here, the mind is a condition for mind-consciousness as support-condition. Mental states are a condition as object-condition.

Resolve[1500] is a condition as support-condition.

Attention is a condition as two conditions: continuity-condition and [non-] presence-condition.[1501]

Thus should it be known through condition. 449b05

---

problem with this is that those kinds of rūpa are part of the dhammadhātu/dhammāyatana, but we should note that the passage from Dhs-a 80 precisely removes from consideration whether the items listed are or are not included in the dhammāyatana (ime dhammāyatane pariyāpannā ca, apariyāpannā ca). So the second kind should be referring to: 'all rūpa which is anidassana and appaṭigha excluding the five external sense bases' or 'the remaining indriya rūpa and all anindriya rūpa excluding the five external sense-bases.'"

Cf. Vism XIV.73 Pasādarūpameva itthindriyādittayena saddhiṃ adhipatiyaṭṭhena indriyaṃ, sesaṃ tato viparītattā anindriyaṃ. Abhi-av 75, v. 735. Cakkhu-āyatanādīni, pañca ajjhattikāni tu; / Tevīsatividhaṃ sesaṃ, bāhiran-ti pavuccati. 736: Cakkhusotindriyādīni, indriyāni panaṭṭha tu; / Sesañca tu vīsaṃ rūpaṃ, anindriyamudīritaṃ.

[1498] One item is missing, probably the third as shown by the Tibetan (Ssv 184a), which doesn't define paññatti, but already did so above, at the end of the aggregate-skill section (see note @@): "Again, designation is eleven states, namely, (1) intention (cetanā), (2) directions (disā), (3) region (visaya, desa), (4) time (kāla), (5) transgression (āpatti), (6) factor of asceticism (dhutaṅga), (7) kasiṇa sign (kasiṇa-nimitta), (8) the object of the attainment of the base of nothingness (akiñcāyatanasamāpattiārammana), (9) attainment of cessation (nirodhasamāpatti), (10) correct conception (bhūta-saṅkappa/kappa/vitakka = vijjamāna), (11) incorrect conception."

Both in the Chinese and Tibetan the last two items are 實思惟/ yang dag pa'i rnam par rtog pa and 不實思惟/yang dag ma yin pa'i rnam par rtog pa, lit. "conception of the real and conception of the not real." This appears to be due to a misunderstanding of vijjamāna (see the Pali parallel in Abhi-av below), as Skt vidya + mānya(na) (although the Sanskrit word vidyamāna has the same sense as Pali vijjamāna). 思惟/ rnam par rtog pa corresponds to manyanā, manasi-kāra, cintā, saṅkappa, etc.

Cf. Abhi-av 83: Tattha samūhapaññatti nāma rūpārūpadhammesu ekassa vā bahūnaṃ vā nāmaṃ gahetvā samūhamevopādāya vuccati. Kathaṃ? Acchataracchaghaṭapaṭādippabhedā. Ayaṃ samūhapaññatti nāma. Asamūhapaññatti pana disākāsakālanimittābhāvanirodhādibhedā. Yadā pana sā vijjamānaṃ paramatthaṃ jotayati, tadā vijjamānapaññattī ti pavuccati. Yadā avijjamānaṃ samūhāsamūhabhedaṃ nāmamattaṃ jotayati, tadā avijjamānapaññattī ti pavuccati. Abhi-av-pṭ II 201 (Be): Ayaṃ samūhapaññatti nāma samūhassa paññāpanato. Disākāsādīsu disā-ggahaṇena candasūriyāvattanamupādāya paññāpiyamānaṃ puratthimādidisāpaññattiṃ dasseti. Ākāsa-ggahaṇena asamphuṭṭha-dhamme upādāya paññāpiyamānaṃ kūpaguhādiākāsapaññattiṃ dasseti. Kāla-ggahaṇena candavattanādikamupādāya paññāpiyamānaṃ pubbaṇhādikālapaññattiṃ dasseti. Nimitta-ggahaṇena bahiddhā pathavīmaṇḍalādikaṃ, ajjhattikañca bhāvanāvisesaṃ upādāya paññāpiyamānaṃ kasiṇanimittādikaṃ dasseti. Abhāva-ggahaṇena bhāvanābalena appavattana-sabhāvaṃ ākāsānañcāyatanajhānaṃ upādāya pavattaṃ ākiñcaññāyatanajhānārammaṇaṃ abhāvapaññattiṃ dasseti. Nirodha-ggahaṇena bhāvanābalena niruddhaṃ nevasaññānāsaññāyatanaṃ nissāya paññattaṃ nirodhapaññattiṃ dasseti. Ādi-ggahaṇena khayādisabhāvaṃ taṃ taṃ dhammamupādāya paññāpiyamānaṃ aniccalakkhaṇādikaṃ saṅgaṇhāti. Sāpi hi disākāsādikā viya dhammasamūhamupādāya apaññattabhāvato asamūhapaññattiyevāti. Sāti ayaṃ dvidhā upādāpaññatti. Tajjāpaññatti vacanatthaṃ amuñcitvā pavattito upādāpaññattiyaṃyeva saṅgayhatī ti vuttaṃ vijjamānaṃ paramatthaṃ jotayatī ti. Evañca katvā upari cha paññattiyopi ettheva saṅgahaṃ gacchantī ti vuttaṃ. Vijjamānanti sabhāvena upalabbhamānaṃ. Avijjamānanti ṭhapetvā lokasaṅketaṃ sabhāvavasena anupalabbhamānaṃ. Cf. Dhs-a 80: Dhammārammaṇe cha ajjhattikāni āyatanāni, tīṇi lakkhaṇāni, tayo arūpino khandhā, pannarasa sukhumarūpāni, nibbānapaññattīti. Dhs-mṭ 159 (Be): Tīṇi lakkhaṇānīti aniccadukkhaanattatā. Nāmakasiṇasattapaññattiyo tisso paññattiyo.

[1499] Cf. Nidd-a II 72: Manatī ti mano, vijānātīti attho. Attano lakkhaṇaṃ dhārentīti dhammā. Mano ti sahāvajjanabhavaṅgaṃ. Dhammā ti nibbānaṃ muñcitvā avasesā dhammārammaṇa-dhammā. Manoviññāṇanti javanamanoviññāṇaṃ. Cf. the definition of dhammārammaṇa Dhs-a 79 in note 448 above.

[1500] The Chinese has again vimutti, see above note 453. Like above, this seems to be misrendering of adhimutti.

[1501] At 449a21, in the analysis of the eye condition, the definition of attention is 非有緣. "non-presence-condition." Presumably the character 非 was lost here.

Occurrence of the process of mind

Q. How through the occurrence of the process of mind?[1502]

A. At the eye-door, putting aside (ṭhapetvā) the process [of mind], there are three kinds [of object]: great, medium and slight.[1503]

Here, in a process with a great object seven minds (citta) proceed, [and then there is] immediate occurrence [of the bhavaṅga mind].[1504]

Following the bhavaṅga mind are the (1) adverting mind (āvajjana-citta), (2) seeing mind (dassana-citta), (3) receiving mind (sampaṭicchana-citta), (4) investigation mind (santīraṇa-citta), (5) determining mind (voṭṭhabbana-citta) (6) activation mind (javana-citta), and (7) that–same-object mind (tadārammaṇa-citta).

Here, the bhavaṅga mind is the mind in bhavaṅga.[1505] It is like [a spider] pulling [its] threads.[1506]

449b10

[1502] Vīthicitta-ppavattana or –ppavatti. Cf. Dhs-a 279 Suttānusārena gamanakālo viya vīthicittappavatti. Abhidh-s IV.6: Ettha ca vīthicittappavattiyā sukhaggahaṇatthaṃ ambopamādikaṃ āharanti. Vism XIV.110–11, etc. Yāni paṭisandhi-bhavaṅgāvajjana-dassana-savana-ghāyana-sāyana-phusana-sampaṭicchana-santīraṇa-voṭṭhabbana-javana-tadārammaṇa-cutivasena cuddasahi ākārehi pavattanti. … paṭisandhivasena pavattatīti evaṃ tāvettha ekūnavīsatiyā vipākaviññāṇānaṃ paṭisandhivasena pavatti veditabbā Abhidh-av 138: Iti vīthippavattānaṃ, dvārālambaṇasaṅgaho. Moh Be 75: nāpi appavattamāne visaye pañcadvārikavīthicittāni pavattantīti. Ayaṃ pañcadvāre visayappavattibhedena cittappavattiniyamo.

[1503] Cf. A Comprehensive Manual of Abhidhamma IV.5. Cf. Abhidh-av-pṭ Be II.37/§387–91: Tathā hi visayaṃ āhu, catudhā ettha paṇḍitā; Mahantātimahantato, parittātiparittato ti. … Ārammaṇantarāpāthe, dvikkhattuṃ calite mano; Cittantarassa hetuttaṃ, yānaṃ calanamīritan-ti.

[1504] 無間生阿毘地獄. The Chinese has "seven minds and immediate birth in Avīci hell," which is due to a misunderstanding of avīciṃ uppajjati/pavattati, i.e., the bhavaṅga mind immediately occurs. Cf. Vism XIV.122/p. 459-60. Cf. "Here, in an eye-door process with a middling object, [after] activation mind, [the mind] immediately (avīci) enters into the bhavaṅga mind. …" at 449c09–10 at the end of this method.

[1505] 449b09: 於是有分心者。是於此有根心. It isn't certain what is meant by 有根心, lit. *bhavindriya-citta, "*existence-faculty-mind." This term is not found in the Pali and 有根 is not used elsewhere in Vim. DDB gives 有根 as "accompanied by faculties, … Skt. sêndriya," which might be related to sense-faculties mentioned in the "parallel" at Vism XIV.115.

[1506] The Chinese literally has "like drawing/pulling thread," 如牽縷. Probably this is related to the simile of the ground spider; see Dhs-a and Abhi-av below. In that simile the bhavaṅga mind is compared to the remaining of the spider at the centre of the threads. The operation of the process cittas is compared to the time when the spider goes along whichever thread has been disturbed. Nothing precisely corresponds to the act of 'drawing' the thread. The five threads do however correspond to the five senses. So perhaps what is meant is a combination of the bhavaṅga mind proper with the disturbance of bhavaṅga when an object impacts the sensitive matter of one of the sense organs. Perhaps the Chinese misunderstood anusāra, "going along," or an idiomatic Chinese expression for a spider spreading, pasāreti, its threads is used.

Cf. Dhs-a 279: Majjhe nipannamakkaṭakassa calanaṃ viya pasādaghaṭṭanakaṃ ārammaṇaṃ gahetvā kiriyamanodhātuyā bhavaṅgassa āvaṭṭitakālo. Suttānusārena gamanakālo viya vīthicittappavatti.

Abhi-av 54f: v 476. Panthamakkaṭako nāma, disāsu pana pañcasu; Tattha suttaṃ pasāretvā, jālamajjhe nipajjati. 477. Paṭhamāya disāyettha, sutte pana pasārite; Pāṇakena paṭaṅgena, ghaṭṭite makkhikāya vā. 478. Nipannaṭṭhānato kiñci, calitvā uṇṇanābhi tu; Gantvā suttānusārena, yūsaṃ pivati tassa sā. 479. Punāgantvāna tattheva, nipajjati yathāsukhaṃ; Evameva karoteva, disāsu dutiyādisu. 480. Pasādā pañca daṭṭhabbā, suttaṃ pañcadisāsviva; Cittaṃ pana ca daṭṭhabbaṃ, majjhe makkaṭako viya. 481. Pāṇakādīhi suttassa, tassa saṅghaṭṭanā viya; Pasādānaṃ tu daṭṭhabbā, ghaṭṭanārammaṇena hi. 482. Calanaṃ viya taṃmajjhe, nipannāyuṇṇanābhiyā; Pasādaghaṭṭanaṃ tattha, gahetvārammaṇaṃ pana. 483. Manodhātukriyācittaṃ, bhavaṅgāvaṭṭanaṃ mataṃ; Tassā suttānusāraṃva, vīthicittapavattanaṃ.

The adverting mind has the form-object (rūpārammaṇa) process at the eye-door as condition. Through the condition of mutuality (aññamañña-paccaya) of the [four] elements, dependent upon the (material) base (vatthu = vatthurūpa),[1507] there is the arising of the bhavaṅga mind. Immediately following (samanantara) the bhavaṅga mind, which has the visible form as its object, adverting produces the adverting mind. Immediately following the adverting mind, which depends on the eye and the corresponding adverting, obtaining of vision produces the seeing mind. Immediately following the seeing mind, having seen through the mind, receiving produces the receiving mind. Immediately following the receiving mind, by receiving the object (attha), investigating produces the investigation mind. Immediately following the investigation mind, by examining the object, determining produces the determining mind. Immediately following the determining mind, by determining the object with a functional-causeless[1508] mind, activation [produces the activation mind]. Immediately following the activation mind, by activating the object and not by a means (upāya, payoga), [that–same-object] produces a resultant, not-functional, that–same-object mind. Following that, [the mind] enters into (otarati) the bhavaṅga mind again. 449b18

Simile of the mango

Q. What is the simile?

A. The king lies down resting in his upper chamber with the gate closed. A hunchbacked woman massages the king's feet. The queen sits. The chief minister (mahāmacca) and courtiers are ranged in front of him. A deaf doorkeeper is standing leaning [with his back] against the door. At that time the gardener, bringing mango fruits, knocks at the door. Hearing the sound, the king awakes, and orders the hunchbacked woman, "Go and open the door." The hunchbacked woman, immediately upon being ordered, speaks to the doorkeeper by way of sign language. The deaf door-keeper grasps the meaning and immediately opens the door. Seeing the mango fruits, the king takes hold of a knife. The hunchback woman accepts the fruits, enters [the room] and presents them to the chief minister. The chief minister presents them to the queen. The queen washes them, [sees] whether they are ripe or raw, puts them each in one place, and then offers them to the king. Getting them, the king eats them. Having eaten them, he immediately talks of the merits or demerits of them. Then he goes to sleep again. 449b26

Here, the bhavaṅga mind is to be understood as the king lying down resting. The king's gardener, bringing mangos and knocking at the door, is the form-object process at the eye-door. The awakening of the king by the knocking at the door, and his ordering the hunchback woman to open the door, should be understood as the arising of the bhavaṅga mind through the condition of mutuality of the [four] elements, dependent upon the (material) base. [449c] The hunchback woman's instructing the deaf door-keeper by way of sign-language to open the door, is adverting mind. The opening of the door by the deaf door-keeper and the seeing of the mangoes illustrate eye-consciousness. The taking hold of the knife by the king, and the hunchbacked woman accepting the fruits and the presenting to the chief minister, illustrate receiving mind. The bringing of the fruits and the presenting by the chief minister to the queen illustrate investigation mind. The actions of washing, [seeing] whether they are ripe or raw, and placing each in one place and offering them to the king should be understood as determining mind. The eating of the fruits by the king is activation mind. His talking as to the merits or demerits of the fruits should be understood as the resultant that-same-object mind. The king's sleeping again should be understood as the entering into the bhavaṅga mind.[1509] 449c08

Here, in an eye-door process with a middling (sense-) object, [after] activation mind, [the mind] immediately (avīci) enters into the bhavaṅga mind.

In a process with a slight (sense-) object, [after] determining mind, [the mind] immediately enters

---

[1507] 以緣展轉諸界。依處有分心成起. Perhaps: "through the condition of the (material) base which depends on the reciprocality of the elements." Also at 449b29 below.

Cf. Vibh-a 42: Manodvāre pana dhammārammaṇe āpāthagate eko evaṃ pariggahaṃ paṭṭhapeti: etaṃ dhammārammaṇaṃ kiṃ nissitanti? Vatthunissitanti. Vatthu kiṃ nissitanti? Mahābhūtāni nissitanti. So cattāri mahābhūtāni upādārūpañca rūpanti pariggaṇhāti, tadārammaṇe dhamme arūpanti pariggaṇhāti.

[1508] 由業心 although literally corresponding to kiriyahetuka, here corresponds to kiriyāhetuka. The Chinese translator also misunderstood the long ā in kiriyāvyākate; see fn. @@@.

Vism XIV.120/p.459: Santīraṇānantaraṃ pana tameva visayaṃ vavatthāpayamānā uppajjati kiriyāhetukamanoviññāṇa-dhātu upekkhāsahagatā ti evaṃ ekasseva kiriyaviññāṇassa voṭṭhabbanavasena pavatti veditabbā.

[1509] For the mango simile see Dhs-a 279. Cf. Abhidh-s IV.6.

into the bhavaṅga mind.

Accordingly [the processes] at the other sense-doors should be understood.

The mind-door lacks the (sense-) object process.[1510] Through the condition of attention, there is spontaneous (asaṅkhārena)[1511] grasping of the object at the mind-door.

Here, with reference to a great object, three mind-states are produced [following] the bhavaṅga mind: adverting mind, activation mind and that same object mind.

With reference to great and slight objects, two mind-states are produced: adverting mind and activation mind.[1512]

Thus, middling objects that are agreeable or disagreeable are to be known through various conditions and various feelings (vedanā).[1513]

Through the condition of reasoned attention (yoniso-manasikāra) and unreasoned attention, various kinds of wholesomeness and unwholesomeness are to be known.[1514]

Thus it should be understood through the occurrence of the process of mind.

Inclusion.

Q. How through inclusion? 449c17

A. There are three kinds of inclusion, namely, aggregate-inclusion, element-inclusion, Truths-inclusion.

Here, ten sense-bases are included in the aggregate of matter. The sense-base of mind is included in the aggregate of consciousness. The sense-base of mental states, excepting Nibbāna, is included in the four [non-material] aggregates.

Eleven sense-bases are included in eleven elements. The sense-base of mind is included in seven elements.

The five internal sense-bases are included in the Truth of Suffering. The five external sense-bases are either included or not included in the Truth of Suffering. The sense-base of mind is either included or not included in the Truth of Suffering. The sense-base of mental states is either included or not included in the Four Truths.[1515]

Thus should one should know through inclusion.

Thus through these ways one arouses skill in knowledge regarding the sense-bases.

This is the meaning of "sense-base skill."

The sense-base skill is finished. 449c24

Element-skill

Q. What is the element-skill?

A. There are eighteen elements, namely, eye-element, form-element, eye-consciousness-element; ear-element, sound-element, ear-consciousness-element; nose-element, odour-element, nose-consciousness-element; tongue-element, taste-element, tongue-consciousness-element; body-element, touch-element, body-consciousness-element, mind-element, mental states-element, mind-consciousness-element.[1516]

Here, the eye sensitivity is the eye-element. Material form is form-element. Eye-consciousness is eye-

---

[1510] I.e., the term vīthi is restricted to the sequence from 5-door adverting to investigating. (LC)

[1511] The Chinese text has "through freedom from formations," 以解脫行, but this does not make sense. The Chinese translator would have misunderstood asaṅkhāra, "effortless," as related to the asaṅkhaā.

[1512] Cf. Abhidh-s IV.

[1513] Cf. Dhs-a 269: Ārammaṇena vedanā parivattetabbā. Javanena tadārammaṇaṃ niyāmetabbaṃ … Dhs-a 277: Idaṃ pana javanaṃ kusalatthāya vā akusalatthāya vā ko niyāmetī ti? Āvajjanañ c'eva voṭṭhabbanañ ca.

[1514] Dhs-a 133: Purimamanato visadisaṃ manaṃ karotī ti pi manasikāro. Svāyaṃ ārammaṇapaṭipādako vīthipaṭipādako javanapaṭipādako ti tippakāro. Tattha ārammaṇapaṭipādako manasmiṃ kāroti manasikāro. … Vīthipaṭipādako ti pana pañcadvārāvajjanass' etaṃ adhivacanaṃ. Javanapaṭipādako ti manodvārāvajjanassa.

[1515] The Chinese text has "The sense-base of mental states is either included in the Four Truths or not included in the Truth of Suffering," but this would be a copyists mistake. In the "Inclusion" section in the Element-skill below, the text has "The mental states-element is included in the Four Truths, or not included in the Four Truths."

[1516] Vibh 87: Aṭṭhārasa dhātuyo: cakkhudhātu rūpadhātu cakkhuviññāṇadhātu sotadhātu saddadhātu sotaviññāṇadhātu ghānadhātu gandhadhātu ghānaviññāṇadhātu jivhādhātu rasadhātu jivhāviññāṇadhātu kāyadhātu phoṭṭhabbadhātu kāyaviññāṇadhātu manodhātu dhammadhātu manoviññāṇadhātu.

Daśabalaśrīmitra, after stating "as taught at length at the start" i.e. in the sense-base skill section above at 448c–449a, skips over the next part and resumes at the characteristics of the aggregates, etc, at 450a07.

consciousness-element. In the same way the others should be understood.[1517]

The mind-element is the adverting to the (sense-) objects at the five doors (pañcadvāre), and the resultant receiving.[1518] [450a]

The mental states-element is just the mental states-sense-base.

The mind-consciousness-element is the mind (citta, viññāṇa) remaining of the six consciousness elements.[1519]

The rest was taught at length under the sense-base (skill).

Inclusion

Here, ten elements are included in the aggregate of matter. The mental states-element, excepting Nibbāna, is included in the four aggregates. Seven elements are included in the aggregate of consciousness.

Eleven elements are included in eleven sense-bases. Seven elements are included in the mind-sense-base.[1520]

Eleven elements are included in the Truth of Suffering. Five elements are included in the Truth of Suffering, or not included in the Truth of Suffering. Mental states-element is included in the Four Truths, or not included in the Four Truths. Mind-consciousness-element is included in the Truth of Suffering or not included in the Truth of Suffering. 450a07

Q. What is the range (gocara or visaya) of the elements? 450a07

A. Just these states, are the range: aggregates, sense-bases, and elements.[1521]

It is taught that the characteristic of the aggregates is aggregation of similar (sabhāga) states.[1522]

It is taught that the characteristic of the sense-bases is entrance (dvāra, mukha).[1523]

It is taught that the characteristic of the elements is intrinsic nature (sabhāva).[1524]

Again, the Blessed One taught the Truth of Suffering by way of the aggregate method (dvāra) to the person with sharp faculties. He taught the Truth of Suffering by way of the sense-base method to the person with average faculties,[1525] and he taught the Truth of Suffering by way of the element method

---

[1517] See the start of the sense-base skill section above at 448c–449a.

[1518] Cf. Vism XV.34/p. 488: manodhātu pana pañcadvārāvajjanakusalākusalavipākasampaṭicchanavasena tayo dhammā ti saṅkhaṃ gacchati. : "The mind element is reckoned as three things, namely, five-door adverting (70), and profitable (39) and unprofitable (55) resultant receiving."

[1519] The Chinese is garbled here. It literally has: "At five door adverting object, the mind element receives result (vipāka). Mind element is just the mental states sense-base, except* mental states element six consciousness elements, except mind (citta) mind-consciousness element (= aññatra citta mano viññāṇa dhātu). (* variant reading: except = remaining). 於五門轉事。意界受果報。意界唯法入。[＊]除法界六識界。餘心意識界. (* 除＝餘)

[1520] LC: "This is mostly based on the Dhātukātha, e.g.: Dhātuk 5: Dhammāyatanaṃ asaṅkhataṃ khandhato ṭhapetvā catūhi khandhehi ekenāyatanena ekāya dhātuyā saṅgahitaṃ. Manāyatanaṃ ekena khandhena ekenāyatanena sattahi dhātūhi saṅgahitaṃ. Notable is the following addition of material concerning the truths."

[1521] The Tibetan text, resuming here, has: "Here, if it is asked what are the differences (visesa) of the aggregate, sense bases and element methods that are taught? It should be said: It is taught that the characteristic of the aggregates is aggregation (saṅgati, sāmaggi) of similar states. It is taught that the characteristic of the sense bases is entrance (mukha, dvāra). It is taught that the characteristic of element is intrinsic nature."

[1522] "Aggregation" = 和合, which also means "compounding," "cohering," "connecting," etc. (saṅgaha, sannipāta, saṃyutta, saññoga, etc.) Cf. M I 190: Yato ca kho, āvuso, ajjhattikañceva cakkhuṃ aparibhinnaṃ hoti, bāhirā ca rūpā āpāthaṃ āgacchanti, tajjo ca samannāhāro hoti. Evaṃ tajjassa viññāṇabhāgassa pātubhāvo hoti. Yaṃ tathābhūtassa rūpaṃ taṃ rūpupādānakkhandhe saṅgahaṃ gacchati, yā tathābhūtassa vedanā sā vedanupādānakkhandhe saṅgahaṃ gacchati, yā tathābhūtassa saññā sā saññupādānakkhandhe saṅgahaṃ gacchati, ye tathābhūtassa saṅkhārā te saṅkhārupādānakkhandhe saṅgahaṃ gacchanti, yaṃ tathābhūtassa viññāṇaṃ taṃ viññāṇupādānakkhandhe saṅgahaṃ gacchati. So evaṃ pajānāti evañhi kira imesaṃ pañcannaṃ upādānakkhandhānaṃ saṅgaho sannipāto samavāyo hoti. Peṭ 112f.: Tattha katamo khandhattho? Samūhattho khandhattho, puñjattho khandhattho, rāsattho khandhattho. Taṃ yathā dabbakkhandho vanakkhandho dārukkhandho aggikkhandho udakakkhandho vāyukkhandho iti evaṃ khandhesu sabbasaṅgaho va evaṃ khandhattho. Vibh-a 2f.: Tatrāyaṃ khandha-saddo sambahulesu ṭhānesu dissati rāsimhi, guṇe, paṇṇattiyaṃ, ruḷhiyan ti. … svāyam idha rāsito adhippeto. Ayañ hi khandhaṭṭho nāma piṇḍaṭṭho pūgaṭṭho ghaṭaṭṭho rāsaṭṭho. tasmā rāsilakkhaṇā khandhā ti veditabbā. Koṭṭhāsaṭṭho ti pi vattuṃ vaṭṭati; lokasmiñ hi iṇaṃ gahetvā codiyamānā dvīhi khandhehi dassāma, tīhi khandhehi dassāmā' ti vadanti. Iti koṭṭhāsalakkhaṇā khandhā ti pi vattuṃ vaṭṭati.

[1523] Cf. Vism XV.4–5. Apica nivāsaṭṭhānaṭṭhena ākaraṭṭhena samosaraṇaṭṭhānaṭṭhena sañjātidesaṭṭhena kāraṇaṭṭhena ca āyatanaṃ veditabbaṃ.

[1524] Cf. Vism XV.21: attano sabhāvaṃ dhārentīti dhātuyo.

[1525] In the Pali the term majjhindriya is only mentioned in the Netti (p.100): iti tesaṃ mudumajjhādhimattatā ayaṃ for the person with dull faculties.

And again, to a person who has the characteristic of attachment to name (nāma) he taught the aggregates by teaching matter (rūpa) in brief, and by analysis (vibhaṅga) of name (nāma) [in full].

To a person who has the characteristic of attachment to matter he taught the sense-bases by analysis of matter [in full] and by teaching name in brief.

To a person who has the characteristic of attachment to name and matter he taught the elements by analysis of name and matter [in full].[1526]

And again, [by] teaching the bases for self-hood (attabhāvavatthu),[1527] he taught the aggregates. [By] teaching the bases and objects (vatthu & ārammaṇa), he taught the sense-bases. By [teaching] the bases and objects and teaching the process of mind (cittavīthi, cittappavatti),[1528] he taught the elements.

Thus through these kinds of ways there is skill in analysing the elements.

This is called element-skill. 450a16

The element skill is finished.

Dependent arising Skill

Q. What is the dependent arising skill?

A. With ignorance as condition, formations; with formations as condition, consciousness; with consciousness as condition, name and matter; with name and matter as condition, the six sense-bases; with the six sense-bases as condition, contact; with contact as condition, feeling; with feeling as condition, craving; with craving as condition, clinging; with clinging as condition, existence, with existence as condition, birth; with birth as condition, ageing and death, sorrow, lamentation, pain, distress and grief.[1529] Thus there is the origination of this entire mass of suffering.

But by the cessation of ignorance, there is the cessation of the formations; by the cessation of the formations, there is the cessation of consciousness; by the cessation of consciousness, there is the cessation of name and matter; by the cessation of name and matter, there is the cessation of the six sense-bases; by the cessation of the six sense-bases, there is the cessation of contact; by the cessation of contact, there is the cessation of feeling; by the cessation of feeling, there is the cessation of craving; by the cessation of craving, there is the cessation of clinging; by the cessation of clinging, there is the cessation of existence; by the cessation of existence, there is the cessation of birth; by the cessation of birth, ageing and death, sorrow, lamentation, pain, distress and grief cease. Thus there is the cessation of this entire mass of suffering.[1530] 450a25 mudindriyo ayaṃ majjhindriyo ayaṃ tikkhindriyo ti. Tattha bhagavā tikkhindriyaṃ saṃkhittena ovādena ovadati, majjhindriyaṃ bhagavā saṃkhittavitthārena ovadati, mudindriyaṃ bhagavā vitthārena ovadati. …

---

The Tibetan (Ssv 184b) is different: "Again, to a person who understands after being told the heading (or, "by a nod of the head," ugghaṭitaññū) the Blessed one taught the Truth of Suffering by way of the aggregate method. To a person who understands after detailed explanation (vipañcitaññū) he taught the Truth of Suffering by way of the sense base method. To a person attached to the word (= padaparama misunderstood as padaparamaṭṭha) he taught the Truth of Suffering by way of the element method."

[1526] Tibetan (Ssv 184b–185a): "Again, to a person who perceives beauty (subhasaññī) in the immaterial aggregates he taught the aggregates [by teaching] matter in brief and [by much] analysing of the immaterial aggregates. To a person who perceives beauty in matter he taught the sense bases [by] much analysing of matter [and by teaching] the immaterial aggregates in brief. To a person who perceives beauty in the immaterial [aggregates] together with matter he taught the elements by way of much analysis of the immaterial [aggregates] and matter."

[1527] See Note 1465 @@ 義性處 = attabhāvatthu, a term only found in the Peṭaka and Netti. @@

[1528] This would refer to the "occurrence of the process of mind," vīthicittapavatti, described in detail in the sense-base skill section, and briefly in this skill as adverting of the mind at the sense-bases, etc.. The Tibetan (Ssv 185a) has nges pa skyed pa. Negs pa can mean "record/register [in one's mind], fix [in the mind]," and skyed pa can mean pavatti, so possibly the Tibetan translator understood cittavīthi or vīthipavatti as the process of registration.

Tibetan (Ssv 185a): "Again, what are taught as the bases for selfhood, as for these, he taught the aggregates. What are taught as the objects of the bases, as for these, he taught the sense-bases. What are taught as the objects of the bases, the occurence of the process [of mind], as for these, he taught the elements." (yang na gang bdag gi ngo bo dngos po ston pa de ni phung po bstan pa'o. gang dngos po'i dmigs pa ston pa de ni skye mched ston pa'o. gang dngos po'i dmigs pa nges pa skyed ba ston pa de ni khams ston pa'o.) [1529] In the Chinese "distress and grief," domanassupāyāsa, are translated by one character, 惱, which covers both.

[1530] Ud 1; S II 1: Katamo ca, bhikkhave, paṭiccasamuppādo? Avijjāpaccayā, bhikkhave, saṅkhārā; saṅkhārapaccayā viññāṇaṃ; viññāṇapaccayā nāmarūpaṃ; nāmarūpapaccayā saḷāyatanaṃ; saḷāyatanapaccayā phasso; phassapaccayā vedanā; vedanāpaccayā taṇhā; taṇhāpaccayā upādānaṃ; upādānapaccayā bhavo; bhavapaccayā jāti; jātipaccayā jarāmaraṇaṃ sokaparidevadukkhadomanassupāyāsā sambhavanti. Evametassa kevalassa dukkhakkhandhassa samudayo

Defining the Links

Here "ignorance" (avijjā) is non-knowledge (aññāṇa) of the Four Truths.[1531]
"Formations" (saṅkhārā) are bodily, verbal and mental actions (kamma).
"Consciousness" (viññāṇa): the mind (citta) at the moment of entering the womb is called consciousness.[1532]
"Name and matter": [name] is the mental properties (cetasikā dhammā) that arise together with the relinking mind (paṭisandhi-citta) and [matter is] the embryonic matter (kalala-rūpa).[1533]
"Six sense-bases" are the six internal sense-bases.[1534]
"Contact" is the six groups of contact.
"Feeling" is the six groups of feeling.
"Craving" is the six groups of craving.
"Clinging" is the four clingings.
"Existence" is kamma-produced (kamma-nibbatta) [450b] sensual-existence, material-existence and immaterial-existence.[1535]
"Birth" is the arising of the aggregates in an existence.[1536]
"Ageing" is the maturing of the aggregates.
"Death" is the disintegration of the aggregates.

Simile of the seeds

Q. Why "with ignorance as condition, formations; … with birth as condition, ageing and death"?[1537] hoti. Ayaṃ vuccati, bhikkhave, paṭiccasamuppādo. Avijjāya tveva asesavirāganirodhā saṅkhāranirodho; saṅkhāranirodhā viññāṇanirodho; viññāṇanirodhā nāmarūpanirodho; nāmarūpanirodhā saḷāyatananirodho; saḷāyatananirodhā phassanirodho; phassanirodhā vedanānirodho; vedanānirodhā taṇhānirodho; taṇhānirodhā upādānanirodho; upādānanirodhā bhavanirodho; bhavanirodhā jātinirodho; jātinirodhā jarāmaraṇaṃ sokaparidevadukkhadomanassupāyāsā nirujjhanti. Evametassa kevalassa dukkhakkhandhassa nirodho hotī ti.

---

[1531] Peṭ 116: Tattha katamā avijjā? Yaṃ catūsu ariyasaccesu aññāṇanti. Peṭ 118: Tattha avijjā nāma catūsu ariyasaccesu yathābhūtaṃ aññāṇaṃ, ayaṃ avijjā. Cf. S-a II 78, etc.

[1532] Tibetan (Ssv 185b): "the mind of the time/occasion of relinking (paṭisandhi-samaya/kāla)" nying mtshams sbyor ba'i dus kyi sems. 入胎 means "enters the womb" and, besides paṭisandhi it can also correspond to gabbhāvakkanti.

[1533] Tibetan (185b): "Name is the mental properties born together with the relinking mind; matter is the embryo (kalala)—this is name and matter." (nying mtsams sbyor ba'i sems dang ldan pa'i sems las byung ba'i chos ni ming ngo mer mer po ni gzugs te ming gzugs so) Cf. Paṭis-a III 571: Pañcakkhandhā ti ettha paṭisandhicittena paṭisandhikkhaṇe labbhamānāni rūpāni rūpakkhandho, sahajātā vedanā vedanākkhandho, saññā saññākkhandho, sesacetasikā saṅkhārakkhandho, paṭisandhicittaṃ viññāṇakkhandho. Vibh-a 21–2: gabbhaseyyakasattānañhi paṭisandhikkhaṇe pañcakkhandhā apacchāapure ekato pātubhavanti. Tasmiṃ khaṇe pātubhūtā kalalasaṅkhātā rūpasantati parittā hoti. … Evaṃ parittāya rūpasantatiyā tīṇi santatisīsāni honti – vatthudasakaṃ, kāyadasakaṃ, … Tattha vatthurūpaṃ, tassa nissayāni cattāri mahābhūtāni, taṃnissitā vaṇṇagandharasojā, jīvitanti – idaṃ vatthudasakaṃ nāma … Evaṃ gabbhaseyyakānaṃ paṭisandhiyaṃ ukkaṭṭhaparicchedena samatiṃsa kammajarūpāni rūpakkhandho nāma hoti. Paṭisandhicittena pana sahajātā vedanā vedanākkhandho, saññā saññākkhandho, saṅkhārā saṅkhārakkhandha. Paṭisandhicittaṃ viññāṇakkhandho ti. Cf. Vin III 73: Manussaviggaho nāma yaṃ mātukucchismiṃ paṭhamaṃ cittaṃ uppannaṃ paṭhamaṃ viññāṇaṃ pātubhūtaṃ, yāva maraṇakālā etthantare eso manussaviggaho nāma. Vin-a II 437: Paṭhamaṃ cittanti paṭisandhicittaṃ. Uppannanti jātaṃ. Paṭhamaṃ viññāṇaṃ pātubhūtanti idaṃ tasseva vevacanaṃ. Mātukucchismiṃ paṭhamaṃ cittan-ti vacanena cettha sakalāpi pañcavokārapaṭisandhi dassitā hoti. Tasmā tañca paṭhamaṃ cittaṃ taṃsampayuttā ca tayo arūpakkhandhā tena saha nibbattañca kalalarūpanti ayaṃ sabbapaṭhamo manussaviggaho. Tattha kalalarūpan-ti itthipurisānaṃ kāyavatthubhāvadasakavasena samatiṃsa rūpāni, napuṃsakānaṃ kāyavatthudasakavasena vīsati. Tattha itthipurisānaṃ kalalarūpaṃ jātiuṇṇāya ekena aṃsunā uddhaṭatelabindumattaṃ hoti acchaṃ vippasannaṃ.

[1534] Peṭ 115: Phasso ti cha phassakāyā cakkhusamphasso yāva manosamphasso ti phasso. Cha vedanākāyā vedanā. Taṇhā ti cha taṇhākāyā taṇhā. Upādānan-ti cattāri upādānāni kāmupādānaṃ diṭṭhupādānaṃ sīlabbatupādānaṃ attavādupādānanti upādānaṃ.

[1535] A I 223: Kāmadhātuvepakkañca, … Rūpadhātuvepakkañca, … arūpadhātuvepakkañca, ānanda, kammaṃ nābhavissa, api nu kho arūpabhavo paññāyethā ti? No hetaṃ, bhante. Iti kho, ānanda, kammaṃ khettaṃ, viññāṇaṃ bījaṃ, taṇhā sneho. Avijjānīvaraṇānaṃ sattānaṃ taṇhāsaṃyojanānaṃ paṇītāya dhātuyā viññāṇaṃ patiṭṭhitaṃ evaṃ āyatiṃ punabbhavābhinibbatti hoti. Evaṃ kho, ānanda, bhavo hotī ti. Peṭ 115: Bhavoti tayo bhavā kāmabhavo rūpabhavo arūpabhavo.

[1536] S II 2: Yā tesaṃ tesaṃ sattānaṃ tamhi tamhi sattanikāye jāti sañjāti okkanti nibbatti abhinibbatti khandhānaṃ pātubhāvo āyatanānaṃ paṭilābho. Ayaṃ vuccati, bhikkhave, jāti. Peṭ 115: Yā paṭhamaṃ khandhānaṃ paṭhamaṃ dhātūnaṃ paṭhamaṃ āyatanānaṃ uppatti jāti sañjāti okkanti abhinibbatti khandhānaṃ pātubhāvo, ayaṃ jāti.

450b03

A. For a long time, the five aggregates subject to clinging have been attached to (ajjhosita), cherished (mamāyita) and held on to (parāmaṭṭha) as "this is mine," ["this I am"] and "this is my self" by the uninstructed commoner due to not knowing the Four Noble Truths.[1538]

Thus, the desire (icchā, abhinandi, rati) for existence, the attachment to [existence], and the desire for the origination (samudaya) [of existence] are the intention and design for existence.[1539] That intention, design and tendency [due to] non-knowledge (aññāṇa)[1540] is the basis (vatthu) for obtaining an existence and for the establishing in an existence. It is like a seed [planted] in a ploughed, prepared field.[1541] Without that [seed of] consciousness, there is the cessation of existence. This is "with ignorance as condition, formations."

Formations are produced [due to] that ignorance. The intention (cetanā) to enter existence and the

---

[1537] Both the Chinese text and Tibetan text abbreviate the formula, although the Chinese text does not indicate it. The Tibetan text has: "Now, why it is said 'with ignorance as condition, formations' until 'with birth as condition, ageing and death'?"

[1538] S II 94: Yañ ca kho etaṃ bhikkhave vuccati cittaṃ iti pi mano iti pi viññāṇaṃ iti pi tatrāssutavā puthujjano nālaṃ nibbindituṃ nālaṃ virajjituṃ nālaṃ vimuccituṃ. Taṃ kissa hetu? Dīgharattaṃ hetaṃ bhikkhave assutavato puthujjanassa ajjhositaṃ mamāyitaṃ parāmaṭṭhaṃ etaṃ mama eso 'hamasmi eso me attā ti. Tasmā tatrāssutavā puthujjano nālaṃ nibbindituṃ nālaṃ virajjituṃ nālaṃ vimuccituṃ.

[1539] 如是有樂著樂。和合為有思惟. The Tibetan (185b) text has: "In this way, due to attachment for existence, he designs for and tends to the origination of the sphere (āyatana) of existence. Those intentions, designs, and tendencies, due to not-knowing, are the grounds (vatthu) of the origination [of existence], of the obtaining of existence, [and] for establishment in existence. It is like planting a good seed in moist earth. Therein, there is no knowledge of the cessation of existence." (bdag go zhes lhag par zhen par byed do de dag de bzhin du srid pa la zhen pas srid par kun du 'byung zhing srid pa'i skye mched la rab tu rtog par byed cing rjes su nyal bar byed do de dag gi sems pa dang rab tu rtog pa dang bag la nyal de rnams ni dngos po yongs su mi shes pa las byung ba'i srid pa thob pa'i ched du srid pa la gnas par 'gyur ro rlan can gyi sa la sa bon bzang po btab pa bzhin no de la srid pa 'gag pa'i ye shes yod pa ma yin no), Ud 32: Aññathābhāvī bhavasatto loko, / Bhavapareto bhavamevābhinandati. … Ud-a 210: Bhavamevābhinandatīti evaṃ santepi taṃ maññanāparikappitaṃ avijjamānaṃ bhavaṃ vaḍḍhiṃ abhinandati eva abhikaṅkhati eva. … Bhavasatto ti kāmādibhavesu bhavataṇhāya satto laggo gadhito.

Cf. S II 65–66: Yañca, bhikkhave, ceteti yañca pakappeti yañca anuseti, ārammaṇametaṃ hoti viññāṇassa ṭhitiyā. Ārammaṇe sati patiṭṭhā viññāṇassa hoti. Tasmiṃ patiṭṭhite viññāṇe virūḷhe āyatiṃ punabbhavābhinibbatti hoti. Āyatiṃ punabbhavābhinibbattiyā sati āyatiṃ jāti jarāmaraṇaṃ sokaparidevadukkhadomanassupāyāsā sambhavanti. Evametassa kevalassa dukkhakkhandhassa samudayo hoti. … Yañca, bhikkhave, ceteti yañca pakappeti yañca anuseti, ārammaṇametaṃ hoti viññāṇassa ṭhitiyā. Ārammaṇe sati patiṭṭhā viññāṇassa hoti. Tasmiṃ patiṭṭhite viññāṇe virūḷhe nāmarūpassa avakkanti hoti. Nāmarūpapaccayā saḷāyatanaṃ; saḷāyatanapaccayā phasso; phassapaccayā vedanā…pe… taṇhā… upādānaṃ… bhavo… jāti… jarāmaraṇaṃ sokaparidevadukkhadomanassupāyāsā sambhavanti. S II 100: Kabaḷīkāre … Phasse … manosañcetanāya, … viññāṇe ce bhikkhave āhāre atthi rāgo atthi nandī atthi taṇhā, patiṭṭhitaṃ tattha viññāṇaṃ virūḷhaṃ. Yattha patiṭṭhitaṃ viññāṇaṃ virūḷhaṃ, atthi tattha nāmarūpassa avakkanti. … S III 53: Rūpupayaṃ vā, … … saṅkhārupayaṃ vā, bhikkhave, viññāṇaṃ tiṭṭhamānaṃ tiṭṭheyya, saṅkhārārammaṇaṃ saṅkhārappatiṭṭhaṃ nandūpasecanaṃ vuddhiṃ virūḷhiṃ vepullaṃ āpajjeyya.

[1540] 彼思惟使非智所處。為得有成住於有. Perhaps 使非智 means "tendency of non-knowledge," i.e. avijjānusaya, but 非智 corresponds to aññāṇa, not avijjā.

[1541] S I 134 Yathā aññataraṃ bījaṃ, khette vuttaṃ virūhati; pathavīrasañcāgamma, sinehañca tadūbhayaṃ. Evaṃ khandhā ca dhātuyo, cha ca āyatanā ime; hetuṃ paṭicca sambhūtā, hetubhaṅgā nirujjhare'ti. Sn 238. Khīṇaṃ purāṇaṃ navaṃ natthi sambhavaṃ, virattacittāyatike bhavasmiṃ; te khīṇabījā avirūḷhichandā, nibbanti dhīrā yathāyaṃ padīpo. S III 54–55: Imāni cassu, bhikkhave, pañca bījajātāni akhaṇḍāni…pe… sukhasayitāni, pathavī ca assa, āpo ca assa; api numāni, bhikkhave, pañca bījajātāni vuddhiṃ virūḷhiṃ vepullaṃ āpajjeyyunti? Evaṃ, bhante. Seyyathāpi, bhikkhave, pathavīdhātu, evaṃ catasso viññāṇaṭṭhitiyo daṭṭhabbā. Seyyathāpi, bhikkhave, āpodhātu, evaṃ nandirāgo daṭṭhabbo. Seyyathāpi, bhikkhave, pañca bījajātāni, evaṃ viññāṇaṃ sāhāraṃ daṭṭhabbaṃ. Rūpupayaṃ, … Vedanupayaṃ … Saññupayaṃ … Saṅkhārupayaṃ vā, bhikkhave, viññāṇaṃ tiṭṭhamānaṃ tiṭṭheyya, saṅkhārārammaṇaṃ saṅkhārappatiṭṭhaṃ nandūpasecanaṃ vuddhiṃ virūḷhiṃ vepullaṃ āpajjeyya. Yo, bhikkhave, evaṃ vadeyya: ahamaññatra rūpā aññatra vedanāya aññatra saññāya aññatra saṅkhārehi viññāṇassa āgatiṃ vā gatiṃ vā cutiṃ vā upapattiṃ vā vuddhiṃ vā virūḷhiṃ vā vepullaṃ vā paññāpessāmī'ti, netaṃ ṭhānaṃ vijjati. Rūpadhātuyā … Viññāṇadhātuyā ce, bhikkhave, bhikkhuno rāgo pahīno hoti. Rāgassa pahānā vocchijjatārammaṇaṃ patiṭṭhā viññāṇassa na hoti. Tadappatiṭṭhitaṃ viññāṇaṃ avirūḷhaṃ anabhisaṅkhaccavimuttaṃ. S-a II 271: Catasso viññāṇaṭṭhitiyoti kammaviññāṇassa ārammaṇabhūtā rūpādayo cattāro khandhā. Te hi ārammaṇavasena patiṭṭhābhūtattā pathavīdhātusadisā. Nandirāgo sinehanaṭṭhena āpodhātusadiso. Viññāṇaṃ sāhāranti sappaccayaṃ kammaviññāṇaṃ. Tañhi bījaṃ viya pathaviyaṃ ārammaṇapathaviyaṃ viruhati. S IV 168: Nimittassādagadhitaṃ vā, bhikkhave, viññāṇaṃ tiṭṭhamānaṃ tiṭṭhati anubyañjanassādagadhitaṃ vā, tasmiṃ ce samaye kālaṃ karoti, ṭhānametaṃ vijjati, yaṃ dvinnaṃ gatīnaṃ aññataraṃ gatiṃ upapajjeyya nirayaṃ vā tiracchānayoniṃ vā.

attachment to the signs and objects[1542] of existence is accumulation (āyuhana). At adverting (āvajjana) to existence there arises relinking-consciousness. In existence the process of mind[1543] is not cut off.[1544] Therefore, "with formations as condition, consciousness."

Simile of the sun and the simile of the two bundles of reeds

As without the sun, there is neither establishing of a ray of light on the ground nor any increase of it, so without name and matter there is no consciousness. There is no body (sarīra) to be established in and grow.[1545] 450b11 It is like reeds leaning against each other are mutually depending on each other. Therefore, "with consciousness as condition, name and matter."[1546]

Dependent upon the (material) base (vatthu), name and the other co-nascent (sahājāta) [mental properties] arise. The growth of the mind-sense-base (manāyatana) is dependent upon name.[1547] With the life (faculty), the four great entities, as well as nutriment and season as condition, the other five sense-bases arise and grow.[1548] There is no [arising of these] other than with these conditions.[1549] Therefore, "with name and matter as condition, six sense-bases."

By the coming together (saṅgati, sannippāta) of the sense-faculties, sense-objects (visaya) and consciousness,[1550] contact arises. Therefore, "with the six sense-bases as condition, contact."

Through contact there is feeling—pain, pleasure and neither pain nor pleasure. Without contact, [there is no feeling].[1551] Therefore, "with contact as condition, feeling."

When the foolish commoner (bāla puthujjana) feels pleasure, he is attached to it and seeks even

---

[1542] 相事, lit. nimitta- or lakkhaṇa-ārammaṇa, "signs/characteristics and objects," however, the Tibetan has mtshan mar dmigs pa, "relinking objects." Perhaps the character 續 of 續相事, paṭisandhi-ārammaṇa, got lost in the Chinese, where, in the next sentence, 續相識, paṭisandhi-viññāṇa, is used. In the Vism, etc, paṭisandhi is said to have an an object, ārammaṇa, e.g., Vism XVII.133–145, Kiṃ paṭisandhiyā ārammaṇanti. … paṭisandhiyā tīṇi ārammaṇāni honti … Asaññā paṭisandhi anārammaṇā ti …. But nimitta could be intended because the action- and destination-signs are said to be the object of the relinking consciousness. See the discussion on kamma, kammanimitta, gati, gatinimitta below in the "three links" section of this chapter, and the references in the footnotes there.

[1543] 隨心, lit. "following/sequent/-mind," anu + citta. Probably this denotes the vīthicitta. The Tibetan text has nges pa'i sems pa, niyama/viniścita-citta, ascertaining-mind. 隨心, according to DDB can correspond to cittānuvṛtti, so perhaps the Tibetan translator understood vīthicitta, or cittavīthi, as vṛtticitta.

[1544] A tentative translation of the Tibetan text: "Due to not-knowing of those, there is the production of mental formations. Therefore, due to delight (nandi, rati) for existence, there is entering upon existence. By increasing the relinking objects, he adverts to existence and generates relinking consciousness. There is no cutting off of the process of mind of existence." (de dag gi mi shes pas rab tu bskrun pa mngon par 'du byed pa'i sems pa des srid pa la dga' bas srid par zhugs shing srid pa mtsan mar dmigs pa rgyas pas yongs su 'gyur ba'i srid pa dang mtsams sbyor ba'i rnam par shes pa skyed par byed do de dag gi srid pa nges pa'i sems pa rgyun chad pa ni ma yin no de'i phyir 'du byed kyi rkyen las rnam par shes pa'o).

[1545] Tibetan: "… just so, without consciousness, there is no descent into the womb (gabbhāvakkanti) of name and form, nor is there growth [of it]," de kho na bzhin du rnam par shes pa med par ming dang gzugs mngal du 'jug pa 'am 'phel ba ni ma yin no.

Cf. SN 12:64/S II 103: Seyyathāpi, bhikkhave, kūṭāgāraṃ … vā uttarāya vā … vātapānā sūriye uggacchanta vātapānena rasmi pavisitvā kvāssa patiṭṭhitā ti? … Evaṃ eva viññāṇe ce, bhikkhave, āhāre natthi rāgo … appatiṭṭhitaṃ tattha viññāṇaṃ avirūḷhaṃ.

[1546] S II 114: Seyyathāpi āvuso dve naḷakalāpiyo aññamaññaṃ nissāya tiṭṭheyyuṃ, evam eva kho āvuso nāmarūpapaccayā viññāṇaṃ …

[1547] 依處餘名共生起。意入增長. Tibetan: "The mind-sense-base: dependent upon the base (vatthunissita), name and the conascents occur. (yid kyi skye mched ni dngos po la brten te ming dang lhan cig tu 'byung ba dang 'jug par byed do. Cf. Vibh 138 etc.: nāmapaccayā chaṭṭhāyatanaṃ.

[1548] Is this referring to the four conditions, i.e. kamma, utu, citta and āhāra as given in the element section (439c11)? Two are mentioned, i.e. utu and āhāra, but not kamma and citta.

Cf. Vibh-a 21: Tattha vatthurūpaṃ, tassa nissayāni cattāri mahābhūtāni, taṃnissitā vaṇṇagandharasojā, jīvitanti, idaṃ vatthudasakaṃ nāma.

[1549] The Chinese literally has, "not other (than) these conditions," 非餘此緣. Tibetan (186a): "The other five sense-bases arise and occur with name together with the four elements that depend on food and time as condition. Without these, there is no [arising]," de med par ni ma yin no.

[1550] This would refer to contact arising because of the coming together of sense-faculty, sense-object, and consciousness, i.e., to the 18 elements—the internal and external sense-bases and the consciousness arising dependent on it.

[1551] Ssv 186a: "Without contact [it] is not," reg pa med par ma yin no.

more [of it]. When he feels pain, to counter that [pain], he looks for pleasure. If he feels neither pain nor pleasure, he feels equanimity.[1552] Therefore, "with feeling as condition, craving." 450b18

Through craving,[1553] he clings strongly to the object of craving. Therefore, "with craving as condition, clinging."

The clinging to existence (bhavupādāna) creates the object (ārammaṇa) for the kinds of existence.[1554] Therefore, "with clinging as condition, existence."

According to his particular deeds, there is birth in the various destinations (gati). 450b20 Therefore, "with existence as condition, birth."

Through birth, there is ageing and death. Therefore, "with birth as condition, ageing and death."

Simile of the seed, shoot and plant

As the rice-seed is the condition for the husk,[1555] so ignorance should be understood as the condition for the formations. As the seed is the condition for the sprout;[1556] so formations are the condition for consciousness. As the leaf is the condition for the sprout; so consciousness is the condition for name and matter. As the leaf is the condition for the stalk; so name and matter is the condition for six sense-bases. As the stalk is the condition for the plant; so six sense-bases are the condition for contact. As the plant is the condition for the flower; so contact is the condition for feeling. As the flower is the condition for nectar; so feeling is the condition for craving. As nectar is the condition for the ear of rice; so craving is the condition for clinging. As the ear of rice is the condition for the seed; so clinging, is the condition for existence . As the seed is the condition for the sprout; so existence is the condition for birth.

Thus there is the arising of a succession (santati) of seeds of which the anterior end (pubbanta) cannot be known and the posterior end (aparanta) also cannot be known. [450c] Similarly, birth has ignorance as its first cause (nidāna) of succession (santati). Its anterior end cannot be known and its posterior end also cannot be known.[1557] If one asks: What is the condition of ignorance? The answer is: Just ignorance is the condition for ignorance.[1558] The latent tendencies (anusaya) are the condition for [1552] Cf. Vibh-a 180: Dukkhī sukhaṃ patthayati, sukhī bhiyyo pi icchati, / upekhā pana santattā sukham icc' eva bhāsitā. S IV 205: Sukhaṃ vediyamānassa, vedanaṃ appajānato; / So rāgānusayo hoti, anissaraṇadassino. / Dukkhaṃ vedayamānassa, vedanaṃ appajānato; / Paṭighānusayo hoti, anissaraṇadassino. / Adukkhamasukhaṃ santaṃ, bhūripaññena desitaṃ; / Tañcāpi abhinandati, neva dukkhā pamuccati. Cf. S IV 208: So dukkhāya vedanāya phuṭṭho samāno kāmasukhaṃ abhinandati. Taṃ kissa hetu? Na hi so, bhikkhave, pajānāti assutavā puthujjano aññatra kāmasukhā dukkhāya vedanāya nissaraṇaṃ, …

---

[1553] Ssv "When attached to feeling, one grasps the object of craving firmly…."

[1554] Ssv 186a "The actions associated with clinging are the seeds for existence (bhavabīja)," len pa dang bcas pa'i las byas pa rnams srid pa'i sa bon du 'gyur ro.

[1555] The Chinese has 穀, dhañña, unhusked rice, here, while below, under "craving is the condition for clinging," where it should be the same, it instead has 米, husked rice, sāli. The Tibetan term for the former, gnas bon, is obscure, while for the latter it is gong bu, = piṇḍa, "bundle/mass."

[1556] Cf. Vibh-a 196: Bīje sati aṅkuro viya. Mhv XV 43: Bījamhā nikkhamma aṅkuro.

[1557] Cf. Nett 79 (…bījaṅkuro viya…) in the next note. Cf. Mil 50: Rājā āha bhante nāgasena, atītassa addhānassa kiṃ mūlaṃ, anāgatassa addhānassa kiṃ mūlaṃ, paccuppannassa addhānassa kiṃ mūlanti? Atītassa ca, mahārāja, addhānassa anāgatassa ca addhānassa paccuppannassa ca addhānassa avijjā mūlaṃ. Avijjāpaccayā saṅkhārā, … sokaparidevadukkhadomanassupāyāsā sambhavanti. Evametassa kevalassa dukkhakkhandhassa addhānassa purimā koṭi na paññāyatīti. … Rājā āha bhante nāgasena, yaṃ panetaṃ brūsi purimā koṭi na paññāyatīti, tassa opammaṃ karohīti. Yathā, mahārāja, puriso parittaṃ bījaṃ pathaviyaṃ nikkhipeyya, tato aṅkuro uṭṭhahitvā anupubbena vuḍḍhiṃ virūḷhiṃ vepullaṃ āpajjitvā phalaṃ dadeyya. Tato bījaṃ gahetvā puna ropeyya, tatopi aṅkuro uṭṭhahitvā anupubbena vuḍḍhiṃ virūḷhiṃ vepullaṃ āpajjitvā phalaṃ dadeyya. Evametissā santatiyā atthi antoti? Natthi bhante ti. Evameva kho, mahārāja, addhānassāpi purimā koṭi na paññāyatīti.

Cf. S II 178: Anamataggāyaṃ bhikkhave saṃsāro pubbākoṭi na paññāyati avijjānīvaraṇānaṃ sattānaṃ taṇhāsaṃyojanānaṃ sandhāvataṃ saṃsarataṃ.

[1558] a. Cf. S IV 50: Avijjā kho bhikkhu eko dhammo yassa pahānā bhikkhuno avijjā pahīyati vijjā uppajjatīti. (Cf. D II 215, A V 116) b. Nett 79: Vuttaṃ hi avijjāpaccayā saṅkhārā, saṅkhārapaccayā viññāṇaṃ. Evaṃ sabbo paṭiccasamuppādo. Iti avijjā avijjāya hetu, ayonisomanasikāro paccayo. Purimikā avijjā pacchimikāya avijjāya hetu. Tattha purimikā avijjā avijjānusayo, pacchimikā avijjā avijjāpariyuṭṭhānam. Purimiko avijjānusayo pacchimikassa avijjāpariyuṭṭhānassa hetubhūto paribrūhanāya bījaṅkuro viya samanantarahetutāya. Yaṃ pana yattha phalaṃ nibbattati, idaṃ tassa paramparahetutāya hetubhūtaṃ. Duvidho hi hetu: samanantarahetu paraṃparahetu ca. Evaṃ avijjāya pi duvidho hetu: samanantarahetu paramparahetu ca.

(Likewise taṇhā has as its condition taṇhā, see D II 309: dhammataṇhā loke piyarūpaṃ sātarūpaṃ etthesā taṇhā the obsessions (pariyuṭṭhāna). The obsessions are the condition for the latent tendencies.[1559] The former [are the conditions] for the former and the latter for the latter.[1560]

Again, all the defilements are the condition for ignorance. As the Buddha taught: "With the origination of the taints, there is the origination of ignorance."[1561]

Dependent arising within a single mind-state

450c05 Again, [dependent arising occurs] according to a single mind-state.[1562]

---

uppajjamānā uppajjati… [Nt])

[1559] Cf. Dhs 79, §§ 390: Yaṃ tasmiṃ samaye aññāṇaṃ adassanaṃ anabhisamayo ananubodho asambodho appaṭivedho asaṃgāhanā apariyogāhanā asamapekkhanā apaccavekkhanā apaccakkha-kammaṃ dummejjhaṃ balyaṃ asampajaññaṃ moho pamoho sammoho avijjā avijjogho avijjāyogo avijjānusayo avijjāpariyuṭṭhānaṃ avijjālaṅgī moho moho akusalamūlaṃ—ayaṃ tasmiṃ samaye moho hoti. Nett 14: Paññāya anusayā pahiyyanti, anusayesu pahīnesu pariyuṭṭhānā pahiyyanti. Kissa anusayassa pahīnattā? Taṃ yathā khandhavantassa rukkhassa anavasesamūluddharaṇe kate pupphaphalapavāḷaṅkurasantati samucchinnā bhavati, evaṃ anusayesu pahīnesu pariyuṭṭhānasantati samucchinnā bhavati pidahitā paṭicchannā. Kena? Paññāya. Peṭ 105: Paṭiccasamuppādo yathā avijjāpaccayo tassa puna kiṃpaccayo, ayoniso manasikāro. So kassa paccayo saṅkhārānaṃ, iti paccayo ca samuppannaṃ ca tassa ko hetu avijjā yeva. Tathā hi purimā koṭi na paññāyati. Tattha avijjānusayo avijjāpariyuṭṭhānassa hetu purimā hetu pacchā paccayo sāpi avijjāsaṅkhārānaṃ paccayo catūhi kāraṇehi sahajātapaccayatāya samanantarapaccayatāya abhisandanapaccayatāya patiṭṭhānapaccayatāya. Avijjā samanantarapaccayatāya saṅkhārānaṃ paccayo yena cittena saha samuppannā avijjā tassa cittassa samanantaracittaṃ samuppannanti, tassa yaṃ samanantaracittaṃ samuppannanti, tassa pacchimassa cittassa purimacittaṃ hetupaccayatāya paccayo, tena avijjā hetu tena cittena upādānaṃ anokāsakatā ñāṇaṃ na uppajjanti. Yā tassa appamādā dhātu abhijjhābhisanditā tahiṃ vipallāsā uppajjanti asubhe subhanti dukkhe sukhanti, tattha saṅkhārā uppajjanti rattā duṭṭhā mūlassa cetanā rāgapariyuṭṭhānena byāpādapariyuṭṭhānena avijjāpariyuṭṭhānena diṭṭhivipallāso vatthuniddese niddisitabbo, yaṃ viparītacitto vijānāti ayaṃ cittavipallāso, yā viparītasaññā upaggaṇhāti ayaṃ saññāvipallāso. Yaṃ viparītadiṭṭhi abhinivisati ayaṃ diṭṭhivipallāso. Aṭṭha micchattāni vaḍḍhanti, tīṇi akusalāni ayoniso manasikāre uppannaṃ viññāṇañca vijjañca karonti. Iti pubbāparante akusalānātaritaro saṅkhārā vuddhiṃ vepullataṃ gacchanti. Te ca mahatā ca appaṭividitā ponobhavikā saṅkhārā bhavanti. Iti evaṃ avijjā sahajātapaccayatāya saṅkhārānaṃ paccayo samanantarapaccayatāya ca.

[1560] The Chinese literally has: "Former (pure, pubbe) for former, latter (pacchā) for latter," 初為初後為後. Ssv 186b: "The former is the condition for the former and the latter is the condition for the latter," sngon ma'i rkyen sngon ma'o phyi ma'i rkyen phyi ma'o. See Netti 79, purimikā avijjā pacchimikāya avijjāya hetu, two notes above.

[1561] M I 54: … Āsavasamudayā avijjāsamudayo, āsavanirodhā avijjānirodho. … Tayo me āvuso āsavā: kāmāsavo bhavāsavo avijjāsavo. Avijjāsamudayā āsavasamudayo, avijjānirodhā āsavanirodho.

[1562] 一心法, eka-cittadhamma or cetasikā. Cf. the conclusion of this section 450c13: 如是於一剎那。成十二因緣。"within a single thought-instant." Ssv 186b has sems gcig pa'i tshul = cetasika/citta eka-vidhi/naya/vṛtta, "the manner/mode of a single mind-state."

This passage refers to the Abhidhammabhājanīya method of explaining paṭiccasamuppāda as taking place within a single mind moment. See Vibh-a 199ff/§§ 932–1009: "… yasmā na kevalaṃ ayaṃ paccayākāro nānācittesuyeva hoti, ekacittepi hotiyeva, tasmā abhidhammabhājanīyavasena ekacittakkhaṇikaṃ paccayākāraṃ nānappakārato dassetuṃ avijjāpaccayā saṅkhārotiādinā nayena mātikaṃ tāva ṭhapesi…." Vibh-a is commenting on a section of the Vibhaṅga which describes dependent origination taking place at the occasion that an unwholesome mind has arisen. This Vibh section has some similarities to the description here.

Vibh 144–148 (§§248–255): Katame dhammā akusalā? Yasmiṃ samaye akusalaṃ cittaṃ uppannaṃ hoti somanassasahagataṃ diṭṭhigatasampayuttaṃ rūpārammaṇaṃ vā saddārammaṇaṃ vā … dhammārammaṇaṃ vā yaṃ yaṃ vā panārabbha. … … Tasmiṃ samaye avijjāpaccayā saṅkhāro, saṅkhārapaccayā viññāṇaṃ, viññāṇapaccayā nāmarūpaṃ, nāmarūpapaccayā chaṭṭhāyatanaṃ, chaṭṭhāyatanapaccayā phasso, … dukkhakkhandhassa samudayo hoti. Tattha katamā avijjā? Yaṃ aññāṇaṃ adassanaṃ … moho akusalamūlaṃ. … Yā cetanā sañcetanā sañcetayitattaṃ, ayaṃ vuccati avijjāpaccayā saṅkhāro. … Yaṃ cittaṃ mano … viññāṇakkhandho tajjāmanoviññāṇadhātu, idaṃ vuccati saṅkhārapaccayā viññāṇaṃ. … Tattha katamaṃ viññāṇapaccayā nāmarūpaṃ? … Vedanākkhandho, saññākkhandho, saṅkhārakkhandha, idaṃ vuccati nāmaṃ. … Cakkhāyatanassa … kāyāyatanassa upacayo, yaṃ vā panaññampi atthi rūpaṃ cittajaṃ cittahetukaṃ cittasamuṭṭhānaṃ, idaṃ vuccati rūpaṃ. Iti idañca nāmaṃ, idañca rūpaṃ. Idaṃ vuccati viññāṇapaccayā nāmarūpaṃ. Nāmarūpapaccayā chaṭṭhāyatananti. … saṅkhārakkhandho, idaṃ vuccati nāmaṃ. … Yaṃ rūpaṃ nissāya manoviññāṇadhātu vattati, idaṃ vuccati rūpaṃ. … Idaṃ vuccati nāmarūpaṃ. … Yo phasso phusanā …, ayaṃ vuccati chaṭṭhāyatanapaccayā phasso. … Yaṃ cetasikaṃ sātaṃ … cetosamphassajā sātā sukhā vedanā, ayaṃ vuccati phassapaccayā vedanā. … Yo rāgo … nandirāgo cittassa sārāgo, ayaṃ vuccati vedanāpaccayā taṇhā. … Yā diṭṭhi diṭṭhigataṃ … vipariyāsaggāho, idaṃ vuccati taṇhāpaccayā upādānaṃ. … Ṭhapetvā upādānaṃ, vedanākkhandho saññākkhandho saṅkhārakkhandho viññāṇakkhandho, ayaṃ vuccati upādānapaccayā bhavo. … Yā tesaṃ tesaṃ dhammānaṃ jāti sañjāti nibbatti abhinibbatti pātubhāvo, ayaṃ vuccati bhavapaccayā jāti. … Atthi jarā, atthi maraṇaṃ. Tattha katamā jarā? Yā tesaṃ tesaṃ dhammānaṃ jarā jīraṇatā āyuno saṃhāni, ayaṃ vuccati jarā. … Yo tesaṃ tesaṃ dhammānaṃ khayo vayo bhedo paribhedo aniccatā antaradhānaṃ, idaṃ vuccati maraṇaṃ. Iti ayañca jarā, idañca maraṇaṃ. Idaṃ vuccati

When seeing a form with the eye, the foolish person gives rise to craving (taṇhā). When the mind is deluded with regard to the beauty and pleasure (subha-sukha)—this is called "ignorance."

The intention (cetanā) due to attachment is "with ignorance as condition, formations."[1563]

The mind (citta) due to attachment[1564] is "with formations as condition, consciousness."

The mental states (cetasika dhamma) associated with consciousness[1565] and the derived matters (upādarūpa) due to that are "with consciousness as condition, name and matter."

With joy (nandi, somanassa, sāta) born of craving as condition, with joy, and with matter [born of] joy as condition, there is sensitivity of the sense-faculties.[1566] This is "with name and matter as condition, the six sense-bases."

Ignorance-contact (avijjāsamphassa)[1567] is "with the six sense-bases as condition, contact."

Joy is "with contact as condition, feeling."

Desire (rāga) is "with feeling as condition, craving."

The clinging to beauty and pleasure due to attachment; this is "with craving as condition, clinging."[1568]

The intention due to attachment—this is "with clinging as condition, existence."

The manifestation of those states[1569] is "with existence as condition, birth."

---

jātipaccayā jarāmaraṇaṃ. Evametassa kevalassa dukkhakkhandhassa samudayo hotīti.

[1563] Ssv 186b: "Ignorance gives rise to excitation (pariphandana?) of the body and so on—this is formations," ma rig pas rab tu skyed pa'i lus la sogs pa yongs su g-yo ba 'di ni 'du byed do.

[1564] The Chinese character 著 covers a wide range of corresponding Sanskrit and Pali terms such as ajjhosāna, abhinivesa, gedha, anuyoga, etc. The Tibetan has chags, which corresponds to gedha, lobha and rāga.

[1565] The Chinese has 知, "knowing," vijjā, jānati, which could be due to a corruption in the source-text of the Chinese translator, i.e., it had ñāṇa or viññā instead of viññāṇa. Ssv 186b: "The mental factors associated with that and the derived matters due to that ..." (de dang ldan pa'i sems las byung ba dang des kun nas bslang ba'i gzugs ni rnam par shes pa'i rkyen las ming dang gzugs so)

[1566] 從愛生喜緣。喜故。喜色緣故緣諸根清淨. The first clauses might be corrupt in the Chinese text. The Tibetan text makes more sense here, but might be wrong in the last clause. Daśabalaśrīmitra, or the Tibetan translator, misunderstood pasāda, and turned the last clause into a negative: "With joy born of desire as condition, with matter born of joy as condition, there is no lucidity (pasāda) of the pure/bare (suddha) sense-faculties." ('dod chags las skyes pa'i rkyen dga' ba dang dga' ba las skyes pa'i rkyen gzugs dag gi dbang po rnams kyi rab tu dang ba ma yin pa ni)

Cf. Paṭis I 52: Idha paṭisandhi viññāṇaṃ, okkanti nāmarūpaṃ, pasādo āyatanaṃ. Cf. Paṭis I 112: Kathaṃ tiṇṇaṃ cittānaṃ vipphārattā indriyānaṃ pasādavasena nānattekattaviññāṇacariyāpariyogāhaṇe paññā cetopariyañāṇaṃ? ... So imesu catūsu iddhipādesu cittaṃ paribhāvetvā paridametvā, muduṃ karitvā kammaniyaṃ evaṃ pajānāti, idaṃ rūpaṃ somanassindriyasamuṭṭhitaṃ, ... Paṭis-a I 51: Indriyānaṃ pasādavasenāti cakkhādīnaṃ channaṃ indriyānaṃ pasādavasena, indriyānaṃ patiṭṭhitokāsā cettha phalūpacārena indriyānanti vuttā yathā vippasannāni kho te, āvuso, indriyāni parisuddho chavivaṇṇo pariyodāto ti. Indriyapatiṭṭhitokāsesupi hadayavatthu eva idhādhippetaṃ. Pasādavasenāti ca anāvilabhāvavasena. Cf. Paṭis I 52: Idha paṭisandhi viññāṇaṃ, okkanti nāmarūpaṃ, pasādo āyatanaṃ.

[1567] The term avijjāsamphassa is very rare in Pali, occuring only in the following two SN suttas and their commentaries, which also describe dependent origination, and its cessation, as taking place in one occasion. S III 96: Idha bhikkhave, assutavā puthujjano ... rūpaṃ attato samanupassati. Yā kho pana sā, bhikkhave, samanupassanā saṅkhāro so. So pana saṅkhāro kiṃnidāno kiṃsamudayo kiṃjātiko kiṃpabhavo? Avijjāsamphassajena, bhikkhave, vedayitena phuṭṭhassa assutavato puthujjanassa uppannā taṇhā; tatojo so saṅkhāro. Iti kho, bhikkhave, so pi saṅkhāro, anicco saṅkhato paṭiccasamuppanno; sā pi taṇhā ....; vedanā ...; phasso ...; avijjā aniccā saṅkhatā paṭiccasamuppannā. Evampi kho, bhikkhave, jānato evaṃ passato anantarā āsavānaṃ khayo hoti. Cf. S III 46 Idha, bhikkhave, assutavā puthujjano ... rūpaṃ ... viññāṇaṃ attato samanupassati, ... Iti ayañceva samanupassanā asmī ti cassa avigataṃ [adhigataṃ v.l.] hoti. Asmī ti kho pana, bhikkhave, avigate pañcannaṃ indriyānaṃ avakkanti hoti—cakkhundriyassa ... kāyindriyassa. Atthi, bhikkhave, mano, atthi dhammā, atthi avijjādhātu. Avijjāsamphassajena, bhikkhave, vedayitena phuṭṭhassa assutavato puthujjanassa asmī ti pissa hoti ... bhavissanti pissa hoti. Tiṭṭhanti kho pana, bhikkhave, tattheva [tatheva v.l.] pañcindriyāni. Athettha sutavato ariyasāvakassa avijjā pahīyati, vijjā uppajjati. Tassa avijjāvirāgā vijjuppādā asmīti pissa na hoti ... Cf. A III 411, Kv 370: Api ca kho, bhikkhave, nete kāmā kāmaguṇā nāmete ariyassa vinaye vuccanti: Saṅkapparāgo purisassa kāmo, / nete kāmā yāni citrāni loke. / saṅkapparāgo purisassa kāmo, / tiṭṭhanti citrāni tatheva loke; / athettha dhīrā vinayanti chandanti. Cf. S I 22, Sn-a II 539, Sn 173.

[1568] Tibetan text: "Due to desire, he grasps beauty and pleasure (subha ca sukha): with craving as condition, grasping." (chags pas mdzes pa dang bde bar 'dzin pa ni sred pa'i rkyen las len pa'o).

[1569] Vibh 145: Tattha katamā bhavapaccayā jāti? Yā tesaṃ tesaṃ dhammānaṃ jāti sañjāti nibbatti abhinibbatti pātubhāvo, ayaṃ vuccati bhavapaccayā jāti. Tattha katamaṃ jātipaccayā jarāmaraṇaṃ? Atthi jarā, atthi maraṇaṃ. Tattha katamā jarā? Yā tesaṃ tesaṃ dhammānaṃ jarā jīraṇatā āyuno saṃhāni, ayaṃ vuccati jarā. Tattha katamaṃ maraṇaṃ? Yo tesaṃ tesaṃ dhammānaṃ khayo vayo bhedo paribhedo aniccatā antaradhānaṃ, idaṃ vuccati maraṇaṃ. ...

[Their alteration] having remained is "aging."[1570]
[Their] momentary disintegration is "death."[1571]
Thus there is the twelve factored dependent orgination in a single moment (eka-khaṇa).

Questions on actions, defilements, results, etc.

Q. Of the twelve-factored dependent arising, how many factors are called defilements, how many are called action (kamma), how many are results, how many are past, how many are future, how many are present, how many are causes (nidāna), how many have already arisen? What is dependent arising? What are dependently arisen states? What are the differences between these two? What is the profound nature of dependent arising? 450c16

A. Three are the defilements, namely, ignorance, craving and clinging. Two are action, namely, the formations and existence. The other seven are results.

Here, the defilements are the cause for the production of further existence (punabbhavabhinibbatti).

It is like the forms (rūpa) [on the painting] of a painter, whose objects are not self-produced. Like the painter's form-objects, defilements cause rearising. With the condition of existence, there is the obtaining of birth, which is like the different paintings.[1572] 450c19

The Chinese appears quite corrupt. Tibetan:

de la (tatra) ri mo'i las (citrakamma/painting) la mtshon byed pa'i (illustration/illustrator) rigs pas (yutta/paṭirūpa/proper/fitting) nyon mongs pa (kilesa) ni yang srid (punabbhava) sgrub pa'i (abhinibbatti/paṭipatti) rgyur 'gyur ba (hetu, to act as the cause of/that which causes) yin no (atthi) ri mor byed pa'i (citra karoti/represent by means of figures and colors, to paint) 'thad pas (=rigs pa, yutta) las (kamma) ni dman pa (hīna) dang (ca) gyi nom pa (bhoga, sambhāra?) tha dad pa (nānatta) byed pa (karoti) yin no (atthi)

bris pa'i (paints, writes, applied likkhita, vicitra) gzugs kyi (rūpassa) rigs pas (yutta) rnam par smin pa (vipāka) ni las (kamma) dang (ca) nyon mongs pa (kilesa) mngon par grub pa (abhinibbatti) yod pa'i (sambhava, bhavati) rkyen gyis (paccayā) 'jug pa'o (pavatti)

Here, the paintings of a painter are like the defilements that are the cause for the production of further existence.

The painting is like the differentiation of kamma inferior and wealth/ enjoyment/requisite (?? perhaps "superior" hīna–paṇīta).

The painted form is like the result; action and defilements are the conditions for the production of [1570] 住已, = ṭhatvā, "having remained." The Tibetan text (187a) has gnas pa gzhan du gyur pa nyid, which corresponds to Pali thiṭassa aññathatta, Skt sthityanyathātva, "alteration of what has remained," which makes better sense in this context of momentariness and the three characteristics. Cf. S-a II 266: Ṭhitassa aññathattaṃ paññāyatī ti dharamānassa jīvamānassa jarā paññāyati. Ṭhitīti hi jīvitindriyasaṅkhātāya anupālanāya nāmaṃ. Aññathattanti jarāya. Tenāhu porāṇā: Uppādo jāti akkhāto, bhaṅgo vutto vayoti ca; / Aññathattaṃ jarā vuttā, ṭhitī ca anupālanā ti. Evaṃ ekekassa khandhassa uppādajarābhaṅgasaṅkhātāni tīṇi lakkhaṇāni honti yāni sandhāya vuttaṃ tīṇimāni, bhikkhave, saṅkhatassa saṅkhatalakkhaṇānī ti. … Tattha saṅkhārānaṃ uppādakkhaṇe saṅkhāropi uppādalakkhaṇampi kālasaṅkhāto tassa khaṇopi paññāyati. Uppādopī ti vutte saṅkhāropi jarālakkhaṇampi kālasaṅkhāto tassa khaṇopi paññāyati. Bhaṅgakkhaṇe saṅkhāropi taṃlakkhaṇampi kālasaṅkhāto tassa khaṇopi paññāyati. Nett 22: Tattha jarā ca maraṇañca imāni dve saṅkhatassa saṅkhatalakkhaṇāni. Jarāyaṃ ṭhitassa aññathattaṃ, maraṇaṃ vayo. A-a II 252: Uppādo ti jāti. Vayoti bhedo. Ṭhitassa aññathattaṃ nāma jarā. Tattha saṅkhatanti tebhūmakā dhammā. Maggaphalāni pana asammasanūpagattā idha na kathīyanti. Uppādādayo saṅkhatalakkhaṇā nāma. Tesu uppādakkhaṇe uppādo, ṭhānakkhaṇe jarā, bhedakkhaṇe vayo. Spk II 267: Apare pana vadanti arūpadhammānaṃ jarākhaṇo nāma na sakkā paññāpetuṃ, sammāsambuddho ca vedanāya uppādo paññāyati, vayo paññāyati, ṭhitāya aññathattaṃ paññāyatī ti vadanto arūpadhammānam pi tīṇi lakkhaṇāni paññāpeti, tāni atthikkhaṇaṃ upādāya labbhantī ti vatvā: Atthitā sabbadhammānaṃ, ṭhiti nāma pavuccati. / Tass'eva bhedo maraṇaṃ, sabbadā sabbapāṇinan ti.

---

[1571] Vism VIII.2/p. 229: … saṅkhārānaṃ khaṇabhaṅgasaṅkhātaṃ khaṇikamaraṇaṃ. Abhidh-s 23 (Be): uppādaṭhitibhaṅgavasena khaṇattayaṃ ekacittakkhaṇaṃ nāma.

[1572] S II 101: Seyyathāpi, bhikkhave, rajako vā cittakārako vā sati rajanāya vā lākhāya vā haliddiyā vā nīliyā vā mañjiṭṭhāya vā suparimaṭṭhe vā phalake bhittiyā vā dussapaṭṭe vā itthirūpaṃ vā purisarūpaṃ vā abhinimmineyya sabbaṅgapaccaṅgaṃ; evameva kho, bhikkhave, kabaḷīkāre ce āhāre atthi rāgo atthi nandī atthi taṇhā, patiṭṭhitaṃ tattha viññāṇaṃ virūḷhaṃ. Yattha patiṭṭhitaṃ viññāṇaṃ virūḷhaṃ, atthi tattha nāmarūpassa avakkanti. Yattha … tattha saṅkhārānaṃ vuddhi. Yattha … tattha āyatiṃ punabbhavābhinibbatti. S-a II 114: rajakacittakārā viya hi sahakammasambhāraṃ kammaṃ, phalakabhittidussapaṭā viya tebhūmakavaṭṭaṃ. Yathā rajakacittakārā parisuddhesu phalakādīsu rūpaṃ samuṭṭhāpenti, evameva sasambhārakakammaṃ bhavesu rūpaṃ samuṭṭhāpeti.

existence.

Cf. S-a III: rajakacittakārā viya hi sahakammasambhāraṃ kammaṃ, phalakabhittidussapaṭā viya tebhūmakavaṭṭaṃ. Yathā rajakacittakārā parisuddhesu phalakādīsu rūpaṃ samuṭṭhāpenti, evameva sasambhārakakammaṃ bhavesu rūpaṃ samuṭṭhāpeti.

These two are past, namely, ignorance and the formations. These two are of the future, namely, birth and ageing-and-death. The other eight are of the present. 450c20 Thus should the beginningless cycle of saṃsāra[1573] be grasped through the three divisions of time.

The twelve factors of dependent arising should not be taught [separately], yet [dependent arising] should not be taught separately from these twelve causes (nidāna). Then what is dependent arising? When these twelve states (dhamma) are a succession (anukkamma) of reciprocal causes (aññamaññakāraṇa?),[1574] it is called "dependent arising" (paṭiccasamuppāda). When the twelve factors of dependent arising have arisen, [it is called "dependently arisen] states" (paṭiccasamuppannā dhammā).

What is the difference between these two? In dependent arising the formations (saṅkhārā) are changing.[1575] Not having fully come into being (aparinipphanna), they are not to be spoken of (na vattabbā); they are not to be spoken of as conditioned (saṅkhata) or not conditioned (asaṅkhata). Through arising, dependently arisen states are formations that have come into being (parinipphanna) and are conditioned (saṅkhata).[1576] This is the difference between these two states.

What is the profound nature of dependent arising? By whatever modes (ākāra) and characteristics (lakkhaṇa), ignorance is the condition for formations,[1577] and by whatever modes, characteristics and natures (sabhāva), the Noble One, independent of another (aparapaccaya)[1578] penetrates with the eye of wisdom—all these are the profound nature of dependent arising.[1579]

Dependent Arising to be Known in Seven Ways

[451a] Again, this dependent arising should be known through seven ways thus: (1) through the three links, (2) the four summaries, (3) the twenty modes, (4) the wheel, (5) manner, (6) analysis, and (7) through inclusion.

Three links

Q. How through the three links (sandhito)?

A. Here the interval between the formations and consciousness is the first link; the interval between feeling and craving is the second link; the interval between existence and birth is the third link.

Past actions and defilements (kammakilesa) are the condition of the present results—this is the first

---

[1573] 無始生死相續. Tibetan (187b): thog ma dang ta ma med pa 'khor ba'i lam rjes su 'brel ba, perhaps corresponding to anādimatisaṃsāravaṭṭa. Cf. Vmv I 130 (Be): anādimato saṃsāravaṭṭassa. Cf. anādimati-saṃsāra, Th-a II 107, Ud-a 391 (Ee), Nett-a 143 (Be).

[1574] Cf. Ud-a 37: aññamaññaṃ paṭicca paṭimukhaṃ katvā kāraṇasamavāyaṃ appaṭikkhipitvā sahite uppādetīti paṭiccasamuppādo. Tibetan (Ssv 187a): "It is taught, 'the twelve factors are a succession of reciprocal causes, reasons, and associate factors dependent on these.' When these twelve factors have dependently arisen, they are dependently arisen states."

[1575] The character 異 corresponds to aññathā, pṛthak, vikāra, vipariṇāma, itara, etc. The Tibetan has rnam par 'gyur ba, which can correspond to vipariṇāma and vikāra.

[1576] Cf. Dhs-a 343: Parinipphannanti pannarasa rūpāni parinipphannāni nāma, dasa aparinipphannāni nāma. Yadi aparinipphannā, asaṅkhatā nāma bhaveyyuṃ. Tesaṃyeva pana rūpānaṃ kāyavikāro kāyaviññatti nāma … nibbatti upacayo nāma, pavatti santati nāma, jīraṇākāro jaratā nāma, hutvā abhāvākāro aniccatā nāmāti. Sabbaṃ parinipphannaṃ saṅkhatameva hotī ti. Vibh-a 29: Pañcapi pana khandhā parinipphannāva honti, no aparinipphannā; saṅkhatāva no asaṅkhatā; apica nipphannāpi hontiyeva. Sabhāvadhammesu hi nibbānamevekaṃ aparinipphannaṃ anipphannañca. Nirodhasamāpatti pana nāmapaññatti ca kathanti? Nirodhasamāpatti lokiyalokuttarāti vā saṅkhatāsaṅkhatāti vā parinipphannāparinipphannāti vā na vattabbā.

[1577] Cf. Peṭ 105: Sā pi avijjā saṅkhārānaṃ paccayo catūhi kāraṇehi sahajātapaccayatāya samanantarapaccayatāya abhisandanapaccayatāya patiṭṭhānapaccayatāya … Paṭis I 49: Avijjā saṅkhārānaṃ uppādaṭṭhiti ca pavattaṭṭhiti ca nimittaṭṭhiti ca āyūhanaṭṭhiti ca saññogaṭṭhiti ca palibodhaṭṭhiti ca samudayaṭṭhiti ca hetuṭṭhiti ca paccayaṭṭhiti ca. Imehi navahākārehi avijjā paccayo, saṅkhārā paccayasamuppannā. Ubho pete dhammā paccayasamuppannā ti ….

[1578] S II 17: Dukkhameva uppajjamānaṃ uppajjati, dukkhaṃ nirujjhamānaṃ nirujjhatī'ti na kaṅkhati na vicikicchati aparapaccayā ñāṇamevassa ettha hoti. Ettāvatā kho, kaccāna, sammādiṭṭhi hoti. Sn 55: Diṭṭhīvisūkāni upātivatto, patto niyāmaṃ paṭiladdhamaggo; Uppannañāṇomhi anaññaneyyo.

[1579] Cf. S II 92; D II 55: Gambhīro cāyaṃ Ānanda paṭicca-samuppādo gambhīrāvabhāso ca.

link. Present results are the condition of present defilements[1580]—this is the second link. Present defilements are the condition of future results[1581]—this is the third link.

The first and the third are the cause-effect-link (hetu-phala-sandhi) and the existence-link (bhava-sandhi). The second link is the effect-cause link (phala-hetu-sandhi) and the non-existence-link.[1582]

Q. What is meaning of existence-link?

A. At decease (cuti), immediately the not yet liberated[1583] aggregates, sense-bases and elements, due to the condition of past action-defilement, produce further existence in all destinations (sabbagati). This is called the "existence-link."451a10

Q. How does it come to be?

A. Here a commoner, affected by ignorance (avijjāgata) and fettered by craving, performs meritorious and evil actions. If he dies at this time, he experiences suffering. Lying on his death-couch, he does not see this world; he does not see that world. He has lost mindfulness (muṭṭhasati) and can not reobtain it. Then he experiences the arising of suffering.[1584] There is decline of intellect, mindfulness and wisdom. There is decline of bodily strength and energy. The sense-faculties gradually perish from the body, either upwards or downwards. The life faculty perishes. [They] perish and wither like a withered talipot palm leaf.[1585] Then he is like one who is asleep and dreaming. 451a15 Through action, four states appear [to him]: action, action-sign (kamma-nimitta), destination, (gati) destination-sign.

Q. What is action?

A. What has been done—meritorious or demeritorious, heavy or light, much or little, what is proximate, [or] what has been formerly done—that action appears then and there (teneva).[1586]

Action-sign: that action done which is dependent upon the basis. That basis appears then and there, (i.e.) the action-sign accompanying action appears at that time, or [it appears] according to action

---

[1580] Cf. Vism XVII.289: Atītapaccuppannānāgatā cassa tayo kālā. Tesu pāḷiyaṃ sarūpato āgatavasena avijjā, saṅkhārā cā ti dve aṅgāni atītakālāni. Viññāṇādīni bhavāvasānāni aṭṭha paccuppannakālāni. Jāti ceva jarāmaraṇañca dve anāgatakālānīti veditabbāni. … Tattha saṅkhārānañca paṭisandhiviññāṇassa ca antarā eko hetuphalasandhi nāma. Vedanāya ca taṇhāya ca antarā eko phalahetusandhi nāma. Bhavassa ca jātiyā ca antarā eko hetuphalasandhīti evamidaṃ hetuphalahetupubbakatisandhīti veditabbaṃ.

The Tibetan (187b) has "present action and defilement are the condition of present result," da ltar gyi las dang nyon mongs pa ni da ltar gyi rnams par smin pa'i rkyen….

[1581] The Tibetan (187b) has "present action and defilement are the condition of future result," da ltar gyi las dang nyon mongs pa ni ma 'ongs pa'i rnam par smin pa'i rkyen…

[1582] The Tibetan is corrupt or a mistranslation: "Again, the first and third are the cause-effect (hetuphala) link. The second is the effect link. The existence link does not exist. yang na dang po dang gsum pa ni rgyu 'bras kyi mtsams so gnyis pa ni 'bras bu'i mtsams so srid pa'i mtsams ni med do.

[1583] 未度陰入界, lit. "the not yet crossed over/liberated (taraṇa, nittharaṇa, parāyana, mutta?) aggregates…" Tibetan (187b–188a): "is no passing on/transmigration of the aggregates…," 'pho ba ma yin pa'i phung po … The paragraph is probably also corrupt in the Tibetan: "What is the "existence link"? Immediately upon passing away, there is production of further existence of the non-transmigrated aggregates, sense-spheres, elements. This is the "existence link." shi nas de ma thag tu 'pho ba ma yin pa'i phung po skye mched khams rnams la yang srid mngon par grub pa 'di ni srid pa'i mtsams zhes brjod do.

[1584] 受生苦, or "experiences the suffering of birth."

[1585] Cf. Vism XVII.163/p.554, Vibh-a 163: Atītabhavasmiṃ hi sarasena upakkamena vā samāsannamaraṇassa asayhānaṃ sabbaṅgapaccaṅgasandhibandhanacchedakānaṃ māraṇantikavedanāsatthānaṃ sannipātaṃ asahantassa ātape pakkhitta-haritatālapaṇṇamiva kamena upasussamāne sarīre niruddhesu cakkhādīsu indriyesu hadayavatthumatte patiṭṭhitesu kāyindriyamanindriyajīvitindriyesu taṅkhaṇāvasesahadayavatthusannissitaṃ viññāṇaṃ garukasamāsevitāsanna-pubbakatānaṃ aññataraṃ laddhāvasesapaccayasaṅkhārasaṅkhātaṃ kammaṃ, tadupaṭṭhāpitaṃ vā kammanimitta-gatinimittasaṅkhātaṃ visayaṃ ārabbha pavattati.

[1586] Tibetan (188a): "Action: whatever merit or demerit has been done, and heavy or light, proximate or formerly done or action*: these appear." (de la las zhes bya ba gang bsod nams dang bsod nams ma yin pa byas pa dang lci ba 'am yang ba'am nye ba 'am sngon byas sam las de rnams nye bar gnas par 'gyu ror.*) * = mistranslation of kaṭattā vā pana kammaṃ, "or action done formerly," see the Pali parallel below.

The Chinese text literally has "… little, according to the proximity [of] what has been formerly done" 如近其初所造, but this must be a mistranslation of yadāsannaṃ, see parallel below.

Cf. Paṭis-a III 575: Aparampi catubbidhaṃ kammaṃ yaggarukaṃ yabbahulaṃ yadāsannaṃ kaṭattā vā pana kammanti. Tattha kusalaṃ vā hotu akusalaṃ vā, garukāgarukesu yaṃ garukaṃ mātughātādikammaṃ vā mahaggatakammaṃ vā, tadeva paṭhamaṃ vipaccati. Tathā bahulābahulesupi yaṃ bahulaṃ hoti susīlyaṃ vā dussīlyaṃ vā, tadeva paṭhamaṃ vipaccati. Yadāsannaṃ nāma maraṇakāle anussaritakammaṃ vā katakammaṃ vā. Yañhi āsannamaraṇe anussarituṃ sakkoti kātuṃ vā, teneva upapajjati. Etehi pana tīhi muttaṃ punappunaṃ laddhāsevanaṃ kaṭattā vā pana kammaṃ nāma hoti. Tesaṃ abhāve taṃ paṭisandhiṃ ākaḍḍhati.

(presently) being done.[1587]

Destination: A happy destination appears through the condition of merit. An evil destination appears through the condition of demerit.[1588]

Destination-sign: At the time of entry into the womb, three objects unite to obtain rebirth.[1589] Spontaneous birth (opapāti): depending on wherever there will be birth, 451a22 his particular rearising-basis (upapatti-vatthu?) appears: a celestial palace (vimāna), a seat, mountain, tree, or river. According to that particular destination, and together with grasping, the sign appears. He, at that time, whether going, standing, sitting or lying down, sees that [sign] and grasps it.[1590]

At that time, the action previously done, the action-sign, destination and the destination-sign are made the object by the arising and ceasing of the activational mind (javana-citta). At the end of life, at departure, the activational mind together with the life faculty immediately ceases and there is decease [-mind] (cuti-citta). The [relinking-] mind, immediately subsequent, arises through the activational mind.

Only that action or action-sign or destination or destination-sign is made the object of the resultant heart-basis which passes over (otāreti, atikkamati) into the future existence.[1591] Like the lighting of a lamp by a lamp,[1592] or like a flame issuing from a fire, the relinking-mind (paṭisandhi-citta) arises like a companion. [451b]

In the womb of the mother, dependent upon the impurity (asuci) of the mother and father, there is the arising of thirty matters produced by action:[1593] the decads of material basis (vatthu), body, and

---

[1587] Tibetan (188a): "Action-sign: the action done which is dependent upon the basis (katakamma); that basis appears at that very time, it occurs according to that action being done (kammakaraṇa)." (las kyi mtsan ma zhes pa dngos po gang la brten nas las byas par gyur pa de'i dngos po nye bar gnas par 'gyur ro de de'i tshe las byed pa bzhin du 'byung ngo)

Cf. Vism-mht (Be 312): Kammanimittaṃ nāma yaṃ vatthuṃ ārammaṇaṃ katvā āyūhanakāle kammaṃ āyūhati, taṃ atīte kappakoṭisatasahassamatthakepi hi kamme kate vipaccanakāle āgantvā kammaṃ vā kammanimittaṃ vā upatiṭṭhati. Vibh-a 155: … kammaṃ āyūhati. Tattha atīte kappakoṭisatasahassamatthakasmimpi kamme kate tasmiṃ khaṇe kammaṃ vā kammanimittaṃ vā āgantvā upaṭṭhāti. Abhidh-av-ṭ … āyūhati, taṃ dānūpakaraṇādikaṃ, pāṇaghātopakaraṇādikañca. Be II 63.) Abhidh-av-ṭ (Be I 275): kammakaraṇakāle cetanāya gahitamārammaṇaṃ kammanimittaṃ nāma taṃ dānūpakaraṇādikaṃ pāṇaghātopakaraṇādikañca.

[1588] "Destination: [when there is] meritorious action, a good destination appears, and [when there is] demeritorious action, a bad destination." ('gro ba zhes pa bsod nams kyi las bde 'gror nye bar gnas pa dang bsod nams ma yin pa las ngan 'gro'o)

[1589] I.e. the union of mother and father, the mother being in season, and the gandhabba being present. M I 265: Yato ca kho, bhikkhave, mātāpitaro ca sannipatitā honti, mātā ca utunī hoti, gandhabbo ca paccupaṭṭhito hoti evaṃ tiṇṇaṃ sannipātā gabbhassāvakkanti hoti.

Tibetan (188a): "Destination-sign: those born in the womb, when associated with blood, associated with the mother's belly, there is appearance." ('gro ba'i mtsan ma zhes bya ba mngal du skye ba rnams ni dus dang ldan zhing khrag dang ldan pa'i ma'i lto bar nye bar gnas par 'gyur ro.)

[1590] Tibetan text (188a): "Those who are spontaneously born (opapātika): wherever there is birth, there the opportunity (okāsa) will appear: a celestial mansion, or world (?), or forest, or tree—according to the destination, the associated sign appears. At that time, whether they are [going, standing] sitting and lying down, they see and grasp it. At that time, the action or action sign, destination or destination sign is made the object, so that there is rebirth. And so on, at length." (rdzus te skye ba rnams ni gang dang gang du skye ba de dang de'i go skabs nye bar gnas par 'gyur te gzhal yas khang ngam sems can nam nags sam shing ngam 'gro ba de dang 'dra ba dang ldan pa'i mtsan ma nye bar gnas pa'i de'i tse de rnams su byin pa lta bu dang bzhings pa dang bsdad pa dang nyal ba lta bu dang mthong ba bzhin du dang len pa bzhin du 'byung ngo de'i tse las sam las kyi mtsan ma dang 'gro ba 'am 'gro ba'i mtsan ma la dmigs pa byas te skye bar 'gyur ro zhes pa la sogs pa rgyas par ro.)

Daśabalaśrīmitra skips over the following parts and continues with the "Four Summaries."

[1591] 作事果報心處度於後有. The characters 心處 could correspond to hadaya-vatthu. Although 心 normally corresponds to citta in Vim, in the list of parts of the body at 432c24 it corresponds to hadaya. Otherwise, it could mean "mind [which dependent on this] basis."

Cf "enters/passes into the bhavaṅga" at 度後分458a06, perhaps that is what is intended here.

[1592] Cf. Mil 71: Rājā āha: Bhante Nāgasena, na ca saṅkamati paṭisandahati cāti. Āma mahārāja, na ca saṅkamati paṭisandahati cāti. Katham bhante Nāgasena na ca saṅkamati paṭisandahati ca, opammaṃ karohī ti. Yathā mahārāja kocid eva puriso padīpato padīpaṃ padīpeyya, kin nu kho so mahārāja padīpo padīpamhā saṅkanto ti. Na hi bhante ti. Evam eva kho mahārāja na ca saṅkamati paṭisandahati cāti.

[1593] The decads of physical basis, body, and sex. Cf. Vibh-a 22: Evaṃ parittāya rūpasantatiyā tīṇi santatisīsāni honti – vatthudasakaṃ, kāyadasakaṃ, itthiyā itthindriyavasena purisassa purisindriyavasena bhāvadasakanti. Tattha vatthurūpaṃ, tassa nissayāni cattāri mahābhūtāni, taṃnissitā vaṇṇagandharasojā, jīvitanti idaṃ vatthudasakaṃ nāma. Kāyapasādo, tassa nissayāni cattāri mahābhūtāni, tannissitā vaṇṇagandharasojā, jīvitanti idaṃ kāyadasakaṃ nāma. Itthiyā

gender. Those [decads], at the moment of decay (jarākhaṇa),[1594] are without [the decads arising from] the passing over and relinking mind, [so] there is the arising of forty-six matters: the thirty produced by action, and the two times eight matters produced by nutriment and season.[1595] Without the passing over and relinking mind, matter, at the moment of decay, [is produced] together with a second mind, and there is the arising of fifty four matters: the thirty produced by action and the three times eight matters produced by nutriment, season [and mind (citta)].[1596]

Thus the arising of consciousness has name and matter as condition, and name and matter has consciousness as condition.[1597]

Thus there is the existence-link.

Thus it should be understood through the three links. 451b07

Four Summaries

How through the four summaries (saṅkhepato)?

(1) Ignorance and the formations are past action-defilement summary .

(2) Consciousness, name and matter, the six sense-bases, contact and feeling are present result summary.

(3) Craving, clinging and existence are present action–defilement summary.

(4) Birth, and ageing-and-death are future result summary.

Thus it should be understood through the four summaries.[1598] 451b10

Twenty modes

How through the twenty modes (ākārehi)?

---

itthibhāvo, purisassa purisabhāvo, tassa nissayāni cattāri mahābhūtāni, tannissitā vaṇṇagandharasojā, jīvitanti – idaṃ bhāvadasakaṃ nāma. Evaṃ gabbhaseyyakānaṃ paṭisandhiyaṃ ukkaṭṭhaparicchedena samatiṃsa kammajarūpāni rūpakkhandho nāma hoti. Paṭis-a III 571: Nāmarūpapaccayāpi viññāṇanti ettha tasmiṃ paṭisandhikkhaṇe tayo vipākahetū sesacetasikā ca nāmaṃ, hadayavatthu rūpaṃ. Tato nāmarūpapaccayatopi paṭisandhiviññāṇaṃ pavattati. Viññāṇapaccayāpi nāmarūpanti etthāpi nāmaṃ vuttappakārameva, rūpaṃ pana idha sahetukamanussapaṭisandhiyā adhippetattā gabbhaseyyakānaṃ vatthudasakaṃ kāyadasakaṃ bhāvadasakanti samatiṃsa rūpāni, saṃsedajānaṃ opapātikānañca paripuṇṇāyatanānaṃ cakkhudasakaṃ sotadasakaṃ ghānadasakaṃ jivhādasakañcāti samasattati rūpāni. Taṃ vuttappakāraṃ nāmarūpaṃ paṭisandhikkhaṇe paṭisandhiviññāṇapaccayā pavattati.

[1594] On the jarākhaṇa see note @@ to @@ having remained is “aging”@@

[1595] The text has 食節所成, “produced by food and relinking,” but 節 “relinking,” must be a corruption of 時, “season,” as found below in 食時所成.

[1596] Cf. Abhidh-av-pṭ II 173: Tassa gabbhaseyyakasattassa tiṃsa rūpānīti kāyabhāvavatthudasakavasena samatiṃsa kammajarūpāniyeva. Tadā hi neva cittajarūpamatthi paṭisandhicittassa rūpasamuṭṭhāpakattābhāvato, nāpi utujaṃ purimuppannautuno abhāvā. Utu hi ṭhānappattaṃ rūpaṃ samuṭṭhāpeti, na ca āhārajaṃ tasmiṃ kāye ajjhohaṭassa abhāvato, tasmā kammasamuṭṭhānāniyeva tiṃsa rūpāni paṭisandhikkhaṇe nibbattanti.. Vism XVII.193–194, Vibh-a 170–171: Pavatte pana sabbattha rūpappavattidese paṭisandhicittassa ṭhitikkhaṇe paṭisandhicittena saha pavattaututo utusamuṭṭhānaṃ suddhaṭṭhakaṃ pātubhavati. Paṭisandhicittaṃ pana rūpaṃ na samuṭṭhāpeti. … Paṭisandhicittato pana uddhaṃ paṭhamabhavaṅgato pabhuti cittasamuṭṭhānakaṃ suddhaṭṭhakaṃ. Saddapātubhāvakāle paṭisandhikkhaṇato uddhaṃ pavattaututo ceva cittato ca saddanavakaṃ. Ye pana kabaḷikārāhārūpajīvino gabbhaseyyakasattā tesaṃ, yañcassa bhuñjatī mātā, annaṃ pānañca bhojanaṃ; Tena so tattha yāpeti, mātukucchigato naro ti. Vacanato mātarā ajjhoharitāhārena anugate sarīre, opapātikānaṃ sabbapaṭhamaṃ attano mukhagataṃ kheḷaṃ ajjhoharaṇakāle āhārasamuṭṭhānaṃ suddhaṭṭhakanti idaṃ āhārasamuṭṭhānassa suddhaṭṭhakassa utucittasamuṭṭhānānañca ukkaṃsato dvinnaṃ navakānaṃ vasena chabbīsatividhaṃ, pubbe ekekacittakkhaṇe tikkhattuṃ uppajjamānaṃ vuttaṃ kammasamuṭṭhānaṃ sattatividhanti channavutividhaṃ rūpaṃ tayo ca arūpino khandhāti samāsato navanavuti dhammā. Vibh-a 23: Yadi hi cittaṃ ṭhānakkhaṇe vā bhaṅgakkhaṇe vā rūpaṃ samuṭṭhāpeyya, paṭisandhicittampi rūpaṃ samuṭṭhāpeyya. Na pana cittaṃ tasmiṃ khaṇadvaye rūpaṃ samuṭṭhāpeti. Yathā pana ahicchattakamakulaṃ pathavito uṭṭhahantaṃ paṃsucuṇṇaṃ gahetvāva uṭṭhahati, evaṃ cittaṃ purejātaṃ vatthuṃ nissāya uppādakkhaṇe aṭṭha rūpāni gahetvāva uṭṭhahati.”

Cf. Vism XX.30–42/p.615ff.

[1597] Cf. S II 104: Paccudāvattati kho idaṃ viññāṇam nāmarūpamhā nāparaṃ gacchati, ettāvatā jāyetha vā jīyetha vā mīyetha vā cavetha vā upapajjetha vā yad idaṃ nāmarūpapaccayā viññāṇaṃ, viññāṇapaccayā nāmarūpaṃ, nāmarūpapaccayā saḷāyatanaṃ, … pe …

[1598] Cf. Vism XVII.290/p.579. Tibetan (188b): “The four summaries are past kamma and defilement summary, present result summary, present kamma and defilements summary, and future result summary. Therein, ignorance and formations are past action and defilement summary. Consciousness, name and form, six sense spheres, contact, and feeling are present result summary. Craving, grasping and existence are present action and defilement summary. Birth, old age and death are future result summary.”

(1) By grasping ignorance and past craving and clinging, it is grasped through the defilement-characteristic.

(2) By grasping the formations and past existence, it is grasped through the action-characteristic.

(3) By grasping consciousness, name and matter, the six sense-bases, contact, and feeling, together with present birth and ageing-and-death, it is grasped through the result-characteristic.

(4) By grasping craving and clinging, and present ignorance,[1599] it is grasped through the defilement-characteristic.

(5) By grasping existence and present formations it is grasped through the action-characteristic.

(6) By grasping birth and ageing-and-death and future consciousness, name and matter, six sense-bases, contact, and feeling, it is grasped through the result-characteristic.[1600]

These twenty-four states become twenty by grasping them in their entirety.[1601]

As is taught in the Abhidhamma:

"In former kamma-existence, delusion is ignorance, accumulation (āyūha) is formations, attachment is craving, searching is clinging, intention is existence—these five states [in the previous kamma existence are conditions for relinking here.][1602]

[Here (in this present life), the relinking is consciousness, descent is name and matter, sensitivity is sense-base, what is touched is contact, and what is felt is feeling—these five states] in rearising-existence (upapattibhava) here: their condition is previous kamma-existence. .

[Here,] the delusion of not understanding the sense-bases is ignorance;[1603] accumulation is formations; attachment is craving; searching is clinging; intention is existence—these five states of kamma-existence here are conditions for the future rearising-occasion.[1604] 451b20

In the future, the rearising-occasion is consciousness; descent is name and matter; sensitivity (pasāda) is sense-base; what is touched is contact; what is felt is feeling. These five states in future rearising-existence: their condition is the kamma done here."[1605]

[1599] "Ignorance," is missing in the Chinese, but is found in the Tibetan. Likewise, in the next sentence "result-characteristic" is missing from the Chinese, but is found in the Tibetan.

[1600] 此二十四法。以取其成就成二十. Tibetan (188b): "These 24 states when fully grasped become twenty." (chos nyi shu bzhi po 'di rnams yongs su rdzogs pa bzung bas nyi shur 'gyur ro.)

[1601] Cf. Paṭis I 52: … Itime catusaṅkhepe tayo addhe tisandhiṃ vīsatiyā ākārehi paṭiccasamuppādaṃ jānāti passati aññāti paṭivijjhati. Cf. Vism VII.22/p.200: Tattha avijjāsaṅkhārā eko saṅkhepo, viññāṇanāmarūpasaḷāyatanaphassavedanā eko, taṇhupādānabhavā eko, jātijarāmaraṇaṃ eko. Purimasaṅkhepo cettha atīto addhā, dve majjhimā paccuppanno, jātijarāmaraṇaṃ anāgato. Avijjāsaṅkhāraggahaṇena cettha taṇhupādānabhavā gahitāva hontīti ime pañca dhammā atīte kammavaṭṭaṃ, viññāṇādayo pañca etarahi vipākavaṭṭaṃ, taṇhupādānabhavaggahaṇena avijjāsaṅkhārā gahitāva hontīti ime pañca dhammā etarahi kammavaṭṭaṃ, jātijarāmaraṇāpadesena viññāṇādīnaṃ niddiṭṭhattā ime pañca dhammā āyatiṃ vipākavaṭṭaṃ. Te ākārato vīsatividhā honti. Saṅkhāraviññāṇañcettha antarā eko sandhi, vedanātaṇhānamantarā eko, bhavajātīnamantarā ekoti, iti bhagavā etaṃ catusaṅkhepaṃ tiyaddhaṃ vīsatākāraṃ tisandhiṃ paṭiccasamuppādaṃ sabbākārato jānāti passati aññāti paṭivijjhati. Cf. Paṭis-a I 243: Kathaṃ pana dvādasahi paṭiccasamuppādaṅgehi ime vīsati ākārā gahitā hontīti? Avijjā saṅkhārāti ime dve atītahetuyo sarūpato vuttā. Yasmā pana avidvā paritassati, paritassito upādiyati, tassupādānapaccayā bhavo, tasmā tehi dvīhi gahitehi taṇhupādānabhavāpi gahitāva honti. Paccuppanne viññāṇanāmarūpasaḷāyatanaphassavedanā sarūpato vuttāyeva. Taṇhupādānabhavā paccuppannahetuyo sarūpato vuttā. Bhave pana gahite tassa pubbabhāgā taṃsampayuttā vā saṅkhārā gahitāva honti, taṇhupādānaggahaṇena ca taṃsampayuttā. Yāya vā mūḷho kammaṃ karoti, sā avijjā gahitāva hoti. Anāgate jāti jarāmaraṇanti dve sarūpena vuttāni, jātijarāmaraṇaggahaṇeneva pana viññāṇādīni pañca anāgataphalāni gahitāneva honti. Tesaṃyeva hi jātijarāmaraṇānīti evaṃ dvādasahi aṅgehi vīsati ākārā gahitā honti.

[1602] A section of five of the twenty states is missing from the Chinese text. It is supplied from the Pali parallel.

[1603] Ssv 188b–189a condenses this: "As is said in the Abhidhamma: 'Of former-action-existence, the ignorance, formations, craving, grasping, and existence—these five states [in former-kamma-existence] are the conditions of relinking here. Here, the consciousness, name and matter, six sense-spheres, contact, and feeling—these five states in former-kamma-existence, [their] condition is rebirth-existence here. Here, due to the maturing, etc, of the sense-bases, the ignorance, formations, craving, grasping and existence—these five states in action-existence here, are the conditions of future relinking. Future consciousness, name and form, six sense-spheres, contact, and feeling—these five states in future rebirth-existence, [their] condition is action done here.'"

[1604] The Chinese text has 生時, "(re-) birth-time," upapatti- or jāti-samaya or -kāla, here and at the start of the next sentence, but this term is not found elsewhere in the Vim. The Paṭis parallel has paṭisandhi, relinking. Cf. Vism-mhṭ II 308 (Be): upapattikkhaṇeti paṭisandhikkhaṇe. Vibh-mūlaṭīka 70 (Be) (on Vibh 411): Tāni hi rūpabhave pañcavokāre upapattikkhaṇe uppajjanti. Kāmadhātuyaṃ paṭisandhikkhaṇe uppajjamānānanti yojanā.

[1605] See Ñāṇamoli's note on the parallel in Vism XVII.297. Paṭis I 52: Purimakammabhavasmiṃ moho avijjā, āyūhanā saṅkhārā, nikanti taṇhā, upagamanaṃ upādānaṃ, cetanā bhavo. Ime pañca dhammā purimakammabhavasmiṃ idha paṭisandhiyā paccayā. Idha paṭisandhi viññāṇaṃ, okkanti nāmarūpaṃ, pasādo āyatanaṃ, phuṭṭho phasso, vedayitaṃ

Thus it should be understood through the twenty modes. 451b24

Wheel

Q. How through wheel (cakkato)?

A. With ignorance as condition, the formations; with formations as condition, consciousness; … until with birth as condition, ageing and death. Thus there is the origination of this entire mass of suffering.

Here, the not knowing of this entire mass of suffering is ignorance;[1606] with ignorance as condition, the formations again.[1607]

Thus it can be known through the wheel.

Manner

Q. How through manner (naya)?

A. There are two manners, namely, the one which begins with ignorance and the one which begins with ageing and death. When questioned as to that which begins with ignorance, one should answer in the regular order (anuloma); and when questioned as to that which begins with ageing and death, the answer should be in the reverse order (paṭiloma).[1608]

Again, that which begins with ignorance is the means (mukha) of the posterior end [451c], the future knowledge of the path. That which begins with ageing and death is means of the anterior end, the past knowledge of the path.[1609]

Thus it should be understood through manner.

Analysis

Q. How through analysis?

A. There are two kinds of dependent arising: mundane dependent arising and supramundane dependent arising. Here, that which begins with ignorance is mundane dependent arising.

Q. What is supramundane dependent arising ? 451c04

A. [The one which begins with] suffering: Dependent upon suffering, faith.[1610] Dependent upon faith, gladness. Dependent upon gladness, rapture. Dependent upon rapture, tranquillity. Dependent upon vedanā. Ime pañca dhammā idhupapattibhavasmiṃ purekatassa kammassa paccayā. Idha paripakkattā āyatanānaṃ moho avijjā, āyūhanā saṅkhārā, nikanti taṇhā upagamanaṃ upādānaṃ, cetanā bhavo. Ime pañca dhammā idha kammabhavasmiṃ āyatiṃ paṭisandhiyā paccayā. Āyatiṃ paṭisandhi viññāṇaṃ, okkanti nāmarūpaṃ, pasādo āyatanaṃ, phuṭṭho phasso, vedayitaṃ vedanā. Ime pañca dhammā āyatiṃ upapattibhavasmiṃ idha katassa kammassa paccayā.

---

Paṭis-a: I 241: Nikanti taṇhā ti yā kammaṃ karontassa tassa phale upapattibhave nikāmanā patthanā, sā taṇhā nāma. Upagamanaṃ upādānan ti yaṃ kammabhavassa paccayabhūtaṃ imasmiṃ nāma kamme kate kāmā sampajjanti ti vā idaṃ katvā asukasmiṃ nāma ṭhāne kāme sevissāmī ti vā attā ucchinno suucchinno hotī ti vā sukhī hotiṃ vigatapariḷāho ti vā sīlabbataṃ sukhena paripūrati ti vā pavattaṃ upagamanaṃ daḷhagahaṇaṃ, idaṃ upādānaṃ nāma.

[1606] S II 4: Katamā ca, bhikkhave, avijjā? Yaṃ kho, bhikkhave, dukkhe aññāṇaṃ, dukkhasamudaye aññāṇaṃ, dukkhanirodhe aññāṇaṃ, dukkhanirodhagāminiyā paṭipadāya aññāṇaṃ. ayaṃ vuccati, bhikkhave, avijjā. Iti kho, bhikkhave, avijjāpaccayā saṅkhārā; saṅkhārapaccayā viññāṇaṃ …pe… evametassa kevalassa dukkhakkhandhassa samudayo hoti. Avijjāya tveva asesavirāganirodhā saṅkhāranirodho; saṅkhāranirodhā viññāṇanirodho …pe… evametassa kevalassa dukkhakkhandhassa nirodho hotī ti.

[1607] Tibetan (189a): "Likewise, again with ignorance as condition, formations, and so on. Again, in this manner, there is an endless turning of the wheel of dependent origination." (de bzhin du yang ma rig pa'i rkyen las 'du byed zhes pa la sogs pa'o yang de bzhin du ste rten 'brel gyi 'khor lo'i rim pa mtha' med pa'o).

[1608] Tibetan (189a): "Manner (tshul lugs = naya, vidhi): two manners, that is, the manner starting with ignorance, and the manner starting with old age and death. Therein, the manner starting with ignorance is: with ignorance as condition, formations, and so on until, old age and death, sorrow, lamentation, pain, distress, grief. Thus there is the origination, etc. The manner starting with old age and death is: with the cessation of birth, the cessation of old age and death, the cessation of existence, and so on until, with the cessation of ignorance, the cessation of formations."

[1609] It is not clear what is meant by this. No parallel could be traced in the Pali. The Tibetan text parallels the Chinese (Ssv 189a): "Again, the manner (tshul) starting with ignorance is the door (sgo = dvāra) of the posterior end, i.e., the future-part knowledge of the path. The manner starting with old age and death is the means of the anterior end, i.e., the past-part knowledge of the path." (ma rig pa la sogs pa'i tsul ni phyi ma'i mtha' yongs su chad pa'i sgo ste ma 'ongs pa'i cha shas shes pa'i lam mo rga shi la sogs pa'i tsul ni sngon gyi mtha' yongs su chad pa'i sgo ste 'das pa'i cha shas shes pa'i lam mo)

[1610] This is the supramundane conditioned arising scheme as described in the Upanisā Sutta at S II 29/SN 12:23: … jātūpanisaṃ dukkhaṃ, dukkhūpanisā saddhā, saddhūpanisaṃ pāmojjaṃ, pāmojjūpanisā pīti, pītūpanisā passaddhi, passaddhūpanisaṃ sukhaṃ, sukhūpaniso samādhi, samādhūpanisaṃ yathābhūtañāṇadassanaṃ, yathābhūtañāṇadassanūpanisā nibbidā, nibbidūpaniso virāgo, virāgūpanisā vimutti, vimuttūpanisaṃ khayeñāṇaṃ. The Tibetan text is the same.

tranquillity, happiness. Dependent upon happiness, concentration. Dependent upon concentration, knowledge and vision according to reality. Dependent upon knowledge and vision according to reality, disenchantment (nibbidā). Dependent upon disenchantment, dispassion (virāga). Dependent upon dispassion, freedom. Dependent upon freedom, knowledge of destruction. This is called supramundane dependent arising.[1611] 451c08

Again, it is said,[1612] "There are four kinds of dependent arising: with action-defilement as cause; seed as cause; preparation as cause; and shared action as cause."[1613]

Q. What is meant by "action-defilement as cause"?

A. It is that which begins with ignorance.

Q. What is meant by "seed as cause"?

A. It is likened to the succession of seed and sprout.

Q. What is meant by "preparation (abhisaṅkhāra) as cause"?

A. It is likened to the (supernormal) creation of forms.[1614]

Q. What is meant by "shared action (sādhāraṇakamma) as cause"?

A. It is likened to the earth, Himalaya, sea, sun and moon.[1615]

Again, some say: "Shared action is not a cause. Matter,[1616] mind (citta), states (dhamma) and season (utu) are causes. There is no shared action. As the Blessed One taught in a verse:

> Action is not shared with another;
> It is the treasure another can't steal.
> The merit that is done by a man
> Is the good reward gained by himself."[1617] 451c15

Thus it should be understood through analysis.

Inclusion

Q. How through inclusion?

A. There are four kinds of inclusion: aggregate-inclusion, sense-base-inclusion, element-inclusion and Noble-Truths-inclusion.

Here, ignorance, formations, contact, craving, clinging and existence are included in the aggregate of formations. Consciousness is included in the aggregate of consciousness. Name and matter is included in the four aggregates. The six sense-bases are included in the two aggregates. Feeling is included in the aggregate of feeling. Birth and ageing and death are included in the aggregate of matter and in the aggregate of formations.[1618]

[1611] Cf. Nett 67: Es'ev' anto dukkhassā ti paṭiccasamuppādo. So duvidho: lokiyo ca lokuttaro ca. Tattha lokiyo: avijjāpaccayā saṅkhārā yāva jarāmaraṇā; lokuttaro: sīlavato avippaṭisāro jāyati yāva nāparaṃ itthattāyā. Cf. S II 32, A IV 336, V 312f.

[1612] 復說, lit "again said." Tibetan: gzhan dag tu yang gsungs pa, "it is also said in others." The Tibetan could correspond to apare pana vadanti or apare vadanti, "others say," or perhaps it is a misunderstanding of aparampi vutta, "again it is also said." The Chinese rather would correspond to aparampi vutta.

[1613] This section seems to be related to the five niyāma: Moh 78 (Be): Pañcavidho hi niyāmo: bījaniyāmo utuniyāmo kammaniyāmo dhammaniyāmo cittaniyāmoti, tattha aṅkurapaṇṇadaṇḍapupphaphalādikkamena tesaṃ tesaṃ bījānaṃ aññoññavisadisarukkhatiṇagacchalatādisantāne attanā sadisaphaladānaṃ bījaniyāmo nāma.

[1614] Cf. Sn-a I 361: manomayiddhiyā abhisaṅkharitvā nimmitabuddhaṃ māpesi. Dhp-a II 194: ime pana iddhiyā abhisaṅkharitvā nimmitakāle gatā bhavissantī ti. A-a I 363: Satthā tassā caritavasena iddhiyā ekaṃ itthirūpaṃ nimminitvā…

Tibetan text: "Preparation is (magical) creation of forms and so on" (mngon par 'du byed pa las byung ba na sprul pa'i gzugs la sogs pa).

The next part, until the "through inclusion" section is not in the Tibetan text.

[1615] The Tibetan text adds "and so on" (la sogs pa). Cf. Kv-a 100: paṭhavīsamuddasūriyacandimādayo hi sabbesaṃ sādhāraṇakammavipāko ti tesaṃ laddhi. Paṭis-a I 290: Te pi hi sabbasattasādhāraṇakammapaccaya-utusamuṭṭhānā. Aññe pana anindriyabaddhā rūpādayo avipassanūpagā ti vadanti.

[1616] 諸色 perhaps can mean "(derived) matters" as at 439c17.

[1617] Kv 751: Asādhāraṇam aññesaṃ, acoraharaṇo nidhi. / Kayirātha macco puññāni, sace sucaritaṃ care. Cp: Kh 7: asādhāraṇamaññesaṃ, acorāharaṇo nidhi. / Kayirātha dhīro puññāni, yo nidhi anugāmiko.

Cf. S-a I 37: Kammassakā hi sattā, attano kammānurūpaṃ eva gatiṃ gacchanti, n'eva pitā puttassa kammena gacchati, na putto pitu kammena, na matā puttassa, na putto mātuyā, na bhātā bhaginiyā, na ācariyo antevāsino, na antevāsī ācariyassa kammena gacchati.

[1618] The Tibetan text differs in that it includes name and matter in the five aggregates. Ssv 189b: "Herein, the

Ignorance, formations, contact, feeling, craving, clinging, existence, birth and ageing and death are included in the sense-base of mental states. Consciousness is included in the sense-base of mind. Name and matter is included in the five internal sense-bases. The six sense-bases are included in the six internal sense-bases.[1619] 451c22

Ignorance, formations, contact, feeling, craving, clinging, existence, birth and ageing and death are included in the element of mental states. Consciousness is included in the mind-consciousness-element. Name and matter is included in the five elements.[1620] The six sense-bases are included in the twelve [elements].

Ignorance, craving and clinging are included in the Truth [of Origination].[1621] The other nine are included in the Truth of Suffering. The path factors of supramundane dependent arising are included in the Truth of the Path. The cessation of dependent arising is included in the Truth of Cessation.[1622]

Thus it should be understood through inclusion.

Thus it should be understood through practising the dependent arising skill.

This is the meaning of "dependent arising skill."

The dependent arising skill is finished. [452a]

Noble Truths Skill

Q. What is the Noble-Truth-skill?

A. Namely, there are Four Noble Truths: the Noble Truth of Suffering, the Noble Truth of the Origination of Suffering, the Noble Truth of the Cessation of Suffering, and the Noble Truth of the Path leading to the Cessation of Suffering.

Truth of Suffering

Q. What is the Noble Truth of Suffering?

A. "Birth is suffering; ageing is suffering; death is suffering; sorrow is suffering; lamentation is suffering; pain is suffering; distress and grief are suffering; association with those who are not dear is aggregate-inclusion. The aggregate of formations includes six factors, namely, ignorance, formations, contact, craving, grasping and existence. Consciousness is included in the aggregate of consciousness. Name and matter is included in the five aggregates. The six sense spheres are included in the aggregates of form and consciousness. The factor of feeling is included in the aggregate of feeling. Birth and ageing and death are included in the aggregates of form and formations."

---

Cf. M I 52, S II 3, Peṭ 116: Vedanā, saññā, cetanā, phasso, manasikāro idaṃ vuccati nāmaṃ. Cf. Paṭis I 183.

[1619] Tibetan (Ssv 189b–190a): "The sense-base-inclusion: The sense-base of mental states includes nine factors, namely, ignorance, formations, contact, feeling, craving, grasping, existence, birth and ageing and death. The factor of consciousness is included in the sense-base of mind. Name and matter is included in the sense-base of mind and the sense-base of mental states and the five external sense-bases."

The two translations differ in nāmarūpa here and in the following (see next note). According to the Chinese nāmarūpa is included in the five internal sense-bases, and in the five elements/sense-bases, while the Tibetan includes it in the sense-bases/elements of mind, mental-states and the five external sense-bases/elements.

[1620] Tibetan (190a): "The sense-base-inclusion: The element of mental states includes nine factors, namely, ignorance, formations, contact, feeling, craving, grasping, existence, birth and ageing and death. The factor of consciousness is included in the element of mind-consciousness.* Name and matter is included in seven elements, namely, the elements of forms, sounds, smells, tastes, touches, mind and mental-states. The six sense-bases are included in the twelve elements, namely the elements of eye, ear, nose, tongue, body and mind, the element of eye-consciousness, eye-consciousness, ear-consciousness, nose-consciousness, tongue-consciousness, body-consciousness, and mind-consciousness." (* rnam par shes pa'i khams is equivalent to mano-viññāṇadhātu here, not viññāṇadhātu. Cf. 182a, rnam par shes pa'i khams 'dus te reg pa = manoviññāṇadhātusamphassa.)

[1621] The Chinese text is corrupt here. It is literally has: "The six sense-bases are included in the twelve truths. Ignorance, craving and clinging are included in the ten truths." 六入十二諦所攝。 無明愛取十諦所攝. However, the six senses, as in the Tibetan, properly belong to the preceding element section. Here they are implied in the "other nine." The character 集, "origination," was lost and replaced with "ten," 十, by a copyist who could not make sense of the text.

[1622] Tibetan (190a–b): "The Truths inclusion: three factors are included in the truth of origination, namely, ignorance, craving and clinging. The remaining nine factors are included in the truth of suffering, namely, formations, consciousness, name and matter, the six sense-bases, contact, feeling, existence and birth and old age. As to supramundane dependent arising: suffering is included in the truth of suffering. Ten factors are included in the truth of the path, namely, faith, gladness, rapture, tranquility, happiness, concentration, knowledge and vision as they are, disenchantment, dispassion, freedom. Knowledge of destruction is included in the truth of cessation."

suffering; separation from those who are dear is suffering; the not getting of what is wished for is suffering; in brief the five aggregates subject to clinging are suffering."[1623]

"Birth is suffering": This is the arising of the aggregates of various orders of beings. The origination of all suffering is the meaning.[1624]

"Ageing is suffering": Because of birth the elements mature.[1625] Decline of strength, appearance (vaṇṇa, saṇṭhāna), sense-faculties, memory and wisdom is the meaning.[1626] 452a13

"Death is suffering": Giving rise to fear as to the exhaustion of life is the meaning.

"Sorrow is suffering": The consuming of the mind on reaching a state of suffering. The burning within is the meaning.[1627]

"Lamentation is suffering": Suffering reaches verbal expression.[1628] To burn inside and outside is the meaning.

"Pain is suffering": is the suffering of the body. Because of this one suffers physically is the meaning.

"Distress and grief are suffering": This is the suffering of the mind. Because of this one suffers mentally is the meaning.

"Association with those who are not dear is suffering": is being united with disagreeable beings. This gives rise to suffering is the meaning.

"Separation from those who are dear suffering": is being parted and separated from liked beings. This gives rise to sorrow and suffering[1629] is the meaning. 452a18

"The not getting of what is wished for": [when] desiring separation from those who are not liked and desiring association with those who are liked, the not getting of that. The losing of what is desired is the meaning.

"In brief the five aggregates subject to clinging are suffering": Non-separation from these five aggregates subject to clinging—that, in brief, is the five aggregates subject to clinging are suffering.[1630]

Q. What are the five aggregates subject to clinging?[1631] 452a21

A. The matter aggregate subject to clinging, the feeling aggregate subject to clinging, the perception aggregate subject to clinging, the formations aggregate subject to clinging, the consciousness aggregate subject to clinging. These are to be known according to the full explanation under the aggregate-skill.

Two and three kinds of suffering

Here, suffering is of two kinds thus: suffering as basis (vatthuka-dukkha, vatthu-dukkha) and intrinsic suffering (sabhāva-dukkha).[1632]

Birth is suffering, death is suffering, association with those who are not dear is suffering, separation from those who are dear is suffering, not getting what is wished for is suffering; in brief, the five aggregates subject to clinging are suffering[1633]—this is called "suffering as."[1634] 452a25

[1623] D II 304 ff; Vibh 99: Cattāri ariyasaccāni: dukkhaṃ ariyasaccaṃ dukkhasamudayo ariyasaccaṃ dukkhanirodho ariyasaccaṃ dukkhanirodhagāmini paṭipadā ariyasaccaṃ. Tattha katamaṃ dukkhaṃ ariyasaccaṃ? Jāti pi dukkhā jarā pi dukkhā maraṇaṃ pi dukkhaṃ sokaparidevadukkhadomanassupāyāsā pi dukkhā appiyehi sampayogo dukkho piyehi vippayogo dukkho yam p'icchaṃ na labhati tam pi dukkhaṃ: saṅkhittena pañcupādānakkhandhā pi dukkhā.

[1624] Cf. D II 305; Vibh 99: Katamā ca, bhikkhave, jāti? Yā tesaṃ tesaṃ sattānaṃ tamhi tamhi sattanikāye jāti sañjāti okkanti abhinibbatti khandhānaṃ pātubhāvo āyatanānaṃ paṭilābho, ayaṃ vuccati bhikkhave jāti.

[1625] Tibetan (190b): "maturing of the elements of one who is born (…of a man, jāta, purisa)" skyes pa'i khams rnams yongs su smin pa.

[1626] Cf. D II 305; Vibh 99: āyuno saṃhāni indriyānaṃ paripāko.

[1627] "Burning within": cf. Paṭis I 37, Vibh 99: antosoko antoparisoko cetaso parijjhāyanā. Tibetan: "inner and outer craving," nang dang phyi rol sred pa.

[1628] Cf. Vibh 99: paridevitattaṃ vācā palāpo.

[1629] The Tibetan (191a) has "sorrow and lamentation," sokaparideva, mya ngan dang smre sngags 'don pa.

[1630] Cf. the explanations of these terms at M III 248ff, and Vibh 99

[1631] This question and answer are not found in the Tibetan.

[1632] 自性 = sabhāva. The Tibetan has rang rtags, = sva + liṅga/nimitta, "own sign" or "intrinsic character." Elsewhere rang bzhin and rang gi ngo bo are used for sabhāva.

[1633] The Tibetan (191a) has: "Birth also is suffering, and so on, in brief, the five …" … skye yang sdug bsngal zhes pa nas …

[1634] Vibh-a 104: Sokassa dukkhaṭṭho veditabbo' ti ettha pana ayaṃ sabhāvadukkhattā c'eva dukkhassa ca vatthubhāvena dukkho ti vutto. Vibh-a 93: Tattha kāyikacetasikā dukkhavedanā sabhāvato ca nāmato ca dukkhattā dukkhadukkhaṃ nāma. … Ṭhapetvā dukkhadukkhaṃ sesaṃ dukkhasaccavibhaṅge āgataṃ jātiādi sabbampi tassa tassa dukkhassa vatthubhāvato pariyāyadukkhaṃ nāma. Vibh-a 95: Idāni jātiyā dukkhaṭṭho veditabbo ti ayañhi jāti sayaṃ na dukkhā, dukkhuppattiyā pana vatthubhāvena dukkhā ti vuttā. Kataradukkhassa panāyaṃ vatthūti? Yaṃ taṃ

Sorrow, lamentation, pain, distress and grief are suffering—these are called "intrinsic suffering."

Suffering is of three kinds thus: the suffering of pain, the suffering of change and the suffering of formations.[1635]

Here bodily and mental suffering—these are called "suffering of pain."

The change of the basis (vatthu) of pleasant feeling subject to taints—this is called "the suffering of change."[1636]

The five aggregates subject to clinging—this is called " the suffering of formations."

This is called the Noble Truth of Suffering.

Truth of the Origination of Suffering

Q. What is the Noble Truth of the Origination of Suffering? 452a28

A. "This craving, causing further existence (punabbhava), accompanied by delight and greed, delighting everywhere, namely, [452b] the craving for sense-pleasure, the craving for existence and the craving for annihilation."

Here, "this craving causing further existence": The fostering of craving for existence causes existence and birth."

"[This] craving," as the origination of suffering, means, just craving, unaccompanied (by delight and greed), which is taught as the origination of suffering

"Accompanied by delight and greed (nandirāga)": When just craving causes delight (nandi) it is called delight. When it causes to stain (rañjana), it is called greed (rāga). [It means] delight arising together with greed."[1637]

"Delighting everywhere" Wherever self-hood (attabhāva) is produced, there it delights. Wherever there is a likeable object (piyarūpa), there it delights.[1638] 452b04

"Namely, the craving for sense-pleasure, the craving for existence and the craving for annihilation": Putting aside craving for existence and the craving for annihilation, [all] other cravings are craving for sense-pleasure. The craving for existence is accompanied by the view of eternalism (sassatadiṭṭhi). The craving for annihilation is accompanied by the view of annihilationism (ucchedadiṭṭhi).[1639] bālapaṇḍitasuttādīsu bhagavatāpi upamāvasena pakāsitaṃ āpāyikaṃdukkhaṃ, yañca sugatiyaṃ manussaloke gabbhokkantimūlakādibhedaṃ dukkhaṃ uppajjati, tassa sabbassāpi esā vatthu. Vibh-a 97: Iti imassa sabbassāpi dukkhassa ayaṃ jāti vatthumeva hotīti. Sn-a I 41: Sohaṃ jātidukkhavatthukehi sabbadukkhehi parimutto…

---

[1635] Cf. D III 216: Tisso dukkhatā: Dukkha-dukkhatā, saṅkhāra-dukkhatā, viparināma-dukkhatā. Vibh-a 93: Tattha kāyikacetasikā dukkhavedanā sabhāvato ca nāmato ca dukkhattā dukkhadukkhaṃ nāma. Sukhavedanā vipariṇāmena dukkhuppattihetuto vipariṇāmadukkhaṃ nāma. Upekkhāvedanā c'eva avasesā ca tebhūmakā saṅkhārā udayabbaya-pīḷitattā saṅkhāradukkhaṃ nāma. Tathā pīḷanaṃ pana maggaphalānam pi atthi. Tasmā ete dhammā dukkhasacca-pariyāpannattena saṅkhāradukkhaṃ nāmā ti veditabbā.

[1636] Cf. S IV 216: Tisso imā, bhikkhu, vedanā vuttā mayā. Sukhā vedanā, dukkhā vedanā, adukkhamasukhā vedanā, imā tisso vedanā vuttā mayā. Vuttaṃ kho panetaṃ, bhikkhu, mayā yaṃ kiñci vedayitaṃ, taṃ dukkhasminti. Taṃ kho panetaṃ, bhikkhu, mayā saṅkhārānaṃyeva aniccataṃ … vipariṇāmadhammataṃ sandhāya bhāsitaṃ … Cf S II 53, M III 208.

[1637] Cf. Nidd-a I 38: Nandī ca sā rañjanaṭṭhena rāgo cā ti nandirāgo. Tattha ekasmiṃ ārammaṇe sakiṃ uppannā taṇhā nandī, puna-ppunaṃ uppajjamānā nandirāgo ti vuccati. This explanation and the preceding ones are missing from the Tibetan.

[1638] Tibetan (191b): "Delighting everywhere: wherever self-hood is produced, there it delights. Again, wherever there is a likeable object or pleasant object (piyarūpa sātarūpa), there it delights."

Cf. Paṭis I 39: Yāyaṃ taṇhā ponobhavikā … vibhavataṇhā, sā kho panesā taṇhā kattha uppajjamānā uppajjati, kattha nivisamānā nivisati? Yaṃ loke piyarūpaṃ sātarūpaṃ, etthesā taṇhā uppajjamānā uppajjati, ettha nivisamānā nivisati. Kiñca loke piyarūpaṃ sātarūpaṃ? Cakkhu loke piyarūpaṃ sātarūpaṃ, etthesā taṇhā uppajjamānā uppajjati. Cf. D II 308, etc.

[1639] S V 421; Vin I 10: Vibh 101–3; D II 308–10: Katamañ ca bhikkhave dukkhasamudayaṃ ariyasaccaṃ? Yāyaṃ taṇhā ponobhavikā nandi-rāga-sahagatā tatratatrābhinandinī, seyyathīdaṃ kāma-taṇhā bhava-taṇhā vibhava-taṇhā.

Cf. Paṭis-a I 158/ Vibh-a 110f/D-a 799/ Vism XVI.61: Yāyaṃ taṇhā ti yā ayaṃ taṇhā. Ponobbhavikā ti punabbhavakaraṇaṃ punobbhavo, … Ahinandanasaṅkhātena nandirāgena sahagatā ti nandirāgasahagatā, nandirāgena saddhiṃ atthato ekattam eva gatā ti vuttaṃ hoti. Tatratatrābhinandinī ti yatra yatra attabhāvo nibbattati tatratatrābhinandinī, rūpādīsu vā ārammaṇesu tatratatrābhinandinī; rūpābhinandinī saddagandharasaphoṭṭhabbadhammābhinandinī ti attho. Tatratatrābhinandītipi pāṭho, tatra tatra abhinandayatīti attho. Seyyathidan ti nipāto; tassa sā katamā ti ceti attho. Kāmataṇhā ti kāme taṇhā kāmataṇhā; pañcakāmaguṇikarāgass' etaṃ adhivacanaṃ. Bhave taṇhā bhavataṇhā; bhavapatthanāvasena uppannassa sassatadiṭṭhisahagatassa rūpārūpabhavarāgassa ca jhānanikantiyā cetaṃ adhivacanaṃ. Vibhave taṇhā vibhavataṇhā; ucchedadiṭṭhisahagatassa rāgass'etaṃ adhivacanaṃ.

This is called the "Noble Truth of the Origination of Suffering."

Truth of the Cessation of Suffering

Q. What is the Noble Truth of the Cessation of Suffering?

A. "The remainderless [fading away,] cessation, relinquishing, renouncing, being delivered from, and dislodging of that very craving."[1640]

This is called "the Noble Truth of the Cessation of Suffering."

Q. Isn't this also the cessation of the origination [of suffering]? Then why did the Blessed One teach the cessation of the cause of suffering?

A. The cessation of the cause of suffering is the cessation without rearising (anuppāda-nirodha) in the sense of having to be realized (sacchikātabbaṃ). Therefore the Blessed One taught: "The cessation of the origination is the cessation of suffering."[1641]

[This is called "the Noble Truth of the Cessation of Suffering."]

Truth of the Path Leading to Cessation of Suffering

Q. What is the Noble Truth of the Path leading to the Cessation of Suffering?

A. It is the Noble Eightfold Path, namely, right view, right intention, right speech, right action, right livelihood, right effort, right mindfulness and right concentration. 452b12

Right view is the knowledge of the Four Truths.[1642]

Right intention is the three wholesome intentions.[1643]

Right speech is the abstaining from the four wrong [verbal] conducts.

Right action is abstaining from the three wrong [physical] conducts.[1644]

Right livelihood is abstaining from wrong livelihood.[1645]

Right effort is the four right efforts.[1646]

Right mindfulness is the four establishings of mindfulness.

Right concentration is the four jhānas.

Again, knowledge and vision of Nibbāna due to the development of the Noble Path—this is right view.

The thought (vitakka) on that very Nibbāna—this is right intention.

The abandoning of wrong speech—this is right speech.[1647]

[1640] Ibid. 310–11: … dukkha-nirodhaṃ ariya-saccaṃ? Yo tassā yeva taṇhāya asesa-virāga-nirodho cāgo paṭinissaggo mutti anālayo …

[1641] Vibh-a 84, Vism @@, Nett-a 58 (Be): dukkhassa vā anuppādanirodhapaccayattā dukkhanirodhanti. Paṭis II 217: Evaṃ hetunirodhā dukkhanirodho. Evaṃ atthi maggabhāvanā, atthi phalasacchikiriyā, atthi kilesappahānaṃ, atthi dhammābhisamayo ti. Paṭis-a III 688: Hetunirodhā dukkhanirodhoti kilesānaṃ bījabhūtassa santānassa anuppādanirodhā anāgatakkhandhabhūtassa dukkhassa hetubhūtānaṃ kilesānaṃ anuppādanirodho hoti. Evaṃ dukkhassa hetubhūtakilesānaṃ anuppādanirodhā dukkhassa anuppādanirodho hoti.

Vibh-a 112, Vism @@, Paṭis-a I 159: … ettha yo tasseva dukkhassā ti vattabbe yasmā samudayanirodheneva dukkhaṃ nirujjhati, no aññathā. Yathāha: Yathāpi mūle anupaddave daḷhe, / chinnopi rukkho punareva rūhati; / Evampi taṇhānusaye anūhate, / nibbattatī dukkhamidaṃ punappunan-ti. (Dhp 338). Tasmā taṃ dukkhanirodhaṃ dassento samudayanirodhena dassetuṃ evamāha. Sīhasamānavuttino hi tathāgatā, te dukkhaṃ nirodhentā dukkhanirodhañca dassentā hetumhi paṭipajjanti, na phale. Suvānavuttino pana aññatitthiyā, te dukkhaṃ nirodhentā dukkhanirodhañca dassentā attakilamathānuyogena ceva tasseva ca desanāya phale paṭipajjanti, na hetumhīti.

Ap II 531, Thī-a 145: Pariññātaṃ mayā dukkhaṃ, dukkhahetu vivajjito; /Nirodho me sacchikato, maggo cāpi subhāvito.

[1642] D II 311: Yaṃ kho, bhikkhave, dukkhe ñāṇaṃ, … dukkhanirodhagāminiyā paṭipadāya ñāṇaṃ, ayaṃ vuccati, bhikkhave, sammādiṭṭhi. …

[1643] D III 215: Tayo kusalasaṅkappā nekkhammasaṅkappo, abyāpādasaṅkappo, avihiṃsāsaṅkappo. D II 311: Nekkhammasaṅkappo abyāpādasaṅkappo avihiṃsāsaṅkappo, ayaṃ vuccati bhikkhave, sammāsaṅkappo.

[1644] Dhs 63 … catūhi vacīduccaritehi ārati virati paṭivirati veramaṇī … ayaṃ tasmiṃ samaye sammāvācā hoti. … tīhi kāyaduccaritehi ārati … sammākammanto hoti. A-a II 90: Kāyaduccaritanti pāṇātipātādi tividhaṃ akusalaṃ kāyakammaṃ. Cattāri vacīduccaritanti musāvādādi catubbidhaṃ akusalaṃ vacīkammaṃ. Nidd-a I 61: Tattha kāyaduccaritanti pāṇātipātaadinnādānamicchācāracetanā veditabbā. Vacīduccaritanti musāvādapisuṇavācāpharusavācā-samphappalāpacetanā veditabbā. D II 311: Musāvādā veramaṇī pisuṇāya … pharusāya … samphappalāpā veramaṇī, ayaṃ vuccati … sammāvācā. Pāṇātipātā … adinnādānā … kāmesumicchācārā veramaṇī, ayaṃ … sammākammanto. Cf. M III 74.

[1645] Dhs 63: … micchāājīvā ārati virati paṭivirati veramaṇī … ayaṃ tasmiṃ samaye sammāājīvo hoti. Cf. M III 74.

[1646] Cf. D III 225: saṃvarapadhānaṃ pahānapadhānaṃ bhāvanāpadhānaṃ anurakkhaṇāpadhānaṃ, Cf. D II 312, A II 15.

[1647] Tibetan (192a): "The abandoning wrong speech due that very [intention]—this is right speech. The abandoning

The abandoning of wrong action—this is right action.
The abandoning of wrong livelihood—this is right livelihood.
The abandoning of wrong effort—this is right effort.[1648]
The recollection (sati) of that very Nibbāna—this is right mindfulness.
The unification of mind (cittekaggatā) on just that Nibbāna—this is right concentration.[1649] 452b20
Here, the faculty of wisdom, the power of wisdom, the basis of supernormal power of scrutiny and the awakening factor of the investigation of the Dhamma are included in internal right view.[1650]
The faculty of energy, the power of energy, the basis of super normal power of energy, the basis of supernormal power of zeal, the awakening factor of energy, and the fourfold right effort are included in internal right effort.[1651]
The faculty of mindfulness, the power of mindfulness, the awakening factor of mindfulness and the four establishings of mindfulness are included in internal right mindfulness.
The faculty of concentration, the power of concentration, 452b24 the basis of supernormal power of mind, the faculty of faith, the power of faith, the awakening factor of concentration, the awakening factor of rapture, the awakening factor of tranquillity and the awakening factor of equanimity are included in internal right concentration.
Thus the thirty-seven states that are accessories of awakening (bodhipakkhiyā dhammā) are included in the Noble Eightfold Path.
These are called "the Noble Truth of the Path leading to the Cessation of Suffering."
These are called "the Four Noble Truths." 452b28

Why Four Noble Truths are Taught

Q. Why are four Noble Truths taught and not three or five?
A. [This is] all doubt. Because they are mundane and supramundane fruits (phala) and causes (hetu), they are four. [452c]
Q. What is the fruit [and what the cause] of mundane truth?
A. Suffering and origination are the fruit and cause of mundane truth. Cessation is the fruit of supramundane truth. The Path is the cause of supramundane truth. Therefore four and not three or five are taught.[1652] wrong action due that very [speech]—this is right action."

---

[1648] Tibetan (192a): "The energy (viriya) due that very [abandoning]—this is right effort."

[1649] Cf. Vism XVI.76–83/p.509f.: Saṅkhepato hi catusaccapaṭivedhāya paṭipannassa yogino nibbānārammaṇaṃ avijjānusayasamugghātakaṃ paññācakkhu sammādiṭṭhi. … Tathā sampannadiṭṭhino taṃsampayuttaṃ micchāsaṅkappanighātakaṃ cetaso nibbānapadābhiniropanaṃ sammāsaṅkappo. … Tathā passato vitakkayato ca taṃsampayuttāva vacīduccaritasamugghātikā micchāvācāya virati sammāvācā nāma. Sā … micchāvācāppahāna-paccupaṭṭhānā. Tathā viramato taṃsampayuttāva micchākammantasamucchedikā pāṇātipātādivirati sammākammanto nāma. So … micchākammantappahānapaccupaṭṭhāno. Yā panassa tesaṃ sammāvācākammantānaṃ visuddhibhūtā taṃsampayuttāva kuhanādiupacchedikā micchājīvavirati, so sammāājīvo nāma. So … micchājīvappahānapaccupaṭṭhāno. Athassa yo tassā sammāvācākammantājīvasaṅkhātāya sīlabhūmiyaṃ patiṭṭhitassa tadanurūpo taṃsampayuttova kosajjasamucchedako vīriyārambho, esa sammāvāyāmo nāma. So … micchāvāyāmappahānapaccupaṭṭhāno. Tassevaṃ vāyamato taṃsampayuttova micchāsativiniddhunano cetaso asammoso sammāsati nāma. … Evaṃ anuttarāya satiyā saṃrakkhiyamānacittassa taṃsampayuttāva micchāsamādhividdhaṃsikā cittekaggatā sammāsamādhi nāma. Ayaṃ dukkhanirodhagāminipaṭipadāniddese nayo.

Cf. Paṭis-a I 195: Lokuttaramagge pana catusaccappaṭivedhāya pavattassa ariyasāvakassa nibbānārammaṇaṃ … cittekaggatā sammāsamādhi. Esa lokuttaro ariyo aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo.

Cf. Paṭis I 69f. (quoted Vism XXII.45/p.681ff.): Kathaṃ dubhato vuṭṭhānavivaṭṭane paññā magge ñāṇaṃ? Sotāpatti-maggakkhaṇe dassanaṭṭhena sammādiṭṭhi micchādiṭṭhiyā vuṭṭhāti, tadanuvattakakilesehi ca khandhehi ca vuṭṭhāti, bahiddhā ca sabbanimittehi vuṭṭhāti. Tena vuccati dubhato vuṭṭhānavivaṭṭane paññā magge ñāṇaṃ. Abhiniropanaṭṭhena sammāsaṅkappo micchāsaṅkappā vuṭṭhāti, … Pariggahaṭṭhena sammāvācā micchāvācāya vuṭṭhāti, … Samuṭṭhānaṭṭhena sammākammanto micchākammantā vuṭṭhāti, … Vodānaṭṭhena sammāājīvo micchāājīvā vuṭṭhāti, … Paggahaṭṭhena sammāvāyāmo micchāvāyāmā vuṭṭhāti, … Upaṭṭhānaṭṭhena sammāsati micchāsatiyā vuṭṭhāti, … Avikkhepaṭṭhena sammāsamādhi micchāsamādhito vuṭṭhāti, … magge ñāṇaṃ.

[1650] Tibetan (192a) "… are included (pariyāpanna) in internal right view" …, yang dag pa'i lta ba'i nang du gtogs pa.

[1651] The Tibetan (Ssv 192a) adds the awakening factor of tranquility (shin tu sbyangs pa yang dag byang chub kyi yan lag, 猗覺分) here, and omits it under right concentration below.

[1652] The Chinese is obscure. The Tibetan text (192a) is clearer and has no second question: "… and not three or five? They are mundane and supermundane fruits and causes, namely, suffering is mundane fruit; origination is mundane cause; cessation is supermundane fruit; the path is supermundane cause. Therefore there are four."

Again, because of the four phrases: "to be understood," "to be abandoned," "to be realized," and "to be practised," there are four.[1653]

Eleven Ways of Knowing the Four Noble Truths

The distinctions of these Four Noble Truths should be known in eleven ways: through word-meaning (vacanattha), through characteristics (lakkhaṇa), sequentially (kama), through summary (saṅkhepa), through simile (upamā), through analysis (vibhaṅga), through enumeration (gaṇanā), through oneness (ekatta), through diversity (nānatta), through successive explanation and through inclusion (saṅgaha).

Word meaning

Q. How through word-meaning? 452c06

A. The Noble Truths are expounded by the Noble ones, therefore they are called "Noble Truths." They penetrated them, therefore they are Noble Truths.[1654]

"Truth" has the meaning of realness (tatha), has the meaning of non-unrealness (avitatha), has the meaning of non-other-wiseness (anaññatha).[1655]

"Suffering" has the meaning of afflicting.[1656] "Origination" has the meaning of originating.[1657] "Cessation" has the meaning of ceasing.[1658] "Path" has the meaning of seeing the supreme.[1659]

[1653] Cf. S V 435: Imesaṃ kho, bhikkhave, catunnaṃ ariyasaccānaṃ atthi ariyasaccaṃ pariññeyyaṃ, atthi ariyasaccaṃ pahātabbaṃ, atthi ariyasaccaṃ sacchikātabbaṃ, atthi ariyasaccaṃ bhāvetabbaṃ. Katamañca, bhikkhave, ariyasaccaṃ pariññeyyaṃ? Dukkhaṃ, bhikkhave, ariyasaccaṃ pariññeyyaṃ, dukkhasamudayaṃ ariyasaccaṃ pahātabbaṃ, dukkhanirodhaṃ ariyasaccaṃ sacchikātabbaṃ, dukkhanirodhagāminī paṭipadā ariyasaccaṃ bhāvetabbaṃ. Cf. S V 422. Cf. Vism XVI.27–28/p.487, Paṭis-a I 197, Vibh-a 86: Kasmā pana cattāreva ariyasaccāni vuttāni anūnāni anadhikānīti ce? … Tathā pariññeyyapahātabbasacchikātabbabhāvetabbānaṃ, … vasenāpi cattāreva vuttānīti.

[1654] Tibetan (192a): "Herein, word meaning: [they are] numbered 'four'; [they are] delimited (paricchinna) as 'Truths of the Noble One.' They are truths taught by the Noble One or they are realized (sacchikata) by the Noble One."

There is no indication in the Chinese as well as the Tibetan that a plural ariya is intended.

Th-a II 205: Cattāri ariyasaccānī ti ādinā tehi desitaṃ dhammaṃ dasseti. Tattha cattārī ti gaṇanaparicchedo. Ariyasaccānī ti paricchinnadhammadassanaṃ. Vacanatthato pana ariyāni ca avitathaṭṭhena saccāni cāti ariyasaccāni, ariyassa vā bhagavato saccāni tena desitattā, ariyabhāvakarāni vā saccānīti ariyasaccāni. S-a III 299 (on S V 435): Tathāgato ariyo, tasmā ariyasaccānī ti yasmā ariyena tathāgatena paṭividdhattā desitattā ca tāni ariyasantakāni honti, tasmā ariyassa saccattā ariyasaccānīti attho. Vism XVI.20: Yasmā panetāni buddhādayo ariyā paṭivijjhanti, tasmā ariyasaccānīti vuccanti. Yathāha cattārimāni, bhikkhave, ariyasaccāni. Katamāni … imāni kho, bhikkhave, cattāri ariyasaccāni. Ariyā imāni paṭivijjhanti, tasmā ariyasaccānīti vuccanti ti (S V 435). Apica ariyassa saccāni ti pi ariyasaccāni. Yathāha sadevake, bhikkhave, loke … pe … manussāya tathāgato ariyo, tasmā ariyasaccānīti vuccanti ti (S V 433). Abhi-s 232 (Be): Ariyānaṃ vā saccāni tehi paṭivijjhitabbattā, ariyassa vā sammāsambuddhassa saccāni tena desitattā ti ariyasaccāni.

[1655] S V 430–31, Paṭis II 103: Cattārimāni bhikkhave tathāni avithatāni anaññathāni. Katamāni cattāri? Idaṃ dukkhan ti bhikkhave tatham etaṃ avitatham etaṃ anaññatatham etam. Ayaṃ dukkhasamudayo ti tatham etaṃ … ayaṃ dukkhanirodho ti tatham etaṃ … Ayaṃ dukkhanirodhagāminī paṭipadā ti tatham etaṃ … Paṭis II 104: Cattāro dukkhassa dukkhaṭṭhā tathā avitathā anaññathā. Dukkhassa pīḷanaṭṭho, saṅkhataṭṭho, santāpaṭṭho, vipariṇāmaṭṭho … Samudayassa āyūhanaṭṭho, nidānaṭṭho, saṃyogaṭṭho palibodhaṭṭho … Nirodhassa nissaraṇaṭṭho, vivekaṭṭho, asaṅkhataṭṭho, amataṭṭho … Maggassa niyyānaṭṭho, hetuṭṭho, dassanaṭṭho, ādhipateyyaṭṭho – ime cattāro maggassa maggaṭṭhā tathā avitathā anaññathā. Evaṃ maggo tathaṭṭhena saccaṃ. S-a III 298: Sabhāva-vijahan' aṭṭhena tathaṃ. Dukkhaṃ hi dukkham eva vuttaṃ sabhāvassa amoghatāya avitathaṃ. Na dukkhaṃ adukkhaṃ nāma hoti. Añña-sabhāvānupagamena anaññathaṃ. Na hi dukkhaṃ samudayādisabhāvaṃ upagacchati. Samudayādīsu pi es' eva nayo ti. It-a I 179: Bhūtato aviparītasabhāvato salakkhaṇato sāmaññalakkhaṇato ca passati. Cf. Ap-a 383, D III 273.

[1656] The Taisho ed. reads 果 but has the v.l. 苦 = dukkha, pīḷana, ābādha, which matches the Tibetan parallel's (192b) mnar ba, meaning "affliction, torment, oppression." At 194a mnar ba corresponds to 逼, "to harass, press," (453a24).

[1657] The Chinese version has 因, hetu, kāraṇa, nidāna, while the Tibetan version has bskyed pa = uppāda, pabhava, janana. In the following "characteristics" method the Chinese again has 因, while the Tibetan has rgyu = hetu, nidāna.

[1658] 隨滅, lit. anu-nirodha. DDB: "Basic sense: to cease accordingly. Senses: cease to be. (Skt. nivartiṣyete)." Tibetan: rjes su 'gog pa = anu-nirodha. The term anunirodha is not found in Pali texts. Perhaps the text originally had anuppādā-nirodha or anuppatti-nirodha and the manuscripts that reached Tibet and China both had the same corrupt reading in which -ppāda or -patti was missing due to an early scribal error. Cf. Vism-mhṭ II 208: Yathā niruddhā na santi, evaṃ anuppannāpīti abhāvasāmaññato nirodhasadisatāya anuppatti eva nirodho anuppattinirodho. Paṭis-a I 324: Nirodhetīti anuppādanirodhena nirodheti.

[1659] 見第一. Tibetan (192b): dam pa'i don goms par byed pa: cultivation of the ultimage goal, paramatthabhāvana?

Thus it should be understood through the meaning of words.

Characteristics

Q. How through characteristics? 452c10

A. Suffering has the characteristic of disadvantage (ādīnava).[1660] Origination (samudaya) has the characteristic of cause (hetu). Cessation has the characteristic of non-arising (anuppāda). The Path has the characteristic of means (upāya).[1661]

Again, suffering has the characteristic of harassment (pīḷana),[1662] the characteristic of distress (domanassa),[1663] the characteristic of the conditioned (saṅkhata), and the characteristic of change.[1664]

Origination has the characteristic of accumulation (āyuhana), the characteristic of source (nidāna), the characteristic of bondage, and the characteristic of obstruction.[1665] 452c12

Cessation has the characteristic of escape (nissaraṇa), the characteristic of seclusion, the characteristic of the unconditioned and the characteristic of the deathless (amata).

The Path has the characteristic of leading out (niyyāna), the characteristic of causing to reach (sampāpaka),[1666] the characteristic of seeing, and the characteristic of authority.

Thus it should be understood through various characteristics. 452c14

Sequentially

Q. How sequentially?

A. The Truth of Suffering is taught first, because it has the sense of being coarse and evident.[1667]

M-a IV 107: Diṭṭhisampanno ti maggadiṭṭhiyā sampanno sotāpanno ariyasāvako. Nidd I 20: uttamadiṭṭhippatto bhāvitamaggo pahīnakileso paṭividdhākuppo sacchikatanirodho, dukkhaṃ tassa pariññātaṃ. See next method below: "the path has … the characteristic of seeing (dassana).

[1660] Tibetan (192b): nyes pa, = dosa ("fault"), ādīnava Cf. A-a V 21: Ādīnavamaddasā ti dukkhasaccaṃ addasa. Paṭis II 242: Ādīnavato ti, dukkhānupassanā. Ud-a 282: Appassādā kāmā bahudukkhā bahupāyāsā, ādīnavo ettha bhiyyo ti ādinā nayena kāmānaṃ ādīnavaṃ okāraṃ saṃkilesaṃ kathesi. Tattha ādīnavanti dosaṃ. J-a IV 312: Ādīnavan-ti evarūpaṃ dosaṃ.

[1661] Cf. Peter Skilling's translation of the Tibetan quotation of this passage in "New Pāli Inscriptions from South-east Asia," JPTS XXIII, 1997, p. 143–44.

Cf. Nett 8: Cattāri saccāni dukkhaṃ samudayaṃ nirodhaṃ maggaṃ. Ādīnavo ca phalañca dukkhaṃ, assādo samudayo, nissaraṇaṃ nirodho, upāyo āṇatti ca maggo. Imāni cattāri saccāni. Nett-a 56 Be: Avasesapaccayasamavāye dukkhassa uppattikāraṇattā samudayo. Sabbagatisuññattā natthi ettha saṃsāracārakasaṅkhāto dukkharodho, etasmiṃ vā adhigate saṃsāracārakasaṅkhātassa dukkharodhassa abhāvo ti pi nirodho, anuppādanirodhapaccayattā vā.. … Saha vipassanāya ariyamaggo desanā ca desanāphalādhigamassa upāyoti katvā upāyo āṇatti ca maggo ti vuttaṃ. Paṭis-a III 537–38. Nidd-a II 3 Samudayañcā ti paccayañca. Atthaṅgamañcā ti uppannānaṃ abhāvagamanañca, anuppannānaṃ anuppādaṃ vā. Assādañcāti ānisaṃsañca. Ādīnavañcā ti dosañca. Nissaraṇañcā ti nikkhamanañca. S-a II 154: Imasmiṃ sutte cattāri saccāni kathitāni. Kathaṃ? Catūsu hi dhātūsu assādo samudayasaccaṃ, ādīnavo dukkhasaccaṃ, nissaraṇaṃ nirodhasaccaṃ, nirodhappajānano maggo maggasaccaṃ.

[1662] Cp. commentary on these terms at Vism XXII.99–102/p.691–92.

Cf. Vism XXI.7/p. 640: abhiṇhapaṭipīḷanākāro dukkhalakkhaṇaṃ. Cf. Vism XVI.50–51: Dukkhaṃ nāma kāyikaṃ dukkhaṃ, taṃ kāyapīḷanalakkhaṇaṃ, … Domanassaṃ nāma mānasaṃ dukkhaṃ. Taṃ cittapīḷanalakkhaṇaṃ, …

[1663] 憂 = domanassa. The Tibetan has kun du gdung ba (also at 453a24) corresponding to santāpa, as in the parallel at Paṭis II 104: Dukkhassa pīḷanaṭṭho, saṅkhataṭṭho, santāpaṭṭho, vipariṇāmaṭṭho … Samudayassa āyūhanaṭṭho, nidānaṭṭho, saṃyogaṭṭho palibodhaṭṭho … Nirodhassa nissaraṇaṭṭho, vivekaṭṭho, asaṅkhataṭṭho, amataṭṭho … Maggassa niyyānaṭṭho, hetuṭṭho, dassanaṭṭho, ādhipateyyaṭṭho. Khp-a 109: pīḷanasaṅkhatasantāpaviparināmaṭṭhena vā dukkhamariyasaccaṃ, āyūhananidānasaṃyogapalibodhaṭṭhena samudayaṃ, nissaraṇavivekāsaṅkhataamataṭṭhena nirodhaṃ, niyyānikahetudassanādhipateyyaṭṭhena maggaṃ.

[1664] Also at 457a26. At 401b25 有邊 stands for pariyanta. It is possible that the Chinese translator misunderstood or read viparināma, "change," as parimāṇa, "limit." See Paṭis II 104 quoted below. The Tibetan version has yongs su 'gyur ba, corresponding to viparināma, pariṇāma.

[1665] The Chinese has the wide-ranging character 著, which stands for all sorts of attachment and bondage (gaha, baddha, yuta, pariveṭhita, etc.). Likely the Chinese translator understood palibodha as Skt. paribaddha, "bound, obstructed."

[1666] Cf. D-a I 224: tassa ca sampāpakaṃ ariyamaggaṃ ayaṃ dukkhanirodhagāminī paṭipadā ti. D-ṭ I 187: Kāraṇanti tividhaṃ kāraṇaṃ sampāpakaṃ nibbattakaṃ ñāpakanti. Tattha ariyamaggo nibbānassa sampāpakaṃ kāraṇaṃ… Paṭis-a III 579: Maggo ceva hetu cāti tassa tassa kiccassa karaṇāya paṭipadaṭṭhena maggo, sampāpakaṭṭhena hetu. Tena maggassa paṭipadaṭṭho sampāpakaṭṭho ca vutto hoti. Ayaṃ maggo ayaṃ paṭipadātiādīsu hi paṭipadā maggo, maggassa niyyānaṭṭho hetuṭṭhotiādīsu sampāpako hetu.

[1667] Instead of "evident," 證, = viññeyya?, the Tibetan text has rkyen = paccaya, "condition." Cf. Vism XVI.29, Paṭis-a I

Because of this, suffering is born, therefore the origination [of suffering] is taught second
The cessation of origination is the cessation of suffering, therefore cessation is taught third.
This is the means for real cessation, therefore the way is taught as the fourth. [1668]

It is like a skilful physician who at first diagnoses the disease and then seeks the source of the disease. For the destruction of the disease, he prescribes medicine in accordance with the disease.[1669]

Here, the disease is to be understood as suffering; the source of the disease as origination; the ending of the disease as cessation; and the medicine as the Path.[1670]

Thus it should be understood sequentially. 452c21

Summary

Q. How through summary?

A. Occurrence (pavatti) is suffering; causing occurence is origination; non-occurence is cessation; causing non-occurence is the Path.[1671]

The grounds for defilements (kilesa-vatthu)[1672] are suffering; defilements are origination; the abandoning of defilements is cessation; the means for abandoning[1673] is the Path.

The definition (vavatthāna) of suffering removes [the views] headed by identity-view (sakkāya-diṭṭhi-pamukha); the definition of origination removes [the views] headed by annihilationism-view (uccheda-diṭṭhi); the definition of cessation removes [the views] headed by eternalism-view (sassata-diṭṭhi); the definition the path removes [the views] headed by wrong views.[1674]

197: Kamato ti ayampi desanākkamova. Ettha ca oḷārikattā sabbasattasādhāraṇattā ca suviññeyyanti dukkhasaccaṃ paṭhamaṃ vuttaṃ, tasseva hetudassanatthaṃ tadanantaraṃ samudayasaccaṃ, hetunirodhā phalanirodhoti ñāpanatthaṃ tato nirodhasaccaṃ, tadadhigamupāyadassanatthaṃ ante maggasaccaṃ. Bhavasukhassādagadhitānaṃ vā sattānaṃ saṃvegajananatthaṃ paṭhamaṃ dukkhamāha. Taṃ neva akataṃ āgacchati, na issaranimmānādito hoti, ito pana hotīti ñāpanatthaṃ tadanantaraṃ samudayaṃ. Tato sahetukena dukkhena abhibhūtattā saṃviggamānasānaṃ dukkhanissaraṇagavesīnaṃ nissaraṇadassanena assāsajananatthaṃ nirodhaṃ. Tato nirodhādhigamatthaṃ nirodhasampāpakaṃ magganti evamettha kamato vinicchayo veditabbo.

[1668] Tibetan (193a): "this is the means for the cessation of origination," kun 'byung 'gog pa'i thabs.

[1669] The Chinese text literally has "It is like a clever physician who at first sees the source of the disease and then inquires as to the contributory causes (paccaya)." This is in contradiction with the following explanation, the Tibetan version and Pali parallels. Tibetan (193a): "Just as a skilful physician first diagnoses the disease, then investigates (pariyesati, yongs su tshol ba) the source (nidāna) of the disease, then cleanses/cures (byang ba) the disease, and [then] prescribes/explains (ston pa) appropriate medicine; just so Suffering is like the disease, Origination is like the source of the disease, Cessation is like the curing of the disease, and the Path is like the medicine."

[1670] Cf. Vism XVI.87/p.512, Paṭis-a I 197: Rogo viya vā dukkhasaccaṃ, roganidānamiva samudayasaccaṃ, rogavūpasamo viya nirodhasaccaṃ, bhesajjamiva maggasaccaṃ. Vism XIX.2, p.598 : yathā nāma kusalo bhisakko rogaṃ disvā tassa samuṭṭhānaṃ pariyesati. Cf. A III 238: Seyyathā pi bho puriso ābādhiko dukkhito bāḷhagilāno, tassa kusalo bhisakko ṭhānaso ābādhaṃ nīhareyya, evam eva kho bho yato yato tassa bhoto gotamassa dhammaṃ suṇāti yadi suttaso … tato tato sokaparideva dukkhadomanassupāyāsā abbhatthaṃ gacchanti. A IV 340: Bhisakko ti bhikkhave Tathāgatass' etaṃ adhivacanaṃ arahato sammāsambuddhassa. It 101: Aham-asmi bhikkhave brāhmaṇo … anuttaro bhisakko sallakatto. Peṭ 123–24: Tattha dve rogā sattānaṃ avijjā ca bhavataṇhā ca. Etesaṃ dvinnaṃ rogānaṃ nighātāya bhagavatā dve bhesajjāni vuttā samatho ca vipassanā ca. … Avijjārogassa vipassanā bhesajjaṃ, avijjāvirāgā paññāvimutti arogaṃ.

[1671] Cf. Paṭis-a I 197, Vibh-a 85: pavattipavattakanivattinivattakalakkhaṇāni paṭipāṭiyā. Vism XVI.28/p.497: Apica pavattimācikkhanto bhagavā sahetukaṃ ācikkhi, nivattiñca saupāyaṃ. Iti pavattinivattitadubhayahetūnaṃ etaparamato cattāreva vuttāni.

[1672] Cf. Nett-a 198 (Be): Dasa vatthuke kilesapuñje ti. Dasavidhakāraṇe kilesasamūhe ti attho. Tattha kilesāpi kilesavatthu, kilesānaṃ paccayadhammā pi kilesavatthu. Tesu kāraṇabhāvena purimasiddhā kilesā parato paresaṃ kilesānaṃ paccayabhāvato kilesā pi kilesavatthu. Ayonisomanasikāro, ayonisomanasikāraparikkhatā ca dhammā kilesuppattihetubhāvato kilesappaccayā pi kilesavatthu ti daṭṭhabbaṃ. Cf. Th 932 Kilesehābhibhūtā te, tena tena vidhāvitā; / Narā kilesavatthūsu, sasaṅgāmeva ghosite. Th-a III 77 Kilesavatthūsū ti paṭhamaṃ uppannaṃ kilesā pacchā uppajjanakānaṃ kāraṇabhāvato kilesāva kilesavatthūni, tesu kilesavatthūsu samūhitesu, [1673] Pahānupāya. Cf. M-a I 176: Tato tassa pahānupāyaṃ vicinanto atthi paṇītanti pajānāti, ettāvatānena maggasaccavavatthānaṃ kataṃ hoti.

[1674] Lit "closes/opens the door of identity view," 關/開身見門. The Taisho text has 開 "opens" instead of 關, "closes." 開 is a v.l. The Tibetan quotation has "destroys (samugghāta) the entrance/door of identity view," 'jig tsogs la lta ba yang dag par 'joms pa 'i sgo'o. Instead of "eternalism-view," the Tibetan text has "all suffering," sdug bsngal thams cad, and instead of "wrong views" it has "non-action-view," akiriyadiṭṭhi, bya ba ma yin pa'i lta ba.

Cf. Paṭis-a II 463: Yasmā pana sakkāyadiṭṭhippamukhāyeva dvāsaṭṭhi diṭṭhiyo honti, sakkāyadiṭṭhisamugghāteneva ca dvāsaṭṭhi diṭṭhiyo samugghātaṃ gacchanti, tasmā sakkāyadiṭṭhippamukhena dvāsaṭṭhi diṭṭhigatānīti vuttā, sakkāyadiṭṭhippamukhena sakkāyadiṭṭhidvārena dvāsaṭṭhi diṭṭhigatāni hontī ti attho. Sakkāyadiṭṭhippamukhānī ti pāṭho

Thus it should be understood through summary.

Simile

Q. How through simile?

A. Suffering should be regarded as a poisonous tree; origination as the seed [of the poisonous tree]; cessation, as the burning of the seed; the Path as the fire [burning the seed].[1675]

One should regard suffering as this shore which is dreadful and fearful; origination as the torrent (ogha); cessation as the further shore that is free from dread and fear; and the Path as the boat that is able to cross over [to the further shore].[1676] [453a]

One should regard suffering as the bearing of a burden;[1677] origination as the taking up of the burden; cessation as the laying down of the burden; and the Path as the means of laying down the burden.[1678]

Thus it should be understood through simile.

Analysis

Q. How is it to be known through analysis?

A. There are four kinds of truth: speech truth (vācā-sacca), manifold individual truth (puthu-paccekasacca), absolute truth (paramattha-sacca) and Noble Truth (ariya-sacca).

Here, the speaking of true words and not of untrue [words]—this is called "speech truth."

The great many wrong views (diṭṭhigati)—this is manifold individual truth.[1679] sundarataro. Sakkāyadiṭṭhi pamukhā ādi etesanti sakkāyadiṭṭhippamukhāni. Kāni tāni? Dvāsaṭṭhi diṭṭhigatāni. Nett-a 195 (Be) … sakkāyadassanamukhena ucchedādi-antadvayaṃ, majjhimañca paṭipadaṃ niddhāreti. Tattha ime vuccanti ucchedavādino ti ime rūpādike pañcakkhandhe attato upagacchantā rūpādīnaṃ aniccabhāvato ucchijjati attā vinassati na hoti paraṃ maraṇāti evaṃ abhinivisanato ucchedavādino ti vuccanti. Ime vuccanti sassatavādino ti ime rūpavantaṃ vā attanānti ādinā rūpādivinimutto añño koci attāti upagacchantā so nicco dhuvo sassato ti abhinivisanato sassatavādino ti vuccanti. Ucchedasassatavādā ubho antā, ayaṃ saṃsārapavattīti ādi saccaniddhāraṇaṃ, taṃ suviññeyyaṃ. Ucchedasassataṃ samāsato vīsativatthukā sakkāyadiṭṭhīti attā ucchijjati attā nicco ti ca ādippavattanato ucchedasassatadassanaṃ saṅkhepato vīsativatthukā sakkāyadiṭṭhi eva hoti. Sabbo pi hi attavādo sakkāyadiṭṭhiantogadho evā ti.

---

[1675] Paṭis-a I 197: Visarukkharukkhamūlamūlūpacchedatadupacchedūpāyehi, … yojetvāpetāni upamāto veditabbānī ti. Vism XV.42: Sabbānatthāvahassa khandhasantānassa hetuto visarukkhabījāni viya.

[1676] Cf. Paṭis-a I 197: orimatīramahoghapārimatīrataṃsampāpakavāyāmehi ca yojetvāpetāni upamāto veditabbānīti. S IV 174–5: Mahā udakaṇṇavo ti bhikkhave catunnaṃ oghānaṃ adhivacanaṃ, kāmoghassa bhavoghassa diṭṭhoghassa avijjoghassa. Orimantīraṃ sāsaṅkaṃ sappaṭibhayan ti kho bhikkhave sakkāyassetaṃ adhivacanaṃ. Kullan ti kho bhikkhave ariyassetaṃ aṭṭhaṅgikassa maggassa adhivacanaṃ, seyyathidaṃ sammādiṭṭhiyā …. Hatthehi ca pādehi ca vāyāmo ti kho bhikkhave viriyārambhassetaṃ adhivacanaṃ. Tiṇṇo pāraṅgato thale tiṭṭhati brāhmaṇo ti kho bhikkhave arahato etaṃ adhivacanan ti. Cf. M I 134: … ayaṃ kho mahāudakaṇṇavo, orimaṃ tīraṃ sāsaṅkaṃ sappaṭibhayaṃ, pārimaṃ tīraṃ khemaṃ appaṭibhayaṃ; natthi ca nāvā santāraṇī uttarasetu vā apārā pāraṃ gamanāya. Yaṃnūnāhaṃ tiṇakaṭṭhasākhāpalāsaṃ saṃkaḍḍhitvā, kullaṃ bandhitvā, taṃ kullaṃ nissāya hatthehi ca pādehi ca vāyamamāno sotthinā pāraṃ uttareyya'nti.

[1677] The Chinese has 擔擔 and the Tibetan khur khur ba, which both would correspond to bhārabharaṇa, bhārabharita or something similar. Perhaps this unusual duplication is due to an early corruption in the orginal.

[1678] Paṭis-a I 197: Etesu pana bhāro viya dukkhasaccaṃ daṭṭhabbaṃ, bhārādānamiva samudayasaccaṃ, bhāranikkhepanamiva nirodhasaccaṃ, bhāranikkhepanūpāyo viya maggasaccaṃ. … upamāto veditabbānīti. S III 25–6: Katamo ca bhikkhave bhāro? Pañcupādānakkhandhā tissa vacanīyaṃ. … Katamo ca bhikkhave bhārahāro? Puggalo tissa vacanīyaṃ. Yvāyaṃ āyasmā evaṃ nāmo evaṃ gotto. … Katamañ … bhārādānaṃ? Yāyaṃ taṇhā ponobhavikā nandirāgasahagatā tatra tratrābhinandinī, … Katamañ … bhāranikkhepanaṃ? Yo tassā-yeva taṇhāya asesa-virāga-nirodho cāgo paṭinissaggo mutti anālayo. M I 139–40: Kathañ ca bhikkhave bhikkhu ariyo pannaddhajo pannabhāro visaṃyutto hoti? Idha bhikkhave bhikkhuno asmimāno pahīno hoti ucchinnamūlo tālavatthukato anabhāvakato āyatiṃ anuppādadhammo.

[1679] 各各諦. The Tibetan has so sor bden pa = pacceka-sacca. Cf. D III 270: Kathañcāvuso, bhikkhu paṇunnapaccekasacco hoti? Idhāvuso, bhikkhun-o yāni tāni puthusamaṇabrāhmaṇānaṃ puthupaccekasaccāni, sabbāni tāni nunnāni honti paṇunnāni cattāni vantāni muttāni pahīnāni paṭinissaṭṭhāni. D-a Puthusamaṇabrāhmaṇānanti bahūnaṃ samaṇabrāhmaṇānaṃ. … Puthupaccekasaccānī ti bahūni pāṭekkasaccāni, idameva dassanaṃ saccaṃ, idameva dassanaṃ saccanti evaṃ pāṭiyekkaṃ gahitāni bahūni saccānīti attho. Nunnānīti nihatāni. Paṇunnānīti suṭṭhu nihatāni.

A II 40, V 30: Kathañca, bhikkhave, bhikkhu panuṇṇapaccekasacco hoti? Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhuno yāni tāni puthusamaṇabrāhmaṇānaṃ puthupaccekasaccāni, seyyathidaṃ – sassato lokoti vā, … neva hoti na na hoti tathāgato paraṃ maraṇāti vā; sabbāni tāni nuṇṇāni honti panuṇṇāni … paṭinissaṭṭhāni.

Sn 830: Idheva suddhiṃ iti vādayanti, nāññesu dhammesu visuddhimāhu; yaṃ nissitā tattha subhaṃ vadānā, paccekasaccesu puthū niviṭṭhā ti. Nidd I 161–162: Paccekasaccesu puthū niviṭṭhā ti. Puthū samaṇabrāhmaṇā puthū paccekasaccesu niviṭṭhā patiṭṭhitā allīnā upagatā ajjhositā adhimuttā. Sassato loko, idameva saccaṃ moghamaññan ti

"That truth, bhikkhu, which is false (musa, mosa) is delusive (mosadhamma). The not false and not delusive Nibbāna is true"—this is absolute truth.[1680]

The truth to be developed by the Noble One(s) is Noble Truth.

Here, Noble Truth is preferable.

Thus it should be understood through analysis.

Enumeration

Q. How is it to be known through enumeration?

A. Leaving aside craving, the wholesome, unwholesome and indeterminate states of the three planes[1681] are the Truth of Suffering; craving is the Truth of Origination; the abandoning of craving is the Truth of Cessation; the Noble Eightfold Path is the Truth of the Path.

Again, leaving aside craving and the other (avasesa) defilements, the wholesome, unwholesome and indeterminate states of the three planes are the Truth of Suffering; craving and the other defilements are the Truth of Origination; the abandoning of these is the Truth of Cessation; the [Noble Eightfold] Path is the Truth of the Path.

And again, leaving aside craving, other defilements, and all unwholesomeness, the wholesome, and indeterminate states of the three planes are the Truth of Suffering; 453a16 craving together with the remaining defilements and all unwholesome states are the Truth of Origination; the abandoning of these is the Truth of Cessation; the path is the Truth of the Path.

And again, leaving aside craving, other defilements, all unwholesomeness and wholesomeness of the three planes, the indeterminate states of the three planes are the Truth of Suffering; craving together with the remaining defilements all unwholesomeness and wholesomeness in the three planes 453a19 are the Truth of Origination; the abandoning of these is the Truth of Cessation; the path is the Truth of the Path.[1682]

Here, in the sense of desiring satisfaction in existence,[1683] craving is origination. In the sense of fetter of existence, the remaining defilements are origination. In the sense of having to be abandoned niviṭṭhā patiṭṭhitā allīnā upagatā ajjhositā adhimuttā. Asassato loko …pe… neva hoti na na hoti tathāgato paraṃ maraṇā, idameva saccaṃ moghamaññan-ti niviṭṭhā patiṭṭhitā allīnā upagatā ajjhositā adhimuttāti—paccekasaccesu puthū niviṭṭhā.

---

Sn-a II 540, Nidd-a II 283: ime diṭṭhigatikā attano diṭṭhiṃ sandhāya idheva suddhī iti vādayanti nāññesu dhammesu visuddhimāhu. Evaṃ sante attano satthārādīni nissitā tattheva esa vādo subho ti evaṃ subhaṃ vadānā hutvā puthū samaṇabrāhmaṇā sassato loko ti-ādīsu paccekasaccesu niviṭṭhā.

[1680] Cf. M III 245: Tañhi, bhikkhu, musā yaṃ mosadhammaṃ, taṃ saccaṃ yaṃ amosadhammaṃ nibbānaṃ. Tasmā evaṃ samannāgato bhikkhu iminā paramena saccādhiṭṭhānena samannāgato hoti. Etañhi, bhikkhu, paramaṃ ariyasaccaṃ yadidaṃ – amosadhammaṃ nibbānaṃ. Vism-mhṭ II 194 (Be), Vibh-mṭ 53 (Be): Idameva saccaṃ, moghamaññan-ti (M I 140, etc.) pavattā diṭṭhi saccan-ti abhinivisanavuttiyā diṭṭhisaccaṃ. Amosadhammattā nibbānaṃ paramatthasaccaṃ. Amosadhammaṃ nibbānaṃ, tadariyā saccato vidūti (Sn 763) hi vuttaṃ, tassa pana taṃsampāpakassa ca maggassa pajānanā paṭivedho avivādakāraṇanti dvayampi, ekaṃ hi saccaṃ na dutiyam-atthi, yasmiṃ pajā no vivade pajānanti imissā (Sn 890) gāthāya saccan-ti vuttaṃ.

Tibetan (193b): "'That, bhikkhu, which is false and delusive, is untrue (abhūta). That which is not delusive, is Nibbāna'—this absolute truth."

[1681] The Tibetan text has "the three planes of the sensual, material and immaterial," 'dod pa gzugs dang gzugs med pa'i sa gsum.

[1682] Vibh 106/§ 206: … Taṇhā—ayaṃ vuccati dukkhasamudayo. … Avasesā ca kilesā, avasesā ca akusalā dhammā, tīṇi ca kusalamūlāni sāsavāni, avasesā ca sāsavā kusalā dhammā, sāsavā ca kusalākusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ vipākā, ye ca dhammā kiriyā neva kusalā nākusalā na ca kammavipākā, sabbañca rūpaṃ—idaṃ vuccati dukkhaṃ. … Taṇhāya pahānaṃ—ayaṃ vuccati dukkhanirodho. … Idha bhikkhu yasmiṃ samaye lokuttaraṃ jhānaṃ bhāveti … tasmiṃ samaye aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo hoti sammādiṭṭhi … sammāsamādhi. Tattha katamā sammādiṭṭhi? …. Ayaṃ vuccati dukkhanirodhagāminī paṭipadā. Avasesā dhammā dukkhanirodhagāminiyā paṭipadāya sampayuttā. … … Taṇhā ca, avasesā ca kilesā, avasesā ca akusalā dhammā, tīṇi ca kusalamūlāni sāsavāni, avasesā ca sāsavā kusalā dhammā— … Sāsavā kusalākusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ vipākā, ye ca dhammā kiriyā neva kusalā nākusalā na ca kammavipākā, sabbañca rūpaṃ—… Taṇhāya ca, avasesānañca kilesānaṃ, avasesānañca akusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ, tiṇṇañca kusalamūlānaṃ sāsavānaṃ, avasesānañca sāsavānaṃ kusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ pahānaṃ …

[1683] Bhavassādagadhita? The Tibetan (194a) has "Herein, craving in the primary sense of desiring satisfaction in existence (srid pa'i ro myong ba don du gnyer ba) is origination. The other fetter defilements in the primary sense (padhānaṭṭhena, gtzo bor gyur pa'i don gyis) of fetter of existence are origination. All unwholesomeness in the sense of having to be abandoned, and in the sense of fetter of existence, is origination. The wholesome states of the three planes, in the sense of generating existence, is origination."

D-ṭ II 365: bhavesu sukhaggahaṇavasena bhavassādo hotīti. Vism-mhṭ II 363 (Be): … bhavārāmā. Tasmiṃ bhave ratā abhiratāti bhavaratā. Bhave sammodaṃ āpannāti bhavasammuditā. Tīhipi padehi bhavassādagadhitatāva vuttā.

and in the sense of giving rise to existence, all unwholesome states are origination. In the sense of causing existence, the wholesome states of the three planes are origination.

Therefore, craving and the remaining defilements are origination. All unwholesome and wholesome states of the three planes are the Truth of Suffering or the Truth of Origination. 453a24

The characteristics of harassment, distress, being conditioned (saṅkhata) and change, are the Truth of Suffering.

The characteristics of accumulation (āyuhana), source (nidāna), obstruction and bondage, are the Truth of Origination.[1684]

Thus it should be understood through enumeration.

Oneness

Q. How through oneness?

A. These Four Truths are one through four ways: through the meaning of truth; the meaning of the realness; the meaning of doctrine; and the meaning of emptiness.[1685]

Thus it should be understood through oneness.

Diversity

Q. How can it be known through diversity?

A. There are two truths: mundane and supramundane truth.[1686]

Mundane truth is subject to taints, is subject to fetters, knots, [453b] torrents, yokes, hindrances, to holding, clinging, and defilement.[1687] It is Suffering and Origination.

Supramundane truth is without taints, is without fetters, knots, torrents, yokes, hindrances, holding, clinging, and defilement. It is Cessation and the Path.

Three Truths are conditioned (saṅkhata). The Truth of Cessation is unconditioned.[1688]

Three Truths are immaterial (arūpa). The Truth of Suffering is material and immaterial.[1689]

The Truth of Origination is unwholesome. The Truth of the Path is wholesome. The Truth of Cessation is indeterminate. The Truth of Suffering is wholesome, unwholesome and indeterminate.[1690]

The Truth of Suffering is to be understood; the Truth of Origination is to be abandoned; the Truth of Cessation is to be realized; and the Truth of the Path is to be developed.[1691]

Thus should it be known through diversity.

Successive explanation

Q. How through successive explanation?[1692]

[1684] These characteristics are also given at 452c12. Tibetan (194a): "Therefore craving, the other defilements, all unwholesomeness, and the wholesome states of the three planes, which are the truth of suffering, will lead to harassment, torment, the conditioned, the limited, the changeable. Craving and so on, which are the truth of origination, will lead to accumulation, clinging (len pa), obstruction (? spags pa), fetter."

[1685] Paṭis II 106: Dvādasahi ākārehi cattāri saccāni ekappaṭivedhāni. Tathaṭṭhena, anattaṭṭhena, saccaṭṭhena, paṭivedhaṭṭhena, abhijānanaṭṭhena, parijānanaṭṭhena, dhammaṭṭhena, tathaṭṭhena, ñātaṭṭhena, sacchikiriyaṭṭhena, phassanaṭṭhena, abhisamayaṭṭhena – imehi dvādasahi ākārehi cattāri saccāni ekasaṅgahitāni. Yaṃ ekasaṅgahitaṃ taṃ ekattaṃ. Ekattaṃ ekena ñāṇena paṭivijjhatīti – cattāri saccāni ekappaṭivedhāni.

Paṭis-a III 594: Ekappaṭivedhānīti ekena maggañāṇena paṭivedho, ekato vā paṭivedho etesanti ekappaṭivedhāni. Anattaṭṭhenāti catunnampi saccānaṃ attavirahitattā anattaṭṭhena. Vuttañhetaṃ Visuddhimagge: paramatthato hi sabbāneva saccāni vedakakārakanibbutagamakābhāvato suññānīti veditabbāni. Tenetaṃ vuccati, … Dhuvasukhaattavirahito, maggo iti suññatā tesū ti. Saccaṭṭhenāti avisaṃvādakaṭṭhena. Cf. Paṭis-a I 198: Sabbāneva panetāni saccāni paramatthena vedakakārakanibbutagamakābhāvato suññānī ti veditabbāni. Tenetaṃ vuccati: … Dhuvasukhaattavirahito, maggo iti suññatā tesu. … Sabbāneva saccāni aññamaññasabhāgāni avitathato attasuññato dukkarapaṭivedhato ca.

The Tibetan text has "in the sense of method (naya)," rigs pa'i don gyis as the fourth way.

[1686] Vibh 116: Dve saccā lokiyā; dve saccā lokuttarā.

[1687] Cf. Dhs 3–6: lokiyaṃ, sāsavaṃ, saṃyojaniyaṃ, ganthaniyaṃ, oghaniyaṃ, yoganiyaṃ, nīvaraṇiyaṃ, parāmaṭṭhaṃ, upādāniyaṃ, saṅkilesikaṃ. Cf. Dhs § 584–85 and Vibh 12.

[1688] Vibh 116: Tīṇi saccāni saṅkhatā; nirodhasaccaṃ asaṅkhataṃ.

[1689] Vibh 116: Tīṇi saccāni arūpāni; dukkhasaccaṃ siyā rūpaṃ siyā arūpaṃ.

[1690] Vibh 112: Samudayasaccaṃ akusalaṃ; maggasaccaṃ kusalaṃ; nirodhasaccaṃ avyākataṃ dukkhasaccaṃ siyā kusalaṃ siyā akusalaṃ siyā avyākataṃ.

[1691] See S V 422, quoted above n. 520 a.

[1692] The closest to this type of explanation is the Peṭakopadesa and the Dasuttara Sutta of the Dīgha Nikāya.

A. As singlefold (ekavidhena), the body endowed with consciousness (saviññāṇaka-kāya) is suffering; the conceit "I am" (asmimāna) is Origination; its abandoning is Cessation; recollection of the body is the Path.[1693]

As twofold, name and matter are Suffering; ignorance and craving for existence are Origination;[1694] the abandoning of these is Cessation; serenity and insight (samatha-vipassanā) are the Path.

As threefold, the [three sufferings, namely,] the suffering of pain [the suffering of change and the suffering of formations][1695] are the Truth of Suffering; the three roots of unwholesomeness are origination; the abandoning of these is cessation. Virtue, concentration and wisdom (sīla, samādhi, paññā) are the Path. 453b12

As fourfold, the four grounds for selfhood[1696] are suffering. The four perversions (vipallāsa) are origination; the abandoning of the perversions is cessation, the four establishings of mindfulness (satipaṭṭhānā) are the Path.

As fivefold, the five destinations[1697] are suffering; the five hindrances[1698] are origination; the abandoning of the hindrances is cessation; the five faculties (indriya) are the Path.[1699]

As sixfold, the six bases of contact are suffering;[1700] the six groups of craving[1701] are origination; the abandoning of the groups of craving is cessation; the six states of escaping[1702] are the Path.

Tibetan: mthar chags kyis rgyas par bshad pa = "serial extensive explanation." Chinese: 次第廣 = "serial extensive explanation, sequential detailed explanation, successive explanation, serial extension, successive increase." The Visuddhimagga parallel (XVI.92/p.514) is ekavidhādi, "As to singlefold and so on," but the Chinese and Tibetan suggest anukkama + vitthāra or similar terms.

[1693] Cf. DN III 272f.: Katamo eko dhammo bhāvetabbo? Kāyagatāsati sātasahagatā. … Katamo eko dhammo pahātabbo? asmimāno.

[1694] The Tibetan (Ssv 194b) just has "craving," sred-pa.

[1695] The Chinese text has "what is called the suffering of pain is the truth of suffering." 苦苦, "suffering of pain," = dukkhadukkhatā. The Tibetan quotation (194b) has "the three sufferings are the truth of suffering."

[1696] Attabhāvavatthu. See note @@@ to 447c01 (Treatise on Perception)

The Tibetan quotation (194b) includes an explanation of attabhāvavatthu that is different than the one found in the Peṭaka and Netti: "Of four kinds: the four selfhood-grounds are suffering, namely, the suffering of birth, suffering of ageing, suffering of death, and suffering of sickness (vyādhi). The four perversions are origination, their abandoning is cessation, the four establishings of mindfulness are the Path."

Peṭ 121: Tattha pañcakkhandhā cattāri attabhāvavatthūni bhavanti. Yo rūpakkhandho, so kāyo attabhāvavatthu. Yo vedanākkhandho, so vedanā attabhāvavatthu. Yo saññākkhandho ca saṅkhārakkhandho ca, te dhammā attabhāvavatthu. Yo viññāṇakkhandho, so cittaṃ attabhāvavatthu. Iti pañcakkhandhā cattāri attabhāvavatthūni.

[1697] D III 234: Pañca gatiyo: nirayo, tiracchāna-yoni, pettivisayo, manussā, devā.

[1698] Ibid: Pañca nīvaraṇāni. Kāmacchanda-nīvaraṇaṃ vyāpāda-nīvaraṇaṃ, thīna-middha-nīvaraṇaṃ, uddhacca-kukkucca-nīvaraṇaṃ, vicikicchā-nīvaraṇaṃ.

[1699] D III 239: pañcindriyāni: saddhindriyaṃ, vīriyindriyaṃ, satindriyaṃ, samādhindriyaṃ, paññindriyaṃ.

[1700] A I 176: cakkhu phassāyatanaṃ, sotaṃ phassāyatanaṃ, ghānaṃ phassāyatanaṃ, jivhā phassāyatanaṃ, kāyo phassāyatanaṃ, mano phassāyatanaṃ—imāni cha phassāyatanānīti. The Tibetan text lists these six.

[1701] S II 3: Katamā ca bhikkhave taṇhā? Cha yime bhikkhave taṇhākāyā. Rūpataṇhā saddataṇhā gandhataṇhā rasataṇhā phoṭṭhabbataṇhā dhammataṇhā.

[1702] Cf. A III 290–92; D III 247–50: Cha nissaraṇīyadhātuyo … nissaraṇaṃ h' etaṃ āvuso vyāpādassa, yadidaṃ mettā ceto-vimutti … vihesāya, yadidaṃ karuṇā ceto-vimutti … aratiyā, yadidaṃ muditā ceto-vimutti … rāgassa, yadidaṃ upekhā ceto-vimutti … sabba-nimittānaṃ, yadidaṃ animittā ceto-vimutti … vicikicchā-kathaṃkathā-sallassa, yadidaṃ asmīti mānasamugghāto.

The Tibetan (Ssv 194b–195a) has a different explanation for the last item: "As sixfold, the six bases of contact are suffering, namely, eye-contact, ear-contact, nose-contact, tongue-contact, body-contact, mind contact, the six groups of craving are origination, namely, craving for forms, … sounds … smells … tastes … touches … craving for mental-objects; the abandoning of the groups of craving is cessation. The six dhammas to be delighted in (kun du chags par bya ba'i chos) are the Path. Here, the six dhammas to be delighted in are as follows: He dwells contemplating (rjes su lta ba) internal dhammas (nang gi chos) as dhammas, this is the first dhamma to be delighted in. Likewise, the external dhammas. Likewise, external and internal [dhammas]. Or he dwells contemplating the nature of arising in dhammas.* Likewise he [dwells] contemplating the ceasing of dhammas. Or he dwells contemplating arising and ceasing [of dhammas], [this] is a dhamma to be delighted in." (* Lit. "Or he contemplates arising, or he contemplates dhammas in accordance with the dhamma.")

Cf. D II 301: (1) Iti ajjhattaṃ vā dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati, (2) bahiddhā vā dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati, (3) ajjhattabahiddhā vā dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati, (4) samudayadhammānupassī vā dhammesu viharati, (5) vayadhammānupassī vā dhammesu viharati, (6) samudayavayadhammānupassī vā dhammesu viharati.

Kun du chags par bya ba'i chos = saṃ + rāga/rajanīya dhamma, must be due to a corruption in the source text or a

As sevenfold, the seven stations of consciousness are suffering; the seven latent tendencies are origination; the abandoning of the seven latent tendencies is cessation; the seven awakening factors are the Path.[1703]

As eightfold, the eight worldly conditions are suffering; the eight wrongnesses are origination; the abandoning of the eight wrongnesses is cessation; the eight rightnesses are the Path.[1704]

As ninefold, the nine abodes of beings[1705] are suffering; the nine states rooted in craving[1706] are origination; the abandoning of these is cessation; the nine states rooted in reasoned attention[1707] are the Path. 453b20

As tenfold, the formations in the ten directions are suffering;[1708] the ten fetters[1709] are origination; the abandoning of the fetters is cessation;[1710] the ten perceptions are the Path.[1711]

Thus it should be understood through successive explanation.

Inclusion

Q. How through inclusion? 453b23

A. There are three kinds of inclusion, namely, inclusion into the aggregates, inclusion into the sense-bases, and inclusion into the elements.[1712]

Here, the Truth of Suffering is included in the five aggregates;[1713] the Truth of Origination and the misunderstanding of nis-saraṇīya as Skt saṃrañjanīya . The explanation appears to state, in accordance with the dhammānupassanā contemplation: (1) contemplation of dhammas as dhammas internally, (2) externally, and (3) both, and (4) the contemplation of the arising of dhammas, (5) their cessation and (6) their arising and cessation.

---

Cf. Nidd II 161 (Be): … ajjhattaṃ vedanāsu vedanānupassī viharanto vedanaṃ nābhinandati … bahiddhā vedanāsu vedanānupassī viharanto vedanaṃ nābhinandati … ajjhattabahiddhā vedanāsu … Ajjhattaṃ samudayadhammānupassī vedanāsu vedanānupassī … ajjhattaṃ vayadhammānupassī … bahiddhā samudayadhammānupassī … bahiddhā vayadhammānupassī … ajjhattabahiddhā samudayadhammānupassī … ajjhattabahiddhā vayadhammānupassī … ajjhattabahiddhā samudayavayadhammānupassī vedanāsu …

[1703] Satta viññāṇaṭṭhitiya, D III 253. Satta anusayā, D III 254. Satta sambojjhaṅgā, D III 251–2. The Tibetan (Ssv 195a) lists the seven stations in an abridged manner, and also lists the seven tendencies, but not the bojjhaṅga.

[1704] Aṭṭha loka-dhammā, D III 254. Aṭṭha micchattā (= micchādiṭṭhi … micchā samādhi), D III 254. Aṭṭha sammattā (= sammā-diṭṭhi … sammā-samādhi), D III 255.

The Tibetan (Ssv 195a) lists the eight wrongnesses and rightnesses just as in the Pali version, but does not list the eight worldly dhammas.

[1705] Nava sattāvāsā. D III 263, 288. The Tibetan (Ssv 195a) lists the nine abodes in an abridged manner.

[1706] Vibh 390; A IV 400–1: Taṇhaṃ paṭicca pariyesanā, pariyesanaṃ paṭicca lābho, lābhaṃ paṭicca vinicchayo, vinicchayaṃ paṭicca chandarāgo, chandarāgaṃ paṭicca ajjhosānaṃ, ajjhosānaṃ paṭicca pariggaho, pariggahaṃ paṭicca macchariyaṃ, macchariyaṃ paṭicca ārakkhādhikaraṇaṃ, daṇḍādāna-satthādānakalahaviggahavivādā tuvaṃtuvaṃ-pesuññamusāvādā aneke pāpakā akusalā dhammā sambhavanti. Ime kho bhikkhave nava taṇhāmūlakā dhammā ti.

[1707] Paṭis I 86: Nava yoniso manasikāramūlakā dhammā: aniccato yoniso manasikaroto pāmojjaṃ jāyati, pamuditassa pīti jāyati, pītimanassa kāyo passambhati, passaddhakāyo sukhaṃ vedeti, sukhino cittaṃ samādhiyati, samāhitena cittena idaṃ dukkhan-ti … ayaṃ dukkhasamudayo ti … ayaṃ dukkhanirodho ti … ayaṃ dukkhanirodhagāminī paṭipadā ti yathābhūtaṃ pajānāti. …

[1708] Cf. Nidd I 410: Ye puratthimāya disāya saṅkhārā, … ye dasasu disāsu saṅkhārā, te pi eritā … dukkhe patiṭṭhitā atāṇā … asaraṇībhūtā.

[1709] D III 234: Pañc' orambhāgiyāni saṃyojanāni, pañc'uddhambhāgiyāni saṃyojanāni.

[1710] Cf. It 18: dukkhassantakaro hoti, sabbosaṃyojanakkhayā ti. Th 181–2: akuppā me vimuttīti sabbasaṃyojanakkhayā'ti.

[1711] Tibetan (195b): "The ten perceptions are the Path: perception of impermanence, perception of not self, perception of the foul, perception of disadvantage, perception of abandoning,* perception of dispassion, perception of cessation, perception of non-delight towards the whole world, perception of dislike towards all formations, perception of dislike towards all formations, perception of breathing."

* The Tibetan srog chags corresponds to pāṇa, "creature." This is due to a misunderstanding or corruption of the Pali pahāna, "abandoning."  mngon par mi dga' ba. This supports the Burmese reading anicchā, as against aniccā of other editions.

A V 115: Aniccasaññā, anattasaññā, asubhasaññā, ādīnavasaññā, pahānasaññā, virāgasaññā, nirodhasaññā, sabbaloke anabhiratasaññā, sabbasaṅkhāresu anicchāsaññā, ānāpānassati. A V 105: Asubhasaññā, maraṇasaññā, āhāre paṭikkūlasaññā, sabbaloke anabhiratasaññā, aniccasaññā, anicce dukkhasaññā, dukkhe anattasaññā, pahānasaññā, virāgasaññā, nirodhasaññā.

[1712] Peṭ 111: Buddhānaṃ bhagavantānaṃ sāsanaṃ tividhena saṅgahaṃ gacchati, khandhesu dhātūsu āyatanesu ca.

[1713] Cf. S III 196: Rūpaṃ kho rādha dukkhaṃ, … viññāṇaṃ dukkhaṃ. Vibh-a. 50: Yad aniccaṃ taṃ dukkhan ti [passim is included here in S III 22] vacanato pana tad eva khandhapañcakaṃ dukkhaṃ. Kasmā? Abhiṇhasampatipīḷanato.

Truth of the Path are included in the aggregate of formations; cessation is not included in the aggregates.

The Truth of Suffering is included in the twelve sense-bases. Three Truths are included in the sense-base of mental states (dhammāyatana).

The Truth of Suffering is included in the eighteen elements. Three Truths are included in the element of mental states (dhammadhātu).[1714]

Thus one should know through inclusion.

Through this method knowledge regarding the Noble-Truths arises.

This is called "Noble–Truth-skill."

The Noble-Truth-skill is finished.[1715]

Abhiṇhasampatipīlanākāro dukkha-lakkhaṇaṃ. Nett 42: Pañcakkhandhā dukkhaṃ. Dhp 202: n'atthi khandhādisā dukkhā.

[1714] Dhātuk 8f.: Dukkhasaccaṃ pañcahi khandhehi dvādasahāyatanehi aṭṭhārasahi dhātūhi saṅgahitaṃ. Katihi asaṅgahitaṃ? Na kehici khandhehi na kehici āyatanehi na kāhici dhātūhi asaṅgahitaṃ. samudayasaccaṃ … maggasaccaṃ ekena khandhena ekenāyatanena ekāya dhātuyā saṅgahitaṃ. katihi asaṅgahitaṃ? Catūhi khandhehi ekādasahāyatanehi sattarasahi dhātūhi asaṅgahitaṃ. Nirodhasaccaṃ na kehici khandhehi ekenāyatanena ekāya dhātuyā saṅgahitaṃ. Katihi asaṅgahitaṃ? Pañcahi khandhehi ekādasahāyatanehi sattarasahi dhātūhi asaṅgahitaṃ.

[1715] The Tibetan text skips over the next topics and resumes at the change-of-lineage-knowledge at 457a17.

Chapter 12: Treatise on the Truths (Saccaniddesa)

Defining the Truth of Suffering

Analysis of the Four Noble Truths

[453c] Now, the meditator has got clarification about the aggregates, elements, sense-bases, dependent arising and the Truths, and has got to hear about virtue, asceticisms and jhānas, but because of being a commoner he is not yet liberated from the fear of bad destinations (duggati-bhaya). He has contemplated the fearfulness of the bad destinations and of the beginningless saṃsāra,[1716] has contemplated that the opportunity might be lost, has contemplated the simile of the three hundred spear strikes,[1717] has contemplated the simile of the man desirous of [quenching] his burning head,[1718] but he has not yet analysed the four Noble Truths. In order to analyse the Noble Truths he should apply skilful means; he should apply desire (chanda), apply strong energy, and wholeheartedly and mindfully he should attain perfection. 453c06

Procedure

Q. How should he apply himself?

A. The meditator should at first hear the Four Noble Truths in brief or at length or in brief and at length. Through hearing, through [grasping] the meaning, and through rehearsing, he should bear them in mind. Then the meditator enters a quiet place, sits down and composes his mind, not letting it go here and there, and defines (vavattheti, vavatthapeti) the Four Noble Truths.

First he should define the Truth of Suffering through the aggregates or the sense-bases or the elements.

The aggregates should be defined through specific characteristics (salakkhaṇa)[1719] and through the [general] characteristics of the aggregates, in the way it was taught at length under the aggregate-skill. The sense-bases should be defined through the characteristics of the sense-bases, in the way it was taught at length under the sense-base-skill. The elements should be defined through the characteristics of the elements, in the way it was taught at length under the element-skill.

Thus the meditator, having defined thus, "the aggregates, sense-bases and elements are merely aggregates, sense-bases and elements, without a being (nissatta), without a soul (nijjīva)," and having gained the delimitation of the formations (saṅkhāra-pariccheda), defines in brief the two divisions, namely, name and matter.[1720]

453c17 Here, the ten sense-bases and the ten elements of the aggregate of matter are matter. Four

---

[1716] Cf S II 92: Etassa, Ānanda, dhammassa ananubodhā appaṭivedhā evamayaṃ pajā tantākulakajātā guḷāguṇṭhikajātā, muñjababbajabhūtā apāyaṃ duggatiṃ vinipātaṃ saṃsāraṃ nātivattati. S V 431: Catunnaṃ, bhikkhave, ariyasaccānaṃ ananubodhā appaṭivedhā evamidaṃ dīghamaddhānaṃ sandhāvitaṃ saṃsaritaṃ mamañceva tumhākañca.

[1717] M III 165–66; S II 100: … Ekissā pi bhante sattiyā haññamāno tato nidānaṃ dukkhaṃ domanassaṃ paṭisaṃvediyetha ko pana vāda tīhi sattasatehi haññāmāno ti? Evam eva kvāhaṃ bhikkhave viññāṇāhāro daṭṭhabbo ti vadāmi. S I 128; Thī 58, 141: Sattisūlūpamā kāmā khandhānaṃ adhikuṭṭanā.

[1718] A II 93*: Seyyathāpi bhikkhave ādittacelo vā ādittasīso vā, tass' eva celassa vā sīsassa vā nibbāpanāya adhimattaṃ chandañ ca vāyāmañ ca ussāhañ ca ussoḷhiñ ca appaṭivāniñ ca satiñ ca sampajaññañ ca kareyya, evam eva kho bhikkhave tena puggalena tesaṃ yeva kusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ paṭilābhāya adhimatto chando ca …* S V 440: Ādittaṃ bhikkhave celaṃ vā sīsaṃ vā anajjhupekkhitvā amanasikaritvā anabhisametānaṃ catunnaṃ ariyasaccānaṃ yathābhūtaṃ abhisamayāya adhimatto chando ca vāyāmo ca ussāho ca ussoḷhī ca appaṭivānī ca sati ca sampajaññañ ca karaṇīyaṃ. S III 143: … careyyādittasīso va, patthayaṃ accutaṃ padan-ti.

[1719] 以自相以陰相應令起 (p0453c11). 自相 and salakkhaṇa, lit. means "own characteristic." Ñāṇamoli, PoP XVII.303 renders salakkhaṇa as "specific characteristic" (such as hardness of earth; see PoP Glossary) as opposed to the "general characteristic" (of impermanence, etc.) Cf. Nidd-a I 199: Khandhakusalāti pañcasu khandhesu salakkhaṇasāmaññalakkhaṇesu cheka. J-a II 34: Sabbe khandhāyatanadhātudhamme salakkhaṇasāmaññalakkhaṇavasena attano ñāṇassa vidite… D-ṭ II 377: Salakkhaṇasāmaññalakkhaṇānanti phusanāditaṃtaṃlakkhaṇānañceva aniccatādisāmaññalakkhaṇānañca vasena ti yojanā. It-a II 152: khandhādivibhāgato salakkhaṇato sāmaññalakkhaṇatoti vividhehi nayehi dhammānaṃ ñāpakā avabodhakā.

[1720] Cf A-a II 278: … Tattha cattāro arūpakkhandhā nāmaṃ, rūpakkhandho rūpanti nāmañca rūpañcāti dveyeva dhammā honti, tato uddhaṃ satto vā jīvo vā natthīti ….

aggregates, the sense-base of mind and seven elements[1721] are name. The sense-base of mental states and the element of mental states are name or matter.[1722]

Name is other than matter; matter is other than name. Matter is empty of name, and name is empty of matter. Name is not separate from matter, and matter is not separate from name, like a drum and its sound. Only dependent upon name, matter occurs, and dependent upon matter, name occurs,[1723] like the blind and the cripple journeying afar.[1724]

Q. What are the differences between name and matter?

A. Name is without a body; matter is with a body. Name is with knowing; matter is without knowing. Name proceeds quickly; matter proceeds slowly. Name is without accumulation (āyuhana); matter is with accumulation. Name thinks, knows, intends, cognizes; matter does not do these. Matter walks, leans, sits, lies down, bends and stretches; name does not do these. Name knows: "I go," "I lean," "I sit," "I lie down," "I bend," "I stretch"; matter does not know these. Matter drinks, eats, chews, tastes; name does not do these. Name knows: "I drink," "I eat," "I chew," "I taste"; matter does not know these. Matter claps the hands, frolics, laughs, cries and talks in many ways; name does not do these. Name knows: "I clap," "I frolic," "I laugh," "I cry," "I talk in such and such a manner"; matter does not know these.

These are the differences between name and matter.

Thus the meditator, having defined [454a] "name and matter are merely name and matter; without a being, without a soul," and having gained the delimitation of the formations, then [defines] all in brief.

Definition of truth of suffering, vision according to reality (yāthāvadassana), purity of view (diṭṭhivisuddhi)[1725] and definition of name and matter—these are all designations for the definition of the truth of suffering, which is to be realized.

If the meditator, having thus defined the truth of suffering, [still] has the perception of a being, then he should contemplate the source (nidāna) of suffering.

Defining the Truth of Origination

Understanding the Source of Suffering

Q. What is the source and what is the origination of suffering?

A. The meditator knows: "This suffering has birth as source; birth has existence as source; existence has clinging as source; clinging has craving as source; craving has feeling as source; feeling has contact as source; contact has the six sense-bases as source; the six sense-bases have name and matter as source;

[1721] The mental states-element and the six consciousness-elements.

[1722] Cf. Vibh 146 Nāmarūpapaccayā chaṭṭhāyatanan-ti. Atthi nāmaṃ, atthi rūpaṃ. Tattha katamaṃ nāmaṃ? Vedanākkhandho, saññākkhandho, saṅkhārakkhandho, idaṃ vuccati nāmaṃ. Tattha katamaṃ rūpaṃ? Yaṃ rūpaṃ nissāya manoviññāṇadhātu vattati, idaṃ vuccati rūpaṃ. Iti idañca nāmaṃ, idañca rūpaṃ. Idaṃ vuccati nāmarūpaṃ. Tattha katamaṃ nāmarūpapaccayā chaṭṭhāyatanaṃ? Yaṃ cittaṃ mano mānasaṃ hadayaṃ paṇḍaraṃ mano manāyatanaṃ manindriyaṃ viññāṇaṃ viññāṇakkhandho tajjāmanoviññāṇadhātu,.... Cf. S V 184: Nāmarūpasamudayā cittassa samudayo; nāmarūpanirodhā cittassa atthaṅgamo.

[1723] Cf. Vism 595: Yathā ca daṇḍābhihataṃ bheriṃ nissāya sadde pavattamāne aññā bherī añño saddo, ... rūpaṃ paṭicca nāmaṃ pavattati.

[1724] Vism 596: Yathā jacchandho ca pīṭhasappī ca disā pakkamitukāmā assu. ... na ca tesaṃ aññamaññaṃ nissāya uppatti vā pavatti vā na hoti. Abhi-av vv. 1220–21: Nāmaṃ nissāya rūpan tu, rūpaṃ, nissāya nāmakaṃ, pavattati sadā sabbaṃ, pañcavokāra-bhūmiyaṃ; imassa pana atthassa, āvibhāvattham eva ca, jaccandha-pīṭhasappīnaṃ, vattabbā upamā idha.

[1725] 如實知見清淨. The characters 如實知見 corresponds to ñāṇadassanavisuddhi elsewhere in Vim, e.g., 400b15, so this can also mean "purity of knowledge and vision according to reality," yathābhūtañāṇadassanavisuddhi.

Cf. Vism XVIII.2/p.587 Yaṃ pana vuttaṃ diṭṭhivisuddhi, kaṅkhāvitaraṇavisuddhi, maggāmaggañāṇadassanavisuddhi, paṭipadāñāṇadassanavisuddhi, ñāṇadassana-visuddhī ti imā pana pañca visuddhiyo sarīran ti, tattha nāmarūpānaṃ yāthāvadassanaṃ diṭṭhivisuddhi nāma. Vism XVIII.37 nāmarūpānaṃ yāthāvadassanaṃ diṭṭhivisuddhī ti. Nidd-a II 103: ... Evaṃ paccayapariggahaṇena tīsu addhāsu kaṅkhaṃ vitaritvā ṭhitaṃ ñāṇaṃ kaṅkhāvitaraṇavisuddhī ti pi dhammaṭṭhitiñāṇan tipi yathābhūtañāṇan-ti pi sammādassanan-ti pi vuccati. Nidd-a II 102: ... so idaṃ nāmaṃ, idaṃ rūpan ti dvedhā vavatthapeti. Evaṃ vavatthapetvā nāmarūpato uddhaṃ añño satto vā puggalo vā devo vā brahmā vā natthī ti passati. ... evamādinā nayena nāmarūpānaṃ yāthāvadassanasaṅkhātena diṭṭhivisuddhibhūtena ñāṇena nāmarūpaṃ pariggahetvā puna tassa paccayampi pariggaṇhanto vuttanayena nāmarūpaṃ pariggahetvā ko nu kho imassa hetū ti pariyesanto ahetuvādavisamahetuvādesu dosaṃ disvā rogaṃ disvā tassa nidānaṃ samuṭṭhānampi pariyesanto vejjo viya tassa hetuñca paccayañca pariyesanto avijjā taṇhā upādānaṃ kamman-ti ime cattāro dhamme nāmarūpassa uppādapaccayattā hetū ti. ...

name and matter has consciousness as source; consciousness has the formations as source; the formations have ignorance as source.

Thus, with ignorance as condition, formations; with formations as condition, consciousness; … with birth as condition, ageing, death, sorrow, lamentation, pain, distress and grief. Thus there is the origination of this entire mass of suffering."

Thus the meditator defines at length the links of dependent arising.

Then he does it in brief: "With feeling as condition, craving."

Definition of the origination of suffering, knowledge of the stability of the Dhamma (dhammaṭṭhiti-ñāṇa), knowledge of the apprehending of conditions (paccaya-pariggaha-ñāṇa) and purity of transcending uncertainty (kaṅkhāvitaraṇa-visuddhi)—these are all designations for the knowledge of the definition of the Truth of Origination.[1726] 454a15

Defining the Truth of Cessation

The meditator, having defined the Truth of the Origination of Suffering and having transcended uncertainty regarding the three times,[1727] then contemplates the cessation of suffering.

Q. The cessation of what is the cessation of suffering?

A. For the cessation of suffering the meditator knows thus: "By the cessation of birth, this suffering ceases; by the cessation of birth, existence ceases; by the cessation of existence, clinging ceases; by the cessation of clinging, craving ceases. … by the cessation of ignorance, the formations cease. Thus, by the cessation of ignorance, the formations cease; by the cessation of the formations, consciousness ceases. … by the cessation of birth, ageing, death, sorrow, lamentation, pain, distress and grief cease. Thus there is the cessation of this entire mass of suffering."

The meditator, having thus contemplated at length the cessation of the links of dependent arising, then contemplates them in brief: "With feeling as condition, craving. Owing to its cessation, suffering ceases" and defines the Truth of Cessation. 454a22

Defining the Truth of the Path to the Cessation of Suffering

454a23 The meditator, having thus defined the Truth of Cessation, then contemplates the Path of the Cessation of Suffering: "What is the path and what is the way (paṭipadā) to the cessation of craving?" The meditator knows: "The contemplation of the disadvantage in the five aggregates subject to clinging: This is the path; this is the way to the cessation of craving."

The definition of the Truth of the Path is to be understood as was taught at length under the Truths skill.

Seeing the characteristics

The meditator, having defined sequentially the Four Truths, then sequentially contemplates and analyses by way of comprehension (sammasana) the five aggregates subject to clinging through one hundred and eighty methods (pariyāya, naya). Whatever matter—past, future or present, internal or external, great or small, coarse or subtle, far or near—all matter he defines at length as impermanent, [454b] he defines at length as suffering, he defines at length as not-self. And so for any feeling, any perception, any

---

[1726] See note 1414 @@@ above = "Cf. Paṭis-a I 257: Nāmarūpapariggahe …'

[1727] Nidd-a II 103: … Evaṃ rūpakāyassa paccayapariggahaṃ katvā puna cakkhuñca paṭicca rūpe ca uppajjati cakkhuviññāṇan-ti-ādinā nayena nāmakāyassapi paccayaṃ pariggaṇhāti, evaṃ pariggaṇhanto atītānāgatāpi dhammā evameva vattanti ti sanniṭṭhānaṃ karoti. Tassa yā sā pubbantaṃ ārabbha ahosiṃ nu kho ahaṃ atītamaddhānaṃ, na nu kho ahosiṃ, kiṃ nu kho, kathaṃ nu kho, kiṃ hutvā kiṃ ahosiṃ nu kho ahaṃ atītamaddhānan ti pañcavidhā vicikicchā vuttā. Yāpi aparantaṃ ārabbha bhavissāmi nu kho ahaṃ anāgatamaddhānaṃ, … pañcavidhā vicikicchā vuttā. Yāpi etarahi vā pana paccuppannaṃ addhānaṃ ārabbha kathaṃkathī hoti ahaṃ nu khosmi, … chabbidhā vicikicchā vuttā, sā sabbāpi pahiyyati. Evaṃ paccayapariggahaṇena tīsu addhāsu kaṅkhaṃ vitaritvā ṭhitaṃ ñāṇaṃ kaṅkhāvitaraṇavisuddhī ti pi dhammaṭṭhitiñāṇan tipi yathābhūtañāṇan-ti pi sammādassanan-ti pi vuccati. Cf. A-a II 279: … iti ime ca arūpadhammā chasaṭṭhi ca rūpadhammāti sabbe pi samodhānetvā nāmañca rūpañcā ti dveva dhammā honti, tato uddhaṃ satto vā jīvo vā natthīti nāmarūpavasena pañcakkhandhe vavatthapetvā tesaṃ paccayaṃ pariyesanto avijjāpaccayā taṇhāpaccayā kammapaccayā āhārapaccayāti evaṃ paccayaṃ disvā, atītepi imehi paccayehi idaṃ vaṭṭaṃ pavattittha, anāgate pi etehi paccayehi pavattissati, etarahi pi etehi yeva pavattatī ti tīsu kālesu kaṅkhaṃ vitaritvā anukkamena paṭipajjamāno arahattaṃ pāpuṇāti. Abhi-av-pṭ 85 (Be) 978: Iti nānappakārena, paccayānaṃ pariggaho; / Sappaccayanāmarūpaṃ, vavatthānan-ti veditaṃ. 979. Idappaccayatāñāṇaṃ, paccayākāradassanaṃ; / Dhammaṭṭhiti yathābhūta-ñāṇadassana-nāmakaṃ. 980. Kālattayavibhāgesu, kaṅkhāsaṃklesasodhanaṃ; / Kaṅkhāvitaraṇā nāma, visuddhī ti pavuccatī ti.

formations, any consciousness.[1728]

For each aggregate twelve methods.[1729] For five aggregates, twelve times five is sixty. The sixty [kinds of] seeing of impermanence, sixty [kinds of] seeing of suffering, and sixty [kinds of] seeing of not-self are one hundred and eighty.

Again, there are one hundred and eighty methods: six internal sense-bases; six external sense-bases; six groups of consciousness (viññāṇakāyā); six groups of contact; six groups of feeling; six groups of perception; six groups of volition; six groups of craving; six [kinds of] thinking; six [kinds of] exploring. These ten sixes are sixty. Sixty kinds of seeing of impermanence, sixty [kinds of] seeing of suffering and sixty [kinds of] seeing of not-self: three times sixty are one hundred and eighty.

Again, he analyses and contemplates the formations as impermanent thus: "The ages, years, seasons, months, fortnights, days, nights, hours, seconds and moments [revolve]. By revolving, states and formations are renewed like the revolving of the continuity (santati) of the lamp and the flame."[1730]

He analyses and contemplates the formations as suffering thus: "Through experiencing the suffering of the bad destinations, hunger and thirst, fear, searching, separation from dear ones, ageing, disease, death, sorrow, lamentation, pain, distress and grief. This is the characteristic of the continuity of the formations."[1731]

He analyses and contemplates the formations as not-self thus: "Owing to aggregates, sense-bases, elements, dependent arising, truths, and kamma-result, causes (nidāna, paccaya) originate and are originated. Without a being (nissatta), disinterested (nirīhaka), unconcerned (abyāpāra), the inherent natures [that are] the formations accomplish arising.[1732]

Cf. 454: Why are all formations unconcerned and indifferent? They remain without being caused to arise by others; they remain inherent natures and conditions, which come together and aggregate as dependently arisen (states). Thus, through ineluctable regularity, orgination (sambhava, nibbattana) [of ignorance, etc.] causes origination (sambháveti, nibbatteti) [of formations, etc.].

Here, in the sense of soullessness (nijjìva) and indifference, the state of unconcern should be understood. In the sense of inherent nature and condition, ineluctable regularity should be understood. It is the manifestation of emptiness and unconcern, and also the manifestation of the kamma that has been done. [455c] Thus, ineluctable regularity is the manifestation of unconcern called "regularity." Thus, the manifestation of ineluctable regularity is called "formations."

Cf. … Conditioned and subject to taints.
They are weak in themselves, not self-produced,
Not their own causes, not their own objects,

[1728] Paṭis I 53–4: Kathaṃ atītānāgatapaccuppannānaṃ dhammānaṃ saṅkhipitvā vavatthāne paññā sammasane ñāṇaṃ? Yaṃ kiñci rūpaṃ atītānāgatapaccuppannaṃ ajjhattaṃ vā bahiddhā vā oḷārikaṃ vā sukhumaṃ vā hīnaṃ vā paṇītaṃ vā yaṃ dūre santike vā, sabbaṃ rūpaṃ aniccato vavattheti, ekaṃ sammasanaṃ; dukkhato vavattheti, ekaṃ sammasanaṃ; anattato vavattheti, ekaṃ sammasanaṃ. …

[1729] Paṭis-a 248: keci pana sabbaṃ rūpaṃ, sabbaṃ vedanaṃ, sabbaṃ saññaṃ, sabbe saṅkhāre, sabbaṃ viññāṇan ti padam pi pakkhipitvā ekekasmiṃ khandhe dvādasa dvādasa katvā pañcasu saṭṭhi, anupassanāto asītisatasammasanānī ti vadanti. LC: "In other words, 'some' (? = Vim) include the totality of each aggregate to get a twelfth item, i.e. the 11: atītānāgatapaccuppannaṃ ajjhattaṃ vā bahiddhā vā oḷārikaṃ vā sukhumaṃ vā hīnaṃ vā paṇītaṃ vā yaṃ dūre santike vā, + sabbaṃ rūpaṃ, etc. Cf. Vism XX.13–14/p. 610. 'Inclusion/accumulation' renders the saṅkhipitvā of Paṭis. Cf. MN 148, Chachakkasutta.

[1730] An alternative translation is: "…Through the revolving of states, formations are renewed like the revolving of the succession of the lamp and the flame."

Cf. Mil 40: Yathā mahārāja kocid eva puriso padīpaṃ padīpeyya, kiṃ so sabbarattiṃ dīpeyyā ti. Āma bhante sabbarattiṃ padīpeyya ti. Kin-nu kho mahārāja yā purime yāme acci sā majjhime yāme accī ti. Na hi bhante ti. Yā majjhime yāme acci sā pacchime yāme accī ti. Na hi bhante ti. Kin-nu kho mahārāja añño so ahosi purime yāme padīpo, añño majjhime yāme padīpo, añño pacchime yāme padīpo ti. Na hi bhante, taṃ yeva nissāya sabbarattiṃ padīpito ti. Evam eva kho majārāja dhammasantati sandahati, añño uppajjati añño nirujjhati, apubbaṃ acarimaṃ viya sandahati, tena na ca so na ca añño pacchimaviññāṇasaṅgahaṃ gacchatī ti.

[1731] 此行相應相續. Lit.: "These formations [are] associated with continuity."

[1732] The Chinese is open to various interpretations. It is not clear where sentences start and end, and 因緣, which occurs twice in the first sentence, can correspond to nidāna, paccaya, hetupaccaya, and paṭicca-samuppāda in Vim. Alternative translation: "… kamma-result, causes and conditions (nidāna, paccaya, hetupaccaya) produce and are produced. Without a being, disinterested, unconcerned, [without] inherent nature, formations are arising." or "… elements, causes and conditions, truths, and kamma-result, dependent arising originates (sambhāveti, nibbatteti). That which is originated is without a being. …"

They have no conditioned basis (saòkhata-vatthu?),
No inherent nature (sabháva), no inherent activity (ákára, byápára).
Conditioned, weak in themselves, they arise.

He contemplates matter as impermanent in the sense of destruction (khaya), as suffering in the sense of fear (bhaya), as not-self in the sense of insubstantiallity (asāraka). Thus he analyses in brief and at length.

And in the same way he contemplates that feeling, perception, the formations and consciousness are impermanent in the sense of destruction, are suffering in the sense of fear, are not-self in the sense of insubstantiallity. Thus he analyses in brief and at length.

Here, having analysed through impermanence, he gets rid of the perception of permanence (nicca-saññā); having analysed through suffering, he gets rid of the perception of happiness; having analysed through not-self, he gets rid of the perception of self.

Q. How does he analyse at length through impermanence?

A. When seeing all the formations as they are, as delimited by non-existence (abhāva),[1733] as delimited by destruction, the mind emerges from the sign [of permanence] and leaps into the signless-element (animitta-dhātu). Thus he analyses at length through impermanence.

Q. How does he analyse at length through suffering?

A. When the mind is stirred with fear towards all formations, it emerges from the aspired, and leaps into the aspirationless-element (appaṇihita-dhātu). Thus he analyses at length through suffering.

Q. How does he analyse at length through not-self?

A. When seeing all states as alien (parato), the mind emerges from adherence (abhinivesa) and leaps into the emptiness-element. Thus he analyses at length through not-self.[1734]

Thus he analyses the three [planes of] existence, the five destinations, the seven stations of consciousness, and the nine abodes of beings, contemplating them in terms of destruction, fear and insubstantiallity. [454c]

The analysis of the truths is finished.

Grasping the Sign

The meditator, having analysed the three characteristics in the five aggregates subject to clinging, arouses the wish to enter [the stream] and desires to abandon the formations (saṅkhārā). At that time, the present internal five aggregates subject to clinging are grasped by way of the characteristics. He [1733] Cf. Paṭis-a I 247: … ekādasahi okāsehi paricchinditvā sabbaṃ rūpaṃ aniccato vavattheti aniccanti sammasati. Kathaṃ? Parato vuttanayena. Vuttañhetaṃ rūpaṃ atītānāgatapaccuppannaṃ aniccaṃ khayaṭṭhena-ti. Tasmā esa yaṃ atītaṃ rūpaṃ, taṃ yasmā atīteyeva khīṇaṃ, nayimaṃ bhavaṃ sampattanti aniccaṃ khayaṭṭhena, yaṃ anāgataṃ rūpaṃ anantarabhave nibbattissati, tampi tattheva khīyissati, na tato paraṃ bhavaṃ gamissatīti aniccaṃ khayaṭṭhena, yaṃ paccuppannaṃ rūpaṃ, taṃ idheva khīyati, na ito gacchatīti aniccaṃ khayaṭṭhena, yaṃ ajjhattaṃ rūpaṃ, tampi ajjhattameva khīyati, na bahiddhābhāvaṃ gacchatīti aniccaṃ khayaṭṭhena, yaṃ bahiddhā oḷārikaṃ sukhumaṃ hīnaṃ paṇītaṃ dūre santike, tampi ettheva khīyati, na dūrabhāvaṃ gacchatīti aniccaṃ khayaṭṭhenāti sammasati.

---

[1734] Paṭis II 48: Sabbasaṅkhāre paricchedaparivaṭumato samanupassanatāya animittāya ca dhātuyā cittasam-pakkhandanatāya, sabbasaṅkhāresu manosamuttejanatāya appaṇihitāya ca dhātuyā cittasampakkhandanatāya, sabbadhamme parato samanupassanatāya suññatāya ca dhātuyā cittasampakkhandanatāya … Aniccato manasikaroto khayato saṅkhārā upaṭṭhanti, dukkhato manasikaroto bhayato saṅkhārā upaṭṭhanti, anattato manasikaroto suññato saṅkhārā upaṭṭhanti.

Paṭis-a II 159: Sabbasaṅkhāre paricchedaparivaṭumato samanupassanatāyā ti sabbesaṃ saṅkhārānaṃ udaya-bbayavasena paricchedato ceva parivaṭumato ca samanupassanatāya. Lokaniyyānaṃ hotī ti pāṭhaseso. Aniccānupassanā hi udayato pubbe saṅkhārā natthī ti paricchinditvā tesaṃ gatiṃ samannesamānā vayato paraṃ na gacchanti, ettheva antaradhāyantī ti parivaṭumato pariyantato samanupassati. Sabbasaṅkhārā hi udayena pubbantaparicchinnā, vayena aparantaparicchinnā. Animittāya ca dhātuyā cittasampakkhandanatāyāti vipassanākkhaṇepi nibbānaninnatāya animittākārena upaṭṭhānato animittasaṅkhātāya nibbānadhātuyā cittapavisanatāya ca lokaniyyānaṃ hoti. Manosamuttejanatāyā ti cittasaṃvejanatāya. Dukkhānupassanāya hi saṅkhāresu cittaṃ saṃvijjati. Appaṇihitāya ca dhātuyāti vipassanākkhaṇepi nibbānaninnatāya appaṇihitākārena upaṭṭhānato appaṇihitasaṅkhātāya nibbānadhātuyā. … Parato samanupassanatāyāti paccayāyattattā avasatāya avidheyyatāya ca nāhaṃ na mamanti evaṃ anattato samanupassanatāya. Suññatāya ca dhātuyāti vipassanākkhaṇepi nibbānaninnatāya suññatākārena upaṭṭhānato suññatāsaṅkhātāya nibbānadhātuyā. Iti imāni tīṇi vacanāni aniccadukkhānattānupassanānaṃ vasena vuttāni.

penetrates rise and fall thus: "These states, not arisen, presently arise; and having arisen, they fall away." Thus he penetrates.[1735] 454c03

Grasping the aggregates in three ways

Here, in grasping the sign there are three kinds: grasping the sign of defilements, grasping the sign of concentration, grasping the sign of insight.

Grasping the Sign of Defilements

Q. What is grasping the sign of defilements?

Here, the foolish commoner (bāla-puthujjana), through distorted perception (saññā-vipariyesa) of pleasure and permanence in objects seen, heard, sensed or known (diṭṭha-suta-muta-viññāta), incites the mind[1736] by delighting [in them] and grasps the sign in these adherence-defilements.[1737] It is like a moth flying into a lamp-flame.[1738]

This is called grasping the sign of defilement.

Grasping the Sign of Concentration

Q. What is grasping the sign of concentration?

A. Here the meditator, wishing to gain concentration, incites the mind with mindfulness and awareness (sati-sampajañña) and grasps the sign of one of the thirty-eight meditation subjects, fastening the mind [to it] for the purpose of non-wavering (avikkhepa), like one who fastens an elephant.[1739]

This is called grasping the sign of concentration.

Grasping the Sign of Insight

Q. What is grasping the sign of insight?[1740]

A. One who has the [wrong] view that phenomena are permanent incites the mind with wisdom and analyses the specific characteristics (salakkhaṇa)[1741] of matter, feeling, perception, formations, and

---

[1735] Cf. Paṭis-a I 256: Tass' evaṃ pākaṭibhūta-sacca-paṭiccasamuppāda-nayalakkhaṇabhedassa: Evaṃ kira nām'ime dhammā anuppannapubbā uppajjantī, uppannā nirujjhantī ti niccanavā 'va hutvā saṅkhārā upaṭṭhahanti.

[1736] 所初心, lit. "begin/first mind."

[1737] 初心以好取相於此著煩惱. The characters 著煩惱, abhinivesa-kilesa?, could mean "defilements which are adherence" or "defilements which are due to adherence." Cf. Vism XXII.121/pp. 695f: Tasmā tāya saṃyogābhinivesassa pahānaṃ hoti, kāmasaṃyogādikassa kilesābhinivesassa kilesappavattiyā pahānaṃ hotīti attho. Vism-mhṭ II 509: Niviṭṭhabhāvena ogāḷhabhāvena pavattasaṃyojanādikilesā eva kilesābhiniveso.

Cf. Cf. Ud-a 270: Āyasmā hi sāriputto anupasantakilesānaṃ sattānaṃ rāgādikilesajanita-santāpadaratha-pariḷāhadukkhañceva kilesābhisaṅkhāranimittaṃ jātijarābyādhimaraṇasokaparidevādidukkhañca paccakkhato disvā atītānāgatepi nesaṃ vaṭṭamūlakadukkhaṃ parituletvā karuṇāyamāno attanāpi puthujjanakāle anubhūtaṃ kilesanimittaṃ vā anappakaṃ dukkhaṃ anussaritvā īdisassa nāma mahādukkhassa hetubhūtā kilesā idāni me suppahīnā ti attano kilesavūpasamaṃ abhiṇhaṃ paccavekkhati. Th-a III 192: Saññāya vipariyesātiādikā gāthā tena yācitena āyasmatā ānandena vuttā. Vipariyesāti vipallāsena asubhe subhanti pavattena viparītaggāhena. Nimittanti kilesajanakanimittaṃ. Dhs-a 399, Nidd-a II 390: Nimittaggāhīti itthipurisanimittaṃ vā subhanimittādikaṃ vā kilesavatthubhūtaṃ nimittaṃ chandarāgavasena gaṇhāti, diṭṭhamatteyeva na saṇṭhāti.

[1738] Cf. Ud 72: Upātidhāvanti na sāram enti, navaṃ navaṃ bandhanaṃ brūhayanti, patanti pajjotam iv' ādhipātā, diṭṭhe sute iti h' eke niviṭṭhā ti. Cf. Ud-a 355–6: Tattha upātidhāvanti na sāramentī ti sīlasamādhipaññāvimuttiādibhedaṃ sāraṃ na enti, catusaccābhisamayavasena na adhigacchanti. Tasmiṃ pana saupāye sāre tiṭṭhanteyeva vimuttābhilāsāya taṃ upentā viya hutvā pi diṭṭhivipallāsena atidhāvanti atikkamitvā gacchanti, pañcupādānakkhandhe niccaṃ subhaṃ sukhaṃ attā ti abhinivisitvā gaṇhantā ti attho. Navaṃ navaṃ bandhanaṃ brūhayantī ti tathā gaṇhantā ca taṇhādiṭṭhisaṅkhātaṃ navaṃ navaṃ bandhanaṃ brūhayanti vaḍḍhayanti. Patanti pajjotamivādhipātakā, diṭṭhe sute itiheke niviṭṭhā ti evaṃ taṇhādiṭṭhibandhanehi baddhattā eke samaṇabrāhmaṇā diṭṭhe attanā cakkhuviññāṇena diṭṭhidassaneneva vā diṭṭhe anussavūpalabbhamatteneva ca sute itiha ekantato evametanti niviṭṭhā diṭṭhābhinivesena sassatantiādinā abhiniviṭṭhā, ekantahitaṃ vā nissaraṇaṃ ajānantā rāgādīhi ekādasahi aggīhi ādittaṃ bhavattayasaṅkhātaṃ aṅgārakāsuṃ yeva ime viya adhipātakā imaṃ pajjotaṃ patanti, na tato sīsaṃ ukkhipituṃ sakkontī ti attho. Vibh-a 146: Salabho viya dīpasikhābhinipātaṃ.

[1739] Cf. Th 1141: Ārammaṇe taṃ balasā nibandhisaṃ nāgaṃ va thambhamhi daḷhāya rajjuyā taṃ me suguttaṃ satiyā subhāvitaṃ anissitaṃ sabbabhavesu hehisi.

[1740] Nidd II 359: ñāṇacaritassa bhagavā puggalassa ācikkhati vipassanānimittaṃ aniccākāraṃ dukkhākāraṃ anattākāraṃ. A-a III 390: Tattha ca nimittaṃ gaṇhāhīti tasmiñca samabhāve sati yena ādāse mukhabimbeneva nimittena uppajjitabbaṃ, taṃ samathanimittaṃ vipassanānimittaṃ magganimittaṃ phalanimittañca gaṇhāhi nibbattehīti evamassa satthā arahatte pakkhipitvā kammaṭṭhānaṃ kathesi.

[1741] See note @@@ to 439b03.

consciousness respectively. Desiring equanimity [towards formations],[1742] he develops that sign [of impermanence, etc.] as if he were holding a poisonous snake.[1743]

This is called "grasping the sign of insight."

Here, the grasping of the sign of insight is preferred. 454c14

Grasping the Sign of the Aggregates

Q. How does one grasp the sign of matter, feeling, perception, the formations and consciousness?

A. "Sign of matter": One contemplates matter by way of the earth-element, water-element, fire-element, wind-element, or by way of the sense-base of eye [… ear, … nose, … tongue] or the sense-base of body.

"Sign of feeling": One contemplates feeling by way of pleasant, painful or neither pleasurable nor painful [feelings].

"Sign of perception": One contemplates perception by way of perception of forms [… sounds, … smells, … tastes, … tangibles,] or perception of mental states.

"Sign of the formations": One contemplates the formations through contact, intention, thinking, exploring, or attention.

"Sign of consciousness": One contemplates consciousness by way of eye-consciousness [ear … nose … tongue … body …] or mind-consciousness.

Thus the meditator contemplates them and well grasps their signs through well defining (vavatthāna) them. Defining them thus, he grasps the signs of matter, feeling, perception, the formations, and consciousness,.

Two ways of grasping of the sign of mind

Again, through two ways one grasps the sign of mind (citta): through object and through attention.

Q. How does one grasp the sign of mind through the object (ārammaṇato)? 454c23

A. One should contemplate "through this object my mind arises": "through this matter-object my mind arises"; "through this feeling-object my mind arises"; "through this perception-object my mind arises "through this formations-object my mind arises"; and "through this consciousness-object my mind arises"—thus one should contemplate them. Thus one grasps the sign of mind through the object.

Q. How does one grasp the sign of mind through attention (manasikārato)?

A. "Through my attending to matter, this mind arises"—thus one should contemplate. "Through my attending to feeling, … perception … and formations, my mind arises"—thus should one contemplate. Having attended thus, one grasps the sign of mind.

Q. How is that sign well grasped?

A. Through these modes (ākāra) and through these characteristics, the sign of matter, feeling, perception, formations, and consciousness is contemplated. If one can again and again contemplate that sign through these modes and through these characteristics [455a], it is called a "well grasped sign."

Rise-and-fall-knowledge

"One penetrates rise and fall" means one penetrates: "There is arising; there is falling away; there is arising and falling away.'"

Here the matter that has arisen is present. The characteristic of origination [of matter] is arising. The characteristic of change [of matter] is falling away." When these two transitions [of matter] are seen with the eye of wisdom, there is penetration of rise and fall.

"The feeling [perception, the formations and consciousness] that have arisen, are present. The characteristic of the origination of feeling, perception, the formations and consciousness is arising; the [1742] The character 捨 can mean both equanimity (upekkhā) and abandoning/relinquishing (cāga/pahāna), etc. So this could also mean "Desiring to relinquish [the aggregates] he …"

---

[1743] Cf. Dhs-a 173: Yathā cetāsaṃ atthato ekībhāvo, evaṃ saṅkhārupekkhāvipassanupekkhānampi. Paññā eva hi esā kiccavasena dvidhā bhinnā. Yathā hi purisassa sāyaṃ gehaṃ paviṭṭhaṃ sappaṃ ajapadadaṇḍaṃ gahetvā pariyesamānassa taṃ thusakoṭṭhake nipannaṃ disvā sappo nu kho no'ti avalokentassa sovatthikattayaṃ disvā nibbematikassa sappo, na sappo ti vicinane majjhattatā hoti; evameva yā āraddhavipassakassa vipassanāñāṇena lakkhaṇattaye diṭṭhe saṅkhārānaṃ aniccabhāvādivicinane majjhattatā uppajjati, ayaṃ vipassanupekkhā. Yathā pana tassa purisassa ajapadadaṇḍakena gāḷhaṃ sappaṃ gahetvā kintāhaṃ imaṃ sappaṃ aviheṭhento attānañca iminā aḍaṃsāpento muñceyya'nti muñcanākārameva pariyesato gahaṇe majjhattatā hoti; evameva yā lakkhaṇattayassa diṭṭhattā, āditte viya tayo bhave passato, saṅkhāraggahaṇe majjhattatā, ayaṃ saṅkhārupekkhā. Iti vipassanupekkhāya siddhāya saṅkhārupekkhā pi siddhāva hoti. Cf. Vim XXI.49–50.

characteristic of change in them is falling away." When these two transitions are seen with the eye of wisdom, there is penetration of rise and fall.

Characteristics of rise and fall in three ways

455a06 Again, through three ways one penetrates the characteristics of arising, and through three ways one penetrates the characteristics of falling away: through cause (hetu), condition (paccaya) and intrinsic function (yathāvarasa).

Q. How does one penetrate the characteristics of arising through cause?

A. Craving, ignorance, and action (kamma) are the causes for the arising of the aggregates. Through seeing this with the eye of wisdom, one penetrates the characteristics of arising through cause.[1744]

Q. How does one penetrate the characteristics of arising through condition?

A. Nutriment is the condition for the arising of the aggregate of matter. Contact is the condition for the arising of three aggregates. Name and matter is the condition for the arising of the aggregate of consciousness.[1745] Through seeing this with the eye of wisdom, one penetrates the characteristics of arising through condition.

Q. How does one penetrate the characteristics of arising through intrinsic function?[1746] 455a12

A. Like the uninterrupted succession of the flame of a lamp, the formations arise one after another, anew and anew. Through seeing this with the eye of wisdom, one penetrates the characteristics of arising through intrinsic function.

Accordingly, through cause and through seeing arising, the Truth of Origination is seen through characteristics.

Through the comprehension (avabodha) of arising, through condition, through intrinsic function, and through seeing arising, the Truth of Suffering is seen through characteristics.

Comprehension is unobtainable (anupalabbhiya) through momentariness (khaṇato).[1747]

[1744] Cf. Paṭis I 55: 'Avijjāsamudayā rūpasamudayo' ti paccayasamudayaṭṭhena rūpakkhandhassa udayaṃ passati, 'taṇhāsamudayā rūpasamudayo' ti paccayasamudayaṭṭhena rūpakkhandhassa udayaṃ passati, 'kammasamudayā rūpasamudayo' ti paccayasamudayaṭṭhena rūpakkhandhassa udayaṃ passati.

[1745] Cf. Paṭis I 57: Rūpakkhandho āhārasamudayo, vedanā saññā saṅkhārā tayo khandhā phassasamudayā, viññāṇakkhandho nāmarūpasamudayo.

[1746] Cf. yāthāvarasato "according to true nature" in Vism XXI.4/p.640: udayabbayam pana pariggahetvā santatiyā vikopitāya aniccalakkhaṇaṃ yāthāvasarasato upaṭṭhāti. abhiṇhasampaṭipīḷanaṃ manasikatvā iriyāpathe ugghāṭite dukkhalakkhaṇaṃ yāthāvasarasato upaṭṭhāti. nānādhātuyo vinibbhujitvā ghanavinibbhoge kate anattalakkhaṇaṃ yāthāvasarasato upaṭṭhāti. Cf Vism XX.97–99ff./Vism 631, which gives only two ways of penetrating arising and falling away, paccayato and khaṇato.

[1747] This statement is also found at the end of the next topic, of comprehension of falling away. It appears to disagreeing with Vism XX.100, which states that there is realization of the Noble Truth of Suffering through seeing arising and falling away by way of momentariness, khaṇato, while the Truths of Origination and Cessation are seen by way of condition (paccayato). According to the Sammohavicchedanī, commenting on the Saccayamaka, momentary cessation (khaṇika-nirodha) is just cessation, not the Truth of Cessation. Only craving, taṇhā, is the Truth of Origination, not wholesome and other states. According to M-a cessation is [seeing] falling away, breaking up, etc, while cessation of condition is the the Path of Stream-entry, because it is destruction of wrong views.

Vism XX.100/Vism 631: Iccassevaṃ paccayato ceva khaṇato ca dvedhā udayabbayaṃ passato paccayato udayadassanena samudayasaccaṃ pākaṭaṃ hoti janakāvabodhato. Khaṇato udayadassanena dukkhasaccaṃ pākaṭaṃ hoti jātidukkhāvabodhato. Paccayato vayadassanena nirodhasaccaṃ pākaṭaṃ hoti paccayānuppādena paccayavataṃ anuppādāvabodhato. Khaṇato vayadassanena dukkhasaccameva pākaṭaṃ hoti maraṇadukkhāvabodhato. Yañcassa udayabbayadassanaṃ, maggovāyaṃ lokikoti maggasaccaṃ pākaṭaṃ hoti tatra sammohavighātato.

Moh 403 (Be): Samudayo samudayasaccanti? Taṇhaṃ ṭhapetvā avasesā saccavibhaṅge niddiṭṭhā kusalādidhammā samudayo, na samudayasaccaṃ. Taṇhā pana samudayo ceva samudayasaccañca. Samudayasaccaṃ samudayoti? Āmantā. Nirodho nirodhasaccanti? Tadaṅganirodhādayo, khaṇikanirodho ca nirodhova, na nirodhasaccaṃ. Nibbānaṃ pana nirodho ceva nirodhasaccañca. Nirodhasaccaṃ nirodhoti? Āmantā.

M-a II 11: Samudayañcā ti ādīsu dve diṭṭhīnaṃ samudayā khaṇikasamudayo paccayasamudayo ca. Khaṇikasamudayo diṭṭhīnaṃ nibbatti. Paccayasamudayo aṭṭha ṭhānāni, seyyathidaṃ, khandhāpi diṭṭhiṭṭhānaṃ, avijjāpi, phassopi, saññāpi, vitakkopi, ayonisomanasikāropi, pāpamittopi, paratoghosopi diṭṭhiṭṭhānaṃ. … Atthaṅgamā pi dve yeva khaṇikatthaṅgamo paccayatthaṅgamo ca. Khaṇikatthaṅgamo nāma khayo vayo bhedo paribhedo aniccatā antaradhānaṃ. Paccayatthaṅgamo nāma sotāpattimaggo. Sotāpattimaggo hi diṭṭhiṭṭhānasamugghāto ti vutto. S-ṭ II 86 (Be) (on S-a II 74): Āraddhavipassako imañca imañca paccayasāmaggiṃ paṭicca ime dhammā khaṇe khaṇe uppajjantī ti passanto paccayasamudayaṃ passantopi bhikkhu khaṇikasamudayaṃ passatī ti vutto paccayadassanamukhena nibbattikkhaṇassa dassanato. So pana khaṇe khaṇe saṅkhārānaṃ nibbattiṃ passituṃ āraddho imehi nāma paccayehi nibbattatī ti passati. So khaṇikasamudayaṃ passanto paccayaṃ passatī ti vadanti. Yasmā pana paccayato saṅkhārānaṃ udayaṃ passanto khaṇato tesaṃ

Thus in three ways one penetrates the characteristics of arising.

Q. How does one penetrate falling away through three ways?

A. Through the falling away of cause, the falling away of condition and the falling away of intrinsic function.

Here through the falling away of craving, ignorance, and kamma, there is the falling away of the aggregates.[1748] Seeing this with the eye of wisdom, one penetrates the characteristics of falling away by way of the falling away of cause.

Through the falling away of nutriment, there is the falling away of the aggregate of matter;[1749] through the falling away of contact, there is the falling away of three aggregates; 455a20 through the falling away of name and matter, there is the falling away of the aggregate of consciousness.[1750] When seeing this with the eye of wisdom, one penetrates the characteristics of falling away by way of the falling away of condition.

Like the uninterrupted succession of the flame of a lamp, the formations fall away one after another. Through seeing this with the eye of wisdom one penetrates the characteristics of falling away by way of intrinsic function.

Accordingly, through seeing the falling away of the cause, the Truth of Cessation is seen through characteristics.

Through comprehending the characteristics of Non-arising (anuppāda, ajāta), through the falling away of condition; through intrinsic function and through seeing falling away, the Truth of Suffering is first seen through characteristics. 455a25

Comprehension is unobtainable (anupalabbhiya) through momentariness.

Acquiring the highest knowledge

Q. How does one see the Truth of Suffering through rise and fall?

A. One obtains vision through the characteristics.

Q. How will direct knowledge arise? How does one see arising and falling away by way of cause?

A. Through the characteristics of the Truth of Suffering one obtains vision of what one has not yet seen. The suffering is pervasive.[1751] Having seen according to reality (yathābhūta) the danger of the formations, the mind emerges from the sign of formations and crosses over to the Formationless (visaṅkhāra).[1752] Having emerged from the sign of formations and crossed over to the Formationless, here one sees pervasive suffering, because one has gone to the end.

It is like a flying bird surrounded by a fire. It is not yet free from [danger and] fear if it has not yet reached the open sky. When seeing the danger of the surrounding fire, it flies into the sky. At that time udayadassanaṃ hoti, khaṇato etesaṃ udayaṃ passato pageva paccayānaṃ suggahitattā paccayato dassanaṃ sukhena ijjhati, tasmā vuttaṃ paccayasamudayaṃ passanto pī ti ādi. Atthaṅgamadassane pi eseva nayo. Accantatthaṅgamo ti appavatti nirodho nibbānanti. Bhedatthaṅgamoti khaṇikanirodho. Tadubhayaṃ pubbabhāge uggahaparipucchādivasena passanto aññatarassa dassane itaradassanampi siddhameva hoti, pubbabhāge ca ārammaṇavasena khayato vayasammasanādikāle bhedatthaṅgamaṃ passanto atirekavasena anussavādito accantaṃ atthaṅgamaṃ passati. Maggakkhaṇe panārammaṇato accantaatthaṅgamaṃ passati, asammohato itarampi passati. Taṃ sandhāyāha accantatthaṅgamaṃ passanto pī ti ādi.

---

[1748] Cf. Paṭis I 55–57: Avijjānirodhā rūpanirodho ti paccayanirodhaṭṭhena rūpakkhandhassa vayaṃ passati, 'taṇhānirodhā rūpanirodho' ti paccayanirodhaṭṭhena rūpakkhandhassa vayaṃ passati, kamma-nirodhā rūpanirodho,' ti paccayanirodhaṭṭhena rūpakkhandhassa vayaṃ passati.

[1749] S III 59: Āhāranirodhā rūpanirodho.

[1750] Cf. Paṭis I 57: Nāmarūpanirodhā viññāṇanirodho ti paccayanirodhaṭṭhena viññāṇakkhandhassa vayaṃ passati.

[1751] 成滿, or "complete." Elsewhere in Vim this corresponds to forms of pharati and pūreti. No parallel passage could be found in the Pali. Cf. 455c10–11 below.

The next sentence is repeated twice in the Chinese, only the start is different, but in the case of the first one the start is illegible. The repetition appears to be a corrected translation of the first one. 乃至諸行過盡 。 如實已見 。 從行相已令起心 。 於非行心成度 。 如實已見諸行過患 。 從行相已令起心 。於非行成度非行 the vision of the fearfulness of the surrounding fire is pervasive.[1753] Thus it should be understood.

[1752] Vism XXII.5/p.672: Sabbaṃ nimittārammaṇampi sabbaṃ pavattārammaṇampi palibodhato upaṭṭhāti. Athassa sabbasmiṃ nimittapavattārammaṇe palibodhato upaṭṭhite anulomañāṇassa āsevanante animittaṃ appavattaṃ visaṅkhāraṃ nirodhaṃ nibbānaṃ ārammaṇaṃ kurumānaṃ … XXII.6 … taṃ saṅkhārārammaṇaṃ muñcitvā gotrabhucittena visaṅkhāre paratīrabhūte nibbāne patati. S-a III 144: uppādaṃ anāvajjitattā anuppādaṃ āvajjitattā satisambojjhaṅgo tiṭṭhati, pavattaṃ, appavattaṃ, nimittaṃ, animittaṃ saṅkhāre anāvajjitattā, visaṅkhāraṃ āvajjitattā satisambojjhaṅgo tiṭṭhatīti. Vism-mhṭ II 216: Vivaṭṭānupassanāya hi saṅkhārehi patilīyamānamānasassa uppajjamānaṃ maggañāṇaṃ visaṅkhāraṃ dukkhanissaraṇaṃ ārammaṇaṃ katvā dukkhaṃ paricchindati, dukkhagatañca taṇhaṃ pajahati, nirodhañca sacchikaroti phusati.

Here, through the seeing of arising by way of cause, by way of condition, there is penetration of the characteristic of arising of dependent arising: "When there is this, this occurs. Owing to the arising of this, there is the arising of this."[1754]

Through the seeing of cessation by way of cause, by of way of condition, there is penetration of the characteristic of [cessation of] arising[1755] of dependent arising: "When this is not, this does not occur. Owing to the cessation of this, this ceases."[1756]

Having seen arising by way of intrinsic-function, by way of rise and fall, there is penetration (paṭivedha). Knowing the arising of dependently arisen states, of conditioned states, he also knows their falling away and also knows their persistence (ṭhiti).

Four states

Thus through seeing rise and fall, four states are known: the state of unity (ekatta), the state of diversity (nānatta), the state of unconcern (avyāpāra), and the state of ineluctable regularity (evaṃdhammatā).[1757]

[1753] The original text would have stated that the bird is at first not aware of the danger and therefore not fearful, but then, having seen the danger it becomes fearful and flies away to the open sky. Cf. the simile of the house on fire at Vism XXI.94–95, and the simile of the bird surrounded by fire in the desire-for-release-knowledge topic below.

[1754] Ud 1: Imasmiṃ sati idaṃ hoti, imass' uppādā idaṃ uppajjati, yadidaṃ: avijjāpaccayā saṅkhārā.

[1755] 故以見滅因緣生相成通達 Cf. Paṭis I 55 in fn 24 above, and Ud-a 38: Imasmiṃ sati idaṃ hotī ti imasmiṃ avijjādike paccaye sati idaṃ saṅkhārādikaṃ phalaṃ hoti. Imassuppādā idaṃ uppajjatī ti imassa avijjādikassa paccayassa uppādā idaṃ saṅkhārādikaṃ phalaṃ uppajjatī ti attho. Imasmiṃ asati idaṃ na hoti, imassa nirodhā idaṃ nirujjhatīti avijjādīnaṃ abhāve saṅkhārādīnaṃ abhāvassa avijjādīnaṃ nirodhe saṅkhārādīnaṃ nirodhassa ca dutiyatatiyasuttavacanena etasmiṃ paccayalakkhaṇe niyamo dassito hoti imasmiṃ sati eva, nāsati. Imassuppādā eva, nānuppādā. Anirodhā eva, na nirodhāti. Tenetaṃ lakkhaṇaṃ antogadhaniyamaṃ idha paṭiccasamuppādassa vuttanti daṭṭhabbaṃ. Nirodho ti ca avijjādīnaṃ virāgādhigamena āyatiṃ anuppādo appavatti. Tathā hi vuttaṃ avijjāya tveva asesavirāganirodhā saṅkhāranirodho ti ādi. Nirodhanirodhī ca uppādanirodhībhāvena vutto imassa nirodhā idaṃ nirujjhatī ti. Ud 2: Imasmiṃ asati idaṃ na hoti, imassa nirodhā idaṃ nirujjhati, yadidaṃ: avijjānirodhā saṅkhāranirodho.

[1756] Vism XX.101/p.632: Paccayato cassa udayadassanena anulomo paṭiccasamuppādo pākaṭo hoti, imasmiṃ sati idaṃ hotī ti avabodhato. Paccayato vayadassanena paṭilomo paṭiccasamuppādo pākaṭo hoti, imassa nirodhā idaṃ nirujjhatī ti avabodhato. Khaṇato pana udayabbayadassanena paṭiccasamuppannā dhammā pākaṭā honti saṅkhatalakkhaṇāvabodhato. Udayabbayavanto hi saṅkhatā, te ca paṭiccasamuppannā ti.

[1757] Cf. Vism XVII.309/p.585; Vibh-a 198–9: Yasmā panettha ekattanayo, nānattanayo, abyāpāranayo, evaṃdhammatānayoti cattāro atthanayā honti, tasmā nayabhedatopetaṃ bhavacakkaṃ viññātabbaṃ yathārahaṃ. Tattha avijjāpaccayā saṅkhārā, saṅkhārapaccayā viññāṇanti evaṃ bījassa aṅkurādibhāvena rukkhabhāvappatti viya santānānupacchedo ekattanayo nāma. Yaṃ sammā passanto hetuphalasambandhena santānassa anupacchedāvabodhato ucchedadiṭṭhiṃ pajahati. Micchā passanto hetuphalasambandhena pavattamānassa santānānupacchedassa ekattagahaṇato sassatadiṭṭhiṃ upādiyati. Avijjādīnaṃ pana yathāsakaṃlakkhaṇavavatthānaṃ nānattanayo nāma. Yaṃ sammā passanto navanavānaṃ uppādadassanato sassatadiṭṭhiṃ pajahati. Micchā passanto ekasantānapatitassa bhinnasantānasseva nānattaggahaṇato ucchedadiṭṭhiṃ upādiyati. Avijjāya saṅkhārā mayā uppādetabbā, saṅkhārānaṃ vā viññāṇaṃ amhehīti evamādibyāpārābhāvo abyāpāranayo nāma. Yaṃ sammā passanto kārakassa abhāvāvabodhato attadiṭṭhiṃ pajahati. Micchā passanto yo asatipi byāpāre avijjādīnaṃ sabhāvaniyamasiddho hetubhāvo, tassa aggahaṇato akiriyadiṭṭhiṃ upādiyati. Avijjādīhi pana kāraṇehi saṅkhārādīnaṃyeva sambhavo khīrādīhi dadhiādīnaṃ viya, na aññesanti ayaṃ evaṃdhammatānayo nāma. Yaṃ sammā passanto paccayānurūpato phalāvabodhā ahetukadiṭṭhiṃ akiriyadiṭṭhiñca pajahati. Micchā passanto paccayānurūpaṃ phalappavattiṃ aggahetvā yato kutoci yassa kassaci asambhavaggahaṇato ahetukadiṭṭhiñceva niyatavādañca upādiyatīti.

Vism XX.101/p.632: Paccayato cassa udayadassanena ekattanayo pākaṭo hoti hetuphalasambandhena santānassa anupacchedāvabodhato. Atha suṭṭhutaraṃ ucchedadiṭṭhiṃ pajahati. Khaṇato udayadassanena nānattanayo pākaṭo hoti navanavānaṃ uppādāvabodhato. Atha suṭṭhutaraṃ sassatadiṭṭhiṃ pajahati. Paccayato cassa udayabbayadassanena abyāpāranayo pākaṭo hoti dhammānaṃ avasavattibhāvāvabodhato. Atha suṭṭhutaraṃ attadiṭṭhiṃ pajahati. Paccayato pana udayadassanena evaṃdhammatānayo pākaṭo hoti paccayānurūpena phalassa uppādāvabodhato. Atha suṭṭhutaraṃ akiriyadiṭṭhiṃ pajahati.

LC: "The Pali term avyāpāra means 'inactivity'. The point is that by means of this method one sees that the movement between the links of conditioned origination does not require any activity on one's part. It is an automatic and, as it were, mechanical process. There is no 'doer'. That is why seeing it makes anattā clear. But if one doesn't see that each link naturally has its own activity by which it functions as a cause for the next, one may come to a false vision which denies all causality.

The Pali term evaṃdhammatānaya is translated by CPD as 'the way of such natural regularity'. Here the point is that by means of this method one sees that the movement between the links of conditioned origination follows definite rules. It is lawful; not random. Just as curds, etc. and not something different arise due to such causes as milk. So seeing it means that you recognize causality. But if you don't understand the way in which results conform

455b10

Here, when seeing by way of arising the formations (saṅkhāra) that are being grasped as a single continuity (eka-santāna), there is no clinging to diversity.

When seeing by way of cessation the formations first and last[1758] that are adverted to, there is no clinging to unity.

Seeing the formations first and last as separate from an intrinsic nature (sabhāva) and as being indifferent,[1759] there is no clinging to a self.

Seeing the formations first and last by adverting to them as being dependently arisen states there is no clinging to unconcern.

The uninstructed commoner, through not comprehending (avabodha) unity, falls into the view of annihilationism (ucchedavāda). Through not comprehending diversity, he falls into the doctrine of eternalism (sassatavāda). Through not comprehending unconcern, he falls into the doctrine of a self (attavāda). Through not comprehending [ineluctable] regularity, he falls into the doctrine of inefficacy of action (akiriyavāda).[1760]

Here, in the sense of universality (samatā, samāna), in the sense of unity of distinctions (visesa), and in the sense of the inclusion of different characteristics, there is the characteristic of unity. 455b17 In the sense of comprehension (abhisamaya, vibhaṅga), there is diversity. In the sense of defilement, there is unity. In the sense of means (upāya), there is diversity. By way of the fruit of craving, there is unity; by way the fruit of kamma, there is diversity.

The meditator, seeing unity thus, does not cling to the view of diversity; and seeing diversity, he does not cling to the eternalist view of unity. When seeing unity, comprehending it, he gets rid of this view. When seeing diversity, comprehending it, he gets rid of this view. When seeing unity, he gets rid of the annihilationist view. When seeing diversity, he gets rid of the eternalist view.

The meditator, thus, through rise and fall, sees unity and diversity.

How does he know ineluctable regularity through arising? Seeing the arising of formations he sees them as being unconcerned.

Why are all formations unconcerned and indifferent? They remain without being caused to arise by to conditions, one will think in terms of randomness or determinism. Cf. Sn 575: na hi so upakkamo atthi, yena jātā na miyyare. / jarampi patvā maraṇaṃ, evaṃdhammā hi pāṇino."

---

Cf. Paṭis-a I 121: Bhūtan ti jātaṃ. Saṅkhatan ti paccayehi saṅgamma kataṃ. Paṭiccasamuppannan ti te te paccaye paṭicca sammā saha ca uppannaṃ. Paṭhamena sañjātattadīpanena aniccatā, dutiyena aniccassāpi sato paccayānubhāvadīpanena parāyattatā, tatiyena parāyattassāpi sato paccayānaṃ abyāpārattadīpanena evaṃdhammatā dīpitā hoti. Nāmar-p: ‹760› Paccayapaccayuppanna-santānabhedato pana. / Nānābhūtānam ekantaṃ, bījarukkhādayo viya / ‹761› tathā pi tesaṃ dhammānaṃ, vatthulakkhaṇabhedato. / Dīpavaṭṭisikhānaṃ va, natthi ekantam ekatā / ‹762› hetuhetusamuppannā, īhābhogavivajjitā. / paccayāya ca paccetum abyāpārā tato matā / ‹763› avijjādīnam evātha, sambhave sambhavanti ca. / Aṅkhārādisabhāvā ti, ṭhit'evaṃdhammatāya te. / ‹764› ittham ekattanānattā, abyāpāro tathāparo. / Etth' evaṃdhammatā ceti, nayā vuttā catubbidhā.

[1758] This would refer to the delimitation of formations, see next topic.

[1759] 無動 normally corresponding to āneñja, acala, "immovable, motionless" but this does not make sense here. The characters are also found below in the definition of abyāpāra along with nijjīva. This makes clear that it here corresponds to nirīhaka, "inactive, indifferent, desireless, without endeavour," which occurs along with abyāpāra and nijjīva in Pali texts. Nyanamoli renders nirīhaka & abyāpāra as "incurious and uninterested"; see Path of Purification XVIII.309, fn.47. Cf. Vism XV.15: Tathā nirīhakato abyāpārato ca. Na hi cakkhurūpādīnaṃ evaṃ hoti aho vata amhākaṃ sāmaggiyaṃ viññāṇaṃ nāma uppajjeyyā ti, na ca tāni viññāṇuppādanatthaṃ dvārabhāvena vatthubhāvena ārammaṇabhāvena vā īhanti, na byāpāramāpajjanti, atha kho dhammatāvesā, yaṃ cakkhurūpādisāmaggiyaṃ cakkhuviññāṇādīni sambhavantīti. Tasmā nirīhakato abyāpārato ca daṭṭhabbāni. Vism XVIII.32: Tasmā yathā dāruyantaṃ suññaṃ nijjīvaṃ nirīhakaṃ, atha ca pana dārurajjukasamāyogavasena gacchatipi tiṭṭhatipi. Saīhakaṃ sabyāpāraṃ viya khāyati, evamidaṃ nāmarūpampi suññaṃ nijjīvaṃ nirīhakaṃ, atha ca pana aññamaññasamāyogavasena gacchatipi tiṭṭhatipi. Saīhakaṃ sabyāpāraṃ viya khāyatīti daṭṭhabbaṃ. Abhidh-av-pṭ II 307: Yathā dārumayaṃ yantaṃ nijjīvaṃ jīvavirahitaṃ abbhantare vattamānassa jīvassa abhāvato tatoyeva nirīhakaṃ nibyāpāraṃ, atha ca pana dārurajjusamāyoge paccayavisesavasena taṃ dāruyantaṃ gacchatipi tiṭṭhatipi, sajīvaṃ sabyāpāraṃ viya gamanādikiccaṃ sādhentamiva khāyati, tathā idaṃ nāmarūpampi kiñcāpi nijjīvaṃ nirīhakañca, atha ca pana aññamaññasaṅkhatapaccayavisesassa samāyoge sajīvaṃ sabyāpāraṃ gacchantaṃ tiṭṭhantañca khāyati ti.

[1760] Vism XX.102/p.632: Paccayato cassa udayadassanena ekattanayo pākaṭo hoti hetuphalasambandhena santānassa anupacchedāvabodhato. Atha suṭṭhutaraṃ ucchedadiṭṭhiṃ pajahati. Khaṇato udayadassanena nānattanayo pākaṭo hoti navanavānaṃ uppādāvabodhato. Atha suṭṭhutaraṃ sassatadiṭṭhiṃ pajahati. Paccayato cassa udayabbayadassanena abyāpāranayo pākaṭo hoti dhammānaṃ avasavattibhāvāvabodhato. Atha suṭṭhutaraṃ attadiṭṭhiṃ pajahati. Paccayato pana udayadassanena evaṃdhammatānayo pākaṭo hoti paccayānurūpena phalassa uppādāvabodhato. Atha suṭṭhutaraṃ akiriyadiṭṭhiṃ pajahati. Cf. Vism XVII.309/p.585; Vibh-a 198–9.

others; they remain inherent natures and conditions, which come together and aggregate as dependently arisen (states). Thus, through ineluctable regularity, orgination (sambhava, nibbattana) [of ignorance, etc.] causes origination (sambhāveti, nibbatteti) [of formations, etc.].[1761]

Here, in the sense of soullessness (nijjīva) and indifference, the state of unconcern should be understood. In the sense of inherent nature and condition, ineluctable regularity should be understood. It is the manifestation of emptiness and unconcern, and also the manifestation of the kamma that has been done. [455c] Thus, ineluctable regularity is the manifestation of unconcern called "regularity." Thus, the manifestation of ineluctable regularity is called "formations."

Here, through the comprehension of unity, the characteristic of suffering is penetrated; through the comprehension of diversity, the characteristic of impermanence is penetrated; and through the comprehension of unconcern and ineluctable regularity, the characteristic of not-self is penetrated.

Q. Should the meditator who observes the rise and fall of all formations without remaining place do so by observing one place (ṭhāna)?

A. At first he grasps their characteristics at the formations place, and penetrates rise and fall. Then, without remaining place, he pervades all formations. It is like a man who, having tasted the water in one place at the sea, promptly knows all sea-water to be salty. Thus should it be known. 455c08

He pervades formations in two ways: by way of object and by way of non-delusion.

Here, grasping the characteristics of the formations, he penetrates rise and fall. The formations are pervaded through that object. Thus, because of the abandoning of non-knowledge, the remaining formations are pervaded through non-delusion.

Thus there is rise-and-fall-knowledge.

Delimitation-of-formations-knowledge

As to delimitation-of-formations-knowledge (saṅkhāraparicchedañāṇa): Because of the first extremity (anta) of arising of all formations there is delimitation. Because of the last extremity of falling away of all formations there is delimitation.

Because of the first extremity of arising there is solitariness (viveka?) [of formations]. Because of the last extremity of falling away there is solitariness.

Because of arising, following arising they are without anterior. Because of falling away, following falling away they are without posterior.[1762]

Therefore rise-and-fall-knowledge is delimitation-of-formations-knowledge.

The rise-and-fall-knowledge is finished. 455c15

Dissolution-contemplation Knowledge (bhaṅgānupassana-ñāṇa)

The meditator, rightly contemplating the characteristics of arising and falling away, having well analysed the formations and wishing to obtain cessation and calm, does not attend to [arising], does not contemplate arising, but sees only the dissolution of mind.[1763] 455c17

Through [seeing] the arising and dissolution of the mind [which has arisen] dependent upon the

---

[1761] This paragraph is cryptic. The 2nd and 3d sentence could also be translated as "… conditions, which combine (saṅgacchati, saṅgati, sannipāteti, sannipāta) and originate (samudeti, samudaya, samuccaya, samūha) as dependent arising. Thus, through ineluctable regularity, birth causes birth." 何故一切諸行無事不動。 無餘所起住。住自性因緣和合集為因緣。 如是以止法生令生.

[1762] Paṭis II 48: Sabbasaṅkhāre paricchedaparivaṭumato samanupassanatāya animittāya ca dhātuyā cittasampakkhandanatāya, … Paṭis-a III 560: Sabbasaṅkhāre paricchedaparivaṭumato samanupassanatāyāti sabbesaṃ saṅkhārānaṃ udayabbayavasena paricchedato ceva parivaṭumato ca samanupassanatāya. … Aniccānupassanā hi udayato pubbe saṅkhārā natthīti paricchinditvā tesaṃ gatiṃ samannesamānā vayato paraṃ na gacchanti, ettheva antaradhāyantīti parivaṭumato pariyantato samanupassati. Sabbasaṅkhārā hi udayena pubbantaparicchinnā, vayena aparantaparicchinnā. Vism XXI.68/p.657: Tattha paricchedaparivaṭumatoti udayabbayavasena paricchedato ceva parivaṭumato ca. Aniccānupassanaṃ hi udayato pubbe saṅkhārā natthī ti paricchinditvā tesaṃ gatiṃ samannesamānaṃ vayato paraṃ na gacchanti, ettheva antaradhāyantī ti parivaṭumato samanupassati.

[1763] It is often unclear whether vaya, nirodha or bhaṅga was in the original of this section, because the Chinese translator used the same character 滅 for all three terms. The same applies to the character 生, which can correspond to udaya, jāti, pabhava, nibbatta, etc.

Cf. Vism XXI.17/p.642: Atha vā so evaṃ viratto yathā diṭṭhaṃ saṅkhāragataṃ … nirodhatova manasikaroti, nirodhamevassa passati, no samudayanti attho.

object of matter (rūpārammaṇa), he sees the dissolution of mind. Likewise: Through … the object of feeling, … Through the object … of perception, … Through … the object of formations, … Through [seeing] the arising and dissolution of the mind [which has arisen] dependent upon the object of consciousness, he sees the dissolution of mind.[1764]

Seeing dissolution through three ways

Again, he sees dissolution through three ways: through groups (kalāpa), pairs (yamaka) and through analysis (vibhaṅga).

Through groups

Q. How through groups?

A. Through groups he sees the dissolution of the mind and mental properties which have arisen [dependent] on the basis (vatthu) of [seeing the impermanence of] the various postures.[1765]

And again, having seen the impermanence of matter, feeling, perception, formations and consciousness, he then sees, through groups, the dissolution of the mind and the mental properties which have arisen dependent upon the object of [seeing] impermanence. Likewise, with the object of suffering and the object of not-self.[1766]

Thus one should see through groups.

Through pairs

Q. How through pairs (yamaka)?

A. Having contemplated impermanence (thinking) "matter is impermanent," he sees the arising and dissolution of the mind[1767] which occurs following[1768] the object of impermanence.[1769]

Likewise: Having contemplated "feeling, … "perception, … "formations … "consciousness is impermanent," he sees the arising and the dissolution of the mind which occurs following the object of impermanence. In the same way, with the object of suffering and the object of not-self.

Thus he should contemplate through pairs.

[1764] Literally: "Through the object of matter, through the arising and dissolution (or, rise and fall) of the mind which depends on that object, he sees the dissolution of the mind." As happens several times in this topic, the Chinese is not consistent and corrupt. With the object of consciousness the text has "arising and dissolution of mind" 心生滅, instead of just "dissolution of mind", 心滅.

Cf. Vism XXI.11–13/p.641f.: Kathaṃ ārammaṇapaṭisaṅkhā bhaṅgānupassane paññā vipassane ñāṇaṃ? Rūpārammaṇatā cittaṃ uppajjitvā bhijjati, taṃ ārammaṇaṃ paṭisaṅkhā tassa cittassa bhaṅgaṃ anupassati. (Paṭis I 57–58) … Tattha rūpārammaṇatā cittaṃ uppajjitvā bhijjatīti rūpārammaṇaṃ cittaṃ uppajjitvā bhijjati. Atha vā rūpārammaṇabhāve cittaṃ uppajjitvā bhijjatīti attho. Taṃ ārammaṇaṃ paṭisaṅkhāti taṃ rūpārammaṇaṃ paṭisaṅkhāya jānitvā, khayato vayato disvāti attho. Tassa cittassa bhaṅgaṃ anupassatīti yena cittena taṃ rūpārammaṇaṃ khayato vayato diṭṭhaṃ, tassa cittassa aparena cittena bhaṅgaṃ anupassatīti attho. Tenāhu porāṇā ñātañca ñāṇañca ubhopi vipassatīti.

[1765] D-a III 768, M-a I 252: … catuiriyāpathapariggaṇhanena kāye kāyānupassī viharati. Samudayadhammānupassī vā ti ādīsu pana avijjāsamudayā rūpasamudayo ti ādinā nayena pañcahākārehi rūpakkhandhassa samudayo ca vayo ca nīharitabbo. Tañ hi sandhāya idha samudayadhammānupassī vā ti ādi vuttaṃ. Atthi kāyo ti vā pan'assā ti ādi vuttasadisam eva. Idha pana catuiriyāpathapariggāhikā sati dukkhasaccaṃ, tassā samuṭṭhāpikā purimataṇhā samudayasaccaṃ, ubhinnaṃ appavatti nirodhasaccaṃ, dukkhaparijānano samudayapajahano nirodhārammaṇo ariyamaggo maggasaccaṃ.

[1766] Cf. Vism XX. 78/p.626: … rūpaṃ aniccaṃ dukkhamanattā ti pavattaṃ cittaṃ aparena cittena aniccaṃ dukkhamanattā ti sammasanto kalāpato sammasatī ti vuttaṃ, … Cf. Paṭis I 57–8.

[1767] In this method and the next the text has "arising and dissolution of the mind," 心生滅 not "dissolution of the mind," 心滅, as in the first section. In comformity with the topic the latter is preferable, but because the text consistently has the former, it is translated this way. See note @@@ Bhikkhu Bodhi: "I think there is@@@ below.

[1768] Or "along with," or "subsequent to." According to the Abhidhamma no two minds can arise at the same time. 隨無常事起. = anuvattati? Cf. 446c09: 此四法彼隨起. Perhaps it corresponds to aparena in Vism XX. 78–79. See preceding and following note.

[1769] Cf. Vism XX. 79/p.626: … Yamakato ti idha bhikkhu ādānanikkheparūpaṃ aniccaṃ dukkhamanattā ti sammasitvā tampi cittaṃ aparena cittena aniccaṃ dukkhamanattā ti sammasati. … S IV 67–68: Dvayaṃ, bhikkhave, paṭicca viññāṇaṃ sambhoti. … Manañca paṭicca dhamme ca uppajjati manoviññāṇaṃ. Mano anicco vipariṇāmī aññathābhāvī. Dhammā aniccā …. Itthetaṃ dvayaṃ calañceva vyayañca aniccaṃ vipariṇāmi aññathābhāvi. Manoviññāṇaṃ aniccaṃ … Yopi hetu yopi paccayo manoviññāṇassa uppādāya, sopi hetu sopi paccayo anicco …Aniccaṃ kho pana, bhikkhave, paccayaṃ paṭicca uppannaṃ manoviññāṇaṃ, kuto niccaṃ bhavissati? …

Through Analysis

Q. How through analysis (vibhaṅga)?

A. Having contemplated "matter is impermanent," he sees the arising and dissolution of the mind which occurs following the object of impermanence. [456a] [Through seeing the dissolution of the mind, he again sees dissolution.][1770] Thus through analysis, he reflects on the dissolution of many mind [-states/-moments] (citta-khaṇikāni?).[1771] Likewise, having contemplated the impermanence of feeling, … perception, … formations … consciousness, he sees the arising and dissolution of the mind which occurs following the object of impermanence. Through seeing the dissolution of the mind, he again sees dissolution. Thus through analysis he sees the dissolution of many mind [-states/-moments]. Likewise, he contemplates suffering and not-self.

Having thus analysed, he now just contemplates dissolution. That object of the cessation of suffering becomes the focus [of contemplation]. Constantly investigating the momentariness of formations, he obtains sharpness [of faculties].[1772]

The meditator, through this wisdom which is independent of another, sees all the world by way of its intrinsic nature (sabhāva) as [unenduring as] a mustard seed on the point [of an awl],[1773] and that in a single mind-moment (citta-khaṇa) there is birth and the change of aging and death.[1774]

At this time the meditator also sees as is taught in verses thus:

> The pair of name and matter depend on each other,
> When one part breaks up, the other breaks up,
> Due to the breaking up of its condition,
> For the other has originated from a cause.[1775]
>
> Impermanent are the aggregates, of the nature to fall away, > Suffering has the nature to arise and to fall away.
>
> The five states of forms, odours and the rest,
> Arise not from the eye, nor from (visible) form, 456a12
> Yet are not separate from the two parts,
> They originate from a cause and are conditioned,
> Just as the sound of a drum when struck.

[1770] This is supplied from the parallel sentence on the consciousness aggregate below. It is either an omission here or intrusion/corruption there. 以是見心滅復見滅.

Bhikkhu Bodhi: "I think there is an intentional transition here from contemplation of arising and passing to contemplation of dissolution. One initially contemplates the arising and dissolution of the citta; then at a certain point one focuses solely on dissolution. The first sentence points to knowledge of arising and passing; the second, to knowledge of dissolution."

[1771] 如是以分別觀見多心滅. Perhaps the original text intended: "through analysis of many mind [-moments] he reflects on dissolution" or "through analysis he much reflects on the dissolution of mind."

[1772] Cf. 432a04: "'Momentary death' means: 'The momentary dissolution of formations'" and the explanation of "contemplating death through momentariness" at 432b26ff: "… a being's life-span lasts a single mind-moment. …"

[1773] See note @@ to the last verse below. Cf. Sn 625: Vāri pokkharapatte va, āragge-r-iva sāsapo, yo na lippati kāmesu, tam ahaṃ brūmi brāhmaṇaṃ.

[1774] Or "birth and aging, death, and change." Lit: "birth, old age, death, change." 生老死變.

Cf. Paṭis-a 104/Vism XXII.116, p.695 Vipariṇāmānupassanāti rūpasattakaarūpasattakādivasena taṃ taṃ paricchedaṃ atikkamma aññathā pavattidassanaṃ. Uppannassa vā jarāya ceva maraṇena ca dvīhākārehi vipariṇāmadassanaṃ. Vism XVII 308/p.584: jātiyā jāti sañjāti okkanti nibbatti pātubhāvaṭṭho, jarāmaraṇassa Pa.tis-a 254: Yaṃ pana nibbattilakkhaṇaviparināmalakkhaṇāni passanto khandhānaṃ udayabbayaṃ passati, idamassa khaṇato udayabbayadassanaṃ. Uppattikkhaṇeyeva hi nibbattilakkhaṇaṃ, bhaṅgakkhaṇe ca vipariṇāmalakkhaṇaṃ. Vism XX.19: Jarāya ceva maraṇena cāti dvedhā pariṇāmapakatitāya vipariṇāmadhammato. XX.95: So iminā pāḷinayena jātassa nāmarūpassa nibbattilakkhaṇaṃ jātiṃ uppādaṃ abhinavākāraṃ udayo ti, viparināmalakkhaṇaṃ khayaṃ bhaṅgaṃ vayo ti samanupassati. Paṭis II 178: Katamaṃ viparināmasuññaṃ? Jātaṃ rūpaṃ sabhāvena suññaṃ. Vigataṃ rūpaṃ viparinatañceva suññañca. Jātā vedanā sabhāvena suññā. Vigatā vedanā viparinatā ceva suññā ca … pe … jātā saññā… jātā saṅkhārā… jātaṃ viññāṇaṃ… jātaṃ cakkhu…pe… jāto bhavo sabhāvena suñño. Vigato bhavo viparinato ceva suñño ca. Pa.tis-a 632: Jarābhaṅgavasena virūpo pariṇāmo viparināmo, tena viparināmena suññaṃ viparināmasuññaṃ.

[1775] Vism XVIII.32/p.535: Yathā hi dvīsu naḷakalāpīsu aññamaññaṃ nissāya ṭhapitāsu ekā ekissā upatthambho hoti, ekissā patamānāya itarāpi patati, evamevaṃ pañcavokārabhave nāmarūpaṃ aññamaññaṃ nissāya pavattati, ekaṃ ekassa upatthambho hoti. Maraṇavasena ekasmiṃ patamāne itarampi patati. Tenāhu porāṇā: Yamakaṃ nāmarūpañca, ubho aññoññanissitā, / Ekasmiṃ bhijjamānasmiṃ, ubho bhijjanti paccayā ti.

So for: ear / sounds, nose / odours, tongue / taste …

The five states of forms, odours and the rest,
Arise not from the body, nor from touch,
Yet are not separate from the two parts,
They originate from a cause and are conditioned,
Just as the sound of a drum when struck.

They do not originate from the material basis (vatthurūpa),
Nor emerge from the sense-base of mental states,
They originate from a cause and are conditioned,
Just as the sound of a drum when struck.[1776]

Their root, the breath, is weak; (dubbala)
Weak are their former causes, weak their conditions,
Their origins are weak, weak their common grounds,
Weak are their connections, weak their associates.

Mutually these are always weak,
Being of a mutual nature, they are unsettled, [456b]
They can not establish each other,
They don't have the capability to produce,
Nor do they have a producer,
Like a town of gandhabbas.
Are those former [causes] that produced them.[1777]

[1776] Vism XVIII.33/p.535: Yathā ca daṇḍābhihataṃ bheriṃ nissāya sadde pavattamāne aññā bherī, añño saddo, bherisaddā asammissā, bherī saddena suññā, saddo bheriyā suñño, evamevaṃ vatthudvārārammaṇasaṅkhātaṃ rūpaṃ nissāya nāme pavattamāne aññaṃ rūpaṃ, aññaṃ nāmaṃ, nāmarūpā asammissā, nāmaṃ rūpena suññaṃ, rūpaṃ nāmena suññaṃ, apica kho bheriṃ paṭicca saddo viya rūpaṃ paṭicca nāmaṃ pavattati. Tenāhu porāṇā:

Na cakkhuto jāyare phassapañcamā, / Na rūpato no ca ubhinnamantarā;
Hetuṃ paṭiccappabhavanti saṅkhatā, / Yathāpi saddo pahaṭāya bheriyā.
Na sotato … saddato … ghānato … gandhato … jivhāto … rasato … kāyato … phassato …
Na vatthurūpā pabhavanti saṅkhatā, / Na cāpi dhammāyatanehi niggatā; Hetuṃ paṭiccappabhavanti saṅkhatā, / Yathāpi saddo pahaṭāya bheriyā ti.

[1777] Cf. Nidd I 43: Kathaṃ sarasaparittatāya appakaṃ jīvitaṃ? Assāsūpanibandhaṃ jīvitaṃ, … viññāṇūpanibandhaṃ jīvitaṃ. Mūlampi imesaṃ dubbalaṃ, pubbahetūpi imesaṃ dubbalā. Ye paccayā tepi dubbalā, yepi pabhāvikā tepi dubbalā. Sahabhūmi imesaṃ dubbalā, sampayogāpi imesaṃ dubbalā, sahajāpi imesaṃ dubbalā, yāpi payojikā sāpi dubbalā, aññamaññaṃ ime niccadubbalā, aññamaññaṃ anavaṭṭhitā ime. Aññamaññaṃ paripātayanti ime, aññamaññassa hi natthi tāyitā, na cāpi ṭhapenti aññamaññaṃ ime. Yopi nibbattako so na vijjati.

Na ca kenaci koci hāyati, / gandhabbā ca ime hi sabbaso; / Purimehi pabhāvikā ime, yepi pabhāvikā te pure matā; / Purimāpi ca pacchimāpi ca, aññamaññaṃ na kadāci maddasaṃsū-ti.

Nidd-a I 152: Idāni nesaṃ dubbalakāraṇaṃ dassento mūlampi imesaṃ dubbalantiādimāha. Tattha mūlampīti patiṭṭhaṭṭhena mūlabhūtampi. Assāsapassāsānañhi karajakāyo mūlaṃ. Mahābhūtādīnaṃ avijjākammataṇhāhārā. Imesanti vuttappakārānaṃ assāsādīnaṃ jīvitindriyapavattikāraṇavasena vuttānaṃ. Etesu hi ekekasmiṃ asati jīvitindriyaṃ na tiṭṭhati. Dubbalanti appathāmaṃ. Pubbahetūpīti atītajātiyaṃ imassa vipākavaṭṭassa hetubhūtā kāraṇasaṅkhātā avijjāsaṅkhārataṇhupādānabhavāpi. Imesaṃ dubbalā ye paccayā tepi dubbalāti ye ārammaṇādisādhāraṇapaccayā. Pabhāvikāti padhānaṃ hutvā uppādikā bhavataṇhā. Sahabhūmīti sahabhavikāpi rūpārūpadhammā. Sampayogāpīti ekato yuttāpi arūpadhammā. Sahajāpīti saddhiṃ ekacitte uppannāpi. Yāpi payojikāti cutipaṭisandhivasena yojetuṃ niyuttāti payojikā, vaṭṭamūlakā taṇhā. Vuttañhetaṃ taṇhādutiyo puriso ti. Niccadubbalāti nirantarena dubbalā. Anavaṭṭhitāti na avaṭṭhitā, otaritvā na ṭhitā. … Na cāpi ṭhapenti aññamaññanti aññe aññaṃ ṭhapetuṃ na sakkonti. Yopi nibbattako so na vijjatīti yopi imesaṃ uppādako dhammo, so idāni natthi. … Gandhabbā ca ime hi sabbasoti sabbe hi ime khandhā sabbākārena bhaṅgaṃ pāpuṇituṃ yuttā. Purimehi pabhāvitā imeti pubbahetupaccayehi ime vattamānakā uppādikā. Yepi pabhāvikāti yepi ime vattamānakā uppādakā pubbahetupaccayā. …

They do not arise on their own,
They do not remain by their own strength.
Complying to other states do they arise,
And whatever they produce is Conditioned (saṅkhata) and subject to taints.

They are weak in themselves, not self-produced,
Not their own causes, not their own objects,
They have no conditioned basis (saṅkhata-vatthu?),
No inherent nature (sabhāva), no inherent activity (ākāra, byāpāra).
Conditioned, weak in themselves, they arise.[1778]

[1778] Vism XVIII.35x-36: 677. … Tattha jaccandhopi nittejo dubbalo na sakena tejena sakena balena gacchati, pīṭhasappīpi nittejo dubbalo na sakena tejena sakena balena gacchati, na ca tesaṃ aññamaññaṃ nissāya gamanaṃ nappavattati, evamevaṃ nāmampi nittejaṃ na sakena tejena uppajjati, na tāsu tāsu kiriyāsu pavattati. Rūpampi nittejaṃ na sakena tejena uppajjati, na tāsu tāsu kiriyāsu pavattati, na ca tesaṃ aññamaññaṃ nissāya uppatti vā pavatti vā na hoti. Tenetaṃ vuccati Na sakena balena jāyare, / Nopi sakena balena tiṭṭhare; / Paradhammavasānuvattino, / Jāyare saṅkhatā attadubbalā. / Parapaccayato ca jāyare, / Paraārammaṇato samuṭṭhitā; / Ārammaṇapaccayehi ca, / Paradhammehi cime pabhāvitā.

Immediate (akālika), it goes nowhere
And from nowhere it comes;
It is not born in another land—
The mind is without a self.[1779]

Life and selfhood (attabhāva); 456b09
Happiness and suffering, are joined to one mind [-moment];
quickly the moment [passes].

Gods eighty thousand aeons [old],[1780]
Remain alive only one moment,
[That moment] does not occur again,
And combine with a second mind [moment].

Of those who have passed away,
And of those are remaining alive,
The aggregates ceased are all alike:
Gone, [and not reuniting again].

Those [past aggregates] that broke up incessantly,
And those that will break up in the future,
Those that are breaking up in the meantime:
They have no difference as to the characteristics.

When not produced, it is not born,
Only in the present it remains alive,
In the highest sense the world [dies]
when the mind breaks up.

[Aggregates broken up] do not go and come,
There is no future heap of them,
Even those that were born, remain
Like a mustard seed [on the point of an awl].

Born states are foredoomed by their dissolution;
Being of the nature to fall apart [they remain], not mixing with the former ones.

Invisible is their going and coming,
Invisible is their re-arising.[1781]
All states not arisen are like the sky.
Like lightning, they arise and pass away in a moment.[1782] 456b18

[1779] Untraced. On the sense-bases not coming from and going to anywhere, cf. Vism XV.15, quoted below at fn.@@@

[1780] The Chinese has "mountains, seas," 山海, which is due to taking Pali maru (= Skt marut) "god" as Skt maru "mountain."

[1781] Vism XV.15: Daṭṭhabbatoti ettha pana sabbāneva saṅkhatāni āyatanāni anāgamanato aniggamanato ca daṭṭhabbāni. Na hi tāni pubbe udayā kutoci āgacchanti, napi uddhaṃ vayā kuhiñci gacchanti, atha kho pubbe udayā appaṭiladdhasabhāvāni, uddhaṃ vayā paribhinnasabhāvāni, pubbantāparantavemajjhe paccayāyattavuttitāya avasāni pavattanti. Tasmā anāgamanato aniggamanato ca daṭṭhabbāni.

[1782] The last five verses have a partial parallel in Nidd I 42 (quoted in Vism XX.72): Jīvitaṃ attabhāvo ca, sukhadukkhā ca kevalā; Ekacittasamāyuttā, lahuso vattate khaṇo. / Cullāsītisahassāni, kappā tiṭṭhanti ye marū; Na tveva te pi jīvanti, dvīhi cittehi saṃyutā. / Ye niruddhā marantassa, tiṭṭhamānassa vā idha; Sabbe pi sadisā khandhā, gatā appaṭisandhikā. / Anantarā ca ye bhaggā, ye ca bhaggā anāgatā; Tadantare niruddhānaṃ, vesamaṃ natthi lakkhaṇe. / Anibbattena na jāto, paccuppannena jīvati; Cittabhaggā mato loko, paññatti paramatthiyā. / Yathā ninnā pavattanti,

Thus seeing endless dissolution, the meditator attains concentration. Just as smoke arises when sticks are rubbed together for fire, just so do states that are accessories of awakening (bodhipakkhiya) arise moment by moment.

When illumination, knowledge, rapture, tranquillity, happiness, exertion, resolve, establishing of mindfulness, equanimity and longing[1783] arise, if he is unwary (avyatta) regarding these states, the meditator will arouse wavering (vikkhepa) or overestimation (adhimāna).

Q. How does he get rid of wavering?

A. The meditator arouses rapture for the doctrine. That rapture calms [his mind] again. Thus calming his mind again, he is [not] seized by agitation regarding the (higher) states (dhammuddhaccaviggahita).[1784] 456b24 When his mind is [not] seized by agitation regarding the (higher) states, his mind abandons [the perception of] permanence through concentration [attained through] the contemplation of dissolution. Abandoning [the perception of] permanence, he penetrates. Thus he abandons the states [of wavering].

Q. How does the meditator remove overestimation?

A. The meditator who gives rise to the state of illumination, and so on,[1785] thinks that he has attained to supramundane states (lokuttaradhamma), thinks that he has attained what he has not attained and does not endeavour any more. Thus he gives rise to overestimation.

The meditator who is wary (vyatta) knows that these [ten lesser] defilements are disturbances to concentration. He knows that worldly states have formations as object, and likewise, he knows that supramundane states have Nibbāna as object. [456c]

Having known thus, he gets rid of wavering and overestimation by this knowledge and seeing only dissolution, practises this well and much.

The dissolution contemplation knowledge is finished.

---

chandena pariṇāmitā; Acchinnadhārā vattanti, saḷāyatanapaccayā. / Anidhānagatā bhaggā, puñjo natthi anāgate; Nibbattāyeva tiṭṭhanti, āragge sāsapūpamā. / Nibbattānañca dhammānaṃ, bhaṅgo nesaṃ purakkhato; Palokadhammā tiṭṭhanti, purāṇehi amissitā. / Adassanato āyanti, bhaṅgā gacchanti dassanaṃ; Vijjuppādova ākāse, uppajjanti vayanti cā ti. Evaṃ ṭhitiparittatāya appakaṃ jīvitaṃ.

A prose passage in Vism XX.104, Paṭis-a I 256, etc, (about formations continually arising and passing away) mentions the similes of the town of gandhabbas, mustard seed and lightning flash. Cf. Vism-mhṭ II 426.

[1783] Cf. Vism XX.105: … āraddhavipassakassa dasa vipassanupakkilesā uppajjanti. … Obhāso, ñāṇaṃ, pīti, passaddhi, sukhaṃ, adhimokkho, paggaho, upaṭṭhānaṃ, upekkhā, nikantīti. The order of paggaha and adhimokkha is different in the Vim than it is in Vism. Nikanti is translated Chinese as "renunciation," 出離, Skt niṣkrānta. S-ṭ II 170 (Be): Nikanti nāma vipassanāya nikāmanā apekkhā.

[1784] Cf. Paṭis II 100f., Vism XX.106: Aniccato manasikaroto obhāso uppajjati … nikanti uppajjati, nikanti dhammo ti nikantiṃ āvajjati. Tato vikkhepo uddhaccaṃ. Tena uddhaccena viggahitamānaso. Jarāmaraṇaṃ anattato upaṭṭhānaṃ yathābhūtaṃ nappajānāti. Jarāmaraṇaṃ aniccato upaṭṭhānaṃ yathābhūtaṃ nappajānāti, jarāmaraṇaṃ dukkhato upaṭṭhānaṃ yathābhūtaṃ nappajānāti. Tena vuccati dhammuddhaccaviggahitamānaso hoti. So samayo, yaṃ taṃ cittaṃ ajjhattameva santiṭṭhati sannisīdati ekodi hoti samādhiyati. Tassa maggo sañjāyatī ti. … Paṭis-a III 585: Dhammuddhacca-viggahitaṃ mānasaṃ hotīti ettha mandapaññānaṃ vipassakānaṃ upakkilesavatthuttā vipassanupakkilesasaññitesu obhāsādīsu dasasu dhammesu bhantatāvasena uddhaccasahagatacittuppattiyā vikkhepasaṅkhātaṃ uddhaccaṃ dhammuddhaccaṃ, tena dhammuddhaccena viggahitaṃ virūpaggahitaṃ virodhamāpāditaṃ mānasaṃ cittaṃ dhamm-uddhaccaviggahitaṃ mānasaṃ hoti, tena vā dhammuddhaccena kāraṇabhūtena tammūlakataṇhāmānadiṭṭhuppattiyā viggahitaṃ mānasaṃ hoti. … Hoti so āvuso samayo ti iminā maggāmaggavavatthānena taṃ dhammuddhaccaṃ paṭibāhitvā puna vipassanāvīthiṃ paṭipannakālaṃ dasseti. A-a III 143 (on A II 157): Dhammuddhaccaviggahitanti samathavipassanādhammesu dasavipassanupakkilesasaṅkhātena uddhaccena viggahitaṃ, suggahitanti attho. A III 285: Yasmiṃ, mahānāma, samaye ariyasāvako dhammaṃ anussarati nevassa tasmiṃ samaye rāgapariyuṭṭhitaṃ … na moha-pariyuṭṭhitaṃ cittaṃ hoti; ujugatamevassa tasmiṃ samaye cittaṃ hoti dhammaṃ ārabbha. Ujugatacitto kho pana, mahānāma, ariyasāvako labhati atthavedaṃ, labhati dhammavedaṃ, labhati dhammūpasaṃhita pāmojjaṃ. Pamuditassa pīti jāyati, pītimanassa kāyo passambhati, passaddhakāyo sukhaṃ vediyati, sukhino cittaṃ samādhiyati. … dhammasotaṃ samāpanno dhammānussatiṃ bhāveti. A I 253: … santi adhicittamanuyuttassa bhikkhuno oḷārikā upakkilesā kāyaduccaritaṃ … majjhimasahagatā upakkilesā kāmavitakko … sukhumasahagatā upakkilesā … anavaññattipaṭisaṃyutto vitakko, tamenaṃ sacetaso bhikkhu … anabhāvaṃ gameti. Tasmiṃ pahīne tasmiṃ byantīkate athāparaṃ dhammavitakkāvasissati. So hoti samādhi na ceva santo … sasaṅkhāraniggayhavāritavato hoti. So, bhikkhave, samayo yaṃ taṃ cittaṃ ajjhattaṃyeva santiṭṭhati sannisīdati ekodi hoti samādhiyati. So hoti samādhi santo …. A-a II 362: Dhammavitakkāvasissantīti dhammavitakkā nāma dasavipassanupakkilesavitakkā.

[1785] Or "at first gives rise to illumination in the dhamma," but see Nidd II-a 106: Paṇḍito pana bhikkhu obhāsādīsu uppannesu vikkhepaṃ agacchanto obhāsādayo dhammā na maggo, upakkilesavimuttaṃ pana vīthipaṭipannaṃ vipassanāñāṇaṃ maggo 'ti maggañca amaggañca vavatthapeti.

Appearing-as-fearful-knowledge (bhayatupaṭṭhānañāṇa)

Thus the meditator, contemplating dissolution, owing to discernment of dissolution, becomes fearful: fearful of the cause of the aggregates; fearful of the arising of the aggregates. He fears the three kinds of existence,[1786] the five destinations,[1787] the seven stations of consciousness,[1788] and the nine abodes of beings.[1789] He fears them as he would fear a wicked man who holds up a sword,[1790] a poisonous snake,[1791] or a mass of fire.[1792] Thus owing to his discernment of dissolution, he becomes fearful: fearful of the cause of the aggregates; fearful of the arising of the aggregates.

Thus attending to the impermanence of the three kinds of existence, the five destinations, the seven stations of consciousness, the nine abodes of beings, he causes the perception of fear and through [seeing] security (khema) gives rise to the Signless (animitta). Through attending to suffering, he fears arising (uppāda), and through [seeing] security gives rise to Non-arising (anuppāda). Attending to not-self, he fears the sign and arising and through [seeing] security gives rise to the Signless and to Non-arising.[1793]

Contemplation of disadvantage, contemplation of disenchantment, abandoning the inferior (hīna), and conformable acceptance (anulomika-khanti)—these are all terms for this [appearing-as-fearful-knowledge].[1794] (456c19).

The appearing-as-fearful-knowledge is finished.

The Desire-for-release-knowledge (muñcitukamyatāñāṇa)

The meditator, through developing the appearing-as-fearful-knowledge, gives rise to the desire–for-release-knowledge (muñcitakamyatāñāṇa). When he fears the cause of the aggregates, the desire-for-release-knowledge arises. When he fears the arising of the aggregates, the desire-for-release-knowledge arises. When he fears the three kinds of existence, the five destinations, the seven stations of consciousness, and the nine abodes of beings, the desire-for-release-knowledge arises. It is like a bird 1786 D III 216: Tayo bhavā. Kāma-bhavo, rūpa-bhavo, arūpa-bhavo.

---

1787 Ibid. 234: Pañca gatiyo: Nirayo, tiracchāna-yoni, pettivisayo, manussā, devā.

1788 Ibid. 253–See Ch. 11, n. 156

1789 Sattāvāsā. Ibid. 263—Ch. 11, n. 156

1790 S III 115: Vadhakaṃ rūpaṃ Vadhakaṃ rūpan ti yathābhūtaṃ pajānāti. Vadhakaṃ vedanaṃ. Vadhakaṃ saññaṃ. Vadhake saṅkhāre. Vadhakaṃ viññāṇaṃ Vadhakaṃ viññāṇan ti yathābhūtaṃ pajānāti.

1791 S IV 174: Cattāro āsīvisā uggatejā ghoravisā ti kho bhikkhave catunnetaṃ mahābhūtānaṃ adhivacanaṃ, paṭhavīdhātuyā āpodhātuyā tejodhātuyā vāyodhātuyā.

1792 S II 84–5: Seyyathāpi bhikkhave dasannaṃ va kaṭṭhavāhānaṃ … mahā aggikkhandho jāleyya. Tatra puriso kālena kālaṃ sukkhāni ceva tiṇāni … gomayāni … kaṭṭhāni pakkhipeyya. Evañhi so bhikkhave mahā aggikkhandho tadāhāro tadupādāno ciraṃ dīghamaddhānaṃ jāleyya. Evam eva kho bhikkhave upādāniyesu dhammesu assādānupassino viharato taṇhā pavaḍḍhati. Taṇhāpaccayā upādānaṃ … Evam etassa kevalassa dukkhakkhandhassa samudayo hoti.

1793 Cf. Paṭis I 58, Vism XX.37/p.648: Kathaṃ bhayatupaṭṭhāne paññā ādīnave ñāṇaṃ? Uppādo bhayanti – bhayatupaṭṭhāne paññā ādīnave ñāṇaṃ. Pavattaṃ … nimittaṃ bhayanti… Anuppādo khemanti santipade ñāṇaṃ. … Uppādo bhayaṃ, anuppādo khemanti santipade ñāṇaṃ. … Uppādo dukkhanti bhayatupaṭṭhāne paññā ādīnave ñāṇaṃ. … Paṭis II 63: Aniccato manasikaroto kiṃ bhayato upaṭṭhāti? Dukkhato manasikaroto kiṃ bhayato upaṭṭhāti? Anattato manasikaroto kiṃ bhayato upaṭṭhāti? Aniccato manasikaroto nimittaṃ bhayato upaṭṭhāti. Dukkhato manasikaroto pavattaṃ bhayato upaṭṭhāti. Anattato manasikaroto nimittañca pavattañca bhayato upaṭṭhāti. … Yā ca bhayatupaṭṭhāne paññā yañca ādīnave ñāṇaṃ yā ca nibbidā, ime dhammā ekatthā, byañjanameva nānaṃ. Vism XXI.40/p.649, Paṭis-a I 261: Anuppādo khemanti santipade ñāṇantiādi pana ādīnavañāṇassa paṭipakkhañāṇadassanatthaṃ vuttaṃ. Bhayatupaṭṭhānena vā ādīnavaṃ disvā ubbiggahadayānaṃ abhayampi atthi khemaṃ nirādīnavanti assāsajananatthampi etaṃ vuttaṃ. Yasmā vā panassa uppādādayo bhayato sūpaṭṭhitā honti, tassa tappaṭipakkhaninnaṃ cittaṃ hoti, tasmā bhayatupaṭṭhānavasena siddhassa ādīnavañāṇassa ānisaṃsadassanatthampetaṃ vuttanti veditabbaṃ. Paṭis II 240–41: Pañcakkhandhe jātidhammato passanto anulomikaṃ khantiṃ paṭilabhati, pañcannaṃ khandhānaṃ nirodho ajātaṃ nibbānan ti passanto sammattaniyāmaṃ okkamati.

1794 Cf. Vism XXI.44/p.651: Taṃ panetaṃ purimena ñāṇadvayena atthato ekaṃ. Tenāhu porāṇā: Bhayatupaṭṭhānaṃ ekameva tīṇi nāmāni labhati, sabbasaṅkhāre bhayato addasāti bhayatupaṭṭhānaṃ nāma jātaṃ. Tesuyeva saṅkhāresu ādīnavaṃ uppādetīti ādīnavānupassanā nāma jātaṃ. Tesu yeva saṅkhāresu nibbindamānaṃ uppannanti nibbidānupassanā nāma jātan-ti. Pāḷiyampi vuttaṃ (Paṭis II 53): Yā ca bhayatupaṭṭhāne paññā, yañca ādīnave ñāṇaṃ, yā ca nibbidā, ime dhammā ekatthā, byañjanameva nānan-ti.

encircled by a fire desiring to get free of it, and like a man encircled by robbers desiring to get free of them.

Thus, when the meditator fears the cause of the aggregates, the arising of the aggregates, the three kinds of existence, the five destinations, the seven stations of consciousness and the nine abodes of beings, the desire-for-release-knowledge arises.[1795] Attending to impermanence, he fears the cause; attending to suffering, he fears arising; attending to not-self, he fears both cause and arising. Then the desire-for-release-knowledge arises.

For a commoner and learner, there are two ways of directing the mind towards desire for release: He delights in it or sees it with insight. [457a] When he sees it with insight, there is higher penetration. When he delights in it, his mind becomes defiled, which is an obstable to development, an obstruction to penetration.[1796]

Contemplation of reflection, equanimity towards formations, conformable acceptance—these are all designations [for the desire-for-release-knowledge].[1797]

The desire-for-release-knowledge is finished.

Conformity-knowledge (anulomañāṇa)

457a04 The meditator, thus developing the desire-for-release-knowledge, desires to be freed from all formations and attain to Nibbāna. Just attending to one characteristic (ekalakkhaṇa), he produces the entrances into liberation (vimokkhamukha) [through which] conformity-knowledge (anuloma-ñāṇa) arises.[1798]

Through three ways conformity-knowledge arises; through three ways he enters into the certainty of rightness:

Seeing the five aggregates as impermanent, he obtains conformity-knowledge. Seeing, "the cessation of the five aggregates is the permanent Nibbāna", he enters into the certainty of rightness.

Seeing the five aggregates as suffering, he obtains conformity-knowledge. Seeing, "the cessation of the aggregates is the happy Nibbāna, he enters into the certainty of rightness.

[1795] Cf. Paṭis I 61: Uppādo bhayan-ti muñcitukamyatā paṭisaṅkhā santiṭṭhanā paññā saṅkhārupekkhāsu ñāṇaṃ 'pavattaṃ bhayan' ti muñcitukamyatā paṭisaṅkhā santiṭṭhanā paññā saṅkhārupekkhāsu ñāṇaṃ … pe … 'upāyāso bhayan' ti muñcitukamyatā paṭisaṅkhā santiṭṭhanā paññā saṅkhārupekkhāsu ñāṇaṃ.

[1796] Paṭis I 62: Puthujjanassa katamehi dvīhākārehi saṅkhārupekkhāya cittassa abhinīhāro hoti? Puthujjano saṅkhārupekkhaṃ abhinandati vā vipassati vā. .. Sekkho saṅkhārupekkhaṃ abhinandati vā vipassati vā paṭisaṅkhāya vā phalasamāpattiṃ samāpajjati…. Kathaṃ puthujjanassa ca sekkhassa ca saṅkhārupekkhāya cittassa abhinīhāro ekattaṃ hoti? Puthujjanassa saṅkhārupekkhaṃ abhinandato cittaṃ kilissati, bhāvanāya paripantho hoti, paṭivedhassa antarāyo hoti, āyatiṃ paṭisandhiyā paccayo hoti. Sekkhassapi saṅkhārupekkhaṃ abhinandato cittaṃ kilissati, bhāvanāya paripantho hoti, uttaripaṭivedhassa antarāyo hoti, āyatiṃ paṭisandhiyā paccayo hoti.

Paṭis-a I 270: Cittaṃ kilissatīti vipassanānikantisaṅkhātena lobhakilesena cittaṃ kilissati, tāpīyati bādhīyatīti attho. Bhāvanāya paripantho hotīti paṭiladdhāya vipassanābhāvanāya upaghāto hoti. Paṭivedhassa antarāyo hotīti vipassanābhāvanāya paṭilabhitabbassa saccappaṭivedhassa paṭilābhantarāyo hoti.

[1797] Cf. Paṭis I.1: Muñcitukamyatāpaṭisaṅkhāsantiṭṭhanā paññā saṅkhārupekkhāsu ñāṇaṃ. Paṭis II 63: Yā ca muñcitukamyatā yā ca paṭisaṅkhānupassanā yā ca saṅkhārupekkhā, ime dhammā ekatthā, byañjanameva nānaṃ. Vism XXI.79/p.660: Taṃ panetaṃ purimena ñāṇadvayena atthato ekaṃ. Tenāhu porāṇā: Idaṃ saṅkhārupekkhāñāṇaṃ ekameva tīṇi nāmāni labhati, heṭṭhā muñcitukamyatāñāṇaṃ nāma jātaṃ, majjhe paṭisaṅkhānupassanāñāṇaṃ nāma, ante ca sikhāppattaṃ saṅkhārupekkhāñāṇaṃ nāma.

[1798] 唯作一相欲令起解脫門相似智起. Cf. Dhs 224–225: Yasmiñhi vāre maggavuṭṭhānaṃ hoti, tīṇi lakkhaṇāni ekāvajjanena viya āpātham-āgacchanti, tiṇṇañca ekato pāthagamanaṃ nāma … Ekalakkhaṇadassanamatteneva hi maggavuṭṭhānaṃ nāma na hoti, tasmā aniccato abhiniviṭṭho bhikkhu na kevalaṃ aniccatova vuṭṭhāti, dukkhatopi anattatopi vuṭṭhātiyeva. Dukkhato anattato abhiniviṭṭhepi eseva nayo. Cf. Paṭis-a III 550. Paṭis II 66–69: Katamo vimokkho? Suññato vimokkho, animitto vimokkho, appaṇihito vimokkho. Katamo suññato vimokkho? Aniccānupassanāñāṇaṃ niccato abhinivesā muccatīti suññato vimokkho. Dukkhānupassanāñāṇaṃ sukhato abhinivesā muccatīti suññato vimokkho. Anattānupassanāñāṇaṃ attato abhinivesā muccatīti suññato vimokkho. … Ye tattha jātā anavajjā kusalā bodhipakkhiyādhammā, idaṃ mukhaṃ. Yaṃ tesaṃ dhammānaṃ ārammaṇaṃ nirodho nibbānaṃ, idaṃ vimokkhamukhaṃ. Vimokkhañca mukhañca vimokkhamukhaṃ, idaṃ vimokkhamukhaṃ. Cf. Vism XXI:66–67/p.657: Tatridaṃ tividhānupassanāvasena pavattanato tiṇṇaṃ indriyānaṃ ādhipateyyavasena tividhavimokkhamukhabhāvaṃ āpajjati nāma. Tisso hi anupassanā tīṇi vimokkhamukhānīti vuccanti. For the vimokkhamukha, see also 459c22ff.

Seeing the five aggregates as not-self, he obtains conformity-knowledge. Seeing, "the cessation of the aggregates is the absolute Nibbāna," he enters into the certainty of rightness.[1799]

Q. Through what knowledge will he enter into the certainty of rightness, and through what knowledge is he entering into the certainty of rightness?

A. Through conformity-knowledge, he will enter into the certainty of rightness. Through Path-knowledge he is entering into the certainty of rightness.[1800]

Q. What is the meaning of conformity-knowledge?

A. Conformity is the four establishings of mindfulness, the four right efforts, the four bases of supernormal power, the five faculties, the five powers, the seven awakening factors and the eight noble path factors.[1801] Through conformity with these, it is is called "conformity-knowledge."

Non-opposition (apaccanīka), the seeing of benefit, and conformable acceptance[1802]—these are all designations for conformity-knowledge.

Conformity-knowledge is finished.

Change-of-lineage-knowledge (gotrabhuñāṇa)

457a17 Immediately subsequent to conformity-knowledge,[1803] he emerges from the sign of all formations, makes Nibbāna the object and produces the change-of-lineage-knowledge (gotrabhuñāṇa).[1804]

Q. What is the meaning of change-of-lineage (gotrabhu)?

A. The overcoming of the state of the commoner, is called "change-of-lineage." The developing[1805] of

---

[1799] Paṭis II 237–40: Pañcakkhandhe aniccato passanto anulomikaṃ khantiṃ paṭilabhati. Pañcannaṃ khandhānaṃ nirodho niccaṃ nibbānanti passanto sammattaniyāmaṃ okkamati. Pañcakkhandhe dukkhato passanto … nirodho sukhaṃ nibbānanti passanto … Pañcakkhandhe anattato passanto … nirodho paramatthaṃ nibbānanti passanto sammattaniyāmaṃ okkamati.

[1800] Cf. A III 441, Paṭis II 236: So vata, bhikkhave, bhikkhu sabbasaṅkhāre aniccato samanupassanto anulomikāya khantiyā samannāgato bhavissatī ti ṭhānametaṃ vijjati. Anulomikāya khantiyā samannāgato sammattaniyāmaṃ okkamissatī ti ṭhānametaṃ vijjati. Sammattaniyāmaṃ okkamamāno sotāpattiphalaṃ vā sakadāgāmiphalaṃ vā anāgāmiphalaṃ vā arahattaṃ vā sacchikarissatī ti ṭhānametaṃ vijjatī ti.

[1801] Cf. Vism XXII.33: Cattāro satipaṭṭhānā, cattāro sammappadhānā cattāro iddhipādā, pañcindriyāni, pañcabalāni, satta bojjhaṅgā, ariyo aṭṭhaṅgiko maggo ti hi ime sattatiṃsa dhammā bojjhaṅgaṭṭhena bodhī ti laddhamānassa ariyamaggassa pakkhe bhavattā bodhipakkhiyā nāma; pakkhe bhavattā ti, nāma upakārabhāve ṭhitattā.

[1802] Vibh-a 411, Vism-mhṭ II 78: Anulomikaṃ khantintiādīni paññāvevacanāni. Sā hi heṭṭhā vuttānaṃ kammāyatanādīnaṃ apaccanīkadassanena anulomanato, tathā sattānaṃ hitacariyāya maggasaccassa, paramatthasaccassa, nibbānassa ca avilomanato anulometīti anulomikā. Paṭis II 69: … sabbepi akusalā dhammā vimokkhapaccanīkā, idaṃ vimokkhapaccanīkaṃ. … sabbepi kusalā dhammā vimokkhānulomā, idaṃ vimokkhānulomaṃ. Vism-mhṭ I 278: Anulomapaṭipadaṃ apaccanīkapaṭipadanti iminā ñāyappaṭipattiṃ. Paṭipajjitabbassa hi nibbānassa anulomanena, apaccanīkatāya cassā ñāyato.

[1803] The Tibetan translation (196a) starts again here: "'Attainment of fruit': Emerging from the sign of all formations …"

[1804] Gotrabhūñāṇa. There Ñāṇamoli renders "change-of-lineage," Path of Purification XXII.1ff. Cf. Paṭis-a I 26: Kilesānaṃ samucchindanato … nibbānārammaṇakaraṇato bahiddhā sabbasaṅkhāranimittehi ca vuṭṭhāti … Tenevāha: Cattāripi maggañāṇāni animittārammaṇattā nimittato vuṭṭhahanti, … Tañhi gotrabhuñāṇassa anantaraṃ nibbānaṃ ārammaṇaṃ kurumānaṃ sayaṃvajjhe kilese niravasesaṃ samucchindamānaṃ…

[1805] Literally, "overcoming of the state of the non-commoner," which is a misinterpretation of ariyagottabhāvanato (see Vism XXII.5 in next fn.) as ariyagottābhibhavanato. 答除凡夫法名性除 。非凡夫法所除亦名性除. Cf. Paṭis II 191: Puthujjanasādhāraṇe dhamme atikkamma paramatthe nibbāne ñāṇaṃ pavattatīti puthupaññā.

The Tibetan (Ssv 196a) lacks this clause, has dhamma in the previous clause in the plural, and gives a different alternative interpretation based on the verbal root bhuj: "… the overcoming of the states of the commoner. The 'lineage' (gotta) is Nibbāna; the enjoying (bhuñjana) of this is 'change-of-lineage' (gotrabhu)" … chos rnams zil gyis gnon pas rigs spyod do rigs ni brjod par bya ste mya ngan las 'das pa de dag za bar byed pas rigs spyod do.

The Tibetan translation for gotrabhu/gotrabhū is first rigs spyod, meaning "enjoying/partaking of the lineage/clan," with spyod corresponding to bhoga, anubhavati, etc., and then later in the paragraph rigs za, of which za has the meaning of "to eat." I could not trace an interpretation of gotrabhu based on the root bhuj or the verb bhuñjati in the Pali; but there is an interpretation based on abhisambhuṇāti, "reaches, is able to reach," in Abhidh-s p.65 (Be), v. 57: Tato paraṃ gotrabhucittaṃ nibbānamālambitvā puthujjanagottamabhibhavantaṃ, ariyagottamabhisambhontañca pavattati. Abhidh-s-mhṭ 272 (Be): Abhisambhontanti pāpuṇantaṃ. The Chinese text has 性除, "lineage" + the state of the non-commoner (aputhujjanadhamma) is also called "change-of-lineage." The "lineage" (gotta)" is Nibbāna.[1806]

Again, the planting of the seed of Nibbāna is called "change-of-lineage (gotrabhu)."[1807]

As has been stated in the Abhidhamma: "The overcoming of birth is called 'change-of-lineage.' The entering into non-arising (anuppādā) is also called 'change-of-lineage.'"[1808] And again, "the overcoming of occurence and the sign is 'change-of-lineage.' The entering into the occurenceless and the signless is called 'change-of-lineage.'"

The first attending to the path to Nibbāna[1809] and the wisdom regarding emergence and turning away from the external—these are designations for change-of-lineage [knowledge].[1810]

The change-of-lineage-knowledge is finished.

Path-knowledge (magga-ñāṇa)

457a24 Immediately subsequent to change-of-lineage-knowledge, he, fully knowing suffering, abandoning its origination, realizing its cessation, and developing the Path, produces the Path-knowledge of Stream-entry and all the states that are accessories of awakening (bodhipakkhiyā dhammā). At this time the meditator, through seclusion,[1811] sees the end of existence,[1812] the unconditioned, the deathless element. He comprehends the Four Noble Truths in a single moment, in a single knowledge, simultaneously. Through the comprehension of the full understanding of suffering, the comprehension of the abandoning of its origination, the comprehension of the realization of its cessation and the comprehension of the development of the Path, he accomplishes comprehension.

It is taught in the simile [of the boat] in verse thus: [457b]

"discards/overcomes" which is based on the gotta + abhibhuyyati interpretation; 除 normally corresponds to vinodeti, vajjati, etc.

[1806] Cf. Vism XXII.5/p.672: … anulomañāṇassa āsevanante animittaṃ appavattaṃ visaṅkhāraṃ nirodhaṃ nibbānaṃ ārammaṇaṃ kurumānaṃ puthujjanagottaṃ puthujjanasaṅkhaṃ puthujjanabhūmiṃ atikkamamānaṃ ariyagottaṃ ariyasaṅkhaṃ ariyabhūmiṃ okkamamānaṃ nibbānārammaṇe paṭhamāvattana-paṭhamābhogapaṭhamasamannāhārabhūtaṃ maggassa anantarasamanantarāsevanaupanissayanatthivigatavasena chahi ākārehi paccayabhāvaṃ sādhayamānaṃ sikhāppattaṃ vipassanāya muddhabhūtaṃ apunarāvattakaṃ uppajjati. Paṭis-a I 26: Puthujjanagottābhibhavanato ariyagottabhāvanato gotrabhu. Idañhi anulomañāṇehi padumapalāsato udakamiva sabbasaṅkhārato patilīyamānacittassa anulomañāṇassa āsevanante animittaṃ nibbānaṃ ārammaṇaṃ kurumānaṃ puthujjanagottaṃ … apunarāvattakaṃ uppajjati. Cf. Paṭis-a I 274f.: Abhibhuyyatī ti gotrabhū ti ca puthujjanagottābhibhavanato gotrabhubhāvo vutto. …

[1807] Paṭis-a I 275: Gottattho cettha bījattho.

[1808] Cf. Paṭis I 65*: Uppādaṃ abhibhuyyitvā anuppādaṃ pakkhandatīti gotrabhu. Pavattaṃ abhibhuyyitvā appavattaṃ pakkhandatīti gotrabhu. Nimittaṃ abhibhuyyitvā animittaṃ pakkhandatīti gotrabhu …* The Tibetan (Ssv 196a) has "the enjoying/partaking of non-arising," mi skye ba za ba, instead of "entering into non-arising."

[1809] Cf. Cf. Vism XXII.5/p.672, quoted above: … ariyabhūmiṃ okkamamānaṃ nibbānārammaṇe paṭhamāvattana-paṭhamābhogapaṭhamasamannāhārabhūtaṃ maggassa … Paṭis-a I 275: Aññe pana yo nibbāne paṭhamābhogo paṭhamasamannāhāro, ayaṃ vuccati gotrabhū ti vadanti. Taṃ phalaṃ sandhāya na yujjati. Abhidh-av 125, v. 1327: Gocaraṃ kurumānaṃ taṃ, nibbānārammaṇe pana; Paṭhamāvajjanañceva, paṭhamābhogatāpi ca. Abhidh-av-pṭ 134 (Be): Paṭhamāvajjanañcevāti paṭhamāvajjanaṃ viya. Paṭhamābhogatāpi cāti paṭhamamanasikārā viya. S-ṭ II 66 (Be): … gotrabhuñāṇaṃ paṭhamamaggassa āvajjanaṃ. Khuddas-pṭ 232 (Be): Tato paraṃ nirodhaṃ nibbānaṃ ārammaṇaṃ kurumānaṃ puthujjanagottaṃ atikkamamānaṃ nibbānārammaṇe paṭhamasamannāhārabhūtaṃ apunarāvaṭṭakaṃ gotrabhuñāṇaṃ uppajjati.

Tibetan (196a): "The first attending to Nibbāna and the wisdom of emergence and turning away are change-of-lineage-knowledge," dang po mya ngan las 'das pa yid la byed pa dang ldang 'jug gi shes rab ni rigs spyod ye shes so.

[1810] Paṭis I 1: Bahiddhā vuṭṭhānavivaṭṭane paññā gotrabhuñāṇaṃ. Cf. Path of Purification, XXII.5, fn.1.

[1811] Cf. Nidd I 27: Yo sabbasaṅkhārasamatho … nibbānaṃ, ayaṃ upadhiviveko. … upadhiviveko ca nirūpadhīnaṃ puggalānaṃ visaṅkhāragatānaṃ. Nidd-a I 104: Visaṅkhāragatānanti saṅkhārārammaṇaṃ cajitvā vigatasaṅkhāraṃ nibbānaṃ ārammaṇavasena upagatānaṃ. Nidd-a I 101: … Tehi duvidhekaṭṭhehi kilesehi cittaṃ vivittaṃ hotīti maggacittaṃ viviccati, phalacittaṃ vivittaṃ viyuttaṃ apasakkitaṃ suññaṃ hotīti attho. Vism-mhṭ II 506: Kilesasaṅgaṇikādivasena avivekabhūtassa. Vivekaṭṭho upadhivivekatā. Sabbasaṅkhāravivittatā asaṅkhatabhāvoti evaṃ acchariyabbhutasabhāvopi ariyamaggo saṅkhato eva, ayameva ca eko asaṅkhatoti nirodhassa asaṅkhatabhāvo supākaṭo hoti.

[1812] Also at 457b14. At 401b25, etc, 有邊 stands for pariyanta. The Tibetan has: "At this time, due to that, he sees the end of existence (bhavapariyanta), the unconditioned, deathless element." de'i tshe des srid pa'i mthar thug pa 'dus ma byas 'chi med kyi bdud dbyings su mthong ngo

Cf. Nidd I 21: … bhavapariyante ṭhito, saṃsārapariyante ṭhito, … antime bhave ṭhito, … antimadehadharo …

It is like a man who abandons this shore,
And crosses over to the far shore,
By a boat, wherein he ferries goods,
Sailing the boat, he cuts the stream.[1813]

Similes

It is like a boat crossing a river which performs four functions simultaneously in one moment: it abandons this shore, cuts the stream, reaches the further shore, and carries over the goods. Like the abandoning of this shore is the comprehension of the knowledge of suffering; like the cutting of the stream is the comprehension of the abandoning of the origination; like the crossing over to the further shore is the comprehension of the realization of its cessation; like the boat ferrying the goods is the comprehension of the development of the Path.[1814]

Or, it is like a light which with its appearance performs four functions simultaneously in one moment: it burns the wick; dispells darkness; consumes oil; and manifests light.[1815]

Or, it is like the sun which with its appearance performs four functions simultaneously in one moment: It makes forms visible, dispels darkness, eliminates cold and manifests light.

Like the making visible of forms, is the comprehension of the full knowing of suffering; like the dispelling of darkness, is the comprehension of the abandoning of origination; like the elimination of cold, is the comprehension of the realization of cessation; like the manifestation of light, is the comprehension of the development of the Path. Thus is Noble knowledge like the sun.[1816]

[1813] Abhidh-av 1387–88: Yathā ca mahatī nāvā, apubbācarimaṃ pana. Cattāri pana kiccāni, karot'ekakkhaṇe pana. // Jahatī orimaṃ tīraṃ, sotaṃ chindati sā pana. Tathā vahati bhaṇḍañ ca, tīram appeti pārimaṃ.

除漏, literally means "gets rid of leaks (āsavā)," however the Pali has sotaṃ chindati, "cuts the stream (of saṃsāra)." In the following prose explanation the boat performs four functions, not a man, so "gets rid of leaks" makes no sense there. 除 can correspond to chindana, chedana, while 漏 can correspond to the stream/current of saṃsāra. Cf. S IV 292: Soto ti kho, bhante, taṇhāyetaṃ adhivacanaṃ. Sā khīṇāsavassa bhikkhuno pahīnā ucchinnamūlā tālāvatthukatā anabhāvaṅkatā āyatiṃ anuppādadhammā. Tasmā khīṇāsavo bhikkhu chinnasoto ti vuccati. Nidd II 30 (Be): Yāni sotāni lokasmiṃ, sati tesaṃ nivāraṇaṃ; / Sotānaṃ saṃvaraṃ brūmi, paññāyete pidhiyyare. Yāni sotāni lokasminti yāni etāni sotāni mayā kittitāni … pakāsitāni, seyyathidaṃ taṇhāsoto diṭṭhisoto kilesasoto duccaritasoto avijjāsoto.

The Tibetan text skips over the verse: "Here the boat simile is taught: Like a boat moving on water, in a moment, neither before or after, performs four functions thus: it leaves this shore, cuts the stream, reaches the futher shore, and carries goods."

[1814] Vism XXII.96: a. Yathā nāvā apubbaṃ acarimaṃ ekakkhaṇe cattāri kiccāni karoti: orimatīraṃ pajahati, sotaṃ chindati, bhaṇḍaṃ vahati, pārimaṃ tīraṃ appeti, evam eva maggañāṇaṃ … nirodhaṃ sacchikiriyā-abhisamayena abhisameti; etthā pi yathā nāvā orimatīraṃ pajahati, evaṃ maggañāṇaṃ dukkhaṃ parijānāti; yathā sotaṃ chindati, evam samudayaṃ pajahati; yathā bhaṇḍaṃ vahati, evaṃ sahajātādi-paccayatāya maggaṃ bhāveti; yathā pārimaṃ tīraṃ appeti, evam pārimatīrabhūtaṃ nirodhaṃ sacchikarotī ti evaṃ upamāsaṃsandanaṃ veditabbaṃ. Peṭ 134*: Evaṃ diṭṭhanto yathā nāvā jalaṃ gacchanto cattāri kiccāni karoti, pārimaṃ tīraṃ pāpeti, orimaṃ tīraṃ jahati, bhāraṃ vahati, sotaṃ chindati, evam eva samathavipassanā yuganandhā vattamānā ekakāle ekakkhaṇe ekacitte cattāri kiccāni karoti, dukkhaṃ pariññābhisamayena abhisameti, yāva maggaṃ bhāvanābhisamayena abhisameti.*

[1815] Vism XXII.92/p. 690: Yathā padīpo apubbaṃ acarimaṃ ekakkhaṇena cattāri kiccāni karoti: vaṭṭiṃ jhāpeti, andhakāraṃ vidhamati, ālokaṃ parividaṃseti, sinehaṃ pariyādiyati—evam eva maggañāṇaṃ apubbaṃ acarimaṃ ekakkhaṇena cattāri saccāni abhisameti, dukkhaṃ pariññābhisamayena abhisameti, samudayaṃ pahānābhisamayena abhisameti, maggaṃ bhāvanābhisamayena abhisameti, nirodhaṃ sacchikiriyābhisamayena abhisameti. Peṭ 134–5: Yathā dīpo jalanto ekakāle apubbaṃ acarimaṃ cattāri kiccāni karoti, andhakāraṃ vidhamati, ālokaṃ pātukaroti, rūpaṃ nidassiyati, upādānaṃ pariyādiyati, evam eva samathavipassanā yuganandhā vattamānā ekakāle …

[1816] Vism XXII.95/Vism 690: Yathā suriyo udayanto apubbaṃ acarimaṃ saha pātubhāvā cattāri kiccāni karoti: rūpagatāni obhāseti, andhakāraṃ vidhamati, ālokaṃ dasseti, sītaṃ paṭippassambheti—evam eva maggañāṇaṃ … nirodhaṃ sacchikiriyābhisamayena abhisameti. Idhā pi yathā suriyo rūpagatāni obhāseti, evaṃ maggañāṇaṃ dukkhaṃ parijānāti; yathā andhakāraṃ vidhamati, evaṃ samudayaṃ pajahati; yathā ālokaṃ dasseti, evaṃ sahajātāni paccayatāya maggaṃ bhāveti; yathā sītaṃ paṭippassambheti, evaṃ kilesapaṭippassaddhiṃ nirodhaṃ sacchikarotī ti evaṃ upamāsaṃsandanaṃ veditabbaṃ. Peṭ 134: Tattha samathavipassanā yuganaddhā vattamānā ekakāle ekakkhaṇe ekacitte cattāri kiccāni karoti, dukkhaṃ pariññābhisamayena abhisameti, yāva maggaṃ bhāvanābhisamayena abhisameti. … Yathā vā suriyo udayanto ekakāle apubbaṃ acarimaṃ cattāri kiccāni karoti, andhakāraṃ vidhamati, ālokaṃ pātukaroti, rūpaṃ nidassiyati, sītaṃ pariyādiyati, …

Vism attributes these three similes to the ancient teachers—Vuttaṃ h'etaṃ Porāṇehi.

The Tibetan text skips over the next two questions and continues at the question on the meaning of the comprehension of truths.

Q. Seeing suffering as it really is, he fully knows suffering, abandons origination, realizes cessation and develops the Path—what are the characteristics of this?

[A]. When he is not seeing suffering, the four perversions (vipallāsa) occur.[1817]

[Q] That which has been said (above): "At that time, he, through seclusion, is seeing the end of existence, the unconditioned, the deathless element. 457b15 He comprehends the Four Truths in one knowledge, simultaneously."—what is the meaning of this?

[A.] When there is the knowledge of arising and falling away, then there is not yet the seeing of the flood of suffering and the seeing of the disadvantage of all formations as it really is, and the mind [does not yet] emerge from the sign of formations and enter the Formationless. But when he sees the disadvantage of the formations as it really is, the mind emerges from the sign of formations and enters to the Formationless.[1818] Here he sees the flood of suffering and reaches the final goal (pariyosāna).

Again, it is said that if in this manner, through seclusion and through change-of-lineage-knowledge, there is comprehension of the Truths, the change-of-lineage-knowledge emerges from the sign of the formations and there is entering into the Formationless. When the change-of-lineage-knowledge emerges from the sign of the formations, there is entering into the Formationless, there is entering into Nibbāna. 457b23

Sole intentness on the cause is his object. Through intentness on the object, he obtains concentration of mind. When he does not obtain concentration, he does not produce serenity and insight, and also does not fully obtain the states that are accessories of awakening. Therefore, through change-of-lineage-knowledge there is comprehension of the Truths. From that change-of-lineage-knowledge, the Path-knowledge is produced immediately and at that time he obtains the concentration on Nibbāna. His mind obains concentration, produces serenity and insight, and fulfills the states that are accessories of awakening. Therefore only through the Path-knowledge there is comprehension of the Truths.[1819]

It is like a man leaving a burning city by stepping across the threshold of the gate. When he has left just with one foot from the city, then he is not yet called "one who has left." Just so, when the change-of-lineage-knowledge emerges from that sign of the formations and there is entering into the Formationless, [457c] then he is not yet called "one gone beyond the defilements," because the states (that are accessories of awakening) are not yet fulfilled. Just as a man leaving a burning city who has placed both his feet outside the threshold of the gate, is called "one who has left the burning city," just so, from the change-of-lineage-knowledge, immediately the Path-knowledge is produced, and then one is called "one has left the city of the defilements," because the states (that are accessories of awakening) are fulfilled. Therefore, through the change-of-lineage-knowledge, there is comprehension of the Truths.[1820]

Q. What is the meaning of "comprehension of the Truths"?

A. The Four Noble Truths converging in one moment is called "comprehension of the Truths."[1821]

At this time,[1822] when connected with path-knowledge, the faculties in the sense of authority

---

[1817] The questions are put in an unusual way here and no proper demarcation is put between this question and the next one. I am not sure whether 相 in 此相云何 is a corruption of 義 as in 此義云何 in the next question.

[1818] Vism-mhṭ II 207, S-ṭ II 365 (Be): … sabbasaṅkhārehi nibbinnassa visaṅkhāraninnassa gotrabhunā vivaṭṭitamānasassa maggena sacchikaraṇenāti attho. S-a III 144: … nimittaṃ … animittaṃ … Saṅkhāre anāvajjitattā, visaṅkhāraṃ āvajjitattā satisambojjhaṅgo tiṭṭhatīti.

[1819] Cf. Vism XXII.6: … nibbānaninnapoṇapabbhāramānaso hutvā tatiyena paratīrassa uparibhāgaṃ patto viya idāni pattabbassa nibbānassa āsanno hutvā tassa cittassa nirodhena taṃ saṅkhārārammaṇaṃ muñcitvā gotrabhucittena visaṅkhāre paratīrabhūte nibbāne patati. Ekārammaṇe pana aladdhāsevanatāya vedhamāno so puriso viya na tāva suppatiṭṭhito hoti, tato maggañāṇena patiṭṭhātīti. Vism-mhṭ II 484: Dutiyena nibbānaninnapoṇapabbhāramānaso ti idaṃ tassa sabbasaṅkhārato sātisayaṃ alaggaṃ hutvā visaṅkhāre allīnabhāvato vuttaṃ. Nibbāne ārammaṇakaraṇavasena patati yogāvacaro. Ekārammaṇeti ekavāraṃyeva ālambite ārammaṇe. Tenāha aladdhāsevanatāyā ti. Tena ekārammaṇe āsevanā upakāravatī, na tathā nānārammaṇeti dasseti.

[1820] Cf. Vism XXII.1f.

[1821] The Tibetan text is the same: de la bden pa mngon par rtogs pa 'di don ci zhe na brjod par bya ste 'phags pa'i bden pa bzhi po rnams skad cig la mnyam du rtogs pa de ni bden pa mngon par rtogs pa zhes brjod do. Cf. Paṭis-a III 686: Tattha abhisamayoti saccānaṃ abhimukhena samāgamo, paṭivedhoti attho. Paṭis-a III 568: Abhisamayaṭṭhenāti abhimukhaṃ samāgamanaṭṭhena. Paṭis-a III 579: Saccābhisamayāyāti catunnaṃ saccānaṃ ekābhisamayāya kiccanipphattivasena ekapaṭivedhāya. Paṭis-a I 164: cattāri saccāni ekapaṭivedhena paṭivijjhati, ekābhisamayena abhisameti.

[1822] Paṭis I 181: Maggaṃ samodhānetīti kathaṃ maggaṃ samodhāneti? … avikkhepaṭṭhena sammāsamādhiṃ

combine;[1823] … the powers in the sense of unshakeability … the factors of awakening in the sense of leading out … the path factors in the sense of cause; establishings of mindfulness in the sense of establishing … right effort in the sense of exerting … the bases of supernormal power in the sense of succeeding … serenity in the sense of non-wavering … insight in the sense of contemplation … coupling in the sense of inseparability[1824] … purity of virtue in the sense of restraining[1825] … purity of mind in the sense of non-wavering … purity of view in the sense of vision … liberation in the the sense of release … direct knowledge in the sense of penetration … freedom in the sense of giving up … knowledge of destruction in the sense of cutting off … foundation in the sense of zeal … attention in the sense of origination … contact in the sense of combining … feeling in the sense of meeting together … concentration in the sense of being foremost … mindfulness in the sense of authority … wisdom in the sense of reality …[1826] the deathless in the sense of profound distinction … Nibbāna in the sense of final goal (pariyosāna) combines.[1827]

Three fetters

The meditator thus knowing, thus seeing, abandons the three fetters, namely, personal-identity-view, uncertainty, holding on to precepts and observances, and the defilements conjoined to them (tadekaṭṭha).[1828]

Q. What is personal-identity-view (sakkāyadiṭṭhi)?

A. Here the uninstructed commoner regards matter as self; the self as possessing matter; matter as within self; self as within matter. He regards feeling … perception … formations … consciousness as self; samodhāneti. Ayaṃ puggalo imaṃ maggaṃ imasmiṃ ārammaṇe samodhāneti. … Dhamme samodhānetīti kathaṃ dhamme samodhāneti? Ādhipateyyaṭṭhena indriyāni samodhāneti, akampiyaṭṭhena balāni samodhāneti, niyyānaṭṭhena bojjhaṅge samodhāneti, hetuṭṭhena maggaṃ samodhāneti, upaṭṭhānaṭṭhena satipaṭṭhānaṃ samodhāneti, padahanaṭṭhena sammappadhānaṃ samodhāneti, ijjhanaṭṭhena iddhipādaṃ samodhāneti tathaṭṭhena saccaṃ samodhāneti, avikkhepaṭṭhena samathaṃ samodhāneti, anupassanaṭṭhena vipassanaṃ samodhāneti, ekarasaṭṭhena samathavipassanaṃ samodhāneti, anativattanaṭṭhena yuganaddhaṃ samodhāneti, saṃvaraṭṭhena sīlavisuddhiṃ samodhāneti, avikkhepaṭṭhena cittavisuddhiṃ samodhāneti, dassanaṭṭhena diṭṭhivisuddhiṃ samodhāneti, vimuttaṭṭhena vimokkhaṃ samodhāneti, paṭivedhaṭṭhena vijjaṃ samodhāneti, pariccāgaṭṭhena vimuttiṃ samodhāneti, samucchedaṭṭhena khaye ñāṇaṃ samodhāneti, paṭippassaddhaṭṭhena anuppāde ñāṇaṃ samodhāneti, chandaṃ mūlaṭṭhena samodhāneti, manasikāraṃ samuṭṭhānaṭṭhena samodhāneti, phassaṃ samodhānaṭṭhena samodhāneti, vedanaṃ samosaraṇaṭṭhena samodhāneti, samādhiṃ pamukhaṭṭhena samodhāneti, satiṃ ādhipateyyaṭṭhena samodhāneti, paññaṃ tatuttaraṭṭhena samodhāneti, vimuttiṃ sāraṭṭhena samodhāneti, amatogadhaṃ nibbānaṃ pariyosānaṭṭhena samodhāneti. Ayaṃ puggalo ime dhamme imasmiṃ ārammaṇe samodhāneti. Tena vuccati dhamme samodhānetī ti.

---

Paṭis II 216: Lokuttaramaggakkhaṇe … Ādhipateyyaṭṭhena indriyābhisamayo, … amatogadhaṃ nibbānaṃ pariyosānaṭṭhena abhisamayo.

[1823] 於此時道智和合依義諸根成平等. Perhaps: "… when the path knowledge converges (samāgamana, 和合), the faculties…." or "… when endowed with the path knowledge (maggañāṇa samaṅgi) …" Tibetan (197b): "At this time, connected with the Path (magga tamsampayutta), the faculties in the sense of authority combine, connect." de'i dus su lam de dang ldan pa la bdag po'i don gyis dbang po rnams yang dag par nges par nye bar ldan par 'gyur ro.

[1824] 不相離 elsewhere in Vim corresponds to avinibbhoga, "inseparable." The Tibetan text is in accordance with the Pali: de dag las mi 'da' ba = anativattana, "non-excess."

[1825] Paṭis-a III 545: assaddhiyasaṃvaraṭṭhena sīlavisuddhīti assaddhiyassa nivāraṇaṭṭhena viratiatthena sīlamalavisodhanato sīlavisuddhi nāma.

[1826] 真實 = bhūta, "real, existent." The Tibetan has med pa: = asat, abhāva, avijjamāna, "non-existence, absence." Pali: taduttara/tatuttara "the highest of all." Patis-a II 216: Paññā taduttaraṭṭhenāti ariyamaggapaññā tesaṃ kusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ uttaraṭṭhena seṭṭhaṭṭhena abhiññeyyā. Atha vā tato kilesehi, saṃsāravaṭṭato vā uttarati samatikkamatīti taduttarā, tassā attho taduttaraṭṭho. Tena taduttaraṭṭhena. Tatuttaraṭṭhenātipi pāṭho, tato uttaraṭṭhenāti attho.

[1827] Tibetan (197a): "… the merging into the deathless, cessation, Nibbāna, in the sense of final goal combines; thus there is connection."

[1828] Lit. "… defilements standing in that one (place)." Cf. Paṭis II 94: Sotāpattimaggena sakkāyadiṭṭhi vicikicchā sīlabbataparāmāso, imāni tīṇi saññojanāni pahīyanti; diṭṭhānusayo vicikicchānusayo, ime dve anusayā byantihonti. Nidd-a I 101: Tadekaṭṭhehi cāti tehi sakkāyadiṭṭhiādīhi ekato ṭhitehi ca. … tehi sakkāyadiṭṭhiyādikilesehi cittaṃ vivittaṃ suññaṃ hoti. Ettha tadekaṭṭhanti duvidhaṃ ekaṭṭhaṃ pahānekaṭṭhaṃ sahajekaṭṭhañca. … Rāgadosamohapamukhesu vā diyaḍḍhesu kilesasahassesu sotāpattimaggena diṭṭhiyā pahīyamānāya diṭṭhiyā saha vicikicchā pahīnā, diṭṭhānusayavicikicchānusayehi saha apāyagamanīyā sabbakilesā pahānekaṭṭhavasena pahīyanti. Sahajekaṭṭhā pana diṭṭhiyā saha vicikicchāya ca saha ekekasmiṃ citte ṭhitā avasesakilesā. … vicikicchāsahagatacitte pahīyamāne tena sahajāto moho uddhaccaṃ ahirikaṃ anottappanti ime kilesā sahajekaṭṭhavasena pahīyanti. Tehi duvidhekaṭṭhehi kilesehi cittaṃ vivittaṃ hotīti maggacittaṃ viviccati, phalacittaṃ vivittaṃ viyuttaṃ apasakkitaṃ suññaṃ hotīti attho. Cf. Dhs-a 355.

the self as possessing consciousness; consciousness as within self; self as within consciousness. This is called personal-identity-view.[1829] This personal-identity is abandoned, and due to that abandoning, the sixty-two views,[1830] beginning with personal-identity-view, are also abandoned.

Q. What is uncertainty?

A. The uncertainty and doubt regarding Suffering, Origination, Cessation, or the Path, or regarding the Buddha, the Dhamma and the Saṅgha, or regarding the anterior end, the posterior end, and the anterior end and posterior end, or regarding dependently arisen states—this is called "uncertainty."[1831] This is also abandoned.

Q. What is holding on to precepts and observances?

A. There are two kinds of holding on to precepts and observances. They are [holding on due to] craving (taṇhā) and [holding on due to] delusion (moha).

"Through this precept, through this observance, through this ascetic practice (tapas) 457c25 and through this holy life (brahmacariya), I shall be reborn as a god or shall be reborn among the gods[1832]"—this is called "holding on to precepts and observances due to craving."

"Through precepts, through purity [of observances], through purity of precepts and observances [there is purity]," such a view of outsider recluses or brahmins—this is called "holding on to precepts and observances due to delusion."[1833] This is also abandoned.

Q. What are the defilements conjoined to them (tadekaṭṭha)?

A. The greed, hatred and delusion which lead to evil destinations are called "the defilements conjoined to them." [458a] These are also abandoned.[1834]

[1829] Cf. M I 8; III 17; Vibh 364: Tattha katamā sakkāyadiṭṭhi? Idha assutavā puthujjano … rūpaṃ … viññāṇaṃ attato samanupassati, viññāṇavantaṃ vā attānaṃ, attani vā viññāṇaṃ, viññāṇasmiṃ vā attānaṃ: yā evarūpā diṭṭhi diṭṭhigataṃ … pe … vipariyesagāho: ayaṃ vuccati sakkāyadiṭṭhi.

[1830] Vibh 400: Tattha katamāni dvāsaṭṭhi diṭṭhigatāni brahmajāle (D I 44–5) veyyākaraṇe vuttāni Bhagavatā? Cattāro sassatavādā, cattāro ekaccassatikā, cattāro antānantikā, cattāro amarāvikkhepikā, dve adhiccasamuppannikā, soḷasa saññīvādā, aṭṭha asaññīvādā, aṭṭha nevasaññī-nāsaññīvādā, satta ucchedavādā, pañca diṭṭhadhammanibbānavādā. Imāni dvāsaṭṭhi diṭṭhigatāni Brahmajāle veyyākaraṇe vuttāni Bhagavatā.

[1831] Cf. Dhs 198, § 1118; Vibh 364–5: Tattha katamā vicikicchā? Satthari kaṅkhati vicikicchati, dhamme kaṅkhati vicikicchati, saṅghe kaṅkhati vicikicchati, sikkhāya kaṅkhati vicikicchati; pubbante kaṅkhati, vicikicchati, aparante kaṅkhati vicikicchati, pubbantāparante kaṅkhati vicikicchati, idappaccayatā paṭiccasamuppannesu dhammesu kaṅkhati vicikicchati: yā evarūpā kaṅkhā kaṅkhāyanā kaṅkhāyitattaṃ vimati vicikicchā dveḷhakaṃ dvedhāpatho saṃsayo anekaṃsagāho āsappanā parisappanā apariyogāhanā thambhitattaṃ cittassa manovilekho: ayaṃ vuccati vicikicchā. These two references, i.e., Dhs and Vibh are not identical: At Dhs §§1004; 1118; 1161; 1235; Vibh 365 there are the tiratana & the sikkhā, but not the four truths. At Nidd I 414 and in Nidd II there are the four truths, but not the tiratana & the sikkhā. At Peṭ 131f. we have the tiratana & the four truths, but not the sikkhā and the antā.

[1832] 我皆當生一一天處, lit. "I shall be reborn in every heaven, one after the other," but this must be a misrendering of devaññataro, as found in the Vism parallel in the next fn.

Tibetan (197b): "[I] will become a god, otherwise [I will be born] among [the gods]," lha gzhan gang yang rung bar 'gyur bar bya'o.

[1833] Tibetan (197b): "The purity of precepts, the purity of observances, the purity of precepts and observances by outsider ascetics or brahmins—this is holding on to precepts and observances."

Vism I.5/p.12: Catutthaduke nissayo ti dve nissayā taṇhānissayo ca diṭṭhinissayo ca. Tattha yaṃ imināhaṃ sīlena devo vā bhavissāmi devaññataro vā ti evaṃ bhavasampattiṃ ākaṅkhamānena pavattitaṃ, idaṃ taṇhānissitaṃ. yaṃ sīlena suddhī ti evaṃ suddhidiṭṭhiyā pavattitaṃ, idaṃ diṭṭhinissitaṃ. Yaṃ pana lokuttaraṃ lokiyañ ca tass'eva sambhārabhūtaṃ, idaṃ anissitan ti evaṃ nissitānissitavasena duvidhaṃ. A different pair is at Peṭ 132f. Cf. Vibh 365; Dhs 183, § 1005: Tattha katamo sīlabbataparāmāso? Ito bahiddhā samaṇabrahmaṇānaṃ sīlena suddhivatena suddhisīlabbatena suddhīti—evarūpā diṭṭhi diṭṭhigataṃ diṭṭhigahaṇaṃ diṭṭhikantāro diṭṭhivisūkāyikaṃ diṭṭhivipphanditaṃ diṭṭhisaññojanaṃ—gāho paṭiggāho abhiniveso parāmāso kummaggo micchāpatho micchattaṃ titthāyatanaṃ vipariyesagāho—ayaṃ vuccati sīlabbataparāmāso.

[1834] A III 438: Cha, bhikkhave, dhamme appahāya abhabbo diṭṭhisampadaṃ sacchikātuṃ. katame cha? sakkāyadiṭṭhiṃ, vicikicchaṃ, sīlabbataparāmāsaṃ, apāyagamanīyaṃ rāgaṃ, apāyagamanīyaṃ dosaṃ, apāyagamanīyaṃ mohaṃ. Kv 80 etc.: Apāyagamanīyo rāgo pahīno … apāyagamanīyo doso pahīno … apāyagamanīyo moho pahīno, parihāyati sotāpanno sotāpattiphalā ti. Nidd I 7: sotāpattimaggaṃ bhāvento pi apāyagamanīye kāme samucchedato parivajjeti. ? It-a II 36: Tattha apāyagamanīyā rāgadosamohā paṭhamamaggena, oḷārikā kāmarāgadosā dutiyamaggena, teyeva anavasesā tatiyamaggena, bhavarāgo avasiṭṭhamoho ca catutthamaggena pahīyanti. Evametesu pahīyantesu tadekaṭṭhato sabbepi kilesā pahīyanteva. Nidd-a I 101: Tadekaṭṭhehi cāti tehi sakkāyadiṭṭhiādīhi ekato ṭhitehi ca. … Ettha tadekaṭṭhanti duvidhaṃ ekaṭṭhaṃ pahānekaṭṭhaṃ sahajekaṭṭhañca. Apāyagamanīyā hi kilesā yāva sotāpattimaggena na pahīyanti, tāva diṭṭhivicikicchāhi saha ekasmiṃ puggale ṭhitāti pahānekaṭṭhā. Dasasu hi kilesesu idha diṭṭhivicikicchā eva āgatā. Anusayesu diṭṭhānusayavicikicchānusayā āgatā. Sesā pana apāyagamanīyo lobho doso moho māno thinaṃ uddhaccaṃ

Stream-enterer

In this period[1835] he is practising towards the realization of the Fruit of Stream-entry.[1836] He has not yet attained to Stream-entry and stands in the Stream-entry-practice-plane,[1837] the eighth plane,[1838] the plane of vision.[1839]

The wisdom regarding emergence and turning away from both—this is a designation for the Path-knowledge of Stream-entry.[1840] ahirikaṃ anottappanti aṭṭha kilesā diṭṭhivicikicchāhi saha pahānekaṭṭhā hutvā dvīhi anusayehi saddhiṃ sotāpattimaggena pahīyanti. Paṭis I 27: Sotāpattimaggakkhaṇe dassanaṭṭhena sammādiṭṭhi micchādiṭṭhiyā vuṭṭhāti, tadanuvattakakilesehi ca khandhehi ca vuṭṭhāti, bahiddhā ca sabbanimittehi vuṭṭhāti. Paṭis-a I 277: Maggañāṇaniddese micchādiṭṭhiyā vuṭṭhāti ti diṭṭhānusayappahānena samucchedavasena dvāsaṭṭhibhedato micchādiṭṭhito vuṭṭhāti. Tadanuvattakakilesehī ti micchādiṭṭhisampayogavasena ca micchādiṭṭhiupanissayena ca uppajjamānehi micchādiṭṭhianuvattamānehi nānāvidhehi kilesehi. Tena tadekaṭṭhakilesappahānaṃ vuttaṃ hoti.

---

Dhs p. 182f. § 1006. Katame dhammā dassanena pahātabbā? Tīṇi saṃyojanāni - sakkāyadiṭṭhi, vicikicchā, sīlabbataparāmāso. … 1010. Imāni tīṇi saṃyojanāni; tadekaṭṭhā ca kilesā; … 1011. Katame dhammā bhāvanāya pahātabbā? Avaseso lobho, doso, moho; tadekaṭṭhā ca kilesā; … Dhs-a 355: Ettha hi diṭṭhivicikicchāsu pahīyamānāsu apāyagamanīyo lobho doso moho māno thinaṃ uddhaccaṃ ahirikaṃ anottappanti sabbepime pahānekaṭṭhā hutvā pahīyanti.

Paṭis I 94: Āsavāti katame te āsavā? Kāmāsavo, bhavāsavo, diṭṭhāsavo, avijjāsavo. Katthete āsavā khīyanti? Sotāpattimaggena anavaseso diṭṭhāsavo khīyati, apāyagamanīyo kāmāsavo khīyati, apāyagamanīyo bhavāsavo khīyati, apāyagamanīyo avijjāsavo khīyati. Etthete āsavā khīyanti. Sakadāgāmimaggena oḷāriko kāmāsavo khīyati, tadekaṭṭho bhavāsavo khīyati, tadekaṭṭho avijjāsavo khīyati. Etthete āsavā khīyanti. Anāgāmimaggena anavaseso kāmāsavo khīyati, tadekaṭṭho bhavāsavo khīyati, tadekaṭṭho avijjāsavo khīyati. Etthete āsavā khīyanti. Arahattamaggena anavaseso bhavāsavo khīyati, anavaseso avijjāsavo khīyati. Etthete āsavā khīyanti.

[1835] The text has 於此間 "in this interval," etasmiṃ antare, instead of the usual 於此時, "at this time." 間 = antara. The Tibetan text has de 'di srid du, "in this length (of time)/for so long" instead of de'i tshe:

"For as long as he is practising for the fruit of stream-entry, for so long he is not a 'stream-enterer.' The practice-for-[stream-entry]-plane, the eight plane, the plane of vision, gone to certainty (niyata-gata), the wisdom regarding emergence and turning away from both—these all are synonym-designations."

[1836] Cf. A IV 374: Arahā, arahattāya paṭipanno, … sotāpanno, sotāpattiphalasacchikiriyāya paṭipanno, puthujjano: ime kho, bhikkhave, nava puggalā santo saṃvijjamānā lokasmin-ti. S V 202: … tato mudutarehi sotāpanno hoti, tato mudutarehi sotāpattiphalasacchikiriyāya paṭipanno hoti. Yassa kho, bhikkhave, imāni pañcindriyāni sabbena sabbaṃ sabbathā sabbaṃ natthi, tamahaṃ 'bāhiro puthujjanapakkhe ṭhito'ti vadāmīti. Pugg 15: Yassa puggalassa sotāpattiphalasacchikiriyāya paṭipannassa paññindriyaṃ adhimattaṃ hoti, paññāvāhiṃ paññāpubbaṅgamaṃ ariyamaggaṃ bhāveti ayaṃ vuccati puggalo dhammānusārī. Sotāpattiphalasacchikiriyāya paṭipanno puggalo dhammānusārī phale ṭhito diṭṭhippatto. … Yassa puggalassa sotāpattiphalasacchikiriyāya paṭipannassa saddhindriyaṃ adhimattaṃ hoti, saddhāvāhiṃ saddhāpubbaṅgamaṃ ariyamaggaṃ bhāveti ayaṃ vuccati puggalo saddhānusārī. …

[1837] Cf. Nett-a 38 (Be): … paṭipajjamānabhūmi paṭipannabhūmi paṭhamābhūmi…

[1838] S-a 234: Dhammānusārisaddhānusārino pana dvepi sotāpattimaggaṭṭhapuggalā. Paṭis-a 643: Aṭṭhamakassāti arahattaphalaṭṭhato paṭṭhāya gaṇiyamāne aṭṭhamabhūtassa sotāpattimaggaṭṭhassa.

[1839] Cf. Vism XIV.13/p.439: … paṭhamamaggapaññā dassanabhūmi. Avasesamaggattayapaññā bhāvanābhūmīti … Nett 49: Dassanabhūmi niyāmāvakkantiyā padaṭṭhānaṃ, bhāvanābhūmi uttarikānaṃ phalānaṃ pattiyā padaṭṭhānaṃ. Peṭ 30: … ugghaṭitaññū puggalo indriyāni paṭilabhitvā dassanabhūmiyaṃ ṭhito sotāpattiphalañca pāpuṇāti, …. Peṭ 130: Tattha yo yathābhūtaṃ pajānāti, esā dassanabhūmi. Peṭ 134: Yadā ariyasāvako sotāpanno bhavati avinipātadhammo niyato yāva dukkhassantaṃ karoti, ayaṃ dassanabhūmi. Peṭ 177: Tattha ugghaṭitaññū tikkhindriyatāya dassanabhūmimāgamma sotāpattiphalaṃ pāpuṇāti…. Peṭ 184: Yathāyaṃ samāhito yathābhūtaṃ pajānāti, ayaṃ dassanabhūmi. Sotāpattiphalañca yathābhūtaṃ pajānanto nibbindatīti, idaṃ tanukañca kāmarāgabyāpādaṃ sakadāgāmiphalañca yaṃ nibbindati virajjati, ayaṃ paṭhamajjhānabhāvanābhūmi ca rāgavirāgā cetovimutti anāgāmiphalañca.

The Tibetan, see above, adds "gone to certainty/of fixed destination," nges par gyur pa, = niyatagata, niyatabhūta, or just niyata. Cf. M I 141: Evaṃ svākkhāte … dhamme … yesaṃ bhikkhūnaṃ tīṇi saṃyojanāni pahīnāni, sabbe te sotāpannā, avinipātadhammā, niyatā sambodhiparāyanā. S III 225: Yassa kho, bhikkhave, ime dhammā evaṃ paññāya mattaso nijjhānaṃ khamanti, ayaṃ vuccati dhammānusārī, okkanto sammattaniyāmaṃ, sappurisabhūmiṃ okkanto, vītivatto puthujjanabhūmiṃ; abhabbo taṃ kammaṃ kātuṃ, yaṃ kammaṃ katvā nirayaṃ vā tiracchānayoniṃ vā pettivisayaṃ vā upapajjeyya; abhabbo ca tāva kālaṃ kātuṃ yāva na sotāpattiphalaṃ sacchikaroti. Yo, bhikkhave, ime dhamme evaṃ pajānāti evaṃ passati, ayaṃ vuccati sotāpanno avinipātadhammo niyato sambodhiparāyanoti. Cf. D I 155, II 92, 283, S II 160, 203, V 371.

[1840] 或定從兩起轉慧 Cf. Paṭis I 1: Dubhato vuṭṭhānavivaṭṭane paññā magge ñāṇaṃ. Paṭis II 64: Yā ca dubhatovuṭṭhānavivaṭṭane paññā yañca magge ñāṇaṃ, ime dhammā ekatthā, byañjanameva nānaṃ. Paṭis-a I 26: Dubhato vuṭṭhānavivaṭṭane paññā magge ñāṇanti ettha dubhatoti ubhato, dvayatoti vā vuttaṃ hoti. Kilesānaṃ samucchindanato kilesehi ca tadanuvattakakkhandhehi ca nibbānārammaṇakaraṇato bahiddhā sabbasaṅkhāranimittehi ca vuṭṭhāti vivaṭṭatīti dubhato vuṭṭhānavivaṭṭane paññā. Tenevāha: Cattāripi maggañāṇāni animittārammaṇattā nimittato vuṭṭhahanti, samudayassa samucchindanato pavattā vuṭṭhahantīti dubhato vuṭṭhānāni hontī ti (Vism XXII.44). I don't

Immediately subsequent to Stream-entry, on the abandoning of the three fetters, he makes the Unconditioned the object. The path together with other states, which are not different than the means (upāya?), give rise to knowledge of the Fruit of Stream-Entry. Two or three Fruition-minds (phala-citta) arise and immediately subsequently [the mind] enters into the bhavaṅga. When the mind emerges from the bhavaṅga, he reviews the Path, the Fruit, Nibbāna; he reviews the abandoned defilements and the remaining defilements.[1841]

This is called "the Stream-enterer," who is not subject to regress, of fixed destiny, with Awakening as destination,[1842] endowed with comprehension, who has come to the fruit.[1843] He is [a son] born of the breast and the mouth of the Blessed One, born of the Dhamma, created by the Dhamma; an heir to the Dhamma, not an heir to material things."[1844] 458a11

---

know what to make of the 定, "concentration" before 從兩, "from both." Perhaps the Chinese translator interpreted "from both" to mean "from both vision and concentration." There is no word corresponding to "concentration" here in the Tibetan, see translation above.

[1841] Cf. Khuddas-pṭ 232 (Be): Nibbānaṃ ārammaṇaṃ katvā gotrabhuñāṇe niruddhe tena dinnasaññāya nibbānaṃ ārammaṇaṃ katvā diṭṭhisaṃyojanaṃ sīlabbataparāmāsasaṃyojanaṃ vicikicchāsaṃyojananti tīṇi saṃyojanāni samucchedavasena viddhaṃsento sotāpattimaggo uppajjati. Tadanantaraṃ tasseva vipākabhūtāni dve tīṇi vā phalacittāni uppajjanti anantaravipākattā lokuttarānaṃ. Phalapariyosāne panassa cittaṃ bhavaṅgaṃ otarati. Tato bhavaṅgaṃ vicchinditvā paccavekkhaṇatthāya manodvārāvajjanaṃ uppajjati. So hi iminā vatāhaṃ maggena āgato ti maggaṃ paccavekkhati, tato ayaṃ me ānisaṃso laddho ti phalaṃ paccavekkhati, tato ime nāma me kilesā pahīnā ti pahīnakilese paccavekkhati, tato ime nāma me kilesā avasiṭṭhā ti uparimaggattayavajjhe kilese paccavekkhati, avasāne ayaṃ me dhammo ārammaṇato paṭividdho ti amataṃ nibbānaṃ paccavekkhati. Iti sotāpannassa ariyasāvakassa pañca paccavekkhaṇāni honti.

Abhidh-s 65 (Be), v. 59: Tato paraṃ dve tīṇi phalacittāni pavattitvā bhavaṅgapātova hoti, puna bhavaṅgaṃ vocchinditvā paccavekkhaṇañāṇāni pavattanti. p. 27/v. 35. Cattāro pana magguppādā ekacittakkhaṇikā, tato paraṃ dve tīṇi phalacittāni yathārahaṃ uppajjanti, tato paraṃ bhavaṅgapāto. Vism XXII.19/p.676: Phalapariyosāne pan'assa cittaṃ bhavaṅgaṃ otarati, tato bhavaṅgaṃ upacchinditvā maggapaccavekkhaṇatthāya uppajjati manodvārāvajjanaṃ, tasmiṃ niruddhe paṭipāṭiyā satta maggapaccavekkhaṇajavanānī ti. puna bhavaṅgaṃ otaritvā ten'eva nayena phalādīnaṃ paccavekkhaṇatthāya āvajjanādīni uppajjanti. yesaṃ uppattiyā esa maggaṃ paccavekkhati, phalaṃ paccavekkhati, pahīnakilese paccavekkhati, avasiṭṭhakilese paccavekkhati, nibbānaṃ paccavekkhati.

Parts of this passage are obscure; so in the Tibetan: "Immediately following the path of stream-entry, [on the abandoning of the fetters,] the path and [other] states and not possessing/dissociated (vippayutta?) [from defilements?], the unconditioned is made the object, the fruit of stream-entry knowledge arises. Two or three fruition-minds [arise], ~~due to immediately~~ enters into~~, and due to the abandoning of the three fetters~~, then immediately into the bhavaṅga. Having risen from the bhavaṅga, he reviews the Path, reviews the Fruit, and reviews Nibbāna, he reviews the abandoned defilements, and reviews the remaining defilements."

The underlined clause on the abandoning of the fetters was misplaced due a copyist's mistake. As in the Chinese, it should be in the previous sentence. Thus the translation of the second part is: "The fruition-mind proceeds two or three [times] and then immediately enters into the bhavaṅga." (rgyun du zhugs pa'i lam gyi de ma thag tu lam dang pa'i chos dang mi ldan par 'dus ma byas la dmigs pa byas te rgyun du zhugs pa'i 'bras bu shes pa skye bar 'gyur te 'bras bu sems gnyis sam gsum mam bar med par 'jug pa'i phyir dang kun du sbyor ba gsum rnams spangs pa'i phyir ro de nas bar med par srid pa'i yan lag tu srid pa'i yan lag las langs te lam la so sor rtog go)

[1842] S II 68: Yato kho, gahapati, ariyasāvakassa pañca bhayāni verāni vūpasantāni honti, catūhi ca sotāpattiyaṅgehi samannāgato hoti, ariyo cassa ñāyo paññāya sudiṭṭho hoti suppaṭividdho, so ākaṅkhamāno attanāva attānaṃ byākareyya: khīṇanirayomhi khīṇatiracchānayoni khīṇapettivisayo khīṇāpāyaduggativinipāto, sotāpannohamasmi avinipātadhammo niyato sambodhiparāyano ti. Cf. S V 355, A III 211f.

[1843] 未來果欲分別, lit. "who desires to comprehend the future fruits," anāgataphalāni abhisayamaṃ/abhisametuṃ icchati/āsī. Tibetan: "one endowed with comprehension, who has come to the fruit," mngon par rtogs pa dang ldan pa'i 'bras bu 'ongs pa, = abhisemetāvī, āgataphala. Cf. Vin III 189: … āgataphalā abhisametāvinī viññātasāsanā … "…who has come to the fruit, one who has comprehended, one who has understood the Teaching." Vin-a III 632: Sā pana yasmā ariyasāvikāva hoti, tenassa padabhājane āgataphalā ti ādi vuttaṃ. Tattha āgataṃ phalaṃ assāti āgataphalā paṭiladdhasotāpattiphalāti attho. Abhisametāvinīti paṭividdhacatusaccā. S II 137: …ariyasāvakassa diṭṭhisampannassa puggalassa abhisametāvino… S-a II 128: Abhisametāvinoti paññāya ariyasaccāni abhisametvā ṭhitassa. A III 284: … ariyasāvako āgataphalo viññātasāsano …

[1844] Tibetan: "Therein, he is one endowed with (right) view, rightly practising vision, accomplished in this Dhamma, one who sees the Dhamma, one who is possessed of learner's knowledge, one who is possessed of learner's higher knowledge, one who is rightly practising the method of the Dhamma; a noble one with penetrative wisdom; one who dwells having attained the door the Deathless."

S II 221; M III 29: Sāriputtam eva taṃ sammā vadamāno vadeyya: Bhagavato putto oraso mukhato jāto dhammajo dhammanimmito dhammadāyādo no āmisadāyādo ti. S III: 83: Pañcakkhandhe pariññāya, sattasaddhammagocarā, / pasaṃsiyā sappurisā, puttā buddhassa orasā.

one endowed with right view; one who has reached the True Dhamma; one who sees the True Dhamma; one who is possessed of learner's knowledge; one who is possessed of the learner's higher knowledge;[1845] one who has entered the stream of the Dhamma; a noble one with penetrative wisdom; and one who dwells opening the gate of the Deathless."[1846]

Therefore it is said in the verse thus:

To being the sole king of earth,
To being the sole king of heaven,
To being the lord of the whole universe—
The fruit of stream-entry is superior.[1847]

Once-Returner

The meditator, established in this plane, endeavours further for the realization of the Fruit of Once-Returning, and contemplates, beginning with seeing rise and fall, as taught above. He practises in the way through which he saw the Path. Relying on the faculties, the powers and awakening factors, he comprehends the Truths. Thus he practises towards the abandoning of coarse greed and hatred and the defilements conjoined to them.[1848] Immediately following this Path he realizes the Fruit of Once-Returning. 458a20

Non-Returner

The meditator, established in this plane, endeavours further for the realization of the Fruit of Non-Returning, and contemplates beginning with seeing rise and fall, as taught above. He practises in the way through which he saw the Path. Relying on the faculties, the powers and awakening factors, he comprehends the Truths. Thus he practises towards the abandoning of fine greed and hatred and the defilements conjoined to them. Immediately following this Path he realizes the Fruit of Non-Returning.[1849]

Arahant

The meditator, established in this plane, endeavours further for the realization of the Fruit of Arahantship, and contemplates beginning with seeing rise and fall, as taught above. He practises in the way through which he saw the Path. Relying on the faculties, the powers and awakening factors, he comprehends the Truths. Thus he practises towards the abandoning of desire for material (existence) and immaterial (existence); and he abandons conceit, agitation, ignorance and other defilements without remainder.[1850] [458b] [Immediately following this Path][1851] the meditator realizes the Fruit of

---

[1845] Instead of 覺智 & 覺明 read 學智 & 學明.

[1846] Tibetan (198a): "'one endowed with (right) view,' rightly practising vision, accomplished in this Dhamma, one who sees the Dhamma, one who is possessed of learner's knowledge, one who is possessed of learner's higher knowledge, one who is rightly practising the method of the Dhamma; a noble one with penetrative wisdom; one who dwells having attained the door the Deathless.

After the first word "one endowed with vision" the Chinese adds: "one who is practising well; one who penetrates the Noble Doctrine; one who dwells having reached the door of the Deathless." This is repeated again at the end of this paragraph in somewhat different words. It is not found in the Pali and Tibetan and is due to a copyist copying marginal gloss into the text. Cf. S II 43: Yato kho bhikkhave ariyasāvako evaṃ paccayaṃ pajānāti, … paccayanirodhagāminiṃ paṭipadaṃ pajānāti, ayaṃ vuccati bhikkhave ariyasāvako diṭṭhisampanno iti pi, dassanasampanno iti pi, āgato imaṃ saddhammaṃ iti pi, passati imaṃ saddhammaṃ iti pi, sekhena ñāṇena sammanāgato iti pi, sekhāya vijjāya samannāgato iti pi, dhammasotaṃ samāpanno iti pi, ariyo nibbedhikapañño iti pi, amatadvāraṃ āhacca tiṭṭhati iti pī ti.

[1847] Cf. Dhp 178: Paṭhaviyā ekarajjena, saggassa gamanena vā / sabbalokādhipaccena, sotāpattiphalaṃ varaṃ. The Tibetan has the second pada as "than oneself going to heaven" bde 'gror bdag nyid bgrod phyir

[1848] Paṭis II 94: Sakadāgāmimaggena oḷārikaṃ kāmarāgasaññojanaṃ paṭighasaññojanaṃ, imāni dve saññojanāni pahīyanti, oḷāriko kāmarāgānusayo paṭighānusayo, ime dve anusayā byantihonti.

[1849] Ibid. 94–5: Anāgāmimaggena aṇusahagataṃ kāmarāgasaññojanaṃ paṭighasaññojanaṃ, imāni dve saññojanāni pahīyanti, aṇusahagato kāmarāgānusayo paṭighānusayo, ime dve anusayā byantihonti.

[1850] Ibid. 95: Arahattamaggena rūparāgo arūparāgo māno uddhaccaṃ avijjā—imāni pañca saññojanāni pahīyanti, mānānusayo bhavarāgānusayo avijjānusayo—ime tayo anusayā byantihonti. Evaṃ saññojanāni pahīyanti, anusayā byantihonti.

[1851] The Tibetan, as in the two preceding paragraphs, has "Immediately following that path, he realizes Arahantship. He reviews the Path; he reviews the Fruit, Nibbāna, and he reviews the abandoned defilements.

That bhikkhu is an Arahant, one who has eradicated the taints, has done what there is to do, has fully lived [the Holy Life], has laid down the burden, has reached the true goal, has destroyed the fetter of existence, and is liberated by right knowledge.[1852]

He has abandoned five factors and is endowed with six factors, has a single guard, is not fettered to death,[1853] has dispelled individual truths, has [totally] given up searching, has pure intentions, has tranquillized the bodily formation, has a well-liberated mind, and has well-liberated wisdom,[1854] has fully lived the Holy Life,[1855] is the greatest person, supreme person, one who has attained the supreme attainment.

"One who has removed the cross-bar," "one whose trench has been filled," "one whose pillar has been uprooted," "one who has no bolt,"[1856] "a noble one," "one whose banner has been lowered," "one who has put down the burden," "one who is detached," "the Recluse," "the Brahmin," "one who has bathed," "knower of the highest knowledges," "supreme Brahmin," "Arahant,"[1857] "crossed over," "released," "tamed," "appeased," "comforted"[1858]—these are all designations for the arahant.

Three Kinds of Stream-enterer

Here, if a Stream-enterer does not again endeavour further (uttari) in that birth, through three kinds of obtaining vision, he becomes one of the three kinds of Stream-enterer: the seven-birther (sattakkhattuparama), the clan-to-clanner (kolaṅkola), and the one-birther (ekabījin).

Accordingly, one with dull faculties is a seven-birther; one with middling faculties is a clan-to-clanner; and one with sharp faculties is a one-birther. 458b15

"Seven-birther [stream-enterer]": having gone seven times to a heavenly realm, and returning to

---

arahantship." de nas lam de'i de ma thag tu dgra bcom pa nyid mngon du byed do

[1852] D III 83: … bhikkhu arahaṃ khīṇāsavo vusitavā katakaraṇīyo ohitabhāro anuppattasadattho parikkhīṇabhavasaṃyojano sammadaññā vimutto … Cf. Kv 86.

[1853] 不為死所繫. This would be a misunderstanding of caturāpasseno, "one who has the fourfold support," see next note, as Māra's fetters, māra-pāsa, with passa in apassena being misunderstood as pāsa. The Tibetan translation skips this word.

[1854] A V 29f.: Dasa-y-ime, bhikkhave, ariyāvāsā, … bhikkhu pañcaṅgavippahīno hoti, chaḷaṅgasamannāgato, ekārakkho, caturāpasseno, paṇunnapaccekasacco, samavayasaṭṭhesano, anāvilasaṅkappo, passaddhakāyasaṅkhāro, suvimuttacitto, suvimuttapaññho. Kathañ ca, bhikkhave, bhikkhu pañcaṅgavippahīno hoti? Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhuno kāmacchando pahīno hoti, … vicikicchā pahīnā hoti. …

[1855] Tibetan corresponds to kevala-brahmacariya-vusitavā: "has fully lived the whole holy life," tshangs par spyod pa gcig tu gnas pa, which is an interpretation of kevalī vusitavā of Nidd I 21: … pañcaṅgavippahīno … suvimuttapaññho kevalī vusitavā uttamapuriso paramapuriso paramapattippatto and S III 61, A V 16: … bhikkhu … kevalī vusitavā uttamapurisoti vuccati. A-a V 3: Kevalīti kevalehi sakalehi guṇehi samannāgato. Vusitavāti vutthabrahmacariyavāso. M II 144, A I 162: Pahīnajātimaraṇo, brahmacariyassa kevalī. M-a III 396: Brahmacariyassa kevalī ti yaṃ brahmacariyassa kevalī sakalabhāvo, tena samannāgato, sakalacatumaggabrahmacariyavāsoti attho.

[1856] 此謂除瞋恚者。度岸者。離煩惱者。無結礙者。得聖翻者。除擔者。不相應者: "'one who has removed hatred,' 'one who has gone to the further shore,' 'one who has left the defilements,' 'one who is without obstruction, 'obtained the noble difference (? 翻),' 'has got rid of the burden,' and 'is detached.'" These are understandable mistranslations of the idiomatic Pali word-plays ukkhittapaligho saṅkiṇṇaparikho abbūḷhesiko niraggaḷo ariyo pannaddhajo pannabhāro visaññutto of M I 138, A III 84, Kv 86, Nidd I 21. The Tibetan translator also had difficulties: "… who has abandoned all affliction (pari-igha?), bravely crossed the expanse of affliction (?), left behind seeking, has no bolt, raised the victory banner of the noble one, has the burden of a leaf (!), and is detached." de ni yongs su 'khrug pa spangs pa dang dpa' klong 'khrugs pa la yang dag par rgal ba dang bag cha bas tshol ba med pa sgo gtan med pa 'phags pa'i rgyal mtshan bsgrengs pa lo'dab kyi khur…

[1857] M I 280: Ayaṃ vuccati, bhikkhave, bhikkhu samaṇo itipi brāhmaṇo itipi nhātako itipi vedagū itipi sottiyo itipi ariyo itipi arahaṃ itipi. A IV 144–45: Bhikkhuṃ samaṇo brāhmaṇo, sottiyo ceva nhātako; vedagū ariyo arahā … Cf. Th 221.

The Tibetan text has gtsang ma "clean, pure, immaculate" instead of "supreme brāhmaṇa." Both translators could not make sense of the term sottiya, = Skt śrotriya.

[1858] Paṭis I 131: ahañ c'amhi, loko ca atiṇṇo ahaṃ c'amhi mutto, loko ca amutto; ahañ c'amhi danto, loko ca adanto; ahaṃ c'amhi santo, loko ca asanto; ahaṃ c'amhi assattho, loko ca anassattho; ahaṃ c'amhi parinibbuto, loko ca aparinibbuto; pahomi khvāhaṃ tiṇṇo tāretuṃ, mutto mocetuṃ, danto dametuṃ, santo sametuṃ, assattho assāsetuṃ, parinibbuto pare ca parinibbāpetun ti. Ap I 126: santo ca samayissati. Cf. Cp-a 282: … tiṇṇo tāreyyaṃ mutto moceyyaṃ danto dameyyaṃ santo sameyyaṃ assattho assāseyyaṃ parinibbuto … Ud-a 133: ahaṃ sadevakaṃ lokaṃ tiṇṇo tāressāmi, mutto mocessāmi, danto damessāmi, santo samessāmi, assattho assāsessāmi, parinibbuto …

this [world], he makes an end to suffering.

"Clan-to-clanner stream-enterer": having gone to a family two or three times, he makes an end of suffering.

"One-birther stream-enterer": having produced (rebirth in) a human existence, he makes an end of suffering.[1859]

Rebirth of Once-Returner & Non-Returner

If a Once-Returner does not endeavour further in this birth, having returned to this world once, he makes an end of suffering.[1860]

If a Non-Returner does not further endeavour in this birth, having passed away from here, he is born in a Pure Abode.[1861]

Five Kinds of Non-Returner

458b20 Because of distinction of faculties, and through five kinds of obtaining vision, there are five kinds of Non-Returners:[1862] one who attains Nibbāna in the interval (antarā-parinibbāyin), one who attains Nibbāna upon landing (upahacca-parinibbāyin), one who attains Nibbāna without exertion (asaṅkhāra-parinibbāyin), one who attains Nibbāna with exertion (sasaṅkhāra-parinibbāyin), one who goes upstream, to Akaniṭṭha heaven (uddhaṃsoto-akaniṭṭhagāmin).

Here, "one who attains Nibbāna in the interval" is one who immediately [after having arisen or] not yet having reached the middle of the life span, generates the noble path for the abandoning of the remaining fetters.[1863]

"One who attains Nibbāna upon landing" is one who, having gone beyond the middle of his life-span, generates the Noble Path for the abandoning of the remaining fetters.

"One who attains Nibbāna without exertion" is one who without exertion generates the Noble Path for abandoning the remaining fetters.

"One who attains Nibbāna with exertion" is one who with exertion generates the Noble Path for [1859] A I 233, A IV 380: So tiṇṇaṃ saṃyojanānaṃ parikkhayā sattakkhattuparamo hoti. Sattakkhattuparamaṃ deve ca manusse ca sandhāvitvā saṃsaritvā dukkhassantaṃ karoti. So tiṇṇaṃ saṃyojanānaṃ parikkhayā kolaṃkolo hoti, dve vā tīṇi vā kulāni sandhāvitvā saṃsaritvā dukkhassantaṃ karoti. So tiṇṇaṃ saṃyojanānaṃ parikkhayā ekabījī hoti, ekaṃyeva mānusakaṃ bhavaṃ nibbattetvā dukkhassantaṃ karoti. Cf. Pugg 16.

---

Vism XXIII.55/p.709: Visesato panettha paṭhamamaggapaññaṃ tāva bhāvetvā mandāya vipassanāya āgato mudindriyopi sattakkhattuparamo nāma hoti, sattasugatibhave saṃsaritvā dukkhassantaṃ karoti. Majjhimāya vipassanāya āgato majjhimindriyo kolaṃkolo nāma hoti, dve vā tīṇi vā kulāni sandhāvitvā saṃsaritvā dukkhassantaṃ karoti. Tikkhāya vipassanāya āgato tikkhindriyo ekabījī nāma hoti, ekaññeva mānusakaṃ bhavaṃ nibbattetvā dukkhassantaṃ karoti.

Peṭ 178: Ugghaṭitaññū tikkhindriyo ca tato vipañcitaññū mudindriyo tato mudindriyehi neyyo. Tattha ugghaṭitaññū tikkhindriyatāya dassanabhūmimāgamma sotāpattiphalaṃ pāpuṇāti, ekabījako bhavati. Ayaṃ paṭhamo sotāpanno. Vipañcitaññū mudūhi indriyehi dassanabhūmimāgamma sotāpattiphalaṃ pāpuṇāti, kolaṃkolo ca hoti. Ayaṃ dutiyo sotāpanno. Tattha neyyo dassanabhūmimāgamma sotāpattiphalaṃ pāpuṇāti, sattakkhattuparamo ca bhavati. Ayaṃ tatiyo sotāpanno.

S V 204: Saddhindriyaṃ … paññindriyaṃ. Imāni kho, bhikkhave, pañcindriyāni. Imesaṃ kho, bhikkhave, pañcannaṃ indriyānaṃ samattā paripūrattā arahaṃ hoti, tato mudutarehi antarāparinibbāyī hoti, tato mudutarehi upahaccaparinibbāyī hoti, tato mudutarehi asaṅkhāraparinibbāyī hoti, tato mudutarehi sasaṅkhāraparinibbāyī hoti, tato mudutarehi uddhaṃsoto hoti akaniṭṭhagāmī, tato mudutarehi sakadāgāmī hoti, tato mudutarehi ekabījī hoti, tato mudutarehi kolaṃkolo hoti, tato mudutarehi sattakkhattuparamo hoti, tato mudutarehi dhammānusārī hoti, tato mudutarehi saddhānusārī hotī.

Cf. A I 234; A IV 380; A V 119; Pp 16; Peṭ 30.

[1860] A I 233, Pp 16: So tiṇṇaṃ saṃyojanānaṃ parikkhayā rāgadosamohānaṃ tanuttā sakadāgāmī hoti sakid eva imaṃ lokaṃ āgantvā dukkhassa antaṃ karoti.

Tibetan: "… in this birth, when he passes away from here, having once returned here to human existence, he makes and end to suffering," 'di nas 'phos te mi'i nang 'dir lan cig 'ongs nas sdug bsngal mthar byed par 'gyur ro.

[1861] Cf. Pp 16: Idhekacco puggalo pañcannaṃ orambhāgiyānaṃ saṃyojanānaṃ parikkhayā opapātiko hoti, tattha parinibbāyī anāvattidhammo tasmā lokā, ayaṃ vuccati puggalo anāgāmī. D III 237: Pañca suddhāvāsā: avihā, atappā, sudassā, sudassī, akaniṭṭhā.

[1862] Tibetan (199a): "Through distinction of faculties, and final arrival, there are five kinds of non-returners" de der dbang po'i bye brag gis mthar thug pa rjes su thob pa rnam pa lngar 'gyur ro phyir mi 'ong ba lnga ni.

[1863] Lit. "… has not yet reached attachment immediately interval/in-between depending on the life span, generates …" 未至所著無間中間依壽命時為除殘結使. The Tibetan text skips over these explanations and continues at the 24 kinds of non-returners.

abandoning the remaining fetters.

"One who goes upstream, to Akaniṭṭha" is one who from Aviha goes to Atappa; from Atappa goes to Sudassa; from Sudassa goes to Sudassī; from Sudassī goes to Akaniṭṭha and in Akaniṭṭha generates the Noble Path for removing the remaining fetters.[1864] [458c]

The life-span in Aviha is ten thousand aeons; in Atappa, twenty thousand aeons; in Sudassa, forty thousand aeons; in Sudassī, eighty thousand aeons; and in Akaniṭṭha, one hundred and sixty thousand aeons.[1865]

In four planes there are five persons. In Akaniṭṭha, which is without the one goes upstream, there are four persons. Thus there are twenty-four persons.

The Arahant

Because the Arahant has cut off all defilements without remainder, there is no cause of further existence. There being no cause, the arahant, having rejected life and body, exhausts the life-force (āyusaṅkhāra)—this is the abandoning of suffering. The non-arising of other suffering—this is the end of suffering.[1866]

Therefore these verses are taught:

> As, when a hammer strikes iron, > of the sparks that spread,
> enter water (jala), and gradually quench, > the destination can not be known.
>
> Thus, of the rightly liberated ones, > who crossed the bondage and torrent of sensuality,

[1864] D III 237: Pañca anāgāmino: antarā-parinibbāyī, upahaccaparinibbāyī, asaṅkhāra-parinibbāyī, sasaṅkhāra-parinibbāyī, uddhaṃsoto-akaniṭṭha-gāmī.

Pp 16–17: Katamo ca puggalo antarāparinibbāyī? Idhekacco puggalo pañcannaṃ orambhāgiyānaṃ saṃyojanānaṃ parikkhayā opapātiko hoti, tattha parinibbāyī anāvattidhammo tasmā lokā. So upapannaṃ vā samanantarā appattaṃ vā vemajjhaṃ āyuppamāṇaṃ ariyamaggaṃ sañjaneti upariṭṭhimānaṃ saṃyojanānaṃ pahānāya – ayaṃ vuccati puggalo "antarāparinibbāyī". Katamo ca puggalo upahaccaparinibbāyī? Idhekacco … lokā. So atikkamitvā vemajjhaṃ āyuppamāṇaṃ upahacca vā kālakiriyaṃ ariyamaggaṃ sañjaneti …. Katamo ca puggalo asaṅkhāraparinibbāyī? … So asaṅkhārena ariyamaggaṃ sañjaneti … Katamo ca puggalo sasaṅkhāraparinibbāyī? … So sasaṅkhārena ariyamaggaṃ sañjaneti … Katamo ca puggalo uddhaṃsoto akaniṭṭhagāmī? … So avihā cuto atappaṃ gacchati, atappā cuto sudassaṃ gacchati, sudassā cuto sudassiṃ gacchati, sudassiyā cuto akaniṭṭhaṃ gacchati; akaniṭṭhe ariyamaggaṃ sañjaneti ….

Cf. S-a III 1029–30 Anāgāmīsu āyuno majjhaṃ anatikkamitvā antarā va kilesa-parinibbānaṃ arahattaṃ patto antarā-parinibbāyī nāma. Majjhaṃ upahacca atikkamitvā patto upahacca-parinibbāyī nāma. Asaṅkhārena appayogena akilamanto sukhena patto asaṅkhāra-parinibbāyī nāma. Sasaṅkhārena sappayogena kilamanto dukkhena patto sasaṅkhāra-parinibbāyī nāma. Ime cattāro pañcasu pi suddh' āvāsesu labbhanti. Uddhaṃsoto-akaniṭṭha-gāmī ti ettha pana catukkaṃ veditabbaṃ. Yo hi avihato paṭṭhāya cattāro devaloke sodhetvā akaniṭṭhaṃ gantvā parinibbāyati, ayaṃ uddhaṃsoto-akaniṭṭha-gāmī nāma.

[1865] 萬劫, "ten-thousand aeons" is probably a misunderstanding of the Chinese translator of kappasahassa, "thousand aeons." According to the Vibhaṅga, the life-span in these heavens should be one, two, four, eight and sixteen thousand respectively; Vibh 425: Avihānaṃ devānaṃ kittakaṃ āyuppamāṇaṃ? Kappasahassaṃ. Atappānaṃ devānaṃ kittakaṃ āyuppamāṇaṃ? Dve kappasahassāni. Sudassānaṃ devānaṃ kittakaṃ āyuppamāṇaṃ? Cattāri kappasahassāni. Sudassīnaṃ devānaṃ kittakaṃ āyuppamāṇaṃ? Aṭṭha kappasahassāni. Akaniṭṭhānaṃ devānaṃ kittakaṃ āyuppamāṇaṃ? Soḷasa kappasahassāni.

[1866] Tibetan (199a): "The arahant: he has completely cut off all defilements without remainder; because there is no cause, there is no further existence. The arahant: he has exhausted the life-force, the life-span which is dependent upon existence—just this is the cessation of suffering. He is not born elsewhere —just this is the end of suffering." des na phyir mi 'ong ba nyi shu nyer bzhir 'gyur ro dgra bcom pa ni nyon mongs pa thams cad ma lus pa yang dag par bcad pa'i phyir yang srid med pa nyid de rgyu med pa'i phyir ro dgra bcom pa ni tshe'i dus ci srid par gnas shing tshe'i 'du byed yongs su zad nas 'di nyid sdug bsngal 'gags te gzhan du skye ba med do 'di nyid la sdug bsngal gyi mtha' zhes bya'o

Cf. Ud-a 431: Na hi khīṇāsavā aparikkhīṇe āyusaṅkhāre paresaṃ upavādādibhayena parinibbānāya cetenti ghaṭayanti vāyamanti, na ca paresaṃ pasaṃsādihetu ciraṃ tiṭṭhanti, atha kho saraseneva attano āyusaṅkhārassa parikkhayaṃ āgamenti. Yathāha: Nābhikaṅkhāmi maraṇaṃ, nābhikaṅkhāmi jīvitaṃ; / Kālañca paṭikaṅkhāmi, nibbisaṃ bhatako yathā ti. (Th 196, 606). Bhagavā pissa āyusaṅkhāraṃ oloketvā parikkhīṇabhāvaṃ ñatvā yassadāni tvaṃ, dabba, kālaṃ maññasī ti āha.

S V 263: Atha kho bhagavā cāpāle cetiye sato sampajāno āyusaṅkhāraṃ ossaji. … Tulamatulañca sambhavaṃ, bhavasaṅkhāramavassaji muni; / Ajjhattarato samāhito, abhindi kavacamivattasambhavanti.

and reached unshakeable happiness, the destination can not be known.[1867] 458c13

Gradual realization of the Fruit[1868]

Q. Now, there are teachers who say: "Gradually one develops the path, gradually one abandons the defilements, gradually one comprehends the Truths."

A. Through twelve, or through eight, or through four path knowledges one realises the fruit.

Flaw One

Q. What is there in this view [of gradual realization] that does not fit? 458c15

A. If one gradually develops [the path], gradually abandons the defilements, then one gradually realizes (sacchikaroti) through gradually realizing the fruit. This is acceptable because the fruit corresponds to the path. If so, then [this view] is acceptable. [And in the case of a] single fruit of stream-entry? If so, then it is not acceptable. [But if] the gradual development of the path is also the gradual abandoning of the defilements, then yes [it is acceptable].[1869]

Flaw Two

458c19 Again, there is a second flaw: If through the seeing of suffering, one sees the suffering that is abandoned, and the defilements that are abandoned, it is acceptable. Because having seen suffering, the suffering that is abandoned, and the defilements that have been abandoned, one realizes the fruit of stream-entry in four parts. Realization [in this way], is acceptable because one's efforts have been successful.

If it were acceptable thus, one would realise stream-entry in four parts, become a seven-birther in four parts, a clan-to-clanner in four parts, a one-birther in four parts, stay in the path in four parts[1870] and stay in the fruit in four parts—this does not fit. If it is not acceptable, [then the view that] through seeing suffering, one sees the suffering that is abandoned, and the defilements that are abandoned—this does not fit.[1871]

[1867] Ud 93: Ayoghanahatass'eva jalato jātavedasso / anupubbūpasantassa yathā na ñāyate gati, / evaṃ sammāvimuttānaṃ / kāmabandhoghatārinaṃ / paññāpetuṃ gati n'atthi pattānaṃ acalaṃ sukhan ti. The Chinese translator misunderstood jala, "blazing" as jala, "water," in the first pada of the first gātha.

Tibetan (199a): "As [the sparks from] a lump of iron in a blazing fire that is struck gradually quench, the destination is not known, so the person rightly liberated [from] the obstruction of the swamp-river of sensuality, by the attainment of the state, there is no certainty of destination."

Ud-a 435: … ayoghanahatassā ti ayo haññati etenāti ayoghanaṃ, kammārānaṃ ayokūṭaṃ ayomuṭṭhi ca. Tena ayoghanena hatassa pahatassa. Keci pana ayoghanahatassāti ghanaayopiṇḍaṃ hatassā ti atthaṃ vadanti. Eva-saddo cettha nipātamattaṃ. Jalato jātavedasoti jhāyamānassa aggissa … ayomuṭṭhikūṭādinā mahatā ayoghanena hatassa saṃhatassa, kaṃsabhājanādigatassa vā jalamānassa aggissa, tathā uppannassa vā saddassa anukkamena upasantassa suvūpasantassa dasasu disāsu na katthaci gati paññāyati paccayanirodhena appaṭisandhikaniruddhattā.

Cf. A IV 70: So pañcannaṃ orambhāgiyānaṃ saṃyojanānaṃ parikkhayā antarāparinibbāyī hoti. Seyyathā pi, bhikkhave, divasasantatte ayokapāle haññamāne papaṭikā nibbattitvā nibbāyeyya.

The Tibetan translation stops here and resumes at the "Planes" section at 459b17.

[1868] This discussion in the Vimuttimagga is based on the Anupubbābhisamayakathā section of the Kathāvatthu (Kv 212–220). Cf. Bapat, 1937 p. 120f.

EKS did not translate this whole section, noting: "The section preceding this, owing to unintelligibility, is untranslated." This translation was aided by a draft made by RB, who also found the text difficult to follow, which is understandable because the original Kathāvatthu discussion is also difficult to follow.

[1869] Compare the first part of the Anupubbābhisamayakathā. There the opponent answers both yes and no to the question as to whether abhisamaya is gradual for the first path, but not for the first fruit. In the latter case he denies that it is gradual. He answers yes and no in the first case because he believes that it is a single path and it consists of the succession of the four knowledges. The fruit however is just one of the four knowledges, i.e., the last (cf. Kv-a).

The Chinese text seems to be concerned with the issue of precisely this difference between the cases of magga and phala. Kv 212f.: Q. Anupubbābhisamayo ti? A. Āmantā. Q. Anupubbena sotāpattimaggaṃ bhāvetī ti? A. Na hevaṃ vattabbe. Q. Anupubbena sotāpattimaggaṃ bhāvetī ti? A. Āmantā. Q. Anupubbena sotāpattiphalaṃ sacchikarotī ti? A. Na hevaṃ vattabbe. Then similarly for the other four paths. (LC)

[1870] The variant reading is followed here. The Taisho text (458c24) omits "stands in the path(s)."

[1871] Kv 213–216: Sotāpattiphalasacchikiriyāya paṭipanno puggalo dukkhadassanena kiṃ jahatī ti? Sakkāyadiṭṭhiṃ,

Flaw Three

And again, there is a third flaw: If [the view that] through seeing suffering, one sees the suffering that is abandoned, and the defilements that are abandoned, is acceptable, then through that seeing of suffering, one would stand in the path of stream-entry in four parts. The four parts of faith practice or the four parts of Dhamma practice[1872] would be acceptable [while] not seeing the remaining three Truths. If this is acceptable, one stands in four paths of stream-entry, and there are four faith practices [and] there are four dhamma practices—this does not fit. [459a] If it is not acceptable, [then the view that] through seeing suffering, one sees the suffering that is abandoned, and the defilements that are abandoned—this too does not fit.

Fourth flaw

And again, there is a fourth flaw: If [the view that] through seeing the path one is a practitioner (paṭipannaka) and through seeing the path one stands in the fruit, is acceptable, then [the view that] through seeing suffering one is a practitioner, and through seeing [suffering] one stands in the fruit, would be acceptable. If it is acceptable that due to seeing one kind [of Truth] one is a practitioner and stands in the fruit, [then] there are many flaws herein—this does not fit. If it is not acceptable thus, [then the view that] through seeing the Path one is a practitioner and through seeing the Path one stands in the fruit—this too does not fit.[1873]

Fifth flaw

And again, there is a fifth flaw: If, through seeing the path, one realizes the fruit, [then] without having yet seen suffering, its origination, and its cessation, there is realization of the fruit. [If] this is acceptable [then] seeing suffering, its origination, and its cessation is senseless.[1874]

Sixth flaw

And again, there is a sixth flaw: If [the view that] through twelve or through eight or through four path knowledges there is realization of the fruit of stream-entry is acceptable, [then] through this realisation twelve or eight or four fruits of stream-entry would be acceptable, and there would be path knowledges vicikicchaṃ, sīlabbataparāmāsaṃ, tadekaṭṭhe ca kilese catubhāgaṃ jahatī ti. Catubhāgaṃ sotāpanno, catubhāgaṃ na sotāpanno, catubhāgaṃ sotāpattiphalappatto paṭiladdho adhigato sacchikato upasampajja viharati, kāyena phusitvā viharati, catubhāgaṃ na kāyena phusitvā viharati, catubhāgaṃ sattakkhattuparamo kolaṅkolo ekabījī buddhe aveccappasādena samannāgato, dhamme … pe … saṅghe … pe … ariyakantehi sīlehi samannāgato catubhāgaṃ na ariyakantehi sīlehi samannāgato ti? Na hevaṃ vattabbe.

---

[Kv rings the changes on this: seeing the other three truths, going to realization of the other three fruits, the appropriate defilements for each stage, the special qualities and variations of each stage. The sequence occurs previously with some variations in the closely related discussion at Kv 103ff.]

What Kv is saying is: Q. What does the individual on his way to the realization of the fruit of stream-entry abandon by seeing suffering ? A. [The individual on his way to the realization of the fruit of stream-entry] abandons the view of sakkāya, doubt, misapprehension of precepts and vows and the defilements that exist together with these in four parts by seeing suffering. Q. Does the stream-enterer [abandon] in four parts [by seeing suffering]? A. … Q. Does the stream-enterer not [abandon] in four parts [by seeing suffering]?

The implication is that if the four parts require four separate consciousnesses, then at the time of the first consciousness one either has a stream-enterer who has not abandoned the whole of doubt, etc. or one has a non-stream-enterer who has partially abandoned doubt, etc. (LC)

[1872] This would refer to the saddhānusārin and the dhammānusārin, who are practising towards the fruit of stream-entry. Cf. 458a01ff.

[1873] Kv 216–219: Q. Sotāpattiphalasacchikiriyāya paṭipanno puggalo dukkhaṃ dakkhanto paṭipannako ti vattabbo ti? A. Āmantā. Q. Dukkhe diṭṭhe phale ṭhito ti vattabbo ti? A. Na hevaṃ vattabbe. [Similarly for samudaya and nirodha.] Q. Sotāpattiphalasacchikiriyāya paṭipanno puggalo maggaṃ dakkhanto paṭipannako ti vattabbo, magge diṭṭhe phale ṭhito ti vattabbo ti? A. Āmantā. [Each of the first three pairs of questions are then asked again and their answer contrasted with that to the fourth. Then the four questions are asked again in negative format, receiving the equivalent answers.] Q. Sotāpattiphalasacchikiriyāya paṭipanno puggalo dukkhaṃ dakkhanto paṭipannako ti vattabbo, dukkhe diṭṭhe na vattabbaṃ phale ṭhito ti vattabbo ti? A. Āmantā. Q. Niratthiyaṃ dukkhadassanan ti? [Similarly for seeing arising and seeing cessation.]

[1874] This again concerns the point that in a four stage magga of the kind presented in Kv (as compared to the sixteen stages adopted by the Vaibhāṣikas) the last stage involves the seeing of the truth of the path and it is this that actually produce the fruit of stream-entry. The argument presented here is precisely that of the next section of Kv. If seeing suffering means that one is 'on the way' but when one has seen suffering one is not established in the fruit, then seeing suffering is useless (niratthiya). Similarly in the cases of seeing arising and seeing cessation. (LC) without fruits. If this were acceptable thus as basis, [then] through there being a flaw herein—this does not fit. And if it were acceptable thus, would there be realization of the fruit of stream-entry through twelve, or through eight, or through four path knowledges? This too does not fit.[1875]

Seventh flaw

And again, there is a seventh flaw. If [the view that] twelve, or eight, or four path knowledges produce a single fruit of stream-entry is acceptable, [then] this too does not fit [as] many objects (ārammaṇa) would produce one result, just as if many mango fruit [trees] were to produce a single fruit.

Objection

Q. If in a single knowledge, in a single moment (khaṇa), simultaneously, there is comprehension of the four Truths, [then] a single knowledge would become four graspings of the object. If through seeing [the Truth of] suffering one sees four Truths, then the four Truths become the Truth of suffering. If these two are senseless, then this [view] does not fit: "In a single moment, in a single knowledge, simultaneously, there is comprehension of four Truths."

A. It is not the case that a single knowledge becomes four graspings of the object, and it is also not the case that the four Truths become the Truth of Suffering. The meditator only [comprehends] the four Truths from the beginning; the various characteristics become one characteristic, through previous comprehension. 459a22

At this time, through the noble practice of the Truth of suffering, through penetration of its characteristics, there is penetration of four Truths. As regards their characteristics, the four Truths become, in a sense, one characteristic.

It is the same with the five aggregates: (their) different characteristics become one characteristic. Through previous comprehension of the aggregate of matter as impermanent, one has also seen the five aggregates as impermanent. One constantly sees impermanence in the non-material aggregates as well, that is, in all five aggregates. It is the same with the faculties and the elements. Thus it should be understood here.[1876]

Miscellaneous Topics

The miscellaneous topics (pakiṇṇaka dhamma) to be known here are: insight, thinking, rapture, feelings, planes (bhūmi), faculties, liberations, defilements, and the two attainments in concentration.

Insight

Herein, insight is of two kinds, namely, jhāna-insight and dry-insight (sukkha-vipassanā). [459b]

Q. What is jhāna-insight?

A. Having acquired concentration, one overcomes the hindrances by the power of concentration (samādhi-bala). Through analysing name (nāma) by way of the jhāna factors, one discerns matter. Preceded by serenity (samatha), one develops insight.

[1875] In Kv this corresponds to the section after the final "Objection and answer" section. Bapat seems to have missed it, perhaps because the order is different. The Vim (or Chinese) has logically moved the objection of the paravādin to the end so as to produce a list of seven flaws. The exponent of ekābhisamaya asks if the fruit of stream-entry is realized by means of four [separate] knowledges, to which the reply is affirmative. He then asks if there are four fruits of stream-entry. This again cannot be argued. The implication is again that the two answers are inconsistent.

Kv 218f.: Catūhi ñāṇehi sotāpattiphalaṃ sacchikarotī ti? Āmantā. Cattāri sotāpattiphalānī ti? Na hevaṃ vattabbe … Kv goes on to apply the same analysis with eight, twelve, 44 and 77 knowledges.

[1876] In the Kathāvatthu this objection and answer come after Flaw 5. The objector asks if all four truths are seen when suffering is seen. To this the exponent of ekābhisamaya replies that they are. The objector then asks if the truth of suffering is all four truths. This of course cannot be argued. The implication is that these two answers are inconsistent. So the exponent of ekābhisamaya asks if when the aggregate of materiality is seen, all five aggregates are seen. The answer has to be yes. So he then asks if the aggregate of materiality is all five aggregates. This of course cannot be argued. The implication is that if these two answers are not inconsistent in these cases, they cannot be in the case of the truths. (LC)

Kv 218: Q (of objector): Dukkhe diṭṭhe cattāri saccāni diṭṭhāni hontī ti? A. Āmantā. Q (of objector): Dukkhasaccaṃ cattāri saccānī ti? A. Na hevaṃ vattabbe … Q. Rūpakkhandhe aniccato diṭṭhe pañcakkhandhā aniccato diṭṭhā hontī ti? A. Āmantā. Q. Rūpakkhandho pañcakkhandhā ti? A. Na hevaṃ vattabbe … [similarly for the remaining aggregates, the 12 bases, the 18 elements and the 22 faculties.]

Dry-insight: One overcomes the hindrances through the power of analysis (vibhaṅga-bala?)[1877] Through analysing matter by way of the formations, one discerns name. One develops serenity preceded by insight.[1878]

Thinking

Thinking: When there is dry-insight, in the first jhāna, insight and the Path and Fruit are with thinking. In [the first] three jhānas[1879] insight as far as change-of-lineage (gotrabhū) is with thinking, and the Path and Fruit are without thinking.

In the plane with thinking (savitakka-bhūmi) the Path has eight Path factors. In the plane without thinking, excepting [right] intention (saṅkappa), there are seven factors.[1880]

Rapture

459b08 Rapture (pīti): When the dry-insight worker (sukkhavipassaka) obtains painful practice (dukkhapaṭipadā), insight [as far as] conformity-knowledge arises without pain (nidukkha?). Change-of-[1877] Cf. Paṭis I 97: Dvīhi balehīti dve balāni: samathabalaṃ, vipassanābalaṃ. Katamaṃ samathabalaṃ? Nekkhammavasena cittassekaggatā avikkhepo samathabalaṃ. … Katamaṃ vipassanābalaṃ? Aniccānupassanā vipassanābalaṃ. Dukkhānupassanā … The Vim, however, does not use the terms corresponding to samatha-bala (= 奢摩力) and vipassanā-bala (= 毘婆舍那力) but samādhi-bala (定力) and vibhaṅga-bala (分別力) or a term related to vibhaṅga (Vim 459b01–03). The Paṭis-a mentions that there is a variant reading samādhibalaṃ instead of samathabalaṃ in the above passage, Paṭis-a I 314: samādhibalanti pi pāṭho.

---

[1878] a. A II 157; Paṭis II 92–6: Idh' āvuso bhikkhu samathapubbaṅgamaṃ vipassanaṃ bhāveti, tassa samathapubbaṅgamaṃ vipassanaṃ bhāvayato maggo sañjāyati. So taṃ maggaṃ āsevati bhāveti bahulīkaroti, tassa taṃ maggaṃ āsevato bhāvayato bahulīkaroto saññojanāni pahīyanti, anusayā byantihonti. Puna ca paraṃ āvuso bhikkhu vipassanāpubbaṅgamaṃ samathaṃ bhāveti, tassa vipassanā-pubbaṅgamaṃ samathaṃ bhāvayato maggo sañjāyati. So taṃ maggaṃ āsevati … ; anusayā byantihonti … Kathaṃ samathapubbaṅgamaṃ vipassanaṃ bhāveti? Nekkhamma-vasena cittassa ekaggatā avikkhepo samādhi, tattha jāte dhamme aniccato anupassanaṭṭhena vipassanā, dukkhato anupassanaṭṭhena vipassanā, anattato anupassanaṭṭhena vipassanā. Iti paṭhamaṃ samatho, pacchā vipassanā; tena vuccati—samathapubbaṅgamaṃ vipassanaṃ bhāveti … Kathaṃ vipassanāpubbaṅgamaṃ samathaṃ bhāveti? Aniccato anupassanaṭṭhena vipassanā, dukkhato anupassanaṭṭhena vipassanā, anattato anupassanaṭṭhena vipassanā; tattha jātānaṃ dhammānañ ca vossaggārammaṇatā cittassa ekaggatā avikkhepo samādhi. Iti paṭhamaṃ vipassanā pacchā samatho; tena vuccati—vipassanā-pubbaṅgamaṃ samathaṃ bhāveti. Cf. M-a I 108. Idhekacco paṭhamaṃ upacārasamādhiṃ vā appanāsamādhiṃ vā uppādeti, ayaṃ samatho; so tañca taṃsampayutte ca dhamme aniccādīhi vipassati, ayaṃ vipassanā. Iti paṭhamaṃ samatho, pacchā vipassanā. Tena vuccati samathapubbaṅgamaṃ vipassanaṃ bhāvetī ti.

In the samatha-pubbaṅgama-vipassanā above the abandonment (pahāna) is of the five hindrances (pañca nīvaraṇā) beginning with sense-desire (kāmacchanda) by means of the first jhāna. In the vipassanā-pubbaṅgama-samatha above the abandonment (pahāna) is of all stain (sabbamala) by means of the concentration partaking of penetration (so sabbamalavirahito nibbedhabhāgiyo samādhi sesasamādhito adhikattā adhicittan ti vuccati—Paṭis-a I 228).

Sometimes the samatha in samatha-pubbaṅgama-vipassanā is mistakenly equated with that in vipassanā-pubbaṅgama-samatha because the word used in both instances is serenity (samatha). But they are different. While in samatha-pubbaṅgama-vipassanā, samatha of the first jhāna by way of suppression abandonment is meant, in vipassanā-pubbaṅgama-samatha, samatha of substitution abandonment is meant—Paṭis I 27: Vikkhambanappahānañ ca nīvaraṇānaṃ paṭhamajjhānaṃ bhāvayato, tadaṅgappahānañ ca diṭṭhigatānaṃ nibbedhabhāgiyaṃ bhāvayato (= Tadaṅgappahāṇañ ca diṭṭhigatānaṃ … vipassanāsampayuttaṃ samādhiṃ—Paṭis-a, I 122).

b. Nekkhamma is explained as kāmānaṃ nissaraṇaṃ: i. A III 245: Idha bhikkhave bhikkhuno kāmaṃ manasikaroto kāmesu cittaṃ na pakkhandati, nappasīdati na santiṭṭhati na vimuccati, nekkhammaṃ kho panassa manasikaroto nekkhamme cittaṃ pakkhandati pasīdati santiṭṭhati vimuccati. Tassa taṃ cittaṃ sukataṃ subhāvitaṃ suvuṭṭhitaṃ suvimuttaṃ suvisaṃyuttaṃ kāmehi, ye ca kāmapaccayā uppajjanti āsavā vighātapariḷāhā, mutto so tehi, na so taṃ vedanaṃ vediyati. Idam akkhātaṃ kāmānaṃ nissaranaṃ. ii. It 61: Kāmānam-etaṃ nissaraṇaṃ yad-idaṃ nekkhammaṃ.

c. Paṭis-a III 586: Vossaggārammaṇatā ti ettha vossaggo nibbānaṃ. Nibbānaṃ hi saṅkhatavossaggato pariccāgato vossaggo 'ti vutto, vipassanā ca taṃsampayuttadhammā ca nibbānaninnatāya ajjhāsayavasena nibbāṇe patiṭṭhitattā nibbānapatiṭṭhā nibbāṇārammaṇā. Patiṭṭhā 'pi, hi ālambīyatī 'ti ārammanaṃ nāma hoti. Nibbāṇe patiṭṭhanaṭṭhen' eva nibbāṇārammaṇā. Aññattha pāḷiyam 'pi hi "Patiṭṭhā ārammaṇan" 'ti vuccati, yath' āha: "Seyyathā 'pi āvuso nalāgāraṃ vā tiṇāgāraṃ vā sukkhaṃ kolāpaṃ terovassikaṃ puratthimāya ce 'pi disāya puriso ādittāya tiṇukkāya upasaṅkameyya, labhetha aggi otāraṃ, labhetha aggi ārammaṇaṃ?" 'ti ādi. Tasmā tattha jātānaṃ dhammānaṃ vossaggārammaṇatāya nibbāna-patiṭṭhābhāvena hetubhūtena uppādito yo cittassa ekaggatā-saṅkhāto upacārappaṇābhedo avikkhepo, so samādhī 'ti vipassanāto pacchā uppādito nibbedhabhāgiyo samādhi niddiṭṭho hoti. Tasmā yeva hi, Iti paṭhamaṃ vipassanā pacchā samatho 'ti vuttaṃ.

[1879] EKS had "in the third jhāna" but this is 於第三禪 (see Vim 459b11). "In three jhānas" is 於三禪 (see 459b05–06).

[1880] See Vism XXI.111–14.

lineage, the Path and the Fruit arise together with rapture.

When the dry-insight worker obtains pleasant practice (sukhapaṭipadā), in [the first] two jhānas, insight and the Path and Fruit arise together with rapture. In the third jhāna and in the fourth jhāna, insight and the Path and Fruit arise without rapture.

In the plane of rapture, Path and Fruit, and the seven awakening factors (bojjhaṅga) arise [together]. In the plane without rapture, excepting the awakening factor of rapture and the awakening factor of thinking, there are six awakening factors.[1881]

Feelings

Feelings: When the dry-insight worker obtains painful practice, insight as far as conformity-knowledge arise together with equanimity (upekkhā). Change-of-lineage and the Path and Fruit arise together with joy (somanassa).

When the dry-insight worker obtains pleasant practice, in [the first] three jhānas, insight and the Path and the Fruit arise together with joy. In the fourth jhāna, insight and the Path and Fruit arise together with equanimity.[1882]

Planes

There are two kinds of planes: plane of seeing (dassanabhūmi) and plane of development (bhāvanābhūmi).

Here, the Path of Stream-entry is the plane of seeing. The other three Paths and the four Fruits of recluseship are the plane of development. 459b18

One now sees what one has not seen before—this is "the plane of seeing."

One develops what one has seen thus—this is called "the plane of development."[1883]

[1881] This section on rapture and also the following one on feelings are probably corrupt. These four sections (i.e. these and the preceding two on insight and thinking) apply an analysis in term of the jhāna factors to insight and serenity. In accordance with the standard jhāna factor scheme, that the Vim also follows, rapture, pīti, is not present in the third and fourth jhānas and therefore "together with rapture" that the Chinese text has with the third and fourth jhānas can't be correct. The fact that the text does not simply have "the four jhānas arise together with rapture" and that "without rapture" is given in the next sentence also support this.

The Chinese text also uses the same character 喜 both for pīti, "rapture," and somanassa, "joy."

The "plane without rapture" is the nippītika-bhūmi, i.e. the third jhāna and above.

Cf. Vism XXI.112–114/p.666–67: Vipassanāniyamena hi sukkhavipassakassa uppannamaggopi, samāpattilābhino jhānaṃ pādakaṃ akatvā uppannamaggopi, paṭhamajjhānaṃ pādakaṃ katvā pakiṇṇakasaṅkhāre sammasitvā uppāditamaggopi paṭhamajjhānikāva honti. Sabbesu satta bojjhaṅgāni aṭṭha maggaṅgāni pañca jhānaṅgāni honti. Tesaṃ hi pubbabhāgavipassanā somanassasahagatāpi upekkhāsahagatāpi hutvā vuṭṭhānakāle saṅkhārupekkhābhāvaṃ patvā somanassasahagatā hoti. Pañcakanaye dutiyatatiyacatutthajjhānāni pādakāni katvā uppāditamaggesu yathākkameneva jhānaṃ caturaṅgikaṃ tivaṅgikaṃ duvaṅgikañca hoti. Sabbesu pana satta maggaṅgāni honti. Catutthe cha bojjhaṅgāni. Ayaṃ viseso pādakajjhānaniyamena ceva vipassanāniyamena ca hoti. Tesampi hi pubbabhāgavipassanā somanassasahagatāpi upekkhāsahagatāpi hoti. Vuṭṭhānagāminī somanassasahagatāva. Pañcamajjhānaṃ pādakaṃ katvā nibbattitamagge pana upekkhācittekaggatāvasena dve jhānaṅgāni bojjhaṅgamaggaṅgāni cha satta ceva. Ayampi viseso ubhayaniyamavasena hoti. Imasmiṃ hi naye pubbabhāgavipassanā somanassasahagatā vā upekkhāsahagatā vā hoti. Vuṭṭhānagāminī upekkhāsahagatāva. …

[1882] Here, in accordance with the jhāna-factor sequence (vitakka, pīti, sukha), and the start of this section, one would expect the feelings of pleasure (sukha), pain and neither-pleasure-nor-pain.

[1883] Cf. Vism XIV.6/p.439 … paṭhamamaggapaññā dassanabhūmi. Avasesamaggattayapaññā bhāvanābhūmī ti … Peṭ 130: Catasso ariyabhūmiyo, cattāri sāmaññaphalāni, tattha yo yathābhūtaṃ pajānāti, esā dassanabhūmi. Nett 8: Imāhi dvīhi paññāhi manasikārasampayuttassa yaṃ ñāṇaṃ uppajjati dassanabhūmiyaṃ vā bhāvanābhūmiyaṃ vā, ayaṃ bhavanāmayi paññā, parato ghosā sutamayi paññā, paccattasamuṭṭhitā yonisomanasikārā cintāmayi paññā, yaṃ parato ca ghosena paccattasamuṭṭhitena ca yonisomanasikārena ñāṇaṃ uppajjati, ayaṃ bhāvanāmayi paññā. Ibid. 14: … Tattha samudayo dvīsu pahiyyatī: dassanabhūmiyā ca bhāvanābhūmiyā ca. Dassanena tīṇi saṃyojanāni pahiyyanti …. Bhāvanāya satta saṃyojanāni pahiyyanti …. Ibid. 50: Dassanabhūmi niyāmāvakkantiyā padaṭṭhānaṃ. Bhāvanābhūmi uttarikānaṃ phalānaṃ pattiyā padaṭṭhānaṃ.

Tibetan (199a–b): "Therefore there are two Noble planes (ariyabhūmi). Here, the plane of seeing is the path for the fruit of stream-entry. The remaining three paths and the four fruits of recluseship are the path of development (bhāvanamagga). Here the three paths are the path for the fruit of once-returning, and the path for the fruit of non-returning and the path for the fruit of arahantship. The four fruits of recluseship are the fruit of stream-entry, the fruit of once-returning, the fruit of non-returning and the fruit of arahantship. Here, the seeing of truth not seen before is the plane of seeing; the development of what has been seen is the plane of development." In the next Again, there are two planes: the plane of the learner and the plane of the non-learner.

Here, the four Paths and the three fruits of recluseship are of the plane of the learner. The fruit of Arahantship is the plane of the non-learner. 459b20

Faculties

There are three supramundane faculties, namely, the "I-shall-know-what-is-not-known"-faculty (anaññātaññassāmītindriya), the perfect-knowledge-faculty (aññindriyaṃ) and the one-who-has perfectly-known-faculty (aññātāvindriyaṃ).

Here, the Stream-enterer's Path-knowledge—[the states] not known before one now will know, is the "'I shall-know-what-is-not-known'-faculty."

The three Path-knowledges and three Fruit-knowledges—having known states, one knows again—is the "perfect-knowledge-faculty."

The knowledge of Fruit of Arahantship—having known states completely (asesa)—is the "one-who-has perfectly-known-faculty."[1884]

The Three Liberations

459b25 As to the liberations: There are three liberations, namely, the signless liberation, the aspirationless liberation and the emptiness liberation.[1885]

According to the Path and conformity-knowledge: the not creating of a sign is the signless liberation. The not creating of an aspiration is the aspirationless liberation. The not creating of attachment is the emptiness liberation.[1886] paragraph the Tibetan translation, again lists the paths and fruits while the Chinese doesn't.

---

[1884] Cf. D III 219: Tīn' indriyāni. Anaññātaññassāmītindriyaṃ, aññindriyaṃ, aññātāvindriyaṃ. D-a III 1002: Anaññātaññassāmī t' indriyan ti: Ito pubbe aññātaṃ aviditaṃ dhammaṃ jānissāmī ti, paṭipannassa uppannaṃ indriyaṃ sotāpattimaggañāṇass' etaṃ adhivacanaṃ. Aññ'indriyan ti aññābhūtaṃ jānanabhūtaṃ indriyaṃ. Sotāpattiphalato paṭṭhāya chasu ṭhānesu ñāṇass' etaṃ adhivacanaṃ. Aññātāvindriyan ti aññātavīsu jānana-kicca-pariyosāna-pattesu dhammesu indriyaṃ. Arahattaphalass' etaṃ adhivacanaṃ. Peṭ 66: Tattha katamaṃ anaññātaññassāmītindriyaṃ? Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu anabhisametassa dukkhassa ariyasaccassa abhisamayāya chandaṃ janeti … padahati. Evaṃ catunnaṃ ariyasaccānaṃ kātabbaṃ. Tattha katamaṃ aññindriyaṃ? Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu idaṃ dukkhaṃ ariyasaccan-ti yathābhūtaṃ pajānāti, yā ca maggo, idaṃ aññindriyaṃ. Āsavakkhayā anāsavo hoti, idaṃ vuccati aññātāvindriyaṃ. (Cf. Nett 170.) Vibh-a 125: Anaññātaññassāmīti pavatte jānanalakkhaṇe indaṭṭhaṃ kāretīti anaññātaññassāmītindriyaṃ. Ñātānaṃyeva dhammānaṃ puna ājānane indaṭṭhaṃ kāretīti aññindriyaṃ. Aññātāvībhāve indaṭṭhaṃ kāretīti aññātāvindriyaṃ. S-a III 237: Anaññātaññassāmītindriyanti anamatagge saṃsāre ajānitapubbaṃ dhammaṃ jānissāmī ti paṭipannassa sotāpattimaggakkhaṇe uppannaṃ indriyaṃ. Aññindriyanti tesaṃyeva ñātadhammānaṃ ājānanākārena sotāpattiphalādīsu chasu ṭhānesu uppannaṃ indriyaṃ. Aññātāvindriyanti aññātāvīsu arahattaphaladhammesu uppannaṃ indriyaṃ. Tattha tattha tena tenākārena uppannassa ñāṇassevetaṃ adhivacanaṃ. Vism XVI.3/p.491, Vibh-a 125: pubbabhāge anaññātaṃ amataṃ padaṃ catusaccadhammaṃ vā jānissāmīti evaṃ paṭipannassa uppajjanato indriyaṭṭhasambhavato ca anaññātaññassāmītindriyanti vuttaṃ. Dutiyaṃ ājānanato indriyaṭṭhasambhavato ca aññindriyaṃ. Tatiyaṃ aññātāvino catūsu saccesu niṭṭhitaññāṇakiccassa khīṇāsavassa uppajjanato indriyaṭṭhasambhavato ca aññātāvindriyaṃ.

Tibetan: "Here, path knowledge of the fruit of stream entry, knowing the state (dhamma) not known before, is the 'I shall-know-what-is-not-known'-faculty. The knowledge of the three paths, and knowledge of the three fruits of recluseship, is the 'perfect-knowledge-faculty'; having known the states, one knows again. The knowledge of the arahant, by knowing states completely, is the 'one-who-has-known-faculty.'"

[1885] Paṭis II 35: Tayo' me bhikkhave vimokkhā. Katame tayo? Suññato vimokkho, animitto vimokkho, appaṇihito vimokkho.

[1886] Paṭis II 36: Idha bhikkhu araññagato vā rukkhamūlagato vā suññāgāragato vā iti paṭisañcikkhati suññamidaṃ attena vā attaniyena vā ti. So tattha abhinivesaṃ na karotīti suññato vimokkho. Ayaṃ suññato vimokkho. … So tattha nimittaṃ na karotīti animitto vimokkho. … So tattha paṇidhiṃ na karotīti appaṇihito vimokkho. … Paṭis-a III 553: Abhinivesaṃ na karotīti anattānupassanāvasena attābhinivesaṃ na karoti. Nimittaṃ na karotīti aniccānupassanāvasena niccanimittaṃ na karoti. Paṇidhiṃ na karotīti dukkhānupassanāvasena paṇidhiṃ na karoti. Ime tayo vimokkhā pariyāyena vipassanākkhaṇe tadaṅgavasenāpi labbhanti, nippariyāyena pana samucchedavasena maggakkhaṇeyeva.

Tibetan (199b): "As to the liberations: there are three, namely, the entrance of the signless liberation (vimokkhamukha), the entrance of the aspireless liberation, the entrance of the emptiness liberation. Here through the path and conformity knowledge there is no making of signs. Not making a sign is the entrance of the signless liberation. Not making an aspiration is the entrance of the aspireless liberation. Not making an attachment is the entrance of the emptiness liberation." For the three vimokkhamukha, see Nett 90 Tattha suññatavimokkhamukhaṃ paññākkhandho, animittavimokkhamukhaṃ samādhikkhandho, appaṇihitavimokkhamukhaṃ sīlakkhandho.

The Tibetan translation continues at the end of this section on liberations at 459c28.

Again, these three liberations are accomplished in different ways through contemplation (anupassanā, vipassanā); and they are accomplished in one way through attainment.

Q. How are these accomplished in different ways (magga, naya) through contemplation? [459c]

A. Through the contemplation of impermanence, there is the signless liberation. Through the contemplation of suffering, there is the aspirationless liberation. Through the contemplation of not-self, there is the emptiness liberation.[1887]

Q. How is there signless liberation through the contemplation of impermanence?

A. Through attending to impermanence and through [seeing] the destruction of the formations. The mind has great resolve. One obtains the faith faculty and the other four faculties consequentially to that (tadanvaya). One knows the sign according to reality (yathābhūta) and consequentially to that the [knowledge of the] impermanence of all formations arises and causes the arising of fear of the sign [of the formations]. 459c06 There is knowledge of occurrence (pavatta or uppāda) from the sign of the formations. The mind emerges from the sign and passes into the signless. Through the signless liberation the body attains freedom.[1888]

Thus there is signless liberation through the contemplation of impermanence.

Q. How is there aspirationless liberation through contemplation of suffering? 459c09

A. Through attending to suffering and through fear of formations, one causes the mind to emerge. The mind has great tranquillity. One obtains the concentration faculty and the four other faculties consequentially to that. One knows occurrence as it is, and, consequentially to that, all formations are seen as suffering. Through fear of occurrence one causes the arising of knowledge of occurrence. The mind emerges from occurrence and passes into non-occurrence. Through the aspirationless liberation the body attains freedom.

Thus there is aspirationless liberation through the contemplation of suffering. 459c14

Q. How is there the emptiness liberation through contemplation of not-self?

A. Attending to not-self makes manifest the emptiness of the formations. The mind has great disenchantment.[1889] One obtains the wisdom faculty and the four other faculties consequentially to that. One knows the sign and occurrence as it is and consequentially to that all phenomena (dhamma) are seen as not-self. Through fear one causes the arising of the sign and occurrence. Depending on the sign and occurrence, mere knowledge arises. The mind separates from the sign and occurrence and passes into the signless, non-occurrence, cessation, Nibbāna. Through the emptiness liberation the body attains freedom.

Thus there is the emptiness liberation through the contemplation of not-self.

Thus these three liberations are accomplished in different ways through contemplation.[1890]

[1887] Paṭis II 58: Aniccato manasikaronto adhimokkhabahulo animittaṃ vimokkhaṃ paṭilabhati. Dukkhato manasikaronto passaddhibahulo appaṇihitaṃ vimokkhaṃ paṭilabhati. Anattato manasikaronto vedabahulo suññataṃ vimokkhaṃ paṭilabhati.

[1888] Because the signless here is Nibbāna, this can't refer to the deliverance from the form-body, rūpa-kāya. It would refer to the deliverance from the name-body, nāma-kāya or from the kilesa-kāya. Cf. S-a I 278: Ubhatobhāgavimuttāti dvīhi bhāgehi vimuttā, arūpāvacarasamāpattiyā rūpakāyato vimuttā, aggamaggena nāmakāyato ti. Cf. Abhidh-a 190, D-a 514: Rūpakāyato avimuttattā. Tañhi kilesakāyato va vimuttaṃ, na rūpakāyato; tasmā tato vuṭṭhāya arahattaṃ patto ubhatobhāgavimutto nāma na hoti. Arūpāvacaraṃ pana nāmakāyato ca vimuttaṃ rūpakāyato cāti tadeva pādakaṃ katvā arahattaṃ patto ubhatobhāgavimutto hotī ti veditabbo.

[1889] 厭惡 corresponds to nibbidā. The Chinese translator apparently understood veda in vedabahulo (see next note) as saṃvega or as vedanā in the sense of painful feeling. The Pali commentaries explain veda as knowledge or joy: Paṭis-a III 561: Vedabahulan-ti anattānupassanāya bāhirakehi adiṭṭhaṃ gambhīraṃ anattalakkhaṇaṃ passato ñāṇabahulaṃ cittaṃ hoti. Atha vā sadevakena lokena adiṭṭhaṃ anattalakkhaṇaṃ diṭṭhan-ti tuṭṭhassa tuṭṭhibahulaṃ cittaṃ hoti.

[1890] Paṭis II 48–50: Aniccato manasikaroto adhimokkhabahulaṃ cittaṃ hoti. Dukkhato manasikaroto passaddhibahulaṃ cittaṃ hoti. Anattato manasikaroto vedabahulaṃ cittaṃ hoti. … Aniccato manasikaronto adhimokkhabahulo saddhindriyaṃ paṭilabhati. Dukkhato manasikaronto passaddhibahulo samādhindriyaṃ paṭilabhati. Anattato manasikaronto vedabahulo paññindriyaṃ paṭilabhati. … Aniccato manasikaroto adhimokkhabahulassa saddhindriyaṃ ādhipateyyaṃ hoti. Bhāvanāya cattārindriyāni tadanvayā honti, sahajātapaccayā honti, aññamaññapaccayā honti, nissayapaccayā honti, sampayuttapaccayā honti. Paṭivedhakāle paññindriyaṃ ādhipateyyaṃ hoti. Paṭivedhāya cattārindriyāni tadanvayā honti, … ekarasā honti. Ekarasaṭṭhena bhāvanā. Dassanaṭṭhena paṭivedho. Evaṃ paṭivijjhantopi bhāveti, bhāventopi paṭivijjhati. Dukkhato manasikaroto passaddhibahulassa samādhindriyaṃ ādhipateyyaṃ hoti. Bhāvanāya cattārindriyāni tadanvayā honti, … Anattato manasikaroto vedabahulassa paññindriyaṃ ādhipateyyaṃ hoti. …bhāvento pi paṭivijjhati.

Paṭis II 57: Aniccato manasikaroto khayato saṅkhārā upaṭṭhanti. Dukkhato manasikaroto bhayato saṅkhārā upaṭṭhanti.

Q. How are these three liberations attained in one way (magga, naya)? 459c22

A. Having attained the signless liberation, there is the attainment of three liberations. How?

When, through the signless a person's mind attains freedom, through the liberation from aspiration, and from attachment, his [mind] has [also] attained the aspirationless liberation, [and thus] the three liberations are attained. How? When, through the aspiration[less] his mind attains freedom, through the liberation from the sign, and from attachment, he [also] attains the emptiness liberation, [and thus] the three liberations are also attained. How? When, through [non-] attachment, his mind attains freedom, there is [also] liberation from the sign and from aspiration. Thus there is the attainment of the three liberations in in one way.[1891]

Q. What is the difference between liberation and the entrance into liberation (vimokkhamukha)?

A. Only Path-knowledge. The freedom from the defilements is called "liberation." In the sense of entry into the door of the Deathless [460a] it is called "entrance into liberation."

Again, liberation is only Path-knowledge; its object (ārammaṇa), which is Nibbāna—this is called "the entrance into liberation."[1892]

Anattato manasikaroto suññato saṅkhārā upaṭṭhanti.

Paṭis II 62f.: Aniccato manasikaronto nimittaṃ yathābhūtaṃ jānāti passati; tena vuccati sammādassanaṃ. Evaṃ tadanvayena sabbe saṅkhārā aniccato sudiṭṭhā honti. Ettha kaṅkhā pahīyati. Dukkhato manasikaronto pavattaṃ yathābhūtaṃ jānāti passati; tena vuccati sammādassanaṃ. Evaṃ tadanvayena sabbe saṅkhārā dukkhato sudiṭṭhā honti. Ettha kaṅkhā pahīyati. Anattato manasikaronto nimittañ ca pavattañ ca yathābhūtaṃ jānāti passati; tena vuccati sammādassanaṃ. Evaṃ tadanvayena sabbe dhammā anattatosudiṭṭhā honti. Ettha kaṅkhā pahīyati.

Paṭis II 63–64: Aniccato manasikaroto nimittaṃ bhayato upaṭṭhāti. Dukkhato manasikaroto pavattaṃ bhayato upaṭṭhāti. Anattato manasikaroto nimittañ ca pavattañ ca bhayato upaṭṭhāti. … Aniccato manasikaroto nimittā cittaṃ vuṭṭhāti, animitte cittaṃ pakkhandati. Ḍukkhato manasikaroto pavattā cittaṃ vuṭṭhāti, appavatte cittaṃ pakkhandati. Anattato manasikaroto nimittā ca pavattā ca cittaṃ vuṭṭhāti, animitte appavatte nirodhe nibbānadhātuyā cittaṃ pakkhandati. Paṭis I 66: Uppādā vuṭṭhahitvā anuppādaṃ pakkhandatīti—gotrabhu. Pavattā vuṭṭhahitvā appavattaṃ pakkhandatīti – gotrabhu. Nimittā … animittaṃ … Āyūhanā … anāyūhanaṃ … Paṭisandhiyā … appaṭisandhiṃ … Gatiyā … agatiṃ … Nibbattiyā … anibbattiṃ … Upapattiyā … anupapattiṃ … Jātiyā … ajātiṃ … Jarāya … ajaraṃ … Byādhimhā … abyādhiṃ … Maraṇā … amataṃ … Sokā … asokaṃ … Paridevā … aparidevaṃ … Upāyāsā … anupāyāsaṃ … Bahiddhā saṅkhāranimittā vuṭṭhahitvā nirodhaṃ nibbānaṃ pakkhandatīti – gotrabhu.

[1891] This is a tentative translation as the Chinese text is very cryptic here and quite hard to follow. Probably the Chinese translator rendered both ablatives ("from") and instrumentals ("through") as 以, which is normally an instrumental. The Paṭisambhidā parallel (Paṭis II 67–8) states that there are three liberations in one moment in the sense of combining: "When paying attention to impermanence, one is liberated from the sign—(this is) the signless liberation. One has no desire for what one has been released from—(this is) the aspirationless liberation. One is empty of what one does not desire—(this is) the emptiness liberation. There is signlessness through the sign one is empty of—this is the signless liberation." (And so on for the other liberations.)

Paṭis II 67–8: Kathaṃ samodhānaṭṭhena adhigamanaṭṭhena paṭilābhaṭṭhena paṭivedhaṭṭhena sacchikiriyaṭṭhena phassanaṭṭhena abhisamayaṭṭhena tayo vimokkhā ekakkhaṇe honti? Aniccato manasikaronto nimittā muccatīti - animitto vimokkho. Yato muccati, tattha na paṇidahatīti - appaṇihito vimokkho. Yattha na paṇidahati, tena suññoti - suññato vimokkho. Yena suñño, tena nimittena animittoti - animitto vimokkho. Evaṃ samodhānaṭṭhena adhigamanaṭṭhena paṭilābhaṭṭhena paṭivedhaṭṭhena sacchikiriyaṭṭhena phassanaṭṭhena abhisamayaṭṭhena tayo vimokkhā ekakkhaṇe honti. …

[1892] Nidd II-a 108: Taṃ panesa ce santipadaṃ nibbānaṃ santato passati, sabbasaṅkhārapavattaṃ vissajjetvā nibbānaninnaṃ pakkhandaṃ hoti. No ce nibbānaṃ santato passati, punappunaṃ aniccan-ti vā dukkhan-ti vā anattā ti vā tividhānupassanāvasena saṅkhārārammaṇameva hutvā pavattati. Evaṃ tiṭṭhamānañca etaṃ tividhavimokkhamukhabhāvaṃ āpajjitvā tiṭṭhati. Tisso hi anupassanā tīṇi vimokkhamukhānī ti vuccanti. Evaṃ aniccato manasikaronto adhimokkhabahulo animittaṃ vimokkhaṃ paṭilabhati, dukkhato manasikaronto passaddhibahulo appaṇihitaṃ vimokkhaṃ paṭilabhati, anattato manasikaronto vedabahulo suññataṃ vimokkhaṃ paṭilabhati. Ettha ca animitto vimokkho ti animittākārena nibbānaṃ ārammaṇaṃ katvā pavatto ariyamaggo. So hi animittāya dhātuyā uppannattā animitto, kilesehi ca vimuttattā vimokkho. Eteneva nayena appaṇihitākārena nibbānaṃ ārammaṇaṃ katvā pavatto appaṇihito, suññatākārena nibbānaṃ ārammaṇaṃ katvā pavatto suññato ti veditabbo. Paṭis II 68: Suññato vimokkho, animitto vimokkho, appaṇihito vimokkho. … ayaṃ appaṇihito vimokkho. ayaṃ vimokkho. Ye tattha jātā anavajjā kusalā bodhipakkhiyādhammā, idaṃ mukhaṃ. Yaṃ tesaṃ dhammānaṃ ārammaṇaṃ nirodho nibbānaṃ, idaṃ vimokkhamukhaṃ. Vimokkhañca mukhañca vimokkhamukhaṃ, idaṃ vimokkhamukhaṃ.

LC: "For Buddhaghosa, the three vimokkhas are names for the ariyamagga (Vism 658: ettha ca animitto vimokkho ti animittākārena nibbānaṃ ārammaṇaṃ katvā pavatto ariyamaggo). The three vimokkhamukha are the three kinds of insight contemplation (Vism 657: tatr'idaṃ tividhānupassanāvasena pavattanato tiṇṇaṃ indriyānaṃ ādhipateyyavasena tividhavimokkhamukhabhāvaṃ āpajjati nāma). That seems to be the initial position in Paṭis (Paṭis II 48: tīṇi kho pan'imāni vimokkhamukhāni lokaniyyānāya saṃvattanti). But in the passage we have above mukha (either 'entrance' or 'culmination' or both) means the bodhipakkhiyadhamma at the moment of the maggacitta. Nibbāna which is the object of the maggacitta is the vimokkhamukha. Vimokkhamukha is understood by Paṭis-a as a kammadhāraya

Hundred thirty-four Defilements

There are one hundred and thirty-four defilements (kilesa). They are the three roots of unwholesomeness, the three searches, the four taints, the four knots, the four torrents, the four yokes, the four clingings, the four kinds of going the wrong way, the five kinds of meanness, the five hindrances, the six roots of dispute, the seven latent tendencies, the eight worldly conditions, the nine conceits, the ten grounds for defilements, the ten courses of unwholesome action, the ten fetters, the ten wrongnesses, the twelve perversions, the twelve arisings of unwholesome consciousness.

Three Roots of Unwholesomeness

The three roots of unwholesomeness (akusalamūla) are greed, hatred, and delusion.[1893]

[Of these three,] hatred is attenuated by two Paths. It is destroyed without remainder by the Path of Non-Returning. Greed and delusion are attenuated by three Paths. They are abandoned without remainder by the Path of Arahantship.

Three Searches

The three searches (esanā) are the search for sensual pleasure, search for existence, and search for the holy life.[1894]

Of these three, the search for the holy life is abandoned without remainder by the Path of Stream-entry. The search for pleasure is abandoned by the Path of Non-Returning. And the search for existence is abandoned by the Path of Arahantship.

Four Taints

The four taints are the taint of sensual desire, taint of existence, taint of views, and the taint of ignorance.[1895]

Here, the taint of views is abandoned by the Path of Stream-entry; the taint of sensual desire is abandoned by the Path of Non-Returning; the taints of existence and ignorance are abandoned by the Path of Arahantship.[1896] compound here – the emancipation which is supreme. It is difficult to be quite sure as to what is intended in Paṭis, but given its love of wordplay and its tendency to explain in terms of multiple levels, I would suppose that it intends to suggest two levels of interpretation. On one level the vimokkhamukha are the stage immediately prior to the path and the vimokkha are precisely the path. On another level the vimokkhas arise as the path at that moment and the vimokkhamukha is the object of the path at that moment i.e. Nibbāna which is both the exit from the world and the supreme emancipation. The Chinese text here seems to have two alternative explanations, but it is not clear to me if they can be identified with those in Paṭis."

---

Cf. M-a II 354, S-a III 99: Animittā cetovimutti nāma terasa dhammā: vipassanā, cattāro āruppā, cattāro maggā, cattāri ca phalānīti. Tattha vipassanā niccanimittaṃ sukhanimittaṃ attanimittaṃ ugghāṭetīti animittā nāma. Cattāro āruppā rūpanimittassa abhāvena animittā nāma. Maggaphalāni nimittakaraṇānaṃ kilesānaṃ abhāvena animittāni. Nibbānampi animittameva, taṃ pana cetovimutti na hoti, tasmā na gahitaṃ. Atha kasmā suññatā cetovimutti na gahitāti? Sā, suññā rāgenāti-ādivacanato sabbattha anupaviṭṭhāva, tasmā visuṃ na gahitā. Ekatthāti ārammaṇavasena ekatthā. Appamāṇaṃ ākiñcaññaṃ suññataṃ animittanti hi sabbānetāni nibbānasseva nāmāni. Iti iminā pariyāyena ekatthā. Aññasmiṃ pana ṭhāne appamāṇā honti, aññasmiṃ ākiñcaññā aññasmiṃ suññatā aññasmiṃ animittāti iminā pariyāyena nānābyañjanā.

[1893] D III 214: Tīṇi akusalamūlāni: lobho akusala-mūlaṃ, doso akusala-mūlaṃ, moho akusala-mūlaṃ. A-a II 317: akusalamūlānīti akusalānaṃ mūlāni, akusalāni ca tāni mūlāni cāti vā akusalamūlāni.

[1894] D III 216: Tisso esanā: kāmesanā, bhavesanā, brahmacariyesanā.

[1895] D II 81, 84, 91, 123, 126: Paññāparibhāvitaṃ cittaṃ sammad eva āsavehi vimuccati, seyyathīdaṃ kāmāsavā bhavāsavā, diṭṭhāsavā, avijjāsavā. Dhs 195, par. 1096: Cattāro āsavā—kāmāsavo, bhavāsavo, diṭṭhāsavo, avijjāsavo. Nett 116: Tassa evaṃganthitā kilesā āsavanti. Kuto ca vuccati āsavantīti? Anusayato vā pariyuṭṭhānato vā. Tattha abhijjhākāyaganthena kāmāsavo, byāpādakāyaganthena bhavāsavo, parāmāsakāyaganthena diṭṭhāsavo, idaṃsaccābhinivesakāyaganthena avijjāsavo. D III 216: Tayo āsavā. Kāmāsavo, bhavāsavo, avijjāsavo.

[1896] Paṭis I 94: Kāmāsavo, bhavāsavo, diṭṭhāsavo, avijjāsavo. Katthete āsavā khīyanti? Sotāpattimaggena anavaseso diṭṭhāsavo khīyati, apāyagamanīyo kāmāsavo khīyati, apāyagamanīyo bhavāsavo khīyati, apāyagamanīyo avijjāsavo khīyati. Etthete āsavā khīyanti. Sakadāgāmimaggena oḷāriko kāmāsavo khīyati, tadekaṭṭho bhavāsavo khīyati, tadekaṭṭho avijjāsavo khīyati. Etthete āsavā khīyanti. Anāgāmimaggena anavaseso kāmāsavo khīyati, tadekaṭṭho bhavāsavo khīyati, tadekaṭṭho avijjāsavo khīyati. Etthete āsavā khīyanti. Arahattamaggena anavaseso bhavāsavo khīyati, anavaseso avijjāsavo khīyati. Etthete āsavā khīyanti.

Four Knots

The four knots (gantha) are the body-knot of covetousness, the body-knot of ill-will, the body-knot of holding on to precepts and observances and the body-knot of the attachment "this is the truth."[1897]

Here, the body-knot of holding on to precepts and observances and the body-knot of attachment "this is the truth" are abandoned by the Path of Stream-entry. The body-knot of ill-will is abandoned by the Path of Non-Returning. The body-knot of covetousness is abandoned by the Path of Arahantship.

Four Torrents and Four Yokes

The four torrents (ogha) are the torrent of sensual desire, the torrent of existence, the torrent of views and the torrent of ignorance.[1898] 460a20

The four yokes (yoga) are the yoke of sensual desire, the yoke of existence, the yoke of views and the yoke of ignorance.[1899]

These are abandoned as it was taught above (at the four taints).[1900]

Four Clingings

The four clingings are the clinging to sensual desire, clinging to views, clinging to precepts and observances, and clinging to the doctrine of a self.[1901]

Here, three clingings are abandoned by the Path of Stream-entry. The clinging to sensual desire is abandoned by the Path of Arahantship.[1902]

Four Kinds of Going the Wrong Way

The four kinds of going the wrong way are going the wrong way of desire, going the wrong way of anger, going the wrong way of fear, and going the wrong way of delusion.[1903]

These four are abandoned by the Path of Stream-entry.

[1897] D III 230: Cattāro ganthā: abhijjhā kāya-gantho, vyāpādo kāya-gantho, sīlabbata-parāmāso kāyo-gantho, idaṃ-saccābhiniveso kāya-gantho. D-a III 1024: Ganthana-vasena ganthā. Vaṭṭasmiṃ nāma-kāyañ c'eva rūpa-kāyañ ca ganthati bandhati palibuddhatī ti kāya-gantho. Idaṃ saccābhiniveso ti: Idam eva saccaṃ mogham aññan ti, evaṃ pavatto diṭṭhi-niveso. Nett 115 (cf. Peṭ 244): Paṭhame yoge ṭhito abhijjhāya kāyaṃ ganthati, ayaṃ vuccati abhijjhākāyagantho; dutiye yoge ṭhito byāpādena kāyaṃ ganthati, ayaṃ vuccati byāpādakāyagantho; tatiye yoge ṭhito parāmāsena kāyaṃ ganthati, ayaṃ vuccati parāmāsakāyagantho; catutthe yoge ṭhito idaṃsaccābhinivesena kāyaṃ ganthati, ayaṃ vuccati idaṃsaccābhinivesakāyagantho. Paṭis-a II 415: Nāmakāyaṃ gantheti cutipaṭisandhivasena vaṭṭasmiṃ ghaṭetīti kāyagantho. Nidd I 246: … Attano diṭṭhiyā rāgo abhijjhā kāyagantho, paravādesu āghāto appaccayo byāpādo kāyagantho, attano sīlaṃ vā vataṃ vā sīlabbataṃ vā parāmāso sīlabbataparāmāso kāyagantho, attano diṭṭhi idaṃsaccābhiniveso kāyagantho. Nidd-a II 349: Attano diṭṭhiyā rāgo abhijjhākāyaganthoti sayaṃ gahitadiṭṭhiyā rañjanasaṅkhāto rāgo abhijjhā kāyagantho. Paravādesu āghāto appaccayoti paresaṃ vādapaṭivādesu kopo ca atuṭṭhākāro ca byāpādo kāyagantho. Attano sīlaṃ vā vataṃ vāti sayaṃ gahitamethunaviratisaṅkhātaṃ sīlaṃ vā govatādivataṃ vā. Sīlabbataṃ vāti tadubhayaṃ vā. Parāmāsoti iminā suddhītiādivasena parato āmasati. Attano diṭṭhi idaṃsaccābhiniveso kāyaganthoti sayaṃ gahitadiṭṭhiṃ idameva saccaṃ moghamaññanti ayoniso abhiniveso idaṃsaccābhiniveso kāyagantho. Ganthā tassa na vijjantīti tassa khīṇāsavassa dve diṭṭhiganthā sotāpattimaggena na santi. Byāpādo kāyagantho anāgāmimaggena. Abhijjhā kāyagantho arahattamaggena.

[1898] D III 230: Cattāro oghā: kāmogho, bhavogho, diṭṭhogho, avijjogho.

[1899] D III 230: Cattāro yogā: kāma-yogo, bhava-yogo, diṭṭhi-yogo, avijjā-yogo.

[1900] The Tibetan (200b) has "… these are destroyed in the same manner as the four taints."

[1901] D III 230: Cattāri upādānāni: kāmūpādānaṃ, diṭṭhūpādānaṃ, sīlabbatūpādānaṃ, attavādūpādānaṃ.

[1902] The Tibetan (200b) has a different explanation, which can't be correct because attavādupādāna is abandoned at stream-entry: "Two clingings are destroyed by the path of stream-entry, clinging to sensual-desire is destroyed by the path of non-returning, clinging to the doctrine of a self is destroyed by the path of arahantship."

Cf. Vism XVII 245/p.570, Dhs-a 386: Imāni pana upādānāni kilesapaṭipāṭiyāpi āharituṃ vaṭṭati maggapaṭipāṭiyāpi. Kilesapaṭipāṭiyā kāmupādānaṃ catūhi maggehi pahīyati, sesāni tīṇi sotāpattimaggena. Maggapaṭipāṭiyā sotāpattimaggena diṭṭhupādānādīni pahīyanti, catūhi maggehi kāmupādānanti. Vibh-a 182: Diṭṭhupādānādīni cettha paṭhamaṃ pahīyanti sotāpattimaggavajjhattā. Kāmupādānaṃ pacchā arahattamaggavajjhattā ti. Vism XVII 242/p.570: kāmupādānaṃ … saṅkhepato taṇhādaḷhattaṃ vuccati. … Sesupādānattayaṃ pana saṅkhepato diṭṭhimattameva. Vism-mhṭ II 329: Taṇhā kāmupādānanti pana vibhāgassa akaraṇe sabbāpi taṇhā kāmupādānaṃ, karaṇepi vā kāmarāgato aññāpi taṇhā daḷhabhāvaṃ pattā kāmupādānanti tassa arahattamaggavajjhatā vuttā.

[1903] D III 228, A II 18: Cattāri agati-gamanāni: chandāgatiṃ gacchati, dosāgatiṃ gacchati, mohāgatiṃ gacchati, bhayāgatiṃ gacchati. Vibh 375: … bhayāgatiṃ gacchati. Yā evarūpā agati agatigamanaṃ chandagamanaṃ vaggagamanaṃ vārigamanaṃ imāni cattāri agatigamanāni.

Five Kinds of Stinginess

The five kinds of stinginess are stinginess as to dwelling, family, gain, appearance, and doctrine.[1904]

These five are abandoned by the Path of Non-returning.

Five Hindrances

The five hindrances are sense-desire, ill-will, sloth and torpor (thīnamiddha), agitation and worry, and uncertainty.[1905]

Here, uncertainty is abandoned by the Path of Stream-entry; sense-desire, ill-will and worry are abandoned by the Path of Non-Returning; sloth (thīna) and agitation are abandoned by the Path of Arahantship.

Torpor (middha) complies (anuvattati) with matter.[1906]

Six Roots of Dispute

The six roots of dispute are wrath, depreciation, jealousy, craftiness, evil desires, and holding on to one's own views.[1907]

Here, craftiness, evil desires and holding on to one's own views are abandoned by the Path of Stream-entry. Wrath, depreciation and jealousy are abandoned by the Path of Non-Returning.

Seven Latent tendencies

The seven latent tendencies are the latent tendency of sensual greed, [460b] the latent tendency of aversion, the latent tendency of conceit, the latent tendency of views, the latent tendency of uncertainty, the latent tendency of the greed for existence, and the latent tendency of ignorance.[1908]

Here, the latent tendencies of views and uncertainty are abandoned by the Path of Stream-entry. The latent tendency of sensual greed and the latent tendency of aversion are abandoned by the Path of Non-Returning. The latent tendency of conceit, the latent tendency of desire for existence and the latent tendency of ignorance are abandoned by the Path of Arahantship.[1909]

[1904] D III 234: Pañca macchariyāni: āvāsa-macchariyaṃ, kula-macchariyaṃ, lābha-macchariyaṃ, vaṇṇa-macchariyaṃ, dhamma-macchariyaṃ.

[1905] D III 234: Pañca nīvaraṇāni: kāmacchandha-nīvaraṇaṃ, vyāpāda-nīvaraṇaṃ, thīna-middha-nīvaraṇaṃ, uddhacca-kukkucca-nīvaraṇaṃ, vicikicchā-nīvaraṇaṃ.

[1906] Or "follows along with matter." This would refer to "material torpor" or "physical torpor" (middharūpa) as one of the kinds of derived form (see the section on derived matter in Chapter 11 above), which entails that an arahant would have middha. Middharūpa is rejected by the Visuddhimagga (XIV § 24) and its commentary. If this passage does indeed refer to middharūpa, then it refers to the fact that only when the arahant's physical body ends at his passing away, torpor ends. Vism p. 685 states in the parallel section: thīnamiddha-uddhaccāni catuttha-ñāṇavajjhāni: "Stifness and torpor and agitation are eliminated by the fourth knowledge." Cf. D-a 1027: Cittaṃ nivārenti pariyonandhantī ti nīvaraṇāni. Kāmacchando nīvaraṇapatto arahattamaggavajjho. Kāmarāgānusayo kāmarāgasaṃyojanapatto anāgāmimaggavajjho. Thinaṃ cittagelaññaṃ. Middhaṃ khandhattayagelaññaṃ. Ubhayampi arahattamaggavajjhaṃ. Tathā uddhaccaṃ. Kukkuccaṃ anāgāmimaggavajjhaṃ. Vicikicchā paṭhamamaggavajjhā. M-a I 116: Thinamiddhapariyuṭṭhitā ti cittagelaññabhūtena thinena sesanāmakāyagelaññabhūtena middhena ca pariyuṭṭhita.

The Tibetan version (200b) does not have this sentence but, in agreement with the Vism, has: "sloth and torpor and agitation are abandoned by the Path of Arahantship."

[1907] Vibh 380: Tattha katamāni cha vivādamūlāni? Kodho, makkho, issā, sāṭheyyaṃ, pāpicchatā, sandiṭṭhiparāmāsitā – imāni cha vivādamūlāni. D III 246–47: Cha vivāda-mūlāni. Idh' āvuso bhikkhu kodhano hoti upanāhī. Yo so āvuso bhikkhu kodhano hoti upanāhī, … makkhī hoti paḷāsī … issukī hoti maccharī … saṭho hoti māyāvī … pāpiccho hoti micchā-diṭṭhi-parāmāsī hoti ādhāna-gāhī duppaṭinissaggī. Yo so āvuso bhikkhu sandiṭṭhi-parāmāsī hoti ādhāna-gāhī duppaṭinissaggī, so satthari … dhamme … saṅghe pi agāravo viharati appaṭisso, sikkhāya na paripūra-kārī hoti. Yo so āvuso bhikkhu satthari agāravo viharati …, so Saṅghe vivādaṃ janeti.

[1908] Vibh 382: Katame satta anusayā? Kāmarāgānusayo, paṭighānusayo, mānānusayo, diṭṭhānusayo, vicikicchānusayo, bhavarāgānusayo, avijjānusayo. The order is different in D III 254: kāmarāgānusayo, paṭighānusayo, diṭṭhānusayo, vicikicchānusayo, mānānusayo, bhavarāgānusayo, avijjānusayo. The Tibetan text has the same order as Vibh.

[1909] Nidd-a I 103: Kilesapaṭipāṭiyā hi kāmarāgānusayapaṭighānusayānaṃ tatiyamaggena abhāvo hoti, mānānusayassa catutthamaggena, diṭṭhānusayavicikicchānusayānaṃ paṭhamamaggena, bhavarāgānusayāvijjānusayānaṃ catutthamaggeneva.

Eight Worldly Conditions

The eight worldly conditions are gain and non-gain, blame and praise, fame and non-fame, and pleasure and pain.[1910]

Here, the aversion towards the four disagreeable grounds (aniṭṭha-vatthu) is abandoned by the Path of Non-Returning. The affection towards the four agreeable grounds is abandoned by the Path of Arahantship.[1911]

Nine Conceits

Towards one who is superior one produces the conceit "I am superior"; towards one who is superior or one produces the conceit: "I am equal"; towards one who is superior one produces the conceit: "I am inferior"; towards one who is equal one produces the conceit: "I am superior"; towards one who is equal one produces the conceit: "I am equal"; or towards one who is equal one produces the conceit: "I am inferior"; towards one who is inferior one produces the conceit: "I am superior"; towards one who is inferior one produces the conceit: "I am equal"; or towards one who is inferior one produces the conceit: "I am inferior."[1912]

These nine conceits are abandoned by the Path of Arahantship.

Ten Grounds for Defilements

The ten grounds for defilements are greed, hatred, delusion, conceit, views, uncertainty, unwieldiness, agitation, non-conscience, and shamelessness.[1913]

Here, views and uncertainty are abandoned by the Path of Stream-entry. Hatred is abandoned by the Path of Non-Returning. The other seven are abandoned by the Path of Arahantship.

[1910] D III 260 (Cf. A II 188, IV 156f.): Aṭṭha loka-dhammā: lābho ca alābho ca yaso ca ayaso ca nindā ca pasaṃsā ca sukhañ ca dukkhañ ca. Paṭis-a I 113: Lābhoti pabbajitassa cīvarādi, gahaṭṭhassa dhanadhaññādi lābho. Soyeva alabbhamāno lābho alābho. Na lābho alābhoti vuccamāne atthābhāvāpattito pariññeyyo na siyā. Yasoti parivāro. Soyeva alabbhamānā yaso ayaso. Nindāti avaṇṇabhaṇanaṃ. Pasaṃsāti vaṇṇabhaṇanaṃ. Sukhanti kāmāvacarānaṃ kāyikacetasikaṃ. Dukkhanti puthujjanasotāpannasakadāgāmīnaṃ kāyikacetasikaṃ, anāgāmiarahantānaṃ kāyikameva.
The Tibetan text has the same order of the 8 lokadhamma as in the Pali, while the Chinese has nindā-pasaṃsā before yasa-ayasa.

[1911] Vism XXI.51/683: Lokadhammāti lokappavattiyā sati anuparamadhammakattā lābho … Idha pana kāraṇopacārena lābhādivatthukassa anunayassa alābhādivatthukassa paṭighassa cetaṃ lokadhammaggahaṇena gahaṇaṃ katanti veditabbaṃ. Vism XXI.67/685 Lokadhammesu paṭigho tatiyañāṇavajjho, anunayo catutthañāṇavajjho, yase ca pasaṃsāya ca anunayo catutthañāṇavajjhoti eke. Macchariyāni paṭhamañāṇavajjhāneva. Vibh 386: Lābhe sārāgo, alābhe paṭivirodho, yase sārāgo, ayase paṭivirodho, pasaṃsāya sārāgo, nindāya paṭivirodho, sukhe sārāgo, dukkhe paṭivirodho: imesu aṭṭhasu lokadhammesu cittassa paṭighāto.

[1912] Vibh 389–90, Nidd I 80: Navavidhā mānā: seyyassa seyyo 'ham asmīti māno. Seyyassa sadiso 'ham asmīti māno. Seyyassa hīno 'ham asmīti māno. Sadisassa seyyo 'ham asmīti māno. Sadisassa sadiso 'ham asmīti māno. Sadisassa hīno 'ham asmīti māno. Hīnassa seyyo 'ham asmīti māno. Hīnassa sadiso 'ham asmīti māno. Hīnassa hīno 'ham asmīti māno. Nidd-a I 209: Seyyassa seyyohamasmītiādayo nava mānā puggalaṃ nissāya vuttā. Ettha pana seyyassa seyyohamasmī ti māno rājānañceva pabbajitānañca uppajjati. Rājā hi raṭṭhena vā dhanavāhanehi vā ko mayā sadiso atthī ti etaṃ mānaṃ karoti. Pabbajitopi sīladhutaṅgādīhi ko mayā sadiso atthīti etaṃ mānaṃ karoti. Cf. S V 56: Seyyohamasmīti vidhā, sadisohamasmī ti vidhā, hīnohamasmī ti vidhā imā kho, bhikkhave, tisso vidhā.

[1913] Read 煩惱處, as in the introduction of this section and the Tibetan parallel, instead of 惱處. Vibh 341: Dasa kilesavatthūni: lobho doso moho māno diṭṭhi vicikicchā thīnaṃ uddhaccaṃ ahīrikaṃ anottappaṃ. Yesaṃ sattānaṃ imāni dasa kilesavatthūni āsevitāni bhāvitāni bahulīkatāni ussadagatāni: ime te sattā mahārajakkhā. Paṭis-a II 424: Tattha kilesā eva kilesavatthūni, vasanti vā ettha akhīṇāsavā sattā lobhādīsu patiṭṭhitattāti vatthūni, kilesā ca te tappatiṭṭhānaṃ sattānaṃ vatthūni cāti kilesavatthūni. Yasmā cettha anantarapaccayādibhāvena uppajjamānāpi kilesā vasanti eva nāma, tasmā kilesānaṃ vatthūnītipi kilesavatthūni.

Ten Grounds for Annoyance

The ten grounds for annoyance: [Thinking] "This person did act, … acts, … will act for my harm" one gives rise to annoyance; this person did act, … acts, … will act for the harm of those who are dear to me" one gives rise to annoyance; this person did act, … acts, … will act for the benefit of those who are not dear to me" one gives rise to annoyance; and one gets annoyed for no reason.[1914]

These ten grounds for annoyance are abandoned by the Path of Non-Returning. 460b16

Ten Courses of Unwholesome Action

The ten courses of unwholesome action are the taking the life of beings, taking what is not given, sexual misconduct, lying, abusive speech, slanderous speech, frivolous speech, covetousness, ill-will, and wrong view.[1915]

Here, the taking of life, of what is not given, sexual misconduct, lying and wrong view are abandoned by the Path of Stream-entry. Slanderous speech, abusive speech, ill-will are abandoned by the Path of Non-Returning. Frivolous speech and covetousness are abandoned by the Path of Arahantship.

Ten Fetters

The ten fetters are the fetter of sensual greed, the fetter of ill-will, the fetter of conceit, the fetter of (wrong) view, the fetter of uncertainty, the fetter of holding on to precepts and observances, the fetter of greed for existence, the fetter of envy, the fetter of meanness and the fetter of ignorance.[1916]

Here, the fetters of (wrong) view, uncertainty, holding on to precepts and observances are abandoned by the Path of Stream-entry. The fetters of sensual greed, ill-will, envy, and avarice are abandoned by the Path of Non-Returning. The fetters of conceit, greed for existence, and ignorance are abandoned by the Path of Arahantship. 460b24

Ten wrongnesses

The ten wrongnesses are wrong view, wrong intention, wrong speech, wrong action, wrong livelihood, wrong effort, wrong mindfulness, wrong concentration, wrong knowledge, and wrong freedom.[1917]

Here, wrong view, wrong speech in the sense of lying, wrong action, wrong livelihood, wrong knowledge and wrong freedom are abandoned by the Path of Stream-entry. Wrong intention, wrong speech in the sense of slanderous speech and abusive speech are abandoned by the Path of Non-Returning. Wrong speech in the sense of frivolous speech, wrong effort, wrong mindfulness, and wrong concentration are abandoned the Path of Arahantship.

[1914] A V 150: Dasayimāni, bhikkhave, āghātavatthūni. … Anatthaṃ me acarī ti āghātaṃ bandhati; anatthaṃ me caratī ti … anatthaṃ me carissatī ti … piyassa me manāpassa anatthaṃ acarī ti … anatthaṃ caratī ti … anatthaṃ carissatī'ti … appiyassa me amanāpassa atthaṃ acarī'ti atthaṃ caratī ti … atthaṃ carissatī ti āghātaṃ bandhati; aṭṭhāne ca kuppati—imāni kho … dasa āghātavatthūnī ti. Paṭis-a II 423: Tattha āghātavatthūnīti āghātakāraṇāni. Āghātanti cettha kopo, soyeva uparūpari kopassa vatthuttā āghātavatthu. Āghātaṃ bandhatīti kopaṃ bandhati karoti uppādeti. Atthaṃ me nācari, na carati, na carissati. Piyassa me manāpassa atthaṃ nācari, na carati, na carissati. Appiyassa me amanāpassa anatthaṃ nācari, na carati, na carissatī ti. Ibid 425: Dasahi āghātavatthūhīti pubbe vuttehi navahi ca aṭṭhāne vā panāghāto jāyatīti vuttena cāti dasahi. Anatthaṃ me acarītiādīnipi hi avikappetvā khāṇukaṇṭakādimhipi aṭṭhāne āghāto uppajjati.

Cf. A-a V 54: Aṭṭhāne ti akāraṇe. Sacittakapavattiyañhi anatthaṃ me acarī ti ādi kāraṇaṃ bhaveyya, khāṇupahaṭādīsu taṃ natthi. Tasmā tattha āghāto aṭṭhāne āghāto nāma.

[1915] Read 結, as in the introduction and the Tibetan parallel, instead of 使. D III 269: Dasa akusala-kammapathā: pāṇātipāto, adinnādānaṃ, kāmesu micchācāro, musāvādo, pisuṇā vācā, pharusā vācā, samphappalāpo, abhijjhā, vyāpādo, micchādiṭṭhi.

The order of two items in the Chinese as well as Tibetan is different than in the Pali: pharusā vācā comes before pisuṇā vācā. This order is also given in the list of the ten akusala-karmapatha, 十惡, in DDB.

[1916] Dhs 197, par. 1113: Dasa saññojanāni: kāmarāgasaññojanaṃ paṭighasaññojanaṃ mānasaññojanaṃ diṭṭhisaññojanaṃ vicikicchāsaññojanaṃ sīlabbataparāmāsasaññojanaṃ bhavarāgasaññojanaṃ issāsaññojanaṃ macchariyasaññojanaṃ avijjāsaññojanaṃ. Cf. Dhs 247, Vibh 391. The list of ten fetters given here—a combination of the sutta lists of ten and seven fetters—is the one that is normal for the Abhidhamma; cf. A IV 7f.

[1917] Vibh 391–2: Tattha katamā dasa micchattā? Micchādiṭṭhi micchāsaṅkappo micchāvācā micchā-kammanto micchā-ājīvo micchāvāyāmo micchāsati micchāsamādhi micchāñāṇaṃ micchāvimutti. Ime dasa micchattā.

Twelve Perversions

[460c] The twelve perversions are: perversion of perception, perversion of mind, and perversion of view of permanence in what is impermanent; perversion of perception, perversion of mind, and perversion of view of happiness in what is suffering as; perversion of perception, perversion of mind, and perversion of view of beauty in what is foul; perversion of perception, perversion of mind, and perversion of view of self in what is not self.[1918]

Here, the three perversions [of regarding] permanence in what is impermanent, the three perversions [regarding] self in what is not-self, the perversion of view [of regarding] beauty in what is foul and the perversion of view [regarding] happiness in what is suffering, are abandoned by the Path of Stream-entry. The perversion of perception and the perversion of mind [regarding] beauty in what is foul are abandoned by the Path of Non-Returning. The perversion of perception and the perversion of mind [regarding] happiness in what is suffering are abandoned by the Path of Arahantship.[1919]

Twelve Arisings of Unwholesome Mind

The twelve arisings of unwholesome mind are: (1) arising of mind accompanied by joy, associated with (wrong) view, without stimulus (asaṅkhāra); (2) arising of mind (…) with stimulus (sasaṅkhāra); (3) arising of mind accompanied by joy, disassociated from (wrong) view, without stimulus; (4) arising of mind (…) with stimulus; (5) arising of mind accompanied by equanimity, associated with (wrong) view, without stimulus; (6) arising of mind (…) with stimulus; (7) arising of mind accompanied by equanimity, disassociated from (wrong) view, without stimulus; (8) arising of mind (…) with stimulus; (9) arising of mind accompanied by distress, associated with aversion, without stimulus; (10) arising of mind (…) with stimulus; (11) arising of mind accompanied by agitation; and (12) arising of mind accompanied by uncertainty.[1920]

[1918] A II 52, Paṭis II 80: Anicce bhikkhave niccan-ti saññāvipallāso cittavipallāso diṭṭhivipallāso; dukkhe bhikkhave sukhan-ti saññāvipallāso cittavipallāso diṭṭhivipallāso; anattani bhikkhave attā ti saññāvipallāso cittavipallāso diṭṭhivipallāso; asubhe bhikkhave subhan-ti saññā-vipallāso cittavipallāso diṭṭhivipallāso. Peṭ 120: Tattha manāpike vatthumhi indriyavatthe vaṇṇāyatane vā yo nimittassa uggāho, ayaṃ saññāvipallāso. Tattha viparītacittassa vatthumhi sati viññatti, ayaṃ cittavipallāso. Tattha viparītacittassa tamhi rūpe asubhe subhanti yā khanti ruci upekkhanā nicchayo diṭṭhi nidassanaṃ santīraṇā, ayaṃ diṭṭhivipallāso. A-a III 90: Anicce, bhikkhave, niccanti saññāvipallāsoti anicce vatthusmiṃ niccaṃ idan-ti evaṃ gahetvā uppajjanakasaññā, saññāvipallāsoti attho.

Both the Chinese and Tibetan have asubhe subha before anattani attā.

[1919] The Tibetan (202a) version is different: "Here, the three perversions [regarding] permanence in what is impermanent, and the perversion of view [regarding] beauty in what is foul … happiness in what is suffering … self in what is not-self are abandoned by the Path of Stream-entry. The perversion of perception and the perversion of mind [regarding] beauty in what is foul are abandoned by the Path of Non-Returning. The perversion of perception and the perversion of mind [regarding] happiness in what is suffering, and the perversion of perception and the perversion of mind [regarding] self in what is not self are abandoned by the Path of Arahantship."

The Chinese version is in accordance with the Pali Abhidhamma; see Vibh-a 501:Vipariyāsesu aniccādīni vatthūni niccantiādinā nayena viparītato esantīti vipariyāsā, saññāya vipariyāso saññāvipariyāso. Itaresupi dvīsu eseva nayo. Evamete catunnaṃ vatthūnaṃ vasena cattāro, yesu vatthūsu saññādīnaṃ vasena dvādasa honti. Tesu aṭṭha sotāpattimaggena pahīyanti. Asubhe subhanti saññācittavipallāsā sakadāgāmimaggena tanukā honti, anāgāmimaggena pahīyanti. Dukkhe sukhanti saññācittavipallāsā arahattamaggena pahīyantīti veditabbā. Perhaps this version takes asmi-māna, the "conceit 'I-am,'" which only the arahant has abandoned, as a perversion of perception and mind [regarding] self in what is not self. See S III 83: Sukhino vata arahanto, … asmimāno samucchinno …. S-a II 281: Asmimāno samucchinnoti navavidho asmimāno arahattamaggena samucchinno.

[1920] Cf. Dhs 234, par. 1369: Katame dhammā akusalā? Dvādasa akusalacittuppādā. Ime dhammā akusalā. Vibh 296 (cf. Dhs 80–81): Katame dhammā akusalā? Yasmiṃ samaye akusalaṃ cittaṃ uppannaṃ hoti somanassasahagataṃ diṭṭhigatasampayuttaṃ sasaṅkhārena …pe… somanassasahagataṃ diṭṭhigatavippayuttaṃ …pe… somanassasahagataṃ diṭṭhigatavippayuttaṃ sasaṅkhārena …pe… upekkhāsahagataṃ diṭṭhigatasampayuttaṃ …pe… upekkhāsahagataṃ diṭṭhigatasampayuttaṃ sasaṅkhārena …pe… upekkhāsahagataṃ diṭṭhigatavippayuttaṃ …pe… upekkhāsahagataṃ diṭṭhigatavippayuttaṃ sasaṅkhārena …pe… domanassasahagataṃ paṭighasampayuttaṃ …pe… domanassasahagataṃ paṭighasampayuttaṃ sasaṅkhārena … upekkhāsahagataṃ vicikicchāsampayuttaṃ … upekkhāsahagataṃ uddhaccasampayuttaṃ rūpārammaṇaṃ vā … Abhidh-av p.6f.: Akusalaṃ pana bhūmito ekavidhaṃ kāmāvacaram eva, niyatāniyatavatthuvasena ca ekahetukaduhetukavasena ca paṭisandhijanakājanakavasena ca duvidhaṃ, tīhi vedanāhi yogato ca lobhamūlaṃ dosamūlaṃ mohamūlan ti mūlato ca tividhaṃ hoti. Tattha lobhamūlaṃ pana somanassupekkhādiṭṭhippayogabhedato aṭṭhavidhaṃ hoti, seyyathidaṃ somanassasahagataṃ diṭṭhigatasampayuttaṃ asaṅkhārikam ekaṃ, sasaṅkhārikam ekaṃ,

Here, the four arisings of mind associated with views and the arisings of mind accompanied by uncertainty are abandoned by the Path of Stream-entry. The two arisings of mind which are accompanied by distress[1921] are attenuated in two Paths and abandoned without remainder by the Path of Non-Returning. The four arisings of mind disassociated from views and the arising of mind accompanied by agitation are attenuated in three Paths and are abandoned without remainder by the Path of Arahantship. 460c16

Two attainments

Two attainments (samāpatti): There are two attainments which are not shared with the commoner (puthujjanasādhāraṇa): fruition-attainment and the cessation of perception and feeling.

Fruition-attainment

What is the fruition-attainment? Why is it called fruition-attainment? Who practices it, who enters upon it? Why does one practice it? How does one practice it? How does one attend? Through how many conditions does it arise? Through how many conditions does it persist? Through what conditions does one emerge? Is this attainment mundane or supramundane?

Q. What is the fruition-attainment?

The fixedness (appanā) of the mind in Nibbāna, the fruit of recluseship (sāmaññaphala)—this is "fruition-attainment."[1922]

Q. Why is it called "fruition-attainment"?

A. It is achieved as the result of the fruit of the supramundane path (lokuttaramaggaphalavipāka), which is neither wholesome nor unwholesome nor functional (kiriya), therefore it is called "fruition-attainment."[1923]

[Who practices it; who enters upon it?]

The Arahant and the Non-Returner, who are perfect (paripūrakāri) in concentration.[1924] somanassasahagataṃ diṭṭhigatavippayuttaṃ asaṅkhārikam ekaṃ, sasaṅkhārikam ekaṃ, upekkhāsahagataṃ diṭṭhigatasampayuttaṃ asaṅkhārikam ekaṃ, sasaṅkhārikam ekaṃ, upekkhāsahagataṃ diṭṭhigatavippayuttaṃ asaṅkhārikam ekaṃ, sasaṅkhārikam ekan ti. … Dosamūlaṃ pana ekantasavatthukato ekavidhaṃ, asaṅkhāra-sasaṅkhārabhedato duvidhaṃ domanassasahagataṃ paṭighasampayuttaṃ asaṅkhāraṃ, sasaṅkhāran ti. Assa pana pāṇātipātādīsu tikkhamandappavattikāle uppatti veditabbā. Mohamūlam pi vicikicchuddhaccayogato duvidhaṃ hoti upekkhāsahagataṃ vicikicchāsampayuttaṃ, upekkhāsahagataṃ uddhaccasampayuttan ti. Tassa asanniṭṭhānavikkhepakālesu pavatti veditabbā ti. Evaṃ tāva dvādasavidhaṃ akusalacittaṃ veditabbaṃ, sabbaṃ pan' etaṃ yathānurūpaṃ apāyesu upapattiyā, sugatiyam pi dukkhavisesassa abhinipphādakaṃ hoti. Cf. Vism 684: Akusalacittuppādā ti lobhamūlā aṭṭha, dosamūlā dve, mohamūlā dve ti ime dvādasa.

---

[1921] "Distress" is missing from the Chinese, but is found in the Tibetan version (202b).

[1922] Cf. Vism XXIII.6/p. 699: Kā phalasamāpattīti yā ariyaphalassa nirodhe appanā. Vism-mhṭ II 515 (Be): Ariyaphalassa nirodhe appanāti ariyassa phalajhānassa nibbāne ārammaṇabhūte appanākārena pavatti. Kv 579: Sāmaññaphalaṃ asaṅkhatanti? Āmantā. Nibbānaṃ tāṇaṃ … amatanti? Na hevaṃ vattabbe …pe… sāmaññaphalaṃ asaṅkhataṃ, nibbānaṃ asaṅkhatanti? Āmantā. … Dve asaṅkhatānīti? Āmantā. Dve tāṇāni … pe … antarikā vāti? Na hevaṃ vattabbe …. Kv-a 180: Tattha maggavīthiyampi phalasamāpattivīthiyampi ariyamaggassa vipākacittaṃ sāmaññaphalaṃ nāmāti sakasamaye sanniṭṭhānaṃ. Yesaṃ pana tathā aggahetvā kilesapahānañceva phaluppatti ca sāmaññaphalaṃ, tasmā asaṅkhatanti laddhi, seyyathāpi pubbaseliyānaṃ; te sandhāya pucchā sakavādissa, paṭiññā itarassa.

Tibetan (202b): "The mind of the fruit of recluseship, except Nibbāna—this is called 'fruition-attainment,'" dge sbyong gi 'bras bu'i sems mya ngan las 'das pa ma gtogs pa … Probably the Tibetan translator misunderstood appanā as apariyāpanna "not included," ma gtogs pa.

[1923] Tibetan: "It is not wholesome, not unwholesome, not the nature of the result of the higher Path" = "… nor functional result of the supermundane path"? dge ba ma yin mi dge ba ma yin lam gong ma'i rnam par smin pa'i rang bzhin ma yin…

[1924] A I 232f.: *Idha … puggalo sīlesu paripūrakārī hoti, samādhismiṃ paripūrakārī paññāya na paripūrakāri hoti; so pañcannaṃ orambhāgiyānaṃ saṃyojanānaṃ parikkhayā … antarāparinibbāyī hoti. Idha … bhikkhu sīlesu paripūrakārī hoti samādhismiṃ paripūrakārī paññāya paripūrakārī … so āsavānaṃ khayā anāsavaṃ cetovimuttiṃ paññāvimuttiṃ diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṃ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharati.*A III 194: Idha, bhikkhave, bhikkhu sīlasampanno samādhisampanno paññāsampanno saññāvedayitanirodhaṃ samāpajjeyyāpi vuṭṭhaheyyāpi atthetaṃ ṭhānaṃ. No ce diṭṭheva dhamme aññaṃ ārādheyya, atikkammeva kabaḷīkārāhārabhakkhānaṃ devānaṃ sahabyataṃ aññataraṃ manomayaṃ kāyaṃ upapanno saññāvedayitanirodhaṃ samāpajjeyyāpi vuṭṭhaheyyāpi – atthetaṃ ṭhānanti. A-a III 298: No ce diṭṭheva dhamme aññaṃ ārādheyyāti no ce imasmiṃyeva attabhāve arahattaṃ pāpuṇeyya.

Vism XXIII.6–7/p.699: Ke taṃ samāpajjanti, ke na samāpajjantīti sabbepi puthujjanā na samāpajjanti. Kasmā? Anadhigatattā. Ariyā pana sabbepi samāpajjanti. … Keci pana sotāpannasakadāgāminopi na samāpajjanti. Uparimā dveyeva

Again, some say that all noble persons can enter upon it, as is taught in the Abhidhamma thus: "For the sake of obtaining the Path of Stream-entry, it overcomes rearising—this is called 'change-of-lineage.' For the sake of the attainment of the Fruit of Stream-entry, it overcomes rearising—this is called 'change-of-lineage.'"[1925] In the same way all [the paths and fruits should be understood.]

Again, some say that all noble persons who are perfect in concentration attain it; only those [noble persons] enter upon it. As the Venerable Nārada said to the bhikkhus: "Venerables, it is like a well in a desert, with no rope in it for drawing water. Then a man comes to it, who is scorched by the sun, afflicted, wearied, thirsty and craving [for water]. That man looks in the well and knows that it has water, but he does not dwell touching it with the body. Even so, [461a] venerables, I have seen well, according to reality, with right wisdom that the cessation of existence is Nibbāna, but I am not an Arahant who has destroyed the taints."[1926]

Q. Why does one enter upon it?

A. Having seen the Dhamma, one enters upon it for the sake of a pleasant dwelling in this life (diṭṭhadhammasukhavihāra), as the Blessed One taught to Ānanda: "At which time, Ānanda, the Tathāgata, due to not attending to all signs; due to the cessation of certain feelings, dwells having entered upon the signless concentration of mind; at that time, Ānanda, the body of the Tathāgata is [more] at ease."[1927]
461a05

Q. How does one enter upon it?

A. The meditator desirous of the fruition-attainment goes to a solitary place, sits or lies down and sees with insight the formations, beginning with contemplation of rise and fall and [proceeding] until to change-of-lineage-knowledge. Immediately subsequent to change-of-lineage-knowledge, [his mind] becomes fixed in Nibbāna, Fruition-attainment. Dependent on whatever jhāna the Path is developed, [dependent] on that jhāna that "fruition-attainment" is effected.[1928] samāpajjantī ti vadanti. Idañca tesaṃ kāraṇaṃ, ete hi samādhismiṃ paripūrakārinoti. Taṃ puthujjanassāpi attanā paṭiladdhalokiyasamādhisamāpajjanato akāraṇameva. Kiñcettha kāraṇākāraṇacintāya. Nanu pāḷiyaṃyeva vuttaṃ katame dasa gotrabhudhammā vipassanāvasena uppajjanti? Sotāpattimaggapaṭilābhatthāya uppādaṃ pavattaṃ …pe… upāyāsaṃ bahiddhā saṅkhāranimittaṃ abhibhuyyatīti gotrabhu. Sotāpattiphalasamāpattatthāya sakadāgāmimaggaṃ …pe… arahattaphalasamāpattatthāya… suññatavihārasamāpattatthāya… animittavihārasamāpattatthāya uppādaṃ…pe… bahiddhā saṅkhāranimittaṃ abhibhuyyatīti gotrabhū"ti (Paṭis). Tasmā sabbepi ariyā attano attano phalaṃ samāpajjantīti niṭṭhamettha gantabbaṃ.

---

The Tibetan text skips over the next two paragraphs and resumes at the next question.

[1925] Paṭis I 68: Sotāpattimaggaṃ paṭilābhatthāya uppādaṃ pavattaṃ nimittaṃ āyuhanaṃ paṭisandhiṃ gatiṃ nibbattiṃ uppattiṃ jātiṃ jaraṃ byādhiṃ maraṇaṃ sokaṃ paridevaṃ upāyāsaṃ bahiddhā saṅkhāranimittaṃ abhibhuyyatī ti gotrabhu. Sotāpattiphalasamāpattatthāya uppādaṃ …

[1926] S II 117–18: Aññatreva āvuso Nārada saddhāya aññatra ruciyā aññatra anussavā aññatra ākāraparivitakkā aññatra diṭṭhinijjhānakkhantiyā aham etam jānāmi aham etam passāmi bhavanirodho nibbānanti. Tenāyasmā Nārado arahaṃ khīṇāsavo ti. Bhavanirodho nibbānanti kho me āvuso yathābhūtaṃ sammappaññāya sudiṭṭhaṃ na c'amhi arahaṃ khīṇāsavo. Seyyathāpi āvuso kantāramagge udapāno, tatra nevassa rajju na udakavārako. Atha puriso āgaccheyya ghammābhitatto ghammapareto kilanto tasito pipāsito, so taṃ udapānaṃ olokeyya, tassa udakanti hi kho ñāṇaṃ assa na ca kāyena phusitvā vihareyya. Evam eva kho āvuso bhavanirodho nibbānanti yathābhūtaṃ sammappaññāya sudiṭṭhaṃ na c'amhi arahaṃ khīṇāsavo ti. (Commentary = S-a II 122–23). Cf. Peṭ 169.

[1927] D II 100, S V 153: Yasmiṃ Ānanda samaye Tathāgato sabba-nimittānaṃ amanasikārā ekaccānaṃ vedanānaṃ nirodhā animittaṃ cetosamādhiṃ upasampajja viharati, phāsutaro Ānanda tasmiṃ samaye Tathāgatassa kāyo hoti.

The Tibetan (203a) has "is more at ease," ches reg par 'gyur, which is in line with the Pali.

[1928] Tibetan: "Going to a solitary place, desirous of the fruition-attainment, he, gone to a solitary place, having sat down or lied down, having composed his mind, sees with insight the formations beginning with contemplation of rise and fall, then change-of-lineage-knowledge. Immediately subsequent to change-of-lineage-knowledge, [the mind] issues forth into nibbāna, the attainment of fruition. Dependent on whatever the path develops, having concentrated (mnyam par bzhag ste = samāhita, samādahitvā,) on that there will be just that fruition-attainment." (or perhaps "… [dependent] on that jhāna there will be just that fruition-attainment.)

Cf. Vism XXIII.10/p.700, Paṭis-a I 268: Phalasamāpattatthikena hi ariyasāvakena rahogatena paṭisallīnena udayabbay-ādivasena saṅkhārā vipassitabbā. Tassa pavattānupubbavipassanassa saṅkhārārammaṇagotrabhu-ñāṇānantarā phalasamāpattivasena nirodhe cittaṃ appeti. Phalasamāpattininnatāya cettha sekkhassāpi phalam-eva uppajjati, na maggo. Ye pana vadanti sotāpanno phalasamāpattiṃ samāpajjissāmīti vipassanaṃ paṭṭhapetvā sakadāgāmī hoti. Sakadāgāmī ca anāgāmīti, te vattabbā evaṃ sati anāgāmī arahā bhavissati, arahā pacceka-buddho, paccekabuddho ca buddho. Tasmā na kiñci etaṃ, pāḷivaseneva ca paṭikkhittantipi na gahetabbaṃ. Idameva pana gahetabbaṃ sekkhassā pi phalameva uppajjati, na maggo. Phalañcassa sace anena paṭhamajjhāniko maggo adhigato hoti. Paṭhamajjhānikameva uppajjati. Sace dutiyādīsu aññatarajjhāniko, dutiyādīsu aññatarajjhānikamevāti. Evaṃ tāvassā samāpajjanaṃ hoti. Ud-a 34: Ye pana vadanti sotāpanno attano phalasamāpattiṃ samāpajjissāmīti vipassanaṃ vaḍḍhetvā sakadāgāmī hoti …

Q. How does one attend (manasikaroti)?

A. The unconditioned, Deathless element is attended to as peaceful.[1929] 461a10

Q. How many conditions are there for that attainment? How many conditions are there for its persistence? How many conditions are there for emerging?

A. There two conditions for that attainment: the non-attending to all signs and the attending to the signless element.[1930]

Three are the conditions of persistence: non-attending to all signs; attending to the signless element; and previous preparation.[1931]

Two are the conditions of emergence: attending to all signs and non-attending to the signless element.[1932] 461a13

Q. Is this attainment mundane or supramundane?

A. This attainment is supramundane; not mundane.[1933]

Q. When the non-returner practices insight for the Fruition-attainment, why does change-of-lineage not produce the arahant path immediately? 461a16

A. Being without a basis (vatthu) of happiness, one does not produce insight because one does not have the power for it.[1934]

Here, two distinct Fruitions can be discerned: (1) The change-of-lineage and Fruition that is accomplished with Path, [i.e.,] the Fruition that manifests immediately when the realization (sacchikiriya) of the Path manifests. (2) The change-of-lineage and Fruition that is accomplished without Path, and is accomplished by entering upon the Fruition-attainment.[1935] The Fruition that is accomplished without Path [also takes place] when emerging from the attainment of cessation. It is accomplished without Path, without change-of-lineage.[1936] sambuddhoti āpajjeyya, tasmā yathābhinivesaṃ yathājjhāsayaṃ vipassanā atthaṃ sādhetīti sekkhassāpi phalameva uppajjati, na maggo. …

---

[1929] Tibetan (203a): "The unconditioned, deathless element is just attended to," 'dus ma byas bdud rtsi'i dbyings zhing nyid yid la byed pa'o. Cf. Nidd II-a 108: Taṃ panesa ce santipadaṃ nibbānaṃ santato passati, sabbasaṅkhārapavattaṃ vissajjetvā nibbānaninnaṃ pakkhandaṃ hoti.

[1930] M I 296: Kati panāvuso, paccayā animittāya cetovimuttiyā samāpattiyā ti? … Dve āvuso, paccayā animittāya cetovimuttiyā samāpattiyā sabbanmittānañ ca amanasikāro animittāya ca dhātuyā manasikāro ti.

[1931] M I 296–97: Tayo kho, āvuso, paccayā animittāya cetovimuttiyā ṭhitiyā: sabbanimittānañ ca amanasikāro, animittāya ca dhātuyā manasikāro, pubbe ca abhisaṅkhāro.

[1932] Ibid. 297: Dve kho, āvuso, paccayā animittāya cetovimuttiyā vuṭṭhānāya: sabbanimittānañ ca manasikāro, animittāya ca dhātuyā amanasikāro.

[1933] Cf. Ud-a 30: Sā panāyaṃ phalasamāpatti atthato lokuttarakusalānaṃ vipākabhūtā nibbānārammaṇā appanāti daṭṭhabbā.

The Tibetan text skips the next question and continues at the attainment of cessation.

[1934] Cf. Vism-mhṭ II 520: Anāgāmino, arahantoti ettha sukkhavipassakā ca anāgāmino, … Ubhayepi cete satipi vipassanābale samādhibalassa abhāvato nirodhaṃ na samāpajjanti. Anupubbavihārasambhavataññevettha samādhibalaṃ icchitabbaṃ. Purimakā pana tayo satipi samādhibale vipassanābalassa abhāvato, aparipuṇṇattā ca samāpajjituṃ na sakkonti. Aparipuṇṇatā cassa saṅkhārānaṃ na sammā parimadditattā.

[1935] Vism XXIII.10–11 states that only the Fruit is attained, even in the case of a sekha. Vism-mhṭ assigns the opposite view to the Abhayagiri school.

Vism XXIII.11: Ye pana vadanti: sotāpanno phalasamāpattiṃ samāpajjissāmī ti vipassanaṃ paṭṭhapetvā sakadāgāmī hoti. Sakadāgāmī ca anāgāmī ti, te vattabbā: evaṃ sati anāgāmī arahā bhavissati, arahā paccekabuddho, paccekabuddho ca buddho. Tasmā na kiñci etaṃ, pāḷivaseneva ca paṭikkhittan-ti pi na gahetabbaṃ. Idameva pana gahetabbaṃ: sekkhassāpi phalameva uppajjati, na maggo. Phalañcassa sace anena paṭhamajjhāniko maggo adhigato hoti. Paṭhamajjhānikameva uppajjati. Sace dutiyādīsu aññatarajjhāniko, dutiyādīsu aññatarajjhānikamevāti. Evaṃ tāvassā samāpajjanaṃ hoti.

Vism-mhṭ II 519 (Be): Ye panā ti abhayagirivāsino sandhāyāha. Te hi maggaphalavipassanāya āloḷetvā vadanti.

Cf. S. Mori 1988, p. 14–15.

[1936] The Chinese text literally has "The change-of-lineage [and] Fruition that is accomplished without the Path … without change-of-lineage fruition," which doesn't make sense. The first is in contradiction with the last sentence, which states that there is no gotrabhu, and would be due to a copyist's mistake. The latter must be a duplication of the following character.

Cf. Moh 76 (Be): Lokuttarajavanesu pana kusalāni ekasantāne ekavārameva javanti, tadanantaraṃ yathāsakaṃ phalacittañca dvattivāraṃ, phalasamāpattivīthiyaṃ phalameva anantavārampi javati, nirodhasamāpattiyaṃ pana anupubbanirodhavasena paṭhamajjhānato yāvākiñcaññāyatanā yathākkamaṃ āvajjanaparikammādivaseneva samāpajjitvā vuṭṭhitassa gotrabhuto anantaraṃ catutthāruppajavane dvikkhattuṃ javitvā niruddhe yathāparicchinnakālañca cittaṃ na uppajjati, vuṭṭhānakāle ca āvajjanaparikammacittaniyāmena anāgāmiphalaṃ, arahattaphalaṃ vā

The Fruition-attainment is finished. 461a21

Attainment of the cessation of perception and feeling

What is the attainment of the cessation of perception and feeling? Who enter upon it? Endowed with how many kinds of power does one enter upon it? Through the stilling of how many formations is it entered upon? How many preliminary duties are there? Why is it entered upon? How does one emerge from it? By what does the mind emerge from it? If the mind has emerged, towards what is it inclined? How many contacts do contact [upon emerging]? Which formations arise first? What is the difference between a dead person and a person who enters upon the cessation of perception and feeling? Is this attainment conditioned or unconditioned?

Q. What is the attainment of the cessation of perception and feeling?

A. The non-occurence (appavatti) of the mind (citta) and mental properties (cetasikā dhammā)—this is called the attainment of the cessation of perception and feeling.[1937]

Q. Who enter upon that attainment?

A. The Arahant and the Non-Returner who are perfect in concentration.[1938]

Q. Who cannot enter upon it?

A. The commoner, the Stream-enterer, the Once-Returner and one who is born in the immaterial realm (arūpa-dhātu). [461b]

Here, the commoner cannot enter upon it, because it is not within his range (visaya). The Stream-enterer and the Once-Returner can not, because they have not yet fully removed the defilements and the obstacles to concentration. One who is born in the immaterial realm cannot enter upon it, because there is no physical-basis (vatthu) for emerging again.[1939]

Q. Endowed with how many kinds of power (bala) does one enter upon it?

A. It is entered upon by being endowed with two kinds of power: serenity-power and insight-power.

Here "serenity" means mastery in obtaining the eight attainments (aṭṭha-samāpatti).[1940]

"Insight" means mastery in the seven insights, namely, contemplation of impermanence, contemplation of suffering, contemplation of not-self, contemplation of disenchantment, contemplation of fading away, contemplation of cessation, and contemplation of renunciation.

Serenity-power is for the ceasing of the jhāna-factors and for unshakeable liberation.[1941] 461b08

Insight-power is for seeing the disadvantage of occurrence (pavatti), and for the liberation through Non-occurrence.[1942] yathārahamekavārameva uppajjati. Tattha ca kusalagotrabhuto anantaraṃ kusalañceva ādito phalattayañca appeti, kiriyāgotrabhuto kiriyaṃ, arahattaphalañca.

---

[1937] Vism XXIII.18 p.702, Paṭis-a I 319: Tattha kā nirodhasamāpattīti? Yā anupubbanirodhavasena cittacetasikānaṃ dhammānaṃ appavatti.

[1938] A I 232f. Idha … puggalo sīlesu paripūrakārī hoti, samādhismiṃ paripūrakārī paññāya na paripūrakāri hoti; so pañcannaṃ orambhāgiyānaṃ saṃyojanānaṃ parikkhayā … antarāparinibbāyī hoti. Idha … bhikkhu sīlesu paripūrakārī hoti samādhismiṃ paripūrakārī paññāya paripūrakārī … so āsavānaṃ khayā anāsavaṃ cetovimuttiṃ paññāvimuttiṃ diṭṭheva dhamme sayaṃ abhiññā sacchikatvā upasampajja viharati.

[1939] Cf. Vism XXIII.29/p.705 Catuvokārabhave pana paṭhamajjhānādīnaṃ uppatti natthi. Tasmā na sakkā tattha samāpajjitunti. Keci pana vatthussa abhāvā ti vadanti. Cf. Vism-mhṭ 525 (Be): Vatthussa abhāva ti hadayavatthuno abhāva ti vadanti, karajakāyasaṅkhātassa pana vatthuno abhāvāti attho. Yadi hi āruppe nirodhaṃ samāpajjeyya cittacetasikānaṃ aññassa ca kassaci abhāvato apaññattikova bhaveyya anupādisesāya nibbānadhātuyā parinibbutasadiso. Kiñcāyaṃ upādāya nirodhaṃ samāpannoti vucceyya, kiṃ vā etāya vatthucintāya. Aṅgavekallatova natthi āruppe nirodhasamāpattisamāpajjanaṃ.

Tibetan (203b): "The one reborn in the immaterial realm does not enter upon it [because] after emerging there is no physical basis again."

[1940] I.e. the four jhānas and the four immaterial attainments. Tibetan (203b): "The serenity power is mastery of the four jhānas and the four immaterial attainments."

Cf. Paṭis I 97–98, Vism XXIII.19–22/p.702–703: Kathaṃ dvīhi balehi samannāgatattā tayo ca saṅkhārānaṃ paṭippassaddhiyā soḷasahi ñāṇacariyāhi navahi samādhicariyāhi vasibhāvatā paññā nirodhasamāpattiyā ñāṇaṃ? … Dvīhi balehīti dve balāni samathabalaṃ vipassanābalaṃ. Katamaṃ samathabalaṃ? Nekkhammavasena cittassa ekaggatā avikkhepo samathabalaṃ. … nevasaññānāsaññāyatanasamāpattiyā ākiñcaññāyatanasaññāya na kampatīti samathabalaṃ. … Katamaṃ vipassanābalaṃ? Aniccānupassanā vipassanābalaṃ, dukkhānupassanā … anattānupassanā… nibbidānupassanā … virāgānupassanā … nirodhānupassanā … paṭinissaggānupassanā vipassanābalaṃ.

[1941] Paṭis II 40: Cattāro ca ariyamaggā, cattāri ca sāmaññaphalāni, nibbānañca: ayaṃ akuppo vimokkho.

[1942] Cf. Paṭis-a I 315: tattha samathabalaṃ anupubbena cittasantānavūpasamanatthaṃ nirodhe ca paṭipādanatthaṃ,

Q. Through the stilling of how many formations is it entered upon?

A. It is entered upon through the stilling of three formations: verbal formations, bodily formations and mental formations.

Here, for one who has entered upon the second jhāna, the verbal formations of thinking and exploring are stilled. For one who has entered upon the fourth jhāna, the bodily formations of inhalations and exhalations are stilled. For one who has entered upon the attainment of the cessation of perception and feeling, the mental formations of perception and feeling are stilled.[1943]

Q. How many preliminary duties are there?[1944]

A. There are four preliminary duties: personal belongings, non-damage, limiting the duration, observing legal acts and nonlegal acts.

Here, "personal belongings" (ekābaddha): he resolves as regards bowl, robe [and other requisites].[1945]

"Non-damage" (avikopana): he resolves "Let there be no arising of any damage to this body through any means."

"Limiting the duration" (addhānapariccheda): estimating the strength of his body, and making a limit of days, he resolves: "When this period has passed, I will emerge."

"Observing legal acts and nonlegal acts": he resolves: "When, not yet having reached the time-limit, the Sangha assembles for a legal act or nonlegal act, at their calling (ghosa), I will emerge."[1946]

Here "personal belongings" is for the sake of protecting the robes. "Non-damage" and "limiting the duration" are for the sake of protecting the body. "Observing legal acts and nonlegal acts" is for the sake of not hindering the assembling of the Saṅgha.

When he dwells in the base of nothingness, [and has emerged], he does the preliminary duties, or when enters upon the first jhāna.[1947]

Q. Why is it entered upon?

A. For the sake of a pleasant dwelling in this life (diṭṭhadhammasukhavihāra). This is the ultimate vipassanābalaṃ pavatte ādīnavadassanatthaṃ nirodhe ca ānisaṃsadassanatthaṃ.

---

Paṭis II 64: dukkhato manasikaroto pavattā cittaṃ vuṭṭhāti, appavatte cittaṃ pakkhandati. anattato manasikaroto nimittā ca pavattā ca cittaṃ vuṭṭhāti, animitte appavatte nirodhe nibbānadhātuyā cittaṃ pakkhandati.

For appavatta the Chinese has 無生 while the Tibetan has mi 'jug pa rnams. In the Pali there is nothing corresponding to appavatta vimokkha, and there is a possibility that the original had anupādā vimokkha. Cf. M II 237 (cf. D I 16, II 70, A V 64): Idaṃ kho pana, bhikkhave, tathāgatena anuttaraṃ santivarapadaṃ abhisambuddhaṃ yadidaṃ channaṃ phassāyatanānaṃ samudayañca atthaṅgamañca assādañca ādīnavañca nissaraṇañca yathābhūtaṃ viditvā anupādāvimokkho. M I 486: Tasmā tathāgato sabbamaññitānaṃ sabbamathitānaṃ sabbaahaṃkāramamaṃkāramānānusayānaṃ khayā virāgā nirodhā cāgā paṭinissaggā anupādā vimuttoti vadāmī ti. Paṭis II 45: Katamo anupādā cittassa vimokkho? … Aniccānupassanāñāṇaṃ niccato upādānā muccatīti anupādācittassa vimokkho. … Nirodhānupassanāñāṇaṃ samudayato … Paṭinissaggānupassanāñāṇaṃ ādānato … Paṭis-a III 560: Anupādā cittassa vimokkho ti idha vipassanā yeva. Etadatthā kathā, etadatthā mantanā, yadidaṃ anupādā cittassa vimokkho ti ettha pana nibbānaṃ anupādā cittassa vimokkho. M-a III 197 (cf. D-a II 462 & 512): Anupādā vimuttoti catūhi upādānehi kañci dhammaṃ anupādiyitvā vimutto. D-a II 462.

[1943] Cf. Paṭis I 98, Vism XXIII.24/p.703: Tayo ca saṅkhārānaṃ paṭippassaddhiyāti katamesaṃ tiṇṇannaṃ saṅkhārānaṃ paṭippassaddhiyā? Dutiyaṃ jhānaṃ samāpannassa vitakkavicārā vacīsaṅkhārā paṭippassaddhā honti. Catutthaṃ jhānaṃ samāpannassa assāsapassāsā kāyasaṅkhārā paṭippassaddhā honti. Saññāvedayitanirodhaṃ samāpannassa saññā ca vedanā ca cittasaṅkhārā paṭippassaddhā honti. Imesaṃ tiṇṇannaṃ saṅkhārānaṃ paṭippassaddhiyā.

[1944] Cf. Vism 705: Catubbidhaṃ pubbakiccaṃ karoti: nānā-baddha-avikopanaṃ, saṅghapaṭimānanaṃ, saṭṭhupakkosanaṃ addhānaparicchedan ti.

[1945] Tibetan (204a): "Here, personal belongings are the resolve regards the robes and bowl, body, and personal belongings (lit. 'bound to one (person),' sdom pa gcig)." Ekābaddha is the antonym of nānābaddha, "bound to various (persons)."

[1946] Tibetan (204a): "'Observing legal acts and non-legal acts': He resolves: '[Before] reaching the time-limit, when [the Sangha] assembles for some reason for legal acts or nonlegal acts of the Sangha, through their calling, I will emerge.'" The Tibetan skips over the next paragraph and resumes at the next question.

[1947] 住無所有處。或初作事入初禪. This sentence is corrupt. The Chinese literally has "[When] he dwells in/is established in the base of nothingness or does the preliminary duties [when] he enters upon the first jhāna," which doesn't makes sense. According to the Visuddhimagga he should do the preliminary duties upon emerging from the base of nothingness and then enter upon the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception, not the first jhāna. Vism XXIII.34/p.705: … tato viññāṇañcāyatanaṃ samāpajjitvā vuṭṭhāya tattha saṅkhāre tatheva vipassati. Atha ākiñcaññāyatanaṃ samāpajjitvā vuṭṭhāya catubbidhaṃ pubbakiccaṃ karoti. XXIII.43–47/p.707–08: So evaṃ ākiñcaññāyatanaṃ samāpajjitvā vuṭṭhāya imaṃ pubbakiccaṃ katvā nevasaññānāsaññāyatanaṃ samāpajjati. … … evamevaṃ katapubbakicco bhikkhu nevasaññānāsaññāyatanaṃ samāpajjitvāva parato acittako hutvā nirodhaṃ phusitvā viharati.

immovable attainment (āneñjasamāpatti) of the Noble Ones.

Again, it is for the sake of supernormal power by the pervasive force of concentration (samādhivipphāra) like the Arahant venerable Sañjīva.[1948] It is [entered also] for the sake of protecting the body as in the case of the Venerable Elder Sāriputta[1949] and in the case of the Venerable Elder Tissa, the son of the Snowy Heron.[1950]

Q. How is it entered upon? 461b24

A. The meditator having gone a secluded dwelling, sits down or lies down. Desiring cessation, aspiring for cessation, he enters upon the first jhāna. Having entered, he emerges peacefully, and immediately subsequent sees that jhāna as impermanent, suffering and not-self, until [he reaches] the knowledge of equanimity towards the formations (saṅkhārupekkhāñāṇa), and likewise for the second, the third and the fourth jhānas, the base of boundless space, the base of boundless consciousness and the base of nothingness. Having entered, he emerges peacefully, and immediately sees that attainment as impermanent, suffering and not-self, as far as the knowledge of equanimity towards the formations, and then immediately enters upon the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception. [461c] Thereupon, two or three times, he causes the arising of the mind of the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception. Having given rise to it, he causes the dissolution of mind. Having caused the dissolution of mind, he enters upon non-occurence (appavatta) and the unmanifest (anidassana?)—this is called "entering upon the attainment of the cessation of perception and feeling."[1951]

Q. How does one emerge from it? 461c04

A. Here one does not attend thus: "I shall emerge" as it [only] happens when the previously delimited time has arrived.[1952]

Q. Through what does the mind emerge?

A. The Non-Returner emerges by the fruition-mind of Non-Returning. The Arahant emerges by the fruition-mind of Arahantship.[1953]

Q. If the mind has emerged, towards what is it inclined?

A. The mind is inclined towards seclusion (vivekaninna).[1954] 461c07

Q. How many contacts do contact [the mind upon emerging]?

A. Three contacts, namely, emptiness-contact, signless-contact and aspirationless-contact.[1955]

[1948] M I 333–34. Vism XXII.32/Paṭis-a 671: Sañjīvattheraṃ pana nirodhasamāpannaṃ kālakatoti sallakkhetvā gopālakādayo tiṇakaṭṭhagomayāni saṅkaḍḍhetvā aggiṃ adaṃsu. Therassa cīvare aṃsumattampi najjhāyittha. Ayamassa anupubbasamāpattivasena pavattasamathānubhāvanibbattattā samādhivipphārā iddhi.

The Tibetan (204a) only has "Again, it is also for the manifestation of supernormal power" and then continues with the next question.

[1949] See Ud 39–41.

[1950] Untraced. One would expect one or more of the following from Paṭis II 212 and Vism XII 30–33/p.380): Khāṇukoṇḍaññā thera, or one of the two female lay disciples Uttarā and Sāmāvatī.

[1951] Tibetan (204b): "… Thereupon, having established (adverted to?, bzhag) the mind two or three times on the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception, there is the non-occurence and cessation of mind. At the non-occurence and cessation of mind, there is 'entering upon the [attainment of] cessation of feeling and perception.'"

Vism XXIII.32–34/p.705: Idha bhikkhu nirodhaṃ samāpajjitukāmo katabhattakicco sudhotahatthapādo vivitte okāse supaññattamhi āsane nisīdati pallaṅkaṃ ābhujitvā ujuṃ kāyaṃ paṇidhāya parimukhaṃ satiṃ upaṭṭhapetvā, so paṭhamaṃ jhānaṃ samāpajjitvā vuṭṭhāya tattha saṅkhāre aniccato dukkhato anattato vipassati. Tato dutiyaṃ jhānaṃ … … Tato viññāṇañcāyatanaṃ samāpajjitvā vuṭṭhāya tattha saṅkhāre tatheva vipassati. Tathā ākiñcaññāyatanaṃ samāpajjitvā vuṭṭhāya catubbidhaṃ pubbakiccaṃ karoti nānābaddhaavikopanaṃ, saṅghapaṭimānanaṃ, satthupakkosanaṃ, addhānaparicchedanti.

[1952] Cf. S IV 294: Kathaṃ pana, bhante, saññāvedayitanirodhasamāpattiyā vuṭṭhānaṃ hotī ti? Na kho, gahapati, saññāvedayitanirodhasamāpattiyā vuṭṭhahantassa bhikkhuno evaṃ hoti ahaṃ saññāvedayitanirodhasamāpattiyā vuṭṭhahissa'nti vā ahaṃ saññāvedayitanirodhasamāpattiyā vuṭṭhahāmī ti vā ahaṃ saññāvedayitanirodhasamāpattiyā vuṭṭhito ti vā. Atha khvassa pubbeva tathā cittaṃ bhāvitaṃ hoti, yaṃ taṃ tathattāya upanetī ti.

[1953] Abhidh-s 67 (Be): Vuṭṭhānakāle pana anāgāmino anāgāmiphalacittaṃ, arahato arahattaphalacittaṃ ekavārameva pavattitvā bhavaṅgapāto hoti, tato paraṃ paccavekkhaṇāñāṇaṃ pavattati.

[1954] Vism XXIII.50/p.708: Vuṭṭhitassa kiṃninnaṃ cittaṃ hotīti nibbānaninnaṃ. Vuttaṃ hetaṃ (= M I 302, S IV 294) saññāvedayitanirodhasamāpattiyā vuṭṭhitassa kho, āvuso visākha, bhikkhuno vivekaninnaṃ cittaṃ hoti vivekapoṇaṃ vivekapabbhāran-ti.

[1955] MN 44 § 20/M I 302 states that these contacts touch him upon emerging from the attainment of cessation. Saññāvedayitanirodhasamāpattiyā vuṭṭhitaṃ panāyye, bhikkhuṃ kati phassā phusanti ti? Saññāvedayitanirodhasamāpattiyā vuṭṭhitaṃ kho, āvuso visākha, bhikkhuṃ tayo phassā phusanti—suññato phasso, animitto phasso, appaṇihito phasso ti.

Q. Which formations arise first?

A. [Mental formations,] then bodily formations and then verbal formations.[1956]

Q. What is the difference between a dead person and a person who enters upon the cessation of perception and feeling?

A. In the dead person, three formations are ceased and stilled, the life-span is exhausted, (physical) heat has subsided, and the sense-faculties are broken up. In the person who has entered upon the cessation of perception and feeling, the three formations are ceased and stilled, the life-span is not exhausted, heat has not subsided, the sense-faculties are clear. This is the difference.[1957]

Q. Is this attainment conditioned or unconditioned?

A. This attainment is not to be spoken of as conditioned or unconditioned.

Q. Why can't this attainment is not to be spoken of as conditioned or unconditioned?

A: Conditioned states are absent in this attainment and an entry upon and an emergence from an unconditioned state can not be known. Therefore this attainment is not to be spoken of as conditioned or unconditioned.[1958]

The attainment of cessation is finished.

The twelfth chapter of the Path of Freedom on the analysis of the Truths is finished.

Now, the chapter sum up is:

(1) Introduction
(2) [Treatise on] Virtue
(3) The Asceticisms
(4) [Treatise on of] Concentration
(5) Searching a Good Friend
(6) Treatise on Temperament
(7) Treatise on the Meditation Subjects
(8) Meditation Methods
(9) The Five Kinds of Higher Knowledge
(10) Analysis of Wisdom
(11) The Five Skills
(12) Treatise on the Truths.

Thus is the sequence of the twelve chapters of the Path of Freedom.

[1956] Ssv 204b omits the verbal formation: "Mental formations, then bodily formations."

Cf. M I 302, S IV 294: Saññāvedayitanirodhasamāpattiyā vuṭṭhahantassa kho, āvuso visākha, bhikkhuno paṭhamaṃ uppajjati cittasaṅkhāro, tato kāyasaṅkhāro, tato vacīsaṅkhāro-ti.

[1957] S IV 293f, M I 296: Yvāyaṃ āvuso mato kālakato, yo cāyaṃ bhikkhu saññāvedayitanirodhaṃ samāpanno, imesaṃ kiṃ nānākaraṇan ti? Yvāyaṃ āvuso mato kālakato, tassa kāyasaṅkhārā niruddhā paṭippassaddhā, vacīsaṅkhārā niruddhā paṭipassaddhā, cittasaṅkhārā niruddhā paṭippassaddhā, āyu parikkhīno, usmā vūpasantā, indriyāni viparibhinnāni: yo cāyaṃ bhikkhu saññāvedayitanirodhaṃ samāpanno tassa pi kāyasaṅkhārā niruddhā paṭipassaddhā, vacīsaṅkhārā niruddhā paṭippassaddhā, cittasaṅkhārā niruddhā paṭippassaddhā, āyu aparikkhīno, usmā avūpasantā, indriyāni vippasannāni

[1958] Tibetan (205a): "... Why? Because in that attainment—due to the absence of conditioned states—and in the unconditioned, entering upon and emerging from is not known. ..." (gang gi phyir snyoms par 'jug pa de la ni 'dus byas kyi chos rnams mi srid pas dang 'dus ma byas la ni snyoms par 'jug pa dang ldang bar shes par byar med pa'i phyir ro.) Cf. Vism XXIII.52: Nirodhasamāpatti saṅkhatātiādipucchāyaṃ pana saṅkhatātipi asaṅkhatātipi lokiyātipi lokuttarātipi na vattabbā. Kasmā? Sabhāvato natthitāya. Yasmā panassā samāpajjantassa vasena samāpannā nāma hoti, tasmā nipphannāti vattuṃ vaṭṭati, no anipphannā. Kv 327: Nirodhasamāpatti asaṅkhatāti? Āmantā. Atthi keci nirodhaṃ samāpajjanti ... sañjanentīti? Āmantā. Atthi keci asaṅkhataṃ samāpajjanti ... sañjanentīti? Na hevaṃ vattabbe ... Nirodhā vodānaṃ vuṭṭhānaṃ paññāyatīti? Āmantā. Asaṅkhatā vodānaṃ vuṭṭhānaṃ paññāyatīti? Na hevaṃ vattabbe. ... Na vattabbaṃ – Nirodhasamāpatti asaṅkhatā ti? Āmantā. Saṅkhatāti? Na hevaṃ vattabbe ... pe... tena hi nirodhasamāpatti asaṅkhatāti. Kv-a 91: Tattha nirodhasamāpattīti catunnaṃ khandhānaṃ appavatti. Yasmā pana sā kariyamānā kariyati, samāpajjiyamānā samāpajjiyati, tasmā nipphannāti vuccati. Saṅkhatāsaṅkhatalakkhaṇānaṃ pana abhāvena na vattabbā saṅkhatāti vā asaṅkhatā ti vā. Tattha yesaṃ yasmā saṅkhatā na hoti, tasmā asaṅkhatā ti laddhi, ... Nirodhā vodānaṃ vuṭṭhānanti phalasamāpatti veditabbā. Asaṅkhatā pana taṃ natthiyeva, tasmā paṭikkhipati. Tena hīti yasmā saṅkhatā na hoti, tasmā asaṅkhatāti laddhi. Idaṃ pana asaṅkhatabhāve kāraṇaṃ na hotīti vuttampi avuttasadisamevāti.

Endless, incomparable, inconceivable,
Measureless, very fortunate, well spoken,
Who is able to know this Dhamma?

Only the meditator is able to experience
The excellent, best path for good deeds,
Being without doubt regarding the Teaching
He gets rid of ignorance.[1959]

[1959] Bapat renders: "Who can know this Dhamma which is profound, unnamable, unthinkable? Only that yogāvacara who resolves upon cultivating the excellent Path, who has no doubt in the instructions and has no ignorance."

Appendix

Vimuktimārga-Dhutaguṇa-Nirdeśa

The Exposition of the Qualities of Purification from the Vimuktimārga[1960]

Introduction

Discovery of the Text

In the year 1932–33 I received a copy from Japan of the Kanjur division of the Tibetan Tripiṭaka published by the Otani University, Japan. While going through the index of the Sanskrit titles given in that catalogue, I was surprised to find under No. 972 the title Vimuktimārga-dhutaguṇa-nirdeśa nāma. I had just completed my work on the Chinese version of Vimuktimārga, which contained a chapter on dhutaguṇas, the qualities of purification. This entry in the Kanjur division of the Tibetan Tripiṭaka naturally attracted my attention and I immediately wrote to my friend, late Pandit Vidhushekhar Shastri, who was then at Shantiniketan, West Bengal, to send me a copy of the text from Tibetan xylograph available in the Shantiniketan library. He very kindly agreed to my request and I received a transcription of the text in 1933. I went through the text and I was agreeably surprised to find that the text contained a Tibetan version of the chapter on dhutaguṇas, which was included in the available Chinese version of Vimuktimārga.

Vimuktimārga and Dhutaṅga-nirdeśa*; the Author and his Translators into Chinese and Tibetan*

This Tibetan text is, as is clear from a remark at the end of the text, Collection No. 3, which includes a text called Dhutaguṇa-nirdeśa, that has been taken from a book called Vimuktimārga. The latter text is written by one Upatiṣya, or Upatissa as a Pali commentary calls him. This text is also known from its Chinese version and its original is lost. It was translated into Chinese by one who is variously called Saṃghapāla, Saṃghabhara or Saṃghavarman, as can be inferred from the various interpretations of the name found in Chinese books.[1961] This Chinese translator originally came from Funan, modern Thailand and Cambodia, went to China and became a disciple of an Indian monk called Guṇabhadra by name. He worked on his translations in China from 505–520 CE, and died in 520 CE while he was in his sixty-fifth year.[1962]

So it is clear that this text Vimuktimārga, or Vimuttimagga as is clearly mentioned by Dhammapāla in his commentary[1963] on the Visuddhimagga, did exist before the first quarter of the sixth century A.D. The third chapter of this book is on dhutāni, or "purifying practices." A comparison of this Tibetan text with the third chapter of the Chinese version of Vimuktimārga reveals a very close similarity, between the originals of both the Tibetan and Chinese versions. Both [1960] In Tibetan: Rnam par grol ba lam las sbyangs pa yon tan bstan pa zhes bya ba, see Skilling 1987, p. 23. This work, without the Tibetan text, is reproduced here with the permission of Mr. Bapat, the son of Prof. Bapat.

---

[1961] See Skilling 1994, pp. 171–72.

[1962] The translation might have been made in 515; see Skilling 1994, pp. 172–73.

[1963] Paramatthamañjūsā, Burmese edition, P. G. Mundyne Pitaka Press. (1909) p. 113; Zabu Meit Swe Press ed. p. 103; Sinh. ed. edited by M. Dhammānanda Thera. (Colombo, 1928 ff). p. 103; an older edition (editor not traced), p. 96; see also Vim. p. 35.

these texts further reveal a close similarity with chapter 2 of Buddhaghosa's Visuddhimagga, entitled Dhutaṅganiddesa. For a detailed comparison, readers are referred to my book Vimuttimagga and Visuddhimagga: A Comparative Study, Poona (1937), pp. 16–25. The colophon of this text tells us that it was translated and redacted into Tibetan by an Indian Pandit, Vidyākaraprabha, with the help of Tibetan Lo-tsā-ba, Dpal Brtsegs. This Vidyākaraprabha was one of the Indian Pandits, who were invited to Tibet by King Ralpa-chan[1964] of that country in the ninth century A.D. He is also credited with the Tibetan translation of Udānavarga.[1965]

As regards the date and authorship of Vimuktimārga or Vimuttimārga, we are still in no better position than when I wrote on this subject in my book Vimuttimagga and Visuddhimagga, that the work was written by Upatissa probably in South India about the 1st or 2nd century of the Christian era and that it was later accepted by Abhayagiri School in Ceylon, which had become a centre of many monks who migrated from India and of those that did not agree with the doctrinal points of the Mahāvihāra. Parallel passages in Vimuttimagga and Peṭakopadesa will also be a great help in this matter.[1966] Readers are referred to pp. liii–lv and pp. 133–135 of this book of mine. I should, however, like to discuss some of the latest views on this subject.[1967]

Rev Ñaṇamoli, in his Introduction (xxviii) to the Path of Purification, English translation of the Visuddhimagga, says: "That it (i.e. the Vimuttimagga) contains some minor[1968] points accepted by the Abhayagiri Monastery does not necessarily imply that it had any connection with that centre." He also contends (xiv) that "the Visuddhimagga was another[1969] early attempt by the Great Monastery[1970] in this period (4th century CE) to re-assert its supremacy through original Pali literary composition. There have been others too." He frankly admits (xiv), however: "Of course, much of this is very conjectural."

It appears Rev. Ñāṇamoli has not paid due attention to the various points-of-view on which the Vimuttimagga differs from the Visuddhimagga.[1971] And they include several which cannot be brushed aside as minor. In addition to Buddhaghosa's rejection of the Vimuttimagga-interpretation of passages commonly accepted in Vimuttimagga and Visuddhimagga, we have several views of philosophical nature advocated in the Vimuttimagga and rejected in the Visuddhimagga. The Vimuttimagga-conception about the purifying practices (kusaIattika-vinimutta), its advocacy of 1964 S. C. Das, Indian Pandits in the Land of Snow: pp, 49–50. Vim. Introd, p. liv.

---

1965 Rockhill's translation of Udānavarga, p. 201, note 2. Vidyākaraprabha is also known to have been connected with the Tibetan translations of Vinaya-vastu, Prātimokṣa-sūtra, Vinaya-vibhaṅga, Vinaya-kṣudraka-vastu and Bhikṣunī-vinaya-vibhaṅga while Dpal-brtseg's name, as a translator, is associated with the Tibetan translations of Spuṭārthā Abhidharma-kośa-vyākhyā and, as a reviser along with that of Vidyākaraprabha, with the Tibetan translation of Vinaya-vastu and Bhiksunī-Vinaya-vibhaṅga. For this see A. C, Banerjee's Sarvāstivāda Literature, pp. 81–88. In another place (ibid, p.50), however, he says: "Śrīkūṭa is mentioned as the translator of Vimuktimārga-Dhutaguṇa-Nirdeśa along with Vidyākarabrabha and of Vinaya-praśna-kārikā along with Dharmākara (ibid. p. 48). So evidently is appears that Śrī-kūta is simply a Sanskrit rendering of Tibetan Dpal-brtsegs.

1966 See Bapat "Vimuttimagga and Peṭakopadesa," Indian Culture (Calcutta) 3, 1937, 743–746.

1967 Rev A. P. Buddhadatta of Ambalangoda, Ceylon, in his Introduction to Saddhammappajjotikā, vol. I states (pp. vii–viii) that Upatissa, a great Vinaya teacher, preserved the Vinaya-pitaka in Ceylon during the period of Great Panic of fourteen years in the reign of Vaṭṭagāmaṇi, who occupied the throne in 44 BCE. This date he confirms later on p. v. of his brief Introduction to vol. II of Saddhamappajjotikā (PTS) on the evidence of Mahāvaṃsa (xxxiv. 2–3) that King Mahācūli Mahātissa gave alms to Mahāsumma with wages he received for his manual labour. This king was the adopted son of Vaṭṭagāmaṇi and ascended the throne in 17 BCE, and Mahāsumma was the disciple of Upatissa. Thus according to A. P. Buddhadatta, the date of Upatissa would be 1st century BCE. Rev. Ñāṇamoli of Island Hermitage, Ceylon, in his Introduction to his English translation of the Visuddhimagga ascribes (p. xiv) 4th century CE as the probable date of Upatissa and he further contends that there is nothing in the Vimuttimagga which cannot be reconciled with the teachings of the Mahāvihāra school. Recently (1961), an English translation of the Vimuttimagga by Rev. Ehara, Soma Thera and Kheminda Thera has been published by Dr. D. Ronald D. Weerasuria, Colombo, Ceylon. In his Introduction to this book, Rev. Kheminda suggests that there is equal probability of Upatissa being a Ceylonese monk and as regards his date he is found to be wavering between 1st or 2nd century CE. (p. xxxvii) and 4th century CE. (xliv) as suggested by Rev. Ñāṇamoli Thera.

1968 Italics mine.

1969 After Dīpavaṃsa.

1970 Mahāvihāra.

1971 Introd. to my Vimuttimagga and Visuddhimagga, pp. xxxviii–xlii.

fourteen cariyās as against six of Buddhaghosa, its advocacy of the extension of the Brahmavihāra-nimitta, its advocacy of thirty rūpas (material qualities) including middharūpa as against twenty-eight of Buddhaghosa, its interpretation of phala-samāpatti, etc., can by no stretch of imagination be called minor points. The inclusion of the middha among the rūpas is vehemently opposed not only in Visuddhimagga but also in other works of the Mahāvihāra school, such as Atthasālinī,[1972] Abhidhammāvatāra[1973] (of Buddhadatta), Paramatthamañjūsā[1974] (of Dhammapāla), Abhidhammaṭṭhasaṅgaha and the Vibhāvanī[1975] Commentary on the Abhidhammaṭṭhasaṅgaha. Had these been considered as minor points, there was no need of showing vehement opposition to these views. The Abhayagiri-inmates are branded as middhavādino. They were the strong opponents of the inmates of the Mahāvihāra and hence the latter would take every possible opportunity of refuting their views. We cannot brush aside also the testimony of Paramatthamañjūsā of Dhammapāla. The views ascribed by the latter to Abhayagiri-inmates have been identified with some in the Vimuttimagga. And so it may be said that Rev. Ñāṇamoli has given no sound proof (i) to reject the theory that the Vimuttimagga contained views, which were later on championed by the inmates of Abhayagiri, but rejected by those of Mahāvihāra, and (ii) to accept that it belonged to the Mahāvihāra School.[1976]

As regards the date, Rev. Ñāṇamoli himself admits that much of it is very conjectural[1977] and hence we may not pay much attention to it.

Rev. Kheminda Thera, in his Introduction (xxxvii–xli) to the Path of Freedom, English translation of the Vimuttimagga, has examined my arguments about the Indian origin of the Vimuttimagga, and has concluded (xii): "While it is not proved[1978] that the Vimuttimagga was written in Ceylon, it has been shown that the very reasons put forward to support the view that it must have been written in India, support equally well the view that it may well have been written in Ceylon."

Though what he says with regard to the use of the word caṇḍāla—that the statement made in a simile cannot be accepted as a statement upheld by the writer who uses the simile—may be conceded, his mention of contact of Ceylon with Tibet, as seen from the visit of Vanaratna, refers to a time several centuries later (14th–15th centuries CE). Vidyākaraprabha, who is responsible for this Tibetan translation, lived in the ninth century CE. As regards his evidence, about the development of the foetus, week by week, the passage he quotes (p. 174), from the Commentary on the Saṃyuttanikāya, explains the development up to the fifth week, and then jumps immediately to the 42nd week, while the Vimuttimagga gives continuous development up to the 28th week and then jumps to the 42nd week. So the evidence of Kheminda Thera is not adequate. As regards the other evidence, submitted by each of us, I leave it to the reader to weigh and judge for himself.

Subject Matter of the Text

It is well known that just as the Buddha rejected the life of indulgence in pleasures, so also he rejected a life of severe austerities for Buddhist monks. He rejected the plea of Devadatta, his rival cousin, that he should prescribe, as obligatory, stricter ways of livelihood for his monks, such as living in a forest and under a tree for all the year round, living on nothing but alms, accepting nothing but dusty rags for garments and abstaining from eating fish and meat,[1979] etc. On the principle of following a middle course, the Buddha rejected all these extreme forms of austerities. But, to encourage a life of simplicity and a life of few wants, he allowed his followers to take to some practices that would be helpful to the inculcation of these qualities.[1980]

At the very beginning of our text (1.2), are mentioned the aims and objects for the fulfillment of which, certain practices of purification are to be accepted by the Buddhist monks. They are (i) little 1972 Bhandarkar Institute ed. 5.80–94 (PTS ed. pp. 379–383).

---

1973 p. 72.

1974 Burmese ed. Mundyne Pitaka Press, vol. ii. 563–64.

1975 pp. 60–61 (Vidyodaya Tikā Publications. vol. 1).

1976 For the view that it does not belong to the Mahāvihāra school, see later topic No. 8 of this Introduction, p. xxix.

1977 See above p. xviii.

1978 Italics mine.

1979 Vin. ii. 197.

1980 See Text, Section 19, para 2, pp. 76–77.

desire, (ii) life of contentment, (iii) life of few wants, (iv) a strenuous life, (v) easy maintenance, (vi) penetrating knowledge, and (vii) complete destruction of yearning (tṛṣṇā). The practices that were intended to develop these qualities were, therefore, encouraged among the Buddhist monks. They were called practices of purification, dhutāni, dhutaṅgas or dhutaguṇas. They were not considered to be very essential practices, but if they were taken up by some, that would be considered as some special distinction. These practices seemed to have a gradual growth in the history of the holy practices of the Buddhist monks. In early literature,[1981] we find only a few being mentioned. The Great Elder Mahākassapa was considered to be a great exponent of these practices.[1982] But later in the history of Buddhism they seemed to have reached the limit of twelve, according to Mahāyāna sources, and thirteen,[1983] according to sources of old orthodox schools. In Buddhaghosa's Visuddhimagga, chapter II, the number given is thirteen,[1984] while reference-books like Mahāvyutpatti (1128–39), or Dharmasaṅgraha, XXXIV, or sūtras like Dvādaśa-dhuta-sūtra (Nanjio 452, Taishō, No. 783 in vol. XVII) give the number twelve.[1985]

Our text follows the tradition that recognises the thirteen practices of purification. This list corresponds to that of Buddhaghosa's Visuddhimagga, except in one case where it substitutes the "practice of taking measured food" for the practice of what is described as the "practice of taking food only in the begging bowl" (pattapiṇḍikaṅga). According to this practice, also, the spirit of the practice of measured food is observed, for he cannot accept any other pot for receiving his food. He has to remain content with what can be contained in his begging bowl. But it differs in other details.

Mahāvyutpatti omits the practice of moving in succession for food (sapadānacārikaṅgaṃ), while Dharmasaṅgraha omits the practice of living in a place as found (yathāsaṃstarika), and both of them substitute the practice of nāmatika, wearing namata, a kind of woollen cloth, for the "practice of measured food." So, evidently, it appears that there was no uniform list of such practices, and variation was permissible according to local or climatic conditions. The monks living in the cold regions of the Himalayas, Tibet and China, probably, thought it necessary to permit the use of a woollen cloth on account of extreme cold in those regions. The Tibetan word used for namata is, according to Mahāvyutpatti (1130), ḥphyiṅs pa, while Das gives the word phyiṅ pa, which he explains as a kind of wool or felt used by certain tribes of Tibet. With this may be compared the word namdā used for certain woollen cloth in Kashmir and other surrounding regions. It is, however, interesting to note that the Chinese version of the Dvādaśa-dhuta-sūtra, referred to above,[1986] also mentions only twelve practices, but rejects yathāsaṃstarika, and substitutes, like our text, the "practice of measured food" for the practice of nāmatika. It uses the word "ekabhaktika" for "aikāsanika" of Mvy 1132. But this difference is only in mere terminology. What is intended is one and the same.

Practices of Purification

What are these thirteen practices of purification? Two are connected with clothing, five are connected with food, another five with a dwelling-place, and the last one is connected with strong exertion—all of them aiming at the objects mentioned above.[1987]

All the thirteen practices of purification which are the subject matter of this text are intended to encourage a life of simplicity and a life of few wants. Among the advantages of these practices detailed in the exposition of each of them, we will find the advantage of "a life of few wants" specified in each of these practices. Next comes the mention of the advantage of the practice being "one of a good man" in all the thirteen practices except one, sapadānacārikā, moving about in [1981] See my article on Dhutaṅga in IHQ. XIII (1937;) pp. 44–51. See also A III 219–228 where only 10 are mentioned omitting tecīvarikā, sapadānacārika and piṇḍapātika. (Pañcaka-nipāta, chap. XIX Araññ-vagga).

---

[1982] A I 23; Divy 61,395.

[1983] See concluding part of note 3 on p. 5.

[1984] Also Mil 359 (Dev. ed. p. 357).

[1985] As an additional material on the subject of Dhuta, also see "Die Soghdischen Handschriftenreste des Britisches Museums im Umschrift und mit ubersetzungen, herausgegeben bei Hans Reichelt" (Bib. Bouddhique, part (i) No. 70. part (ii) No. 73), which contains a fragment not yet identified on Dhuta and Dhutaṅga (297 long lines, Bib. Bouddhique, i No. 70). This fragment follows one on Vimalakīrti-nirdeśa (207 long lines).

[1986] p. xxi.

[1987] p. xx.

succession from house to house for alms. It is a life of restraint that is recommended for an ascetic or recluse, and, as such, some of the practices are still found followed by the Brahmanical Brahmacārīs or by the ascetics. For instance, we still find the practice among the Brahmanical Brahmacārīs who have undergone the ceremony of initiation by the teacher (upana-yana), of taking their food only at one sitting. They are not permitted to get up from their seat while they are taking food. If they get up from their seat, they will not take food again. The idea is the same—a life of restraint, not to have attachment even for food. Similarly, we find still the practice followed by some bairāgīs, ascetics, that while they are expecting to get alms from a certain house, and it they find some delay in receiving the same, they are found to be moving forward and backward, only a step or two, in front of the house from which they expect to receive the alms. The idea is that they may not violate the practice of keeping moving, in succession from house to house, while begging their alms. With this compare Visuddhimagga 11. 32, where we find the expression "sadvāre pana pattaṃ vissajjeti": "he leaves the begging bowl at the door of a house." He would not wait for alms brought from front or from back. The present practice of these bairāgīs however, seems to be observance only in words and not in the spirit.

(i) The practice of "wearing a garment of dusty rags" implies a life of utmost simplicity. The material for his garments is to be sought by him on streets, market-place, or even a cemetery. They are to be washed clean and then used for making a garment (dhovitvā cīvaraṃ katvā. Vis. II.15).

(ii) The practice of "wearing three garments [only]" encourages a life of few wants. The Buddha has recommended the use of three garments only and restricting oneself to these three only was considered to be the right way of following the Buddha's command. It helps a life of free movement like that of a bird, without being bothered by the burden of any store laid by.

(iii) The practice of "one who lives on alms" is quite in consonance with the command of the Buddha in connection with the four reliances (niśrayas) on which alone a Buddhist monk can rely. If a monk receives any invitations for food or for special community-dinners, it should always be considered as something unexpected.

(iv) The practice of "one who moves on for food in succession from house to house" is intended to develop an attitude of impartiality for all kinds of householders, rich or poor, and to remove any kind of greed for rich and delicious food. Those who are greedy of such food are often in the habit of avoiding the houses of poor people where they are not likely to get such delicious food, by skipping over their houses and visiting those houses only where they would get such delicious food.

(v) The practice of "taking only one sitting for food" is intended to remove any attachment for one's food. To sit again and again for food would imply avariciousness for food and therefore such a thing has got to be avoided.

(vi) The practice of "taking measured food" is intended to avoid laziness. A Buddhist monk has to be always attentive, and abstaining from a large quantity of food helps him to attain that state as well as good health, and freedom from disease. There is a very salutary rule regarding the food to be taken by a Buddhist monk, that the food he takes is meant not for creating new diseases, but for just sustenance of his body so that his hunger may be satisfied. There is a saying ascribed to a monk in the Theragāthā (983):—

> Cattāro pañca ālope abhutvā udakaṃ pibe > alaṃ phāsu-vihārāya pahitattassa bhikkhuno.
> "A monk who has applied himself to a strenuous life should abstain from the last four or five morsels of food, and take water instead. That is quite enough to keep him fit in his pleasant mode of life."

It must also be noted that no occasion of exception is allowed in this practice.

(vii) The practice of "not taking any food again after one has finished his meal" is intended to avert gluttony. It encourages a life of simplicity and it renders one easy to be supported (subhara). It involves also moderation in food; and so it helps one to keep himself free from laziness.

(viii) The practice of "living in a forest" is intended to keep oneself free from attachments involved in worldly contacts. In a town or a village, one does not find a congenial atmosphere for meditation; for, one is often likely to be disturbed by the coming and going of people. One enjoys in a forest the beauty of nature and can receive the admonition of gods and other semi-divine beings.

(ix) The practice of "living in the vicinity of a tree" is in consonance with the Buddha's command with regard to the Four reliances, which includes residence under a tree as a normal expectation for a Buddhist monk. If he gets some sheltered place for his dwelling, it would be something on which he may not count. It removes any sense of selfish attachment to one's dwelling place. And here also he can get the benefit of admonition by gods.

(x) The practice of "living in the open" marks freedom for one in all the four directions. He is not bound by the consideration of finding a shelter even of a tree. Like the deer, he can freely move wherever he likes. It also means a life of exertion.

(xi) The practice of "living in a cemetery" is helpful in securing unpleasant objects (aśubha-nimitta) for meditation and, particularly, he can ponder upon death, which helps him to be watchful in his behaviour. It dispels all conceit in one's good health, removes all greed for worldly pleasures, creates feelings of disgust for them and it enables one to endure all sense of fear and terror. Here, we may as well note, lies the beginning of the life of Siddhas in later Vajrayāna Buddhism, where we find the Buddhist monks claiming super-human powers, and leading abnormal lives such as wandering through the cemeteries to be in communion with divine spirits for getting those super-human powers.

(xii) The practice of "living in a place as found" is also intended to avert a sense of clinging for the place where one lives. Among the dwelling-places that are allotted to Buddhist monks, there may be some that are good, some that are not so good. Whatever comes to one's lot, one may rest content with it. There are some who would like to have their dwelling-place at the front of the living-establishment, or on a higher level than that of other dwelling-places. There is thus the sense of selfish attachment in the minds of some people. We are reminded of Dhp. 73–44 where we are told of a foolish monk who thinks that he may get a place of precedence among monks and a position of authority in their dwelling-places, which simply increases desire and egoism.[1988]

(xiii) The practice of "sitting up" implies a very strenuous life of exertion, giving no quarter to the tendency of taking things easy. It means watchfulness where all laziness is ruled out. It is interesting to note the use of the word "cog bu" in this Tibetan version, which implies a small tent just enough for one only to sit. See note on this word in 16.1.

Thus it will be seen that the practices are intended to achieve the aims and objects already mentioned, namely:

(i) little desire,
(ii) life of contentment,
(iii) life of few wants,
(iv) a strenuous life,
(v) easy maintenance,
(vi) penetrating knowledge, and
(vii) complete destruction of yearning (tṛṣṇā).

The Method of Treatment

The author of this work, Upatiṣya, is very systematic in his treatment of the subject. After mentioning the aims and objects of these practices (1), he enumerates all the thirteen practices as classified (2), and explains them in brief (3). Then he proceeds to expound each of them (4–16) under the following three heads:

(i) How each of these practices is properly accepted by a solemn pronouncement by the practitioner.
(ii) Detailed enumeration of the advantages following the observance of each practice.
(iii) Adding further details throwing light on the practice and always ending with how each of these practices is vitiated. The same line of treatment is found in the Chinese version also.

The Buddha has always been recognised as a great practical man laying emphasis on the spirit rather than on the words of his instructions or commands. It has been noticed in several Vinaya rules[1989] that the Buddha was always prepared to amend his rules if it was found by experience that his earlier commands necessitated modifications. In the same way, we find here in section 17, occasions of expediency or special occasions of exception, or some unenviable circumstances, in

---

[1988] Asataṃ bhāvanam iccheyya purekkhāraṅ ca bhikkhusu āvāsesu ca issariyaṃ pūjā parakulesu ca iti bālassa saṅkappo icchā māno ca vaḍḍhati.

[1989] See history of Pācittiya rules 40, 57; also see Vin I 185–88.

which the laxity in the strict observance of those practices is permissible. As attention is to be paid to the spirit, and not to the word of the Buddha, non-observance of the practices on such special occasions is not considered as violation of the practices.

In the next section (18), we find how these thirteen practices can be condensed into eight, or still further into three only. In the next section (19), which may be styled as a "miscellaneous one" (prakīrṇaka), the author raises some five questions affecting all these practices and he answers them one by one. The questions are about the constituent factors of purification, the dharmas of purification, about the disposition of persons who delight in the possession of the qualities of purification, about the time-limit of these practices and about the exact significance of a person who is dhuta, purified, and dhutavāda, one who advocates purification. It is interesting to note that the interpretations of the terms dhuta and dhutavāda as given in the Tibetan text agrees with what we find in the Chinese version, while the Pali passage in the Vis. II.82 explaining these terms differs from both of them considerably. The text ends with two more supplementary questions (20) about the characteristic, function and manifestation of the quality of purification, as well as the beginning, middle and end of the same.

Variations in Different Versions

A comparative study of the Pali, Chinese and Tibetan versions of these thirteen practices of purification raises a problem. Although there is abundant similarity in all the three versions, there are at the same time differences in the details of some of them. Why should it be so?

For instance, the advantage of nissayānurūpa-paṭipatti, consonance with the (Four) Reliances, mentioned with regard to the practices of wearing dusty rags (4.2.1), of living on alms (3.2.1), and of living under a tree (12.2.1) is found only in the Pali and Tibetan versions. It is not found in the Chinese version. The four reliances form the four basic conditions on which the life of a monk is accepted.[1990] The teacher who initiates an entrant into the life of a monk is enjoined to repeat those conditions at the time of the initiation-ceremony, so that he may not have any misunderstanding about the rigours of life which he is launching upon. Such being the case, it is surprising that this advantage of consonance with the Buddha's command regarding the four reliances should be omitted from the Chinese version. Can we surmise that, in course of time, the Buddhist School to which the Chinese version belonged did not attach much importance to these conditions, as perhaps, it was more in favour with the slackening of the rigours of monastic rules, which became popular with the rise of the Mahāsaṃghika or Mahāyānika tendencies?

On the contrary, the Chinese version mentions in the case of all the thirteen practices the advantage that the "Practice is doubt-free".[1991] We have no such statement in the Pali or Tibetan versions.

With regard to the moral value of these practices of purification, we find different views in all the three different versions. According to the Pali version they are morally good (kusala), or indeterminate (abyākata); according to the Chinese version they are not fit to be called either morally good, or morally evil, or indeterminate; while in the Tibetan version we have a statement—the genuineness of which, however, is not beyond doubt (19.1a)—which asserts that they are fit to be called morally good (kusala). Obviously, all these three interpretations cannot belong to one and the same school. Therefore, we have to believe that each school took its material from a common source and introduced some changes in the details, according to the views advocated by that school.

Incidentally, we may point out here that the Vimuttimagga or Vimuktimārga, which denies that the purifying practices are either morally good, or morally evil, or indeterminate,[1992] cannot be a work of the Mahāvihāra school; for the Visuddhimagga, which is admitted to be a work of the Mahāvihāra school asserts that they are either morally good or indeterminate. It refers to this view (II.79) advocated in the Vimuttimagga (kusalattika-vinimmutta) and rejects it. Dhammapāla, in his

---

1990 See Vin. I. 58, 96.

1991 See Mil 351 (Dev. ed. 347): ku-vitakkacchedanaṃ; kaṅkhā-vitaraṇaṃ.

1992 The translators of the Vimuttimagga have made a mess of this passage in their English translation. The simple technical terms in Chinese for kusala, akusala, and abyākata are wrongly interpreted as skilful, unskilful and non-characterizable. The sentence "unskill is (not) austerity" makes no sense. (The Path of Freedom. English translation of the Vimuttimagga by Rev. Ehara, Soma Thera and Kheminda Thera, p. 37).

commentary Paramattha-mañjūsā on the Visuddhimagga, tells us that this view was advocated by the inmates of the Abhayagiri school, who said that the dhutaṅga was only a paññatti, a mere name, a conventional term, which connoted no moral significance. The Mahāvihāra cannot be supposed to hold two conflicting views. In view of the clearly expressed testimony of Dhammapāla, we cannot say that the Vimuttimagga could have been a work of the Mahāvihāra school. This evidence clearly goes against Ñāṇamoli and Kheminda who contend that there is nothing in the Vimuttimagga which cannot be reconciled with the teachings of the Mahāvihāra school.[1993]

In the expediencies of the practice of moving on for food in succession, the Chinese version mentions the sight of a Caṇḍāla at which he covers his begging bowl. We have no such mention in either the Pali[1994] or Tibetan[1995] version.

The nominclature of the practice of taking food in moderation as given in the Tibetan version agrees with that in Chinese, while the Pali nominclature is different.

In the practice of one who lives in a cemetery, we are told by the Chinese version to avoid places where there is constant burning, blazing, or weeping. On the other hand, the Pali and Tibetan versions show preference for such places.

The explanation of the terms dhuta and dhutavāda as given in the Tibetan version (19.5) agrees with that of the Chinese version, while the Pali version differs altogether from the same.

Thus the Tibetan version, it may be noted, does not agree in all respects with either the Pali version or the Chinese version. It shows occasional variations from both.

And all these variations can be explained on the ground that changes in a common material are made by the followers of each school, in consonance with their views, or their practices determined by local conditions, as in the case of the Tibetan practice of sitting up in a small narrow tent (cog bu, 16.1).

Essenes

Lastly, we may notice an interesting fact. It has been long surmised that "it is not improbable that some weight should be assigned to the conjecture that Buddhistic tendencies helped to shape some of the Essenic characteristics".[1996] The Essenes, the pre-christian saintly community of western Asia, lived, like the Buddhist Saṅgha, a community-life. They shared their food, clothing and residence in common, having no private property or money of their own. They abhorred sex-life, though a few did marry with some reservation. They had a high regard for truth. They rejected a prodigal or luxurious life and purposely accepted a life of simplicity or frugality and were very scrupulous in matters of piety. Their life seems to have been substantially governed by the consideration of those very aims and objects which have been detailed above. This will naturally confirm the view that the Essenes were influenced by the Buddhists.

Note

As far as Visuddhimagga is concerned, we have given references to the chapter and paragraph of the text edited by Professor Dharmānanda Kosambi, and published in the Harvard Oriental Series, or published in the Bhāratīya Vidyābhavana Series.

In the case of Mahāvyutpatti, references are given to the item-numbers of the Japanese edition along with its Sanskrit index, by Sakaki. Recently, a Tibetan index to the same by Kyoo Nishio, Kyoto, Japan, has been published, and it has been found to be very useful.

Abbreviations

A	Aṅguttaranikāya, P.T.S. edition
Das	S. C. Das, Indian Pandits in the Land of Snow, Calcutta, 1965,
Divy	Divyāvadāna
IHQ	Indian Historical Quarterly
Mil	Milindapañhā, P.T.S. edition

1993 See note 4 on topic 4 above, p. xvii.

1994 Vism II.31.

1995 See 17.4.1 and note * on the same, p. 67.

1996 See note * on p. 3.

Mvy	Mahāvyutpatti, Japanese edition in Sanskrit, Tibetan and Chinese by Sakaki
S	Saṃyuttanikāya, P.T.S. edition
Text	this text
Vin	Vinayapiṭaka
Vis	Visuddhimagga, edited by Henry Clark Warren and Prof. D. Kosambi, the references being to the number of chapters and paragraphs

Vimuktimārga-Dhutaguṇa-Nirdeśa

∫ 1. The Aims and Objects of the Practices of Purification.

1. Then there is the desire, in the practitioner of yoga (yogāvacara), who has thus attained the purity of good conduct, for the successful accomplishment of his practices. One who desires to acquire these qualities[1997] should properly accept the qualities of purification and remain [settled] there.

2. The proper acceptance, by the practitioner of yoga, of the qualities of purification means, to enumerate severally:

(i) to have little desire (alpecchatā, Mvy 2370),
(ii) to have contentment (santuṣṭih, Mvy 2216),
(iii) to have an extreme delimitation of one's wants (saṃlekha, Mvy 7012).
(iv) to commence strong exertion (vīryārambha, Mvy 963, 1939),
(v) to be easily supported (subharatā, Mvy 2377),
(vi) to have penetrating knowledge (pratisaṃvid, Mvy 197–200), and
(vii) to have complete destruction of yearning.[1998]

3. Having properly observed good conduct and [the practices in] the group of meditation, he remains in the lineage of the Noble[1999] and is observed settled in the best of qualities.

∫ 2. Thirteen qualities of Purification.

In this regard, there are thirteen[2000] qualities of purification:

(A) Two are connected with clothing:

(i) The practice of one who wears dusty [rags]: (pāṃśukūlika).
(ii) The practice of one who wears three garments [only] (traicīvarika).

(B) Five are connected with food:

(iii) The practice of one who lives an alms (paiṇḍapātika).
(iv) The practice of one who moves on [for food] in succession (Pali sapadānacārika)[2001].
(v) The practice of one who has only one sitting for his food (aikāsanika).
(vi) The practice of one who takes measured food (bhojana-mātrajña).
(vii) The practice of one who never takes [any food] after he has finished his meal (khalu-paścād-bhaktika).

(C) Five are connected with a dwelling-place:

(viii) The practice of one who lives in a forest (āraṇyaka).

1997 On this subject see my articles in Indian Historical Quarterly XIII (1936) pp 44–51. ABORI XXII (1941) pp. 116–119 and New Indian Antiquary (1944) Nos. 3 & 4.

1998 It is interesting to note that substantially these very aims and objects of life form the basic motives of the very simple and frugal life of the pious community of the Essenes of western Asia. (See the concluding remarks in the article on "Essenes" in the Encyclopedia of Religion and Ethics).

1999 Cf. Pali Vism II.1 Porāṇe ariyavaṃse patiṭṭhito.

2000 See Mahāvyutpatti I 128–39, where we have only twelve practices as in Dharma-saṅgraha XXXIV. The list in our text agrees with the list of Vism II.2, except that it has, like Vimuttimagga, bhojanamātrajñatā for pattapiṇḍika of Buddhaghosa. Mvy omits sapadānacārika, and Dharmasangraha omits yathā-saṃstarika, while they substitute nāmatika for bhojanamātrajña of this text, or pattapiṇḍika of Buddhaghosa. Another Chinese text (Nanjio No. 492, Taisho ed. XVII, No. 783) gives a list of twelve including bhojanamātrajña, does not give nāmatika and omits altogether yathāsaṃstarika.

Also see Alex Wayman: Analysis of the Śrāvakabhūmi Manuscript. p. 82: "Katham dhuta-samanvāgato bhavati? (Prāpta) piṇḍapatiko bhavati sāvadāna-piṇḍapātikaḥ, ekāsanikaḥ, khalu-paścād-bhaktikaḥ, traicīvariko, nāmatikaḥ, pāṃsukūlikaḥ, āraṇyako, vṛkṣamūlikaḥ, at(? bh)yavakāśikaḥ, śmāśāniko, naiṣadyikaḥ, yathāsaṃstarikaḥ. ... Tatra piṇḍapātikatvaṃ, aviśeṣenārabhya dvādasa bhavanti, prabhedaṃ punaḥ ārabhya trayodaśaḥ." Prāpta, perhaps, is a wrong Sanskritisation for Pali patta (pātra). Any way, the author of Śrāvakabhūmi considers the first two in the above-given list to be two varieties of piṇḍapātika, and so, according to him, the dhutas are thirteen when they are taken separately, and twelve when they are combined into one.

2001 See Mvy 8567, which gives sāvadāna for these Tibetan characters.

(ix) The practice of one who lives in the vicinity of a tree (vṛkṣamūlika).
(x) The practice of one who lives in the open (lit. without any cover above): (ābhyavakāśika).
(xi) The practice of one who lives in a cemetery (śmāśānika).
(xii) The practice of one who lives in a place as found (i.e. as is assigned): (yathāsaṃstarika).

(D) One is connected with strong exertion:

(xiii) The practice of one who sits up (naiṣadika or naiṣadyika).

∫ 3. The Meaning of the Thirteen Practices.

1. Here, the inherent constituent part of one who wears dusty [rags] is the practice of one who wears dusty rags. The literal meaning of the rest also should be said likewise.

2. (i) Here the practice of one who wears dusty rags means giving up clothes [offered] by householders.
(ii) The practice of one who wears three garments [only] means to give up the fourth garment.
(iii) The practice of one who lives on alms means to give up going on invitation.
(iv) The practice of one who moves on for food in succession means to give up movements[2002] according to one's convenience,[2003] [i. e., with breaks in succession].
(v) The practice of one who has only one sitting for his food means to give up sitting for food a second time.
(vi) The practice of one who takes measured food[2004] means to give up taking a large quantity of food.
(vii) The practice of one who never takes any food after he has finished his meal means to give up any extra food.
(viii) The practice of one who lives in a forest means to give up living in a village with its surroundings.
(ix) The practice of one who lives in the vicinity of a tree means to give up living under a cover.
(x) The practice of one who lives in the open means to give up a cover or to give up living in the vicinity of a tree.
(xi) The practice of one who lives in a cemetery means to give up living in any other place.
(xii) The practice of one who lives in a place as found means to give up dwelling places for which one may have an attachment.
(xiii) The practice of one who sits up means to give up lying on a bed.[2005]

∫ 4. (I) The Practice of One who wears Dusty Rags.

1. If it is asked: Of these, how is the practice of one who wears dusty [rags] properly accepted?

[the answer is:]

Having seen the disadvantages (ādīnava) in seeking clothes of householders, in wearing them and in begging them of others, and seeing the advantages of the practice of one who wears dusty rags, he continues in the use of them, and he utters these words: "From today onwards, I give up clothes of house-holders and [thus] properly accept the practice of one who wears dusty rags."

Thus it is properly accepted.

2. Now here are the advantages[2006] of the practice of one who wears dusty rags:

(i) Consonance with the best niśrayas[2007] (the four reliances of a Buddhist monk). (Cf. Vis. II,21:

[2002] This seems to correspond to Vism II.31: loluppacāra-paṭikkhepa.

[2003] As per emendation brñoṅs suggested in the text.

[2004] This is the nomenclature adopted by Upatissa instead of Buddhaghosa's pattapiṇḍika See Vimuttimagga, ii, 31–32.

[2005] Vism II. 73 seyyam paṭikkhipāmi.

[2006] Cf. Vism II.21 for all these advantages.

[2007] This expression is used at least three times in this text. See below 6.2(i), 12.2 (i), where slight variations are to be noted. The expression daṅ mthun pa is also found in 11.2 (vii); and 16.2 (vii). For Nissayas see Vin. I 96. The nissayas on which the Buddhist monk has to depend are: (1) the food obtained by begging alms, (ii) the clothes made of dusty rags, (iii) place of shelter under a tree, and (iv) medicine in the form of ill-smelling things such as urine, etc.

nissayānurūpa-paṭipatti-bhāvo).

(ii) No dependence upon others in one's actions (aparāyatta-vuttitā).

(iii) No performance of actions which are not proper (cf. samaṇa-sāruppatā).

(iv) No hankering for the objects used by one (paribhoga-taṇhāya abhāvo).

(v) No greed.

(vi) No [danger of] being robbed by thieves and robbers (cora-bhayena abhayatā).

(vii) No consideration of time (i.e., can be accepted at any time).

(viii) Very little defilement.

(ix) It has the characteristic of diminishing one's wants (saṃlekha).

(x) It is the practice of a good man.

(xi) It has the quality of creating faith in others (pāsādikatā).

(xii) It becomes an example to be observed and imitated by later generations (pacchimāya janatāya diṭṭhānugati-āpādanaṃ).

(xiii) Increase in the rightful behaviour (sammā-paṭipatti-anubrūhanaṃ).

(xiv) One gets praised by the Conqueror (jina) (Mvy 12).

And such other things are the advantages of the practice of one who wears dusty rags.

3. Now, if one is asked:

(i) Of how many kinds is this practice of one who wears dusty rags?

(ii) Who accepts this practice? and

(iii) How is this practice violated?

[the answer is:]

(i) The dusty rags are of two kinds:

(a) those which are without an owner; and

(b) those which by their very nature are called "condemned by people."

In this connection,

(a) dusty rags[2008] which are found in a market-place (Pali pāpaṇika), or a garment that is worn after being prepared out of many pieces picked up on a high road (Pali rathiyā-coḷa)—these are dusty rags without an owner.

(b) that which has its fringes cut (dasā-chinna), that which has its end completely cut into holes (antacchinna), that which is gnawed at by a bullock (go-khāyita), that which is gnawed at by a mouse (undūra-khāyita), that which is [partly] burnt by fire (aggi-daḍḍha), that which is ya stags pa[2009] or gsags pa, that which was used in connection with a dead body (sosānika), or that which is a special characteristic of a heretic—these are dusty rags which are by their very nature called "condemned by people."

(ii) The wearer of dusty rags is he who gives up clothes given by a house-holder.

(iii) When one has accepted clothes given by a house-holder, it means the violation of the practice of one who wears dusty rags.

§ 5. (II) The Practice of One who wears Three Garments [only].

1. If it is asked: How is the practice of one who wears three garments [only] properly accepted?

[the answer is]:

Having seen the degrading faults in seeking extra garments, in putting them on and in making them acceptable, and having seen the advantages in the practice of one who wears three garments [only], one utters these words: "From today onwards, four clothes are abandoned and so the practice of one who wears three garments [only] is properly accepted."

Thus it is properly accepted.

2. Now here are the advantages of the practice of one who wears three garments[2010] [only]:

[2008] Many of the terms here seem to correspond exactly with those found in Vism II. 15–16.

[2009] None of the readings is satisfactory and so it is not clear as to what is exactly meant. Can the reading be gsags? Das, on the authority of Jäschk, interpretes gsagpa as "to sew together."

[2010] Many expressions are found in Vism II.25 corresponding to what we get here.

(i) Possession of conduct of one who is at the top;
(ii) Complete abandonment of the tendency to hoard (sannidhi-parivajjanatā);
(iii) Little burden (sallahuka-vutti);
(iv) Contentment [with garments] just enough for the sustenance of the body (cf. santuṭṭho kāya-parihārakena cīvarena);
(v) Going wherever one likes, like a bird (cf. pakkhino viya... gamanaṃ);
(vi) It is the practice of a good man;
(vii) It has the characteristic of diminishing one's wants.

And such other things are the advantages of the practice of one who wears three garments [only].

3. If one is asked:

(i) Which are the garments of which this practice of wearing three garments [only] consists?
(ii) Who is the one that wears three garments [only]?
(iii) By what is the practice of one who wears three garments [only] violated?

[the answer is:]

(i) Saṅghāṭi (the uppermost garment worn in cold days), uttarāsaṅga (garment covering the upper part of the body) and antarāvāsaka inner garment)—these are three garments;
(ii) One who wears three garments [only] is the one who gives up the fourth garment;
(iii) When one has worn the fourth garment, it means the violation of the practice of one who wears three garments [only].

6. (III) The Practice of One who lives on Alms.

1. If it is asked: How is the practice of one who lives on alms properly accepted?

[the answer is:]

Having seen [the following] disadvantages in going on invitation[2011]

(i) loss of one's own work;
(ii) coming under the control of others;
(iii) meeting disagreeable persons; and
(iv) the danger that may follow by remaining in their company; and seeing the advantages of the practice of one who lives on alms, one says the following words: "From today onwards, going on invitations is abandoned; and hence the practice of one who lives on alms is properly accepted."

Such is the proper acceptance.

2. Now here are the advantages[2012] of the practice of one who lives on alms:

(i) Consonance with the best niśrayas[2013] (the four reliances of a Buddhist monk): (nissayānurūpa-paṭipatti-bhāvo, Vis. II. 29)
(ii) No dependence upon others (a-parāyatta-vuttitā).
(iii) No support from others (a-para-positā).
(iv) No laziness.
(v) Egoism is vanquished (mānappahānaṃ).
(vi) Entertaining thoughts of doing good to all living beings (parānuggaha-kiriyā).
(vii) Turning away from savoury objects (rasataṇhā-vinodanaṃ).
(viii) No impediment in any direction (cātudisatā).
(ix) It is the practice of a good man (cf. parisuddhajīvatā).
(x) It has the characteristic of diminishing one's wants (sallekha-vuttitā).

And such other things are the advantages of the practice of one who lives on alms.

3. If it is asked:

(i) Of how many kinds does an invitation consist?

[2011] Das remarks (p. 288) that mgron is also sometimes wrongly spelt as ḥdron(?), atithi, nimantraṭṭa. Cf. Mvy 5763 See above 3 (iii) where we have the reading mgron du, while A and H read ḥgron du, which reading is also found below 3.3. See Mvy 9357, 9434 also.

[2012] See Vism II. 29 for many of the terms that occur here.

[2013] See note on this in 4.2 (i).

(ii) Who is the one that is living on alms?
(iii) In what way is the practice of one living on alms violated

[the answer is:]

(i) The invitation is of three kinds. Food is of five[2014] kinds. To be invited as a guest for today, or tomorrow, or whenever one is pleased, for partaking of food—whichever of the five is suitable to him—this is invitation.
(ii) One living on alms means one who gives up going on invitation.
(iii) When one has gone[2015] on an invitation, it is a violation of the practice of one who lives on alms.

7. (IV) The Practice of One who moves on for Food in succession.

1. If it is asked:

How is the practice of one who moves an [for food] in succession properly accepted?

[the answer is:]

Having seen the disadvantage that there is no attenuation of one's wants, when one gets food that is constant and the like, by going only to those places wheresoever is constantly available food, plenty and excellent, and seeing the advantages of moving a-begging in succession, he utters these words: "From today onwards, obtaining constant fond [only] is abandoned and thus the practice of one who moves on for food in succession is properly accepted."

In this way this practice is properly accepted.

2. Now here are the advantages[2016] of moving on [for food] in succession:

(i) Evenness of mind [for all beings].
(ii) compassion in one's heart [for all living beings]: (samānānukampatā).
(iii) Abandonment of selfish [attachment] for any family (kulamaccherappahānaṃ).
(iv) No dangers that follow [frequent] visits to a family (kulūpakādīnavābhāvo) .
(v) No rejoicing at invitations (avhānānabhinandanā).
(vi) No [bother of] selecting good food (cf. abhihārena anatthikatā).
(vii) Complete freedom from strong attachment to people.
(viii) Abstaining from moving together in the company of others.
(ix) It has the characteristic of diminishing one's wants.

And such others are the advantages of the practice of moving on [for food] in succession.

3. If it is asked:

(i) What is moving on for food in succession?
(ii) Who has given up movements according to one's convenience[2017] (brñoṅs)?
(iii) By what is the practice of moving on in succession violated?

[the answer is:]

(i) To move on in succession means in the movements of a monk living on alms, to take the first house and then to go in succession.
(ii) One who moves on in succession has given up movements according to convenience.
(iii) When one has moved according to one's convenience, it means the violation of the practice of moving on in succession.

§ 8. (V) The Practice of One who has only One Sitting for his Food.

1. If it is asked:

How is the practice of one who has only one sitting [for his food] properly taken up?

[the answer is:]

One sees the disadvantage in that there is no attenuation of one's wants, when one has two sittings [for food], or when one eats his food at repeated sittings, for his sustenance, and seeing the

---

[2014] Does this refer to the five delicacies of ghee (sappi), butter (navanīta), oil (tela), honey (madhu) and molasses (phāṇita)?

[2015] For the original expression khas len pas, see below 14.3(iii) and note on the same; also 16.3(ii).

[2016] Cf. Vism II.33.

[2017] See note on 3 I. (iv) about the emendation suggested.

advantage of taking food at one sitting, he utters these words: "From today onwards, taking food at two sittings is abandoned and [thus] the practice of taking food at one sitting is properly accepted."

In this way this practice is properly accepted.

2. Here are the advantages of taking food at one sitting:—

(i) Food is digested,
(ii) No excessive desire [is left]: (atricchatāya pahānaṃ).
(iii) No excessive eating of food.
(iv) Little desire (appicchatā).
(v) Good fair complexion.
(vi) No spoiling of one's work.
(vii) One has a pleasant life[2018] (phāsu-vihāra).
(viii) It is the practice of a good man.
(ix) It has the characteristic of diminishing one's wants.

And such other things are the advantages of the practice of one who has only one sitting [for his food].

3. If it is asked:

(i) Of how many kinds is that one sitting [only, for food]?
(ii) Who is the one that has one sitting [for food]?
(iii) What is meant by end of food?
(iv) By what is the practice of having only one sitting [for food] violated?

[the answer is:]

(i) One sitting is of three kinds:

(a) that which ends with the ending of sitting (āsana-pariyantika);
(b) that which ends in [the use of] water [for washing] (udaka-pariyantika);
(c) that which ends with [the finishing of] food [that is already served] (bhojana-pariyantika).

Of these,

(a) that which ends with the ending of sitting means after food, one gets up from his seat and eats no further.
(b) that which ends in [the use of] water means: after food, while he still continues to sit on his seat, he takes water in his begging-bowl and after that he takes no further food.
(c) that which ends with [the finishing of] food [that is already served] means: after the last morsel from the food [that is already served] is swallowed, he takes no more food.

(ii) One having one sitting only for food is he who gives up two [different] sittings and taking food there.

(iii) The end of food means anything that is to be swallowed, howsoever small it may be, not included in water or medicine, is not[2019] permissible.

(iv) When one has had two sittings and has eaten there, the practice of one who has only one sitting [for food] is violated.

§ 9. (VI) The Practice of One who takes Measured Food.

1. If it is asked:

How is the practice of one who takes measured food properly taken up?

[the answer is:]

Having seen the dangers that when food is taken in a large quantity, heaviness of the body and

---

[2018] Perhaps the text needs to be emended into reg par gnas which, according to Mvy 6288, is equivalent of sparśa-vihāra in Sanskrit, or phāsu-vihāra in Pali.

[2019] Ma will have to be inserted before ruṅ ba to yield the required sense as per context. Cf. Pāli Sace pi manussā 'therena na kiñci bhutam'ti sappi-ādīni haranti bhesajjattham eva vaṭṭati, na āhārattham: If people bring ghee and the like thinking that the Elder has not eaten anything it should be taken only as a medical prescription and not as food.

satiety (phul) is produced, as well as a great gross desire and that thereby it would not lead to attenuation of one's wants, one sees the advantages of taking measured food and then he utters these words: "From today onwards, taking a large quantity of food is given up and thus the practice of one who takes measured food is properly taken up."

In this way this practice is properly accepted.

2. Now here are the advantages[2020] of the practice of one who takes measured food:

(i) Satiety is not produced.
(ii) Measure of food can be estimated (āhāre payojanamatta-dassitā?)
(iii) One knows the weak point (gnad, marma)[2021] of taking a large quantity of food.
(iv) One diminishes the evil nature[2022] of body.
(v) One gives up any greed for the same [body].
(vi) One knows little disease (appābādhatā).
(vii) One gives up completely the overcomings of [evil][2023] (pariyuṭṭhāna).
(viii) It is the practice of a good man.
(ix) It has the characteristic of diminishing one's wants.

And such others are the advantages of the practice of one who takes measured food.

3. If it is asked:

(i) How should one take the measure of his food?
(ii) Who is the one that takes measured food?
(iii) By what is this practice of one who takes measured food violated?

[the answer is:]

(i) Having received a little measure of boiled rice and rice-pap in his begging-bowl], he reflects upon some indication of the measure [of his sufficiency]. Gradually, he becomes, later, conversant with an indication which tells him to take no more. By practice, he becomes conversant with his measure of food.
(ii) One who takes measured food is the one who gives up a large quantity of food.
(iii) If any excessive quantity of food is taken, the practice of one who takes measured food is violated.

§ 10. (VII) The Practice of One who takes No Extra Food after Meal.

1. If it is asked:

How is the practice of one who never takes any food after he has finished his meal properly accepted?

[the answer is:]

Having seen the disadvantages that by eating extra food,

(i) satiety is produced;
(ii) one becomes dependent upon others[2024] [in one's actions]; and
(iii) one's wants are not limited;

one sees the advantages of the practice of one who never takes any food after he has finished his meal and he utters these words: "From today onwards, I have given up extra food and [thus] I have properly accepted the practice of one who never takes any food after he has finished his meal."

Thus this practice is properly taken up.

2. Now the advantages of the practice of not taking any food after meal are these:

(i) All expectations are completely cut off.
(ii) One can be easily supported (subharatā).
(iii) No dependence upon others [in one's actions].

2020 Cf. Vism II.41.

2021 Mvy 4943. The meaning is not quite clear.

2022 Mvy 2102 dauṣṭhulya

2023 Mvy 2137 paryavasthāna.

2024 See 4.2. (ii) above and below 10.2 (iii); Das gives rag lus pa meaning "dependent upon." But our text in all the three places reads rag las pa.

(iv) One abandons altogether storing up of things (cf. nirāmisa-sannidhitā).
(v) No seeking of food again (cf. punapariyesanāya abhāvo).
(vi) No excessive desire.
(vii) No satiety is produced.
(viii) It is the practice of a good man.
(ix) It has the characteristic of diminishing one's wants.

And such other things are the advantages of the practice of taking no food after meals.

3. If it is asked:

(i) Of how many kinds is this practice of not taking food after meal?
(ii) Who is the one that takes no food after meal?
(iii) By what is the practice of taking no food after meal violated?

[the answer is:]

(i) Not to accept food after meal is of two kinds:
(a) to put an end to extra [food];
(b) to put a limit to [the quantity of] food taken.

Of these,

(a) putting an end to extra food means that one, after having eaten and after having refused to take any more, does not eat.
(b) putting a limit to the quantity of food[2025] that is taken, means that after having taken a share that is appropriate to himself, he takes no more.

(ii) One who accepts no food after meal is the one who gives up any extra food.
(iii) When one has taken an extra meal, the practice of one who takes no food after meal is violated.

11. (VIII) The Practice of One who lives in a Forest.

1. If it is asked:

How is the practice of one who lives in a forest properly taken up?
[the answer is:]
Having seen the disadvantages that when one stays in a village with its surroundings,

(i) one gets disturbed by an uncongenial place;
(ii) one's greeds are aroused; and
(iii) one remains attached [to worldly things];

and seeing the advantages in the practice of one who lives in a forest, he utters these words: "From today onwards residence in a village with its surroundings is given up and thus the practice of one who lives in a forest is properly taken up."

In this way [the practice] is properly taken up.

2 Now, the advantages[2026] in the practice of one who lives in a forest are these:

(i) Abandonment of an uncongenial place.
(ii) One can properly teach the ten bases of conversation[2027] (dāśa kathāvastūnī).
(iii) [One can enjoy] extreme beauty of nature.
(iv) Admonition by gods.
(v) No striving to procure the pleasures of worldly attachments[2028] (cf. a-saṃsaṭṭho in Vis. II. 55).
(vi) Relishing the happiness in solitude (pavivekasukhaṃ assādeti).
(vii) Congeniality to meditation because of scarcity of [worldly] noise. (cf. bhabbo aladdhaṃ vā samādhiṃ paṭiladdhuṃ laddhaṃ vā rakkhituṃ).
(viii) It is the practice of a good man.
(ix) It has the characteristic of diminishing one's wants.

2025 The Chinese text mentions "twenty-one mouthfuls."
2026 Cf. Vism II. 54–55.
2027 Mvy 7674.
2028 Mvy 6535.

And such other things are the advantages in the practice of one who lives in a forest.

3. If it is asked:

(i) What is the end of residence in a forest?
(ii) Who is the one that lives in a forest?
(iii) By what is the practice of one who lives in a forest violated?

[the answer is:]

(i) A village, the precincts of a village, the surrounding wall of a pleasure-resort (ārāma), the neighbourhood of a pleasure-resort—these are not included in a forest. A bow is equal to four cubits of a medium-sized man. If one resides or sleeps within a distance of five hundred bows[2029] of this [type, from a village] then there comes the end of residence in a forest.
(ii) One who lives in a forest is the one who gives up residence in a village with its surroundings.
(iii) When one has lived in a village with its surroundings, it is the violation of the practice of one who lives in a forest.

§ 12. (IX) The Practice of One who lives in the vicinity of a Tree.

1. If it is asked: How is the practice of one who lives in the vicinity of a tree properly accepted?

[the answer is:]

Having seen the following disadvantages when one takes shelter in a covered place:

(i) that one has to take up [the trouble of] keeping the place clean and tidy;
(ii) that one has to solicit [the help of] others; and
(iii) that it [implies] a life of enjoyment; and also seeing the advantages in the practice of one who lives in the vicinity of a tree, he utters these words: " From today onwards, living under a cover is given up and thus the practice of living in the vicinity of a tree is properly accepted."

Thus this practice is properly taken up.

2. Now the advantages[2030] in the practice of one who lives in the vicinity of a tree are these:

(i) Consonance with the best niśrayas[2031].
(ii) It has the nature of diminishing one's wants.
(iii) It means the abandonment of delight that one takes in [worldly] actions (cf. kammārāmatānam abhāvo).
(iv) Admonition by gods (cf. devatāhi sahavāsitā).
(v) Giving up feelings of selfish possessiveness for a dwelling place (cf. senāsana-macchera abhāvo).
(vi) One cuts off completely greedy desire.
(vii) It is the practice of a good man.
(viii) It is diminishing one's wants.[2032]

And such other things are the advantages of the practice of one who lives in the vicinity of a tree.

3. If it is asked:

(i) How much is the extent of the vicinity of a tree?
(ii) What kinds of (lit. what-like) trees are to be avoided?
(iii) Who is the one who lives in the vicinity of a tree?
(iv) By what is the practice of one who lives in the vicinity of a tree violated?

[the answer is]:

(i) As much extent as is covered by the shade of a tree at the time of mid-day sun and as much extent as is showered upon by the leaves when there is no wind—up to that is the extent

---

2029 Vism II. 49 Araññakaṃ nāma senāsanaṃ pañcadhuñusatikam pacchimaṃ.
2030 Cf. Vism II 58–59.
2031 See 4.2. (i); 6.2. (i).
2032 It seems to be redundant. It has already come above (ii) of the vicinity of a tree.

(ii) By he who lives in the vicinity of a tree are to be avoided [a tree with] an old worn-out trunk, a tree that is hollow within, and a tree that is rotten by a disease[2033].

(iii) One who lives in the vicinity of a tree is the one who gives up living under a cover.

(iv) When one has lived under a cover, the practice of one who lives in the vicinity of a tree is violated.

§ 13. (X) The Practice of One who lives in the open.

1. If it is asked: How is the practice of one who lives in the open (lit. with no cover above) properly taken up?

[the answer is]:

Having seen the disadvantage in that it does not lead to diminishing one's wants, if one has to

(i) seek a covered place; or,

(ii) seek a dwelling place in the vicinity of a tree, and hold on to them,[2034] he utters these words: "From today onwards, a cover and living in the vicinity of a tree are given up and [thus] the practice of one who lives in the open is properly taken up."

Thus [this practice] is properly taken up.

2. Now these are the advantages[2035] of living in the open:

(i) Exertion is not dispensed with.

(ii) Sloth and torpor are given up: (thīnamiddha-panūdanaṃ).

(iii) The state of being like deer [free from any attachment]: (migā viya asaṅga-cārino).

(iv) He can go in all the four directions (cātuddisatā).

(v) One has not to depend upon anything (rten pa med pa).

(vi) It is the practice of a good man.

(vii) It has the characteristic of diminishing one's wants.

And such other things are the advantages of the practice of one who lives in the open.

3. If it is asked:

(i) Who is he that lives in the open?

(ii) By wants is the practice of one who lives in the open violated?

[the answer is:]

(i) One who lives in the open is he who gives up a cover as well as living in the vicinity of a tree.

(ii) When one has lived under a cover or in the vicinity of a tree, the practice of one who lives in the open is violated.

§ 14. (XI) The Practice of One who lives in a Cemetery.

1. If it is asked: How is the practice of one who lives in a cemetery properly taken up?

[the answer is:]

Having seen the disadvantages that in any other place:

(i) one has no feelings of aversion [for worldly things, nirvid, Pali nibbidā] and

(ii) that there is enough of absence of watchfulness;

and seeing the advantages of living in a cemetery, he utters these words: "From today onwards, I give up staying in a place other [than a cemetery] and so the practice of living in a cemetery is properly taken up."

Thus [this practice] is properly taken up.

2. Now the advantages[2036] of the practice of one who lives in a cemetery are these:

[2033] Because of some internal disease such as that of being eaten up by worms and insects.

[2034] It is not clear why the clause concerning the advantages is not given here, the clause which we may expect following the pattern in previous cases.

[2035] Cf. Vism II. 62–63.

[2036] Cf. Vism II. 67.

(i) Attainment of pondering upon death.
(ii) Securing unpleasant objects (asubha-nimitta) [for meditation].
(iii) Becoming highly respected by men.
(iv) Becoming highly respected by non-human beings: (amanussānaṃ garubhāvanīyatā).
(v) A life of attentiveness is produced: (appamādavihāritā).
(vi) Removal of greed for pleasures of senses (kāmarāga-vinodanam).
(vii) Abundance of aversion [for worldly things] (yid ḥbyuṅ)[2037] (cf. saṃvega-bahulatā).
(viii) Endurance of fear and terror (bhayabherava-sahanatā).
(ix) Abandonment of conceit in one's life (ārogyamadappahānaṃ)
(x) Proper reflection again and again upon the nature of one's body (cf. kāya-sabhāva-dassanaṃ, Vis. II.67).
(xi) It is the practice of a good man.
(xii) It has the characteristic of diminishing one's wants.

And such others are the advantages of the practice of one who lives in a cemetery.

3. If it is asked:

(i) In what kinds of cemeteries residence is to be taken?
(ii) Who is the one that lives in a cemetery?
(iii) By what is the practice of one who lives in a cemetery violated?

[the answer is:]

(i) Firstly, one has to take residence in a cemetery where there is constant[2038] burning, smoke and blazing; or one where there is smoke and the like; then, any other cemetery which will afford him a suitable residence.

By one who lives in a cemetery, a grass-hut or a house is not to be built in a cemetery. He should not make his residence where the wind blows from above or from below, or in a place of doubtful nature.

He should not partake of a preparation [chur bed] of fish, meat, milk, sesame-oil, or a meal of grains like Mukuṣṭa or Māṣā. He should not give his begging-bowl in a gift. He should not stay in a house.[2039]

When a large crowd of people approaches, he takes his stool,[2040] his holy garments and his round bowl and goes to a place not very far from the burning ground (sreg pa nas). If he makes his residence in a cemetery that is enclosed by a stone-wall, he has not to do such things as to take his stool, holy garments and round bowl and then go back when the dawn has broken.

(ii) One who lives in a cemetery is he who abandons residence in any other place.
(iii) The practice of one who lives in a cemetery is violated, if he approaches[2041] a place of residence in any other place.

§ 15. (XII) The Practice of One who lives in a place as found.

1. If it is asked: How is the practice of one who lives in a place as found properly accepted?

[the answer is:]

Having seen the disadvantage that a dwelling place [where one can stay and sleep] for which one may have a passionate clinging gives rise to harm with respect to one another and also seeing advantages in this practice of one who lives in a place as found, one utters these words: "From today onwards, I give up a dwelling place for which there may be a passionate clinging and [so] I properly accept the practice of one who lives in a place as found."

Thus [this practice] is properly taken up.

[2037] Mvy 6808, 6809, 6810, 6811 give yid hyuṅ ba, kun tu skyo ba, yid byuṅ ba and yid skyo ba for udvigna, saṃvega, nirvid, and udvega respectively.

[2038] Ukkaṭṭhena dhuvaḍāha-dhuvakuṇapa-dhuvarodanāni atthi tatth' eva vasitabbaṃ. Majjhimassa tīsu ekasmiṃ pi sati vaṭṭati. Mudukassa vuttanayena susānalakkhaṇaṃ pattamatte vaṭṭati.

[2039] Vism II.65: Amanussānaṃ piyaṃ tilapiṭṭha-māsabhatta maccha-maṃsa khīra-tela-guẏādi-khajjabhojjaṃ na sevitabhaṃ ... kulagehaṃ na pavisitabbaṃ.

[2040] Asandī. Mvy 6930

[2041] Mvy 6483 giveṣ upagacchati so the interpretation of khas len pa, which literally means to accept or consent by mouth. See above 6.3. (iii): also below 16.3. (ii).

2. Now the advantages of the practice of one who lives in a place as found are these:

(i) One has a high regard for a place of retirement (pratisaṃlayana)[2042].
(ii) One is content with what one gets.
(iii) One gives up passionate clinging for the same [i.e. what one gets].
(iv) One has thoughts of friendship [for all].
(v) One takes delight in a life of singleness.
(vi) One does pure deeds.
(vii) It is the practice of a good man.
(viii) It has the characteristic of diminishing one's wants.

And such other things are the advantages of the practice of one who lives in a place as found.

3. If it is asked:

(i) Who is the one that lives in a place as found?
(ii) By what is the practice of one who lives in a place as found violated?

[the answer is:]

(i) One who lives in a place as found is he who gives up passionate clinging for a place where one stays and sleeps. "Giving up a passionate clinging for a place where one stays and sleeps" means not to make any attempt for taking a seat of precedence, or for taking an elevated place where one can stay and sleep.
(ii) When one has taken a place for which there is a passionate clinging, the practice of one who lives in a place as found is violated.

§ 16. (XIII) The Practice of One who Sits Up.

If it is asked: How is the practice of one who sits[2043] up properly taken up?

[the answer is:]

Having seen, in sleep, the disadvantage of going under the control of sloth, torpor and laziness and seeing the advantage of the practice of one who sits up, one utters these words: "From today onwards, I give up a bed of rest and thus accept properly the practice of one who site up."

Thus it is properly accepted.

2. Now these are the advantages of the practice of one who sits up:—

(i) A place where one may be lazy is entirely ruled out.
(ii) Passionate attachment for one's body, and
(iii) selfishness are completely abandoned.
(iv) No desire is left for the happiness of lying down (seyyasukha).
(v) One has little anxiety (brtsal ba ñuṅ ba).
(vi) One has rare sleep.
(vii) Congeniality to meditation[2044].
(viii) One produces bodily exertion (?) (cf. viriyārambhānukūlatā, II. 75).
(ix) It is the practice of a good man.
(x) It has the characteristic of diminishing one's wants.

And such other things are the advantages of the practice of one who sits up.

3. If it is asked:

(i) Who is it that sits up?
(ii) By what is the practice of one who sits up violated?

[the answer is:]

(i) One who sits up is he who gives up a bed of rest.
(ii) Accepting[2045] a bed of rest means violating the practice of one who sits up.

[2042] Mvy 1488, 1642.

[2043] Das supplies us the information that cog bu means a small tent used by anchorites of Tibet, where only one man can sit. There is no space to lie down. Evidently, the person who observes this practice in Tibet has to find some shelter like a tent or a mountain cavern on account of the climatic condition of that country.

[2044] See above 6.3. (iii). 11.2. (vii).

[2045] See note above No. 37 on 14.3. (iii). Also sec 6.3. (iii).

∫ 17. Expediencies

1. Now the expediencies for the practice of one who wears dusty rags are these:

If one continually wears dusty rags and if he is given by householders a gift of holy clothes repaired, or of cotton cloth, or of raw cotton, or of silk (kauśeya), or blankets, he may accept the same as an expediency. His practice of wearing dusty rags is not vitiated (ñams par mi ḥgyur ro).

2. The expediencies for one who has accepted the practice of wearing three garments [only] are: If there be an expectation to supplement his lot [of garments], he may wear an additional garment for ten days only. To protect his dwelling place, [he may have] a carpet, an over-sheet. In the misfortune of a disease, he [may have] a bandage-cloth for itches[2046]. He [may have] a handkerchief for wiping his face;[2047] and for [rainy] summer, he [may have] a large piece of cotton cloth. If he is entrusted with a piece of cloth, which is to be appropriated by another person, he may accept it. All these will be expediencies. The practice of wearing three garments [only] is not vitiated.

3. The expediencies for the practice of one who lives on alms are:—

(i) food arranged [previously]:[2048]
(ii) fond given on a regular production of wood-stick; [2049]
(iii) food given every half a month (pakkhika);
(iv) food given on the day of Sabbath (uposathikaṃ)
(v) food given in a monastery (vihārabhattaṃ).

Food given on these expediencies may be partaken of. The practice of one who lives on alms is not vitiated (ḥjig par mi ḥgyur ro). Only it is to be partaken of, considering it merely as [an unavoidable] difficulty.[2050]

4. The expediencies for the practice of one who moves on for food in succession are:

(i) When at the entrance of a house, one sees an elephant, a horse, a bull, a dog, a fight, or something which makes one blush, or some other thing like the same,[2051] then one may skip over (thod rgal du rgyu ba) and go forth.
(ii) When a house is not suitable for edible food, or when a begging-bowl is turned upside down, or when a house has earned fame by visits of beggars, then one may skip over a house.
(iii) When one goes along with a teacher (ācārya), or a spiritual preceptor (upādhyāya), or an unexpected guest (atithi), one may skip over and go forth.

All these are expediencies. The practice of one who moves on for food in succession is not vitiated (hams par mi lagyur ro).

5. The expediencies for the practice of one who has only one sitting [for his food] are:

If, while eating, there comes towards him an elephant, a horse, a bull, or a serpent; or a roof[2052] comes down; or there comes his spiritual preceptor, or his teacher, or an unexpected guest, and he sees them and gets up, then as an expediency, he may have food again. The practice of one who has only one sitting for food is not vitiated.

6, 7. There are no expediencies for the practice of he who takes measured food, and of he who never takes any food after he has taken his meal.

8. The expediencies for the practice of he who lives in a forest are:

For the sake of the [legal] act of initiation (upasampadā), for the sake of absolving one from an offence, for listening to a religious discourse, for observing the Sabbath (uposatha), for performing the Pavāraṇa[2053] (ceremony), for illness, for unavoidable absence [such as] for the perfect

---

2046 Pali, kaṇḍu-paticchādaka.

2047 Pali, mukha-puñchanaṃ.

2048 Vārabhattaṃ (?)

2049 Salākabhattaṃ.

2050 According to Vism II.27, food given on the occasions, mentioned above is not to be relished, except when one receives the alms along with other members of the Order, or when food-tickets in the from of sticks are given for medicine, or when food is cooked actually in a monastery.

2051 The Chinese text adds: "when one sees an out-caste (caṇḍāla)."

2052 Thog, which also means lightning.

2053 The ceremony which takes place at the end of the Retreat of the rainy reason, before the Buddhist understanding of a Sūtra, or for any other similar difficult situation, residence within a village with its surroundings may be taken as an expediency. The practice of one who lives in a forest is not vitiated.

9. The expediencies for the practice of one who lives in the vicinity of a tree are:

(i) Difficult circumstances like those mentioned above; or,

(ii) While one has come into a house, and then if one is compelled by rain to allow, while one is still there, the dawn to arise.

The practice of living in the vicinity of a tree is not vitiated.

10, 11, 12. Whatever expediencies are available for the practice of one who lives in the forest are also available for the practices of those who live in the vicinity of a tree, or live in the open, or live in a cemetery. The expediency for the practice of one who lives in a place as found is that when a similar difficult circumstance arises, a dwelling place permissible to others is also allowed to him.

13. For one who sits up, there is no expediency. Some, however, say that medical examination of the nose[2054] (snaḥi dpyad byed na) may be taken as an expediency. The practice of one who sits up is not vitiated.

§ 18. Abridgement of the Thirteen Practices.

1. The thirteen qualities of purification (dhutaguṇas) may be condensed into just eight. This is exactly as is said in words from the Abhidharma that the qualities of purification are eight.

If it is asked:

How does this happen?

[the answer is:]

(i) The practice of one who takes measured food and the practice of one who has only one sitting for his food are included in the practice of one who takes no food after he has finished his meal.[2055]

If it is asked: why is it so?

[the answer is:]

It is towards the end of everybody's taking his share that [the latter] takes his own share. Therefore, [his practice] is included in the practice of one who takes measured food. And, further, he does not take food twice, therefore, his practice is included in that of one who has only one sitting for his food,

(ii) The practice of one who lives in the vicinity of a tree, the practice of one who lives in the open, and the practice of one who lives in the cemetery are included in the practice of one who lives in the forest.

If it is asked: why is it so?

[the answer is:]

That one who lives in a forest would make a grass-hut, or a roof, or the like, and that he would take delight in such a thing, or that he would stick to it, or love it—such a thing would not accord with his [nature]. Thinking thus, he takes his residence in the vicinity of a tree, or in the open, or in the cemetery.

Therefore, they become just eight.

2. These eight get further reduced to three—the practice of one who lives in the forest, the practice of one who wears dusty rags, and the practice of one who lives on alms.[2056]

Thus when these [three] principal aspects of purification are fulfilled, all the qualities of purification are fulfilled. Hence the Blessed One said to venerable Nanda:

Rejoice in the forest and the dusty heap [of rags];

---

monks depart for their tour. On this occasion the monks ask for one another's pardon for any possible lapses of commission, or of omission.

[2054] The corresponding word in the Chinese version is interpreted as pouring [medicine] into the nose. (English Translation of Vimuttimagga p. 36.)

[2055] Cf. Vism II.87.

[2056] Vism II.87 has nothing to support this view.

Live your life [bring satisfied] with little [food];
See that you do not fix your eyes upon objects of desire.[2057]

19. Miscellaneous

In connection with the same [qualities of purification], if it is [further] asked:

1. What are the constituent factors of purification?
2. How many are the dharmas of purification?
3. What should be the disposition of a man so that he may rejoice in the practice of the qualities of purification?

3a. How many are the constituents of purification.[2058]

4. How many [of them] are terminable?
5. Who is the man that is purified (dhuta) and who is the advocate of purification (dhutavāda)?

[the answer is:]

1. Now as to the constituent factors of purification, whatever thirteen basic things are abandoned [by thirteen practices], they become constituent factors of purification.[2059]

1 (a). If it is asked:

What are the qualities of purification (dhutaguṇas) fit to be called?[2060]

[the answer is:]

They are fit to be spoken of as morally good (kuśala[2061]).

2. As to the question: how many are the dharmas of purification?

[the answer is:]

The dharmas of purification are two—absence of greed (alobha) and absence of delusion (amoha). It should be considered to be like what is said by the Blessed One in these words:

> "Whosoever is a wearer of dusty rags becomes so because he has little desire, because he has contentment, because he reduces his wants, because he observes a life of solitariness and because he has sure and firm faith[2062] (idamastitā)."

According to some (rnam pa gcig tu), with the help of absence of greed, he shakes off the temptation of applying himself to the over-enjoyment of the pleasures of sense,[2063] by applying himself to those that he is permitted to have. One who has no delusion in the qualities of purification shakes off the temptation of applying himself to self-mortification, by applying himself to those [practices] that are permissible in the life of few wants.

Therefore the dharmas of purification are two—absence of greed and absence of delusion. Here little desire, contentment and solitariness are nothing but absence of greed: reducing one's wants[2064] and to have firm faith within oneself are nothing but knowledge.

By absence of greed one shakes off greed for the thirteen things which are to be abandoned; by absence of delusion, one shakes off delusion [that conceals][2065] dangers in those very things.

3. Now as to the question: men of what disposition take delight in the practice of the qualities of purification?

[the answer is:]

[2057] See S II 281. Evaṃ kho te Nanda patirūpaṃ .... yam tvaṃ āraññiko ca assasi, piṇḍapātiko ca, paṃsukūliko ca, kāmesu ca anapekkho vihareyyāsī ti.

[2058] This question seems to have no place in the original scheme. No answer is found later to this question. The Chinese version also omits it.

[2059] Vism II.78: paṭipakkha-niddhunanato aṅgāni; also see pahānaṅga in Vism IV.88.

[2060] This question also seems to be a later addition, as it is not included in the questions set above at the beginning.

[2061] See discussion over this problem above in the introduction and in Vism II.78–79, where it says: dhutaṅgāni siyā kusalāni, siyā abyākatāni, natthi dhutaṅgaṃ akusalan ti.

[2062] This closely corresponds to Vism II. 93–94 except for the variation noted in the next but one note.

[2063] In the text bsod sñoms seems to be used in the sense of bsod ñams. See Mvy 7173 where the latter term is given for sukhallikā.

[2064] Vism II.84 puts solitariness and reducing one's wants under both absence of greed and absence of delusion.

[2065] The Tibetan text has no word corresponding to paṭichādaka of Vism II. 84

One who is greedy in disposition or dullish in his disposition takes delight in the practice of the qualities of purification. He who is spiteful in his disposition does not take delight.

If it is asked: Why is it that a man of greedy disposition and a man of dullish disposition take delight in the practice of the qualities of purification, and not one of spiteful disposition?

[the answer is:]

[Because] the practice of the qualities of purification is difficult to be accomplished,[2066] and a man of greedy disposition subdues his greed with the help of this difficult course, while a man of dullish disposition takes well to the practice of the qualities of purification. With the help of reduction of his wants, he becomes always watchful (apramatta). And when he is watchful, he subdues delusion (moha).

Therefore, a man of greedy disposition and a man of dullish disposition take delight in the practice of the qualities of purification.

A man of spiteful disposition, on account of this difficult course, is likely to produce ill-will [only], just as hot things when given to one who is suffering from the disease of bile [will simply intensify the disease]. Therefore, it is difficult for a man of spiteful disposition to practise the qualities of purification.

According to others, however, a man of spiteful disposition may have the practice of one who lives in a forest, or the practice of one who lives in the vicinity of a tree.

If it is asked: why is it so?

[the answer is:]

Because staying in a forest and in the vicinity of a tree have not the disadvantage of any harm [that may follow] on account of there being any thing which he will not like.[2067] Therefore it is said so.

4. Now, as to the question: How many of the constituent factors of purification are terminable with a certain [fixed] time:

[the answer is:]

Three constituent factors of purification—the practice of one who lives in the vicinity of a tree, the practice of one who lives in the open, and the practice of one who lives in the cemetery are terminable with a period of eight months. Residence under a roof in summer (-rain) has been permitted by the Blessed One.

5. As to the question: who is purified (dhuta) and who advocates purification (dhutavāda)?

[the answer is:]

There is

(i) one who is purified and who advocates purification;
(ii) one who is purified and [yet] does not advocate purification;[2068]
(iii) one who is not purified and [yet] advocates purification;[2069] and
(iv) one who is neither purified, nor does he advocate purification.

Out of these,

(i) One who is purified and who advocates purification is one who is an Arhat who has properly taken up the qualities of purification and is possessed of them.
(ii) One who is purified and [yet] does not advocate purification is one who is an Arhat, and still has not properly taken up the qualities of purification, and is not possessed of them.
(iii) One who is not purified and [yet] advocates purification is one who is under training (Pali, sekha), or who is a common man (Pali, puthujjana), but has properly taken up the qualities of purification, and is possessed of them.
(iv) One who is neither purified nor does he advocate the qualities[2070] of purification is one under training or a common man, and has not properly taken up the qualities of purification and is not possessed of them.

[2066] Pali, dukkhā patipadā.

[2067] Pali text is clearer: asaṅghaṭṭiyamānassa, there being nothing which he will come in conflict with.

[2068] Translation follows emendations suggested in the text, which is all confused. Cases 2 and 3 need to be interchanged.

[2069] Translation follows emendations suggested in the text, which is all confused. Cases 2 and 3 need to be interchanged.

[2070] Here only, the text adds "yon tan" which is missing in the three preceding cases.

§ 20. Supplementary Questions.[2071]

1. If it is asked: What is the characteristic of the quality of purification, what is its function, and what is its manifestation?

[the answer is:]

The characteristic of the quality of purification is scanty desire, its function is contentment, and its manifestation is reducing one's wants.

According to some, however, the characteristic is absence of defilement, the function is absence of dangers (anādīnava), and the manifestation is not to abandon one's efforts.

2. If it is asked: What is the beginning of the quality of purification, the middle of the quality of purification, and the end of the quality of purification?

[the answer is:]

The beginning of the quality of purification is its proper acceptance, the middle is its continued practice and the end is rejoicing in it.

This is the Exposition of the Qualities of Purification from (the text:) The Path of Deliverance (Vimuktimārga).

Thus the Third Collection is finished.

Translated and redacted by Vidyākaraprabha, a spiritual priest (upādhyāya) from India and the Venerable Comparer Lo tsā ba Dpal Brtsegs.

[2071] These seem to be supplementary questions as they are not included in the questions set at the beginning of the last section.

Tibetan	Chinese	Pali	English
rten cing 'brel par 'byung ba la mkhas pa	因緣方便	paṭiccasamuppādakusala	dependent arising skill
mkhas pa	方便	kusala	skill
rten cing 'brel par 'byung ba	因緣	paṭiccasamuppāda	dependent arising ma rig pa'i rkyen gyis	無明緣	avijjāpaccayā	with ignorance as condition
ma rig pag	無明	avijjā	ignorance
rkyen gyis	緣	paccayā	with ... as the condition, due to the condition
'du byed	行	saṅkhārā	formations
ma rig pa'i rkyen gyis 'du byed	無明緣行	avijjāpaccayā saṅkhārā	with ignorance as condition, formations du byed kyi rkyen gyis rnam par shes pa	行緣識	saṅkhārapaccayā viññāṇaṃ	with formations as condition, consciousness
rnam par shes pa	識	viññāṇa	consciousness
rnam par shes pa'i rkyen gyis ming dang gzugs	緣名色	viññāṇapaccayā nāmarūpaṃ	with consciousness as condition, name and matter
ming dang gzugs	名色	nāmarūpa	name and matter
ming	名	nāma	name
dang	及	ca	and, as well as gzugs	色	rūpa	matter
ming dang gzugs kyi rkyen gyis skye mched drug	名色緣六入	nāmarūpapaccayā saḷāyatanaṃ	with name and matter as condition, the six sense-bases
skye mched drug	六入	saḷāyatana	the six sense-bases
skye mched	入	āyatana	sense-base, base drug	六	cha, saḷ-	six
mched drug gi rkyen gyis reg pa	六入緣觸	saḷāyatanapaccayā phasso	with the six sense-bases as condition, contact
reg pa	觸	phassa	contact
reg pa'i rkyen gyis tsor ba	觸緣受	phassapaccayā vedanā	with contact as condition, feeling tsor ba	受	vedanā	feeling
tsor ba'i rkyen gyis sred pa	受緣愛	vedanāpaccayā taṇhā	with feeling as condition, craving;
sred pa	愛	taṇhā	craving
sred pa'i rkyen gyis nye bar len pa	愛緣取	taṇhāpaccayā upādānaṃ	with craving as condition, clinging nye bar len pa	取	upādāna	clinging nye bar len pa'i rkyen gyis srid pa	取緣有	upādānapaccayā bhavo	with clinging as condition, existence
srid pa	有	bhava	existence
srid pa'i rkyen gyis skye ba	有緣生	bhavapaccayā jāti	with existence as condition, birth
skye ba	生	jāti	birth
skye ba'i rkyen gyis rga shi dang mya ngan dang smre sngags 'don pa dang sdug bsngal dang yid mi bde ba dang 'khrug pa rnams	生緣老死憂悲苦惱	jātipaccayā jarāmaraṇaṃ sokaparidevadukkhadomanassupāyāsā	with birth as condition, ageing, death, sorrow, lamentation, pain, distress and grief
rga shi dang mya ngan dang smre sngags 'don pa dang sdug bsngal dang yid mi bde ba dang 'khrug pa	老死憂悲苦惱	jarāmaraṇaṃ sokaparidevadukkhadomanassupāyāsa	ageing and death, sorrow, lamentation, pain, distress and grief
rga shi	老死	jarāmaraṇaṃ	ageing and death
mya ngan	憂	soka	sorrow
smre sngags 'don pa	悲	parideva	lamentation
sdug bsngal	苦	dukkha	pain, mental suffering
yid mi bde ba	憂	domanassa	distress
'khrug pa	----	upāyāsa	grief
yid mi bde ba dang 'khrug pa	惱	domanassupāyāsa	distress and grief
mya ngan dang smre sngags 'don pa dang sdug bsngal dang yid mi bde ba dang 'khrug pa	憂悲苦惱	sokaparidevadukkhadomanassupāyāsā	sorrow, lamentation, pain, distress and grief
'byung bar 'gyur	起	samudayo hoti	there is the arising, there is the coming into being of de lta bu	如是	evaṃ	thus
'ba' zhig	皆	kevala	entire, whole
sdug bsngal gyi phung po	苦陰	dukkhakkhandha	mass of suffering
ma rig pa 'gags pas 'du byed 'gag	以無明滅則行滅	avijjanirodhā saṅkhāranirodho	by the cessation of ignorance, there is the cessation of the formations
ma rig pa 'gags pas	以無明滅	avijjanirodhā	by the cessation of ignorance
'gags pa	滅	nirodha	cessation gags pas	以滅	nirodhā	by the cessation, through the cessation
'gag	滅	nirodha, nirujjhati	cessation, ceases
du byed 'gags pas rnam par shes pa 'gag	以行滅則識滅	saṅkhāranirodhā viññāṇanirodho	by the cessation of the formations, there is the cessation of consciousness
'du byed 'gags pas	以行滅	saṅkhāranirodhā	by the cessation of the formation
rnam par shes pa 'gags pas ming dang gzugs 'gag	以識滅則名色滅	viññāṇanirodhā nāmarūpanirodho	by the cessation of consciousness, there is the cessation of name and matter
rnam par shes pa 'gags pas	以識滅	viññāṇanirodhā	by the cessation of consciousness ming dang gzugs 'gags pas skye mched drug 'gag	以名色滅則六入滅	nāmarūpanirodhā saḷāyatananirodho	by the cessation of name and matter, there is the cessation of the six sense-bases
ming dang gzugs 'gags pas	以名色滅	nāmarūpanirodhā	by the cessation of name and matter
skye mched drug 'gags pas rig pa 'gag	以六入滅則觸滅	saḷāyatananirodhā phassanirodho	by the cessation of the six sense-bases, there is the cessation of contact
skye mched drug 'gags pas	以六入滅	saḷāyatananirodhā	by the cessation of the six sense-bases
reg pa 'gags pas tsor ba 'gag	以觸滅則受滅	phassanirodhā vedanānirodho	by the cessation of contact, there is the cessation of feeling

reg pa 'gags pas	以觸滅	phassanirodhā	by the cessation of contact
tsor ba 'gags pas sred pa 'gag	以受滅則愛滅	vedanānirodhā taṇhānirodho	by the cessation of feeling, there is the cessation of craving
tsor ba 'gags pas	以受滅	vedanānirodhā	by the cessation of feeling sred pa 'gags pas nye bar len pa 'gag	以愛滅則取滅	taṇhānirodhā upādānanirodho	by the cessation of craving, there is the cessation of clinging sred pa 'gags pas	以愛滅	taṇhānirodhā	by the cessation of craving
nye bar len pa 'gags pas srid pa 'gag	以取滅則有滅	upādānanirodhā bhavanirodho	by the cessation of clinging, there is the cessation of existence
nye bar len pa 'gags pas	以取滅	upādānanirodhā	by the cessation of clinging srid pa 'gags pas skye ba 'gag	以有滅則生滅	bhavanirodhā jātinirodho	by the cessation of existence, there is the cessation of birth
srid pa 'gags pas	以有滅	bhavanirodhā	by the cessation of existence
skye ba 'gags pas rga shi dang mya ngan dang smre sngags 'don pa dang sdug bsngal dang yid mi bde ba dang 'khrug pa rnams 'gag	以生滅則老死憂悲苦惱滅	jātinirodhā jarāmaraṇaṃ sokaparidevadukkhadomanassupāyāsā nirujjhanti	by the cessation of rebirth, there is the cessation of ageing, death, sorrow, lamentation, pain, distress and grief
skye ba 'gags pas	以生滅	jātinirodhā	by the cessation of rebirth
ga shi dang mya ngan dang smre sngags 'don pa dang sdug bsngal dang yid mi bde ba dang 'khrug pa rnams 'gag	則老死憂悲苦惱滅	jarāmaraṇaṃ sokaparidevadukkhadomanassupāyāsā nirujjhanti	ageing, death, sorrow, lamentation, pain, distress and grief cease du byed 'gag	行滅	saṅkhāranirodha	the cessation of the formations
shes pa 'gag	識滅	viññāṇanirodha	the cessation of consciousness ming dang gzugs 'gag	名色滅	nāmarūpanirodha	the cessation of name and matter
skye mched drug 'gag	六入滅	saḷāyatananirodha	the cessation of the six sense-bases rig pa 'gag	觸滅	phassanirodha	the cessation of contact tsor ba 'gag	受滅	vedanānirodha	the cessation of feeling sred pa 'gag	愛滅	taṇhānirodha	the cessation of craving
nye bar len pa 'gag	取滅	upādānanirodha	the cessation of clinging srid pa 'gag	有滅	bhavanirodha	the cessation of existence
skye ba 'gag	生滅	jātinirodha	the cessation of birth gag par 'gyur	成滅	nirodho hoti	there is the cessation of de la	於是	tatra	therein, here, concerning that. (Introduces an explanation of the preceding).
bden pa bzhi la mi shes pa	不知四諦	catūsu ariyasaccesu aññāṇaṃ	non-knowledge of the Four Noble Truths
bden pa bzhi	四諦	cattāri ariyasaccāni	the four Noble Truths
bden pa	諦	ariyasacca, sacca	Noble Truth, truth mi shes pa	不知	aññāṇa	non-knowledge, not knowing shes pa	知	ñāṇa	knowledge
lus ngag yid kyi las	身口意業	kāyavācāmanokamma	the actions of body, speech and mind
las	業	kamma	action
lus ngag yid	身口意	kāya-vācā-mano	body, speech and mind
lus kyi	身	kāyika	bodily
sems	心	citta	mind
nying mtshams sbyor ba / nying mtsams sbyor ba	入胎	gabbhāvakkanti, paṭisandhi	(consciousness) entering the womb (after death), re-linking (of consciousness to a new body).
nying mtshams sbyor ba'i sems / nying mtsams sbyor ba'i sems	相續心	paṭisandhi-citta	re-linking mind (i.e. the mind that enters a new womb after death)
rnam par shes pa	識	viññāṇa	consciousness
dang ldan pa	共起	sahajāta, sahagata	that arise together with, born together with, accompanied by sems las byung ba'i chos	心數法	cetasika dhamma	mental property, mental factor chos	法	dhamma	teaching, Dharma, factor, state, nature.
mer mer po	迦羅邏	kalala	embryo, the earliest stage of embryonic development
nang gi bdag nyid	內	ajjhattika	internal (adjective)
nang gi bdag nyid kyi skye mched dru	六內入	cha ajjhattikāni āyatanāni	the six internal sense-bases
reg pa drug	六觸身	cha phassakāyā	the six groups of contact (i.e. connected to each of the six internal sense-bases)
sred pa drug	六愛身	cha taṇhākāyā	the six groups of craving (i.e. for each of the six senses)
nye bar len pa bzhi	四取	cattāri upādānāni	the four kinds of grasping (i.e., grasping after sense-pleasures, views, virtues and vows, and the doctrine of a self: kāmupādāna, diṭṭhupādāna, sīlabbatupādāna, attavādupādāna.)
'dod pa dang gzugs dang gzugs med pa'i srid pa	欲色無色有	kāmabhava rūpabhava arūpabhava	sensual, material and immaterial existence (i.e. the three kinds of existence).
skyed par byed pa'i las	業能起	kammanibbatta	produced by action, kamma-produced
'dod pa	欲	kāma	sensual
gzugs med pa	無色	arūpa	immaterial, non-material (used for the four immaterial attainment and existences.)
phung po rnams 'byung ba	陰起	khandhānaṃ pātubhāva	the manifestation of the aggregates
'byung ba	起	pātubhāvo	manifestation phung po rnams	陰	khandhā	the (five) aggregates phung po	陰	khandhā	the (five) aggregates
rga ba	老	jarā	old age

phung po yongs su smin pa	陰熟	khandhānaṃ paripāka	the maturing of the aggregates
yongs su smin pa	熟	paripāka	maturing, ripening
phung po 'jig pa	陰散壞	khandhānaṃ bheda	the breaking up of the aggregates
'jig pa	散壞	bheda	breaking up, disintegration
shi ba	死	maraṇa	death
so so skye bo thos pa dang mi ldan pa	無聞凡夫	assutavā puthujjana	uninstructed commoner, worldling who has not heard (the Dhamma)
so so skye bo	凡夫	puthujjana	commoner, worldling
so'i skye bo	凡夫	puthujjana	commoner, worldling
thos pa dang mi ldan pa	無聞	assutavā	uninstructed, untaught, who has not heard (the Dhamma)
nye bar len pa'i phung po lnga	五受陰	pañcupādānakkhandhā	five aggregates subject to clinging nye bar len pa'i phung po	受陰	upādānakkhandhā	aggregates subject to clinging lnga	五	pañca	five
dus ring po	長夜	dīgharattaṃ	for a long time mchog tu 'dzin pa	所觸	parāmaṭṭha	held on to (with wrong view)
lhag par zhen par byed	樂著	ajjhosita	attached to
'di dag ni bdag gi'o	此我物	etaṃ mama	“this is mine”
de bzhin du	如是	evam eva	thus, likewise
zhen pa	樂著	ajjhosāna	attachment
sems pa	思	cetanā	intention
rab tu rtog pa	惟	pakappanā	plan, design, thought rab tu rtog par byed	惟	pakappeti	plans, designs, think over rjes su nyal bar byed	使	anuseti	has a tendency towards, tends towards gnas pa	住	patiṭṭhā, patiṭṭhāti, ṭhita, ṭhiti	establishment, establishing, to establish, support, to support, to remain, to stay, what stays, stability, continuity
sa bon	種	bīja	seed
mtshams sbyor ba'i rnam par shes pa	相續識	paṭisandhi–viññāṇa	re-linking consciousness
yongs su 'gyur ba	轉	āvajjana, āvajjati	adverting, to advert bag la nyal	使	anusaya	latent tendency
dmigs pa	事	ārammaṇa	object
nyi ma	日	suriya	sun
de'i phyir	是故	tasmā	therefore dper na	如	yathā	like, as, according to de kho na bzhin du	如是	tathā, tatheva (when in correlation with 如, yathā)	so
'od zer	光明	rasmi	light
'phel ba	增長	vuḍḍhi, virūḷhi	increase, growth
dngos pa	處	vatthu	base, ground, place
lhan cig tu 'byung ba	共生	sahajāta	conascent, arising together
yid kyi skye mched	意入	manāyatana	the sense-base of mind
brten te	依	nissita, nissāya, paṭicca,	dependent on gzhan	餘	aññā	other
lhag ma	餘	avasesa, sesa	remaining, other, remainder
skye mched lnga	五入	pañcāyatanāni	the five sense-bases (other than the mind sense-base).
srog	命	jīvita	life
'byung ba chen po	四大	cattāri mahābhūtāni	the four great entities, the four great elements
zas	食	āhāra	nutriment, food
dus	時	kāla	time
dbang po	根	indriya	faculties (sense-faculties, spiritual faculties, etc.)
yul	境界	visaya	sense-objects, range
yul dang mi ldan pa	無境界	avisaya	without a sense-object
yul dang bcas pa	有境界	savisaya	with a sense-object
'dus pa	和合	saṅgati, sannipāta, samūha	coming together, congregation
'dus pa	聚	ācaya	accruement, accrual, accumulation
'du ba	和合	saṅgati, sannipāta, samūha	coming together, congregation
bde ba	樂	sukha	pleasure, happiness
sdug bsngal	苦	dukkha	pain, suffering
sdug bsngal min bde ba min pa	不苦不樂	adukkhamasukha	neither painful nor pleasurable byis pa so so'i skye bo	癡凡夫	bālaputhujjana	the foolish worldling
byis pa	癡	bāla	foolish
bde ba nyams su myong ba	受樂	sukhaṃ vedeti	feels pleasure
don du gnyer ba byed	覓	patthayati, icchati	seeks, wishes yang dang yang du	復更	bhiyyo pi	even more mi 'gyur ba	不更	na puna	not again, no more nyams su myong ba	受	vedeti, vediyati	feels, experiences
'joms par byed ba	對治	paṭipakkha	overcoming, counteracting, opposing
'dzin pa	取	upādiyati, gaṇhāti	grasps, takes bye brag	勝	visesa	particular, special, distinctive
'gro ba	趣	gati	destination
skye ba'i rkyen las rga shi	以生成老死	jātipaccayā jarāmaraṇaṃ	with birth, old age and death as condition
skye ba'i rkyen las	以生成	jātipaccayā	with birth as condition bzhin du	如是	evaṃ	so, thus

myu gu	芽	aṅkura	sprout
rgyun 'jug pa	相續	santati	succession
sngon gyi mtha'	前際	pubbanta	anterior end, ultimate beginning, the past sngon gyi mtha'	初際	pubbanta	anterior end, ultimate beginning, the past phyi ma'i mtha'	後際	aparanta	posterior end, ultimate end, the future
phyi ma'i mtha' yongs su chad pa	有邊際	aparanta, aparanta pariccheda ?	posterior end, ultimate end, the future
sngon gyi mtha' yongs su chad pa	初邊際	pubbanta, pubbanta pariccheda ?	anterior end, ultimate beginning, the past shes par bya ba	可知	pariññeyya, ñātabba, ñātuṃ, veditabba, paññāyati	to be known shes par bya	可知	pariññeyya, ñātabba, ñātuṃ, veditabba, paññāyati	to be known shes par bya ba ma yin no	不可知	na veditabba, na paññāyati	not to be known la sogs pa	初	ādi, paṭhama	first, beginning with rgyun rab tu 'jug pa	相續	santati ?	succession, continuity
zhe na brjod par bya ste	云何說	? sace vadeyyuṃ, ce vadeyyuṃ, ce vadeyya ?	if it is asked nyid	唯	eva	just, only, = emphatic particle
kun nas ldang ba	纏	pariyuṭṭhāna	obsessions yang na	復次	puna, aparaṃ, punacaparaṃ, aparaṃ pi	again, furthermore, moreover kun nas nyon mongs pa	煩惱	kilesa, saṃkilesa	defilements
kun nas nyon mongs pa thams cad	一切煩惱	sabbakilesa	all defilements
nyon mongs pa thams cad	一切煩惱	sabbakilesa	all defilements
gsungs pa	所說	desita, bhāsita, avoca	taught, it is said, was said
zag pa kun du 'byung ba	漏集	āsavasamudaya	the origination of the taints
zag pa	漏	āsava	outflows, taints
kun du 'byung ba	集	samudaya	origination
'byung ba	集	samudaya	origination
kun 'byung gi bden pa	苦集	dukkhasamudaya	origination of suffering
kun 'byung	集	samudaya	origination
gzhan yang	復次	punacaparaṃ, puna, aparaṃ, aparaṃ pi	again, furthermore, moreover sems gcig pa	一心	eka-citta	one mind-state gcig	一	eka	one
tsul/tshul	法	naya, vidhi, dhamma	way, manner, method byis pa	癡人	bāla	fool, foolish person, ignorant person mig	眼	cakkhu	eye
mthong ba	見	passati	sees
gzugs	色	rūpa	visible form, matter
kun du rmongs pa	癡	sammūḷha, sammoha,	deluded
mdzes pa	淨	subha	beauty
chags ba	著	rāga, lobha, gedha	greed
rgyas pa	聚	āyuhana	accumulation
'phel pa	聚	upacaya, ācaya	accruement, accrual
rab tu bskrun pa	所起	uppanna ?	produced, arisen
sems las byung ba	心數	cetasika	mental factors
des kun nas bslang ba'i gzugs	所造色	upādārūpa, upādāya rūpaṃ	derived matter
'byung ba chen po las byung ba'i gzugs	四大所造色	catunnañ ca mahābhūtānaṃ upādāya rūpaṃ	matter derived from the four great entities las byung ba	所造	upādāya	derived from, created from ma rig pa 'dus te reg pa	無明觸	avijjāsamphassa	ignorance-contact
'dus te reg pa	觸	samphassa	contact rab tu dang ba	清淨	pasāda	sensitivity, clearness (= a technical Abhidhamma term to denote the sensitivity of the sense-faculties, indriya. 睛 is alternatively used.)
rab tu dang ba	睛	pasāda	sensitivity, clearness (= a technical Abhidhamma term to denote the sensitivity of the sense-faculties, indriya. 清淨 is alternatively used.)
rab tu gsal pa	清淨	pasāda	sensitivity, clearness (= a technical Abhidhamma term to denote the sensitivity of the sense-faculties, indriya.)
mdzes pa	淨	subha	beauty
dag	淨	subha	beauty
mngon par sgrub par byed pa	起	abhinibbatti, uppāda	coming into being, arising, generation, manifestation
gnas pa gzhan du gyur pa nyid	----	thiṭassa aññathatta (Skt: sthityānyathātva)	alteration while having remained gzhan du gyur pa nyid	----	aññathatta (Skt: anyathātva)	alteration
skad cig 'jig pa	念散壞	khaṇikabhaṅga, khaṇabhaṅga	momentary disintegration, momentary dissolution
'jig pa	散壞	bhaṅga	disintegration. dissolution skad cig	念	khaṇa	moment, momentary
skad cig gcig	一剎那	ekakkhaṇa	single moment, one moment
skad cig	剎那	khaṇa	moment, momentary
yan lag bcu gnyis	十二因緣	dvādasaṅga paṭiccasamuppāda	twelve-factored (dependent origination)
yan lag bcu gnyis	十二因緣分	dvādasa paṭiccasamuppādaṅgāni	12 factors of dependent origination du	幾	kati	how many?

nyon mongs pa	煩惱	kilesa	defilement
rnam par smin pa	果報	vipāka, phala	result, reward (of one's previous deeds)
'das pa	過去	atīta	past
ma 'ongs pa	未來	anāgata	future
da ltar pa	現在	paccuppanna	present da ltar gyi	現在	paccuppanna (adjective)
gang	云何	katama	what
rgyu	因緣	nidāna	causes
rten cing 'brel par 'byung ba'i chos	因緣法	paṭiccasamupannā dhammā	dependently arisen states rten cing	---	paṭicca	dependent upon, on account of
'brel par 'byung ba	---	samuppāda	arising, co-arising, arising together with 'byung ba	起	uppāda	arising tha dad pa	差別	nānatta	difference
gang zhe na	云何	katama	what?
zab pa nyid	深性	gambhīratta	profoundness, profound nature
zab mo nyid	深性	gambhīratta	profoundness, profound nature
nyid	性	-tta, -tā	-ness, -hood, -nature (= abstract suffix, e.g. zab pa nyid, 深性, gambhīratta, profoundness.)
yan lag	分	aṅga	factor, limb
gsum	三	ti, tayo	three gnyis	二	dvi, dve	two bzhi	四	catu, cattāro	four bdun	七	satta	seven
brgyad	八	aṭṭha	eight
dgu	九	nava	nine
nyi shu	二十	vīsati	twenty
dus gsum	三時	tayo kālā	the three times, the three divisions of time (i.e. past, present and future)
dus	時	kāla	time
bzung ba	取	gahana, gaṇhāti	grasping, seizing, apprehending bzung ba yin	成所取	gahita	it is grasped gzung ba	取	gahana, gaṇhāti	grasping, seizing, apprehending thog ma dang ta ma med pa 'khor ba'i lam rjes su 'brel ba	無始生死相續	anādimatisaṃsāravaṭṭa, anamataggasaṃsāravaṭṭa (?)	the beginningless cycle of saṃsāra
thog ma dang ta ma med pa	無始	anādi (anādimati, anamatagga?)	beginningless
'khor ba	生死	saṃsāra	saṃsāra
lam rjes su 'brel ba	相續	vaṭṭa	cycle, continuity
bcu gnyis	十二	dvādasa	twelve rim pa bzhin du	如次第	anukkama	succession, order phan pa (??)	展轉	aññamañña	mutual
rnam par 'gyur ba	異	viparināma, vikāra, aññathā	change, transformation
yongs su rdzogs pa ma yin pa	非成就	aparinipphanna	not fully come into being, not fully manifested
yongs su rdzogs pa	已成就	parinipphanna	fully come into being, fully manifested brjod par bya ba ma yin	不可說	na vattabba	can't be spoken of brjod par bya ba ma yin	不應說	na vattabba	not to be spoken of, can't be spoken of
'dus ma byas	無為	asaṅkhata	unconditioned
'dus byas	有為	saṅkhata	conditioned
gang gis	以是	yena	through whatever, through which, by which, through what?
gang gis	以	yena	through whatever, through which, by which, through what?
rnam pa	行	ākāra	mode, way
mtshan nyid / mtsan nyid	相	lakkhaṇa	characteristic
'phags pa	聖人	ariya, ariyapuggala	noble one (one who is on the path to enlightenment, i.e. a sekha or trainee), noble person
rkyen gzhan dang gzhan dag	不他緣	aparapaccaya	not dependent upon another shes rab kyi spyan	慧明	paññācakkhu	the eye of wisdom mngon du mkhyen	通達	paṭivijjhati, paṭivedha	penetrates (with wisdom), penetration (with wisdom)
thams cad la'o 'di ni	一切此	sabbete (sabbe + ete)	all these thams cad	一切	sabba	all
'di ni	此	eso, ete, ayaṃ	this, these de rnams	此	ete, te	those, these yang srid sgrub pa	有後生	punabbhavābhinibbatti	production of further existence
yang srid mngon par grub pa	更有生	punabbhavābhinibbatti	production of further existence
yang srid	有後	punabbhava	further existence, renewed existence. Cf. 後有.
sgrub pa	生	abhinibbatti	production
mngon par grub pa	生	abhinibbatti	production
rgyur 'gyur ba	成因	hetu hoti	is the cause
rgyu	因	hetu	cause
'gyur ba	成	hoti, bhavati	is, becomes
'gyur	成	hoti, bhavati	is, are, becomes rigs pas	如	viya, yathā	like
'thad pas	如	viya, yathā	like
rnam pa bdun	七行	sattavidha	seven ways, seven manner

rnam pa	行	vidha	way, manner
blta bar bya	可知	daṭṭhabba, veditabba, viññātabba	should be regarded as, should be understood as mtsams / mtshams	節	sandhi	link
mdor bsdus pa	略	saṅkhepa, samāsa	summary
'khor lo	輪	cakka	wheel
tsul lugs / tshul lugs	牽	naya	manner, system
rnam par dbye ba	分別	vibhaṅga	analysis
bsdu ba	攝	saṅgaha	inclusion bar	其間	antara	interval
dang po	第一	paṭhama	first
dang po	初	paṭhama	first gnyis pa	第二	dutiya	second gsum pa	第三	tatiya	third
rgyu 'bras	因果	hetuphala	cause and result, cause and effect
'bras bu	果	phala	result, fruition, effect
khams	界	dhātu	element
shi	終	cuti, cavana	passing away, death
ma rig par gyur pa	入無明	avijjāgata	gone to ignorance, influenced by ignorance
sred pa dang ldan pa	愛相應	taṇhāsaṃyutta, taṇhāsampayutta	bound by craving, associated with craving bsod nams	功德	puñña	meritorious, good sdig pa	惡	pāpa	demeritorious, bad
bsags pa	造	karaṇa, karoti	performs, creates, does, composes
'jig rten 'di	此世	idhaloka	this world
'jig rten gzhan	彼世	paraloka	the other world (i.e. after death).
'jig rten 'di dang 'jig rten gzhan	此世及彼世	idhalokaparaloka	this world and that world
dran pa mi rnyed pa	失念	muṭṭhasati, muṭṭhassati	lost mindfulness, forgotten mindfulness dran pa	念	sati	mindfulness, recollection, memory
mi rnyed pa	失	muṭṭha	lost, forgotten
blo gros	意	buddhi, mati	intelligence, wisdom
blo gros	慧	buddhi, mati	intelligence, wisdom
stobs	勇	bala	power, strength
yongs su nyams	退	parihāna	decline, regression, regress
lus kyi stobs	身勇	kāyabala, kāyikabala	physical power, physical strength
lus kyi stobs	身力	kāyabala, kāyikabala	physical power, physical strength
nus pa	猛	vīriya ?	energy
dbang po rnams	諸根	indriya	faculties (plural)
srog gi dbang po	命根	jīvitindriya	life-faculty ta la	多羅	tāla	talipot palm, talipot, Corypha umbraculifera
skams pa	燥	sussati, sukkhati, sukkha	dries, withers, dry
la ma	葉	patta	leaf
ta la'i la ma	多羅葉	tālapaṇṇa	talipot leaf
rmi lam du gyur pa	眠夢	supina, supanta, supati	dreams, dreaming nye bar gnas pa	起	paccupaṭṭhāna, paccupaṭṭhāti, uppapajjati	manifestation, appearance, appears mtsan ma / mtshan ma	相	nimitta	sign, mark
'gro ba	趣	gati	destination (of rebirth)
bsod nams dang bsod nams ma yin pa	功德或非功德	puññāpuñña	merit and demerit, merit or demerit
bsod nams ma yin pa	非功德	apuñña	demerit
bsod nams pa	功德	puñña	merit
byas pa	所造	kata	done
lci ba	重	garu	heavy, serious
yang ba	輕	lahu, lahutta	light, lightness
'am	或	vā	or
sam	或	vā	or ngam	或	vā	or nam	或	vā	or dam	或	vā	or
sngon byas	初所造	pubbakata, kaṭattā,	done previously (in a previous life)
sngon byas pa'i las	初所作業	pubbakatakamma	action done previously (in a previous life)
las byed pa	現作業	kammakaraṇa	action being done
las byas pa	造業	katakamma (?)	action that has been done
las kyi mtsan ma	業相	kammanimitta	action-sign (See explanation at T32n1648_p0451a16)
'gro ba'i mtsan ma	趣相	gatinimitta	destination sign (See explanation at T32n1648_p0451a16)
nye ba	近	āsanna	proximity, near
de'i tse / de'i tshe	於此時	tadā, tasmiṃ samaye, tasmiṃ kāle	at that time
bde 'gro	善趣	sugati	good destination
ngan 'gro	惡趣	duggati	bad destination
mngal	胎	gabbha	womb
rdzus te skye ba	化生	opapātī	spontaneous birth gang dang gang du	處處	yattha yattha	wherever (correlative to: de dang de, 是其: that particular)
de dang de	是其	tassa tassa	that particular (correlative to: gang dang gang du, 處 處: wherever) gzhal yas khang	宮殿	vimāna	divine palace, celestial mansion

shing	樹	rukkha	tree
dmigs pa byas	作事	ārammaṇaṃ katvā	having made the object bsdad pa	坐	nisinna	sitting, seated nyal ba	臥	sayana	lying down
len pa	取	upādāna	grasping, clinging yongs su rdzogs pa	成就	? paripuṇṇa, paripūra, samannāgata ?	be complete, whole
chos mngon pa	阿毘曇	Abhidhamma	Abhidhamma
'di lta ste	如所說	yathā vutta, yathā āha	as is said
'di lta ste chos mngon pa	如阿毘曇所說	yathā abhidhamme vuttaṃ	as is said in the Abhidhamma
'di lta ste	如是	evaṃ	thus:
sngon gyi las kyi srid pa	初業有	purimakammabhava	previous kamma-existence
skye ba'i srid pa	生有	upapattibhava	rebirth-existence
skye ba	生	upapatti	rebirth
'dir	此	idha	here
las kyi srid pa	業有	kammabhava	kamma-existence
'dir las kyi srid pa	此業有	idhakammabhava	kamma-existence-here zhes pa nas	乃至	peyyāla, pe	... , and so on until,
'byung ba	起	samudaya	origination
du sdug bsngal gyi phung po chen po 'ba' zhig	皆苦陰	kevala dukkhakkhandha	the entire mass of suffering
ste 'di ltar	所謂	yadidaṃ	namely, that is to say ni 'di ltar	所謂	yadidaṃ	namely, that is to say la sogs pa	所初	ādi	starting from, beginning with sgo	面	mukha, dvāra	entrance, means sgo	門	mukha, dvāra	entrance, means
'jig rten pa	世間	lokika	mundane
'jig rten las 'das pa	出世	lokuttara	supramundane
'jig rten las 'das pa'i rten cing 'brel par 'byung ba	出世因緣	lokuttara-paṭiccasamuppāda	supramundane dependent arising
dad pa	信	saddhā	faith
dga' ba	喜	pīti	rapture
mchog tu dga' ba	踊躍	pāmojja	gladness
rab tu rangs pa	踊躍	pāmojja	gladness
mchog tu dga' ba	歡喜	pāmojja	gladness
rab tu rangs pa	歡喜	pāmojja	gladness
shin tu sbyangs pa	猗	passaddhi	tranquillity
ting nge 'dzin	定	samādhi	concentration yang dag pa ci lta ba'i ye shes mthong ba	如實知見	yathābhūtañāṇadassana	knowledge and vision according to reality
yang dag pa ci lta ba	如實	yathābhūta	according to reality, as it is ye shes mthong ba	知見	ñāṇadassana	knowledge and vision
yid 'byung ba	厭患	nibbidā	disenchantment
'dod chags dang bral ba	無欲	virāga	dispassion, fading away
rnam par grol ba	解脫	vimutti	freedom, liberation
grol ba	解脫	vimutti	freedom, liberation
zad par shes pa	滅智	khaye ñāṇa	knowledge of destruction
shes pa	智	ñāṇa	knowledge
zad pa	滅	khaya	destruction
gsungs pa	說	desita	taught yang	復	puna	again, also
rnam pa bzhi	四種	catubbidha, catuvidha	four-fold, four kinds
rgyu las byung ba	為因	hetuka	as cause, being due to the cause
mngon par 'du byed pa	有作	abhisaṅkhāra, abhisaṅkhāraṇa	preparation
thun mong gi las	共業	sādhāraṇakamma	collective kamma, shared kamma
thun mong	共	sādhārana	collective, shared sa bon dang myu gu la sogs pa'i rgyun	種芽相續	bījaṅkurasantati (?)	the succession of seed and sprout
rgyun	相續	santati	succession
sprul pa	化	nimmāṇa, nimmita	creation, production (by supernormal power)
sa	地	paṭhavī	the earth, earth
kha ba can	雪山	himavantu	the Himalaya, snowy mountains
rgya mtsho/ rgya mtso	海	samudda	the sea, ocean
nyi ma	日	suriya	sun
zla ba	月	candimā	moon
'du byed kyi phung po	行陰	saṅkhārakkhandha	the aggregate of formations
rnam par shes pa'i phung po	識陰	viññāṇakkhandha	the aggregate of consciousness
tsor ba'i phung po (= tshor ba'i phung po)	受陰	vedanākkhandha	the aggregate of feeling gzugs kyi phung po	色陰	rūpakkhandha	the aggregate of matter
'du shes kyi phung po	想陰	saññākkhandha	the aggregate of perception
'du shes	想	saññā	perception
bsdus pa	所攝	saṅgahita	is included
phung pos bsdus pa	陰相攝	khandhasaṅgaha	the aggregate-inclusion

skye mched kyis bsdus pa	入相攝	āyatanasaṅgaha	the sense-base-inclusion
khams kyis bsdus pa	界相攝	dhātusaṅgaha	the element-inclusion
bden pas bsdus pa	諦相攝	sacca-saṅgaha	the truth-inclusion
chos kyi skye mched	法入	dhammāyatana	the sense-base of mental states
yid kyi skye mched	意入	manāyatana	the sense-base of mind
phyi rol	外	bahiddhā	external nang gi bdag nyid	內	ajjhatta	internal nang gi bdag nyid	內	ajjhattika	internal nang gi bdag nyid kyi skye mched drug gis	六內入	cha ajjhattikāni āyatanāni	the six internal sense-bases
'phags pa'i bden pa la mkhas pa	聖諦方便	ariyasaccakusala	noble-truths-skill
'phags pa'i bden pa	聖諦	ariyasacca	noble truth, truth of the noble ones
sdug bsngal 'phags pa'i bden pa	苦聖諦	dukkha ariyasacca	noble truth of suffering
kun 'byung 'phags pa'i bden pa	苦集聖諦	dukkhasamudaya ariyasacca	noble truth of the origin of suffering
sdug bsngal 'gog pa 'phags pa'i bden pa	苦滅聖諦	dukkhanirodha ariyasacca	noble truth of the cessation of suffering
sdug bsngal 'gog par 'gro ba'i lam 'phags pa'i bden pa	苦滅道聖諦	dukkhanirodhagāminī paṭipadā ariyasacca	noble truth of the way to the cessation of suffering
sdug bsngal 'gog pa	苦滅	dukkhanirodha	cessation of suffering
'phags pa	聖	ariya	noble
'gog pa	滅	nirodha	cessation sdug bsngal 'gog par 'gro ba'i lam	苦滅道	dukkhanirodhagāminī paṭipadā	the path leading to the cessation of suffering
'phags pa'i bden pa bzhi	四諦	cattāri ariyasaccāni	the four noble truths
las dang po pa'i rnal 'byor pa	初坐禪人	ādikammika yogāvacara, ādikammika-yogī	beginner meditator
las dang po pa	初	ādikammika	beginner
rnal 'byor pa	坐禪人	yogāvacara, yogī	meditator
rga shi las grol bar 'dod pa	樂脫老死	jarāṃaraṇamokkhaṃ icchati (?)	desires release from old age and death
'dod pa	樂	icchati	wishes, desires rga shi las grol ba	脫老死	jarāṃaraṇamokkha, jarāmaraṇato mokkha (?)	release from old age and death
'khor ba'i rgyu	生死因	saṃsārahetu	the cause of saṃsāra
rnam par sel ba	除	vidhamati	dispels ma rig pa'i mun pa	無明闇	avijjandhakāra	the darkness of ignorance
mun pa	闇	andhakāra	darkness
don du gnyer ba	樂	patthayati, icchati	aspires for, desires, wishes yang dag par gcod pa	斷	samucchindati, samucchedana, samuccheda	sever, cut off, abandon, destroy
'phags pa'i shes ra	聖慧	ariyapaññā	noble wisdom
thob pa	得	paṭilabbhati, lābha, laddha,	obtains, gains, attains phung po la mkhas pa	陰方便	khandhakusala	aggregate-skill
skye mched la mkhas pa	入方便	āyatanakusala	sense-base-skill
khams la mkhas pa	界方便	dhātukusala	element-skill bskyed par bya	當起	uppajjitabba (?)	should give rise to gnas	處	ṭhāna	place, site
me	火	tejo	fire
chu	水	āpo	water
rlung	風	vāyo	wind
rna ba	耳	sota	ear
sna	鼻	ghāṇa	nose
lce	舌	jivhā	tongue
lus	身	kāya	body
rnam par rig byed	作	viññatti	intimation lus kyi rnam par rig byed	身作	kāyaviññatti	physical intimation ngag gi rnam par rig byed	口作	vāciviññatti	verbal intimation
sgra	聲	sadda	sound
dri	香	gandha	scent
ro	味	rasa	taste
bud med kyi dbang po	女根	itthindriya	the faculty of femininity skyes pa'i dbang po	男根	purisindriya	the faculty of masculinity bud med	女	itthi	woman, female skyes pa	男	purisa	man, male
lus kyi rig byed	身作	kāyaviññatti	physical action
ngag gi rig byed	口作	vacīviññatti	verbal action nam mkha'i khams	虛空界	ākāsadhātu	the element of space nam mkha	虛空	ākāsa	space
gzugs kyi yang ba nyid	輕色	rūpassa lahutā	lightness of matter (= one of the types of matter derived from the four great entities (upādārūpa).)
gzugs kyi 'jam pa nyid	軟色	rūpassa mudutā	softness of matter (= one of the types of matter derived from the four great entities (upādārūpa).)
gzugs kyi las su rung ba nyid	堪受持色	rūpassa kammaññatā	wieldabilty of matter (= one of the types of matter derived from the four great entities (upādārūpa).)
gzugs kyi yang ba	輕色	rūpassa lahutā	lightness of matter (= one of the types of matter derived from the four great entities (upādārūpa).)
gzugs kyi 'jam pa	軟色	rūpassa mudutā	softness of matter (= one of the types of matter derived from the four great entities (upādārūpa).)

gzugs kyi las su rung ba	堪受持色	rūpassa kammaññatā	wieldabilty of matter (= one of the types of matter derived from the four great entities (upādārūpa).)
yang ba nyid	輕	lahutā	lightness
'jam pa nyid	軟	mudutā	softness
las su rung ba nyid	堪受	kammaññatā	wieldabilty
gzugs kyi 'phel ba	増長色	rūpassa upacayo	accumulation of matter (= one of the types of matter derived from the four great entities (upādārūpa).
'phel ba	増長	upacaya	accumulation
gzugs kyi rgyud	相續色	rūpassa santati	continuity of matter (= one of the types of matter derived from the four great entities (upādārūpa).
gzugs kyi skye ba	生色	jātirūpa	birth of matter (= one of the types of matter derived from the four great entities (upādārūpa).
gzugs kyi rga ba	老色	rūpassa jaratā	ageing of matter (= one of the types of matter derived from the four great entities (upādārūpa).
gzugs kyi mi rtag pa	無常色	rūpassa aniccatā	impermanence of matter (= one of the types of matter derived from the four great entities (upādārūpa).
mi rtag pa	無常	aniccatā, anicca	impermanence
khams kyi zas	揣食	kabaliṅkāra āhāra	solid food (= one of the types of matter derived from the four great entities (upādārūpa).
dngos po'i ngo bo	處色	vatthurūpa	matter as basis (= one of the types of matter derived from the four great entities (upādārūpa).
gnyid	眠	middha	torpor
sum cu	三十	tiṃsa	thirty
bye brag tu gyur pa	所勝	visesita, visesa ?	in detail, in particular, particular
kun slong	令起	samuṭṭhāna	production, induction, produce tshogs pa /tsogs pa	聚	kalāpa	group
sna tshogs pa nyid	種種	nānatta	diversity, variety
gcig nyid	一	ekatta	unity
kun du bslang ba	所起	samuṭṭhāna	originating from, produced from las kyis kun du bslang ba	業所起	kammasamuṭṭhāna	produced from kamma, originating from kamma
sems kyis kun du bslang ba	心所起	cittasamuṭṭhāna	produced from mind, originating from mind
dus kyis kun du bslang ba	時節所起	utusamuṭṭhāna	produced from caloricity, originating from caloricity
kha zas kyis kun du bslang ba	食所起	āhārasamuṭṭhāna	produced from nutriment, originating from nutriment
kha zas	食	āhāra	nutriment
dus	時節	utu	caloricity, season
sa'i khams	地界	paṭhavidhātu	the element of earth
chu'i khams	水界	āpodhātu	the element of water
me'i khams	火界	tejodhātu	the element of fire
rlung'i khams	風界	vāyodhātu	the element of wind
'on kyang	復次	api ca	but, yet, however las dang nyon mongs pa	業煩惱	kammakilesa	action-defilement bcu	十	dasa, dasaka	ten, decad, a group of ten mig bcu ldan	眼十	cakkhu-dasaka	eye-decad
rna ba bcu ldan	耳十	sota-dasaka	ear-decad
sna bcu ldan	鼻十	ghāṇa-dasaka	nose-decad
lce bcu ldan	舌十	jivhā-dasaka	tongue-decad
lus bcu ldan	身十	kāya-dasaka	body-decad
rab tu dang ba'i mig	眼清淨	cakkhu-pasāda	sensitivity of the eye
dngos por gyur pa	是其處	vatthubhūta (?)	as its basis
'byung ba chen po bzhi	四界	catumahābhūta	the four great entities, the four great elements
kha dog	色	vaṇṇa	colour, complexion
gzi brjid	氣味	ojā	nutritive essence tha dad med pa	不相離	avinibbhoga	inseperable zhes brjod do	謂	vuccati	is called
'di ni ... zhes brjod do	是謂	ayaṃ vuccati	this is called "..." (Used as the conclusion of an explanation of a word.)
'di ni ... zhes brjod do	此謂	ayaṃ vuccati	this is called "..." (Used as the conclusion of an explanation of a word.)
de ni ... zhes brjod do	此謂	ime vuccanti	these are called "..." (Used as the conclusion of an explanation of a word.)
'di rnams ni	此謂	ime vuccanti	these are called "..." (Used as the conclusion of an explanation of a word.)
rnyings pa	熟	jīraṇa	getting old, decay
'jig pa	壞	bhaṅga	disintegration
yongs su chad pa	分別	paricchindana, pariccheda, paricchedana, paricchinna	limitation, delimitation, marking out, delimiting, delimited
rjes su 'jug par byed pa	隨起	anuvatti, sahavutti, sahuppatti	occurring together, proceeding sequentially
rjes su 'jug par byed pa	共起	sahavutti, sahuppatti, anuvatti	proceeding sequentially, occurring together
rjes su 'jug par byed pa	共生	sahavutti, sahuppatti, anuvatti	proceeding sequentially, occurring together
rjes su 'brel pa	隨逐	anupabandhana, anuppabandhana	being sequentially bound together, continuing bcu ldan	十	dasaka	decad, a group of ten skye ba	起	upapajjati, uppāda	to arise, arising
'jug pa	成	pavattati, pavattana	to occur, happen, occuring
dus gcig du	一剎那	ekakkhaṇa	in one moment, at the same time, at once,

bar gcod	間	antarā	interval
mi shes	不可知	na ñātabba, na veditabba	can not be known myur ba nyid	輕速	khippatā, sīghatā	quickness
sgron me'i 'od bzhin du	如燈焰	dīpa-jālā viya	like the flame of a lamp bzhin du	如	viya	like
sgron me	燈	dīpa, padīpa	lamp
'od	焰	jālā	flame
dngos po bcu ldan	處十	vatthu-dasaka	the (material) basis decad
rgyas par shes par bya'o	以廣可知	vitthārato ñātabba, vitthārato veditabba	to be known in detail
rgyas par	以廣	vitthārato	in full extent, in detail, at length
skye ba'i skad cig	剎那生	upapattikkhaṇa	the moment of birth
skye ba'i skad cig la	於剎那生	upapattikkhaṇe	at the moment of birth
la	於	----	in, at, = locative case
ma ning	不男不女	napuṃsaka	of neuter gender, neither a male nor a female ma ning	非男或非女	napuṃsaka	of neuter gender, neither a male nor a female
'dod pa na spyod pa	欲界	kāmāvacara	the sensuous realm, the realm of sense-desire rdzus skyes	化生	opapātika	spontaneous birth
yongs su rdzogs pa	滿	paripuṇṇa	be complete, whole skye mched yongs su rdzogs pa	滿根入	paripuṇṇāyatanā	to be complete in sense-bases
skyes pa dang bud med	男女	itthipurisa	a man or woman
skyes pa dang bud med	女人男人	itthipurisa	a man or woman bdun cu	七十	sattati	seventy
dmus long	生盲	jaccandha	one who is born blind, blind by birth
ngan song	惡趣	duggati	bad destination
med pa	除	ṭhapetvā	except for, leaving aside drug cu	六十	saṭṭhi	sixty
skye ba'i 'on pa	生聾	jaccabadhira	one who is born deaf, deaf by birth
'on pa	聾	badhira	deaf
lnga bcu	五十	paññāsa	fifty
bskal pa dang po pa'i mi rnams	劫初人	paṭhamakappikā manussā	human beings at the beginning of the aeon
bskal pa dang po pa	劫初	paṭhamakappika	the beginning of the aeon
bskal pa	劫	kappa	aeon
mi	人	manussa	human being
mi rnams	人	manussā	human beings
dmus long 'on pa	生盲聾	jaccandhabadhira	one born blind and deaf, blind and deaf by birth bzhi bcu	四十	cattālisati	forty tsangs pa	天	Brahmā	Brahmā god
dgu ldan	九	navaka	ennead, a group of nine
'du shes med pa'i sems can	無想天眾	asaññasatta deva	non-percipient god
'du shes med pa	無想	asaññā	non-percipient rags pa	大	oḷārika	coarse
phra mo	細	sukhuma	fine
thogs pa dang bcas pa	有對	sappaṭigha	with resistance
thogs pa med pa	無對	appaṭigha	without resistance
thogs pa	對	paṭigha	resistance, impact don gyis	以 ... 義	aṭṭhena	in the sense of rnam pa gnyis	二種	duvidha	two kinds, twofold
rnam pa gsum	三種	tividha	three kinds, threefold nang dang phyi rol	內外	ajjhattabahiddha	internal and external dang bcas pa	有	sa-	with, having a ... (= prefix in Pali & Chinese, suffix in Tibetan) dang mi ldan pa	無	a-	without, not having a ... (= prefix in Pali and Chinese, suffixed in Tibetan) nang gi	內	ajjhatta	internal, inner bdag po	依	ādhipacca, adhipati	authority, predominance nyi shu nyer gnyis	二十二	dvāvīsati	twenty-two dbang po min pa	非根	anindriya	non-faculty rnam pa gsum	三種	tividha	three kinds zin pa	受	upādiṇṇa	clung-to ma zin pa	非受	anupādiṇṇa	non-clung-to zin pa'i gzugs	受色	upādiṇṇa-rūpa	clung-to matter
bstan du yod pa	可見	sanidassana	visible, definable, demonstratable
bstan du med pa	不可見	anidassana	invisible, undefinable, non-demonstratable
gegs	觸	paṭihanana, paṭihaññati	striking against, colliding, impeding gegs byed pa	觸	paṭihanana, paṭihaññati	to strike against, collide, impede, striking against, impeding gegs med pa	不可觸	nappaṭihaññati	not impeding bcu gcig	十一	ekādasa	eleven
bco brgyad	十八	aṭṭharasa	eighteen
mthong du med pa	不可見	na daṭṭhabba	not being visible rang bzhin	自性	sabhāva	nature, essence, natural, essential, inherent rnam par 'gyur ba	變	vikāra, vipariṇāma	alteration
yongs su rdzogs pa	畢竟	nipphanna	produced

yongs su ma chad pa	無分別	aparicchinna	not delimited
gcig pa nyid	一	ekatta	unity
rgyu med pa	無因	ahetuka	without a cause
rgyu can	因	hetuka, sahetuka	with a cause
rgyu med pa ma yin pa dang rgyu can	非因非無因	na sahetuka na ca ahetuka, neva hetuka na ca ahetuka	neither with a cause nor without a cause (See Vibhanga p. 63.)
mi ldan pa	不相應	vippayutta	dissociated
rkyen can	有緣	sappaccaya	with condition
'dus byas	有為	saṅkhata	conditioned
'jig rten pa	世	lokiya	worldly, mundane
zag pa dang bcas pa	有漏	sāsava	with taints, subject to taints
kun du sbyor ba	縛	saṃyojana	fetter
kun du sbyor bar bya ba	有縛	saṃyojaniya	subject to fetters, with fetters
mdud par bya ba	有結	ganthaniya	subject to knots, with knots
'dud par bya ba	有結	ganthaniya	subject to knots, with knots (The Tibetan 'dud par bya ba is a corruption of mdud par bya ba)
mdud pa	結	gantha	knot
rgyun rgyu ba	有流	oghaniya	subject to floods, with torrents
klung du 'bab par bya ba	有流	oghaniya	subject to torrents, with torrents
sbyor bar bya ba	有軛	yoganiya	subject to bondages, with bondages
sbyor ba	軛	yoga	bondage
sgrib par bya ba	有蓋	nīvaraṇiya	subject to hindrances, with hindrances
sgrib pa	蓋	nīvaraṇa	hindrance
mchog tu 'dzin pa	所觸	parāmaṭṭha	subject to holding mchog tu bzung ba	所觸	parāmaṭṭha	subject to holding mchog tu spyod pa	所觸	parāmaṭṭha	subject to holding nye bar blang ba	有取	upādāniya	subject to clinging nye bar len pa	有取	upādāniya	subject to clinging nye bar bslang ba	有取	upādāniya	subject to clinging (The Tibetan nye bar bslang ba is a corruption of nye bar blang ba.)
nyon mongs pa can	有煩惱	saṃkilesika	subject to defilement
kun nas nyon mongs pa	煩惱	saṃkilesa	defilement
kun nas nyon mongs pa la byung ba	有煩惱	saṃkilesika	subject to defilement
zag pa med pa	無漏	anāsava	without taints, not subject to taints
bcing bar bya ba ma yin pa	無結	aganthaniya	without knots, not subject to knots
'dud par bya ba ma yin pa	無結	aganthaniya	without knots, not subject to knots (The Tibetan 'dud par bya ba ma yin pa is a corruption of mdud par bya ba ma yin pa.)
kun du sbyor ba ma yin pa	無縛	asaṃyojaniya	not subject to fetters, without fetters
sbyor bar bya ba ma yin pa	無縛	asaṃyojaniya	not subject to fetters, without fetters
rgyun rgyu ba ma yin pa	無流	anoghaniya	not subject to torrents, without torrents
klung du 'bab par bya ba ma yin pa	無流	anoghaniya	not subject to torrents, without torrents
sbyor bar bya ba ma yin pa	無軛	ayoganiya	not subject to bondages, without bondages
bsgrib par bya ba ma yin pa	無蓋	anīvaraṇiya	not subject to hindrances, without hindrances (Cf. sgrib par bya ba ma yin pa)
sgrib par bya ba ma yin pa	無蓋	anīvaraṇiya	not subject to hindrances, without hindrances
mchog tu spyod bya ma yin pa	不可觸	aparāmaṭṭha	not subject to holding, without holding (Cf. 無所觸, mchog tu gzung bar bya ba ma yin pa)
mchog tu gzung bar bya ba ma yin pa	無所觸	aparāmaṭṭha	not subject to holding, without holding (Cf. 不可觸, mchog tu spyod bya ma yin pa)
mchog tu spyod bya	可觸	parāmaṭṭha	subject to holding, with holding nye bar len pa ma yin pa	無取	anupādāniya	not subject to clinging, without clinging nye bar blang ba ma yin pa	無取	anupādāniya	not subject to clinging, without clinging nyon mongs pa can ma yin pa	無煩惱	asaṃkilesika	not subject to defilement, without defilement
nyon mongs pa can la byung ba ma yin pa	無煩惱	asaṃkilesika	not subject to defilement, without defilement
lung du ma bstan pa	無記	abyākata, avyākata	indeterminate
dmigs pa med pa	無事	anārammaṇa	without object
sems pa med pa	非心數	acetasika	not a mental factor
sems dang mi ldan pa	心不相應	cittavippayutta	dissociated from mind dang mi ldan pa	不相應	vippayutta	dissociated, not associated with chung ba	小	paritta	restricted
'dod pa na spyod pa	欲界繫	kāmāvacarika	connected to the sense-realm
ma nges pa	不定	aniyata	not fixed nges pa	定	niyata	fixed
nges par 'byin pa ma yin pa	非乘	aniyyānika	not leading out nges par 'byin pa	乘	niyyānika	leading out bde ba dang ldan pa	與樂共起	sukhasahagata	accompanied by pleasure
sdug bsngal dang ldan pa	與苦共起	dukkhasahagata	accompanied by pain
'phel ba nyid du 'gro ba	令聚	ācayagāmi	accumulating, accruing
'grib pa nyid du 'gro ba	不令聚	apacayagāmī	disaccumulating, non-accruing
'phel ba nyid du 'gro ba ma yin pa dang 'grib pa nyid du 'gro ba ma yin pa	不令聚非不令聚	neva ācayagāmi na apacayagāmī	neither accumulating nor disaccumulating slob pa nyid ma yin pa dang mi slob pa	非學非非學	nevasekkhanāsekkha	neither training nor non-training, neither learner nor nyid ma yin pa			not-learner. Cf. 非學非非學.

slob pa	學	sekkha, sekha	training, trainee, learner (in the Chinese text of the Vimuttimagga the character 學 is confused several times with 覺, vitakka)
mi slob pa	不學	asekkha, asekha	non-training, non-trainee, non-learner
mthong bas spang bar bya ba ma yin pa dang bsgom pas spang bar bya ba ma yin pa	非見所斷非思惟所斷	neva dassanena na bhāvanāya pahātabba	neither to be abandoned through seeing nor through development mthong bas spang bar bya ba	見所斷	dassanena pahātabba	to be abandoned through seeing spang bar bya ba	所斷	pahātabba	to be abandoned
spang bar bya ba	可斷	pahātabba	to be abandoned
bsgom pas spang bar bya ba	思惟所斷	bhāvanāya pahātabba	to be abandoned through development
bsgom pa	思惟	bhāvanā	development, contemplative development, practice, cultivation (the Chinese Vimuttimagga usually has 修行 for bhāvanā, bhāveti)
mtshan nyid kyis	以相	lakkhaṇato	by way of characteristic dngos po'i dbang gis	由處	vatthuto	by way of basis
nyams su myong ba	受持	anubhavana, anubhavati	experiencing, undergoing, to experience lus las byung ba	身	kāyika	bodily sems las byung ba	意	cetasika	mental rang bzhin gyi dbang gis	由自性	sabhāvato	by way of intrinsic nature
bde ba'i tsor ba (= bde ba'i tshor ba)	樂受	sukhavedanā, sukhā vedanā	pleasant feeling sdug bsngal gyi tsor ba (= sdug bsngal gyi tshor ba)	苦受	dukkhavedanā, dukkhā vedanā	unpleasant feeling bde min sdug min tsor ba	不苦不樂受	adukkhamasukhā vedanā	neither pleasant nor unpleasant feeling chos kyi dbang gis	由法	dhammato	by way of states
dge ba	善	kusala	wholesome
mi dge ba	不善	akusala	unwholesome
rnam par smin pa	報	vipāka	resultant bya ba	事	kiriya	functional
dbang po'i dbang gis	由根	indriyato	by way of faculties
bde ba'i dbang po	樂根	sukhindriya	pleasure-faculty sdug bsngal gyi dbang po	苦根	dukkhindriya	pain-faculty yid bde ba'i dbang po	喜根	somanassindriya	joy-faculty yid mi bde ba'i dbang po	憂根	domanassindriya	distress-faculty btang snyoms kyi dbang po	捨根	upekkhindriya	equanimity-faculty
btang snyoms	捨	upekkhā	equanimity
dkar nag gi dbang gis	由黑白	kaṇhasukkato	by way of black and white, by way of opposites
dkar nag	黑白	kaṇhasukka	black and white, opposites
zang zing dang bcas pa	有漏	sāmisa	carnal
zang zing med pa	無漏	nirāmisa	non-carnal
sgo'i dbang po	由門	dvārato	by way of (sense-) door
sgo	門	dvāra	door
mig gi 'dus te reg pa	眼觸	cakkhusamphassa	eye-contact
mig gi 'dus te reg pa las skyes pa'i tshor ba	從眼觸生受	cakkhusamphassajā vedanā	feeling born of eye-contact
mig gi 'dus te reg pa las skyes pa	從眼觸生	cakkhusamphassajā	born of eye-contact rna ba'i 'dus te reg pa las skyes pa'i tshor ba	從耳觸生受	sotasamphassajā vedanā	feeling born of ear-contact rna ba'i 'dus te reg pa las skyes pa	從耳觸生	sotasamphassajā	born of ear-contact rna ba'i 'dus te reg pa	耳觸	sotasamphassa	ear-contact sna'i 'dus te reg pa las skyes pa'i tshor ba	從鼻觸生受	ghānasamphassajā vedanā	feeling born of nose-contact sna'i 'dus te reg pa	鼻觸	ghānasamphassa	nose-contact lce'i 'dus te reg pa las skyes pa'i tshor ba	從舌觸生受	jivhāsamphassajā vedanā	feeling born of tongue-contact
lce'i 'dus te reg pa	舌觸	jivhāsamphassa	tongue-contact lus kyi 'dus te reg pa las skyes pa'i tshor ba	從身觸生受	kāyasamphassajā vedanā	feeling born of body-contact
lus kyi 'dus te reg pa las skyes pa	從身觸生	kāyasamphassajā	born of body-contact
lus kyi 'dus te reg pa	身觸	kāyasamphassa	body-contact yid kyi khams 'dus te reg pa las skyes pa'i tshor ba	從意界觸生受	manodhātusamphassajā vedanā,	feeling born of mind-element-contact
yid kyi khams 'dus te reg pa las skyes pa	從意界觸生	manodhātusamphassajā	born of mind-element-contact
yid kyi khams	意界	manodhātu	mind-element
yid kyi khams 'dus te reg pa	意界觸	manodhātusamphassa	mind-element-contact
rnam par shes pa'i khams 'dus te reg pa las skyes pa'i tshor ba	從意識界觸生受	manoviññāṇadhātusamphassajā vedanā	feeling born of mind-consciousness-element-contact rnam par shes pa'i khams 'dus te reg pa	意識界觸	manoviññāṇadhātusamphassa	mind-consciousness-element-contact
rnam par shes pa'i khams	意識界	manoviññāṇadhātu	mind-consciousness-element brgya dang brgyad	一百八	aṭṭahasata	one hundred and eight mig gi khams	眼界	cakkhudhātu	eye-element
gzugs kyi khams	色界	rūpadhātu	form-element
mig gi rnam par shes pa'i khams	眼識界	cakkhuviññāṇadhātu	eye-consciousness-element

rna ba'i khams	耳界	sotadhātu	ear-element
sgra'i khams	聲界	saddadhātu	sound-element
rna ba'i rnam par shes pa'i khams	耳識界	sotaviññāṇadhātu	ear-consciousness-element
sna'i khams	鼻界	ghānadhātu	nose-element
dri'i khams	香界	gandhadhātu	odour-element
sna'i rnam par shes pa'i khams	鼻識界	ghānaviññāṇadhātu	nose-consciousness-element
lce'i khams	舌界	jivhādhātu	tongue-element
ro'i khams	味界	rasadhātu	taste-element
lce'i rnam par shes pa'i khams	舌識界	jivhāviññāṇadhātu	tongue-consciousness-element
lus kyi khams	身界	kāyadhātu	body-element,
reg bya'i khams	觸界	phoṭṭhabbadhātu	touch-element,
lus kyi rnam par shes pa'i khams	身識界	kāyaviññāṇadhātu	body-consciousness-element
chos kyi khams	法界	dhammadhātu	mental states-element
yid kyi rnam par shes pa'i khams	意識界	manoviññāṇadhātu	mind-consciousness-element brgya	百	sata	hundred
khyim gyi re ba la brten pa	依愛起	gehasitāni	dependent on the household-life, dependent on desire of the household-life, dependent upon desire (The Pali term geha literally means “household-life” but in the commentaries it is here primarily taken in the sense of sensual desire, perhaps due to its similarity to gedha, greed/desire. The Chinese translator translated it in this latter sense (“dependent upon desire”), while the Tibetan translation conveys both senses, (“dependent on desire/longing of the household-life”).
brten pa	依	sita	dependent on nges par 'byung ba	出離	nekkhamma	renunciation
phyin ci log	顛倒	viparīta, vippallāsa	distorted, inverted, perverted phyin ci ma log pa	不顛倒	aviparīta	undistorted, non-inverted, non-perverted
----	顛倒想	viparītasaññā	distorted perception
----	不顛倒想	aviparītasaññā	undistorted perception
gnod pa	瞋恚	vyāpāda, byāpāda	ill-will, anger
rnam par 'tshe ba	害	vihiṃsa	harming, harm mi gnod pa	不瞋恚	avyāpāda, abyāpāda	non-ill-will
'dod pa'i 'du shes	欲想	kāmasaññā	sense-desire-perception
gnod pa'i 'du shes	瞋恚想	vyāpādasaññā	ill-will-perception
rnam par 'tshe ba'i 'du shes	害想	vihimsasaññā	harming-perception
dge ba'i dbang gis	以由善	kusalato	by way of wholesomeness mi dge ba'i dbang gis	以由不善	akusalato	by way of unwholesomeness
nges par 'byung ba'i 'du shes	出離想	nekkhammasaññā	renunciation-perception mi gnod pa'i 'du shes	不瞋恚想	avyāpādasaññā	non-ill-will-perception
rnam par 'tshe ba med pa'i 'du shes	不害想	avihimsasaññā	non-harming-perception
rnam par 'tshe ba med pa'i	不害	avihimsa	non-harming
bdag gi rang bzhin	義性處	attabhāvavatthu	grounds of selfhood
bdag gi rang bzhin	身性處	attabhāvavatthu	ground of selfhood
bdag gi rang bzhin	身性	attabhāva	selfhood
bdag gi dngos po	身性	attabhāva	selfhood yongs su mi shes pa	不知	apariññā, aparijānana	not fully knowing mi sdug pa la sdug pa'i 'du shes	於不淨淨想	asubhe subhasaññā	perception of beauty in what is foul
sdug bsngal la bde ba'i 'du shes	於苦樂想	dukkhe sukhasaññā	perception of happiness in what is suffering bdag med pa la bdag gi 'du shes	於無我我想	anattani attasaññā	perception of self in what is not-self
sdug pa'i 'du shes	淨想	subhasaññā	perception of beauty
bde ba'i 'du shes	樂想	sukhasaññā	perception of happiness
rtag pa'i 'du shes	常想	niccasaññā	perception of permanence
bdag gi 'du shes	我想	attasaññā	perception of self mi sdug pa	不淨	asubha	foul, not beautiful, ugliness
sdug pa	淨	subha	beautiful, beauty bdag med pa	無我	anattā	not-self bdag	我	attā	self
mi sdug pa'i 'du shes	不淨想	asubhasaññā	perception of foulness
sdug bsngal gyi 'du shes	苦想	dukkhasaññā	perception of suffering
mi rtag pa'i 'du shes	無常想	aniccasaññā	perception of impermanence bdag med pa'i 'du shes	無我想	anattasaññā	perception of not-self
'dul ba	毘尼	vinaya	discipline
'dul ba'i dbang gis	以由毘尼	vinayato	by way of discipline
rung ba ma yin pa	---	akappiya	inappropriate, unsuitable, unallowable
mi rung ba	---	akappiya	inappropriate, unsuitable, unallowable rung ba	---	kappiya	appropriate, suitable, allowable rung bar 'du shes pa	---	kappiyasaññā	perception of appropiateness mi rung bar 'du shes pa	---	akappiyasaññā	perception of inappropiateness rung ba ma yin par 'du shes pa	---	akappiyasaññā	perception of inappropiateness dmigs pa'i dbang gis	以由事	ārammaṇato	by way of object
gzugs kyi 'du shes	色想	rūpasaññā	perception of forms
sgra'i 'du shes	聲想	saddasaññā	perception of sounds
dri'i 'du shes	香想	gandhasaññā	perception of odours

ri'i 'du shes	味想	rasasaññā	perception of tastes
reg bya'i 'du shes	觸想	phoṭṭhabbasaññā	perception of tangibles
chos kyi 'du shes	法想	dhammasaññā	perception of ideas
sgra	聲	sadda	sound
dri	香	gandha	odour
ro	味	rasa	taste
reg bya	觸	phoṭṭhabba	tangible, touchable
khams kyi dbang gis	以界	dhātuso	by way of elements
reg pa	觸	phassa	contact
sems pa	思	cetanā	volition, intention rnam rtog	覺	vitakka	thinking
rnam par dpyod pa	觀	vicāra	exploring brtson 'grus / brtzon 'grus	精進	viriya	energy
shes rab	慧	paññā	wisdom
sdom pa	蓋	virati (?), saṃvara	desistence, abstinence, restraint
ma chags pa	不貪	alobha	non-greed
mi sdang pa	不瞋	adosa	non-hate
ma rmongs pa	不癡	amoha	non-delusion ngo tsha ba (=ngo tsa ba)	慚	hiri	conscience
khrel yod pa	愧	otappa	shame
'dun pa	欲	chanda	zeal, desire mos pa	解脫	adhimutta	resolve
btang snyoms	捨	upekkhā	equanimity
yid la byed pa	作意	manasikāra	attention, attending to chags pa	貪	lobha	greed
zhe sdang	瞋恚	dosa	hatred
zhe sdang	瞋	dosa	hatred
gti mug	無明	moha	delusion
'dod chags dang zhe sdang dang gti mug	婬欲瞋恚癡	rāgadosamoha	greed, hatred and delusion (= the three roots of unwholesomeness, akusalamūla)
chags pa dang zhe sdang dang rmongs pa	貪瞋癡	rāgadosamoha	greed, hatred and delusion (= the three roots of unwholesomeness, akusalamūla)
'dod chags	婬欲	rāga	greed
gti mug	癡	moha	delusion
nga rgyal	慢	māna	conceit
lta ba	見	diṭṭhi	(wrong) view
rgod pa	調戲	uddhacca	agitation
rgod pa	調	uddhacca	agitation
the tsom	疑懈	kukkucca	doubt
rmugs pa	懈怠	thīna	sloth
ngo tsa med pa	無慚	ahiri	non-conscience khrel med pa	無愧	anottappa	shamelessness mig gi rnam shes	眼識	cakkhuviññāṇa	eye-consciousness
rna ba'i rnam shes	耳識	sotaviññāṇa	ear-consciousness
sna'i rnam shes	鼻識	ghāṇaviññāṇa	nose-consciousness
lce'i rnam shes	舌識	jivhāviññāṇa	tongue-consciousness
lus kyi rnam shes	身識	kāyaviññāṇa	body-consciousness
yid kyi rnam par shes pa	意識	manoviññāṇa	mind-consciousness
ngo bo'i don	句義	vacanattha	word-meaning
	以句義	vacanatthato	by way of word-meaning gzugs par bya ba	現	ruppati	materialises rig pa	可受	vedayati	experiences, feels kun du shes pa	知	saññjānāti	perceives, recognises (cf. T32n1648_p0444b09)
so sor byed pa	作	abhisaṅkharoti	forms, prepares, arranges rnam par rtog pa	解	vijānāti	knows rnam par rtog pa	知	vijānāti	knows rigs mthun pa'i tshogs pa / rigs mthun pa'i tsogs pa	種類集	sabhāgadhammā rāsi/samūha (?)	aggregation of similar types
ris mthun pa'i chos rnams tshogs pa / ris mthun pa'i chos rnams tshogs pa	法種類	sabhāgadhammā saṅgati/sāmaggi	coming together (saṅgati, sāmaggi) of similar types of states rigs mthun pa	種類	sabhāga	similar types, classes, kinds
ris mthun pa'i chos	法種類	sabhāgadhammā	similar types of states
tshogs pa / tsogs pa	集	rāsi, samuccaya (?)	aggregation
tshogs pa / tsogs pa	和合	saṅgati/sāmaggi (?)	coming together, aggregation so sor yang dag par rig pa	---	paṭisaṃvedeti	experiences, feels za 'phrug / za phrug	---	kaṇḍu	itching
mdze rma	癩	kuṭṭha	leprosy
gzhi'i gnas	足處	padaṭṭhāna	near cause, proximate cause
dngos po'i gnas	足處	padaṭṭhāna	near cause, proximate cause
skye ba'i gnas	足處	padaṭṭhāna	near cause, proximate cause mtshan mar 'dzin pa	持相	ākāragahaṇa	grasping the aspects, grasping the attributes (of an object)
mtshan ma	相	ākāra	aspect, attribute, feature, characteristic mngon par shes pa	神通	abhiññā	direct knowledge

'khor lo	輪	cakkaṃ	wheel
'khor lo 'phangs pa	轉輪	cakkaṃ pavattana	propelling a wheel, set going a wheel
'phangs pa	轉	pavattana	turning, set going, propelling
phung lnga	五陰	pañcakkhandhā	five aggregates nye bar len pa'i phung lnga	五受陰	pañcupādānakkhandhā	five aggregates subject to clinging chos kyi phung po lnga	五法陰	pañcadhammakkhandhā	five aggregates of the Dhamma
chos kyi phung po	法陰	dhammakkhandha	aggregate of the Dhamma
'dus byas kyi chos	有為法	conditioned phenomenon/ phenomena	saṅkhatadhamma
'dus byas kyi chos thams cad	一切有為法	all conditioned phenomena	sabbe saṅkhatadhammā tshul khrims kyi phung po	戒陰	sīlakkhandha	aggregate of virtue ting nge 'dzin gyi phung po	定陰	samādhikkhandha	aggregate of concentration shes rab kyi phung po	慧陰	paññakkhandha	aggregate of wisdom, rnam par grol ba'i phung po	解脫陰	vimuttikhandha	aggregate of freedom
rnam par grol ba'i ye shes mthong ba'i phung po	解脫知見陰	vimuttiñāṇadassanakkhandha	aggregate of the knowledge and discernment of freedom
rnam par grol ba'i ye shes mthong ba	解脫知見	vimuttiñāṇadassana	knowledge and discernment of freedom tshul khrims / tsul khrims	戒	sīla	virtue skabs 'dir	於此	idha	here
mngon par 'dod	可樂	adhippeta	desirable, preferable, intended (as meaning)
skye mched du bsdu ba	入攝	āyatanasaṅgaha	sense-base-inclusion
khams su bsdu ba	界攝	dhātusaṅgaha	element-inclusion
bden par bsdu ba	諦攝	saccasaṅgaha	Truths-inclusion
chos kyi khams	法界	dhammadhātu	the element of mental states
yid kyi rnam par shes pa'i khams	意識界	manoviññāṇadhātu	the element of mind-consciousness
lam gyi bden pa	道諦	maggasacca	the truth of the path (leading to the cessation of suffering)
kun 'byung gi bden pa	集諦	samudayasacca	the truth of origination (of suffering)
'gog pa'i bden pa	滅諦	nirodhasacca	the truth of cessation (of suffering)
bsdus pa ma yin pa	非所攝	asaṅgahita	is not included yod	有	atthi, santi	there is, there are chos yod	有法	santi dhammā	there are states ...
dang 'brel ba	所縛	baddha	bound up with, linked with dbang po ma yin pa dang 'brel ba	非根所縛	anindriyabaddha	not bound up with faculties
lam dang mtshungs par ldan pa	與道相應	maggasampayutta	associated with the Paths
dge sbyong gi 'bras bu	沙門果	sāmaññaphala	the fruit of recluseship dang mtshungs par ldan pa / dang mtsungs par ldan pa	相應	sampayutta	associated with btags pa	制	paññatti	designation
btags yod	制	paññatti	designation
phyogs	方	disā	directions, quarters, cardinal points
'ongs pa	犯罪	āpatti	transgression, commission of an offence
sbyangs pa	頭陀	dhuta	austerity
zad par mtshan ma / zad par mtsan ma	一切相	kasiṇanimitta	kasiṇa signs (i.e. signs of kasiṇa meditation objects)
zad par	一切	kasiṇa (= Skt kṛtsna)	totality, entirety, = the name for 10 kinds of meditation objects consisting of colours and elements
cung zad med pa'i skye mched kyi snyoms par 'jug pa dmigs pa	無所有入定事	ākiñcaññāyatanasamāpatti-ārammaṇa	the object of the attainment of the base of nothingness
cung zad med pa	無所有	ākiñcaññā	nothingness
cung zad med pa'i skye mched	無所有入	ākiñcaññāyatana	the base of nothingness
cung zad med pa'i skye mched kyi snyoms par 'jug pa	無所有入定	ākiñcaññāyatanasamāpatti	the attainment of the base of nothingness
snyoms par 'jug pa	定	samāpatti	attainment, meditative attainment
'gog pa'i snyoms par 'jug pa	滅禪定	nirodhasamāpatti	attainment of cessation
'gog pa'i snyoms par 'jug pa	滅定	nirodhasamāpatti	attainment of cessation snyoms par 'jug pa	禪定	samāpatti	attainment
yang dag pa'i rnam par rtog pa	實思惟	vijjamāna	existing (The Chinese and Tibetan terms lit. mean "real conception" = bhūta + saṅkappa/māna, which appears to be due to a misunderstanding of vijjamāna, as vidya + mānya(na)
yang dag ma yin pa'i rnam par rtog pa	不實思惟	avijjamāna	not existing yang dag pa	實	bhūta	true, real, according to reality
yang dag ma yin pa	不實	abhūta	untrue, unreal, not according to reality
mig gi skye mched	眼入	cakkhāyatana	sense-base of eye
gzugs kyi skye mched	色入	rūpāyatana	sense-base of matter
rna ba'i skye mched	耳入	sotāyatana	sense-base of ear
sgra'i skye mched	聲入	saddāyatana	sense-base of sound
sna'i skye mched	鼻入	ghānāyatana	sense-base of nose
dri'i skye mched	香入	gandhāyatana	sense-base of odour
lce'i skye mched	舌入	jivhāyatana	sense-base of tongue
ro'i skye mched	味入	rasāyatana	sense-base of taste
lus kyi skye mched	身入	kāyāyatana	sense-base of body
reg bya'i skye mched	觸入	phoṭṭhabbāyatana	sense-base of tangibles
yid kyi skye mched	意入	manāyatana	sense-base of mind
chos kyi skye mched do	法入	dhammāyatana	sense-base of mental states ni	者		is, : separative particle, nominalizing a term and setting it off a term from the explanation that follows it. Best translated as “is” (or represented as : colon).

nyan pa	聞	suṇāti	to hear
grag pa	鳴	ghosa	noise, sound
spyod yul	境界	visaya	sense-object
snom pa	嗅	ghāyati	to smell
myong bar byed pa	知	sāyati	to taste
ro myong bar byed pa	知味	rasaṃ sāyati	to taste a taste
reg pa	觸	phusati	to contact, to touch
sra ba	堅	kakkhaḷa	hardness
'jam pa	軟	muduka	softness
dro ba	煖	usṇa	warmth
bsil ba	冷	sīta	coolness
gzugs can ma yin pa'i phung po	無色陰	arūpakkhandha	immaterial aggregate
gzugs can ma yin pa	無色	arūpa	immaterial
gzugs can ma yin pa'i phung po gsum	三無色陰	tayo arūpakkhandha	the three immaterial aggregates, i.e., vedanā, saññā, saṅkhārā
phra mo'i gzugs	細色	sukhumarūpa	subtle matter
mya ngan las 'das pa	泥洹	nibbāna	quenching, extinction, nirvana
skye mched bcu gnyis	十二入	dvādasāyatanā	the twelve sense-bases brten nas	所依	nissāya	by means of, dependent upon dngos po gang la brten nas	處所依	vatthuṃ nissāya	which is dependent upon the basis bshad pa	說	desita	taught rang gi ngo bo	自性	sabhāva	intrinsic nature
com ldan 'das	世尊	bhagavant	Fortunate One, Blessed one, = epithet of the Buddha gang zag	人	puggala	person
mgo smos pas go ba	利根	tikkhindriya	sharp faculties, sharp, intelligent, astute sgo nas	以門	dvārena	by way of the method of sdug bsngal gyi bden pa	苦諦	dukkhasacca	truth of suffering
mgo smos pas go ba	----	ugghaṭitaññū	one who understands quickly, one who understands by being told the beginning/heading, one who understands by a nod of the head, rnam par spros pa	----	vipañcitaññū	one who understands after detailed explanation
tshig la 'chel ba	----	padaparama	Pali: “one who understands the words at most.” Tibetan “one who is attached to the word” which would be a misunderstanding of padaparama as padaparamaṭṭha.
sdug pa'i 'du shes can	----	subhasaññī	one who perceives beauty
mdor bstan cing	略	saṅkhittena	in brief, concisely
mdor bsdus na	略	saṅkhittena	in brief, concisely dbye ba byas	分別	vibhaṅga	analysis, analysing bdag gi ngo bo dngos po	自性處	attabhāvavatthu	basis for selfhood
bdag gi ngo bo	自性	attabhāva	selfhood nges pa skyed ba	心起	vīthippavatti, vīthicittappavatti , cittappavatti	process of mind, occurrence of process of mind
ston pa	說	desita	taught rgas pa	老	jarā	ageing
yang	----	pi	also
'chi ba	死	maraṇa	death
mi sdug pa dang phrad pa	怨憎憎會	appiyehi sampayoga	association with those who are undear
mi sdug pa dang phrad pa	怨憎會	appiyehi sampayoga	association with those who are undear
sdug pa dang bral ba	愛別離	piyehi vippayoga	separation from those who are dear mi sdug pa	怨憎	appiya	undear, one who is undear
sdug pa	愛	piya	dear, one who is dear
phrad pa	憎會	sampayoga	association
phrad pa	會	sampayoga	association
bral ba	別離	vippayoga	separation
gang 'dod pa yongs su tshol bar byed pa na mi rnyed pa de yang sdug bsngal	求不得苦	yam icchaṃ na labhati tam dukkhaṃ (or: yam p’icchaṃ na labhati tam pi dukkhaṃ)	the not getting of what is wished for that also is suffering gang 'dod pa yongs su tshol bar byed pa na mi rnyed pa	求不得	yam icchaṃ na labhati (or: yam p’icchaṃ na labhati)	not getting of what is wished for
'dod pa	求	icchaṃ	what is wished for gang	----	ya	what, which gang 'dod pa	----	yam icchaṃ	what is wished for mi rnyed pa	不得	na labhati	not getting ma rnyed pa	不得	na labhati	not getting rnyed pa	得	labhati	getting de yang	----	tam pi	that also mdor bsdus pas	以略	saṅkhittena	in brief, concisely
mdor bsdus pa	略	saṅkhitta	brief, concise sems can gyi ris	眾生種類	sattanikāya	group of beings, order of beings
sems can gyi ris rnams	眾生種類諸	sattanikāyā	groups of beings, orders of beings
sems can	眾生	satta	a being, creature

ris	種類	nikāya	group, order
byung ba	起	pātubhāva	manifestation, appearance
sdug bsngal thams cad	一切苦	sabbadukkha	all suffering
nye bar sogs par byed pa	集	samudaya	origination
khams rnams yongs su smin pa	諸界熟	dhātunaṃ paripāka	the maturing of the elements nyams par byed pa	失	parihāna, hāna	decline
'tsho ba	壽命	jīvita	life
dang bral ba	滅	khaya, saṅkhaya	exhaustion, destruction, dissolution
'tsho ba dang bral ba	壽命滅	jīvitakkhaya, jīvitasaṅkhaya	the exhaustion of life
'jigs pa chen po byed pa	作畏怖	----	creating fear
sdug bsngal du son pa	至苦處	dukkhadhammena phuṭṭha, dukkhappatta ?	coming to suffering, reaching suffering yongs su 'chang ba	思惟	parijjhāyana	consuming, burning (the Chinese and Tibetan translators misinterpreted parijjhāyana [or pariḍayhana] as parikappana, fully considering.)
ngag gis brjod pa	語言	vācā palāpa	uttered by voice
phyi nang	內外	ajjhattabahiddha	internal and external sreg par byed pa	燒	ḍayhana	burning sems kyi sdug bsngal	心苦	cetasika dukkha	mental suffering sems kyi	心	cetasika	mental, of the mind
lus kyi sdug bsngal	身苦	kāyika dukkha	physical suffering
mi 'dod pa	不可愛	aniṭṭha	disagreeable, those who are disagreeable
'dod pa	可愛	iṭṭha	agreeable, those who are agreeable
'du byed mnyam du 'tshogs pa	共和合	saddhiṃ saṅgati	being united with, coming together with 'du byed dang bral ba	共分散	saddhiṃ asaṅgati	not being united with don du gnyer bar byed pa	樂	icchati, patthayati	to wishes, aspire for bsam pa	樂	āsiṃsati, āsiṃsanā, icchati	to wish, a wish, hope nyams pa	失	hāni, nassana	loss, losing mi ldan pa	離	visaṃyoga, vippayutta	separation, detachment from dngos po sdug bsngal	處苦	vatthu-dukkha or vatthuka-dukkha	basic suffering rang rtags kyi sdug bsngal	自性苦	sabhāva-dukkha	intrinsic suffering rang rtags	自性	sabhāva	intrinsic
sdug bsngal gyi sdug bsngal	苦苦	dukkha-dukkhatā	suffering of pain, suffering of suffering
yongs su 'gyur ba'i sdug bsngal	壞苦	viparināma-dukkhatā	suffering of change
'du byed kyi sdug bsngal	行苦	saṅkhāra-dukkhatā	suffering of formations
yongs su 'gyur ba	壞	viparināma	change, alteration
yang srid par byed pa	令復生	ponobhavika, ponobbhavika, punabbhavakaraṇa	causing further existence
yang srid pa	復生	punabbhava, punabhava	further existence
dga' ba'i chags pa dang ldan pa	與欲共起	nandirāgasahagata	accompanied by and greed
dga' ba	歡喜	nandi	delight
chags pa	欲	rāga	greed, lust
de dang de ru mngon par dga' ba can	處處喜	tatratatrābhinandinī	delighting here and there
de dang de	處處	tatratatra	here and there, anywhere
mngon par dga' ba	歡喜	abhinandinī, abhinandati	delighting, delights
'dod pa'i sred pa	欲愛	kāma-taṇhā	craving for sense-pleasure
srid pa'i sred pa	有愛	bhava-taṇhā	craving for existence
srid bral gyi sred pa	不有愛	vibhava-taṇhā	craving for annihilation
srid bral	不有	vibhava	annihilation
mngon par 'grub pa	起	nibbattati	is produced, is born gang dang gang du	是處處	yatra yatra	wherever mdza' ba'i rang bzhin	可愛色	piyarūpa	agreeable form
bde ba'i ngo bo	---	sātarūpa	pleasant form
ma gtogs pa	除	ṭhapetvā	except for, leaving aside
ma gtogs	除	ṭhapetvā	except for, leaving aside
rtag par lta ba	常見	sassatadiṭṭhi	eternalist view
chad par lta ba	斷見	ucchedadiṭṭhi	annihilationist view
rtag pa	常	sassata	eternal, eternalism
chad pa	斷	uccheda	annihilation, annihilationist ma lus pa	無餘	asesa	without remainder lus pa	餘	sesa	remainder spangs pa	捨	cāga	relinquishing
nges par spangs pa	遠離	paṭinissagga	giving up, relinquishing grol ba	解脫	mutti	deliverance, release gnas med pa	無處	anālaya	dislodging
gnas	處	ālaya	lodging, dwelling (in the sensual realm)
'phags pa'i lam yan lag brgyad	八正分道	aṭṭhaṅgika-ariya-magga, ariya-aṭṭhaṅgika-magga	Eightfold Noble Path, Noble Eightfold Path, Eightfactored Noble Path, Noble Eightfactored Path (The normal Pali form is ariya-aṭṭhaṅgika-magga. Aṭṭhaṅgika-ariya-magga is rare.), The eight factors are: (1) yang dag pa'i lta ba, 正見, sammādiṭṭhi, right view, (2) yang dag pa'i rtog pa, 正思惟, sammāsaṅkappa, right intention, (3) yang dag pa'i ngag, 正語, sammāvācā, right speech, (4) yang

'phags pa'i lam yan lag brgyad	八正道	aṭṭhaṅgika-ariya-magga, ariya-aṭṭhaṅgika-magga	dag pa'i las kyi mtha', 正業, sammākammanta, right action, (5) yang dag pa'i 'tso ba / yang dag pa'i 'tsho ba, 正命, sammāājīva, right livelihood, (6) yang dag pa'i rtzol ba/yang dag pa'i rtsol ba, 正精進, sammāvāyāma, right effort, (7) yang dag pa'i dran pa, 正念, sammāsati, right mindfulness (8) yang dag pa'i ting nge 'dzin, 正定, sammāsamādhi, right concentration. Eightfold Noble Path, Noble Eightfold Path, Eightfactored Noble Path, Noble Eightfactored Path (The normal Pali form is ariya-aṭṭhaṅgika-magga. Aṭṭhaṅgika-ariya-magga is rare.) Eightfold Noble Path, Noble Eightfold Path, Eightfactored Noble Path, Noble Eightfactored Path (The normal Pali form is ariya-aṭṭhaṅgika-magga. Aṭṭhaṅgika-ariya-magga is rare.), The eight factors are: (1) yang dag pa'i lta ba, 正見, sammādiṭṭhi, right view, (2) yang dag pa'i rtog pa, 正思惟, sammāsaṅkappa, right intention, (3) yang dag pa'i ngag, 正語, sammāvācā, right speech, (4) yang dag pa'i las kyi mtha', 正業, sammākammanta, right action, (5) yang dag pa'i 'tso ba / yang dag pa'i 'tsho ba, 正命, sammāājīva, right livelihood, (6) yang dag pa'i rtzol ba/yang dag pa'i rtsol ba, 正精進, sammāvāyāma, right effort, (7) yang dag pa'i dran pa, 正念, sammāsati, right mindfulness (8) yang dag pa'i ting nge 'dzin, 正定, sammāsamādhi, right concentration.
yang dag pa'i lta ba	正見	sammādiṭṭhi	right view
yang dag pa'i rtog pa	正思惟	sammāsaṅkappa	right intention yang dag pa'i ngag	正語	sammāvācā	right speech
yang dag pa'i las kyi mtha'	正業	sammākammanta	right action
yang dag pa'i 'tso ba / yang dag pa'i 'tsho ba	正命	sammāājīva	right livelihood
yang dag pa'i rtzol ba/ yang dag pa'i rtsol ba	正精進	sammāvāyāma	right effort
yang dag pa'i dran pa	正念	sammāsati	right mindfulness yang dag pa'i ting nge 'dzin	正定	sammāsamādhi	right concentration yang dag pa	正	sammā	right, correct rtog pa	思惟	saṅkappa	intention
ngag	語	vācā	speech
las kyi mtha'	業	kammanta	action
'tso ba /tsho ba	命	ājīva	livelihood
rtsol ba /rtzol ba	精進	vāyāma	effort, exertion
bden pa bzhi'i shes pa	四諦智	catusaccañāṇa	knowledge of the Four [Noble] Truths
dge ba la kun du rtog pa	善思惟	kusala-saṅkappa	wholesome intention (There are three, see 三善思惟)
dge ba la kun du rtog pa gsum	三善思惟	tayo kusala-saṅkappa	three wholesome intentions. (See D III 215: tayo kusalasaṅkappā nekkhammasaṅkappo, abyāpādasaṅkappo, avihiṃsāsaṅkappo.)
kun du rtog pa	思惟	saṅkappa	intentions
ngag gi nyes par spyod pa bzhi	四惡行	cattāri vacīduccaritāni, cattāri duccaritāni	the four wrong conducts of speech, verbal wrong conducts (i.e. lying, slandering, speaking harshely, gossiping. See Nidd-a I 61: Vacīduccaritanti musāvādapisuṇavācāpharusavācā-samphappalāpacetanā.)
lus kyi nyes par spyod pa gsum	三惡行	tīṇi kāyaduccaritāni, tīṇi duccaritāni	the three wrong physical conducts (i.e. killing, stealing, wrong sexual conduct. See Nidd-a I 61: Tattha kāyaduccaritanti pāṇātipātaadinnādāna-micchācāracetanā.)
nyes par spyod pa	惡行	duccarita, duccaritāni	wrong conduct(s) ldog pa	離	veramaṇī, virati, ārati	abstinence, abstaining from log pa'i 'tsho ba	邪命	micchāājīva	wrong livelyhood
yang dag pa'i spong ba rnam pa bzhi	四正勤	cattāri sammappadhānāni	the four right efforts (The efforts to restrain, abandon, develop, and guard, saṃvarapadhānaṃ pahānapadhānaṃ bhāvanāpadhānaṃ anurakkhaṇāpadhānaṃ, see D III 225, II 312, A II 15) The Tibetan or Sanskrit translator apparently misunderstood padhāna as pahāna, spong ba.
yang dag pa'i spong ba	正勤	sammappadhāna	right effort
dran pa nye bar gzhag pa bzhi	四念處	cattāro satipaṭṭhānā	the four establishings of mindfulness nye bar gzhag pa	處	upaṭṭhāna	establishing dran pa nye bar gzhag pa	念處	satipaṭṭhānā	establishing of mindfulness
bsam gtan bzhi	四禪	cattāri jhānāni	the four jhānas
bsam gtan	禪	jhāna	jhāna, meditative absorbtion
'phags pa'i lam	聖道	ariyamagga	noble path
bsgoms pa	修行	bhāvanā	developing, cultivating
'phags pa'i lam bsgoms pa	修行聖道	ariyamaggabhāvanā	developing the noble path

yang	若	yad	which, what, whatever (relative pronoun)
rnam par rtog pa	覺	vitakka	thought
de nyid la	唯於	tasmiṃ eva	regarding that very just therein, de nyid kyi	彼	tasseva	of that very spangs pa	斷	pahāna, samuccheda	removing, eliminating, abandoning log pa	邪	micchā	wrong
log pa'i ngag	邪語	micchāvāca	wrong speech
log pa'i ngag spangs pa	斷邪語	micchāvācāppahāna	abandoning of wrong speech log pa'i las kyi mtha' spangs pa	斷邪業	micchākammantappahāna	abandoning of wrong action
log pa'i las kyi mtha'	邪業	micchākammanta	wrong action
log pa'i 'tsho ba spangs pa	斷邪命	micchājīvappahāna	abandoning of wrong livelyhood log pa'i 'tsho ba	邪命	micchājīva	wrong livelyhood
-----	斷邪精進	micchāvāyāmappahāna	abandoning of wrong exertion
sems rtse gcig pa / sems rtshe gcig pa	專心	cittekaggattā	unification of mind shes rab kyi dbang po	慧根	paññindriya	faculty of wisdom,
shes rab kyi stobs	慧力	paññābala	power of wisdom
rdzu 'phrul gyi rkang pa	如意足	iddhipāda	basis of supernormal power
dpyod pa'i rdzu 'phrul gyi rkang pa	慧如意足	vīmaṃsiddhipāda	the basis of supernormal power of scrutiny
rkang pa	慧	vīmaṃsa	scrutiny
chos rnam par 'byed pa yang dag byang chub kyi yan lag	擇法覺分	dhammavicayasambojjhaṅga	awakening factor of investigation of the Dhamma
chos rnam par 'byed pa	擇法	dhammavicaya	investigation of the Dhamma
yang dag byang chub kyi yan lag	覺分	sambojjhaṅga	awakening factor yang dag pa'i lta ba'i nang gtogs pa	內正見	ajjhatta sammādiṭṭhi	internal right view
	入	pariyāpanna, saṅgahita (?)	is included in brtson 'grus kyi dbang po / brtzon 'grus kyi dbang po	精進根	vīriyindriya	the faculty of energy
brtson 'grus kyi stobs / brtzon 'grus kyi stobs	精進力	vīriyabala	the power of energy
brtson 'grus rdzu 'phrul gyi rkang pa / brtzon 'grus rdzu 'phrul gyi rkang pa	精進如意足	vīriyiddhipāda	the basis of supernormal power of energy
'dun pa'i rdzu 'phrul gyi rkang pa	欲如意足	chandiddhipādo	the basis of supernormal power of zeal
brtson 'grus yang dag byang chub kyi yan lag / brtzon 'grus yang dag byang chub kyi yan lag	精進覺分	vīriyasambojjhaṅga	awakening factor of energy
shin tu sbyangs pa yang dag byang chub kyi yan lag	猗覺分	passaddhisambojjhaṅga	awakening factor of tranquillity
yang dag pa'i spong ba bzhi	四正勤	cattāri sammappadhānāni	the four right efforts (The efforts to restrain, abandon, develop, and guard, saṃvarapadhānaṃ pahānapadhānaṃ bhāvanāpadhānaṃ anurakkhaṇāpadhānaṃ, see D III 225, II 312, A II 15) The Tibetan or Sanskrit translator apparently misunderstood padhāna as pahāna, = spong ba.
dran pa'i dbang po	念根	satindriya	the faculty of mindfulness
dran pa'i stobs	念力	satibala	the power of mindfulness
dran pa yang dag byang chub kyi yan lag	念覺分	satisambojjhaṅga	the awakening factor of mindfulness
ting nge 'dzin kyi dbang po	定根	samādhindriya	faculty of concentration ting nge 'dzin gyi stobs	定力	samādhibala	power of concentration sems kyi rdzu 'phrul gyi rkang pa	心如意足	cittiddhipāda	basis of supernormal power of mind
dad pa'i dbang po	信根	saddhindriya	the faculty of faith
dad pa'i stobs	信力	saddhābala	the power of faith
ting nge 'dzin yang dag byang chub kyi yan lag	定覺分	samādhisambojjhaṅga	the awakening factor of concentration
dga' ba yang dag byang chub kyi yan lag	喜覺分	pītisambojjhaṅga	the awakening factor of rapture
btang snyoms yang dag byang chub kyi yan lag	捨覺分	upekkhāsambojjhaṅga	the awakening factor of equanimity
byang chub kyi phyogs kyi chos sum cu rtza bdun / byang chub kyi phyogs kyi chos sum cu rtsa bdun	三十七菩提法	sattatiṃsa bodhipakkhiyadhammā	the thirty-seven states that are accessories of awakening, the thirty-seven accessories of awakening
'dus par 'gyur	成入	pariyāpanna, saṅgahita (?)	is included in sum cu rtsa bdun	三十七	sattatiṃsa	thirty-seven sdug bsngal 'gog par 'gro ba lam 'phags pa'i bden pa	苦滅道聖諦	dukkhanirodhagāminipaṭipadā ariyasacca, dukkhanirodhagāminī paṭipadā ariyasacca	the noble truth of the way leading to the cessation of suffering
sdug bsngal 'gog par 'gro ba lam	苦滅道	dukkhanirodhagāminipaṭipadā, dukkhanirodhagāminī paṭipadā	the way leading to the cessation of suffering
phags pa'i bden pa bzhi rnams	四聖諦	cattāri ariyasaccāni	the four noble truths
phags pa'i bden pa bzhi	四聖諦	cattāri ariyasaccāni	the four noble truths
'phags pa'i bden pa bzhi	四聖諦	cattāri ariyasaccāni	the four noble truths smras pa	說	desita (?)	taught
ga la	何故	kasmā	why?
rgyu	因	hetu, kāraṇa	cause
yongs su shes par bya ba	應知	pariññeyya	to be fully known spang bar bya ba	應斷	pahātabba	to be abandoned
mngon du bya ba	應證	sacchikātabba	to be realized

bsgom par bya ba	應修	bhāvetabba	to be developed tsig gi don / tshig gi don	句義	vacanattha	word-meaning go rims	次第	kama	sequence
mdor bsdu ba	略	saṅkhepa	summary
dper bya ba	譬喻	upamā	simile
bsdom par bya ba	數	gaṇanā	enumeration
gcig nyid	一	ekatta	oneness
gcig pa nyid	一	ekatta	oneness
sna tshogs pa nyid	種種	nānatta	diversity
mthar chags kyis sangs rgyas par bstan pa	次第廣	?	Tibetan: serial extensive explanation. Chinese: serial detailed explanation, successive detailed explanation, successive explanation, serial extension, successive increase mthar chags kyis rgyas par bshad pa	次第廣	?	Tibetan: serial extensive explanation. Chinese: serial extensive explanation, sequential detailed explanation, successive explanation, serial extension, successive increase. The Visuddhimagga parallel is ekavidhādi, "As to singlefold and so on," but the Chinese and Tibetan suggest anukkama + vitthāra.
bsdu ba	相攝	saṅgaha	inclusion
bstan pa	所說	desita, kathita	expounded, taught mngon du byas pa	通達	paṭivijjhati	to penetrate de bzhin nyid	如是	tathatā, tatha	realness
mi slu ba	不異	anaññatha	non-otherwiseness
de bzhin nyid rang gi mtshan nyi mi slu ba	自相不異	salakkhaṇassa anaññatha, ? salakkhaṇassa amoghatā ?	non-otherwiseness
de bzhin nyid rang gi mtshan nyi	自相	salakkhaṇa	specific characteristic mnar ba	逼	ābādha, pīḷana?	affliction, oppression bskyed pa	因	uppāda ?	origination, causing dam pa	第一	parama, uttama ?	supreme, highest nyes pa	過患	ādīnava	disadvantage, danger
thabs	方便	upāya	means, skilful means gzir ba	逼惱	pīḷana	oppression, harassment
kun du gdung ba	惱	santāpa	torment
'phen par byed pa	聚	āyuhana	accumulation
kun du tsogs pa / kun du tshogs pa	和合	saṃyoga	bondage
yongs su spags pa	著	palibodha	obstruction
nges par 'byung ba	出離	nissaraṇa	escape
dben pa	寂寂	viveka	seclusion
mi 'chi ba	醍醐	amata	deathless
nges par 'byin par byed pa	乘	niyyāna	leading out yang dag par thob par byed pa	令到	sampāpaka, sampāpeti	causing to reach lhag pa'i bdag pa	依	ādhipateyya	authority rags pa'i don gyis	以麁義	oḷārikaṭṭhena	in the sense of being coarse
---	證	viññeyya ?	evident
bstan	說	vutta	said, stated
bstan pa	說	vutta	said, stated
dang po ... bstan	初說	paṭhamaṃ vuttaṃ	stated first, said first
'dis	以此	imehi ?	through these skyed par byed pa	生	nibbatta	produced
kun 'byung 'di 'gags pa	集滅	samudayanirodha	the cessation of origination
sman pa mkhas pa	明了醫	kusala bhisakka	skilful physician
sman pa	醫	bhisakka	physician
mkhas pa	明了	kusala	skilful nad	病	roga	disease
sman	藥	bhesajja	medicine
byang ba	盡	vūpasama	curing, cure, allaying (of a disease), stilling
nad byang ba	病盡	rogavūpasama	the curing of disease, the ending of disease
'jug par byed pa	令生	pavattaka	causing occurence
ldog pa	止	nivatti	non-occurrence
ldog par byed pa	令止	nivattaka	causing non-occurrence
nyon mongs pa spangs pa	斷煩惱	kilesapahāna	the abandoning of defilements spangs pa	斷	pahāna	the abandoning nyon mongs pa spong ba'i thabs	斷方便	pahānupāya	the means for abandoning sdug bsngal rnam par bzhag pa	苦能起	dukkhavavatthāna	definition of suffering, determination of suffering
rnam par bzhag pa	能起	vavatthāna	definition, determination
'jig tshogs la lta ba yang dag par 'joms pa	---	sakkāyadiṭṭhisamugghāta	the removing of identity-view
yang dag par 'joms pa	---	samugghāta	removing, uprooting
'jig tshogs la lta ba	身見	sakkāyadiṭṭhi	identity-view, personality view
----	身見門	sakkāyadiṭṭhippamukha	headed by identity-view, with identity-view at the front
kun 'byung rnam par bzhag pa	集能起	samudayavavatthāna	definition of origination
'gog pa rnam par bzhag pa	滅能起	nirodhavavatthāna	definition of cessation lam rnam par bzhag pa	道能起	maggavavatthāna	definition of the path

sgo	門	pamukha	heading, front, at the front chad pa'i lta ba yang dag par 'joms pa	----	ucchedadiṭṭhisamugghāta	removing of annihilation-view
chad pa'i lta ba	斷見	ucchedadiṭṭhi	annihilation-view
bya ba ma yin pa'i lta ba	----	akiriyadiṭṭhi	inaction-view dug gi sdong po	毒樹	visarukkha	poison-tree
sa bon bsregs pa	燒種	----	burning the seed
bsregs pa	燒	----	burning
tshu rol	此岸	orimatīra	this shore
dogs pa dang bcas pa	有苦	sāsaṅka	dangerous, with danger, dreadful
'jigs pa dang bcas pa	有怖畏	sappaṭibhaya	fearful, with fear dogs pa	苦	āsaṅka	danger, suspicion, apprehension (used as part of dogs pa dang bcas pa, 有苦, sāsaṅka.)
'jigs pa	怖畏	paṭibhaya	fear
dang bcas pa	有	sa-	with ... (Used in compounds.)
chu bo	流	ogha	stream
gru	船	nāva	boat
'jigs pa med pa	無怖	appaṭibhaya	without fear
khur khur ba	擔擔	?? bhārabharaṇa, bhārabharita ??	the bearing of a burden ? (Perhaps a sribal duplication error in the original text.)
khur len pa	取擔	bhārādāna	taking up of a burden
khur bor ba	置擔	bhāranikkhepana	laying down of a burden
khur bor ba'i thabs	置擔方便	bhāranikkhepanūpāya	means of laying down a burden
len pa	取	ādāna	taking up
bor ba	置	nikkhepana	laying down
khur	擔	bhāra	burden, load
khur ba	擔	bhāra, bharaṇa ?	burden, bearing ngag bden pa	語諦	vācā-sacca	speech truth
so sor bden pa	各各諦	puthu-pacceka-sacca, or pacceka-sacca	manifold individual truth, individual truth
don dam pa'i bden pa	第一義諦	paramattha-sacca	absolute truth
so sor	各各	puthu-pacceka or pacceka	manifold individual, individual don dam pa	第一義	paramattha	absolute mi bden pa	不實	abhūta	untrue
bden pa kho na smra	實語	bhūtavacana, bhūtavādi	true speech, true words, speaker of truth
mi bden pa ni ma yin	非不實	na abhūta	not untrue
lta bar song ba	入諸見	diṭṭhigatika or diṭṭhigata	(wrong) view, entering into wrong view
brdzun	妄語	mosa, musa	false
rmongs pa'i chos	愚癡法	mosadhamma	delusive, of a delusive nature
rmongs pa med pa	----	amosadhamma	not delusive, not of a delusive nature
'phags pa rnams	聖人	ariyā	noble ones
bsgom par bya ba	所修行	bhāvetabba	to be developed
'phags pa rnams kyi bsgom par bya ba	聖人所修行	ariyehi bhāvetabba	to be developed by the noble ones
mngon par 'dod pa	所樂	adhippeta	is preferred, is preferable, is intended, is desired
sa gsum	三地	tebhūmi	the three planes (of existence): kāmāvacara, the sensual realm, rūpāvacara, the material realm, arūpāvacara, the immaterial realm, T32n1648_p0445a18, etc.
dge ba dang mi dge ba dang lung ma bstan gyi chos rnams	善不善無記法	kusalākusalabyākatā dhammā	wholesome, unwholesome and indeterminate states
dge ba dang mi dge ba dang lung du ma bstan pa'i chos	善不善無記	kusalākusalabyākatā dhammā	wholesome, unwholesome and indeterminate states
dge ba dang mi dge ba dang lung du ma bstan pa	善不善無記	kusalākusalabyākata, kusalākusalavyākata	wholesome, unwholesome and indeterminate
lung du ma bstan pa	無記	abyākata, avyākata	indeterminate
dge ba dang mi dge ba	善不善	kusalākusala	wholesome and unwholesome lung ma bstan gyi chos rnams	無記法	abyākatā dhammā	indeterminate states
sred pa spangs pa	----	taṇhāppahāna, taṇhāpahāna	the abandoning of craving
'phags pa'i lam yan lag brgyad	八分道	aṭṭhaṅgika ariyamagga, aṭṭhaṅgika magga	the eight-factored noble path (Tibetan), the eight-factored path (Chinese). (Both forms are found in Pali texts, but are rare. The normal Pali form is ariya aṭṭhaṅgika magga.)
yan lag brgyad	八分	aṭṭhaṅgika	eight-factored lhag ma nyon mongs pa	餘煩惱	avasesā kilesā	other defilements, remaining defilements
sdug bsngal bden pa	苦諦	dukkhasacca	the truth of suffering
kun 'byung bden pa	集諦	samudayasacca	the truth of origination
'gog pa'i bden pa	滅諦	nirodhasacca	the truth of cessation lam gyi bden pa	道諦	maggasacca	the truth of the way lung ma bstan gyi chos	無記法	abyākatā dhammā	indeterminate states
srid pa'i ro myong ba	有氣味	bhavassāda	satisfaction in existence, enjoyment in existence
ro myong ba	氣味	assāda	enjoyment, satisfaction
srid par kun du sbyor ba	有結使	bhavasaṃyojana	the fetter of existence, the bond of existence
srid pa kun du sbyor ba	有結使	bhavasaṃyojana	the fetter of existence, the bond of existence (see srid pa kun du sbyor ba) gtzo bor gyur pa'i don gyis	---	padhānaṭṭhena	in the primary sense of sa gsum gyi dge ba'i chos rnams	三地善法	tebhūmike kusalā dhammā ?	the wholesome states of the three planes
srid pa'i ro myong ba don du gnyer ba	覓有氣味	bhavassādagadhita ?	desiring satisfaction in existence

srid pa skyed pa	令起有	bhava nibbatteti ??	generating existence, gives rise to existence
yongs su 'gyur ba	有邊	pariyanta	finitude
sdud par byed pa	聚	āyuhana	accumulation
rnam pa bzhi	四行	catubbidha, catuvidha	four ways
bden pa'i don gyis	以諦義	saccaṭṭhena	in the sense of truth
de bzhin gyi don gyis	以如義	tathaṭṭhena	in the sense of realness
chos kyi don gyis	以法義	dhammaṭṭhena	in the sense of doctrine
gzugs can ma yin pa	無色	arūpa	immaterial
sdug bsngal shes par bya ba	苦諦可知	dukkhasaccaṃ pariññeyyaṃ (Chinese), dukkhaṃ pariññeyyaṃ (Tibetan)	the truth of suffering is to be known (Chinese), suffering is to be known (Tibetan)
kun 'byung spang bar bya ba	集諦可斷	samudayasaccaṃ pahātabbaṃ (Chinese), samudayo pahātabbo (Tibetan)	the truth of origination is to be abandoned (Chinese), origination is to be abandoned (Tibetan)
gog pa mngon du bya ba	滅諦可證	nirodhasaccaṃ sacchikātabbaṃ (Chinese), nirodho sacchikātabbo (Tibetan)	the truth of cessation is to be realized (Chinese), cessation is to be realized (Tibetan)
lam bsgom par bya ba	道諦應修	maggasaccaṃ bhāvetabbaṃ (Chinese), maggo bhāvetabbo (Tibetan)	the truth of the path is to be developed (Chinese), the path is to be developed (Tibetan)
rnam par shes pa dang ldan pa'i lus	有識身	saviññāṇakakāya	the body endowed with consciousness
rnam par shes pa dang ldan pa	有識	saviññāṇaka	endowed with consciousness nga'o snyam pa'i nga rgyal	我慢	asmimāna	conceit “I am”
nga'o snyam pa'i nga rgyal spangs pa	----	asmimāna pahāna	the abandoning of the conceit “I am”
lus su gtogs pa dran pa	念身	kāyagatāsati	recollection of the body, mindfulness directed to the body
zhi gnas dang lhag mthong	奢摩他毘婆舍那	samathavipassanā	serenity and insight mi dge ba'i rtsa ba gsum	三不善根	tayo akusalamūlā	the three roots of unwholesomeness (= greed, hatred and delusion, lobha, dosa, moha)
tshul khrims dang ting nge 'dzin dang shes rab / tsul khrims dang ting nge 'dzin dang shes rab	戒定慧	sīlasamādhipaññā	virtue, concentration and wisdom
bdag gi ngo bo'i dngos po	身性處	attabhāvavatthu	ground for selfhood
bdag gi ngo bo'i dngos po bzhi	四身性處	cattāri attabhāvavatthūni	the four grounds for selfhood
bdag gi ngo bo dngos po	身性處	attabhāvavatthu	basis for selfhood
bdag gi ngo bo	身性	attabhāva	selfhood
phyin ci log bzhi	四顛倒	cattāro vipallāsa	of the four perversions, namely, regarding permanence (nicca, 常) in the impermanent (anicca, 無常), happiness (sukha, 樂) in suffering (dukkha, 苦), and beauty (subha, 淨) in the ugly (asubha, 不淨) and self (attā, 我) in the not-self (anattā, 無我).
'gro ba lnga	五趣	pañca gatiyo	five destinations (hell, animal-womb, peta-realm, human, divine, niraya, tiracchānayoni, pettivisaya, manussa, deva)
sgrib pa lnga	五蓋	pañca nīvaraṇāni	the five hindrances: sense-desire (kāmacchanda), ill-will (vyāpāda), sloth and torpor (thīna-middha), agitation and worry (uddhacca-kukkucca), uncertainty (vicikicchā).
dbang po lnga	五根	pañcindriyāni	the five faculties (the faculties of faith, energy, mindfulness, concentration and wisdom; saddhindriya, vīriyindriya, satindriya, samādhindriya, paññindriya); or the five sense faculties (eye, ear, nose, tongue, body, cakkhundriya, sotindriya, ghānindriya, jivhindriya, kāyindriya); or the five faculties of pleasure, pain, joy, distress, and equanimity, sukhindriya, dukkhindriya, somanassindriya, domanassindriya, upekkhindriya.
reg pa'i skye mched drug	六觸入	cha phassāyatanāni	the six bases of contact (eye, ear, nose, tongue, body, mind: cakkhu phassāyatanaṃ, sotaṃ phassāyatanaṃ, ghānaṃ phassāyatanaṃ, jivhā phassāyatanaṃ, kāyo phassāyatanaṃ, mano phassāyatanaṃ)
reg pa'i skye mched	觸入	phassāyatana	base of contact yid kyi 'dus te reg pa	---	manosamphassa	mental contact (not found in Vim, but elsewhere the Chinese equivalent is 意觸.
sred pa'i tsogs / sred pa'i tshogs	愛身	taṇhākāyā	groups of craving
gzugs kyi sred pa	---	rūpataṇhā	craving for forms
sgra'i sred pa	---	saddataṇhā	craving for sounds
dri'i sred pa	---	gandhataṇhā	craving for scents
ro'i sred pa	---	rasataṇhā	craving for tastes
reg bya'i sred pa	---	phoṭṭhabbataṇhā	craving for touches chos kyi sred pa	---	dhammataṇhā	craving for mental states nang gi chos	---	ajjhatta dhamma	internal dhamma rjes su lta ba	---	anupassī	contemplating, observing kun du skye ba la rjes su lta ba'am chos la chos dang mthun par lta zhing gnas pa	---	samudayadhammānupassī dhammesu viharati	to dwell contemplating the nature of arising in dhammas kun du skye ba	---	samudaya	origination, arising chos la chos kyi rjes su lta zhing gnas pa	---	dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati	to dwell contemplating dhammas in dhammas rjes su lta zhing gnas pa	---	anupassī viharati	to dwell contemplating gnas pa	---	viharati	to dwell, abide rjes su lta zhing	---	anupassī	contemplating

'gag pa'i chos la rjes su lta ba	---	vayadhammānupassī	he contemplates the nature of falling away
skye ba dang 'gag pa la rjes su lta zhing gnas pa	---	samudayavayadhammānupassī dhammesu viharati	to dwell contemplating the nature of arising and falling away
skye ba dang 'gag pa	---	samudayavaya	arising and falling away
'gag pa	---	vaya	falling away, ceasing
skye ba dang 'gag pa la rjes su lta	---	samudayavayadhammānupassī	contemplating the nature of arising and falling away
rnam par shes pa'i gnas pa bdun	七識住	satta viññāṇaṭṭhitiya	seven stations of consciousness. T32n1648_p0456c12 . The seven stations are: 1. the station of beings who have varied bodies and varied perceptions, namely, humans, some gods and some beings in the states of woe (sattā nānattakāyā nānattasaññino, seyyathāpi manussā ekacce ca devā ekacce ca vinipātikā). 2. the station of beings who have varied bodies and identical perceptions, namely, the gods in the company of Brahmā who have arisen first (sattā nānattakāyā ekattasaññino seyyathāpi devā brahmakāyikā paṭhamābhinibbattā). 3. the station of beings who have identical bodies and varied perceptions, namely, the radiant gods (sattā ekattakāyā nānattasaññino seyyathāpi devā ābhassarā). 4. the station of beings who have identical bodies and identical perceptions, namely, the lustrous gods (sattā ekattakāyā ekattasaññino seyyathāpi devā subhakiṇhā). 5. the station of beings who have entered upon the base of boundless space. (rūpasaññānaṃ samatikkamā paṭighasaññānaṃ atthaṅgamā nānattasaññānaṃ amanasikārā 'ananto ākāso'ti ākāsānañcāyatanūpagā). 6. the station of beings who have entered upon the base of boundless consciousness (sattā sabbaso ākāsānañcāyatanaṃ samatikkamma 'anantaṃ viññāṇa'nti viññāṇañcāyatanūpagā). 7. the station of beings who have entered upon the base of nothingness (sattā sabbaso viññāṇañcāyatanaṃ samatikkamma 'natthi kiñcī'ti ākiñcaññāyatanūpagā). (see D III 253) rnam par shes pa'i gnas pa	識住	viññāṇaṭṭhitiya	station of consciousness The different stations, consisting of the aggregates, khandha, of different types of beings, where relinking consciousness establishes itself and causes rebirth. Viññāṇaṭṭhiti is defined in the Pali commentaries as "the conditions/bases for the relinking-consciousness, which are just the aggregates endowed with consciousness." (viññāṇaṭṭhitiyoti paṭisandhiviññāṇassa ṭhānāni saviññāṇakā khandhā eva, Paṭis-a I 110. Cf. D-a III 1021). Cf. rnam par shes pa'i gnas pa bdun, 七識住.
yod	---	santi	there are sems can lus tha dad pa 'du shes tha dad pa	---	sattā nānattakāyā nānattasaññino	beings with varied bodies and varied perceptions lus tha dad pa 'du shes tha dad pa	---	nānattakāyā nānattasaññino	varied bodies and varied perceptions lus tha dad pa	---	nānattakāyā	varied bodies, varied bodies pa 'du shes tha dad pa	---	nānattasaññino	varied perceptions lus tha dad la 'du shes gcig pa nyid	---	nānattakāyā ekattasaññino	varied bodies and identical perceptions
'du shes gcig pa nyid	---	ekattasaññī	identical perception, identical perception lus gcig nyid yin la 'du shes tha dad pa	---	ekattakāyā nānattasaññino	identical body, varied perception
lus gcig nyid	---	ekattakāyā	identical body, identical body lus gcig la 'du shes gcig pa	---	sattā ekattakāyā ekattasaññino	identical bodies and identical perceptions
ci yang med pa	---	natthi kiñci	there isn't anything
mi rnams dang lha kha cig	---	manussā ekacce ca devā ekacce ca	some humans and gods
'di ltar	---	seyyathāpi	like, as kha cig	---	ekacca	certain
lha	---	deva	god
lha rnams	---	devā	gods
dang por byung ba	---	paṭhamābhinibbatta	reborn first, rearise first
byung ba	---	abhinibbatta	reborn, rearise
'od gsal gyi lha rnams	---	devā ābhassarā	radiant gods
'od gsal	---	ābhassara	radiant
dge rgyas kyi lha rnams	---	devā subhakiṇhā	the lustrous gods
dge rgyas	---	subhakiṇha	lustrous
tshangs ris/ tsangs ris	---	brahmakāyika	the company of Brahmā
tshangs ris kyi lha / tsangs ris kyi lha	---	brahmakāyikā devā	the gods in the company of Brahmā
tsangs ris kyi lha dang por byung ba rnams / tshangs ris kyi lha dang por byung ba rnams		brahmakāyikā devā paṭhamābhinibbattā	gods of the company of Brahmā who are reborn first
bag la nyal bdun	七使	satta anusayā	the seven latent tendencies. (1) 'dod pa'i 'dod chags bag la nyal, 欲染使, kāmarāgānusaya, latent tendency of sensual greed; (2) khong khro bag la nyal, 瞋恚使, paṭighānusaya, latent tendency of aversion; (3) nga rgyal bag la nyal, 慢使, mānānusaya , latent tendency of views; (4) lta ba bag la nyal, 見使, diṭṭhānusaya, latent byang chub yan lag bdun	七菩提分	satta sambojjhaṅgā	tendency of conceit; (5) the tsom bag la nyal, 疑使, vicikicchānusaya, latent tendency of uncertainty; (6) srid pa'i 'dod chags bag la nyal, 有欲使, bhavarāgānusaya, latent tendency of the desire for existence; (7) ma rig pa bag la nyal, 無明使, avijjānusaya, latent tendency of ignorance. the seven awakening factors (1) dran pa yang dag byang chub kyi yan lag, 念覺分, satisambojjhaṅga, the awakening factor of mindfulness; (2) chos rnam par 'byed pa yang dag byang chub kyi yan lag, 擇法覺分, dhammavicayasambojjhaṅga, awakening factor of investigation of the Dhamma; (3) brtson 'grus yang dag byang chub kyi yan lag / brtzon 'grus yang dag byang chub kyi yan lag, 精進覺分, vīriyasambojjhaṅga, awakening factor of energy; (4) dga' ba yang dag byang chub kyi yan lag, 喜覺分, pītisambojjhaṅga, the awakening factor of rapture; (5) shin tu sbyangs pa yang dag byang chub kyi yan lag, 猗覺分, passaddhisambojjhaṅga, awakening factor of tranquillity; (6) ting nge 'dzin yang dag byang chub kyi yan lag, 定覺分, samādhisambojjhaṅga, the awakening factor of concentration; (7) btang snyoms yang dag byang chub kyi yan lag, 捨覺分, upekkhāsambojjhaṅga, the awakening factor of equanimity.

log pa brgyad	八邪邊	aṭṭha micchattā	eight wrongnesses: (1) log par lta ba or log pa'i lta ba, 邪見, micchādiṭṭhi, wrong view (2) log par kun du rtog pa or log pa'i rtog pa, 邪思惟, micchāsaṅkappa, wrong intention (3) log pa'i ngag, 邪語, micchāvācā, wrong speech (4) log pa'i las kyi mtha', 邪業, micchā-kammanta, wrong action (5) log pa'i 'tso ba / log pa'i 'tsho ba, 邪命, micchā-ājīva, wrong livelihood (6) log pa'i rtzol ba / log pa'i rtsol ba, 邪精進, micchāvāyāma, wrong exertion (7) log pa'i dran pa, 邪念, micchāsati, wrong mindfulness (8) log pa'i ting nge 'dzin , 邪定, micchāsamādhi, wrong concentration log pa'i lta ba	邪見	micchādiṭṭhi	wrong view log pa'i rtog pa	邪思惟	micchāsaṅkappa	wrong intention sems can gyi gnas dgu	九眾生居	nava sattāvāsā	the nine abodes of beings. T32n1648_p0456c12. The nine abodes are: 1. the abode of beings who have varied bodies and varied perceptions, namely, humans, some gods and some beings in the states of woe (sattā nānattakāyā nānattasaññino, seyyathāpi manussā ekacce ca devā ekacce ca vinipātikā). 2. the abode of beings who have varied bodies and identical perceptions, namely, the gods in the company of Brahmā who have arisen first (sattā nānattakāyā ekattasaññino seyyathāpi devā brahmakāyikā paṭhamābhinibbattā). 3. the abode of beings who have identical bodies and varied perceptions, namely, the radiant gods (sattā ekattakāyā nānattasaññino seyyathāpi devā ābhassarā). 4. the abode of beings who have identical bodies and identical perceptions, namely, the lustrous gods (sattā ekattakāyā ekattasaññino seyyathāpi devā subhakiṇhā). 5. the abode of gods who are non-percipient beings (sattā asaññino appaṭisaṃvedino, seyyathāpi devā asaññasattā), 6. the station of beings who have entered upon the base of boundless space. (rūpasaññānaṃ samatikkamā paṭighasaññānaṃ atthaṅgamā nānattasaññānaṃ amanasikārā 'ananto ākāso'ti ākāsānañcāyatanūpagā). 7. the abode of beings who have entered upon the base of boundless consciousness (sattā sabbaso ākāsānañcāyatanaṃ samatikkamma 'anantaṃ viññāṇa'nti viññāṇañcāyatanūpagā). 8. the abode of beings who have entered upon the base of nothingness (sattā sabbaso viññāṇañcāyatanaṃ samatikkamma 'natthi kiñcī'ti ākiñcaññāyatanūpagā). 9. the abode of beings who have entered upon the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception (sattā sabbaso ākiñcaññāyatanaṃ samatikkamma nevasaññānāsaññāyatanūpagā).

sems can gyi gnas	眾生居	sattāvāsa	abode of beings
sred pa'i rtsa ba can gyi chos dgu/ sred pa'i rtza ba can gyi chos dgu	九愛根法	nava taṇhāmūlakā dhammā	nine states rooted in craving
sred pa'i rtsa ba can/ sred pa'i rtza ba can	愛根	taṇhāmūlaka	rooted in craving
sred pa'i rtsa ba can gyi chos/ sred pa'i rtza ba can gyi chos	愛根法	taṇhāmūlaka dhamma	state rooted in craving tshul bzhin yid la byed pa'i rtsa ba can gyi chos dgu / tsul bzhin yid la byed pa'i rtza ba can gyi chos dgu	九正作意根法	nava yonisomanasikāramūlakā dhammā	nine states rooted in reasoned attention. These are nine states that arise when the five aggregates, etc, are given reasoned attention to, i.e. are correctly investigated with insight. as impermanent, suffering, and not self. The nine are joy, rapture, tranquillity, happiness, concentration, true knowledge of sufferering, its origation, its cessation and the path leading to its cessation. Paṭis I 86: Nava yoniso manasikāramūlakā dhammā: aniccato yoniso manasikaroto pāmojjaṃ jāyati, pamuditassa pīti jāyati, pītimanassa kāyo passambhati, passaddhakāyo sukhaṃ vedeti, sukhino cittaṃ samādhiyati, samāhitena cittena idaṃ dukkhan-ti ... ayaṃ dukkhasamudayo ti ... ayaṃ dukkhanirodho ti ... ayaṃ dukkhanirodhagāminī paṭipadā ti yathābhūtaṃ pajānāti. ...
tshul bzhin yid la byed pa'i rtsa ba can gyi chos / tsul bzhin yid la byed pa'i rtza ba can gyi chos	正作意根法	yonisomanasikāramūlakā dhammā	states rooted in reasoned attention
tshul bzhin yid la byed pa'i rtsa ba can / tsul bzhin yid la byed pa'i rtza ba can	正作意根	yonisomanasikāramūlakā	rooted in reasoned attention
tshul bzhin yid la byed pa / tsul bzhin yid la byed pa	正作意	yonisomanasikāra	reasoned attention
phyogs bcu'i 'du byed rnams	十方行	dasasu disāsu saṅkhārā	formations in the ten directions
phyogs bcu'i 'du	十方	dasasu disāsu	in the ten directions
phyogs bcu	十方	dasa disā	ten directions
byed rnams	行	saṅkhārā	formations (plural)
rnam pa gcig gis	以一種	ekavidhena	of one kind, as singlefold
rnam pa gnyis kyis	以二種	duvidhena	of two kinds, as twofold
rnam pa gsum gyis	以三種	tividhena	of three kinds, as threefold
rnam pa bzhis	以四種	catubbidhena	of four kinds, as fourfold
rnam pa lngas	以五種	pañcavidhena	of five kinds, as fivefold
rnam pa drug gis	以六種	chabbidhena	of six kinds, as sixfold
rnam pa bdun	以七種	sattavidhena	of seven kinds, as sevenfold
rnam pa brgyad kyis	以八種	aṭṭhavidhena	of eight kinds, as eightfold
rnam pa dgu	以九種	navavidhena	of nine kinds, as ninefold
rnam pa bcus	以十種	dasavidhena	of ten kinds, as tenfold
yang dag pa brgyad	八正分	aṭṭha sammattā	the eighth rightnesses They are: (1) yang dag pa'i lta ba, 正見, sammādiṭṭhi, right view, (2) yang dag pa'i rtog pa, 正思惟, sammāsaṅkappa, right intention, (3) yang dag pa'i ngag, 正語, sammāvācā, right speech, (4) yang dag pa'i las kyi mtha', 正業, sammākammanta, right action, (5) yang dag pa'i 'tso ba / yang dag pa'i 'tsho ba, 正命, sammāājīva, right livelihood, (6) yang dag pa'i rtzol ba/yang dag pa'i rtsol ba, 正精進, sammāvāyāma, right effort, (7) yang dag pa'i dran pa, 正念, sammāsati, right mindfulness (8) yang dag pa'i ting nge 'dzin, 正定, sammāsamādhi, right concentration.
lnga pa	第五	pañca	fifth
drug pa	第六	chaṭṭha	sixth bdun pa	第七	sattama	seventh
'du shes bcu	十想	dasa saññā	ten perceptions
mi rtag pa'i 'du shes	---	aniccasaññā	perception of impermanence don med pa'i 'du shes	---	anattasaññā	perception of not self mi sdug pa'i 'du shes	---	asubhasaññā	perception of the foul skyon dang bcas pa'i 'du shes	---	ādīnavasaññā	perception of disadvantage
srog chags kyi 'du shes	---	pahānasaññā	perception of abandoning (The Tibetan srog chags corresponds to pāṇa, "creature." This is due to a misunderstanding or corruption of pahāna, "abandoning," in the Pali parallel.)
'dod chags dang bral ba'i 'du shes	---	virāgasaññā	perception of dispassion
'gog pa'i 'du shes	---	nirodhasaññā	perception of cessation
'jig rten thams cad la mngon par dga' ba ma yin pa'i 'du shes	---	sabbaloke anabhiratisaññā, sabbaloke anabhiratasaññā	perception of non-delight towards the whole world
'du byed thams cad la mngon par mi dga' ba'i 'du shes	---	sabbasaṅkhāresu anicchāsaññā	perception of not-wishing towards all formations, perception of dislike towards all formations
dbugs phyi nang du rgyu ba'i 'du shes	---	ānāpāna-saññā	perception of breathing (The Pali parallel at A V 115 has ānāpānasati, "mindfulness of breathing.")

skyon dang bcas pa	---	ādīnava	disadvantage, danger
'jig rten thams cad	---	sabbaloka	the whole world
'jig rten thams cad la	---	sabbaloke	regarding/towards/in the whole world
'du byed thams cad la	---	sabbasaṅkhāresu	regarding/towards/in all formations mngon par dga' ba ma yin pa	---	anabhirati, anabhirata	non-delight, dissatisfaction
mngon par dga' ba ma yin pa'i 'du shes	---	anabhiratisaññā, anabhiratasaññā	non-delight in the whole world, dissatisfaction towards the whole world
mngon par mi dga' ba	---	anicchā	dislike, not-wishing mngon par mi dga' ba'i 'du shes	---	anicchāsaññā	perception of dislike, perception of not-wishing dbugs phyi nang du rgyu ba	---	ānāpāna	breathing, inhalation and exhalation
phung por bsdu ba	陰攝	khandhasaṅgaha	inclusion into the aggregates
skye mched du bsdu ba	入攝	āyatanasaṅgaha	inclusion into the sense-bases
khams su bsdu ba	界攝	dhātusaṅgaha	inclusion into the elements
phung po lngas bsdus pa	五陰所攝	pañcahi khandhehi saṅgahita	included in the five aggregates
phung po lnga	五陰	pañca khandha	the five aggregates
skye mched bcu gnyis kyis bsdus pa	十二入所攝	dvādasahāyatanehi saṅgahita	included in the twelve sense-bases
bsdus pa	所攝	saṅgahita	included
phung pos bsdus pa ma yin pa	非陰所攝	khandhehi asaṅgahita	not included in the aggregates
khams bco brgyad kyis bsdus pa	十八界所攝	aṭṭhārasahi dhātūhi saṅgahita	included in the eighteen elements khams bco brgyad	十八界	aṭṭhārasa dhātuyo	the eighteen elements. The eighteen elements are: (1) mig gi khams, 眼界, cakkhudhātu, eye-element; (2) gzugs kyi khams, 色界, rūpadhātu , form-element; (3) mig gi rnam par shes pa'i khams, 眼識界, cakkhuviññāṇadhātu, eye-consciousness-element; (4) rna ba'i khams, 耳界, sotadhātu, ear-elementsgra'i khams, 聲界, saddadhātu, sound-element; (5) rna ba'i rnam par shes pa'i khams, 耳識界, sotaviññāṇadhātu, ear-consciousness-element; (6) sna'i khams, 鼻界, ghānadhātu, nose-element; (7) dri'i khams, 香界, gandhadhātu, odour-element; (8) sna'i rnam par shes pa'i khams, 鼻識界, ghānaviññāṇadhātu, nose-consciousness-element; (9) lce'i khams , 舌界 , jivhādhātu, tongue-element; (10) ro'i khams , 味界, rasadhātu, taste-element; (11) lce'i rnam par shes pa'i khams, 舌識界, jivhāviññāṇadhātu, tongue-consciousness-element; (12) lus kyi khams , 身界, kāyadhātu , body-element; (13) reg bya'i khams , 觸界, phoṭṭhabbadhātu, touch-element; (14) lus kyi rnam par shes pa'i khams, 身識界, kāyaviññāṇadhātu, body-consciousness-element; (15) yid kyi khams, 意界, the element of mind, manodhātu; (16) rnam par shes pa'i khams, 意識界, manoviññāṇadhātu, mind-consciousness-element; (17) chos kyi khams, 法界, dhammadhātu, mental states-element; (18) yid kyi rnam par shes pa'i khams, 意識界, manoviññāṇadhātu, mind-consciousness-element.
bden pa gsum	三諦	tīṇi saccāni	three truths (out of the four noble truths)
dmigs par byas nas	作事	ārammaṇaṃ katvā, ārammaṇaṃ karoti	having made the object, makes the object
mya ngan las 'das pa dmigs par byas nas	作泥洹事	nibbānaṃ ārammaṇaṃ katvā/karoti	having made Nibbāna the object, makes Nibbāna the object
'das	起	vuṭṭhāna, vuṭṭhāti	emerging, emergence
'du byed thams cad	一切諸行	sabbasaṅkhāra	all formations
mtshan ma'i 'du byed thams cad / mtsan ma'i 'du byed thams cad	一切諸行相	sabbasaṅkhāranimitta	the sign of formations rigs spyod ye shes	性除智	gotrabhuñāṇa	change-of-lineage-knowledge
rigs za ye shes	性除智	gotrabhuñāṇa	change-of-lineage-knowledge
rigs spyod	性除	gotrabhu	change-of-lineage, adoption rigs za	性除	gotrabhu	change-of-lineage, adoption rigs	性	gotta	lineage, clan
zil gyis gnon pa	除	abhibhavana	overcoming, vanquishing
don	義	attha	meaning, sense
brjod par bya	名	nāma	is called
'jug pa	生	pavatti	occurence
mi skye ba	無生	anuppāda	non-arising mi skye ba	不生	anuppāda	non-arising ldang	起	vuṭṭhāna	emergence
'jug	轉	vivaṭṭana	turning away
ldang 'jug gi shes rab	起轉慧	vuṭṭhānavivaṭṭane paññā	wisdom regarding emergence and turning away
ldang zhing 'jug pa'i shes rab	起轉慧	vuṭṭhānavivaṭṭane paññā	wisdom regarding emergence and turning away
'jug pa	轉	vivaṭṭana	turning away
yid la byed pa	引	ābhoga, samannāhāra	attending to yongs su shes pa	知	pariññā	fully knowing

sdug bsngal yongs su shes pa	知苦	dukkhapariññā	fully knowing suffering
kun 'byung spangs pa	斷集	samudayapahāna	abandoning origination
'gog pa mngon du byas pa	作證滅	nirodhasacchikiriya	realizing cessation lam bsgoms pa	修道	maggabhāvana	developing the path mngon du byas pa	作證	sacchikiriya	realizing byang chub kyi phyogs kyi chos	菩提法	bodhipakkhiyā dhammā	the states that are requisites of enlightenment
rgyun du zhugs pa'i lam shes pa	須陀洹道智	sotāpattimaggañāṇa	Path-knowledge of Stream-entry
rgyun du zhugs pa'i lam	須陀洹道	sotāpattimagga	Path of Stream-entry
lam shes pa	道智	maggañāṇa	Path-knowledge
rgyun du zhugs pa	須陀洹	sotāpatti, sotāpanna	Stream-entry, Stream-enterer
'chi med	醍醐	amata	deathless
mthar thug pa	邊	pariyanta	end, limit
srid pa'i mthar thug pa	有邊	bhavapariyanta	the end of existence sngon ma yin cing phyis ma yin pa	非初非後	apubbaṃ acarimaṃ	simultaneously, neither before or after sngon ma yin cing phyis ma yin pa	不初不後	apubbaṃ acarimaṃ	simultaneously, neither before or after sngon ma yin phyis ma yin pa	非初非後	apubbaṃ acarimaṃ	simultaneously, neither before or after skad cig du sngon min phyis min gyi	非初非後	apubbaṃ acarimaṃ	simultaneously, neither before or after mngon du rtogs	分別	abhisamaya	comprehension
mngon du rtogs pa	分別	abhisamaya	comprehension
dper	譬喻	upama	simile
'di ltar	如	yathā	like, as gru	船	nāvā	boat
chu	水	jala	water
skad cig la	於一剎那	ekakkhaṇe	in one moment
byed	作	karoti	to perform, to carry out bya ba	事	kicca	function, duty
tshu rol gyi 'gram	此岸	orimaṃ tīraṃ	this shore, this bank
tshu rol gyi 'gram 'dor ba	捨此岸	orimaṃ tīraṃ jahati	to abandon this shore
'dor ba	捨	jahati, pajahati	to abandon, to leave pha rol 'gram thob pa	到彼岸	pārimaṃ tīraṃ pāpeti	to reach the further shore
pha rol 'gram	彼岸	pārimaṃ tīraṃ	the further shore thob pa	到	pāpeti, appeti	to reach chu'o gcod pa	------	sotaṃ chindati	to cut the stream, to cross the stream snod rnams bsgrod pa	度物	bhaṇḍaṃ vahati	to carry goods
snod	物	bhaṇḍaṃ	goods, wares
sdong bu sreg pa	------	vaṭṭiṃ jhāpeti	burn the wick sreg pa	------	jhāpeti	burn
sdong bu	炷	vaṭṭiṃ	wick
mun pa sel ba	除闇	andhakāraṃ vidhamati	to dispel darkness
snum zad pa	令油消	sinehaṃ pariyādiyati	to consume oil snang ba ston pa	令光明起	ālokaṃ vidaṃseti	to manifest light
snang ba	光明	āloka	light
ston pa	令起	vidaṃseti, pātukaroti	to manifest, to show
snum	油	sineha	oil
zad pa	令消	pariyādiyati	use up, exhaust
gzugs su rtogs pa rnams ston pa	令現色	rūpagatāni nidassiyati	to show forms
ston pa	令現	nidassiyati	to manifest, to show
mun pa'i rnam pa 'joms pa	除闇	andhakāraṃ vidhamati	to dispel darkness
mun pa'i rnam pa	闇	andhakāra	darkness
'joms pa	除	vidhamati	to dispel bsil ba 'gog par byed pa	令滅寒	sītaṃ paṭippassambheti	to allay cold
bsil ba	寒	sīta	cold
'gog par byed pa	令滅	paṭippassambheti	to allay
snang ba ston par byed pa	令起光明	ālokaṃ dasseti	to manifest light
ston par byed pa	令起	dasseti	to manifest
bden pa mngon par rtogs pa	分別諦	saccābhisamaya	comprehension of the Truths
mnyam du rtogs pa	和合	samāgamma	converging, coming together mi skyod pa	不動	akampiya	unshakeability, immoveability
nges par 'byin pa	乘	niyyāna	leading out, outlet
byang chub yan lag	菩提分	bojjhaṅga	factor of awakening
byang chub yan lag	菩提覺	bojjhaṅga	factor of awakening
byang chub yan lag rnams	菩提覺	bojjhaṅgāni	factors of awakening
lam gyi yan lag	道分	maggaṅga	path factor dang nye bar gnas pa	令住	upaṭṭhāna	establishing don gyis	義	-aṭṭhena, -aṭṭha	in the sense of, has the meaning of gtzo bos	勝	padaha, padahana	striving rdzu 'phrul rkang pa	如意足	iddhipāda	bases of supernormal power
'byor ba	便	ijjhana	succeeding
de lta bu	實	tatha	suchness, reality
yeng ba med pa	不亂	avikkhepa	non-wavering, non-distraction
mi yeng ba	不亂	avikkhepa	non-wavering, non-distraction
zhi gnas	奢摩他	samatha	serenity, calm

rjes su mthong ba	隨觀	contemplation	anupassana
lhag mthong	毘婆舍那	vipassanā	insight
de dag las mi 'da' ba	------	anativattana	non-excess (The Chinese translation has 不相離, which elsewhere in Vim corresponds to avinibbhoga, inseparability.)
zung du 'jug pa	雙	yuganaddha	coupling
tsul khrims rnam par dag pa / tshul khrims rnam par dag pa	戒清淨	sīlavisuddhi	purity of virtue
sems rnam par dag pa	心性淨	cittavisuddhi	purity of mind mthong ba	見	dassana	vision, seeing lta ba rnam par dag pa	見清淨	diṭṭhivisuddhi	purity of view
rnam par dag pa	清淨	visuddhi	purity, purification
rnam par thar pa	解脫	vimokkha	freedom, liberation
grol ba	脫	mutti	release, liberation
mngon du byed pa	通達	paṭivedha	penetration rig pa	明捨	vijjā	higher knowledge
yongs su btang ba	捨	pariccāga	giving up
zad pa shes pa	滅智	khaye ñāṇa	knowledge of destruction
kun du chud pa	斷	samuccheda	cutting off
rtsa ba/ rtza ba	根	mūla	root, foundation
'dun pa	欲	chanda	zeal, desire
kun nas ldang ba	令起	samuṭṭhāna	origination
yid la byed pa	作意	manasikāra	attending, attention
yang dag par phrad pa	平等	samodhāna	combining, combination yang dag par nges pa	平等	samodhāna	combining, combination yang dag par gzhol ba	------	samosaraṇa	meeting together, coming together (Chinese mistranslated as 滅出離)
mngon du phyogs pa	現前	pamukha	being foremost
------	醍醐最後	amatapariyosāna	the deathless as final goal
mthar phyin pa	最後	pariyosāna	final goal, conclusion
bdud rtsir zhugs pa	------	amatogadha	merging into the deathless
bdud rtsi / bdud rtzi	醍醐	amata	deathless zhugs pa	------	ogadha	merging into bdud rtsi'i dbyings	醍醐界	amatadhātu	deathless element de ltar shes shing de ltar mthong ba	如是現智如是現見	evaṃ jānato evaṃ passato	thus knowing, thus seeing
de ltar shes shing	如是現智	evaṃ jānato	thus knowing
de ltar mthong ba	如是現見	evaṃ passato	thus seeing
de ltar shes shing	如是現智	evaṃ jānato	thus knowing
de ltar mthong ba	如是現見	evaṃ passato	thus seeing de ltar	如是	evaṃ	thus shes shing	現智	jānato	knowing mthong ba	現見	passato	seeing rab tu spong bar 'gyur	斷	pajahati	to abandon
'jig tsogs la lta ba	身見	sakkāyadiṭṭhi	personal-identity-view
the tsom	疑	vicikicchā	uncertainty
tshul khrims dang brtul zhugs mchog tu 'dzin pa	戒取	sīlabbataparāmāsa	holding on to precepts and observances
tshul khrims dang brtul zhugs mchog tu 'dzin pa	戒盜	sīlabbataparāmāsa	holding on to precepts and observances
brtul zhugs	行	vata	vow, observance (For the Chinese, see T32n1648_p0401a24.)
mchog tu 'dzin pa	取	parāmāsa	holding on to (i.e., with wrong view)
mchog tu 'dzin pa	盜	parāmāsa	holding on to (i.e., with wrong view)
mchog tu 'dzin pa	觸	parāmāsa	holding on to (i.e., with wrong view)
de dang gcig tu gnas pa'i nyon mongs pa	彼相應煩惱	tadekaṭṭhato kilesa	defilement(s) conjoined to that de dang gcig tu gnas pa	彼相應	tadekaṭṭha	conjoined to that, established on that de dang lhan cig pa	彼一處住	tadekaṭṭha	conjoined to that, established on that de dang lhan cig pa'i nyon mongs pa	彼一處住煩惱	tadekaṭṭhato kilesā	defilements conjoined to that nyon mongs pa	煩惱	kilesa	defilement
bdag du	為我	attato	as self
yang dag par rjes su lta ba	見	samanupassati	to regard, to view
gzugs dang ldan pa	有色	rūpavant	possessing matter, endowed with matter
bdag ni gzugs dang ldan pa	我有色	rūpavantaṃ attānaṃ	the self as possessing matter (= One of the four wrong ways of regarding matter that gives rise to sakkāyadiṭṭhi, personal-identity-view.)
___	色為我所	attani rūpaṃ	matter as in self (= One of the four wrong ways of regarding matter that gives rise to sakkāyadiṭṭhi, personal-identity-view.)
bdag la	為我所	attani	as in self (= locative of attā)
gzugs la bdag yod pa	於色我	rūpasmiṃ attānaṃ	the self as within matter (= One of the four wrong ways of regarding matter that gives rise to sakkāyadiṭṭhi, personal-identity-view.)
gzugs la	於色	rūpasmiṃ	within matter, in matter
bdag ni rnam par shes pa dang ldan pa	我有識	viññāṇavantaṃ attānaṃ	the self as possessing consciousness (= One of the four wrong ways of regarding consciousness that gives rise to sakkāyadiṭṭhi, personal-identity-view.)

dang ldan pa	有	-vant	possessing, endowed with (-vant = possessive suffix)
bdag la rnam par shes pa	識為我所	attani viññāṇaṃ	consciousness as in self rnam par shes pa la bdag yod pa	於識我	viññāṇasmiṃ attānaṃ	the self as within consciousness
spong bar byed	已斷	pahīyati	is abandoned
spangs pa las	斷故	pahānā	due to that abandoning (= ablative)
las	故	---	due to, because of (= ablative) spong bar 'gyur	斷	pajahati	to abandon mtha' gcig tu ma nges pa	惑	kaṅkhā	doubt, perplexity
sangs rgyas sam chos sam dge 'dun	佛法僧	buddha vā dhamma vā saṅgha	the Buddha, Dhamma or Saṅgha
'di yang	彼亦	taṃ pi, ayaṃ pi	this also, this as well sngon gyi mtha'	初邊	pubbanta	anterior end, ultimate beginning, the past phyi ma'i mtha'	後邊	aparanta	posterior end, ultimate end, the future
sngon gyi mtha' 'am phyi ma'i mtha'	初後邊疑	pubbantāparanta	anterior end and posterior end
rkyen 'di las rten cing 'brel par 'byung ba'i chos la	---	idappaccayatā paṭiccasamuppannesu dhammesu	regarding specific conditionality and dependently arisen states
rkyen 'di las rten cing 'brel par 'byung ba'i chos	---	idappaccayatā paṭiccasamuppannā dhammā	specific conditionality and dependently arisen states
rten cing 'brel par 'byung ba'i chos	因緣所起法	paṭiccasamuppannā dhammā	dependently arisen states
rten cing 'brel par 'byung ba	因緣所起	paṭiccasamuppanna	dependently arisen
rkyen 'di las	---	idappaccayatā	specific conditionality
rten cing 'brel par 'byung ba'i chos la	於因緣所起法	paṭiccasamuppannesu dhammesu	regarding dependently arisen states
'byung ba	所起	samuppanna	arisen, which have arisen
sred pa	渴愛	taṇhā	craving
rmongs pa	癡	moha	delusion
dka' thub	苦行	tapa	austerity, asceticism
tsangs par spyod ba/tshangs par spyod ba	梵行	brahmacariya	holy life, celibacy
lha	天	devatā	god
'di las phyi rol du gyur pa	外沙	ito bahiddhā	outsider, outside of this (Dhamma)
dge sbyong dam bram ze	沙門婆羅門	samaṇabrahmaṇa	recluse or brahmin
sbyong dam bram ze rnams	沙門婆羅門	samaṇabrahmaṇā	recluses or brahmins
dge sbyong	沙門	samaṇa	recluse
bram ze	婆羅門	brahmaṇa	brahmin
'gro bar 'gyur ba	令往	gamanīya	leading to ngan song du 'gro bar 'gyur ba	令往惡趣	apāyagamanīya	leading to evil destinations
ngan song du	惡趣	apāya	evil destination, hell
rgyun du zhugs pa'i 'bras bu mngon du bya ba	須陀洹果作證	sotāpattiphalasacchikiriya	realization of the Fruit of Stream-entry
rgyun du zhugs pa'i 'bras bu mngon du bya ba'i phyir ched du zhugs pa	為須陀洹果作證成向	sotāpattiphalasacchikiriyāya paṭipanna	is practising towards the realization of the Fruit of Stream-entry
rgyun du zhugs pa'i 'bras bu	須陀洹果	sotāpattiphala	fruit of Stream-entry zhugs pa	成向	paṭipanna	is practising ched du zhugs pa'i sa	向地	paṭipanna-bhūmi (or paṭipannaka-bhūmi)	the plane of practice ched du zhugs pa	向	paṭipanna, paṭipannaka	practice, one who is practising mngon du bya ba	作證	sacchikiriya	realization
srid du	間	antara	period, interval, occassion
'di srid du	於此間	etasmim antare	in this period
brgyad pa'i sa	第八地	aṭṭhamabhūmi	eight-plane (the plane of one practising for the fruit of stream entry)
mthong ba'i sa	見地	dassanabhūmi	plane of vision
nges par gyur pa	---	niyatagata (?)	gone to certainty
	---	niyata	certainty
gnyi ga	兩	ubhaya	both
ma thag tu	無間次第	samanantara	immediately following
'dus ma byas la dmigs pa byas	作無為事	asaṅkhataṃ ārammaṇaṃ katvā/karoti	having made the Unconditioned the object, makes the Unconditioned the object
dmigs pa byas	作事	ārammaṇaṃ katvā/karoti	having made the object, makes the object
skye bar 'gyur	生	uppajjati	to arise
skye bar 'gyur	起	uppajjati	to arise
'bras bu sems	果心	phalacitta	fruit-mind, fruition-mind bar med par	無間次第	anantara	immediately following
'jug pa	度	otarati	passes into, enters into srid pa'i yan lag	後分	bhavaṅga	existence-continuum
so sor rtog go	觀	paccavekkhati	reviews
phyir	故	-to, -ā	on account of, due to = ablative of cause
ngan 'gro med pa'i chos	不退法	avinipātadhamma	not subject to regress
rdzogs pa'i byang chub la nges par gzhol ba	菩提向	sambodhiparāyana	awakening as destination
rdzogs pa'i byang chub	菩提	sambodhi	awakening, enlightenment nges par gzhol b	向	parāyana	destined to, ending in, bound to nges par	定向	niyata	fixed destiny
bcom ldan 'das kyi thugs kyi sras dang zhal las skyes pa	世尊胸生口生	bhagavato putto oraso mukhato jāto	a son born of the breast and mouth of the Blessed One bcom ldan 'das	世尊	bhagavant	the Fortunate One, the Blessed One. An ephitet of the Buddha.

bcom ldan 'das kyi	---	bhagavato	of the Fortunate One, of the Blessed One
thugs kyi sras	胸生	oraso jāta	born of the breast
thugs	胸	ura, orasa	breast, chest
zhal las skyes pa	口生	mukhato jāta	born from the mouth
zhal las	----	mukhato	from the mouth
zhal	口	mukha	mouth
skyes pa	生	jāta	born
chos las skyes pa	法生	dhammaja	born of the Dhamma
chos kyi sprul pa	法所造	dhammanimmita	created by the Dhamma
chos kyi bgo skal la dbang ba dang zang zing gi bgo skal la mi dbang ba	法分不與物分	dhammadāyādo no āmisadāyādo	an heir to the Dhamma, not an heir to material things
chos kyi bgo skal	法分	dhammadāyāda	heir to the Dhamma
zang zing gi bgo skal	物分	āmisadāyāda	heir to material things, heir to worldly things
zang zing	物	āmisa	material things, worldly things
bgo skal	分	dāyāda	heir
lta ba phun sum tshogs pa	見具	diṭṭhisampanna	one endowed with (right) view phun sum tshogs pa	具足	sampanna	endowed with, possessed of yang dag par zhugs pa	善修行	supaṭipanna, sampanna	practising well zhes kyang	----	iti pi	"..." also, is also [called] "..."
chos 'di chub pa	到此妙法	āgato imaṃ saddhammaṃ	one who has arrived at this true Dhamma
'di	此	imaṃ	this
chub pa	到	āgata	has arrived at slob pa'i ye shes dang yang dag par ldan pa	已學智成就	sekhena ñāṇena samannāgata	endowed with a trainee's knowledge yang dag par ldan pa	成就	sammanāgata	endowed with, possessed of slob pa'i ye shes	學智	sekha ñāṇa	trainee's knowledge, learner's knowledge
slob pa'i rig pa dang yang dag par ldan pa	已學明成就	sekhāya vijjāya samannāgata	endowed with trainee's higher knowledge
slob pa'i rig pa	學明	sekha vijjā	trainee's higher knowledge
chos kyi srol du yang dag par zhugs pa	入法流	dhammasotaṃ samāpanna	has entered the stream of Dhamma
chos kyi srol	法流	dhammasota	stream of Dhamma yang dag par zhugs pa	入	samāpanna	has entered nges par 'byed pa dang shes rab	通達慧	nibbedhikapaññā	penetrative wisdom
nges par 'byed pa	通達	nibbedhika	penetrative bdud rtsi'i sgo kun du bsgrubs te gnas pa	開醍醐門住	amatadvāraṃ āhacca tiṭṭhati	he stands knocking at the door of the Deathless (= meaning of Pali. Chinese: he stands opening the door of the Deathless. Tibetan: he abides having entered upon the door of the Deathless)
bdud rtsi'i sgo kun du bsgrubs te gnas pa	至醍醐門住	amatadvāraṃ āhacca tiṭṭhati	he stands knocking at the door of the Deathless (= meaning of Pali. Chinese: he stands having attained the door of the Deathless. Tibetan: he abides having entered upon the door of the Deathless)
bdud rtsi'i sgo / bdud rtzi'i sgo	醍醐門	amatadvāra	the door of the Deathless, gate of the Deathless
sa steng	地	paṭhavi	earth
rgyal po	國王	rāja	king, ruler
bde 'gro	天堂	sagga	heaven
'jig rten kun	一切世間	sabbaloka	all the world
bdag po	領	ādhipacca, adhipati	authority, lordship, dominance, lord mchog	勝	vara	excellent, best phyir	於	-ena	than, = instrumental of comparison bgrod	---	gamana	going
lan cig phyir 'ong ba'i 'bras bu	斯陀含果	sakadāgāmiphala	Fruit of Once-Returning lan cig phyir 'ong ba	斯陀含	sakadāgāmi, sakadāgāmitā	Once-returner, non-returning gong ma	上	uttari	further, higher
mngon par sgrub par byed	作精進	viriyaṃ ārabhati	to put forth energy, endeavours byed	作	ārabhati	to put forth, induce skye ba dang 'gag pa	生滅	udayabbaya	rise and fall, arising and falling away rjes su lta ba	見	anupassati, anupassana	to contemplate, contemplation, to observe skye ba dang 'gag pa la rjes su	見生滅	udayabbayānupassana	contemplation of rise and fall rags pa	麁	oḷārika	coarse bzhin du	如	yathā	as, in the way, in accordance with yang dag par blangs	依	nissāya, upādāya	depending on, relying on phyir mi 'ong ba'i 'bras bu	阿那含果	anāgāmiphala	Fruit of Non-returning phyir mi 'ong ba	阿那含	anāgāmi, anāgāmitā	Non-returner, the state of non-returning dgra bcom pa'i 'bras bu	阿羅漢果	arahattaphala	Fruit of Arahantship dgra bcom pa	阿羅漢	arahatta, arahant	Arahantship, Arahant, a worth one gzugs kyi 'dod chags	色欲	rūparāga	desire for the material, desire for material existence
gzugs med pa'dod chags	無色欲	arūparāga	desire for the immaterial, desire for immaterial existence lhag ma ma lus pa	無餘	anavasesa	without remainder dge slong	比丘	bhikkhu	monk
zag pa zad pa	滅漏	khīṇāsava	destroyed the taints
tshangs spyod du gnas pa	梵行已立	vusitabrahmacariya	fully lived the holy life

tshangs spyod	梵行	brahmacariya	the holy life
byed pa byas pa	所作	kataṃ karaṇīyaṃ	done what is to be done khur bor ba	置擔	ohitabhāra	has laid down the burden
khur	擔	bhāra	burden, load
bdag gi don rjes su thob pa	到妙義	anuppattasadattha	has reached the true goal
bdag gi don	妙義	sadattha	true goal rjes su thob pa	到	anuppatta	reached, arrived at gnas pa	已立	vusita	fully lived, completed
gnas pa	以立	vusita, vusitavant	fully lived, completed
kun du sbyor ba	結	saṃyojana	fetter, bond
srid par kun du sbyor ba	有結	bhavasaṃyojana	fetter of existence, bond of existence
---	斷有結	parikkhīṇabhavasaṃyojana	destroyed the fetter of existence
kun du sbyor ba yongs su zad pa	斷結	parikkhīṇasaṃyojana	destroyed the fetter, destroyed the fetter
yongs su zad pa	斷	parikkhīṇa	destroyed
yang dag pa'i kun shes pas sems shin tu rnam par grol ba	正智解脫	sammadaññāvimutta	liberated by right knowledge
yang dag pa'i kun shes pa	正智	sammadaññā	right knowledge
rab tu spangs pa	離	vippahīna	abandoned yang dag par ldan pa	成就	sammannāgata	endowed with, possessed of yan lag lnga rab tu spangs pa	離五分	pañcaṅgavippahīna	abandoned five factors
yan lag drug dang yang dag par ldan pa	六分成就	chaḷaṅgasamannāgata	endowed with six factors
gcig kun tu srung ba	一守護	ekārakkha	one guard
kun tu srung ba	守護	ārakkha	guard
so sor bden pa rab tu spangs pa	除餘諦	paṇunnapaccekasacca	dispelled individual truths
rab tu spangs pa	除	paṇunna, panudita	dispelled
so sor	餘	pacceka	individual, personal
so sor bden pa	餘諦	paccekasacca	individual truths
dod tsho la la yang dag par kun du dor ba	滅信覓	samavayasaṭṭhesana	totally renounced searching yang dag par kun du dor ba	滅	samavayasaṭṭha	totally renounced yang dag par kun du	---	samavaya	totally dor ba	滅	saṭṭha	renounced, given up kun du rtog pa'i rnyog pa med pa	無濁思惟	anāvilasaṅkappa	with purified intention rnyog pa med pa	無濁	anāvila	purified, clean lus kyi 'du byed shin tu sbyangs pa	猗身行	passaddhakāyasaṅkhāra	has tranquillized the bodily formation
lus kyi 'du byed	身行	kāyasaṅkhāra	bodily formation
sems shin tu rnam par grol ba	善解脫心	suvimuttacitta	well-liberated mind
shin tu rnam par grol ba	善解脫	suvimutta	well-liberated
shes rab shin tu rnam par grol ba	善解脫慧	suvimuttapaññā	well-liberated wisdom
gcig tu	---	kevala	complete, whole
---	成丈夫	uttamapuriso	greatest person
skyes bu mchog	最勝丈夫	paramapuriso	supreme person
thob pa dam pa thob par gyur pa	得第一所得	paramapattippatto	has attained the supreme attainment
sgo gtan med pa	----	niraggaḷa	no bolt mi ldan pa	不相應	visaṃyutta	detached rgyal mtshan bsgrengs pa	----	pannaddhaja	one whose banner has been lowered (= Pali meaning. Tibetan: one whose banner has been raised.)
rgyal mtshan	----	dhaja	banner, flag
dag byed	已浴	nhātaka	one who has bathed rig byed pa	度韋陀	vedagū	knower of the highest knowledges rgal pa	度	tiṇṇa	crossed over
dul ba	脫	mutta	released, freed
grol ba	伏	danta	tamed
zhi ba	寂寂	santa	appeased
zhos	令寂	assattha	comforted, eased
thob pa	得	pāpuṇāti	attains, obtains
gcig bu par 'gyur ba	一生	ekabījī	one-seeder (one of the three kinds of stream-enterer, sotāpanna, 須陀洹), T32n1648_p0458b14
bdun par 'gyur ba	七生	sattakkhattuparama	seven-lives-at-moster (one of the three kinds of stream-enterer, sotāpanna, 須陀洹), T32n1648_p0458b13. Cf. 七時生 at T32n1648_p0458c23.
rigs nas rigs su 'gyur ba	家家	kolaṃkola	clan-to-clanner (one of the three kinds of stream-enterer, sotāpanna, 須陀洹), T32n1648_p0458b14. Cf. 家家生 at T32n1648_p0458c23.
----	一生須陀洹	ekabījī sotāpanna	one-seeder stream enterer (one of the three kinds of stream-enterer, sotāpanna, 須陀洹)
----	家家須陀洹	kolaṃkola sotāpanna	clan-to-clanner stream enterer (one of the three kinds of stream-enterer, sotāpanna, 須陀洹)
dbang po rtul po	鈍根	mudindriya	dull faculties
dbang po 'bring	中根	majjhimindriya	middling faculties
dbang po rnon po	利根	tikkhindriya	sharp faculties
sdug bsngal mthar byed par 'gyur	作苦邊	dukkhass' antaṃ karoti	he makes an end to suffering mthar byed par 'gyur	作邊	antaṃ karoti	makes an end to

lan cig	一時	sakid	one time
'ongs nas	來	āgantvā	having come, having returned mi'i nang	人有	mānusakaṃ bhavaṃ	human existence
----	來此世	imaṃ lokaṃ āgantvā	having come to this world gtsang ma'i gnas	淨居	suddhāvāsa	pure abode (= The realms where anāgamins are reborn)
gnas	居	āvāsa	abode, dwelling place
'di nas 'phos	從此終	ito cavitvā	having passed away from here
bar dor mya ngan las 'das pa	中間般涅槃	antarā-parinibbāyin	one who attains Nibbāna in the interval (One of the five kinds of non-returners, anāgāmin, 阿那含)
skyes nas yongs su mya ngan las 'das pa	生般涅槃	upahacca-parinibbāyin	one who attains Nibbāna upon landing (One of the five kinds of non-returners, anāgāmin, 阿那含)
'du byed med par yongs su mya ngan las 'das pa	不行般涅槃	asaṅkhāra-parinibbāyin	one who attains Nibbāna without exertion (One of the five kinds of non-returners, anāgāmin, 阿那含)
'du byed dang bcas par yongs su mya ngan las 'das pa	行般涅槃	sasaṅkhāra-parinibbāyin	one who attains Nibbāna with exertion (One of the five kinds of non-returners, anāgāmin, 阿那含)
gong du 'pho ba ste 'og min du 'gro ba	上流往阿迦尼吒天	uddhaṃsoto-akaniṭṭhagāmin	one who goes upstream, to Akaniṭṭha heaven (One of the five kinds of non-returners, anāgāmin, 阿那含)
bar do	中間	antarā	in between, intermediate, in between existences
mya ngan las 'das pa	般涅槃	parinibbāyin	one who attains Nibbāna
skyes nas	生	upahacca	having struck, upon landing, upon rebirth
'du byed med pa	不行	asaṅkhāra	without exertion
'du byed dang bcas pa	行	sasaṅkhāra	with exertion
'du byed dang bcas pa	有行	sasaṅkhāra	with exertion gong du 'pho ba	上流	uddhaṃsota	upstream, one who goes upstream ste 'og min du 'gro ba	往阿迦尼吒天	akaniṭṭhagāmin	one who goes to Akaniṭṭha (Akaniṭṭha is the fourth of the Pure abode heavens, where non-returners are reborn.)
'og min	阿迦尼吒天	akaniṭṭha	Akaniṭṭha (The fourth of the Pure abode heavens, where non-returners are reborn.)
'og min	阿迦尼吒	akaniṭṭha	Akaniṭṭha (The fourth of the Pure abode heavens, where non-returners are reborn.)
'gro ba	往	gāmin	one who goes mi che ba	不煩	aviha	aviha, without trouble. (= The first of the four Pure Abodes, suddhāvāsa, where non-returners, anāgāmins, 阿那含, are reborn as Brahmā gods.)
yang dag par bcad pa	斷	samuccheda	complete cutting off, destruction tshe'i 'du byed	命行	āyusaṅkhāra	the life-force, the life-formation
sdug bsngal gyi mtha'	苦邊	dukkhass'anta	the end of suffering
phyir yang srid pa	後有	punabbhava, punabhava	further existence
rigs kyi tshor ba	___	jātavedasa	fire (The Tibetan translation “of the kind of feeling” is a literal translation, and misunderstanding, of jātavedasa.)
'bar ba	___	jalata	burning, blazing gong bu	槌	ghana	lump, mass (= Tibetan meaning), club, hammer (= Pali/Skt, Chinese meaning)
lcags kyi gong bu	___	ayoghana	lump of iron (= Tibetan meaning), iron hammer (= Pali/Skt meaning)
nyams pa	打	hata	struck, beaten
rim gyis	次第	anupubbena	gradually, successively
nye bar zhi	寂滅	upasanta	quenched, extinguished
shes par bya min	不可知	na ñāyate	is not known shes par bya	可知	ñāyate	is known ltar	如	yathā	like, as
'dod pa'i 'dam klung la bgal	欲縛漏	kāmabandhogha	the flood of the bondage of sensuality klung	漏	ogha	flood
yang dag rnam grol	正解脫	sammāvimutta	rightly liberated
mthong ba'i sa	見地	dassanabhūmi	the plane of seeing, the plane of vision
bsgom pa'i sa	思惟地	bhāvanābhūmi	the plane of development, the plane of cultivation
bsgom pa	思惟	bhāvanā, bhāveti	development, cultivation, practice, to develop, to cultivate, to practice (The Chinese Vim usually has the characters 修行 for bhāvanā, bhāveti)
slob pa'i sa	學地	sekhabhūmi	the plane of the learner
mi slob pa'i sa	不學地	asekhabhūmi	the plane of the non-learner
lam bzhi	四道	cattāri maggā	the four paths (i.e. path of stream-entry, the path of once-returning, and the path of non-returning and the path of arahantship.)
mi shes pa kun shes par 'gyur ba'i dbang po	未知我當知根	anaññātaññassāmītindriya	“I shall-know-what-is-not-known”-faculty
mi shes pa	未知	anaññāta	not known, what is not known
----	我當知	ñassāmi, jānissāmi	I shall know
kun shes par 'gyur ba	當知	jānissati	will know
kun shes pa'i dbang po	已知根	aññindriya	perfect-knowledge-faculty
kun shes pa	已知	aññā	perfect knowledge, final knowledge
kun shes pa nyid kyi dbang po	知已根	aññātāvindriyaṃ	one-who-has-known-faculty kun shes pa nyid	知已	aññātāvī	one who has known ni	者	-----	as to, regarding mtshan ma med pa / mtsan ma med pa	無相	animitta	signless

mtshan ma med pa rnam par thar pa / mtsan ma med pa rnam par thar pa	無相解脫	animittavimokkha	signless liberation
mtshan ma med pa rnam par thar pa'i sgo / mtsan ma med pa rnam par thar pa'i sgo	---	animittavimokkhamukha	signless entrance into liberation
smon pa med pa rnam par thar pa'i sgo	---	appaṇihitavimokkhamukha	undirected entrance into liberation
stong pa nyid rnam par thar pa'i sgo	---	suññatavimokkhamukha	emptiness entrance into liberation
rnam par thar pa'i sgo	解脫門	vimokkhamukha	entrance into liberation, gate to liberation, door to liberation
smon pa med pa	無作	appaṇihita	undirected
stong pa nyid	空	suññata	emptiness smon pa med pa rnam par thar pa	無作解脫	appaṇihitavimokkha	undirected liberation
stong pa nyid rnam par thar pa	空解脫	suññatavimokkha	emptiness liberation
----	三解脫	tayo vimokkhā	three liberations (signless liberation : animittavimokkha, undirected liberation : appaṇihitavimokkha, emptiness liberation : suññatavimokkha)
yang dag par ldan pa'i shes pa	相似智	anulomañāṇa	conformity-knowledge
yang dag par ldan pa	相似	anuloma	conformity, conformable mi byed pa	不作	na karoti	does not make smon pa	願	paṇidhi	aspiration, wish mngon par zhen pa	執	abhinivesa	attachment
nyon mongs pa las rnam par grol ba	從煩惱脫	kilesavimutti	freedom from defilements
rnam par thar pa	解脫	vimokkha	liberation
bdud rtsi'i sgo	醍醐門	amatadvāra	door of the deathless
mi dge ba'i rtsa ba/ mi dge ba'i rtza ba	不善根	akusalamūla, akusalamūlāni	root(s) of unwholesomeness, unwholesome root(s)
'dod tshol/'dod tsol	覓	esana	seeking, search tshol ba/tsol ba	覓	esana	seeking, search chu bo	流	ogha	torrent, flood
'gro ba ma yin par bgrod pa	惡趣行	agati-gamanāni	going the wrong way, wrong course of action
ser sna	慳	macchariya	meanness, niggardliness
rtsod pa'i gzhi/ rtzod pa'i gzhi	諍根	vivāda-mūlāni	roots of dispute rtsod pa/ rtzod pa	諍	vivāda	dispute
gzhi	根	mūla	root, basis
'jig rten chos brgyad	八世間法	aṭṭha lokadhammā	the eight worldly states: (1) rnyed pa, 利 lābha , gain (2) ma thob pa, 衰, alābha , non-gain (3) snyan pa, 稱, yasa , fame (4) mi snyan pa, 譏, ayasa , non-fame (5) bstod pa, 譽, pasaṃsā, praise (6) smod pa, 毀, nindā, blame (7) bde ba, 譏, sukha, happiness (8) sdug bsngal, 苦, dukkha, suffering (See T32n1648_p0453b18)
'jig rten chos	世間法	lokadhammā	worldly dhammas (see八世間法, 'jig rten gyi chos)
'jig rten chos brgyad	世間八世法	aṭṭha lokadhammā	the eight worldly states (T32n1648_p0460a05)
'jig rten gyi chos	世法	lokadhammā	worldly dhammas, worldly conditions (see八世間法, 'jig rten gyi chos)
nyon mongs pa'i dngos po	煩惱處	kilesavatthu	ground for defilements (T32n1648_p0460a05; T32n1648_p0452c22)
kun du sbyor ba	結	saññojana, saṃyojana	fetter log pa nyid	邪邊	micchattā	wrongness, error
phyin ci log	顛倒	vippallāsa	distortion, perversion, inversion mi dge bar sems bskyed pa	不善心起	akusalacittuppāda	arising of unwholesome mind
sems bskyed pa	心起	cittuppāda	arising of mind bskyed pa	起	uppāda	arising
lam gnyis	二道	dve maggā	two paths
lam gnyis kyis	以二道	dvīhi maggehi	by two Paths
srab pa	薄	tanu, tanuka	thin
srab par byas	成薄	tanukata	attenuated, diminished lhag ma med pa'i spong bar 'gyur	無餘滅	anavasesa pahīyati	abandoned without remainder lhag ma med pa	無餘	anavasesa	without remainder spong bar 'gyur	滅	pahīyati	abandoned, eliminated
spong ba	滅	pahāna, pajahati	abandoning tsangs par spyod pa	梵行	brahmacariya	holy life
dod pa'i tshol ba/ dod pa'i tsol ba	欲覓	kāmesanā	search for sensual pleasure
srid pa'i tshol ba /srid pa'i tsol ba	有覓	bhavesanā	search for existence
tsangs par spyod pa'i tshol ba/ tsangs par spyod pa'i tsol ba	梵行覓	brahmacariyesanā	search for the holy life
'dod pa'i zag pa	欲漏	kāmāsava	taint of sensual desire srid pa'i zag pa dang	有漏	bhavāsava	taint of existence

lta ba'i zag pa	見漏	diṭṭhāsava	taint of views
ma rig pa'i zag pa	無明漏	avijjāsava	taint of ignorance
zag pa bzhi	四漏	cattāro āsavā	the four taints: (1) 'dod pa'i zag pa : 欲漏: kāmāsava : taint of sensual desire; (2) srid pa'i zag pa dang : 有漏: bhavāsava : taint of existence; (3) lta ba'i zag pa : 見漏 : diṭṭhāsava : taint of views; (4) ma rig pa'i zag pa : 無明漏, avijjāsava : taint of ignorance
brnab sems	貪欲	abhijjhā	covetousness
tshogs kyi mdud pa / tsogs kyi mdud pa	身結	kāya-gantha	body-knot tshogs / tsogs	身	kāya	body, collection
gnod sems	瞋恚	vyāpāda, byāpāda	ill-will, hatred
'di ni bden pa zhes mngon par zhen pa	此諦執	idaṃsaccābhinivesa	the attachment “this is the truth”
'di ni bden pa zhes	此諦	idaṃsacca	“this is the truth” (as part of 'di ni bden pa zhes mngon par zhen pa /此諦執/ idaṃsaccābhinivesa)
'dod pa'i chu bo	欲流	kāmogha	torrent of sensual desire srid pa'i chu bo	有流	bhavogha	torrent of existence
lta ba'i chu bo	見流	diṭṭhogha	torrent of views
ma rig pa'i chu bo	無明流	avijjogha	torrent of ignorance
'dod pa'i sbyor ba	欲厄	kāma-yoga	yoke of sensual desire srid pa'i sbyor ba	有厄	bhava-yoga	yoke of existence
lta ba'i sbyor ba	見厄	diṭṭhi-yoga	yoke of views
ma rig pa'i sbyor ba	無明厄	avijjā-yoga	yoke of ignorance
'dod pa'i nye bar len pa	欲取	kāmupādāna	clinging to sensual desire lta ba'i nye bar len pa	見取	diṭṭhupādāna	clinging to views
tsul khrims dang brtul zhugs nye bar len pa	戒取	sīlabbatupādāna	clinging to precepts and observances bdag tu smra ba'i nye bar len pa	我語取	attavādupādāna	clinging to the doctrine of a self bdag tu smra ba	我語	attavāda	doctrine of a self, theory of a self smra ba	語	vāda	doctrine, theory
rgyun du zhugs pa'i 'bras bu'i lam	須陀洹道	sotāpattimagga	the path of stream-entry
dgra bcom pa'i lam	阿羅漢道	arahattamagga	the path of arahantship phyir mi 'ong ba'i lam	阿那含道	anāgāmimagga	the path of non-returning nye bar len pa bzhin	四取	cattāri upādānāni	the four clingings. = (1) 'dod pa'i nye bar len pa, 欲取, kāmupādāna; clinging to sensual desire; (2) lta ba'i nye bar len pa, 見取, diṭṭhupādāna,clinging to views; (3) tsul khrims dang brtul zhugs nye bar len pa, 戒取, sīlabbatupādāna, clinging to precepts and observances; (4) bdag tu smra ba'i nye bar len pa, 我語取, attavādupādāna, clinging to the doctrine of a self
'jigs pa	怖畏	bhaya	fear
gnas	住處	āvāsa	dwelling-place
rigs kyi	家	kula	family
rnyed pa	利養	lābha	gain
bsngags pa	色	vaṇṇa	appearance
'dod pa la 'dun pa	欲欲	kāmacchandha	sensual desire rmugs pa dang gnyid	懈怠睡眠	thīna-middha	sloth and torpor
rmugs pa	懈怠	thīna	sloth
gnyid	睡眠	middha	torpor
rgod 'gyod	調慢	uddhacca-kukkucca	agitation and worry
rgod pa	調	uddhacca	agitation
'gyod pa	慢	kukkucca	worry
the tsom	疑	vicikicchā	uncertainty, doubt khro ba	忿	kodha	anger, wrath
'chab pa	覆	makkha	depreciation, spite phrag dog	嫉	issā	jealousy
gyo	諂	sāṭheyya	craftiness, dishonesty
sdig pa'i 'dod pa	惡樂	pāpicchatā	evil desires, evil wishes rang nyid kyi lta ba mchog tu 'dzin pa	見觸	sandiṭṭhiparāmāsitā, sandiṭṭhiparāmāsa	holding on to one's own views rang nyid	----	sayaṃ	own
rang nyid kyi lta ba	見	sandiṭṭhi	one's own view(s)
rab tu spong	滅	pahīyati, pahāna	are abandoned, abandoning rab tu spong ba	滅	pahīyati, pahāna	are abandoned, abandoning
bag la nyal ba	使	anusaya	latent tendency
'dod pa'i 'dod chags bag la nyal	欲染使	kāmarāgānusaya	latent tendency of sensual greed khong khro bag la nyal	瞋恚使	paṭighānusaya	latent tendency of aversion nga rgyal bag la nyal	慢使	mānānusaya	latent tendency of views
lta ba bag la nyal	見使	diṭṭhānusaya	latent tendency of conceit
the tsom bag la nyal	疑使	vicikicchānusaya	latent tendency of uncertainty
srid pa'i 'dod chags bag la nyal	有欲使	bhavarāgānusaya	latent tendency of the desire for existence
ma rig pa bag la nyal	無明使	avijjānusaya	latent tendency of ignorance

'dod pa'i 'dod chags	欲染	kāmarāga	sensual greed
khong khro	瞋恚	paṭighā	aversion, resentment, resistance
srid pa'i 'dod chags	有欲	bhavarāga	desire for existence
rnyed pa	利	lābha	gain
ma thob pa	衰	alābha	non-gain
snyan pa	稱	yasa	fame
mi snyan pa	譏	ayasa	non-fame
bstod pa	譽	pasaṃsā	praise
smod pa	毀	nindā	blame, disparagement, defamation
smod pa dang bstod pa	毀譽	nindāpasaṃsā	blame and praise
rjes su chags pa	使	anunaya	affection, inclination
mi 'dod pa'i dngos po	不愛處	aniṭṭha-vatthu	disagreeable object
'dod pa'i dngos po	愛處	iṭṭha-vatthu	agreeable object
zhe sdang ba	瞋恚	paṭigha	aversion, resistance
nga	我	ahaṃ	I
mchog	勝	seyya	superior, better
mnyam pa	等	sadisa	equal
dman pa	下	hīna	inferior, worse
zhe sdang	瞋	dosa	hatred
ngo tsa mi shes pa	無慚	ahīrika	non-conscience mnar sems	惱	āghāta	vexation, annoyance
mnar sems kyi dngos po	惱處	āghātavatthu	ground of annoyance, base for vexation
spyad	已作	acari	did act, behaved
spyod	現作	carati	acts, behaves
spyod par 'gyur	當作	carissati	will act, will behave
don ma yin pa	非義	anattha	harm, non-benefit
mi dge ba'i las bcu	十不善業道	dasa akusalakammapathā	the ten unwholesome courses of action: (1) srog gcod pa, 殺生, pāṇātipāta, taking the life of beings; (2) ma byin par len pa, 不與取, adinnādāna, taking what is not given; (3) 'dod pas log par spyod pa, 邪行, kāmesu micchācāra, sexual misconduct; (4) brdzun du smra ba, 妄語, musāvāda; lying (5) dbyen; 兩舌, pisuṇā vācā, slanderous speech; (6) tshig rtsub po / tsig rtzub po (and: rtsub po/ rtzub po), 惡口, pharusā vācā, abusive speech; (7) ngag kyal pa, 綺語, samphappalāpa, frivolous talk; (8) brnab sems, 貪, abhijjhā, covetousness; (9) gnod sems, 瞋, vyāpāda, ill-will; (10) log par lta ba, 邪見, micchādiṭṭhi, wrong view. (Cf. 十惡 in DDB) mi dge ba'i las	不善業道	akusalakammapathā	unwholesome courses of action
las	業道	kammapatha	course of action
srog gcod pa	殺生	pāṇātipāta	taking the life of beings
ma byin par len pa	不與取	adinnādāna	taking what is not given
'dod pas log par spyod pa	邪行	kāmesu micchācāra	sexual misconduct brdzun du smra ba	妄語	musāvāda	lying dbyen	兩舌	pisuṇā vācā	slanderous speech
tshig rtsub po / tsig rtzub po	惡口	pharusā vācā	abusive speech
rtsub po/ rtzub po	惡口	pharusā vācā	abusive speech
ngag kyal pa	綺語	samphappalāpa	frivolous speech
brnab sems	貪	abhijjhā	covetousness gnod sems	瞋	vyāpāda, byāpāda	ill-will log par lta ba	邪見	micchādiṭṭhi	wrong view
kun du sbyor ba bcu	十結	dasa saṃyojanāni	the ten fetters. They are: the fetter of sensual greed, ill-will, conceit, (wrong) view, uncertainty, holding on to precepts and observances, desire for existence, envy, meanness and ignorance; kāmarāgasaññojana, paṭighasaññojana, mānasaññojana, diṭṭhisaññojana, vicikicchāsaññojana, sīlabbataparāmāsasaññojana, bhavarāgasaññojana, issāsaññojana, macchariyasaññojana, avijjāsaññojana; 欲染結, 瞋恚結, 慢結, 見結, 疑結, 戒取結, 有染結, 嫉結, 慳結, 無明結 (T32n1648_p0460b21-22. Only the items are listed in Vim, without the character 結 for saññojana. Complete characters can be found at T28n1548_p0690b06, T02n0099_p0127a22-23, except for 有染結.); 'dod pa'i chags pa kun du sbyor ba, khong khro ba kun du sbyor ba, nga rgyal kun du sbyor ba, lta ba kun du sbyor ba, the tsom kun du sbyor ba, tsul khrims dang brtul zhugs mchog tu 'dzin pa kun du sbyor ba, srid pa'i chags pa kun du sbyor ba, phrag dog kun du sbyor ba, ser sna kun du sbyor ba, ma rig pa kun du sbyor ba.
'dod pa'i chags pa kun du sbyor ba	欲染結	kāmarāgasaññojana	fetter of sensual greed, T28n1548_p0690b06 (The Chinese Vimuttimagga text at T32n1648_p0460b21-22

khong khro ba kun du sbyor ba	瞋恚結	paṭighasaññojana	just lists the item 欲染 without the character 結 for saññojana.) fetter of ill-will, T28n1548_p0690b06 (The Chinese Vimuttimagga text at T32n1648_p0460b21-22 just lists the item 瞋恚 without the character 結 for saññojana.)
nga rgyal kun du sbyor ba	慢結	mānasaññojana	fetter of conceit, T02n0099_p0127a22 (The Chinese Vimuttimagga text at T32n1648_p0460b21-22 just lists the item 慢 without the character 結 for saññojana.)
lta ba kun du sbyor ba	見結	diṭṭhisaññojana	fetter of (wrong) view, T02n0099_p0127a23 (The Chinese Vimuttimagga text at T32n1648_p0460b21-22 just lists the item 見 without the character 結 for saññojana.)
the tsom kun du sbyor ba	疑結	vicikicchāsaññojana	fetter of uncertainty, T02n0099_p0127a23. (The Chinese Vimuttimagga text at T32n1648_p0460b21-22 just lists the item 疑 without the character 結 for saññojana.)
tsul khrims dang brtul zhugs mchog tu 'dzin pa kun du sbyor ba	戒取結	sīlabbataparāmāsasaññojana	fetter of holding on to precepts and observances, T02n0099_p0127a23. (The Chinese Vimuttimagga text just lists the item 戒取 without the character 結 for saññojana.)
srid pa'i chags pa kun du sbyor ba	---	bhavarāgasaññojana	fetter of desire for existence (The Chinese Vimuttimagga text at T32n1648_p0460b21-22 just lists the item 有染 without the character 結 for saññojana. The character would be 有染結, but this is not found in any Chinese text.)
phrag dog kun du sbyor ba	嫉結	issāsaññojana	fetter of envy T02n0099_p0127a23. (The Chinese Vimuttimagga text at T32n1648_p0460b21-22 just lists the item 嫉 without the character 結 for saññojana.)
ser sna kun du sbyor ba	慳結	macchariyasaññojana	fetter of meanness T02n0099_p0127a23 (The Chinese Vimuttimagga text at T32n1648_p0460b21-22 just lists the item 慳 without the character 結 for saññojana.)
ma rig pa kun du sbyor ba	無明結	avijjāsaññojana	fetter of ignorance, , T28n1548_p0690b07. (The Chinese Vimuttimagga text at T32n1648_p0460b21-22 just lists the item 無明 without the character 結 for saññojana.)
srid pa'i 'dod chags	有染	bhavarāga	greed for existence, desire for existence log pa nyid bcu	十邪邊	dasa micchattā	the ten wrongnesses. See T32n1648_p0460b24-26. (1) log par lta ba or log pa'i lta ba, 邪見, micchādiṭṭhi, wrong view (2) log par kun du rtog pa or log pa'i rtog pa, 邪思惟, micchāsaṅkappa, wrong intention (3) log pa'i ngag, 邪語, micchāvācā, wrong speech (4) log pa'i las kyi mtha', 邪業, micchā-kammanta, wrong action (5) log pa'i 'tso ba / log pa'i 'tsho ba, 邪命, micchā-ājīva, wrong livelihood (6) log pa'i rtzol ba / log pa'i rtsol ba, 邪精進, micchāvāyāma, wrong exertion (7) log pa'i dran pa, 邪念, micchāsati, wrong mindfulness (8) log pa'i ting nge 'dzin , 邪定, micchāsamādhi, wrong concentration (9) log pa'i ye shes, 邪智, micchāñāṇa, wrong knowledge (10) log pa'i rnam par grol pa, 邪解脫, micchāvimutti, wrong freedom. Cf. log pa brgyad, 八邪邊, aṭṭha micchattā, eight wrongnesses.
log par kun du rtog pa	邪思惟	micchāsaṅkappa	wrong intention log pa'i ngag	邪語	micchāvācā	wrong speech
log pa'i las kyi mtha'	邪業	micchā-kammanta	wrong action
log pa'i 'tso ba / log pa'i 'tsho ba	邪命	micchā-ājīva	wrong livelihood log pa'i rtzol ba / log pa'i rtsol ba	邪精進	micchāvāyāma	wrong exertion log pa'i dran pa	邪念	micchāsati	wrong mindfulness log pa'i ting nge 'dzin	邪定	micchāsamādhi	wrong concentration log pa'i ye shes	邪智	micchāñāṇa	wrong knowledge log pa'i rnam par grol pa	邪解脫	micchāvimutti	wrong freedom log par	邪	micchā	wrong
'du shes phyin ci log	想顛倒	saññāvipallāsa	perversion of perception, distortion of perception
sems phyin ci log	心顛倒	cittavipallāsa	perversion of mind, distortion of view
lta ba phyin ci log	見顛倒	diṭṭhivipallāsa	perversion of view, distortion of view mi rtag pa la rtag go zhes	於無常常	anicce niccan ti	impermanent as “permanent”, permanence in what is impermanent
sdug bsngal la bde ba'o zhes	於苦樂	dukkhe sukhan ti	suffering as “happiness”, happiness in what is suffering mi sdug pa la mdzes pa'o zhes	於不淨淨	asubhe subhan ti	foul as “beautiful”, beauty in what is foul, bdag med pa la bdag go zhes	於無我我	anattani attā ti	not-self as “self”, self in what is not-self

mi dge ba'i sems bskyed pa	不善心起	akusalacittuppāda	arising of unwholesome mind
yid bde ba dang ldan	與喜共起	somanassasahagata	accompanied by joy
yid bde ba	喜	somanassa	joy
dang ldan	共起	sahagata	accompanied by (The character(s) preceding 共起 is preceded by 與, "with".)
lta bar 'gyur ba dang ldan pa	見相應	diṭṭhigatasampayutta	associated with (wrong) view
'du byed las byung ba ma yin pa	無行	asaṅkhārena	without stimulus, without force
'du byed dang bcas pa las byung ba	有行	sasaṅkhārena	with stimulus, with force
lta bar 'gyur ba	見	diṭṭhigata	wrong view
lta bar gyur ba dang mi ldan pa	見不相應	diṭṭhigatavipayutta	dissociated from (wrong) view
dang mi ldan pa	不相應	vippayutta	dissociated
btang snyoms dang ldan pa	與捨共起	upekkhāsahagata	accompanied by equanimity
yid mi bde ba dang ldan pa	與憂共起	domanassasahagata	accompanied by distress
zhe sdang dang ldan pa	瞋恚相應	paṭighasampayutta	accompanied by aversion rgod pa dang ldan pa	與調共起	uddhaccasahagata	accompanied by agitation
the tsom dang ldan pa	與疑共起	vicikicchāsahagata	accompanied by uncertainty ma lus par	無餘	anavasesa	without remainder thun mong ma yin pa	不與...共	asādhāraṇa	not common, not shared thun mong	共	sādhāraṇa	common, shared snyoms par 'jug pa	正受	samāpatti	attainment snyoms par 'jug	正受	samāpajjati	to enter upon, to attain
'bras bu snyoms par 'jug pa	果成就	phalasamāpatti	Fruition-attainment, attainment of the Fruit (果成就 = alternative translation of 果正受)
snyoms par 'jug pa	成就	samāpatti	attainment T32n1648_p0460c17 (Normally 正受 is used in Vim, e.g. in T32n1648_p0460c17–18.)
'bras bu snyoms par 'jug pa	果正受	phalasamāpatti	Fruition-attainment, attainment of the Fruit
'du shes tsor ba 'gog pa'i snyoms par 'jug pa / 'du shes tshor ba 'gog pa'i snyoms par 'jug pa	想受滅正受	saññāvedayitanirodha-samāpatti	attainment of cessation of perception and feeling
'du shes tsor ba 'gog pa'i snyoms par 'jug pa / 'du shes tshor ba 'gog pa'i snyoms par 'jug pa	滅想受定	saññāvedayitanirodha-samāpatti	attainment of cessation of perception and feeling
'du shes dang tshor ba 'gog pa'i snyoms par 'jug pa / 'du shes dang tsor ba 'gog pa'i snyoms par 'jug pa	想受滅正受	saññāvedayitanirodha-samāpatti	attainment of cessation of perception and feeling
'du shes tsor ba 'gog pa / 'du shes tshor ba 'gog pa	想受滅	saññāvedayitanirodha	cessation of perception and feeling dri ba	問	pucchā	question
gang yin	云何	ka, kiṃ	what is?
gang las	何故	kasmā	why?
gong ma	出世	lokuttara	supermundane (The Tibetan translator probably misunderstood lokuttara as uttara, the normal meaning of gong ma, or had a wrong reading.)
dge ba ma yin mi dge ba ma yin	非善非不善	neva kusala na akusala	neither wholesome nor unwholesome
yongs su rdzogs par byed pa	作滿	paripūrakāri	be perfect
ting nge 'dzin yongs su rdzogs par byed pa	於此定作滿	samādhismiṃ paripūrikāri	who is perfect in concentration ting nge 'dzin yongs su rdzogs par byas pa	於此定作滿	samādhismiṃ paripūrikāri	who is perfect in concentration ci'i don du	何故	kasmā	why?
mthong ba'i chos la bde bar gnas pa	現見法樂住	diṭṭhadhammasukhavihāra	pleasant dwelling in this life
mthong ba'i chos la bde bar gnas pa	現法樂住	diṭṭhadhammasukhavihāra	pleasant dwelling in this life
mthong ba'i chos	現見法	diṭṭhadhamma	in this life
la bde bar gnas pa	樂住	sukhavihāra	pleasant dwelling bcom ldan 'das kyis bka' stsal pa / bcom ldan 'das kyis bka' stzal pa	世尊教	vutta bhagavatā	said by the Blessed One
bka' stsal pa / bka' stzal pa	教	vutta	said, taught bcom ldan 'das kyis	---	bhagavatā	by the Blessed One kun dga' bo	阿難	Ānanda	Ānanda (One of the main disciples and the main attendant of the Buddha.)
gang gi tshe / gang gi tse	是時	yasmiṃ samaye	at which time, at whatever time, whenever. Can be used in correlative constructions, e.g. 是時 ... 是時 ... at T32n1648_p0444b08. gang gi tshe ... de'i ...
de'i tshe / de'i tse	是時	tasmiṃ samaye	at that time
de bzhin gshegs pa	如來	tathāgata	Thus-gone One (Usually not translated in English.)
mtshan ma thams cad / mtsan ma thams cad	一切諸相	sabba-nimittā	all signs
yid la mi byed pa	不作意	amanasikāra	not attending
'ga' zhig	唯一	ekacca	some, certain sems mtshan ma med pa'i ting nge 'dzin / sems mtsan ma med pa'i ting nge 'dzin	無相心定	animitta cetosamādhi	signless concentration of mind
nye bar bsgrubs te gnas	令起住	upasampajja viharati	dwells having entered upon nye bar bsgrubs te	令起	upasampajjati, upasampajja	to enter, having entered upon de bzhin gshegs pa'i sku	如來身	tathāgatassa kāyo	the body of the Tathāgata

ches reg pa	---	phāsutara	more at ease
reg pa	安隱	phāsu	ease, at ease, comfort, comfortable ci ltar	云何	katha	how?
dben pa	寂寂	raho	solitude, solitary place, lonely place
dben par song ste	入寂寂	rahogata (or rahogantvā) ?, vivittokāsagata ?	gone into solitude, gone to a lonely place
----	往寂寂處	rahogata (or rahogantvā) ?, vivittokāsagata ?	gone into solitude, gone to a lonely place
dben pa	寂寂處	raho, vivittokāsa ?	solitude, solitary place, lonely place
dben pa'i gnas su song ste	入寂寂住	rahogata (or rahogantvā) ?, vivittokāsagata ?	gone into solitude, gone to a lonely place
'bras bu snyoms par 'jug pa'i don du	樂得果正受	phalasamāpattatthika	desirous of the fruition-attainment
don du	樂	atthika	desirous of, wishing for
'dug pa	住	nisīdati	to sit down
nyal	臥	sayati	to lie down
sems bsdus	攝心	cetasā samannāharatvā, cetasā samannāharati	having composed the mind, composes the mind
sems bzhums	攝心	cetasā samannāharatvā, cetasā samannāharati	having composed the mind, composes the mind
rnam par lta	觀	vipassati	to see with insight rigs la longs spyod pa'i ye shes	性除智	gotrabhuñāṇa	change-of-lineage-knowledge rigs longs spyod kyi ye shes	性除智	gotrabhuñāṇa	change-of-lineage-knowledge rigs la longs spyod pa	性除	gotrabhu	change-of-lineage de ma thag tu	無間	anantara	immediately subsequent gtong bar byed	令安	appeti	to fix, to become fixed on, to apply brten nas	依	nissāya	dependent on lam bsgoms pa	修道	maggabhāvanā	development of the Path de dang de	是是	tattha tattha ?	there and there ci	云何	ka	what? how?
yid la byed pa	作意	manasikāra	attending, paying attention to rkyen du	幾緣	kati paccayā	how many conditions?
du	幾	kati	how many?
mtshan ma med pa'i dbyings	無相界	animitta dhātu	the signless element
mtshan ma med pa'i dbyings yid la byed pa	於無相界作意	animittāya ca dhātuyā manasikāro	attending to the signless element gnas pa'i	為住	ṭhitiyā	for persistence, for the lasting of sngon gyi	初	pubba	before, earlier
sngon gyi mngon par 'du byed pa	初行	pubbe abhisaṅkhāra	previous preparation, prior volition
mngon par 'du byed pa	行	abhisaṅkhāra	preparation, volition
ldang ba	起	vuṭṭhāna	emergence (from a meditative attainment)
dang ldan pa	成就	samannāgata	being endowed with, possessed of du zhig	幾	katividha, kati	how many?
sngon du bya ba	初事	pubbakicca	preliminary duty
gzhol ba 'gyur	所著	ninna	is inclined
'jug pa med pa	不生	appavatti	non-occurence
sems dang sems las byung ba'i chos rnams	心心數法	cittacetasikā dhammā	mind and mental properties
sems las byung ba'i chos rnams	心數法	cetasikā dhammā	mental properties
sems las byung ba'i chos	心數法	cetasika dhamma	mental property
sems las byung ba	心數	cetasika	mental property, mental gzugs med du skyes pa	生無色界人	arūpūpagassa puggalassa ? arūpūpapattika ?	a person who is reborn in the formless realm (= Chinese), one who is reborn in the formless realm (= Tibetan) gzugs med par skyes pa	生無色界人	arūpūpagassa puggalassa ? arūpūpapattika ?	a person who is reborn in the formless realm (= Chinese), one who is reborn in the formless realm (= Tibetan)
mi mthun pa'i phyogs	障礙	paripantha, āvaraṇa ?	obstacle
dngos po med pa	非其處故	vatthussa abhāvā	due to there not being a basis
stobs ngu dang ldan pa	力成就	balehi samannāgatattā	endowed with powers, possessed of powers
zhi gnas kyi stobs	奢摩他力	samathabala	the power of concentration lhag mthong gi stobs	毘婆舍那力	vipassanābala	the power of insight
gzugs med pa'i snyoms par 'jug pa bzhi	四無色定	catasso arūpasamāpattiyo	the four immaterial attainments (i.e. ākāsānañcāyatanasamāpatti, viññāṇañcāyatanasamāpatti, ākiñcaññāyatanasamāpatti, nevasaññānāsaññāyatanasamāpatti)
gzugs med pa'i snyoms par 'jug pa	無色定	arūpasamāpatti	immaterial attainment
----	八定	aṭṭha samāpattiyo	the eight attainments (i.e. the four jhānas and the four immaterial attainments, arūpasamāpattiyo.)
dbang du 'gyur ba	自在	vasibhāva, vasi	mastery, facility
rjes su lta ba bdun	七隨觀	satta anupassanā	the seven contemplations (which make up the power of insight , vipassanābala: aniccānupassanā, dukkhānupassanā, anattānupassanā, nibbidānupassanā, virāgānupassanā, nirodhānupassanā, paṭinissaggānupassanā)
mi rtag pa rjes su lta ba	無常觀	aniccānupassanā	contemplation of impermanence

sdug bsngal rjes su lta ba	苦觀	dukkhānupassanā	contemplation of suffering bdag med pa rjes su lta ba	無我觀	anattānupassanā	contemplation of not-self yid byung ba rjes su lta ba	厭患觀	nibbidānupassanā	contemplation of disenchantment
chags pa bral ba rjes su lta ba	無染觀	virāgānupassanā	contemplation of fading away
'gog pa rjes su lta ba	滅觀	nirodhānupassanā	contemplation of cessation nges par spangs pa rjes su lta ba	離觀	paṭinissaggānupassanā	contemplation of renunciation
yid byung ba	厭患	nibbidā	disenchantment, disgust
chags pa bral ba	無染	virāga	fading away, dispassion
nges par spangs pa	離	paṭinissaggā	renunciation, renouncing
bsam gtan gyi yan lag	禪分	jhānaṅga	jhāna-factor
'gog pa'i don du	為滅	nirodhāya	for the sake of cessation (of)
mi g-yo ba / mi g.yo ba	不動	akuppa	immovable, unshakeable
mi g-yo ba la mos pa / mi g.yo ba la mos pa	不動解脫	akuppa vimokkha	unshakeable liberation
g-yo ba / g.yo ba	動	kuppa	movable, shakeable, unsteady
nyes dmigs	過患	ādīnava	disadvantage, danger
mi 'jug pa rnams la mos pa	無生解脫	appavatta vimokkha (?)	liberation through non-occurrence
mos pa	解脫	vimokkha	liberation
mi 'jug pa rnams	無生	appavatta	non-occurrence (= a synonym for Nibbāna) (The Tibetan rnams indicates a plural while the Pali and Chinese parallel suggest that a singular was intended.)
'jug pa rnams	生	pavatta, pavatti	occurrence (The Tibetan rnams indicates a plural while the Pali and Chinese parallel suggest that a singular was intended. Cf. mi 'jug pa rnams)
'gags	除	paṭippassaddhi	tranquillizing snyoms par 'jug	令起定	samāpajjati	to enter upon, attain ngag gi 'du byed	口行	vacīsaṅkhāra	verbal formation
sems kyi 'du byed	心行	cittasaṅkhāra	mental formation
bsam gtan gnyis pa	第二禪	dutiyajjhāna	the second jhāna snyoms par zhugs pa	入	samāpanna	has entered upon, has attained
rnam par rtog pa dang rnam par dpyod pa	覺觀	vitakkavicāra	thinking and exploring (= jhāna factors of the first jhāna)
rgyun chad par 'gyur	成所除	paṭippassaddha hoti	is tranquillized
'gog par 'gyur	成所除	paṭippassaddha hoti	is tranquillized
rgyun chad pa	所除	paṭippassaddha	tranquillized, allayed
'gog pa	成所除	paṭippassaddha	tranquillized, allayed
bsam gtan bzhi pa	第四禪	catuttha jhāna	fourth jhāna
bzhi pa	第四	catuttha	fourth
dbugs dbyung ba dang dbugs 'jug pa	出息入息	assāsapassāsa	breathing, inhalation and exhalation, in-breath and out-breath
dbugs dbyung ba	出息	passāsa	exhalation, out-breath
dbugs 'jug pa	入息	assāsa	inhalation, in-breath
dbugs	息	(Skt: śvāsa)	breath
sngon gyi bya ba	初事	pubbakicca	preliminary duty
bcing ba gcig pa dang rnam par 'tse ba med pa	一縛不亂	ekābaddhaavikopana	non-destruction of personal belongings bcing ba gcig pa	一縛	ekābaddha	personal belongings, what is connected to one rnam par 'tse ba med pa / rnam par 'tshe ba med pa	不亂	avikopana	non-destruction, non-damage
rnam par 'tse ba	亂	vikopana	destruction
dus yongs su chad pa	遠分別	addhānapariccheda	limiting the duration
yongs su chad pa	分別	pariccheda	limiting, limitation
dus	遠	addhāna	duration, time-span sbyor ba	方便	payoga	means, action, exertion gang dang gang gis	以所有	yena kenaci ?	through whatever, through any nye bar gnod pa	亂	vikuppati, vikopana ?	to destroy, damage, harm
kun du 'byung bar ma gyur cig	莫生	mā uppajjatu ?	let not give rise to, let not arise (imperative)
ma gyur cig	莫	mā	let not, do not (= prohibitive particle)
byin gyis rlob	受持	adhiṭṭhāti, adhiṭṭhāna	to resolve, to determine, resolve, determination
lhung bzed	鉢	patta	bowl
chos gos	袈裟	cīvara	robe, the robe of a buddhist monk lhung bzed dang chos gos	鉢袈裟	pattacīvara	bowl and robe yongs su gzhal	稱	parituleti ?	estimate, consider yongs su gcad pa bgyis	作分別	paricchedaṃ karoti	making a limit
ldang bar bya	當起	vuṭṭhahissati	will emerge rnam par gzigs pa	觀	? vilokana ?	observing, considering, regarding las dang las ma yin pa	事非事	kammākammāni	legal acts and non-legal acts, business and non-business, (Cf. Vin-a VII 1378: Kammākammāni karontīti aparāparaṃ saṅghakammaṃ upādāya khuddakāni ceva mahantāni ca kammāni karonti.)
'tshogs pa / 'tsogs pa	和合	sannipatati, sannipatitvā	assembles, comes together
dge 'dun gyi las	----	saṅghakamma	legal act of the Saṅgha
dge 'dun gyi las dang las ma yin pa	眾僧為事非事	saṅghassa kammākamma	legal act or non-legal act of the Saṅgha
las dang las ma yin pa	事非事	kammākamma	legal act or non-legal act
'ga' zhig	----	kiñcideva, kiñci	some sgrogs pa'i sgra	聲	pakkosati, pakkosa, pakkosana	to call, call, summon shin tu	最後	? accanta, pacchima ?	ultimate rnam par bsgom pa	廣	vipphāra	pervasive force, pervasiveness, diffusion

rdzu 'phrul	神通	iddhi	supernormal power
'i don du	為	-atthāya, -āya	for the sake of, for, for the purpose of gi don du	為	-atthāya, -āya	for the sake of, for, for the purpose of
'gog pa'i don du	樂滅	nirodhaṃ icchati ?	desiring cessation
'gog pa'i mngon par 'dod pas	意樂滅	nirodhaṃ abhipattheti ?	aspiring for cessation mngon par 'dod pas	意樂	abhipattheti ?	aspiring for bsam gtan dang po la snyoms par 'jug	入初禪	paṭhamajjhānaṃ samāpajjati	enters upon the first jhāna
rnam par lta	見	vipassati	sees with insight
'du byed btang snyoms kyi ye shes	行捨智	saṅkhārupekkhañāna	knowledge of equanimity towards the formations
'du byed btang snyoms pa'i ye shes	行捨智	saṅkhārupekkhañāna	knowledge of equanimity towards the formations
'du byed btang snyoms	行捨	saṅkhārupekkha	equanimity towards the formations bar du	乃至	yāva	as far as, until bsam gtan gsum pa	第三禪	tatiyajjhāna	the third jhāna nam mkha' mtha' yas skye mched	虛空處	ākāsānañcāyatana	base of boundless space rnam shes mtha' yas skye mched	識處	viññāṇañcāyatana	the base of boundless consciousness ci yang med pa'i skye mched	無所有處	ākiñcaññāyatana	the base of nothingness
'du shes med 'du shes med min skye mched	非非想處	nevasaññānāsaññāyatana	the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception
'du shes med 'du shes med min	非非想	nevasaññānāsaññā	neither-perception-nor-non-perception
'du shes med 'du shes med min gyi skye mched	非非想處	nevasaññānāsaññāyatana	the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception snyoms par 'jug pa	正定	samāpatti	attainment (The Chinese apparently misunderstood samāpatti as sammā āpatti; cf. 正受 above.)
lan gnyis lan gsum	或二或三	dvitikkhattuṃ	two or three times de nas	從彼	tato, atha	thereupon, then yid la byas pa	作意	manasikaroti	to attend, pay attention phyir mi 'ong ba'i 'bras bu'i sems	阿那含果心	anāgāmiphalacitta	the fruition-mind of non-returning
dgra bcom pa'i 'bras bu'i sems	阿羅漢果心	arahattaphalacitta	the fruition-mind of arahantship
'bras bu'i sems	果心	phalacitta	fruit-mind, fruition-mind
langs nas	起已	vuṭṭhita, vuṭṭhāya	has emerged, having emerged
dben pa la gzhol ba	專緣寂寂	vivekaninna	inclined towards seclusion
dben pa	寂寂	viveka	seclusion
reg par bya ba dag	觸	phassā	contacts
reg par 'gyur	所觸	phusīyati	is contacted, is touched
'byung	起	uppajjati	arise
shi ba	死人	mata	dead
'du shes med pa'i snyoms par 'jug pa bdag	入滅想定人	saññāvedayitanirodhaṃ samāpanna	one who has entered upon the cessation of perception and feeling tha dad pa'i rgyu ci zhes pa	何差別者	kiṃ nānākaraṇanti	what is the difference?
tha dad pa'i rgyu ci	何差別	kiṃ nānākaraṇa	what is the difference?
zhes pa	者	ti	"...", quotation mark
'gags shing	斷	niruddha	ceased
rgyun chad pa	沒	paṭippassaddha	tranquillized
tse yongs su zad pa / tshe yongs su zad pa	壽命斷	āyu parikkhīṇa	life-span is exhausted
yongs su zad pa	斷	parikkhīṇa	exhausted
tse / tshe	壽命	āyu	life-span, life
dro ba nye bar zhi ba	煖斷	usmā vūpasanta	heat has subsided
nye bar zhi ba	斷	vūpasanta	subsided, stilled, quenched
dbang po rnams kyi rnam 'gyur zhig pa	諸根斷	indriyāni paribhinnāni	the sense-faculties are broken up
rnam 'gyur zhig pa	斷	paribhinna	broken up rab tu dang ba	不異	vippasanna	clear, bright (The Chinese might correspond to aparibhinna, not broken up, but the Pali and Tibetan have vippasanna)
dbang po rnams rab tu dang ba	諸根不異	indriyāni vippasannāni	the sense-faculties are clear brjod du med	不可說	na vattabba	can't be spoken of shes par byar med pa	不可知	na paññāyati	is not known ldang ba	出	vuṭṭhāna	emergence
mi srid pa	無有	abhāva	absence
'dus byas kyi chos rnams	有為法	saṅkhatadhammā	conditioned states snyoms par 'jug pa dang ldang ba	入出	samāpajjana ca vuṭṭhāna	entering and emerging
'dus byas dang 'dus ma byas	有為無為	saṅkhata-asaṅkhata	conditioned and/or unconditioned
mtha'	已竟	niṭṭhita	is finished (Used at conclusions of sections, chapter, etc. For example, 'gog pa'i snyoms par 'jug pa'i mtha'o, 滅禪定已竟, nirodhasamāpatti niṭṭhitā, the attainment of cessation is finished.)
gang yin	何	ka	what is?
ci	何	ka	what?
ro	味	rasa	function
			Exegetical term used to describe the function of a state such as sati, kasiṇa, upekkhā, jhāna, buddhānussati, etc., T32n1648_p0400c01, etc. (See A. K. Warder, The Path of Discrimination, London, 1982, p. xviii.)

nye bar gnas pa	起	paccupaṭṭhāna	manifestation. Exegetical term used to describe the manifestation of a state such as sati, kasiṇa, jhāna, upekkhā, buddhānussati, etc., T32n1648_p0400c01, etc.
go 'phang gi gnas	處	padaṭṭhāna	near cause, footing. Exegetical term used to describe the cause for the arising of a state such as sati, kasiṇa, jhāna, upekkhā, buddhānussati, etc., T32n1648_p0400c01. At first足處 is used in the Vimuttimagga, but later just 處, see T32n1648_p0406c23, T32n1648_p0419b08, etc phan yon	功德	ānisaṃsa	benefit (Exegetical) term used to describe the benefits of states such as sati, kasiṇa, jhāna, upekkhā, buddhānussati, etc. T32n1648_p0400c01, etc.
nye ba'i rten	功德	guṇa (Chinese), upanissaya, upanisa (Tibetan)	quality, virtue (Chinese), supportive condition (Tibetan)
ci lta ba bzhin du	如	yathāvant ?	as it is, correctly
phan pa dang mi phan pa yid la byed pa	作意饒益不饒益	hitāhitamanasikāra	attending to benefit and non-benefit phan pa dang mi phan pa	饒益不饒益	hitāhita	benefit and non-benefit, what is beneficial and not beneficial
phan pa	饒益	hita	benefit
mi phan pa	不饒益	ahita	non-benefit mang du byed pa	---	bahulīkaraṇa, bahulīkāra?	making much of, continuously practising de ltar yang	如	yathā	it is like, as is chos mngon pa las	阿毘曇中	abhidhamme	in the Abhidhamma
	中		in, inside (denoting the locative case)
rab tu shes pa	智	pajānana	understanding rnam par 'byed pa	擇	vicaya	investigation
rab tu rnam par 'byed pa	---	pavicaya	thorough investigation
chos rnam par 'byed pa	擇法	dhammavicaya	investigation of the Dhamma
yang dag par mtson pa / yang dag par mtshon pa	妙相	sallakkhaṇa	discerning nye bar mtson pa / nye bar mtshon pa	---	upalakkhaṇa	distinguishing, discrimination
so sor yang dag nye bar mtson pa	---	paccupalakkhaṇa	dependent distinguishing, dependent discrimination rig pa	---	paṇḍicca	erudition, intelligence
mthar phyin pa	聰明	nepuñña	cleverness rnam par 'brel pa	曉了	vebhavya	clarity
sems	思惟	cintā	consideration
nye bar yongs su rtogs pa	見	upaparikkha	examination, inspecting chen po	大	bhūri	comprehensiveness, extensive wisdom
yid gzhungs pa	易悟	medha	intelligence, perspicacity
yongs su 'dren byed	牽	pariṇāyika	reasoning, intellect
rnam par mthong ba	觀	vipassanā	insight
yang dag par shes pa	正智	sampajaññā	awareness
shes rab lcag	慧燈	paññāpatoda	the goad of wisdom
shes rab dbang po	慧根	paññindriya	the faculty of wisdom
shes rab stobs	慧力	paññābala	the power of wisdom
shes rab mtson cha / shes rab mtshon cha	慧仗	paññāsattha	the sword of wisdom
---	慧殿	paññāpāsāda	palace of wisdom
shes rab gsal ba	---	paññāpasāda	clearness of wisdom (Probably the translator misunderstood pāsāda, “palace,” as found in the Pali and Chinese parallel, as pasāda.)
shes rab snang ba	慧光	paññāāloka	light of wisdom (The Tibetan term shes rab snang ba appears to cover both paññāāloka and paññāobhāsa as found in the Pali and Chinese parallels.)
shes rab snang ba	慧明	paññāobhāsa	splendour of wisdom (The Tibetan term shes rab snang ba appears to cover both paññāāloka and paññāobhāsa as found in the Pali and Chinese parallels.)
shes rab sgron ma	慧燈	paññāpajjota	lamp of wisdom
---	慧寶	paññāratana	gem of wisdom
shes rab de kho na nyid	慧實	? paññā-tathatā ?	reality of wisdom (The Pali text has paññāratana, 慧寶, which is the variant reading given in the Taisho edition at T32n1648_p0444c11.)
ma rmongs pa	不愚癡	amoha	non-delusion chos rab tu rnam par 'byed pa	擇法	dhammavicaya (Chinese, Pali), dhammapavicaya (Tibetan)	investigation of the dhamma
lcag	燈	patoda	goad
mtson cha / mtshon cha	仗	sattha	sword, knife
sgron ma	燈	pajjota	lamp
rab rnam par gsal ba	了義光明	obhāsana, vibhāsana	illuminating, elucidating
ma rig pa'i mun pa 'joms pa	除無明闇	avijjandhakāraṃ vidhameti	to dispel the darkness of ignorance
so sor yang dag pa rig pa bzhi	四辯	cataso paṭisambhidā	The four discriminations. T32n1648_p0444c14, T32n1648_p0445b17. They are 義辯, knowledge of the discrimination of meaning, so sor yang dag pa rig pa	辯	paṭisambhidā	atthapaṭisambhidā; 法辯, knowledge of the discrimination of the Dhamma, dhammapaṭisambhidā; 辭辯, knowledge of the discrimination of derivation, niruttipaṭisambhidā; 樂說辯, knowledge of the discrimination of elucidation, paṭibhānapaṭisambhidā. They are explained at T32n1648_p0445b17–29. See also 辯智.

			discrimination, discriminative knowledge. See 四辯, so sor yang dag pa rig pa bzhi.
bsdus nas	以略	saṅkhittena	in brief, briefly,
shes rab kyis	以慧	paññāya	through wisdom
'jog byed	入	?	to enter upon, attain (Chinese), establishes in (Tibetan)
sgom byed	修諸	bhāveti	to develop, practise
'bras bu mthong bar byed	見彼果	phalaṃ passati ?	sees the fruit mthong bar byed	見	passati	to see gong ma dge	勝善	uttari kusala ?	superior wholesomeness bla med pa	最無上	anuttama	unexcelled, supreme nyams pa	退	hāna, hāni, parihāna	decline
'phel	增長	vaḍḍhati ?	to increase
---	破諸外論	parappavādamaddana	crushing the arguments of outsiders
pha rol rgol ba	諸外論	parappavāda	argument of others, argument of outsiders
---	破	maddana	crushing
mi gos pa	非所著	anupalitta	not sullied
gos pa	所著	upalitta	sullied
shes rab ldan pa	有慧人	paññāvant	one endowed with wisdom legs par smras pa shin tu srid	最妙顯說善語言	??	the most excellent expounding in good words ? T32n1648_p0444c21
rtsol ba dpa' ba / rtzol ba dpa' ba	精進勇猛	viriyārambha	application of effort (Chinese Pali), exert courageously (? Tibetan)
de rnams shes rab can spyod yul	是有慧境界	----	those who have wisdom as their range
shes rab can spyod yul	慧境界	paññāya gocara ?	wisdom as pasture/range, pasture of wisdom
sdig pa spong	除眾惡	pāpāni jahāti/parivajjeti ?	to get rid of the evils chags dang sdang rmongs	愛瞋恚無明	rāga-dosa-moha/lobha-dosa-moha	greed, hatred and delusion skye 'chi	生死	saṃsāra, jātimaraṇa	saṃsāra, birth and death
mdo'i don tshol ba nyid	尋修多羅義	suttatthe paccavekkhaṇatā ?	reflecting on the meaning of discourses. The Tibetan and Chinese translator would have misunderstood suttanta, = "discourse" as suttattha, "meaning of discourses." The particle nyid = -tta, -tā after thsol ba suggests that the original was suttante paccavekkhato, "through reflecting on discourses" as is found in the parallel in the Paṭisambhidamagga.
mdo'i don	修多羅義	suttattha?	the meaning of discourses, the sense of sutras
mdo	修多羅	sutta, suttanta	discourse, sutra tshol ba nyid / tsol ba nyid	尋	paccavekkhaṇatā	reflection, reviewing tshol ba / tsol ba	尋	paccavekkhaṇa	reflecting, reviewing gtam pa nyid	---	sākacchā ?	conversation, discussion
yang dag pa mang du	多	sambahula, bahula	much dngos po dang rnam par drang ba	作分明處	vatthuvisadakiriyā	cleansing of the physical basis. In the Pali commentaries "cleansing of the physical basis" is explained as cleaning the body and the surroundings as a preliminary for meditation practice; see Vibh-a 276.
rnam par drang ba	作分明	visadakiriyā	cleansing, making clean
sgrib pa rnam par bral ba'i sems nyid	無蓋心	vinīvaraṇacittatā	mind free from hindrances, mind without hindrances
sgrib pa rnam par bral ba'i sems	無蓋心	vinīvaraṇacitta	mind free from hindrances, mind without hindrances
sgrib pa rnam par bral ba	無蓋	vinīvaraṇa	free from hindrances, without hindrances shes rab 'chal pa'i gang zag yongs su spangs pa	離無智慧人	duppaññapuggalaparivajjana	avoidance of unwise persons shes rab can gyi gang zag bsten pa	修行智慧人	paññavantapuggalasevana	association with wise persons de la lhag par mos pa	樂著	tadadhimuttatā	intentness upon that shes rab 'chal pa	無智慧人	duppaññapuggala	unwise person
shes rab can gyi gang zag	智慧人	paññavantapuggala	wise person, persons endowed with wisdom
yongs su spangs pa	離	parivajjana	avoidance bsten pa	修行	sevana	association with, practising, using shes rab 'chal pa	無智慧	duppaññā	unwise
shes rab can	智慧	paññavant	wise, endowed with wisdom
'jig rten pa'i shes rab	世慧	lokiyā paññā	mundane wisdom
'jig rten las 'das pa'i shes rab	出世慧	lokuttarā paññā	supramundane wisdom
'jig rten pa dang 'jig rten las 'das pa	世出世	lokiya lokuttara, lokiyalokuttara	mundane and supramundane, mundane or supramundane
'phags pa'i lam dang 'bras bu dang mi ldan pa	------	ariyamaggaphalavippayutta	dissociated from the Paths and Fruits
'phags pa'i lam dang 'bras bu dang ldan pa	聖道果相應	ariyamaggaphalasampayutta	associated with the Paths and Fruits
lam dang 'bras bu	聖道果	ariyamaggaphala	Path and Fruit

dang ldan pa	相應	sampayutta	associated with bsam pa'i rang bzhin gyi shes rab	思慧	cintāmayā paññā	wisdom sprung from thought thos pa'i rang bzhin gyi shes rab	聞慧	sutamayā paññā	wisdom sprung from learning
sgom pa'i rang bzhin gyi shes rab	修慧	bhāvanāmayā paññā	wisdom sprung from development
bsam pa'i rang bzhin	----	cintāmaya	sprung from thought thos pa'i rang bzhin	----	sutamaya	sprung from study, sprung from learning
sgom pa'i rang bzhin	----	sutamaya	sprung from development
bsam pa	思	cintā	thought
thos pa	聞	suta	study, learning
sgom pa	修	bhāvanā	development
rang bzhin	----	-maya	sprung from, consisting of (Only used at end of compounds.)
gzhan las ma thos par	不從他聞	parato assutvā	without having heard from another, without hearing from another ma thos par	不聞	assutvā	without having heard (Cf. gzhan las ma thos par)
gzhan las	從他	parato	from another gzhan las thos nas	從他聞	parato sutvā	having heard from another rang gi las las shes pa	自作業智	kammassakatañāṇa	knowledge of the kamma done by oneself (= Tibetan & Chinese; see 自作業), knowledge of the ownership of kamma, knowledge that kamma is one's own (= Pali interpretation; see 自作業)
rang gi las kyis shes pa	自作業智	kammassakatañāṇa	knowledge of the kamma done by oneself (= Tibetan & Chinese; see 自作業), knowledge of the ownership of kamma, knowledge that kamma is one's own (= Pali interpretation; see 自作業) rang gi las las	自作業	kammassakatā	ownership of kamma (= Pali tradition), kamma done by oneself (= Tibetan & Chinese). The Pali tradition interprets kammassakatā as kamma + saka [= Skt: svaka] + tā = "one's-own-ship/owner-ship" while the Tibetan & Chinese interpret it as karma + svakṛta: "kamma + done by oneself.") (Cf. rang gi las las shes pa, 自作業智) (Cf. Vibh-a 411: Kammassakataṃ vā ti idaṃ kammaṃ sattānaṃ sakaṃ, idaṃ no sakanti evaṃ jānanañāṇaṃ. A III 185: kammassakatā tasmiṃ puggale adhiṭṭhātabbā kammassako ayamāyasmā kammadāyādo kammayoni kammabandhu kammappaṭisaraṇo, yaṃ kammaṃ karissati kalyāṇaṃ vā pāpakaṃ vā tassa dāyādo bhavissatī ti.)
rang gi las	自作	(sayaṃkata)	done by oneself
bden pa dang rjes su mthun pa'i shes pa	隨諦相應智	saccānulomikañāṇa	knowledge in conformity with the truths (See 隨諦相應)
bden pa rjes su mthun pa shes pa	隨諦相應智	saccānulomikañāṇa	knowledge in conformity with the truths (See 隨諦相應)
bden pa rjes su mthun pa	隨諦相應	saccānulomika	in conformity with the truths. Vibh-a 411: Saccānulomikaṃ vāti vipassanāñāṇaṃ. Tañhi catunnaṃ saccānaṃ anulomanato saccānulomikanti vuccati.
bden pa dang rjes su mthun pa	隨諦相應	saccānulomika	in conformity with the truths. Vibh-a 411: Saccānulomikaṃ vāti vipassanāñāṇaṃ. Tañhi catunnaṃ saccānaṃ anulomanato saccānulomikanti vuccati.
rjes su mthun pa	隨相應	anulomika	in conformity with, conforming to (隨相應 as part of 隨諦相應, saccānulomika)
so sor thob pa	得	paṭilabbhati, paṭiladdha	to acquire, acquired bzo'i skye mched	---	sippāyatana	sphere of crafts rig pa'i gnas	明處	vijjāṭṭhāna	field of science, field of scientific knowledge, topic of knowledge
bzo	功	sippa	crafts, handicraft dngos po de nyid la	於此處	tesu vatthesu	in these areas
snyoms par 'jug pa	入三昧	samāpanna	one who has entered upon [a concentration attainment]
thams cad	悉	sabba	all
kyang	---	pi	also, even (empathic particle)
skye ba la mkhas pa	來曉了	āyakosalla	skill in improvement
mi 'byung ba la mkhas pa	去曉了	apāyakosalla	skill in detriment thabs la mkhas pa	方便曉了	upāyakosalla	skill in means mkhas pa	曉了	kosalla	skill
skye ba	來	āya	improvement, profit
mi 'byung ba	去	apāya	detriment, loss
thabs	方便	upāya	means
yid la byas pa	現作意	manasikaroto	attending to, paying attention to mi dge ba'i chos yongs su spong ba	不善法成退	akusalā dhammā parihāyanti	unwholesome states decrease dge ba'i chos yongs su 'phel ba	善法成增長	kusalā dhammā parivaḍḍhanti (or abhivaḍḍhanti?)	wholesome states increase yongs su 'phel ba	增長	parivaḍḍhati (or abhivaḍḍhati?)	to increase, grow yongs su spong ba	退	parihāyati (or pahīyati?)	to decrease, dwindle

gang yin pa de ni	於是	yā tattha	therein
gang yin pa 'di ni	於是	yā tattha	therein
'di	於是	ime	on these
'di yid la byas pas	是現作意	ime manasikaroto	attending to these mi dge ba'i chos mngon par 'phel ba	不善法增長	akusalā dhammā abhivaḍḍhanti	unwholesome states increase mngon par 'phel ba	增長	abhivaḍḍhati	to increase dge ba'i chos yongs su nyams pa	善法成退	kusalā dhammā parihāyanti	wholesome states decrease de rnams nye bar bzung ste	於此 ... 方便	tatrupāyā	means thereto (as part of 於此一切方便慧)
de rnams	於此	tatra	thereto, therein thams cad kyang	一切	sabbā pi	all the
----	聚慧	ācayagāminī paññā	wisdom leading to accumulation
----	不聚慧	apacayagāminī paññā	wisdom leading to disaccumulation
----	非聚非非聚慧	nevācayagāminīnāpacayagāminī paññā	wisdom leading to neither accumulation nor to disaccumulation
kun du 'phel bar bgrod pa	聚	ācayagāminī	leading to accumulation
kun du 'phel ba	聚	ācaya	accumulation
'grib par bgrod pa	不聚	apacayagāminī	leading to disaccumulation
'grib pa	不聚	apacaya	disaccumulation
bgrod pa	---	gāminī	leading to, going to (at end of compounds, e.g. 'grib par bgrod pa = apacayagāminī)
kun 'phel bar bgrod pa ma yin pa 'grib par ma yin	非聚非非聚	nevācayagāminīnāpacayagāminī	leading to neither accumulation nor to disaccumulation (The Tibetan text [p.246a] should read kun 'phel bar bgrod pa ma yin pa 'grib par bgrod pa ma yin pa)
bya ba lung du ma bstan pa	事有記	kiriyābyākata, kiriyāvyākata	functional-indeterminate (The Chinese translator misunderstood the ā sandhi in kiriyāvyākata = kiriya + avyākata as kiriya + vyākata. The translation should have been 事無記 instead at T32n1648_p0445a19–29 & 445b09.)
bya ba	事	kiriyā	functional lung du bstan pa	事有記	byākata, vyākata	determinate
sa gsum gyi	於三地	tīsu bhūmīsu	in the three planes (The plane of sensuous realm, the plane of the material realm, and the plane of the immaterial realm; kāmāvacarā bhūmi, rūpāvacarā bhūmi, arūpāvacarā bhūmi)
lam dang ldan pa shes pa	道等分智	maggasamaṃgissa ñāṇa	knowledge of one who possesses the Paths
'bras bu dang ldan pa shes pa	果等分智	phalasamaṅgissa ñāṇa	knowledge of one who possesses the Fruits
'bras bu dang ldan pa'i shes pa	果等分智	phalasamaṅgissa ñāṇa	knowledge of one who possesses the Fruits
lam dang ldan pa shes pa	道等分	maggasamaṃgī	one who possesses the Paths
'bras bu dang ldan pa shes pa	果等分	phalasamaṅgī	one who possesses the Fruits
dang ldan pa	等分	samaṅgī	one who possesses, endowed with, possessing (adjective)
dngos po bcu'i yang dag pa'i lta ba	十處正見	dasavatthukā sammādiṭṭhi	right view endowed with ten grounds, right view which has ten grounds See Nidd I 188: Dasavatthukā sammādiṭṭhi: atthi dinnaṃ, atthi yiṭṭhaṃ, atthi hutaṃ, atthi sukatadukkaṭānaṃ kammānaṃ phalaṃ vipāko, atthi ayaṃ loko, atthi paro loko, atthi mātā, atthi pitā, atthi sattā opapātikā, atthi loke samaṇabrāhmaṇā sammaggatā sammāpaṭipannā ye imañca lokaṃ parañca lokaṃ sayaṃ abhiññā sacchikatvā pavedentī ti.
mi rtag zhes pa'am sdug bsngal zhes pa'am bdag med pa zhes	或無常或苦或無我	aniccan-ti vā dukkhan-ti vā anattā ti	impermanent or suffering or not self rnam par lta ba	見	passati (Chinese), vipassati (Tibetan)	to see, to see with insight, to see clearly gang de lta bu'i ngo bo rjes su mthun pa'i bzod pa	如是相似忍	yā evarūpā anulomikā khanti	which is such kind of conformable acceptance gang de lta bu'i ngo bo	---	ya evarūpa	which is such kind of gang	---	ya	which, whatever lta bu'i ngo bo	如是	evarūpa	such kind of rjes su mthun pa'i bzod pa	相似忍	anulomikā khanti	conformable acceptance
bzod pa	忍	khanti	patience, acceptance
rjes su mthun pa	相似	anulomika	conformable, in conformity
lam bzhi'i shes rab	於四道慧	catūsu maggesu paññā	wisdom regarding the four Paths
'bras bu bzhi'i shes rab	於四果慧	catūsu phalesu paññā	wisdom regarding the four Fruits
lam yang dag par ldan pa'i shes rab	----	maggasamaṅgissa paññā	wisdom of one who possesses the Paths (corruption of lam yang dag par ldan pa'i shes pa)
lam yang dag par ldan pa	道等分	maggasamaṅgī	one who possesses the Paths
yang dag par ldan pa	等分	samaṅgī	one who possesses, endowed with, possessing (adjective)
'bras bu bzhi	四果	cattāri phalāni	the four Fruits (i.e., of stream-entry, once-returning, non-returning, arahantship.)
'dod pa na spyod pa	欲界	kāmāvacara	sensuous realm
gzugs na spyod pa	色界	rūpāvacara	material realm
gzugs med pa na spyod pa	無色界	arūpāvacara	immaterial realm
yongs su ma bsdus pa	無繫	apariyāpanna	unincluded
---	欲界慧	kāmāvacarā paññā	wisdom regarding the sensuous realm
---	色界慧	rūpāvacarā paññā	wisdom regarding the material realm

---	無色界慧	arūpāvacarā paññā	wisdom regarding the immaterial realm
---	無繫慧	apariyāpannā paññā	wisdom regarding the unincluded
dge ba dang lung du ma bstan pa	善有記	kusalāvyākata	wholesome-indeterminate (The Chinese translator misunderstood the ā sandhi in kiriyāvyākata = kiriya + avyākata as kiriya + vyākata. The translation should have been 事無記 instead at T32n1648_p0445a19–29 & 445b09.)
lam dang 'bras bu	道果	magga ca phala, maggaphala	paths and fruits, path and fruit
chos shes pa	法智	dhamme ñāṇa	knowledge of the Dhamma
rjes su shes pa	比智	anvaye ñāṇa	inferential knowledge
rjes su	比	anvaya	inference, inferential
gzhan gyi sems shes pa	他心智	pariye ñāṇa, paricchede ñāṇa	knowledge of others' minds (Chinese, Tibetan), knowledge as to the ways (of the mind), knowledge that encompasses (the mind) (Pali)
kun rdzob shes paai	等智	sammutiñāṇa	conventional knowledge
kun rdzob	等	sammuti	conventional, convention
dang ldan pa	成就	sammanāgata	endowed with, possessed of
'das pa dang ma 'ongs pa'i tshul len pa / 'das pa dang ma 'ongs pa'i tsul len pa	----	atītānāgatena nayaṃ neti	he leads/applies the method to the past and future
'das pa dang ma 'ongs pa	過去未來	atītānāgata	past and future
tshul len pa / tsul len pa	----	nayaṃ neti	to lead/apply the method
'das pa'i dus	過去	atītamaddhāna	the past, past time
ma 'ongs pa'i dus	未來	anāgatamaddhāna	the future, the future time
mngon par shes pa	----	abhiññāta, abhijāni	directly knew, fully knew di nyid	----	imaññeva, imaṃ eva	just this yang gang kha cig	----	ye keci, yo koci	whosoever
mngon par shes par 'gyur ba	----	abhijānissati	will directly know
'phel ba ma yin zhing 'grib pa'i shes rab	慧為聚非為非聚	paññā ācayāya no apacayāya	wisdom which is for accumulation and not for disaccumulation (The Tibetan translator inadvertedly inverted the meanings of ācayāya and apacayāya. Normally [e.g. at p.246a] ācaya = 'phel ba/kun du 'phel ba and apacaya = 'grib pa, but here [p.246b] ācaya = 'grib pa and apacaya = nye bar 'phel or 'phel ba.)
nye bar 'phel zhing 'grib pa ma yin pa'i shes rab	慧為非聚非為聚	paññā apacayāya no ācayāya	wisdom which is for disaccumulation and not for accumulation (The Tibetan translator inadvertedly inverted the meanings of ācayāya and apacayāya. Normally [e.g. at p.246a] ācaya = 'phel ba/kun du 'phel ba and apacaya = 'grib pa, but here [p.246b] ācaya = 'grib pa and apacaya = nye bar 'phel or 'phel ba.)
'grib pa dang 'phel ba dag gi shes rab	慧為聚亦為非聚	paññā ācayāya ceva apacayāya ca	wisdom which is for accumulation and also for disaccumulation (The Tibetan translator inadvertedly inverted the meanings of ācayāya and apacayāya. Normally [e.g. at p.246a] ācaya = 'phel ba/kun du 'phel ba and apacaya = 'grib pa, but here [p.246b] ācaya = 'grib pa and apacaya = nye bar 'phel or 'phel ba.)
'phel ba yang ma yin 'grib pa ma yin pa dag gi shes rab	慧非為聚非非為聚	paññā neva ācayāya no apacayāya	wisdom which is for neither accumulation nor for disaccumulation (The Tibetan translator inadvertedly inverted the meanings of ācayāya and apacayāya. Normally [e.g. at p.246a] ācaya = 'phel ba/kun du 'phel ba and apacaya = 'grib pa, but here [p.246b] ācaya = 'grib pa and apacaya = nye bar 'phel or 'phel ba.)
'phel ba ma yin zhing 'grib pa'i shes rab	為聚非為非聚	ācayāya no apacayāya	for accumulation and not for disaccumulation (The Tibetan translator inadvertedly inverted the meanings of ācayāya and apacayāya. Normally [e.g. at p.246a] ācaya = 'phel ba/kun du 'phel ba and apacaya = 'grib pa, but here [p.246b] ācaya = 'grib pa and apacaya = nye bar 'phel or 'phel ba.)
nye bar 'phel zhing 'grib pa ma yin pa	為非聚非為聚	apacayāya no ācayāya	for disaccumulation and not for accumulation (The Tibetan translator inadvertedly inverted the meanings of ācayāya and apacayāya. Normally [e.g. at p.246a] ācaya = 'phel ba/kun du 'phel ba and apacaya = 'grib pa, but here [p.246b] ācaya = 'grib pa and apacaya = nye bar 'phel or 'phel ba.)
'grib pa dang 'phel ba	為聚亦為非聚	ācayāya ceva apacayāya ca	for accumulation and also for disaccumulation (The Tibetan translator inadvertedly inverted the meanings of ācayāya and apacayāya. Normally [e.g. at p.246a] ācaya = 'phel ba/kun du 'phel ba and apacaya = 'grib pa, but here [p.246b] ācaya = 'grib pa and apacaya = nye bar 'phel or 'phel ba.)
'phel ba yang ma yin 'grib pa ma yin pa	非為聚非非為聚	neva ācayāya no apacayāya	for neither accumulation nor for disaccumulation (The Tibetan translator inadvertedly inverted the meanings of ācayāya and apacayāya. Normally [e.g. at p.246a] ācaya = 'phel ba/kun du 'phel ba and apacaya = 'grib pa, but here [p.246b] ācaya = 'grib pa and apacaya = nye bar 'phel or 'phel ba.)
yod	有	atthi	there is
'phel ba ma yin zhing 'grib pa	為聚非為非聚	ācayāya no apacayāya	for accumulation and not for disaccumulation (The nye bar 'phel zhing 'grib pa ma yin pa	為非聚非為聚	apacayāya no ācayāya	Tibetan translator inadvertedly inverted the meanings of ācayāya and apacayāya. Normally [e.g. at p.246a] ācaya = 'phel ba/kun du 'phel ba and apacaya = 'grib pa, but here [p.246b] ācaya = 'grib pa and apacaya = nye bar 'phel or 'phel ba.) for disaccumulation and not for accumulation (The Tibetan translator inadvertedly inverted the meanings of ācayāya and apacayāya. Normally [e.g. at p.246a] ācaya = 'phel ba/kun du 'phel ba and apacaya = 'grib pa, but here [p.246b] ācaya = 'grib pa and apacaya = nye bar 'phel or 'phel ba.)

'grib pa dang 'phel ba	為聚亦為非聚	ācayāya ceva apacayāya ca	for accumulation and also for disaccumulation (The Tibetan translator inadvertedly inverted the meanings of ācayāya and apacayāya. Normally [e.g. at p.246a] ācaya = 'phel ba/kun du 'phel ba and apacaya = 'grib pa, but here [p.246b] ācaya = 'grib pa and apacaya = nye bar 'phel or 'phel ba.)
'phel ba yang ma yin 'grib pa ma yin pa	非為聚非非為聚	neva ācayāya no apacayāya	for neither accumulation nor for disaccumulation (The Tibetan translator inadvertedly inverted the meanings of ācayāya and apacayāya. Normally [e.g. at p.246a] ācaya = 'phel ba/kun du 'phel ba and apacaya = 'grib pa, but here [p.246b] ācaya = 'grib pa and apacaya = nye bar 'phel or 'phel ba.)
'phel ba	聚	ācaya	accumulation
'grib pa	不聚	apacaya	disaccumulation
'phel ba dag gi	為聚	ācayāya	for accumulation
nye bar 'phel	不聚	apacaya	disaccumulation (normally apacaya is 'grib pa)
sa bzhi'i	於四地	catūsu bhūmīsu	the four planes (The plane of the sensuous realm, the plane of the material realm, the plane of the immaterial realm and the unincluded plane; kāmāvacarā bhūmi, rūpāvacarā bhūmi, arūpāvacarā bhūmi, apariyāpannā bhūmi; see Paṭis I 83)
sa bzhi	四地	catasso bhūmiyo	the four planes (The plane of the sensuous realm, the plane of the material realm, the plane of the immaterial realm and the unincluded plane; kāmāvacarā bhūmi, rūpāvacarā bhūmi, arūpāvacarā bhūmi, apariyāpannā bhūmi; see Paṭis I 83)
gzugs na spyod pa dang gzugs med pa na spyod	色界及無色界	rūpāvacara-arūpāvacara	the material realm and the immaterial realm
spyod pa	界	avacara	realm
skyo ba	厭患	nibbidā	dispassion
yid 'byung	厭患	nibbidā	dispassion
yid 'byung ba	厭患	nibbidā	dispassion
mngon du byed pa	達	paṭivedha, paṭivijjhati	penetration, to penetrate
----	為厭患	nibbidāya	for dispassion
----	為達	paṭivedhāya	for penetration
gang gis	----	yena, yāya	whereby
'dod pa las 'dod chags bral bar 'gyur ba	厭欲	kāmesu vītarāgo hoti	to become passionless towards sense-pleasures
'dod pa las 'dod chags bral ba	厭欲	kāmesu vītarāga	passionless towards sense-pleasures
'dod chags bral ba	厭	vītarāga	passionless
'dod pa las		kāmesu	towards / in sense-pleasures (Read: 'dod pa la ?)
'dod pa 'dod chags dang bral ba bden pa	厭欲	kāmesu vītarāga	passionless towards sense-pleasures
mngon par shes pa mngon du byed	通達神通	abhiññāyo paṭivijjhati	to penetrate the direct knowledges
mngon du byed	通達	paṭivijjhati	to penetrate lam bzhi'i shes rab	於四道慧	catūsu maggesu paññā	wisdom in the Four Paths bden pa mngon du byed pa	通達四諦	saccāni paṭivijjhati	to penetrate the Truths (Pali, Tibetan), to penetrate the Four Truths (Chinese)
don so sor yang dag par rig pa	義辯	atthapaṭisambhidā	discrimination of meaning chos so sor yang dag par rig pa	法辯	dhammapaṭisambhidā	discrimination of the Dhamma
nges pa'i tsig so sor yang dag par rig pa / nges pa'i tshig so sor yang dag par rig pa	辭辯	niruttipaṭisambhidā	discrimination of language
spobs pa so sor yang dag par rig pa	樂說辯	paṭibhānapaṭisambhidā	discrimination of perspicuity
nges pa'i tshig / nges pa'i tsig	辭	nirutti	language, interpretation of language, etymology
spobs pa	樂說	paṭibhāna	perspicuity, inspiration
so sor yang dag par rig pa	辯	paṭisambhidā	discrimination
don shes pa	於義智	atthe ñāṇa	knowledge in regard to meaning chos shes pa	於法智	dhamme ñāṇa	knowledge in regard to Dhamma
nges pa'i tsig mngon par brjod pa / nges pa'i tshig mngon par brjod pa	於說辭慧	niruttābhilāpe ñāṇa	knowledge in regard to language and speech
mngon par brjod pa	說	ābhilāpa	speech
shes pa shes pa	於智智	ñāṇesu ñāṇaṃ	knowledge in regard to the knowledges
tshul gzhan yang / tsul gzhan yang	---	aparo nayo	in another way
rgyu dang 'bras bu shes pa	於因果智	hetuphale ñāṇa	knowledge in regard to cause and consequence
rgyu dang 'bras bu	因果	hetuphala	cause and consequence, cause and fruit
rgyu shes pa	於因智	hetumhi ñāṇa	knowledge in regard to cause

don so sor rig pa	義辯	atthapaṭisambhidā	discrimination of meaning chos so sor rig pa	法辯	dhammapaṭisambhidā	discrimination of the Dhamma
nges pa'i tsig so sor rig pa / nges pa'i tshig so sor rig pa	辭辯	niruttipaṭisambhidā	discrimination of language
spobs pa so sor rig pa	樂說辯	paṭibhānapaṭisambhidā	discrimination of perspicuity
mdo'i sde	脩多羅	sutta	discourse (one of the nine factors of the dispensation of the Buddha, nava sāsanaṅga)
dbyangs kyis bsnyad pa'i sde	祇夜	geyya	recitation (one of the nine factors of the dispensation of the Buddha, nava sāsanaṅga)
lung du bstan pa'i sde	闍柯羅界	veyyākaraṇa	exposition (one of the nine factors of the dispensation of the Buddha, nava sāsanaṅga)
tsigs su bcad pa'i sde / tshigs su bcad pa'i sde	伽陀	gātha	verse (one of the nine factors of the dispensation of the Buddha, nava sāsanaṅga)
tsad du brjod pa'i sde / tshad du brjod pa'i sde	優陀那	udāna	inspired utterance (one of the nine factors of the dispensation of the Buddha, nava sāsanaṅga)
de ltar byung ba'i sde	伊底都地反	itivuttaka	saying (one of the nine factors of the dispensation of the Buddha, nava sāsanaṅga)
skyes pa rabs kyi sde	多伽阿	jātaka	birth-story (one of the nine factors of the dispensation of the Buddha, nava sāsanaṅga)
rmad du byung ba'i sde	阿浮多達摩	abbhutadhamma	marvel (one of the nine factors of the dispensation of the Buddha, nava sāsanaṅga)
shin tu rgyas pa'i sde	鞞佛略	vedalla	extensive dialogue (one of the nine factors of the dispensation of the Buddha, nava sāsanaṅga)
mdo'i sde dang dbyangs kyis bsnyad pa'i sde dang lung du bstan pa'i sde dang tsigs su bcad pa'i sde dang tsad du brjod pa'i sde dang de ltar byung ba'i sde dang skyes pa rabs kyi sde dang rmad du byung ba'i sde dang shin tu rgyas pa'i sde	闍柯羅界伽陀優陀那伊底都地反跋多伽闍多伽阿浮多達摩鞞佛略	sutta, geyya, veyyākaraṇa, gātha, udāna, itivuttaka, jātaka, abbhūtadhamma, vedalla	discourses (sutta), recitations (geyya), expositions (veyyākaraṇa), verses (gāthā), inspired utterances (udāna), sayings (itivuttaka), birth-stories (jātaka), marvels (abbhūtadhamma), extensive dialogues (vepulla/vedalla). These are the nine factors of the dispensation of the Buddha, nava sāsanaṅga. Knowledge of these is the discrimination of the Dhamma, dhammapaṭisambhidā. T32n1648_p0445b23–26
de de bzhin du	----	tassa tass' eva	of just that and that, of just whatever (= emphatic)
de de bzhin du gsungs pa	----	tassa tass' eva bhāsitassa	of just that what is spoken, of just whatever is spoken
gsungs pa	所說	bhāsita	what is spoken, what is said
'di'i don ni	是其義	ayaṃ imassa attho	this is its meaning of this (or 'di'i don ni 'di)
one knows the meaning of what is spoken	知彼此義	tassa tass' eva bhāsitassa atthaṃ jānāti	to know the meaning of whatever is spoken
chos nges pa'i tsig la mngon par brjod pa shes pa / chos nges pa'i tshig la mngon par brjod pa shes pa	說法辭智	dhammaniruttābhilāpe ñāṇaṃ	knowledge in regard to the speech and language of the Dhamma
chos nges pa'i tsig la mngon par brjod pa / chos nges pa'i tshig la mngon par brjod pa	說法辭	dhammaniruttābhilāpa	the speech and language of the Dhamma
mig shes pa	眼智	cakkhuñāṇa	knowledge regarding the eye (of Dhamma)
mthong ba'i don gyis mig shes pa	眼智為見	dassanaṭṭha cakkhuñāṇa ?	knowledge of the eye (of Dhamma) in the sense of vision sdug bsngal shes pa	苦智	dukkhe ñāṇa	knowledge of suffering, sdug bsngal kun 'byung shes pa	苦集智	dukkhasamudaye ñāṇa	knowledge of the origination of suffering, dug bsngal 'gog pa shes pa	苦滅智	dukkhanirodhe ñāṇa	knowledge of the cessation of suffering
sdug bsngal 'gog pa bgrod pa'i lam shes pa	----	dukkhanirodhagāminiyā paṭipadāya ñāṇa	herein, knowledge of one who possesses the Path.
dga' ba bde ba sems rtse gcig pa	謂覺觀喜樂一心	vitakkavicāra, pīti, sukha, cittekaggatā	thinking and exploring, rapture, happiness and unification of mind
bsam gtan gyi yan lag	禪枝	jhānaṅga	(The five jhāna factors, pañca jhānaṅgāni, 禪枝.) jhāna factor (Cf. 禪分)
yan lag lnga ldan	五分成就	pañcaṅgasamannāgata	endowed with five factors, possessed of five factors, T32n1648_p0416b04–05.
bsam gtan lnga pa	五禪	pañcama jhāna	The five jhāna factors, pañca jhānaṅgāni are thinking and exploring, rapture, happiness and unification of mind. the fifth jhāna. This is the fifth and highest jhāna in a fivefold scheme sometimes employed in Pali texts. In this scheme what is normally the second jhāna becomes the third one, and the second jhāna is endowed with four jhāna factors: exploring, rapture, happiness and unification of mind, vicāra, pīti, sukha, cittekaggatā. See T32n1648_p0408a05–16.
sems pa'i tshul khrims	思戒	cetanā sīla, cetanāsīla	virtue of intention sdom pa'i tshul khrims	威儀戒	saṃvara sīla, saṃvarasīla	virtue of restraint
mi 'nga' ba'i tshul khrims	不越戒	avītikkama sīla, avītikkamasīla	virtue of non-transgression (The Tibetan is probably corrupt as 'nga' does not exist.)
yang dag par bsdams pa'i tshul khrims	護戒	saṃyama sīla, saṃyamasīla	virtue of self-control
rnam par ldog pa'i tshul khrims	---	veramaṇī sīla, veramaṇīsīla ?	virtue of desisting, virtue of abstinence
sems pa	思	cetanā	intention
sdom pa	威儀	saṃvara	restraint, restraining mi 'nga' ba	不越	avītikkama	non-transgression (The Tibetan is probably corrupt as 'nga' does not exist.)

yang dag par bsdams pa	護	saṃyama	self-control
rnam par ldog pa	---	veramaṇī ?	desisting, abstinence
spong ba'i don gyis na	---	pahānaṭṭhena	in the sense of restraint don gyis na	義	aṭṭhena	in the sense of spong ba	斷	pahāna	abandoning sdom pa'i don gyis na	---	saṃvaraṭṭhena	in the sense of restraining gnod sems med pa	不瞋恚	abyāpāda, avyāpāda	non-ill-will gnod sems spangs pa	斷瞋恚	byāpādapahāna	the abandoning of ill-will spangs pa	斷滅	pahāna	abandoning (see 斷) spangs pa	斷	pahāna	abandoning gnod sems med pas	以不瞋恚	abyāpādena	through non-ill-will snang ba'i 'du shes	光明相	ālokasaññā	perception of light snang ba'i 'du shes kyis	以光明相	ālokasaññāya	through the perception of light
nges par 'byung bas	以出離	nekkhammena	through renunciation mi g.yeng bas / mi g-yeng bas	以不散亂	avikkhepena	through non-wavering, T32n1648_p0400c10
mi g.yeng ba / mi g-yeng ba	不散亂	avikkhepa	non-wavering, non-distraction, T32n1648_p0400c10
g.yeng ba / g-yeng ba	散亂	vikkhepa	wavering, distraction, T32n1648_p0400c10
chos rnam par bzhag pas	以見法起	dhammavavatthānena	defining of states
chos rnam par bzhag pa	見法起	dhammavavatthāna	defining of states (Cf. 能起)
the tshom / the tsom	疑悔	vicikicchā	uncertainty
ye shes kyis	以智	ñāṇena	through knowledge
ma rig pa spangs pa	斷無明	avijjāpahāna	the abandoning of ignorance
rab tu dga' bas	以喜	pāmojjena	through gladness
rab tu dga' ba	喜	pāmojja	gladness
mi dga' ba	無可樂	arati	discontent, boredom
bsam gtan dang pos	以初禪	paṭhamena jhānena	by the first jhāna sgrib pa rnams	蓋	nīvaraṇā	the hindrances (see 五蓋)
bsam gtan gnyis pas	以二禪	dutiyena jhānena	through the second jhāna
rnam par rtog pa dang rnam par dpyod pa rnams	覺觀	vitakkavicārā	thoughts and explorations, thinking and exploring (in plural) T32n1648_p0400c12
bsam gtan gsum pas	以三禪	tatiyena jhānena	through the third jhāna
bsam gtan bzhi pas	以四禪	catutthena jhānena	through the fourth jhāna
bde ba sdug bsngal	樂苦	sukhadukkha	pleasure and pain nam mkha' mtha' yas skye mched la snyoms par 'jug pas	以空入定	ākāsānañcāyatanasamāpattiyā	by the attainment of the base of boundless space
nam mkha' mtha' yas skye mched la snyoms par 'jug pa	空入定	ākāsānañcāyatanasamāpatti	attainment of the base of boundless space nam mkha' mtha' yas skye mched	空入	ākāsānañcāyatana	the base of boundless space
gzugs kyi 'du shes	色想	rūpasaññā	perception of matter thogs pa'i 'du shes	瞋恚想	paṭighasaññā	perception of impact thogs pa	瞋恚	paṭigha	impact, impingement, resistance tha dad pa'i 'du shes	種種想	nānattasaññā	perception of diversity tha dad pa	種種	nānatta	diversity, variety
gzugs kyi 'du shes dang thogs pa'i 'du shes dang tha dad pa'i 'du shes rnams	色想瞋恚想種種想	rūpasaññā paṭighasaññā nānattasaññā	perception of matter, perceptions of impact and perceptions of diversity
gzugs kyi 'du shes dang thogs pa'i 'du shes dang tha dad pa'i 'du shes	色想瞋恚想種種想	rūpasaññā paṭighasaññā nānattasaññā	perceptions of matter, perceptions of impact and perceptions of diversity
gzugs kyi 'du shes dang thogs pa'i 'du shes dang tha dad pa'i 'du shes rnams	色想乃至瞋恚及種種想	rūpasaññā paṭighasaññā nānattasaññā	perceptions of matter, perceptions of impact and perceptions of diversity
rnam shes mtha' yas skye mched la snyoms par zhugs pas	以識入定	viññāṇañcāyatanasamāpattiyā	by the attainment of the base of boundless consciousness
rnam shes mtha' yas skye mched la snyoms par zhugs pa	識入定	viññāṇañcāyatanasamāpatti	the attainment of the base of boundless consciousness nam mkha' mtha' yas skye mched kyi 'du shes	虛空想	ākāsānañcāyatanasaññā	perception of the base of boundless space
ci yang med pa'i skye mched la snyoms par 'jug pas	以無所有定	ākiñcaññāyatanasamāpattiyā	by the attainment of the base of nothingness
ci yang med pa'i skye mched la snyoms par 'jug pas	以無所有入定	ākiñcaññāyatanasamāpattiyā	by the attainment of the base of nothingness
ci yang med pa'i skye mched la snyoms par 'jug pa	無所有入定	ākiñcaññāyatanasamāpatti	the attainment of the base of nothingness
ci yang med pa'i skye mched	無所有入	ākiñcaññāyatana	the base of nothingness
rnam shes mtha' yas skye mched kyi 'du shes	識入想	viññāṇañcāyatanasaññā	perception of the base of boundless consciousness
'du shes med 'du shes med min gyi	以非想非非想	nevasaññānāsaññāyatanasamāpattiyā	by the attainment of the base of neither-perception-

skye mched la snyoms par 'jug pas	定		nor-non-perception
'du shes med 'du shes med min gyi skye mched la snyoms par 'jug pa	非想非非想定	nevasaññānāsaññāyatanasamāpatti	the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception ci yang med pa'i skye mched kyi 'du shes	無所有想	ākiñcaññāyatanasaññā	perception of the base of nothingness
mi rtag pa rjes su mthong bas	以無常見	aniccānupassanāya	by the contemplation of impermanence mi rtag pa rjes su mthong ba	無常見	aniccānupassanā	contemplation of impermanence
rjes su mthong bas	以 ... 見	anupassanāya	by contemplation
rjes su mthong ba	見	anupassanā	contemplation
rtag pa'i 'du shes	常想	niccasaññā	perception of permanence
sdug bsngal rjes su mthong bas	以苦見	dukkhānupassanāya	by the contemplation of suffering
sdug bsngal rjes su mthong ba	苦見	dukkhānupassanā	the contemplation of suffering
bde ba'i 'du shes	樂想	sukhasaññā	perception of happiness
bdag med pa rjes su mthong bas	以無我見	anattānupassanāya	by the contemplation of not-self bdag med pa rjes su mthong ba	無我見	anattānupassanā	contemplation of not-self
bdag gi 'du shes	我想	attasaññā	perception of self
---	以不淨見	asubhasaññāya	by the contemplation of the foul
---	不淨見	asubhasaññā	contemplation of the foul
---	淨想	subhasaññā	perception of the beautiful
yid 'byung ba rjes su mthong bas	---	nibbidānupassanāya	by the contemplation of disenchantment
yid 'byung ba rjes su mthong ba	---	nibbidānupassanā	contemplation of disenchantment Either 過患, normally ādīnava, is to be understood as nibbidā at T32n1648_p0400c17 or this contemplation is missing. See 厭患觀, nibbidānupassanā at T32n1648_p0461b07.
---	以過患見	ādīnavānupassanāya	by the contemplation of disadvantage
dga' ba	愛	nandi	delight
chags bral rjes su mthong bas	以無染見	virāgānupassanāya	by the contemplation of dispassion chags bral rjes su mthong ba	無染見	virāgānupassanā	the contemplation of dispassion. Cf. chags pa bral ba rjes su lta ba, 無染觀.
chags bral	無染	virāga	dispassion. Cf. chags pa bral ba.
'gog pa rjes su mthong bas	以滅見	nirodhānupassanāya	by the contemplation of cessation
'gog pa rjes su mthong bas	滅見	nirodhā anupassanāya samudayaṃ	contemplation of cessation. Cf. 滅觀.
kun 'byung	集	samudaya	origination
so sor spong ba rjes su mthong bas	以消見	paṭinissaggānupassanāya	by the contemplation of relinquishing
so sor spong ba rjes su mthong ba	-----	paṭinissaggānupassanā	contemplation of relinquishing
so sor spong ba	-----	paṭinissagga	relinquishing nye bar len pa	-----	ādāna	grasping zad pa rjes su mthong bas	以消見	khayānupassanāya	by the contemplation of destruction
zad pa rjes su mthong ba	消見	khayānupassanā	contemplation of destruction
zad pa	消	khaya	destruction, wasting away
----	厚想	ghanasaññā	perception of solidness (T32n1648_p0400c19. Tibetan (244a) has sdug pa'i 'du shes = subha-/iṭṭha-/piya-saññā, but Pali has ghanasaññā.)
'gag pa rjes su mthong bas	(以滅見)	vayānupassanāya	by the contemplation of falling away
'gag pa rjes su mthong ba	(滅見)	vayānupassanā	contemplation of falling away
kun du 'du byed pa	聚	āyūhana	accumulation
yongs su 'gyur ba rjes su mthong bas	-----	vipariṇāmānupassanāya	by the contemplation of change
yongs su 'gyur ba rjes su mthong ba	-----	vipariṇāmānupassanāya	contemplation of change
brten pa'i 'du shes	常想	dhuvasaññā	perception of stability
brten pa	常	dhuva	stability, constancy (T32n1648_p0400c19. Probably the Tibetan translator (244a) gave a liberal translation because normally brten pa corresponds to nissaya, support.)
mtsan ma med pa rjes su mthong bas / mtshan ma med pa rjes su mthong bas	以無相見	animittānupassanāya	by the contemplation of the signless mtsan ma med pa rjes su mthong ba / mtshan ma med pa rjes su mthong ba	無相見	animittānupassanā	contemplation of the signless
smon pa med pa rjes su mthong bas	以無作	appaṇihitānupassanāya	by the contemplation of the aspirationless
smon pa med pa rjes su mthong ba	無作	appaṇihitānupassanā	the contemplation of the aspirationless
smon pa	作	paṇidhi	aspiration
stong pa nyid rjes su mthong bas	以空見	suññatānupassanāya	by the contemplation of emptiness stong pa nyid rjes su mthong bas	空見	suññatānupassanā	contemplation of emptiness bdag du mngon par zhen pa	----	attābhinivesa	adherence to an “I”

mngon par zhen pa	入	abhinivesa	adherence lhag pa'i shes rab kyis chos rnams nges par mthong bas	以增上慧見	adhipaññādhammavipassanāya	by the contemplation of states by means of higher wisdom
lhag pa'i shes rab kyis chos rnams nges par mthong bas	增上慧見	adhipaññādhammavipassanā	contemplation of states by means of higher wisdom
lhag pa'i shes rab	增上慧	adhipaññā	higher wisdom
nges par mthong ba	見	vipassanā	insight
zhum pa'i mngon par zhen pa	執著	sārādānābhinivesa	adherence to grasping of an essence The Tibetan translator misunderstood sārādāna and mistranslated it as dpa' zhum pa = sūra + dīna = courage + scanty / wretched = “timidness, cowardliness.” Paṭis-a I 133: Sārādānābhinivesanti niccasārattasāragahaṇābhinivesaṃ
yang dag pa ci lta bar shes pa mthong bas	以如實知見	yathābhūtañāṇadassanena	by knowledge and vision according to reality
yang dag pa ci lta bar shes pa mthong ba	如實知見	yathābhūtañāṇadassana	knowledge and vision according to reality
rmongs pa'i mngon par zhen pa	無明執	sammohābhinivesa	adherence to delusion
'tsho ba rjes su mthong ba	過患見	ādīnavānupassanā	contemplation of disadvantage (The Tibetan 'tsho ba means ājīva, “livelihood” and 'tsho ba rjes su mthong ba, “contemplation of livelihood.” This would be due to a misunderstanding or misspelling of ādīnava as ājīva.)
gnas la mngon par zhen pa	居執	ālayābhinivesaṃ	adherence to [sensual] dwelling
gnas	居	ālaya	dwelling, lodging [into sensuality/defilements]
so sor rtog pa rjes su mthong bas	以彼觀見	paṭisaṅkhānupassanāya	by the contemplation of reflection
so sor rtog pa rjes su mthong ba	彼觀見	paṭisaṅkhānupassanā	contemplation of reflection
so sor rtog pa ma yin pa	不彼觀	appaṭisaṅkha	non-reflection
so sor rtog pa	彼觀	paṭisaṅkha	reflection
rnam par ldog pa rjes su mthong bas	以轉散見	vivaṭṭanānupassanāya	by contemplation of turning away
rnam par ldog pa pa rjes su mthong ba	轉散見	vivaṭṭanānupassanā	contemplation of turning away
kun du sbyor ba	和合執	saññogābhinivesa	adherence to fetters
rgyun du zhugs pa'i 'bras bu'i lam gyis	以須陀洹道	sotāpattimaggena	by the path of Stream entry
lta ba dang gnas gcig pa'i nyon mongs pa rnams	見一處煩惱	diṭṭhekaṭṭhā kilesā	defilements conjoined to views
lta ba dang gnas gcig pa	見一處	diṭṭhekaṭṭha	conjoined to views
gnas gcig pa	一處	ekaṭṭha	conjoined to lan cig phyir 'ong ba'i lam gyis	以斯陀含道	sakadāgāmimaggena	by the path of Once-returning nyon mongs pa rags pa rnams	麁煩惱	oḷārikā kilesā	coarse defilements
phyir mi 'ong ba'i lam gyis	以阿那含道	anāgāmimaggena	by the path of Non-returning bag la nyal du gtogs pa'i nyon mongs pa rnams	細煩惱	aṇusahagatā kilesā, anusahagatā kilesā	subtle defilements
dgra bcom pa'i lam gyis	以阿羅漢道	arahattamaggena	by the path of Arahantship
nyon mongs pa thams cad	一切煩惱	sabbakilesā	all defilements
bag la nyal du gtogs pa	細	aṇusahagata, anusahagata	subtle gzhan dag tu yang gsungs pa	復說	apare pana vadanti, apare vadanti ? aparampi vutta ?	others also say, but others say, it is also said (T32n1648_p0451c08). The Chinese would suggest aparam-pi vutta, “It is also said,” but it could also be apare pana vadanti, which the Tibetan has. Cf. gzhan dag na re, “others say,” 復說, which could also be apare vadanti or aparampi vutta.

#####

Tibetan	Sanskrit/Pali
pandi ta	paṇḍita	scholar, pundit, wise man. Spelled in various texts as paNDi ta, pandita, paṇḍita, paN Di ta and pan di ta. The last appears most common.
stobs bcu dpal bshes gnyen	Daśabalaśrīmitra	Daśabalaśrīmitra The compiler of the 'dus byas dang 'dus ma byas rnam par nges pa corresponding to Sanskrit Saṃskṛtāsaṃskṛtaviniścaya. Daśabalaśrīmitra might have lived in Northeastern India in the second half of the 12th century In the colophon of the 'dus byas dang 'dus ma byas rnam par nges pa he is described as: “The monk (bhikkhu) of the Sakyans, the scholar (paṇḍita), great thera (mahāthera), the Auspicious Friend of the One of Ten Powers (= Daśabalaśrīmitra)" (sh'akya'i dge slong pandi ta gnas brtan chen po stobs bcu dpal bshes gnyen). For more information, see Peter Skilling, "The Saṃskṛtāsaṃskṛtaviniṣcaya of Daśabalaśrīmitra," Buddhist Studies Review, Vol. 4, No. 1, 1987, 3–23. See also the entry on 'dus byas dang 'dus ma byas rnam par nges pa, Saṃskṛtāsaṃskṛtaviniścaya.

pandi ta chen po stobs bcu dpal bshes gnyen	mahāpaṇḍita Daśabalaśrīmitra	the great scholar Daśabalaśrīmitra
pandi tachen po stobs bcu dpal bshes gnyen	mahāpaṇḍita Daśabalaśrīmitra	the great scholar Daśabalaśrīmitra
panditachen po stobs bcu dpal bshes gnyen	mahāpaṇḍita Daśabalaśrīmitra	the great scholar Daśabalaśrīmitra
pandi ta chen po	mahāpaṇḍita	great scholar (normally spelled as pan di ta chen po in Tibetan)
pandi tachen po	mahāpaṇḍita	great scholar (normally spelled as pan di ta chen po in Tibetan)
panditachen po	mahāpaṇḍita	great scholar (normally spelled as pan di ta chen po in Tibetan)
gnas brtan pa'i sde pa	Sthavira-nikāya	the school of the elders. Cf. 'phags pa gnas brtan pa'i sde pa, Ariya-Sthavira-nikāya. Nowadays called Theravāda.
'phags pa gnas brtan pa'i sde pa	Ariya-Sthavira-nikāya	the school of the noble elders. Nowadays called Theravāda.
'phags pa gnas brtan pa	Ariya-Sthavira	the noble elders (= name of a school, see 'phags pa gnas brtan pa'i sde pa) Nowadays called Theravāda.
'dus byas dang 'dus ma byas rnam par nges pa	Saṃskṛtāsaṃskṛtavi niścaya	"The Investigation of the Conditioned and Unconditioned."

A syncretic compendium of the tenets of different Buddhist schools compiled (bsdus pa) by Daśabalaśrīmitra or Stobs bcu dpal bshes gnyen, possibly in the second half of 12th century, during the Sena period, in India.
The Indic language original is lost but it survives in a Tibetan translation.

Peter Skilling describes the work as follows: "The Saṃskṛtāsaṃskṛtaviniścaya is a wide-ranging treatment of the universe—cosmonogy and cosmology, the nature of being, psychology and philosophy, and of the nature of spirituality, methods and attainments, according to a number of Buddhist schools and teachers, both of the Śrāvakayāna and the Mahāyāna." (Skilling 1987, p.3)

The Saṃskṛtāsaṃskṛtaviniścaya, although it contains little original material, is of great value in that it contains extensive quotations, summaries and paraphrases from lost works of Buddhist schools such as the Sāmmitīyas and Sthaviras. Of the latter, in abridged form, the last three chapters from the Vimuttimagga, (rnam par grol ba'i lam, 解脫道) of which the orginal is lost. Six chapters of the Saṃskṛtāsaṃskṛtaviniścaya are taken up with quotations of works of the the Sāmmitīyas, an important school of which only one philososophical work survives in a Chinese translation. Skilling mentions only Sanskrit as the language of the work, but it is possible that the quotations were not translated into Sanskrit and were left in their original Prakrits.

According to Skilling, Daśabalaśrīmitra might have lived in Northeastern India in the second half of the 12th century and that the original text might have been brought by Śīlākāra from India to Tibet and might also have been translated by him. (See Skilling 1987, p. 15).

The 'dus byas dang 'dus ma byas rnam par nges pa is found in the following editions of the Tanjur:
Peking Edition No. 5865, ngo mtshar bstan bcos, nyo 5b1-270b3 (vol.146, p.4-110)
Derge Edition No. 3897, dbu ma, ha 109a1-317a7.
Nartang Edition: nyo 6b2-256a1.
Kinsha: 3874, nyo 6b1 (p.5-1-1)

(Source: Peking Tripitaka Online Search, The ShinBuddhist Comprehensive Research Institute, Otani University: http://web.otani.ac.jp/cri/twrp/tibdate/Peking_online_search.html)
A digital version of the text is (or was) available on the ACIP website. (http://asianclassics.org/etext.php)

References:
Peter Skilling, "The Saṃskṛtāsaṃskṛtaviniṣcaya of Daśabalaśrīmitra," Buddhist Studies Review, Vol. 4, No. 1, 1987, 3–23.
Cf. Peter Skilling, "Vimuttimagga and Abhayagiri: The Form-Aggregate according to the Saṃskṛtāsaṃskṛta-viniṣcaya," Journal of the Pali Text Society XX, 1994, 171–210.

kun du		saṃ-	(= prefix)
nye bar		upa-	(= prefix)
rjes su		anu-	(= prefix)
so sor		paṭi-	(= prefix)
yongs su		pari-	(= prefix)
mngon pa, mngon par		abhi- (adhi-)	(= prefix)
yang dag pa		sammā-, sam-	Primary meaning is sammā, "right" but it is also used to translate the prefix saṃ- when it is followed by a vowel, e.g. yang dag par zhugs pa = samāpanna and yang dag par ldan pa = samannāgata, and yang dag par gcod pa = samuccheda.
nyid		-tta	-ness, -hood (abstract suffix)
bya ba		-tabba, –aniya	to be ...., should be ..., (future passive participle suffix)
kyis	由	-to	(= instrument/ablative suffix)
dbang gis	由	-to	(= instrument/ablative suffix)
rnam par		vi-	(= prefix)
lhag pa		adhi-	(= prefix)
sh'akya thub pa		sakyamuni	the sage of the sakyas, the sakyan sage (An ephitet of the Buddha. The sakyas were Gotama's clan. Used in 'dus byas dang 'dus ma byas rnam par nges pa, Saṃskṛtāsaṃskṛtaviniścaya)
sh'akya	----	sakya, sakka	the sakya, sakyan (The sakyas were Buddha Gotama's clan.)
la sogs pa rgyas par	----	----	and so forth at length, and so on in detail sum cu rtza bdun / sum cu rtsa bdun	------	------	37

Not Vimuttimagga

paNDi ta		paṇḍita	scholar, pundit, wise man. Cf. pandi ta. See "A Concise Catalogue to the Precious Translated Words of the Conqueror," rgyal ba bka' 'gyur rin po che'i chos tshan so so'i mtshan byang dkar chag bsdus pa bzhugs so. (http://rywiki.tsadra.org/index.php/A_Concise_Catalogue_to_the_Precious_Translated_Words_of_the_Conqueror [retrieved 2.04.2012])
grog sbur yan chad	乃至蜎蟲	antamaso kunthakipillika	even as much as an ant. (Q 5595 ad tu 270a4 / T01n0026_p0437c03= MĀ 15). Cf. Vin I 96: upasampannena bhikkhunā sañcicca pāṇo jīvitā na voropetabbo, antamaso kunthakipillikaṃ upādāya. Jā-a I 439 mayā kunthakipillikamattopi

grog sbur	蜫蟲	kunthakipillika	pāṇātipāto na katapubbo and Jā-a IV 142: ekapāṇampi hiṃsitanti etthantare sañcicca ekaṃ kunthakipillikapāṇampi hiṃsitaṃ nābhijānāmi. ant (Q 5595 ad tu 270a4 / T01n0026_p0437c03 = MĀ 15).
			Cf. grog sbur yan chad / 乃至蜫蟲
srog chags 'byung ba	眾生	pāṇabhūta	living creature (Q 5595ad tu 270a4 / T01n0026_p0437c03.)
	一種	ekabījī	one-seeder (one of the three kinds of stream-enterer, sotāpanna, 須陀洹) T01n0026_p0616a13, T02n0125_p0653c17
	一來	ekabījī	one-seeder (one of the three kinds of stream-enterer, sotāpanna, 須陀洹) T11n0310_p0332b28, T24n1451_p0257c25
	一往來	ekabījī	one-seeder (one of the three kinds of stream-enterer, sotāpanna, 須陀洹) T16n0681_p0728b14
	極遲至七死七生	sattakkhattuparama	seven-lives-at-moster (one of the three kinds of stream-enterer, sotāpanna, 須陀洹) T02n0125_p0653c20
	七生預流,	sattakkhattuparama	seven-lives-at-moster (one of the three kinds of stream-enterer, sotāpanna, 須陀洹) T11n0310_p0332b27, T24n1451_p0257c25
	七返生	sattakkhattuparama	seven-lives-at-moster (one of the three kinds of stream-enterer, sotāpanna, 須陀洹) T16n0681_p0728b13
	極七返有	sattakkhattuparama	seven-lives-at-moster (one of the three kinds of stream-enterer, sotāpanna, 須陀洹) T05n0220_p0450b19, T07n0220_p0539b08
	鉢漉水	parissāvana	water-strainer. T23n1435_p0153a29. A cloth impliment used by Buddhist monks to strain water so as not to kill living beings that live in the water.
	迦絺那衣	kaṭhina-cīvara	Kaṭhina-robe. T23n1435_p0207c18. The robe which is made and offered at the Kaṭhina ceremony after the rains-retreat of Buddhist monks.
	阿練若處	āraññaka	1. of the forest, of the wilderness. T22n1425_p0323b22. Refers to monks' dwellings (senāsana) in the forest or wilderness, *araññ*a, outside towns or villages. 2. forest-dweller, one who lives in the forest T22n1425_p0389b05. One of the dhutaguṇa, the factors of austerity.

Vimuttimagga Dhutaguṇa Nirdesa

rnal 'byor spyod pa	坐禪人	yogāvacara	meditator, yogin (T32n1648_p0404b22)
de nas	爾時	atha	now, herein, here (T32n1648_p0404b22)
tshul khrims rnam par dag pa	淨戒	visuddha sīla ?	pure virtue, purified virtue, who has purified virtue (T32n1648_p0404b22)
yon tan	功德	guṇa	good quality (T32n1648_p0404b22) (Chinese has勝善功德 “distinct, good quality” in full, but elsewhere just uses 功德)
'dod pa	欲	iccha	wish (T32n1648_p0404b22)
don du gnyer pa	欲	iccha	wish (T32n1648_p0404b23)
sbyangs pa'i yon tan	頭陀功德	dhutaguṇa	austerity-quality, quality of austerity, (T32n1648_p0404b23)
yang dag par blangs	受	samādāti, samādāna	to undertake, undertaking (T32n1648_p0404b23, T32n1648_p0406c03)
rnam grangs du mas	不一種	anekapariyāyena	for various reasons (T32n1648_p0404b23). Normally means ''in various ways'' but that does not fit here. Pariyāya can correspond to kāraṇa, “reason, cause,” see PED s.v. “pariyāya”.
'dod pa chung ba nyid	少欲	appicchatā	fewness of wishes. T32n1648_p0404b23
chog shes pa nyid	知足	santuṭṭhi	contentment. T32n1648_p0404b23
yo byad bsnyungs pa	無疑	sallekha	effacement (of defilements), elimination (T32n1648_p0404b24.) The Chinese translation of this term in the Vimuttimagga would be based on a misinterpretation of sallekha as a-lekha; cf. vilekha, perplexity. Sallekha is the topic of the well-known Sallekha Sutta of the Majjhima Nikāya (MN 8) where the effacement or elimination of unwholesome states is effected through practising their opposites. M I 41: Idha kho pana vo, cunda, sallekho karaṇīyo. Pare vihiṃsakā bhavissanti, mayamettha avihiṃsakā bhavissāmā’ti sallekho karaṇīyo. M-a I 187: Sallekhoti ca idha avihiṃsāva veditabbā. Avihiṃsā hi vihiṃsaṃ sallekhati, taṃ chindati, tasmā sallekhoti vuccati.

			Cf. D-a 903: Sallekhatāti sabbakilesānaṃ sallikhitabhāvo. Vin-a III 607: Dhutā sallekhavuttinoti yā paṭipadā kilese dhunāti, tāya samannāgatattā dhutā. Yā ca kilese sallikhati, sā etesaṃ vuttīti sallekhavuttino. Paṭis-a I 43: Idāni yasmā sutamayasīlamaya-bhāvanāmayañāṇāni vaṭṭapādakāni sallekhā nāma na honti, lokuttarapādakāneva etāni ca aññāni ca ñāṇāni sallekhāti vuccanti, tasmā paccanīkasallekhanākārena pavattāni ñāṇāni dassetuṃ samasīsaṭṭhe ñāṇānantaraṃ sallekhaṭṭhe ñāṇaṃ uddiṭṭhaṃ.
brtson 'grus rtsom pa	勇猛精進	vīriyārambha	application of energy. T32n1648_p0404b24
dgang sla ba nyid	不受外施	subharatā	being easy to support. T32n1648_p0404b24
yongs su zhen pa rab tu gcod par 'gyur zhing	斷所著	(paligedha-samucchedana?, ajjhosāna-samucchedana?)	elimination of greed, elimination of attachment
ting nge 'dzin gyi tshogs	定眾具	samādhiparikkhāra	accessory of concentration, equipment for concentration (T32n1648_p0404b26)
tshul khrims legs par bsrungs pa	守護戒善	(sīla surakkhita ?)	good protection of virtue. (Athough perhaps the Chinese intends “protection of good virtue”) (T32n1648_p0404b26)
'phags pa'i rigs	聖種	ariyavaṃsa	lineage of the noble ones, Noble Ones’ heritages (T32n1648_p0404b26)
---	初聖種	porāṇa ariyavaṃsa	ancient lineage of the noble ones (T32n1648_p0404b26)
gos	衣	cīvara	robes (T32n1648_p0404b27)
dang ldan pa	相應	paṭisaṃyutta	connected to, related to (T32n1648_p0404b27)
gos dang ldan pa	衣相應	cīvarapaṭisaṃyutta	connected to the robes, related to the robes (T32n1648_p0404b27)
phyag dar khrod pa nyid	糞掃衣	paṃsukūlikatta	the state of the refuse-robe-wearer (T32n1648_p0404b28)
phyag dar khrod pa nyid	糞掃衣	paṃsukūlika	refuse-robe-wearer (T32n1648_p0404b28) Bapat transliterates: phyg dar khrod pa
chos gos gsum pa nyid	三衣	tecīvarikatta	the state of the three-robes-wearer (T32n1648_p0404b28)
chos gos gsum pa	三衣	tecīvarika	three-robes-wearer (T32n1648_p0404b28)
zas	食	bhojana	food
bsod snyoms pa nyid	乞食	piṇḍapātikatta	the state of the alms-food-eater (T32n1648_p0404b28)
bsod snyoms pa nyid	乞食	piṇḍapātika	alms-food-eater (T32n1648_p0404b28)
mthar chags rgyu ba nyid	次第乞食	sapadānacārikatta	the state of the uninterrupted-alms-round-goer (T32n1648_p0404b28)
mthar chags su rgyu ba nyid	次第乞食	sapadānacārikatta	the state of the continuous-alms-round-goer (T32n1648_p0405a13)
mthar chags rgyu ba	次第乞食	sapadānacārika	continuous-alms-round-goer, one who goes on continuous alms-round (T32n1648_p0404b28)
mthar chags	次第	sapadāna	continuous, uninterrupted, not skipping, successive (T32n1648_p0404c06)
stan gcig pa nyid	一坐食	ekāsanikatta	the state of the one-sitting-eater (T32n1648_p0404b29)
stan gcig pa	一坐食	ekāsanika	one-sitting-eater (T32n1648_p0404b29)
zas chog pa pa nyid	節量食	? bhojanemattaññuttā, bhojane mattaññuttā ?	the state of the limited-amount-of-food-eater (T32n1648_p0404b29). The Pali instead has pattapiṇḍika, “(only eating) alms from the bowl.”
zas chog pa pa	節量食	? bhojanemattaññu, bhojane mattaññu ?	limited-amount-of-food-eater (T32n1648_p0404b29). The Pali instead has pattapiṇḍika, “(only eating) alms from the bowl.”
zas phyis mi len pa nyid	時後不食	khalupacchābhattikatta	the state of the one-who-never-eats-a-meal-afterwards (T32n1648_p0404b29)
zas phyis mi len pa	時後不食	khalupacchābhattika	one-who-never-eats-a-meal-afterwards (T32n1648_p0404b29)
---	時後食	khalupacchābhattika	one-who-never-eats-a-meal-afterwards (T32n1648_p0406a29). Variant or wrong translation of 時後不食.
---	不時後食	khalupacchābhattika	one-who-never-eats-a-meal-afterwards (T32n1648_p0406b15). Variant or wrong translation of 時後不食.
gnas mal	坐臥	senāsana	residence, lodgings, resting-place (T32n1648_p0404b29–c01)
dgon pa pa nyid	無事處坐	āraññikatta	the state of the forest-dweller, dwelling in a forest (T32n1648_p0404c01)
dgon pa pa nyid	無事處	āraññikatta	the state of the forest-dweller, dwelling in a forest (T32n1648_p0405b22)
dgon pa pa	無事處坐	āraññika	forest-dweller, dwelling in a forest (T32n1648_p0404c01)
dgon pa pa	無事處	āraññika	forest-dweller, dwelling in a forest (T32n1648_p0405b22)
shing drung pa nyid	樹下坐	rukkhamūlikatta	the state of the tree-root-dwellller, dwelling at the root of a tree (T32n1648_p0404c01)
shing drung pa nyid	樹下住	rukkhamūlikatta	the state of the tree-root-dwellller, dwelling at the root of a tree (T32n1648_p0405c06)
shing drung pa nyid	樹下	rukkhamūlikatta	the state of the tree-root-dwellller, dwelling at the root of a tree (T32n1648_p0405c06)

shing drung pa	樹下坐	rukkhamūlika	tree-root-dwelller, dwelling at the root of a tree (Lit. “tree-rooter”) (T32n1648_p0404c01)
bla gab med pa nyid	露地坐	abbhokāsikatta	the state of the open-air-dwelller, dwelling in the open (T32n1648_p0404c01)
bla gab med pa nyid	露住	abbhokāsikatta	the state of the open-air-dwelller, dwelling in the open (T32n1648_p0405c13, T24n1462_p0781a23). Abridgement of 露地住.
bla gab med pa	露地坐	abbhokāsika	open-air-dwelller, dwelling in the open (T32n1648_p0404c01)
bla gab med pa	露地住	abbhokāsikatta	the state of the open-air-dwelller, dwelling in the open (T32n1648_p0405c12)
dur khrod pa nyid	塚間坐	sosānikatta	the state of the charnel-ground-dwelller, dwelling in a charnel ground, (T32n1648_p0404c02)
dur khrod pa nyid	塚間住	sosānikatta	the state of the charnel-ground-dwelller, dwelling in a charnel ground, (T32n1648_p0405c19)
dur khrod pa nyid	塚間	sosānikatta	the state of the charnel-ground-dwelller, dwelling in a charnel ground, (T32n1648_p0405c20)
dur khrod pa	塚間坐	sosānika	the charnel-ground-dwelller, dwelling in a charnel ground, (T32n1648_p0404c02)
gzhi ji bzhin pa nyid	遇得處坐	yathāsanthatikatta	the state of any-mat-user (T32n1648_p0404c02)
gzhi ji bzhin pa nyid	遇得處住	yathāsanthatikatta	the state of any-mat-user (T32n1648_p0406a04)
gzhi ji bzhin pa	遇得處坐	yathāsanthatika	any-mat-user (T32n1648_p0404c02)
brtson 'grus	勇猛	vīriya	energy (T32n1648_p0404c02)
cog bu pa nyid	常坐不臥	nesajjikatta	the state of the sitter (T32n1648_p0404c03)
cog bu pa	常坐不臥	nesajjika	sitter, continuous sitting (T32n1648_p0404c03)
spong ba	斷	paṭikkhipati, paṭikkhepa	to reject, rejection, refusal (T32n1648_p0404c04)
khyim bdag	居士	gahapati	householder (T32n1648_p0404c04)
mgron	---	bhatta	meal (T32n1648_p0404c05.) Cf. 'gron. The Chinese instead has 請, (meal-) invitation.
'gron	---	bhatta	meal (T32n1648_p0405a05.) See mgron. Also mis-spelled as hgron.
brnyogs par rgyu ba	超越	avokkammacāri, avokkamma carati ?	one who goes (on alms) not skipping, not stepping away from, not turning away from (T32n1648_p0404c06. Cf. T32n1648_p0405a22.)
lan gnyis	再	dvikkhattuṃ ?	two times (T32n1648_p0404c07)
grong mthar	聚落	gāmanta	inside the village (T32n1648_p0404c08)
lhag pa	---	atiritta	additional, extra gyogs pa	覆	channa	a roof-cover, cover. (T32n1648_p0404c09)
---	屋舍	agāra	house (T32n1648_p0404c09. Cf. T01n0001_p0038a08 = D III 88, 屋舍 = agārāni.)
brkam chags	貪樂	loluppa, loluppa	greed, eager desire, longing for (T32n1648_p0404c11)
brkam chags kyi gnas mal	貪樂處	senāsanaloluppa	greed for lodgings (T32n1648_p0404c11)
nyal ba	寢寐	seyya	lying down (to sleep), (T32n1648_p0404c11
yang dag par len	受	samādāna, samādiyati	to undertake (T32n1648_p0404c11). The Chinese text interchanges 受持 and 受 in this chapter.
khyim bdag gi gos	居士衣	gahapaticīvara	robe of a householder (T32n1648_p0404c14) (Tibetan Bapat §4)
khyim bdag gis gos	居士衣	gahapaticīvara	robe of a householder (T32n1648_p0404c14) (Tibetan Bapat §3)
tshol ba	求	esana ?	seeking (T32n1648_p0404c12)
yongs su 'dzin pa	---	parigaṇhana, parigaha ?	receiving, accepting (robes). (T32n1648_p0404c12). Bapat transliterates yongs su 'dsin pa.
gsol ba	乞	yācana ?	begging for, asking for (T32n1648_p0404c12)
nyes dmigs	過	ādīnava	disadvantage, fault (T32n1648_p0404c12)
phyag dar khrod pa	納衣	paṃsukūla, paṃsukūlacīvara	refuse-robe (T32n1648_p0404c12)
deng slan chad	從今日	ajjatagge	from today onwards (T32n1648_p0405b07)
yon tan	功德	ānisaṃsa	advantage, benefit (T32n1648_p0404c14)
gnas dam bcas pa dang mthun pa nyid	---	nissayānurūpa	conforming to the dependence. The “dependence” is the nissāya that is instructed at the novice ordination: ''The going forth depends on the refuse-rag robe” (Vin I 58, 96) (paṃsukūlacīvaraṃ nissāya pabbajjā) Perhaps read gnas dang bcas pa?
gnas dam bcas pa dang mthun pa nyid	---	nissayānurūpa	conforming to the dependence. The “dependence” is the nissāya that is instructed at the novice ordination: ''The going forth depends on the refuse-rag robe” (Vin I 58, 96) (paṃsukūlacīvaraṃ nissāya pabbajjā) Perhaps read gnas dang bcas pa?
dang mthun pa	---	anurūpa	in accordance with, conforming with gzhan la rag ma las pa nyid	得不由他	aparāyattavuttitā	obtained independent of others (Chinese & Tibetan), to be independent of others (Pali).
yongs su spyod pa	---	paribhoga	use, usage
chom rkun	盜賊	cora	robber (T32n1648_p0404c15)
'phrogs pa	取	haṭa (= p.p. of harati)	robbed, taken away (T32n1648_p0404c15)
brkam chags med pa	無貪染	aloluppa ?	without greed
'bags pa chung ba	少所經營	appasamārambhatā ?	with little effort, with little work, without much work, T32n1648_p0404c16. Could not find exact Pali parallel in Vism I.21, but in the following section 少於營造 is used instead which has a parallel at Vism I.25. 少於營造 = having few undertakings, appasamārambhatā, T32n1648_p0404c29.

skyes bu dam pa'i spyod pa	善人所習	sappurisa-carita ??	practised by good men, a practice of good men, (T32n1648_p0404c16) skyes bu dam pa/善人 = sappurisa and spyod pa / 所習 would correspond to carita or āsevita, but no Pali parallel can be traced.
skyes bu dam pa	善人	sappurisa	good man (T32n1648_p0404c16)
dad par byed pa	令人欣慕	pāsādikatā	inspiring confidence (T32n1648_p0404c17) The Tibetan in full has dad par byed pa'i yon tan dang ldan pa nyid, "inspiring confidence in those with good qualities (guṇavanta)." 欣慕 literally is "gladness and admiration."
skyes bu phyi mas mthong nas rjes su 'jug pa nyid	----	pacchimāya janatāya diṭṭhānugati	an example for later generations. (See parallel at Vism II.21/p.64.)
skyes bu phyi ma	----	pacchimā janatā, pacchimajanatā	later generations. (See parallel at Vism II.21/p.64.)
mthong nas rjes su 'jug pa	----	diṭṭhānugati	imitate the example. (See parallel at Vism II.21/p.64.)
yang dag pa'i sgrubs pa mang ba	----	sammāpaṭipattiyā anubrūhana	cultivation of the right practice. (See parallel at Vism II.21/p.64.)
yang dag pa'i sgrubs pa	----	sammāpaṭipatti	the right practice, the right way. (See parallel at Vism II.21/p.64.)
mang ba	----	anubrūhana	cultivation, improving (See parallel at Vism II.21/p.64.)
bsngags pa	所稱歎	vaṇṇita	praised, extolted (T32n1648_p0404c18) de lta bu la sogs pa	---	evamādi	such and others, such and so on rnam pa du	幾種	katividha	how many kinds? (T32n1648_p0405a10)
'jig	失	bhijjati	is broken (T32n1648_p0404c19)
bdag po med pa	無主守護	assāmika ?	ownerless, without an owner (T32n1648_p0404c19)
bdag po med pa	無主	assāmika ?	ownerless, without an owner (T32n1648_p0404c19)
smad pa	所棄	paṭikkhita, chaḍḍita ?	rejected, despised (T32n1648_p0404c19)
--	塚間	sosāna	cemetery (T32n1648_p0404c20)
phyag dar gyi phung po	糞掃	saṅkāra	refuse-heap, midden (T32n1648_p0404c20)
tshong 'dus	市肆	? pāpaṇika ?	market, market-place (T32n1648_p0404c20). The Pali pāpaṇika means ''shop.''
lam po che	道路	rathiya	(T32n1648_p0404c20)
snam sbyar byas	掩緝	saṅghātita ?	pieced together, patched together
kha tshar bcad pa	剪鑿之餘	dasācchinna	cut off at the fringes (Tibetan, Pali), left over cuttings (Chinese) (T32n1648_p0404c22)
kha tshar	----	dasā	fringe of a cloth, border of a cloth (T32n1648_p0404c22)
phun tshar bcad pa	----	antacchinna	cut off at the end (T32n1648_p0404c22)
byi bas zos pa	鼠所嚙	undūrakhāyita	gnawed by a mouse (T32n1648_p0404c22)
zos pa	所嚙	khāyita	gnawed, chewed, eaten (T32n1648_p0404c22)
byi ba	鼠	undūra, undura	rat, mouse (T32n1648_p0404c22)
ba lang	牛	go	cow, cattle (T32n1648_p0404c22)
mes tshig pa	火所燒	aggiḍaḍḍha	burnt by fire (T32n1648_p0404c22)
tshig pa	所燒	ḍaḍḍha	burnt (T32n1648_p0404c22)
ro	尸	---	corpse (T32n1648_p0404c23)
mu stegs can gyi mtshan ma	外道服	titthiyaliṅga ?	the costumes of sectarians (T32n1648_p0404c23)
blangs pa	受	sādiyati	to accept (T32n1648_p0404c25)
blangs	受	gaṇhāti	to take (T32n1648_p0405b02)
ji ltar ... zhe na	云何	kathaṃ	how?
lhag pa	長	adhika	extra, additional (T32n1648_p0404c26)
chos gos lhag pa	長衣	adhika cīvara	extra robes, additional robes (T32n1648_p0404c26)
gsog 'jog	畜	sannidhi	hoarding, storing up (T32n1648_p0404c28)
gsog 'jog yongs su spangs pa	離畜	sannidhiparivajjana	avoidance of hoarding (T32n1648_p0404c28)
gsog 'jog yongs su spangs pa	離於宿	sannidhiparivajjana	avoidance of hoarding (T32n1648_p0405b16)
yongs su spangs pa	離	parivajjana	avoidance, avoiding, (T32n1648_p0404c28)
khur chung ba nyid	少於營造	appasamārambhatā	one has few burdens, having little (maintenance) work (T32n1648_p0404c29)
lus 'tsho ba tsam gyis chog shes pa	約身知足	santuṭṭho hoti kāyaparihārikena cīvarena	one is content with a robe (just) for sustaining the body (Pali, Chinese), one is content [with a robe] just for sustaining the body (Tibetan) (T32n1648_p0404c29)
lus 'tsho ba	約身	kāyaparihārika	sustaining the body, protecting the body (T32n1648_p0404c29)
'tsho ba	約	parihārika	sustaining, protecting (T32n1648_p0404c29)
bya bzhin du gang dga' bar 'gro ba	如鳥飛空無所顧戀	pakkhino viya samādāyeva gamanaṃ	one is like a bird flying in the sky, without longing (Chinese), going gladly like a bird (Tibetan), he goes taking it with him as a bird does its wings (Pali) (T32n1648_p0404c29)
bya bzhin du	如鳥	pakkhino viya	like a bird (T32n1648_p0404c29)
snam sbyar	僧伽梨	saṅghāṭi	double-robe (T32n1648_p0405a02)
bla gos	欝多羅僧	uttarāsaṅga	upper-robe (T32n1648_p0405a02)
mthang gos	安陀會	antaravāsaka	under-robe (T32n1648_p0405a02)
chos gos gsum pa dag	三衣	ticīvara	the three robes (T32n1648_p0405a03): (1) snam

'chang ba	受	sādiyati, sādiyanā	to accept, acceptance (T32n1648_p0405a04)
rang gi las nyams pa	妨自業	----	disruption of one's own work, decline of one's work (T32n1648_p0405a05)
nyam nga ba'i nyes dmigs	過患	ādīnava	disadvantage (T32n1648_p0405a06) rang dbang yod pa	自由	aparāyattavuttitā	to be independent, to be free (Chinese to be independent of others (Pali) (T32n1648_p0405a08. As part of 依心所願進止自由. "According to one's wishes one goes and stays; one is independent.") gzhan mi gso ba nyid	----	aparapositā	not sustaining another; not having to sustain others (Supposedly aparapositā is the same as anaññaposi.) Cf. Ud-a 62: Tattha anaññaposinti aññaṃ posetīti aññaposī, na aññaposī anaññaposī, attanā posetabbassa aññassa abhāvena adutiyo, ekakoti attho. Tena therassa subharataṃ dasseti. Thero hi kāyaparihārikena cīvarena kucchiparihārikena ca piṇḍapātena attānameva posento paramappiccho hutvā viharati, aññaṃ ñātimittādīsu kañci na poseti katthaci alaggabhāvato. Atha vā aññena aññatarena posetabbatāya abhāvato anaññaposī. Cf. Nidd II 292 (Be): Anaññaposī sapadānacārīti anaññaposīti so paccekasambuddho attānaññeva poseti, na paranti.
le lo med pa nyid	消除懈怠	kosajjanimmaddanatā	Tibetan variant readings: gzhan gyi gsobs ba nyid; gzhan gsobs ba nyid. the subduing of idleness, crushing laziness (Chinese, Pali), non-laziness, freedom from laziness (Tibetan) (T32n1648_p0405a08)
le lo	懈怠	kosajja	idleness, laziness, indolence (T32n1648_p0405a08)
---	消除	nimmaddana	subduing, crushing (T32n1648_p0405a08)
nga rgyal bcom ba	斷滅憍慢	mānappahāna	the abandoning of pride (T32n1648_p0405a08)
nga rgyal	憍慢	māna	pride (T32n1648_p0405a08)
sems can la phan 'dogs pas zhugs pa	饒益眾生	parānuggahakiriyā	the helping of other beings (Tibetan, Chinese) helping others (Pali) (T32n1648_p0405a08)
phan 'dogs pa	饒益	anuggaha	helping, assisting (T32n1648_p0405a0)
ro'i sred pa las ldog pa	不貪滋味	rasataṇhānivāraṇa	checking of craving for tastes (Tibetan, Pali); being without greed for tastes (Chinese) (T32n1648_p0405a0)
ro'i sred pa	貪滋味	rasataṇhā	craving for tastes (T32n1648_p0405a0)
ldog pa	----	nivāraṇa	checking, curbing phyogs rnams su thogs pa med pa	常於四方心無限礙	cātuddisa appaṭigha	being without obstacles in the four directions; being without obstruction in the four directions (T32n1648_p0405a9)
phyogs rnams su thogs pa med pa	常於四方心無限礙	cātuddisa appaṭigha	unobstructed in the four directions; being without obstacles in the four quarters (T32n1648_p0405a9)
thogs pa med pa	無限礙	appaṭigha	being without obstacles; unobstructed (T32n1648_p0405a9)
khas len pa	受	sādiyati, sādiyanā	to accept, acceptance (T32n1648_p0405a12)
bos pa	請	nimantana	invitation (for a meal) (T32n1648_p0405a11)
'gron du bos pa	----	nimantana-bhatta? bhatta-nimantana?	invitation for a meal, meal-invitation
sems snyoms pa nyid	平等心	samānacittatā	equal-mindedness, even-mindedness
---	以平等心饒益一切	sabbasamānukampa	helping all equally, compassionating all impartially (Pali), helping all through impartial-mindedness (Chinese) (T32n1648_p0405a17)
snying brtse ba nyid	饒益	anukampitā, anukampā	helping, compassionating, benefitting (T32n1648_p0405a17)
snying brtse ba	饒益	anukampā	helping, compassionating, benefitting (T32n1648_p0405a17)
khyim la ser sna spong ba	----	kulamaccherappahāna	abandoning of avarice towards families (T32n1648_p0405a17)
khyim du 'gro ba'i nyes dmigs med pa	---	kulūpakādīnavavippamutta	free from the disadvantage of frequenting families
'bod la mngon par mi dga' ba	不喜喚召	avhānānabhinandana	non-delight in being called (T32n1648_p0405a18)
mngon par mi dga' ba	不喜	anabhinandana	not delighting, non-delight (T32n1648_p0405a18)
'bod	喚召	avhāna	being called, being invited, invitation (T32n1648_p0405a18)
mthar gyis rgyu ba	次第行	sapadānacāra	going continuously (from house to house), moving uninterruptedly (from house to house) (T32n1648_p0405a22)
yang dang yang du	數	(punappunaṃ, abhiṇhaṃ?)	repeated, again and again (T32n1648_p0405a23)
yo byad bsnyungs pa ma yin pa	----	asallekha	non-effacement
len bya ba	受	paṭiggahaṇa ?	receiving, accepting (T32n1648_p0405a24)
zas lhag pa	---	atiritta	left-over (food)
rang gi las mi nyams pa	無妨自事	----	no disruption of one's own work, no decline of one's work (T32n1648_p0405a28)
reg par gnas pa	安樂	phāsuvihāra	dwelling in comfort, dwelling at ease (T32n1648_p0405a28)
stan gyi mtha' pa	坐邊	āsanapariyantika	bounded by the sitting, limited by sitting (T32n1648_p0405b01)
chu'i mtha' pa	水邊	udakapariyantika	bounded by water, limited by water (T32n1648_p0405b01)

zas kyai mtha' pa	食邊	bhojanapariyantika	bounded by food, limited by food (T32n1648_p0405b01)
stan	坐	āsana	seat, sitting (T32n1648_p0405b01)
chu	水	udaka	water (T32n1648_p0405b01)
zas	食	bhojana	food, meal (T32n1648_p0405b01)
mtha' pa	邊	pariyantika	bounded by, ending with (T32n1648_p0405b01)
kham	揣食	ālopa	lump of food. Perhaps 揣食 corresponds rather to za ba na kham. (T32n1648_p0405b03)
tha ma	最後	antima ?	the last (T32n1648_p0405b03)
yang	更	puna	again (T32n1648_p0405b03)
sman	藥	bhesajja	medicine (T32n1648_p0405b04)
mid par bya ba	吞	ajjhoharati	to swallow (T32n1648_p0405b03)
lus lci bar byed pa	身睡重	kāya-garubhāva, kāya garuka ?	physical heaviness, heaviness of the body, (T32n1648_p0405b06). The opposite of physical lightness, kāyalahutā.
tshod zin pa	籌量	tulana ?	measuring (T32n1648_p0405b08)
zas mang du	多食	bahu bhojana ?	much food (T32n1648_p0405b08)
lus kyi gnas ngan len	---	kāyaduṭṭhulla	physical inertia, rigidity of the body (T32n1648_p0405b08)
chags pa spong ba	除貪	----	abandoning greed (T32n1648_p0405b09)
gnod pa chung ba shes pa	滅病	appābādha	little illness (T32n1648_p0405b09)
yang dag par spong ba	斷	samugghāta, samuccheda ?	removal, elimination (T32n1648_p0405b09)
zas lhag pa	長食	atirittabhojana	left over food, additional food, (T32n1648_p0405b14)
lhag pa	長	atiritta	left over, additional (T32n1648_p0405b14)
phul skye ba	恣於腹	odarikatta	overloading of the stomach, filling the stomach (Pali), unbridled regarding the stomach (Chinese), arising of satiety, satiety (Tibetan) (T32n1648_p0405b08)
re ba rab tu chad pa	斷於望想	----	elimination of expectations, cutting off of longings (T32n1648_p0405b14)
yang mi tshol ba	息所營求	puna pariyesanāya abhāva	there is no searching again; there is no renewed search (T32n1648_p0405b17)
bzung ba	受持	? gahaṇa ?	taking, accepting (T32n1648_p0405b19)
'dzings pa	鬧	? kolāhala ?	with commotion, commotious, with disturbance (T32n1648_p0405b23)
'khrug pa	---	vikkhepa	disturbance, confusion
grong mthar	國中	gāmanta	inside the village (T32n1648_p0405b25)
grong mthar gnas pa	國中住	gāmantavihāra, gāmante vihāranta	dwelling in the village (T32n1648_p0405b25)
yon tan dag	功德	ānisamsā	benefits, advantages (T32n1648_p0405b24) (Plural of yon tan, ānisaṃsa. Chinese does not indicate the number.)
nyes dmigs kyang mthong	知是過患	ādīnavadassana	seeing the disadvantages, understanding the disadvantages (T32n1648_p0405b24)
nyes dmigs su lta ba	見...過	ādīnavadassana	seeing the disadvantages, understanding the disadvantages (T32n1648_p0406a23)
gtam gyi gzhi bcu	十種語	dasakathāvatthu	ten topics of conversation (T32n1648_p0405b27) See A V 129: Dasayimāni, bhikkhave, kathāvatthūni. Katamāni dasa? Appicchakathā, santuṭṭhikathā, pavivekakathā, asaṃsaggakathā, vīriyārambhakathā, sīlakathā, samādhikathā, paññākathā, vimuttikathā, vimuttiñāṇadassanakathāti.
gtam gyi gzhi	種語	kathāvatthu	topic of conversation (T32n1648_p0405b27)
shin tu mdzes pa	最勝可愛	??	great beauty (of nature?) (T32n1648_p0405b27)
lhas bskul ba	與天同止	devatāhi sahavāsitā	dwelling together with the gods, dwelling in the company of gods (Chinese, Pali), encouragement by gods, being urged on by gods (Tibetan) (T32n1648_p0405c07)
'du 'dzi la dga' ba don du mi gnyer ba	不樂狎俗	na saṃsaggārāmataṃ anuyutta ?	no need for the delight in socializing (Tibetan); not delighting in socializing (T32n1648_p0405b28) Cf. A III 293: na saṃsaggārāmo hoti na saṃsaggarato na saṃsaggārāmataṃ anuyutto.
'du 'dzi la dga' ba	樂狎俗	saṃsaggārāma, saṃsaggarata	delight in socializing, delight in being in contact with (T32n1648_p0405b28) Cf. A III 293: na saṃsaggārāmo hoti na saṃsaggarato na saṃsaggārāmataṃ anuyutto.
'du 'dzi	狎俗	saṃsagga	socializing, association with, contact with (with people), socializing (T32n1648_p0405b28) (Bapat reads 'du 'dsi)
dben pa'i bde ba ci 'dod pa thob pa	樂得寂寂樂	pavivekasukharasaṃ assādeti	to delight in attaining the happiness of seclusion (Chinese); to attain the happiness of seclusion as one wishes (Tibetan); to enjoy the taste of the happiness of seclusion (Pali) (T32n1648_p0405b28)
dben pa'i bde ba	寂寂樂	pavivekasukha	the happiness of seclusion (T32n1648_p0405b28)
dben pa	寂寂	paviveka	seclusion (T32n1648_p0405b28)
rnal 'byor	禪坐	yoga ?	meditation (T32n1648_p0405b28)
sgra chung ba	少聲	appasadda, appanigghosa	little sounds, quiet (T32n1648_p0405b28)
dgon pa pa'i gnas mal	無事處	āraññaka senāsana, araññasenāsana	forest lodgings, forest dwellings (T32n1648_p0405b29) See dgon pa'i gnas mal.
dgon pa'i gnas mal	無事處	āraññaka senāsana, araññasenāsana	forest lodgings, forest dwellings (T32n1648_p0405b29) See dgon pa pa'i gnas mal.

dgon pa	無事處	araññña	forest, wilderness (T32n1648_p0405c03)
kun dga'i ra ba	---	ārāma ?	(private) park, pleasure grove. Cf. kun dga' ra ba.
grong dang grong gi nye 'khor	---	gāmañca gāmūpacārañca	the village and the neighbourhood of the village
grong	國	gāma	village
grong gi nye 'khor	---	gāmūpacāra	the neighbourhood of a village, village vicinity (T32n1648_p0405c02)
mi 'bring	中人	---	average man (T32n1648_p0405c02)
khru	肘	hattha ?	cubit, forearm-length (T32n1648_p0405c02)
gzhu	弓	dhanu	bow, bow-length (T32n1648_p0405c02). A bow-length is defined as being equivalent to 4 肘 or khru, forearm-lengths (hattha?) of an average man. mi 'bring gi khru bzhi la gzhu ste gzhu, 取中人四肘 ... 弓....
lnga brgya	五百	pañcasata	five-hundred. (T32n1648_p0405c02).
gzhu lnga brgya	五百弓	pañcadhanusatika	five-hundred bow-lengths (T32n1648_p0405c02)
shing drung pa nyid	樹下住	rukkhamūlikatta	the state of the tree-root-dwellller, dwelling at the root of a tree (T32n1648_p0404c01) 樹下住= variant spelling of the normal 樹下坐.
yongs su bzung pa	---	---	appropriating (T32n1648_p0405c04). Chinese has 積.
gzhan la gsol ba	求索	---	begging, requesting, begging to others (T32n1648_p0405c05)
las la dga' ba nyid	樂為作務	kammārāmatā	delight in work (T32n1648_p0406b10)
yong su spong pa	離	samuccheda ??	elimination, abandoning, avoiding (T32n1648_p0405c07)
gnas la ser sna	住處嫉	āvāsamacchera	avarice about dwellings (T32n1648_p0405c07)
ser sna	嫉	macchera	avarice (T32n1648_p0405c08)
chags pa rab tu gcod pa	離愛著	---	elimination of greed (T32n1648_p0405c08)
nyi ma gung gi dus su	於日中時	---	at noon time, at the time of the middle of the day (T32n1648_p0405c09)
nyi ma gung	日中	---	at noon, the middle of the day (T32n1648_p0405c09)
nyi ma gung gi dus	日中時	---	noon time, the time of the middle of the day (T32n1648_p0405c09)
grib ma	樹	chāyā	shadow (T32n1648_p0405c10)
spong bar bya	可離	vivajjitabba ?	to be avoided (T32n1648_p0405c09)
shing	樹	rukkha	tree (T32n1648_p0405c09)
rlung med pa	無風	----	without wind, when there is no wind (T32n1648_p0405c10)
lo ma	葉	paṇṇa	leaf (T32n1648_p0405c10)
lhags pa	所墮	patita ?	fallen (T32n1648_p0405c10) (As part of 葉所墮, "fallen leaves"
sdong rgan	朽樹	---	decaying tree, old tree (T32n1648_p0405c11)
shing khong stong	空樹	---	hollow tree (T32n1648_p0405c11)
nyen can	危	---	dangerous (T32n1648_p0405c11)
rmugs pa dang gnyid spang ba	斷懈怠睡眠	thinamiddhapanūdana	dispelling of sloth and torpor (T32n1648_p0405c15)
lta bu	猶如	viya	like, similar to (T32n1648_p0405c15)
ri dvags lta bu	猶如野鹿	miga viya	like a wild deer (T32n1648_p0405c15–16)
ri dvags	野鹿	miga	deer, forest-deer (T32n1648_p0405c16)
ri dags	野鹿	miga	deer, forest-deer (T32n1648_p0405c16).
brtson pa mi gtong ba	---	anikkhitta-dhura ?	unrelenting effort, not letting down energy. Cf. brtson par mi 'dor pa.
zhan du gnas	餘處	---	other places (T32n1648_p0405c19)
zhan du gnas na	於餘處	---	in other places (T32n1648_p0405c19)
sems yid mi 'byung ba nyid	不起畏惡	saṃvega anuppāda ?	non-arising of urgency (T32n1648_p0405c19). Compare yid 'byung ba mang ba nyid /多所厭患 / saṃvegabahulatā at T32n1648_p0405c22.
sems yid 'byung ba	畏惡	saṃvega	urgency (T32n1648_p0405c19) Compare yid 'byung ba mang ba nyid /多所厭患 / saṃvegabahulatā at T32n1648_p0405c22.
bag med pa	放逸	pamāda	negligence, heedlessness (T32n1648_p0405c19)
'chi ba rjes su dran pa	死時念	maraṇassati, maraṇānusati	recollection of death (T32n1648_p0405c21)
'chi ba rjes su dran pa 'thob pa	得死時念	maraṇassatipaṭilābha	the obtaining of recollection of death (T32n1648_p0405c21)
'thob pa	得	paṭilābha, adhigama	obtaining, gaining, getting, acquiring (T32n1648_p0405c21–22)
mi sdug pa'i mtshan ma 'thob pa	得不淨相	asubhanimittādhigama	acquiring the sign of the foul (T32n1648_p0405c21–22)
mi sdug pa'i mtshan ma	不淨相	asubhanimitta	the sign of the foul (T32n1648_p0405c21–22)
mi ma yin pas bla mar bkur ba	非人敬重	amanussānaṃ garubhāvanīyatā	respect and esteem of non-humans (T32n1648_p0405c22)
mi ma yin pa	非人	amanussa	non-human, a non-human being (T32n1648_p0405c22) (A yakkha, tree-spirit, etc.)
bla mar bkur ba	敬重	garubhāvanīya	respect and esteem (T32n1648_p0405c22)
'dod pa'i 'dod chags rnam par spong ba	伏於欲染	kāmarāgavinodana	dispelling of greed for sense desires (T32n1648_p0405c22)
'dod pa'i 'dod chags	欲染	kāmarāga	greed for sense pleasures (T32n1648_p0405c22)
rnam par spong ba	伏	vinodana	dispelling (T32n1648_p0405c22)
yid 'byung ba mang ba nyid	多所厭患	saṃvegabahulatā	much urgency (T32n1648_p0405c22)

yid 'byung ba	厭患	saṃvega	urgency (T32n1648_p0405c22)
mang ba nyid	多	bahulatā	much, great (T32n1648_p0405c22)
'jigs pa dang skrag pa bzod pa	不懼可畏	bhayabheravasahanatā	enduring fear and dread (Pali & Tibetan) (T32n1648_p0405c23). The Chinese translator rendered “not fearing what is fearful.”
'jigs pa dang skrag pa	---	bhayabherava	fear and dread (T32n1648_p0405c23)
bzod pa	---	sahana	enduring. See 'jigs pa dang skrag pa bzod pa.
rgyags pa		mada	intoxication, vanity
yang dang yang du	---	abhiṇhaṃ	constantly, frequently lus kyi rang bzhin	---	kāyasabhāva	the nature of the body (The Chinese has 身空寂, probably due to misunderstanding kāyasabhāva as kāyassa abhāva. T32n1648_p0405c23.)
rtag tu	恒	dhuva	constantly, constant, always (T32n1648_p0405c25) Used alongside 常.
gnas par bya	住	vasati, viharati	to dwell (T32n1648_p0405c26)
spyil bu	房	kuṭi	hut (T32n1648_p0405c27)
rlung	風	vāta	wind (T32n1648_p0405c28)
rlung yas ldang ba	從風	paṭivātaṃ	upwind, leeward, against the wind (T32n1648_p0405c28)
mas ldang ba	逆風	anuvātaṃ	downwind, windward (T32n1648_p0405c28). As part of rlung yas ldang ba dang mas ldang ba. The full Tibetan would be rlung mas ldang ba.
nya sha	魚	maccha	fish (T32n1648_p0405c29)
sha	肉	maṃsa	meat (T32n1648_p0405c29)
'o ma	乳	khīra	milk (T32n1648_p0405c29)
til	麻	tila	sesame (T32n1648_p0405c29)
til gyi chur bed	麻粹	tilapiṭṭha	sesame-flour (T32n1648_p0405c29) Variant reading: 麻粄
mon sran gre'u	--	māsa	mung bean
mon sran gre'u 'i bza' ba	--	māsabhatta	cooked mung-beans, a meal of mung beans
lhung bzed	鉢器	pattta	bowl, begging-bowl (T32n1648_p0405c29)
khyim	屋	geha	house (T32n1648_p0406a01)
khri'u	坐具	nisīdana	sitting-cloth (T32n1648_p0406a01) (The Tibetan translator appears to have interpreted nisīdana as as a kind of seat or chair, āsana or pīṭha, but the Pali nisīdana is a cloth used for sitting.
ril pa	物	---	utensil (T32n1648_p0406a02). Perhaps the Chinese and Tibetan don't correspond. ril pa or ril ba might rather be a water-container or cup.
-----	明相現時	aruṇuṭṭhānavelā	the time of the manifestation of dawn-light, time of dawn-rise (T32n1648_p0406a02–03). Aruṇuṭṭhānavelā is the time of the first sign of dawn, when the light on the eastern horizon changes to a reddish colour before sun-rise. In monastic discipline (Vinaya) this is a important moment because it marks the time-limit of certain rules, such as not being apart from one's three robes (tecīvara) for a night. It also marks the starting limit at which a monk can start to eat solid foods.
skya rengs shar	明相現	aruṇuṭṭhāna, aruṇuggamana	manifestation of dawn-light, dawn-rise (T32n1648_p0406a02–03). Aruṇuṭṭhāna is the first sign of dawn, when the light on the eastern horizon changes to a reddish colour before sun-rise. In monastic discipline (Vinaya) this is a important moment because it marks the time-limit of certain rules, such as not being apart from one's three robes (tecīvara) for a night. It also marks the starting limit at which a monk can start to eat solid foods.
skya rengs shar	明相既現	aruṇuṭṭhāna, aruṇuggamana	manifestation of dawn-light, dawn-rise (T32n1648_p0406b04). Aruṇuṭṭhāna is the first sign of dawn, when the light on the eastern horizon changes to a reddish colour before sun-rise. Aruṇuṭṭhāna is the first sign of dawn, when the light on the eastern horizon changes to a reddish colour before sun-rise. In monastic discipline (Vinaya) this is a important moment because it marks the time-limit of certain rules, such as not being apart from one's three robes (tecīvara) for a night. It also marks the starting limit at which a monk can start to eat solid foods.
skya rengs	明相	aruṇa	dawn-light (T32n1648_p0406a02). Aruṇa orange light on the eastern horizon that appears before sun-rise. Cf. skya rengs shar, 明相現時, aruṇuṭṭhāna.
du ba	烟	dhuma	smoke (T32n1648_p0405c26)
---	哭泣	rodana	crying, wailing (T32n1648_p0405c25)
ldang ba	令避	uṭṭhāpeti	cause to shift, make rise (T32n1648_p0406a05)
gnod pa byed pa	惱	---	vexation, trouble, harm (T32n1648_p0406a05)
pha rol	他	aññā	another (T32n1648_p0406a05)
gnas mal	住處	senāsana	lodging, dwelling-place, resting place (T32n1648_p0406a06)

brkam chags	貪	loluppa, lolupa	greed, eager desire, longing for (T32n1648_p0406a06)
nang du yang dag par 'jog	寂靜	paṭisallāna	withdrawnness, retiredness, seclusion (T32n1648_p0406a06) (Skt. pratisaṃlayana; cf. nang du yang dag 'jog pa & nang du yang dag 'jog, Mvy 1488 & 1642.)
ji ltar rnyed pas chog shes pa	知足處	yaṃ laddhaṃ tena tuṭṭhabbaṃ	to be contented with what one gets (T32n1648_p0406a07)
chog shes pa	知足	tuṭṭha, santuṭṭha, santuṭṭhi	contented, contentment (T32n1648_p0406a07)
---	斂攝	pariggaha	embracing, encompassing, taking possession of (T32n1648_p0407a07. Cf. T32n1648_p0406a08 & 417a22.)
le lo'i gzhi	生怠處	kusītavatthu	ground for idleness, base for laziness (T32n1648_p0406a13)
'phres pa'i bde ba	---	passasukha	the pleasure of reclining on one's side. Cf. D-a 1031: Passasukhanti yathā samparivattakaṃ sayantassa dakkhiṇapassavāmapassānaṃ sukhaṃ hoti, evaṃ uppannaṃ sukhaṃ.
'phres pa	---	passa	reclining on one's side, reposing, leaning on one's side
ma chags pa	離染	virāga	dispassion (T32n1648_p0406a13)
brtsal ba	纏	vinibandha, pariyuṭṭhāna ?	bondage, obsessive attachment, obsession, T32n1648_p0406a14. Vism II.75/p.79 has cetaso vinibandhassa upacchedanaṃ, but elsewhere in Vim 纏 = pariyuṭṭhāna.
lus kyi gnas	行處	kammaṭṭhāna	meditation-subject. Cf. 業處 dbang du 'gro ba	---	vasagata, vasaga, vasaṃ gata	to come under the sway of skabs phye ba	方便	(accāyika ??)	expedient, expedience (T32n1648_p0406a21). See Vism II.19/p.64, etc.
gso ras	芻麻	khoma	hemp. (T32n1648_p0406a16, T23n1435_p0042c15.) Cf. 芻摩 at T14n0579_p0957a10, etc.
ras bal gyi ras	吉貝	kappāsa	kapok, cotton wool, raw cottton. (T32n1648_p0406a16–17 variant reading. Cf. X44n0744_p0436a23. Text reads 古貝. Cf. 古貝華 "cotton-flower," T24n1462_p0748c20, with the variant 吉貝華.) Cf. 劫貝 at T14n0579_p0957a09, etc.) Kappāsa is the cotton wool or kapok from the Kapok tree, Ceiba pentandra, etc.
ras bal gyi ras	古貝	kappāsa	kapok, cotton wool, raw cottton. (T32n1648_p0406a16–17. Cf. 古貝觸, T32n1648_p0430a29, with no variant. And 古貝華 "cotton-flower" or "kapok-tree-flower," T24n1462_p0748c20, with the variant 吉貝華. Cf. 劫貝 at T14n0579_p0957a09, etc.) Kappāsa is the cotton wool or kapok from the Kapok tree, Ceiba pentandra, etc.
mon dar	憍奢耶	koseyya	silk (T32n1648_p0406a17)
la ba	欽婆羅	kambala	wool (T32n1648_p0406a17)
byin par gyur	施	dinna	given (T32n1648_p0406a16)
skabs phye bas	以方便	---	as an expedient (T32n1648_p0406a17)
blang bar bya	受	sādiyati, sāditum	is accepted, to accept (T32n1648_p0406a17)
nyams par mi 'gyur	不失	na bhijjati	is not broken (T32n1648_p0406a17)
zhag	日	aha	day (T32n1648_p0406a18)
zhag bcur	十日	dasāha	ten days (T32n1648_p0406a18)
lhag	長	atireka	extra (T32n1648_p0406a18)
gos lhag	長衣	atirekacīvara	extra robe, extra robe-material (T32n1648_p0406a18)
gnas mal srung ba'i phyir	為護臥具	---	for protecting lodgings (T32n1648_p0406a19)
steng du gding ba	敷具	(paccattharaṇa, nisīdana-santhata ?)	a spread, cover (T32n1648_p0406a19)
gding ba	---	santhata, ? nisīdana-santhata ?	a mat, covering (T32n1648_p0406a19)
nad gyi rkyen gyan bar gras pa	覆瘡衣	kaṇḍupaṭicchādi	cloth for covering sores (T32n1648_p0406a19)
gyan ba	瘡	kaṇḍu	sore, itch (T32n1648_p0406a19). Cf. g.yan ba/g-yan ba. A kind of disease of the skin; see nad gyi rkyen gyan bar gras pa, 覆瘡衣.
gras pa	覆	paṭicchādi	covering (T32n1648_p0406a19)
gdong phyis kyi gos	手巾	mukhapuñchanacoḷa, mukhapuñchana	mouthwiping-cloth, handkerchief, napkin (T32n1648_p0406a19)
dbyar gyi ras chen	雨浴衣	vassikasāṭikacīvara, vassikasāṭika	rain-bathing-cloth (T32n1648_p0406a20)
rung ba	受持	adhiṭṭhita	determined (T32n1648_p0406a20).
bcol ba	淨施	vikappita	assigned, put under dual ownership (T32n1648_p0406a20). Vikappana is a technical term used in monastic discipline (Vinaya) to denote that a bhikkhu shares the ownership of robe (cīvara) with another monk or nun and thereby avoids full ownership. The robe can then be stored indefinitely. See Ṭhanissaro Bhikkhu, Buddhist Monastic Code I, Chapter 7.1.

			(http://www.accesstoinsight.org/lib/authors/thanissaro/bmc1/bmc1.ch07-1.html)
---	不受持	anadhiṭṭhita	not determined (T32n1648_p0406a20)
---	不淨施	avikappita	not assigned, not put under dual ownership (T32n1648_p0406a20)
dge 'dun gyi zas	僧次食	saṅghabhatta	Saṅgha-meal, Community-meal (T32n1648_p0406a21) A meal offered to a unlimited number of bhikkhus. Vin-a 1249: ... Yasmā pana te sacepi dubbhikkhe na sakkonti, subhikkhe jāte pana puna saṅghabhattaṃ kātuṃ sakkhissanti, tasmā bhagavā tampi anto katvā anujānāmi, bhikkhave, saṅghabhattaṃ uddesabhattanti ādimāha. Tattha saṅghabhatte ṭhitikā nāma natthi, tasmā amhākaṃ ajja dasa dvādasa divasā bhuñjantānaṃ idāni aññato bhikkhū ānethā"ti na evaṃ tattha vattabbaṃ. Purimadivasesu amhehi na laddhaṃ, idāni taṃ amhākaṃ gāhethā"ti evampi vattuṃ na labbhati. Tañhi āgatāgatānaṃ pāpuṇātiyeva.
zas	食	bhatta	meal (T32n1648_p0406a21) As part of dge 'dun gyi zas, 僧次食, saṅghabhatta.
---	常住食	niccabhatta	constant-meal (T32n1648_p0406a21) A meal that is constantly, daily offered to monks. Vin-a 816: Niccabhattanti dhuvabhattaṃ vuccati.
tshul shing gi zas	行籌食	salākabhatta	ticket-meal (T32n1648_p0406a21). A meal for a which a specific number of monks are selected by drawing ticket or lots. Vin-a 1261: Salākabhatte pana anujānāmi, bhikkhave, salākāya vā paṭṭikāya vā upanibandhitvā opuñjitvā uddisitu nti (= Vin II 176) vacanato rukkhasāramayāya salākāya vā veḷuvilīvatālapaṇṇādimayāya paṭṭikāya vā asukassa nāma salākabhattanti evaṃ akkharāni upanibandhitvā pacchiyaṃ vā cīvarabhoge vā katvā sabbā salākāyo opuñjitvā punappunaṃ heṭṭhuparivaseneva āloḷetvā pañcaṅgasamannāgatena bhattuddesakena sace ṭhitikā atthi, ṭhitikato paṭṭhāya; no ce atthi, therāsanato paṭṭhāya salākā dātabbā. Pacchā āgatānampi ekābaddhavasena dūre ṭhitānampi uddesabhatte vuttanayeneva dātabbā.
tshul shing	行籌	salāka	ticket, voting-ticket, tickets consisting of pieces of wood, a lot (T32n1648_p0406a21)
zla ba phyed pa'i zas	十五日食	pakkhikabhatta	fortnight-meal (T32n1648_p0406a22), A meal offered to monks every forthnight. Vin-a 1267: Pakkhikādīsu pana yaṃ abhilakkhitesu cātuddasī pañcadasī pañcamī aṭṭhamīti imesu pakkhesu kammappasutehi uposathaṃ kātuṃ satikaraṇatthāya diyyati, taṃ pakkhikaṃ nāma.
zla ba phyed pa	十五日	pakkha	fortnight (T32n1648_p0406a22). As part of zla ba phyed pa'i zas, 十五日食, pakkhikabhatta.
gso sbyong ba'i zas	布薩食	uposathabhatta	observance-day-meal, Uposatha-day meal (T32n1648_p0406a22). A meal offered to monks on Uposatha days. Vin-a 1267*: Uposathikaṃ nāma anvaḍḍhamāse uposathaṅgāni samādiyitvā yaṃ attanā bhuñjati, tadeva diyyati.*
gso sbyong ba	布薩	uposatha	observance-day (T32n1648_p0406a22)
---	眾食	gaṇabhojana, gaṇabhatta	group-meal (T32n1648_p0406a22). A meal for a group of four monks. Vin IV 74: Gaṇabhojanaṃ nāma yattha cattāro bhikkhū pañcannaṃ bhojanānaṃ aññatarena bhojanena nimantitā bhuñjanti. Cf. Vin-a 811.
gtsug lag khang gi zas	寺食	vihārabhatta	monastery-meal (T32n1648_p0406a22). A meal to all the monks in a monastery. Vin-a 1270*: Vihārabhattaṃ nāma vihāre tatruppādabhattaṃ, taṃ saṅghabhattena gahitaṃ.*
bskos pa'i zas	---	uddesabhatta	designation-meal, designated-number-meal (T32n1648_p0406a22) A meal offered to a specific, limited number of bhikkhus. Vin-a 1249: Uddesabhattantiādīsu "ekaṃ vā dve vā...pe... dasa vā bhikkhū saṅghato uddisitvā dethā"ti evaṃ uddesena laddhabhikkhūnaṃ bhattaṃ kātuṃ icchanti. Apare tatheva bhikkhū paricchinditvā nimantetvā tesaṃ bhattaṃ kātuṃ icchanti. Apare salākāyo chinditvā, apare pakkhikaṃ uposathikaṃ pāṭipadikanti evaṃ niyāmetvā, ekassa vā dvinnaṃ vā...pe... dasannaṃ vā bhikkhūnaṃ bhattaṃ kātuṃ icchanti. Iti etāni bhattāni uddesabhattaṃ nimantananti imaṃ vohāraṃ pattāni. Yasmā pana te sacepi dubbhikkhe na sakkonti, subhikkhe jāte pana puna saṅghabhattaṃ kātuṃ sakkhissanti, tasmā bhagavā tampi anto katvā "anujānāmi, bhikkhave, saṅghabhattaṃ uddesabhatta"ntiādimāha. Tattha saṅghabhatte ṭhitikā nāma natthi, tasmā "amhākaṃ ajja dasa dvādasa divasā bhuñjantānaṃ idāni

sgo na	門	dvāra
glang po che	象	hatthī
rta	馬	assa
'thab pa	鬪	---
ngo tsha bar 'gyur ba	可羞鄙	lajjī ?
thod rgal	越	atikkamati ?
---	旃陀羅	caṇḍāla

aññato bhikkhū ānethā"ti na evaṃ tattha vattabbaṃ. "Purimadivasesu amhehi na laddhaṃ, idāni taṃ amhākaṃ gāhethā"ti evampi vattuṃ na labbhati. Taññhi āgatāgatānaṃ pāpuṇātiyeva.
entrance, gate, door (T32n1648_p0406a24) elephant (T32n1648_p0406a24) horse (T32n1648_p0406a24) quarrelling (T32n1648_p0406a24) shameful, embarrassing (T32n1648_p0406a24) to skip over, to skip (T32n1648_p0406a26) an outcast, caṇḍāla, untouchable (T32n1648_p0406a25.) Cf. variant reading 栴陀羅.
One born in the "low" or "base" castes, that are associated with impure, dirty professions, social exclusion and poverty.
See M III 129: ... yāni tāni nīcakulāni - caṇḍālakulaṃ vā nesādakulaṃ vā venakulaṃ vā rathakārakulaṃ vā pukkusakulaṃ vā. Tathārūpe kule paccājāyati dalidde appannapānabhojane kasiravuttike, yattha kasirena ghāsacchādo labbhati.
In Pali scriptures the caṇḍāla is specifically associated with the impure profession of scavenging and disposing corpses (see J-a III 195: chavachaḍḍakacaṇḍālā, Nidd-a II 293: Caṇḍāloti chavacaṇḍālo. Mil 200: tadā bodhisatto chavakacaṇḍālo ahosi....).
They were also notorious for eating dogs (J-a V 449: Chavakasamasadisanti sunakhamaṃsakhādacaṇḍālena samaṃ sadisaṃ. J-a IV 380: sapākacaṇḍālassa pana ko deti, ...) and other base foods (Ap-a 335: sunakhocchiṭṭhabhattabhuñjanakacaṇḍālakule jātoti. J-a II 81*: Evaṃ uppanno hi piṇḍapāto mama sāsane caṇḍālassa ucchiṭṭhabhojanasadiso, ...*)
They were living in separate villages outside of towns (Cp-a 152*: Tadā hi bodhisatto caṇḍālayoniyaṃ nibbattitvā rūpena duddasiko bahinagare caṇḍālagāme vasati.* Vin-a I 45*: aññataraṃ caṇḍālagāmaṃ sandhāya gacchantī jeṭṭhakacaṇḍālassa gehato avidūre....* J-a IV 390: Tadā ujjeniyā bahi caṇḍālagāmako ahosi. Mahāsatto tattha nibbatti. See also Cp-a 155.)
These villages were associated with corpses, see Vism VIII.121/p.259, Khp-a 58, Vibh-a 242: seyyathāpi nāma caṇḍālagāmadvāre candanikāya saradasamaye thūlaphusitake deve vassante udakena āvūḷhaṃ muttakarīsacammaṭṭhinhārukhaṇḍakheḷasiṅghāṇikā-lohitappabhutinānākuṇapajātaṃ nipatitvā kaddamodakāluḷitaṃ sañjātakimikulākulaṃ hutvā ...
M-a III 70: mahāpuriso caṇḍālayoniyaṃ nibbatto bahinagare cammagehe vasati.
They were avoided and despised by members of other castes; e.g., a Brahmin who met a caṇḍāla did not want to stand downwind of him. (J-a III 232: ekaṃ caṇḍālaṃ disvā kosi tvanti pucchitvā caṇḍālohamasmī ti vutte tassa sarīraṃ paharitvā āgatavātassa attano sarīre phusanabhayena nassa, caṇḍāla, kāḷakaṇṇī, adhovātaṃ yāhīti vatvā vegena tassa uparivātaṃ agamāsi.) and a daughter of a seṭṭhi who had seen a caṇḍāla washed her eyes with perfumed water. (J-a IV 375: Diṭṭhamaṅgalikā sāṇiyā antarena olokentī taṃ disvā ko eso ti pucchitvā caṇḍālo ayye ti vutte adiṭṭhapubbayuttakaṃ vata passāmī ti gandhodakena akkhīni dhovitvā tato nivatti.).
A bhikkhu can not insult or slander another bhikkhu about his caṇḍāla birth. See Vin I 6 & 12: Hīnā nāma jāti caṇḍālajāti, venajāti, nesādajāti, rathakārajāti, pukkusajāti. Esā hīnā nāma jāti.Ukkaṭṭhā nāma jāti - khattiyajāti, brāhmaṇajāti. Esā ukkaṭṭhā nāma jāti.
The Bodhisattva was born as a caṇḍāla in some of his previous births, see J-a II 82: ... bodhisatto caṇḍālayoniyaṃ nibbattitvā ... Cf. J-a IV 376, M-a III 70, Cp-a 152, Mil 200.
Chapter 10 of the Brahmanical law manual Manusmṛti describes the caṇḍāla as follows:
"51. But the dwellings of Kandalas and Svapakas shall be outside the village, they must be made Apapatras, and their wealth (shall be) dogs and donkeys.
52. Their dress (shall be) the garments of the dead, (they shall eat) their food from broken dishes, black iron (shall be) their ornaments, and they must always wander from place to place.
53. A man who fulfils a religious duty, shall not seek intercourse with them; their transactions (shall be)

---	梅陀羅	caṇḍāla

among themselves, and their marriages with their equals.
54. Their food shall be given to them by others (than an Aryan giver) in a broken dish; at night they shall not walk about in villages and in towns.
55. By day they may go about for the purpose of their work, distinguished by marks at the king's command, and they shall carry out the corpses (of persons) who have no relatives; that is a settled rule.
56. By the king's order they shall always execute the criminals, in accordance with the law, and they shall take for themselves the clothes, the beds, and the ornaments of (such) criminals."
(Translated from the Sanskrit by George Bühler, in The Laws of Manu, Sacred Books of the East, Volume 25, Oxford, 1886.)
There is no mention of caṇḍāla being executioners in Pali literature.
an outcast, caṇḍāla, untouchable (T32n1648_p0406a25. Variant reading of 旃陀羅)
One born in the "low" or "base" castes, that are associated with impure, dirty professions, social exclusion and poverty.
See M III 129: ... yāni tāni nīcakulāni – caṇḍālakulaṃ vā nesādakulaṃ vā venakulaṃ vā rathakārakulaṃ vā pukkusakulaṃ vā. Tathārūpe kule paccājāyati dalidde appannapānabhojane kasiravuttike, yattha kasirena ghāsacchādo labbhati.
In Pali scriptures the caṇḍāla is specifically associated with the impure profession of scavenging and disposing corpses (see J-a III 195: chavachaḍḍakacaṇḍālā, Nidd-a II 293: Caṇḍāloti chavacaṇḍālo. Mil 200: tadā bodhisatto chavakacaṇḍālo ahosi....).
They were also notorious for eating dogs (J-a V 449: Chavakasamasadisanti sunakhamaṃsakhādacaṇḍālena samaṃ sadisaṃ. J-a IV 380: sapākacaṇḍālassa pana ko deti, ...) and other base foods (Ap-a 335: sunakhocchiṭṭhabhattabhuñjanakacaṇḍālakule jātoti. J-a II 81*: Evaṃ uppanno hi piṇḍapāto mama sāsane caṇḍālassa ucchiṭṭhabhojanasadiso, ...*)
They were living in separate villages outside of towns (Cp-a 152*: Tadā hi bodhisatto caṇḍālayoniyaṃ nibbattitvā rūpena duddasiko bahinagare caṇḍālagāme vasati.* Vin-a I 45*: aññataraṃ caṇḍālagāmaṃ sandhāya gacchantī jeṭṭhakacaṇḍālassa gehato avidūre....* J-a IV 390: Tadā ujjeniyā bahi caṇḍālagāmako ahosi. Mahāsatto tattha nibbatti. See also Cp-a 155.)
These villages were associated with corpses, see Vism VIII.121/p.259, Khp-a 58, Vibh-a 242: seyyathāpi nāma caṇḍālagāmadvāre candanikāya saradasamaye thūlaphusitake deve vassante udakena āvūḷhaṃ muttakarīsacammaṭṭhinhārukhaṇḍakheḷasiṅghāṇikā-lohitappabhutinānākuṇapajātaṃ nipatitvā kaddamodakāluḷitaṃ sañjātakimikulākulaṃ hutvā ...
M-a III 70: mahāpuriso caṇḍālayoniyaṃ nibbatto bahinagare cammagehe vasati.
They were avoided and despised by members of other castes; e.g., a Brahmin who met a caṇḍāla did not want to stand downwind of him. (J-a III 232: ekaṃ caṇḍālaṃ disvā kosi tvanti pucchitvā caṇḍālohamasmī ti vutte tassa sarīraṃ paharitvā āgatavātassa attano sarīre phusanabhayena nassa, caṇḍāla, kāḷakaṇṇī, adhovātaṃ yāhīti vatvā vegena tassa uparivātaṃ agamāsi.) and a daughter of a seṭṭhi who had seen a caṇḍāla washed her eyes with perfumed water. (J-a IV 375: Diṭṭhamaṅgalikā sāṇiyā antarena olokentī taṃ disvā ko eso ti pucchitvā caṇḍālo ayye ti vutte adiṭṭhapubbayuttakaṃ vata passāmī ti gandhodakena akkhīni dhovitvā tato nivatti.).
A bhikkhu can not insult or slander another bhikkhu about his caṇḍāla birth. See Vin I 6 & 12: Hīnā nāma jāti caṇḍālajāti, venajāti, nesādajāti, rathakārajāti, pukkusajāti. Esā hīnā nāma jāti.Ukkaṭṭhā nāma jāti – khattiyajāti, brāhmaṇajāti. Esā ukkaṭṭhā nāma jāti.
The Bodhisattva was born as a caṇḍāla in some of his previous births, see J-a II 82: ... bodhisatto caṇḍālayoniyaṃ nibbattitvā ... Cf. J-a IV 376, M-a III 70, Cp-a 152, Mil 200.
Chapter 10 of the Brahmanical law manual Manusmṛti describes the caṇḍāla as follows:
"51. But the dwellings of Kandalas and Svapakas shall be outside the village, they must be made Apapatras, and their wealth (shall be) dogs and donkeys. 52. Their dress (shall be) the garments of the dead, (they shall eat) their food from broken dishes, black iron (shall be) their ornaments, and they must always wander from place to place. 53. A man who fulfils a religious duty, shall not seek intercourse with them; their transactions (shall be) among themselves, and their marriages with their equals. 54. Their food shall be given to them by others (than an Aryan giver) in a broken dish; at night they shall not walk about in villages and in towns. 55. By day they may go about for the purpose of their work, distinguished by marks at the king's command, and they shall carry out the corpses (of persons) who have no relatives; that is a settled rule. 56. By the king's order they shall always execute the criminals, in accordance with the law, and they shall take for themselves the clothes, the beds, and the ornaments of (such) criminals." (Translated from the Sanskrit by George Bühler, in The Laws of Manu, Sacred Books of the East, Volume 25, Oxford, 1886.) There is no mention of caṇḍāla being executioners in Pali literature.

lhung bzed kha spub pa	覆鉢	pattanikkujjana	turning the bowl upside down, overturning of the bowl (T32n1648_p0406a25, T22n1421_p0174c09). Pattanikkujjana is a special disciplinary procedure by which bhikkhus, after having performed a legal act entitling them to do, can indicate their disapproval to a misbehaving layman by turning upside down their bowls when he wishes to offer alsms-food. When the layman's conduct improves, and a legal act has again been performed again, the monks can finish the boycott and turn up their bowls to him so that he can offer food. See Vin II 125–26: Aṭṭhahi, bhikkhave, aṅgehi samannāgatassa upāsakassa ākaṅkhamāno saṅgho pattaṃ nikkujjeyya Katamehi aṭṭhahi? Bhikkhūnaṃ alābhāya ... anatthāya ... avāsāya parisakkati, bhikkhū akkosati paribhāsati, bhikkhū bhikkhūhi bhedeti, buddhassa ... dhammassa ... saṅghassa avaṇṇaṃ bhāsati. Anujānāmi, bhikkhave, imehi aṭṭhahaṅgehi samannāgatassa upāsakassa pattaṃ nikkujjituṃ. Evañca pana, bhikkhave, nikkujjitabbo. Byattena bhikkhunā paṭibalena saṅgho ñāpetabbo Suṇātu me, bhante, saṅgho. Vaḍḍho licchavī āyasmantaṃ dabbaṃ mallaputtaṃ amūlikāya sīlavipattiyā anuddhaṃseti. Yadi saṅghassa pattakallaṃ, saṅgho vaḍḍhassa licchavissa pattaṃ nikkujjeyya, asambhogaṃ saṅghena kareyya. Esā ñatti. See also Ṭhanissaro Bhikkhu, Buddhist Monastic Code I, Chapter XX. In the Chinese the origin story and procedure of this rule is described in the Mahīśāsaka Vinaya (五分律卷) at T22n1421_p0174c09ff. In the Mahāsāṃghika-vinaya (摩訶僧祇律) at T22n1425_p0483c09ff. In the Dharmaguptaka's "Four Part Vinaya (四分律) at T22n1428_p0959a26ff. In the Sarvāstivādanikāyavinaya at T23n1441_p0582b01ff. and T24n1451_p0220a22ff.
kha spub pa	覆	nikkujjana, nikujjati	overturning, turning upside down (T32n1648_p0406a25). Skt: nikubjana. As part of lhung bzed kha spub pa, 覆鉢, pattanikkujjana.
slob bar grags pa'i khyim	學家	sekkhasammata kula, sekkhakula, sekhakula	a family agreed upon as trainees, trainee-family, (T32n1648_p0406a25.) This refers to a rule that forbids monks from accepting and eating the food given by overly-generous families that have been declared trainees through a legal act. See Pāṭidesanīya No. 3, Vin IV 180: Yāni kho pana tāni sekkhasammatāni kulāni, yo pana bhikkhu tathārūpesu sekkhasammatesu kulesu pubbe animantito agilāno khādanīyaṃ vā bhojanīyaṃ vā sahatthā paṭiggahetvā khādeyya vā bhuñjeyya vā, paṭidesetabbaṃ tena bhikkhunā... Cf. Vin II 208: agocaro pucchitabbo, sekkhasammatāni kulāni pucchitabbāni. The term sekkhakula is only found a few times in commentarial Pali; Vinayavinicchayaṭīkā II 323 (Be): Sekkhakulāni cāti laddhasekkhasammutikāni kulāni ca vattabbāni. Cf. J-a IV 144: Ñātīhi vā sekkhakulehi vā, mahārājā ti.

mkhan po	和尚	upajjhāya	preceptor, khenpo (T32n1648_p0406a25-26. Variant reading of 和上.)
mkhan po	和上	upajjhāya	preceptor, khenpo (T32n1648_p0406a25-26.) Cf. 和尚.
slob dpon	闍梨	ācariya	teacher (T32n1648_p0406a26)
glo bur ba	客	āgantuka	visitor (T32n1648_p0406a28). (At T32n1648_p0406a28 spelled as 客行, which is a mistake.) Part of 客比丘.
---	客比丘	āgantukabhikkhu	visitor bhikkhu, visiting monk (T32n1648_p0406a28, T32n1648_p0406a28)
khyu mchog	牛	usabha, goṇa	bull (T32n1648_p0406a28)
sbrul	蛇	ahi, sappa	snake, serpent (T32n1648_p0406a28)
'bab pa	雨	vassati	to rain (T32n1648_p0406a28)
'ongs pa	來	āgamana	coming, arriving, arrival (T32n1648_p0406a28)
langs pa	起	uṭṭhahati	to stand up, to rise up (T32n1648_p0406a28)
langs par gyur	起已	uṭṭhāya	having risen, having stood up (T32n1648_p0406a28)
bsnyen par rdzogs par las	受戒	upasampadā	full acceptance, higher admission, full ordination, higher ordination (T32n1648_p0406b01). The acceptance into the Sangha as a bhikkhu of a applicant through a special legal act (saṅghakamma) consisting of a motion and a triple proclamation as well as that requires a valid assembly at least five monks (outside the middle country), and requires prior steps such an interrogation of the applicant about 13 obstructive factors (i.e. whether he is a human, etc.; see below). The applicant has to meet certain qualifications and obligations: He has to be 20 years old, from the time of conception; he should not have fallen into to a Pārājika offencel; not having committed an immediately-retribute deed (ānantarikakamma) such as killing a parent or an arahant; he should be a human, not be a eunuch or hermaphrodite; have permission from his parents; not be under government service (e.g. a non-discharged soldier); not be a slave or debtor; not have certain chronic, serious illnesses; not be a sought criminal or prisoner; not be one who is handicapped, and be in the possession of a bowl and robe; etc. The bhikkhu undertakes the training of the bhikkhu, consisting of the Pātimokkha rules. He is "in communion" (saṃvāsa) and can participate in legal acts of the Saṅgha (saṅghakamma) such as the Pātimokkha-recitation, upasampadā, etc. See Ṭhanissaro Bhikkhu, Buddhist Monastic Code I, Chapter XIV.
ched	為	-āya	for the purpose of, for the sake of, for (T32n1648_p0406b01)
ltung ba las bslang ba	懺罪	āpattivuṭṭhāna	emergence from an offence (T32n1648_p0406b01). The Chinese might rather correspond to āpattidesana, "confession of offences."
ltung ba	罪	āpatti	an offence (T32n1648_p0406b01). An āpatti is the commission an offence as described in the Pātimokkha, or, in other words, a transgression of a Pātimokkha rule.
dam chos mnyan pa	聞法	dhammassavaṇa, saddhammasavaṇa	hearing the Dhamma (Chinese, Pali [= Vism II.60]), listening to the True Dhamma (Tibetan) (T32n1648_p0406b01). Through listening to the Dhamma the unliberated mind is liberated from bondages; see A III 382.
mnyan pa	聞	savaṇa	hearing, listening (T32n1648_p0406b01)
gso sbyong	布薩	uposatha	observance-day (T32n1648_p0406b02)
dgag dbye	自恣	pavāraṇā	invitation-ceremony (T32n1648_p0406b02). The pavāraṇā is a special legal act (saṅghakamma) held at the end of the rains-retreat (vassa) in monasteries. During the procedure each of the participating monks invites the others to reveal any offence that they might have seen, heard or suspect him to have done during the rains, and promises to make up for it if he sees that there is an offence.
na ba	病	vyādhita (?)	being ill, being sick (T32n1648_p0406b02).
mdo	經	sutta	discourse (T32n1648_p0406b02).
rkyen	緣	paccaya	condition, reason (T32n1648_p0406b02).
rjes su gnang	可	anuññāta ?	allowed (T32n1648_p0406b05)
kha cig na re ... zhes zer	有一說	ekacce vadanti ?	some say (T32n1648_p0406b06) The structure of the Tibetan sentence is: kha cig na re ... zhes zer : "some '... (quotation)...' say."
kha cig na re	有一	ekacce	some (T32n1648_p0406b06) Part of kha cig na re ... zhes zer, 有一說, ekacce vadanti.
chos mngon pa las ji skad du	如毘曇中說	abhidhamme yathāvutta	as is said in the Abhidhamma (T32n1648_p0406b08)

chos mngon pa las	毘曇中	abhidhamme	in the Abhidhamma (T32n1648_p0406b08) As part of chos mngon pa las ji skad du, 如毘曇中說, abhidhamme yathāvutta.
ji skad du	如 ... 說	yathāvutta, yathā vutta	as is said (T32n1648_p0406b08)
'du bar 'gyur	攝	saṅgahita, saṅgahaṃ gacchati ?	is included (T32n1648_p0406b08)
de ci'i phyir zhe na	何故	---	why? (T32n1648_p0406b10)
spyil bu	房舍	kuṭi	hut (T32n1648_p0406b10)
de lta bas na	是故	tasmā	therefore, for this reason (T32n1648_p0406b12)
rdzogs bar byed	滿	paripūrati ?	to fulfil (T32n1648_p0406b14)
rdzogs par 'gyur	成滿	paripuṇṇa ?	is fulfilled (T32n1648_p0406b14)
de nyid kyi phyir	故	---	on account of that (T32n1648_p0406b14)
mdzes dga' ba	難陀	Nanda	Nanda (T32n1648_p0406b14). Nanda was the half-brother of the Buddha; see DDPN s.v. “Nanda Thera.” The name means “delight.”
tshe dang ldan pa mdzes dga' ba	----	āyasmā nanda	venerable Nanda
tshe dang ldan pa	長老	āyasmā	venerable
---	何時	kadā	when (T32n1648_p0406b14)
ngan ngon gyis 'tsho zhing	---	uñchena yāpenta	sustaining [oneself] by alms-gleanings (T32n1648_p0406b14)
'tsho zhing	養	yāpenta	sustaining, nourishing (T32n1648_p0406b14)
ngan ngon	---	uñchā	alms-gleanings, gleaning (T32n1648_p0406b14)
'dod pa rnams la ni lta ba med pa	無見所欲	kāmesu anapekkhin	not longing for sense-pleasures (T32n1648_p0406b15–16)
lta ba med pa	無見	anapekkhin	not longing, without longing (T32n1648_p0406b15)
'dod pa rnams la	所欲	kāmesu	regarding sense-pleasures, towards sense-pleasures (T32n1648_p0406b15–16)
sbyangs pa'i yan lag	頭陀分	dhutaṅga	factor of austerity (T32n1648_p0406b16)
sbyangs pa'i chos	頭陀法	dhutadhamma	state of austerity (T32n1648_p0406b21-22)
du zhig	幾種	katividha	how many kinds (T32n1648_p0406b16)
spyod pa'i gang zag	行人	carita-puggala ?	person with a temperament (T32n1648_p0406b16)
spyod pa	行	carita, cariya	temperament, character, character-type (T32n1648_p0406b16)
sbyangs pa'i de nyid	是頭陀	dhuto	ascetic, one who practises austerities, one who has purified himself through austerity (T32n1648_p0406b17)
sbyangs pa smra ba	說頭陀	dhutavādin	a proponent of the austerities, one who proclaims the austerities (T32n1648_p0406b17)
dus kyi mthar thug pa	時節	utu	season (Chinese), season-limit, time-limit (Tibetan) (T32n1648_p0406c08).
brjod par bya	應說	vattabba	to be spoken of, to be called (T32n1648_p0406b19, as part of 不應說.)
gti mug med pa	不癡	amoha	non-delusion (T32n1648_p0406b19)
bcom ldan 'das kyis ji skad du	如佛所說	----	as taught by the Buddha (T32n1648_p0406b22)
---	惡欲	pāpiccha	evil wishes, evil desires (T32n1648_p0406b20)
rab tu dben pa nyid	靜	paviveka	solitude (T32n1648_p0406b23)
'dis chog pa nyid	---	idamatthitā, idamatthikatā, idamaṭṭhikatā	‘this-is-sufficient’-ness, ‘this-is-enough-for-the-purpose’-ness, ‘this-will-do’-ness. See Th 984: Kappiyaṃ taṃ ce chādeti, cīvaraṃ idamatthikaṃ [idamatthitaṃ (Siyam ed.)]; Alaṃ phāsuvihārāya, pahitattassa bhikkhuno. Th-a III 99: Idamatthikanti idaṃ payojanatthaṃ satthārā vuttapayojanatthaṃ yāvadeva sītādipaṭighātanatthañceva hirīkopīnapaṭicchādan-atthañcāti attho. Etena kāyaparihāriyaṃ cīvaraṃ tattha itarītarasantosañca vadati. A-a III 306: Idamatthitanti imāya kalyāṇāya paṭipattiyā attho etassāti idamatthī, idamatthino bhāvo idamatthitā. Taṃ idamatthitaṃyeva nissāya, na aññaṃ kiñci lokāmisanti attho. A-ṭ 151 (Be): Iminā sarīraṭṭhapanamattena atthīti idamaṭṭhi ttha-kārassa ṭṭha-kāraṃ katvā, tassa bhāvo idamaṭṭhitā, imehi vā kusaladhammehi atthi idamaṭṭhi, yena ñāṇena “pabbajitena nāma paṃsukūlikaṅgādīsu patiṭṭhitena bhavitabba”nti yathānusiṭṭhaṃ dhutaguṇe samādiyati ceva pariharati ca, taṃ ñāṇaṃ idamaṭṭhitā. Tenāha – idamaṭṭhitā ñāṇamevāti.
rjes su gnang ba	所許	anuññāta	allowed, permitted, sanctioned (T32n1648_p0406b26)
'dod pa'i bsod snyoms kyi rjes su brtson pa'i	欲染	kāmasukhānuyoga	pursuit of sensual-pleasures (T32n1648_p0406b27). Cf. 欲樂著, which is the full, better Chinese translation
slu ba	欺誑	---	allurement, deception, deceiving (T32n1648_p0406b27)
sel	除	dhunāti	shakes off, removes (T32n1648_p0406b27)
rjes su brtson pa		anuyoga	pursuit of, engagement in, practice of (T32n1648_p0406b27)
'dod pa'i bsod snyoms	欲染	kāmasukha	pursuit of sensual-pleasures (T32n1648_p0406b27).
'tsham pa	相似	anulomika, anuloma ?	suitable, in conformity with (T32n1648_p0406b27).
bsten pa	---	paṭisevana	practising, using bdag nyid dub pa'i rjes su brtson pa	--	attakilamathānuyoga	pursuit of wearing-out-oneself (T32n1648_p0406b27–28). Cf. 著身疲 and 身羸.

bdag nyid dub pa	身羸	attakilamatha	wearing-out-oneself, self-mortification (T32n1648_p0406b27–28) Cf. 著身疲.
dub pa	羸	kilamatha	wearying, wearing out, fatiguing (T32n1648_p0406b28)
spang ba	能除	paṭikkhepa	rejecting, to reject (T32n1648_p0406b25)
spang ba'i gzhi	---	paṭikkhepavatthu	a thing to be rejected (T32n1648_p0406b25)
'dod chags spyod pa	貪行人	rāgacarita	one with a greed temperament, of greedy temperament, of greedy character (T32n1648_p0406b29)
gti mug spyod pa sbyangs pa	癡行人	mohacarita	one with a delusion temperament , of deluded temperament, of deluded character (T32n1648_p0406b29)
zhe sdang spyod pa	嗔恚行人	dosacarita	one with a hate temperament, of hateful temperament, of hateful character (T32n1648_p0406b29)
dga'	---	sappāya	advantageous, beneficial, suitable (Perhaps due to misunderstand of sappāya/sāmpreya as piya.
ci'i phyir	何以故	kasmā	why? (T32n1648_p0406c01)
sbyangs pa'i yon tan sten pa	修行頭陀	dhutaṅgasevana	practicing of the ascetic-factors (Pali), practicing of the ascetic-qualities (Tibetan), practicing of the asceticisms (Chinese) (T32n1648_p0406c01–04) 修頭陀行 at T32n1648_p0406b29 is a misspelling of this.
sten pa	修	sevana	practising (T32n1648_p0406b29)
bsgrub dka' ba	受苦	dukkhapaṭipadā, dukkhāpaṭipadā	painful practice. (T32n1648_p0406c05) Cf. 苦行具足 at T32n1648_p0459b08
bsgrub dka'	受苦	dukkhapaṭipadā, dukkhāpaṭipadā	painful practice. (T32n1648_p0406c05) Cf. 苦行具足 at T32n1648_p0459b08
la brten nas	依	nissāya	in dependence upon (T32n1648_p0406c03)
rnam par gnon pa	伏	vikkhambhana, vikkhambati	suspending, suppression, to suspend (T32n1648_p0406c03)
bag yod pa	不放逸	appamatta, appamāda	heedful (T32n1648_p0406c02)
---	更	bhiyyo ?	more (T32n1648_p0406c05)
---	轉增	bhiyyo ?	more (T32n1648_p0406c05)
mkhris pa	瘀	pitta	bile (T32n1648_p0406c05)
mkhris pa'i nad	瘀病	pittaroga ?	bile-disease, illness caused by bile (T32n1648_p0406c05)
drod bag	熱湯	uṇhodaka ?	hot liquid, hot water (Chinese) hot broth ? (Tibetan) (T32n1648_p0406c05). Not in Vism, but compare M-a III 57: Tassa hi pittajararogo bhavissati. Tenassa uṇhodakaṃ pivituṃ vā hatthapādādidhovanatthāya vā gattaparisiñcanatthāya vā upanetuṃ na vaṭṭati, rogo balavataro hoti.
gzhan dag na re	復說	? aparampi vutta, apare vadanti ?	again it is also said (Chinese) others say (Tibetan) (T32n1648_p0406c06). 復說, lit "again said." Tibetan: gzhan dag na re, "others say." The Tibetan could correspond to apare vadanti, "others say," or perhaps it is a misunderstanding of aparampi vutta, "again it is also said." But because gzhan dag na re zhe, is followed by a quotation ending with the end quotation marker zhes zer ro it probably corresponding to apare vadanti, "others say." The Chinese rather would correspond to aparampi vutta. Cf. gzhan dag tu yang gsungs pa =復說. Cf. 復有說, "but/again some say."
zla ba	月	māsa	month (T32n1648_p0406c08)
dbyar	安居	vassāna	the rainy-season (T32n1648_p0406c08). One of the three seasons of the Buddhist monastic calendar year. During the rainy season retreat monks are not supposed to travel without a good reason, have to stay in one residence, etc. See Ṭhānissaro, Buddhist Monastic Code II, Chapter 11.
gyogs par gnas pa	覆處	channa ṭhāna ?	covered dwelling-place (T32n1648_p0406c09)
bcom ldan 'das kyis gnang	佛聽	bhagavatā anuññāta	approved by the Blessed One, sanctioned by the Blessed One (T32n1648_p0406c09)
gnang	聽	anuññāta	approved, sanctioned (T32n1648_p0406c09)
smra ba	說	vāda	proponent, advocate, preacher, one who propounds (T32n1648_p0406c10)
slob pa	學人	sekkha, sekha	trainee, one in training (T32n1648_p0406c15)
so so'i skye bo	凡夫	puthujjana	worldling, commoner (T32n1648_p0406c15)
mtshan nyid	相	lakkhaṇa	characteristic (T32n1648_p0406c16)
mnog	味	rasa	function (T32n1648_p0406c17) Rasa is here used in a technical, exegetical sense used in Pali commentarial literature. Cf. mtshan nyid, 相, lakkhaṇa, and nye bar gnas pa, 起, paccuppaṭṭhāna.

nye bar gnas pa	起	paccuppaṭṭhāna	manifestation (T32n1648_p0406c17) Rasa is here used in a technical, exegetical sense used in Pali commentarial literature. Cf. 相, lakkhaṇa, and mnog, 味, rasa.
rnam pa gcig tu	復次	punacaparaṃ, aparaṃ pi ?	in another way, similarly (Tibetan), again (Chinese). (T32n1648_p0406c18) Bapat renders “according to some” (= ekacca) but it is not clear how he came to this.
ma 'bags pa	無所著	----	non-contamination, non-polluted (Tibetan), non-attachment (Chinese) (T32n1648_p0406c18)
nyes dmigs med pa	無過	anādīnava	non-disadvantage (T32n1648_p0406c18)
brtson par mi 'dor pa	不退	anikkhitta-dhura ?	unrelenting effort, not letting down energy (T32n1648_p0406c18) Variant reading: brtson pa'i mi 'dor pa. Cf. brtson pa mi gtong ba.
thog ma	初	ādi	beginning (T32n1648_p0406c19)
bar ma	中	majjha	beginning (T32n1648_p0406c19)
tha ma	後	pariyosāna	end, final (T32n1648_p0406c19)
---	初中後	ādimajjhapariyosāna	beginning, middle and end (T32n1648_p0406c19)
yang dag par len pa	受	samādāna	undertaking (T32n1648_p0406c19)
sten pa	修行	sevana	practising (T32n1648_p0406c19)
rab tu dga' ba	歡喜	pāmojja	rejoicing (T32n1648_p0406c19)
rnam par grol ba'i lam	解脫道	Vimuttimagga	The Path of Freedom, The Path of Liberation (T32n1648_p0404b16. In the Tibetan the title ཏེ་ཨུ་ཏྤ་ལ་མཐོང་ is given at the start and colophon of the book.)

A compendium giving a detailed description of the path to liberation that was transmitted in the Theravāda/Sthavira school. It scheme is based on virtue, concentration, and wisdom.
The Pali original is extinct, but there is a complete Chinese translation (T32n1648) consisting of twelve chapters.
In Tibetan translation, the complete third chapter is found as a separate text called rnam par grol ba'i lam las sbyangs pa'i yon tan bstan pa zhes bya ba ste kun nas btus pa gsum pa, “‘The Treatise on the Qualities of Purification’ from the Path of Freedom.” See sbyangs pa'i yon tan bstan pa, Dhutaguṇaniddesa.
The last three chapters are, partly abridged, quoted in 'dus byas dang 'dus ma byas rnam par nges pa, the Tibetan translation of the Saṃskṛtāsaṃskṛtaviniścaya, compiled by Daśabalaśrīmitra.

This is an overview of the 12 chapters and their contents.
Chapter 1: Introduction (Nidāna)
Reason for Teaching the Path of Freedom; the Three Groups of Virtue, Concentration, Wisdom; Three Kinds of Good; Three Kinds of Happiness; The Middle Way.
Chapter 2: Analysis of Virtue (Sīla-niddesa) Benefits of Virtue; Defining of Virtue; Stages in Virtue; Obstacles and Causes of Virtue;
Kinds of Virtue; Virtue of the purity of livelihood;
Virtue of the restraint of the sense-faculties; Virtue connected with the Requisites; Reflections; Virtue connected with the use of requisites; Purity of Virtue and its Characteristic; Causes for Virtue.
Chapter 3: The Ascetic Qualities (Dhuṭaguṇa-niddesa)
What are the asceticisms?; The Thirteen Asceticisms; Expedients; Abridgements of the Thirteen; Miscellaneous Topics.
Chapter 4: Analysis of Concentration (Samādhi-niddesa) Meaning of Concentration; Benefits Produced by Concentration; Obstacles, Causes and Requisites of Concentration; Kinds of Concentration; Why Four and Five Jhānas are Taught.
Chapter 5: Searching for a Good Friend Qualities of the Good Friend; the Search for a Good Friend.
Chapter 6: Treatise on Temperaments (Cariyaniddesa) Kinds of Temperament; Fourteen Persons; Seven Persons; Quick and Slow Practice; Three Persons; Seven Aspects of Temperament; What is suitable for which temperament?; Miscellaneous Topics on Distinguishing Temperament.
Chapter 7: Analysis of the Meditation Subjects (Kammaṭṭhānaniddesa) Thirty-Eight Meditation subjects; Distinctions.
Chapter 8: Meditation Methods

Earth kasiṇa—Characteristics, Benefit and Meaning; On Making a Disk; Method of Practice of the Earth kasiṇa; Ways of Taking the Sign; Access-jhāna and Jhāna; Increasing of the Kasiṇa; Skilfulness in Jhāna; First Jhāna; Explanation of First Jhāna and its Factors, Characteristics, Qualities, Hindrances, etc.; Second Jhāna; Third Jhāna; Fourth Jhāna; Attainment of the Base of boundless space; Base of Boundless Consciousness; Base of Nothingness; Base of Neither-perception-nor-non-perception; Miscellaneous Topics on the Attainments; Other Kasiṇas (Water kasiṇa ... Consciousness Kasiṇa); Miscellaneous Topics on the Kasiṇas; Ten Perceptions of the Foul (Perception of the bloated ... Perception of the skeleton); Miscellaneous Topics on Foulness; Ten Recollections: Recollection of the Buddha; Recollection of the Dhamma; Recollection of the Saṅgha; Recollection of Virtue; Recollection of Liberality; Recollection of Deities; Mindfulness of Breathing; Recollection of Death; Recollection of the Body; Recollection of Stilling; The Four Immeasurables: Loving-kindness, Compassion, Appreciative Joy, Equanimity; Defining of the Four Great Entities (dhātuvavatthāna); Grasping the elements in brief and at length; Ten Ways of Defining the Great Entities.
The Base of Nothingness and the Base of Neither-perception-nor-non-perception.

Chapter 9: The Five Direct knowledges (Abhiññā)
Kinds of supernormal power; Supernormal power due to the pervasive force of knowledge; Supernormal power due to the pervasive force of concentration; Supernormal power of the Noble Ones; Supernormal power born of kamma-result; Supernormal power of the meritorious; . Supernormal power sprung from magic knowledge; Supernormal power due to [right] application; Procedure of developing supernormal power; Supernormal power of resolve; ... of miraculous transformation; ... sprung from mind; Miscellaneous Topics on supernormal power; Divine ear; Knowledge of Others' Minds; Recollection of Past Lives; Divine eye; Miscellaneous Topics.

Chapter 10: Treatise on Wisdom (Paññāniddesa)
Definition and Benefits of Wisdom; Kinds of Wisdom.

Chapter 11: The Five Skills (Pañcakosalla)
Aggregate-skill; Aggregate of Matter; Four great entities ; Derived matter; Sense-bases; Remainder of derived matters; Difference between the four great entities and derived matter; Matter to be known in five ways; Kinds of Matters; Aggregate of Feeling; Aggregate of Perception; Aggregate of Formations; Aggregate of Consciousness; Bases and objects; Four Ways of Knowing the Five Aggregates; Sense-base Skill; Five Ways of Knowing the Sense-bases; Element-skill; Dependent arising Skill; Defining the Links; Dependent arising within a single mind-state; Questions on actions, defilements, results, etc.; Dependent Arising to be Known in Seven Ways; Noble Truths Skill; Truth of Suffering; Kinds of suffering; Truth of the Origination of Suffering; Truth of the Cessation of Suffering; Truth of the Path Leading to Cessation of Suffering; Why Four Noble Truths are Taught; Eleven Ways of Knowing the Four Noble Truths

Chapter 12: Analysis of the Truths (Saccaniddesa) Defining the Truth of Suffering; Analysis of the Four Noble Truths; Procedure; Defining the Truth of Origination; Understanding the Source of Suffering; Defining the Truth of Cessation; Defining the Truth of the Path to the Cessation of Suffering; Seeing the characteristics; Grasping the Sign; Grasping the aggregates in three ways; Grasping the Sign of Defilements; Grasping the Sign of Concentration; Grasping the Sign of Insight; Grasping the Sign of the Aggregates; Two ways of grasping of the sign of mind; Rise-and-fall-knowledge; Characteristics of rise and fall in three ways; Acquiring the highest knowledge; Delimitation-of-formations-knowledge ; Dissolution-contemplation Knowledge; Appearing-as-fearful-knowledge; Desire-for-release-knowledge; Conformity-knowledge; Change-of-lineage-knowledge; Path-knowledge; Three fetters; Stream-

kun nas btus pa	品	vagga
sbyangs pa'i yon tan bstan pa		Dhutaguṇaniddesa enterer ; Once-Returner; Non-Returner; Arahant; Three Kinds of Stream-enterer; Rebirth of Once-Returner & Non-Returner; Five Kinds of Non-Returner; The Arahant; Gradual realization of the Fruit; Miscellaneous Topics; Insight; ... The Three Liberations; Hundred thirty-four Defilements (Three Roots of Unwholesomeness; ... Twelve Arisings of Unwholesome Mind); Two attainments; Fruition-attainment; Attainment of the cessation of perception and feeling. chapter (of a text) (T32n1648_p0404b20. In the Tibetan at the conclusion of the book.)

Treatise on the Qualities of Purification. དྭྷུཏགུཎནིདྡེས
The third chapter of the Vimuttimagga, rnam par grol ba'i lam, 解脫道, which was translated into Tibetan by Vidyākaraprabha and Dpal Brtsegs in the early 9th century.

In the colophon of this text (Degé Kanjur D.307, p.139a) it is said: "Translated, proofread, and finalized (bsgyur cing zhus te gtan la phab pa) by the Indian khenpo (mkhan po) Vidyākaraprabha and the chief proofreader-lotsawa (zhu chen gyi lo tsā ba) Venerable Dpal Brtsegs, rgya gar gyi mkhan po Bidyākaraprabha dang zhu chen gyi lo tsā ba bande dpal brtsegs kyis bsgyur cing zhus te gtan la phab pa'o.

It is not known how the text came to Tibet.

There is an critical edition and English translation of this text by P.V. Bapat: Vimuktimārga Dhutaguṇanirdeśa (Delhi, 1964).
The text is found in the following editions of the Kanjur:
Peking Edition No. 0972, mdo sna tshogs, shu 137a3-149a3 (vol.39, p.57)
Derge Edition No. 0306, mngo sde, sa 131b1-139a4.
(= bka' 'gyur/ (sde dge par phud). TBRC W22084. 72: 264 - 279. delhi: delhi karmapae chodhey gyalwae sungrab partun khang, 1976-1979.
http://tbrc.org/link?RID=O1GS12980|O1GS1298001JW13824$W22084.
=
http://www.thlib.org/encyclopedias/literary/canons/kt/catalog.php#cat=d/0307. Retrieved 25.4.2012.) Nartang Edition: la 199a1-218a1. (= bka' 'gyur (snar thang) Volume 72 pages 401 – 439 at TBRC W22703. 72: 401 - 439. [snar thang]: [snar thang dgon pa], 18th cent.
http://tbrc.org/link?RID=O01JW005|O01JW00501JW15895$W22703. Retrieved 25.4.2012.)
Tanjur:
Peking Edition No. 5644, 'dul ba'i 'grel pa, u 197a3-211b8 (vol.127, p.261-266).
Derge Edition No. 4143, 'dul ba, su 161b2-172b7.
Nartang Edition: u 180b5-194a7. (= bstan 'gyur (snar thang). TBRC W22704. 178: 364 - 391. [narthang]: [s.n.], [1800?].
http://tbrc.org/link?RID=O2DB75712|O2DB757122DB79603$W22704. Retrieved 25.4.2012.)
Kinsha: 3643, u 228b1 (p.115-3-1).
(Source: Peking Tripitaka Online Search, The ShinBuddhist Comprehensive Research Institute, Otani University:
http://web.otani.ac.jp/cri/twrp/tibdate/Peking_online_search.html and TBRC Library, http://www.tbrc.org.
Retrieved 25.4.2012.)
It is also found in:
The Golden Tanjur, or bstan 'gyur/ (gser bris ma/), at vol.178, pp.457-492.
(Source: TBRC W23702. 178: 457 - 492. tibet: [snar thang], [17-?].
http://tbrc.org/link?RID=O00CR0008|O00CR000800CR034600$W23702. Retrieved 25.4.2012.)
The Stog Palace manuscript of the Kanjur, bka' 'gyur/ （stog pho brang bris ma/） at Vol. 76, pp.142r–153r.
（TBRC W22083. 76: - . leh: smanrtsis shesrig dpemzod, 1975-1980.
http://tbrc.org/link?RID=O01CT0007|O01CT000701JW27117$W22083. Retrieved 25.4.2012.)

rnam par grol ba'i lam las sbyangs pa'i yon tan bstan pa zhes bya ba bimugtimArgadhutaguNanirdesha		Vimuttimaggadhutaguṇaniddesa
bstan pa	分別	niddesa
rdzogs	已竟	niṭṭhita
rgya gar gyi	---	---
bidyAkaraprabha	---	---

The Urga Kanjur, or bka' 'gyur (urga), at page 264 to 279 in Volume 72 of Work W29468.
(TBRC W29468. 72: 264 - 279. new delhi: international academy of indian culture, 1990-1994. http://tbrc.org/link?RID=O1PD19510|O1PD195101PD19933$W29468. Retrieved 25.4.2012.)
The Lhasa Kanjur, bka' 'gyur (lha sa), at pp. 408–431 in Volume 72 of Work W26071.
(TBRC W26071. 72: 408 - 431. lha sa: zhol bka' 'gyur par khang, [194-]. http://tbrc.org/link?RID=O1PD11016|O1PD110161PD11420$W26071 Retrieved 25.4.2012.)
In a modern Chinese edition of the Kanjur called zhong hua da zang jing gan zhu er (dui kuan ben) or bka' 'gyur/ (dpe bsdur ma/). TBRC W1PD96682. 72: 384 - 402. pe cin/: krung go'i bod rig pa'i dpe skrun khang /, 2006-2009. http://tbrc.org/link?RID=O1PD112371|O1PD1123711PD1127931PD119224$W1PD96682. Retrieved 25.4.2012.)

See also P.V. Bapat, Vimuktimārga Dhutaguṇanirdeśa, Delhi, 1964, pp.xiv–xv.

In the concise catalogue to the Lhasa edition of the Kanjur this text is called "The Sūtra of the Treatise on the Qualities of Purification," sbyangs pa'i yon tan bstan pa'i mdo; see "A Concise Catalogue to the Precious Translated Words of the Conqueror," rgyal ba bka' 'gyur rin po che'i chos tshan so so'i mtshan byang dkar chag bsdus pa bzhugs so; grangs 202 ba 3: nas rnam par grol ba'i lam la sbyangs pa'i yon tan bstan pa'i mdo/ rgya gar gyi mkhan po bidy'a ka ra pra bha dang/ lo ts'a ba bande dpal brtsegs kyis bsgyur cing zhus pa:
"The Sūtra of the Treatise on the Qualities of Purification" in the Path of Freedom; translated and proofread (zhus pa) by the Indian khenpo (or "scholar, preceptor" mkhan po) Vidyākaraprabha and the lotsawa venerable Dpal Brtsegs."
(http://rywiki.tsadra.org/index.php/A_Concise_Catalogue_to_the_Precious_Translated_Words_of_the_Conqueror [retrieved 2.04.2012])
The "Treatise on the Qualities of Purification" from the Path of Freedom. Tibetan: དེ་མཐུ་གཏམ་སྐོམ་ཆ་ཤས་ཀྱི་རྣམ་
See sbyangs pa'i yon tan bstan pa and rnam par grol ba'i lam
Skt. Vimuktimārgadhutaguṇanirdeśa. Tibetan: དེ་མཐུ་གཏམ་སྐོམ་ཆ་ཤས་ཀྱི་རྣམ་ or དེ་མཐུ་ཀ་སྐོམ་ཆ་ཤས་ཀྱི་རྣམ་.
bimugtimArgadhutaguNanirdesha or bimugtimārgadhutaguṇanirdesha is the transliteration of the Indic title as given in the introduction to the Tibetan text.
Bapat reads དེ་མཐུ་ཀ་སྐོམ་, bimuktimārga (although his handwritten superscript i at ཀ is oddly written) instead of THL Derge edition's དེ་མཐུ་གཏམ་, vimuktimārga (D.307, p.131b. See http://www.thlib.org/encyclopedias/literary/canons/kt/catalog.php#cat=d/0307. Retrieved 24.4.2012.)
exposition, detailed explanation (T32n1648_p0400b29, etc.)
finished (Used at the end of sections, chapter, books. Not in the Chinese in this chapter, but found at T32n1648_p0455c15, etc.)
Indian, of India
Vidyākaraprabha.
The name of the Indian co-translator of the sbyangs pa'i yon tan bstan pa, or Dhutaguṇaniddesa, "Treatise on the Qualities of Purification." The third chapter of the Vimuttimagga, rnam par grol ba'i lam, 解脫道.
In the colophon of the sbyangs pa'i yon tan bstan pa (Degé Kanjur D.307, p.139a) it is stated that he was a preceptor / scholar / khenpo (mkhan po = upajjhāya, paṇḍita, khenpo) from India (rgya gar gyi) and that he helped translating the work under the supervision of the chief proofreader/editor-lotsawa Tibetan monk Dpal Brtsegs (zhu chen gyi lo tsā ba bande dpal brtsegs.).
He worked in Tibet the first half of the 9th century during the first translation period.
Variant transliterations of his name in the manuscripts of the sbyangs pa'i yon tan bstan pa as lo tsA ba	--	--- given by P.V. Bapat are: bidyākara prabha, bidyakarprabha, bid kir prabha.

In the concise catalogue to the Lhasa xylograph edition of the Kanjur "A Concise Catalogue to the Precious Translated Words of the Conqueror," (rgyal ba bka' 'gyur rin po che'i chos tshan so so'i mtshan byang dkar chag bsdus pa bzhugs so)* his name is spelled as bidy'a ka ra pra bha.
(* This is one of the two catalogues to the Lhasa Kanjur xylograph, created in 1934.)
Vidyākaraprabha's name is mentioned more than a dozen times in the catalogue, sometimes he is said to be a preceptor/scholar (mkhan po) and sometimes a paṇḍita (paNDi ta), suggesting that mkhan po means paṇḍita, "scholar" rather than preceptor, upajjhāya.

His name is also given as as bi tya' ka ra pra bha (http://rywiki.tsadra.org/index.php/rnga_bo_che_chen_po%27i_mdo. [retrieved 2.04.2012]) and and bity' ka ra pra bha.

Vidyākaraprabha was invited to Tibet by King Ralpacan (817–836) and also translated the Udānavarga (ched du brjod pa'i tshom) into Tibetan. He was also connected to the Tibetan translations of the Vinaya-vastu, Prātimokṣa-sūtra, and Vinaya-vibhaṅga, Vinaya-kṣudraka-vastu, and Bhikṣunī-vinaya-vibhaṅga.
(See P.V. Bapat, Vimuktimārga Dhutaguṇanirdeśa, Delhi, 1964, pp.xvii.)
Vidyākaraprabha also co-translated the Phar phyin 'grel mchan gzhan phan snang, commentary on the Abhisamayālaṃkāra-prajñāpāramitāupadeśa-śāstra-vṛtti by Haribhadra (See http://rywiki.tsadra.org/index.php/gzhung_chen_bcu_gsum_gyi_mchan_%E2%80%99grel [retrieved 2.04.2012])
He was also the co-translator of 'phags pa rnga dbo che chen po'i mdo/ phags pa srnga dbo che chen po'i mdo (=Sūtra of the Great Drum; Skt. Mahabheriharaka-parinirvana. T 222) alongside Dpal Brtsegs; see "A Concise Catalogue to the Precious Translated Words of the Conqueror," (rgyal ba bka' 'gyur rin po che'i chos tshan so so'i mtshan byang dkar chag bsdus pa bzhugs so) grangs 141 na 3.
The same catalogue mentions him also in relation to other suttas and dhāraṇis: 'phags pa nyi ma'i snying po'i mdo (grangs 145 na 3); 'phags pa 'gro ba thams cad yongs su skyob par byed pa'i bsngo ba'i mdo (grangs 168 na 6). Udānavarga, ched du brjod pa'i tshom, (grangs 320 ba 7); nor bu rgyas pa'i gzhal med khang gi gsang ba'i tshig zhib mo (grangs 437 ba 1); de bzhin gshegs pa'i gsang ba ring bsrelgyi za ma tog gi gzungs (grangs 504 ba 2).
According to this catalogue, he also worked with other Indian monks called: dharm'a ka ra = Dharmakara, who was from Kashmir (kha che'i mkhan po dharm'a ka ra = "Kashmiri Preceptor Dharmakara") and sarba dzny'a de wa = Sarvajñadeva, and dharmma shr'i pra bha = Dharmaśrīprabha.
lotsawa (= transliteration). Editor, translation-supervisor.
A lotsawa is a Tibetan scholar who worked with Indian translators to make translations of Indic Buddhist texts into Tibetan. He made the final decisions as to the Tibetan translation. See "Colophonic Phrases" and "Translation Glossary for Text Cataloging" by THL staff at http://www.thlib.org/tools/wiki/Colophonic%20Phrases.html and http://www.thlib.org/tools/wiki/Translation%20Glossary.html [Retrieved: 15.4.2012].

In sbyangs pa'i yon tan bstan pa (Degé Kanjur D.307, p.139a) it is said that the chief proofreader-lotsawa venerable Dpal Brtsegs (zhu chen gyi lo tsā ba bande dpal brtsegs) worked with Vidyākaraprabha, the preceptor from India (rgy gar gyi mkhan po bidyākaraprabha).

In the sbyangs pa'i yon tan bstan pa spelled as lo tsā ba.
In other texts spelled as lo tsA ba, lo tsa ba, lo tsaa ba, lo ts'a ba, lo tsa' ba and lotsawa.
Rangjung Yeshe: "Lotsawa, Skt. locchava. Tibetan bande

Dpal Brtsegs

bsgyur cing zhus te gtan la phab pa

@@@@@

translators of the canonical texts who usually worked closely with Indian panditas. The title literally means 'bilingual' (skad gnyis smra ba) or the 'eyes of the world' ('jig rten mig).”
The word “locchava” cannot be found in Sanskrit but presumably it corresponds to locana or locaka.
Variant spelling of ban de: venerable, Buddhist monk. Perhaps a transliteration of bhadanta (Pali, Sanskrit)/bhante (Pali), which is a respectful addressing for a Buddhist monk.
The name of the chief-proofreader-translation-supervisor (zhu chen gyi lo tsa ba) who worked with Vidyākaraprabha to translate the sbyangs pa'i yon tan bstan pa, Dhutaguṇaniddesa, “Treatise on the Qualities of Purification.” The third chapter of the Vimuttimagga, rnam par grol ba'i lam, 解脫道. (Degé Kanjur D.307, p.139a) Dpal Brtsegs worked in the first translation period of Tibetan Buddhism which was instigated by King Ralpacan (817–836).
He was also the translator of the Spuṭārthā Abhidharmakośavyākhyā, and worked with Bidyākaraprabha to translate the Vinaya-vastu and Bhikṣunī-vinaya-vibhaṅga; see P.V. Bapat, Vimuktimārga Dhutaguṇanirdeśa, Delhi, 1964, pp.xvii.
He also translated Shantideva's Bodhisattvacaryāvatāra into Tibetan together with the Indian preceptor Sarvajñadeva (rgya gar gyi mkhan po sarba dzny'a de ba).
In the sbyangs pa'i yon tan bstan pa/ Dhutaguṇaniddesa he is called, “chief questioner-comparer venerable Dpal Brtsegs,” zhu chen gyi lo tsā ba bande dpal brtsegs.
Cf. bsgyur cing zhus.
translated, proofread, and finalized.
Three stages in the translation work as given in the colophon of the sbyangs pa'i yon tan bstan pa, Dhutaguṇaniddesa, “Treatise on the Qualities of Purification.” (Degé Kanjur D.307, p.139a)
See “Colophonic Phrases” and “Translation Glossary for Text Cataloging” by THL staff at http://www.thlib.org/tools/wiki/Colophonic%20Phrases.html and http://www.thlib.org/tools/wiki/Translation%20Glossary.html [Retrieved: 15.4.2012].

Chinese English Pali

DDB entries Part 1

Words Not in DDB

毘婆奢那: insight, vipassanā, transliteration. See 毘婆舍那 and 觀. T09n0268_p0270a06, T16n0658_p0229c28, T16n0675_p0668a18, T32n1648_p0454c11–14.
無怨: without enmity, avera, (as a characteristic of a mind with mettā). T32n1648_p0435b29–30, T32n1648_p0435c14, T32n1648_p0436b26.
味: function, rasa. Exegetical term used to describe the function of a state such as sati, kasiṇa, upekkhā, jhāna, buddhānussati, etc., T32n1648_p0400c01, etc. (See A. K. Warder, The Path of Discrimination, London, 1982, p. xviii.)
足處: near cause, footing, padaṭṭhāna. Exegetical term used to describe the cause for the arising of a state such as sati, kasiṇa, jhāna, upekkhā, buddhānussati, etc., T32n1648_p0400c01. Later in the Vimuttimagga just 處 is used, see T32n1648_p0406c23, T32n1648_p0419b08, etc
起: manifestation, paccupaṭṭhāna. Exegetical term used to describe the manifestation of a state such as sati, kasiṇa, jhāna, upekkhā, buddhānussati, etc., T32n1648_p0400c01, etc 功德: benefit, ānisaṃsa. Exegetical term used to describe the benefits of states such as sati, kasiṇa, jhāna, upekkhā, buddhānussati, etc. T32n1648_p0400c01, etc.
行處: meditation subject, meditation topic, kammaṭṭhāna, Skt. karmasthāna, T32n1648_p0411a16, T32n1648_p0413c08, etc. See 三十八行處.
三十八行處: thirty-eight meditation subjects, aṭṭhatiṃsa kammaṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0411a16; T32n1648_p0411a08. All the meditation subjects taught by the Buddha as listed in the Vimuttimagga and Pali commentaries, that is, (1–10) the ten totalities or kasiṇas (kasiṇa, 一切入)—earth-kasiṇa (paṭhavīkasiṇa, 地一切入), water-kasiṇa (āpokasiṇa, 水一切入), fire-kasiṇa (tejokasiṇa, 火一切入), wind-kasiṇa (vāyokasiṇa, 風一切入), blue-kasiṇa (nīlakasiṇa, 青一切入), yellow-kasiṇa (pītakasiṇa, 黃一切入), red-kasiṇa (lohitakasiṇa, 赤一切入), white-kasiṇa (odātakasiṇa, 白一切入), space-kasiṇa (ākāsakasiṇa, 虛空一切入), and the consciousness-kasiṇa (viññāṇakasiṇa, 識一切入)—; (11–20) the ten perceptions of the foul (asubhasaññā, 不淨想), namely, the perception of bloatedness (膖脹想) , the perception of discolouration (青淤想), the perception of festering (爛想), the perception of the dismembered (棄擲想), the perception of the gnawed (鳥獸食噉想), the perception of the cut and the dismembered (身肉分張想), the perception of the fissured (斬斫離散想), the perception of the blood-stained (赤血塗染想), the perception of the maggot-infested (虫臭想) and the perception of the skeleton (骨想); (21–30) the ten recollections (念, sati, anussati), namely, recollection of the Buddha (buddhānussati, 念佛), recollection of the Dhamma (dhammānussati, 法念 recollection of the Saṅgha (saṅghānussati, 僧念), recollection of virtue (sīlānussati, 戒念), recollection of liberality (cāgānussati, 施念), recollection of deities (devatānussati, 天念), recollection of death (maraṇānussati, 死念), recollection of the body (kāyagatāsati, 念身), mindfulness of breathing (ānāpānasati, 數息念), recollection of stilling (upasamānussati, 念寂寂); (31–34) the four immeasurables (appamāṇāni, 無量心): loving-kindness (mettā, 慈), compassion (karuṇā, 悲), appreciative joy (muditā, 喜), equanimity (upekkhā, 捨); (35) the defining of the four great elements (dhātu-vavatthāna, 觀四大); (36) the perception of the loathsomeness of food (āhāre paṭikkūlasaññā, 食不淨想); (37) the base of nothingness (ākiñcaññāyatana, 無所有處), and (38) the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception (nevasaññānāsaññāyatana, 非非想處).
三十八行: thirty-eight meditation subjects. T32n1648_p0411a08; T32n1648_p0454c09. See 三十八行處.
業處: meditation subject, kammaṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0413c10. Alternative translation of kammaṭṭhāna, instead of 行處.
一切入: totality, wholeness; kasiṇa, kasiṇāyatana. Cf. Skt: kṛtsna. T32n1648_p0411a10. Cf. T11n0310_p0533c13; T17n0761_p0621b05; etc. A type of meditation subject that the Buddha taught for the purpose of attaining samādhi. There are eleven kinds of kasiṇa discussed in the Vimuttimagga: earth-kasiṇa (paṭhavīkasiṇa, 地一切入), water-kasiṇa (āpokasiṇa, 水一切入), fire-kasiṇa (tejokasiṇa, 火一切入), wind-kasiṇa (vāyokasiṇa, 風一切入), blue-kasiṇa (nīlakasiṇa, 青一切入), yellow-kasiṇa (pītakasiṇa, 黃一切入), red-kasiṇa (lohitakasiṇa, 赤一切入), white-kasiṇa (odātakasiṇa, 白一切入), light-kasiṇa (光明一切入, also 光一切入), space-kasiṇa (ākāsakasiṇa, 虛空一切入), and the consciousness-kasiṇa (viññāṇakasiṇa, 識一切入). Excepting the light kasina, which would be included in the white kasiṇa, they are included in the thirty-eight meditation subjects, aṭṭhatiṃsa kammaṭṭhāna, 三十八行處 as the ten kasiṇas, 十一切入.
In the case of the colour kasiṇas, to develop kasiṇa, the meditator at first watches a disk (maṇḍala, 曼陀羅) with a colour applied to it, and develops a mental visual image of it, called the grasping sign (uggaha-nimitta, 取相) which he can see in his mind with closed eyes. This is image is then further developed until a flawless mind-made counterpart-sign (paṭibhāga-nimitta, 分相) can be attained whenever the meditator wishes. Either in access-concentration or fixed-concentration, this sign is gradually extended until it covers the whole world and even further. See Visuddhimagga (Path of Purification) chapter IV and Vimuttimagga (Path of Freedom) chapter VIII. Each kasiṇa ha particular benefits, etc, e.g. one who practices the fire-kasiṇa can ignite things by psychic power. See Visuddhimagga (Path of Purification) chapter V.28–37 (pp. 175–176) and Vimuttimagga (Path of Freedom) chapter VIII.
分別虛空一切入, separated space kasiṇa, paricchinnākāsakasiṇa, T32n1648_p0411b14, T32n1648_p0442a13.
分相: counterpart sign, paṭibhāga-nimitta. T32n1648_p0413c25 and 29. A type of sign, nimitta, that arises during the development of the kasiṇa (一切入) meditation subjects. It is a flawless, mind-made, counterpart of the kasiṇa-disk and supersedes the imperfect uggaha-nimitta, 取相, and can be attained whenever wished; see 一切入.
曼陀羅: disk, maṇḍala. T32n1648_p0412c06 & c18–20. A disk with a colour applied to it that is used as the basis for developing the kasiṇa (一切入) meditation subjects; see 一切入.
脹: bloated, swollen, part of uddhumāta, 膖脹 (in uddhumātakasaññā, 膖脹想) = 膨脹 in DDB. See MDBG: 脹: dropsical / swollen / to swell / to be bloated 胀.
膖脹想: the perception of the bloated; uddhumātakasaññā. One of the ten perceptions of foulness (不淨想) where the meditator contemplates a dead human body in various stages of decay.
十不淨想: ten perceptions of the fould, dasa asubhasaññā, T32n1648_p0411a11. Paṭis I 49: Dasa samādhī: ... uddhumātakasaññāvasena ... vinīlakasaññāvasena ... vipubbakasaññāvasena... vicchiddakasaññāvasena ... vikkhāyitakasaññāvasena ... vikkhittakasaññāvasena... hatavikkhittakasaññāvasena... lohitakasaññāvasena ... puḷavakasaññāvasena ... aṭṭhikasaññāvasena cittassa ekaggatā avikkhepo samādhi.
三地: the three planes (of existence), tebhūmi: kāmāvacara, the sensual realm, rūpāvacara, the material realm, arūpāvacara, the immaterial realm, T32n1648_p0445a18, etc.
四地: the four planes (of existence), i.e. the three planes (tebhūmi): kāmāvacara, the sensual realm, rūpāvacara, the material realm, arūpāvacara, the immaterial realm, and the apariyāpanna, the unincluded, i.e., the asaṅkhata, unconditioned, Nibbāna. T32n1648_p0445a18, etc.
無所受: unincluded, apariyāpanna, T32n1648_p0407b28
所受: included, pariyāpanna, T32n1648_p0407b28
初學梵行: fundamental to the holy life, ādibrahmacariyaka, T32n1648_p0401c08
梵行之初學: training rules which are fundamentals of the holy life, ādibrahmacariyaka-sikkhāpada, T32n1648_p0401c06f
微細: small and minor, khuddakānukāni, T32n1648_p0401c07
學微細: small and minor training rules, khuddhakānukāni sikkhāpadāni, T32n1648_p0401c07
輕戒 = lit, “minor virtue” or “minor precepts,” synonymous with 學微細戒, “minor training rules.” T32n1648_p0401c08
妙相: discernment, consideration, sallakkhaṇa, 444c09
作分明處: cleaning the physical basis/site, vatthuvisadakiriyā, T32n1648_p0414b23, T32n1648_p0414c23. The cleaning of the body and surroundings as a supportive condition for meditation. Dhs-ṭ 70 (Be): Vatthuvisadakiriyāti ajjhattikabāhirānaṃ vatthūnaṃ nimmalabhāvakiriyā. At T32n1648_p0414b20 處明淨 is used instead.
非世: bad people, dujjana? T32n1648_p0444c20
身性: nature of body, kāya-sabhāva, T32n1648_p0432c16f, T32n1648_p0433a11. Normally身性 means attabhāva, “self-hood.”

堅戒: stable virtue, dhuvasīla, T32n1648_p0401c11
上戒, firm virtue, ṭhitasīla, T32n1648_p0401c11
傲慢: pride, haughtiness, intoxicated pride, mada, T32n1648_p0401b07
轉散 turning away, vivaṭṭana, T32n1648_p0400c23
正智: comprehension, awareness, sampajañña T32n1648_p0419b14ff
最多: more, most (element more dominant than others), T32n1648_p0439b23, T32n1648_p0445c29, T32n1648_p0443b05, T32n1648_p0443c01
最少: less, least T32n1648_p0439b23
最多: at most, maximum, utmost, T32n1648_p0422b08.
最多: in predominance, as the most, adhika, T32n1648_p0410a22.
最多境界: multiplicity of objects, T32n1648_p0422b08
念慧 , mindfulness and wisdom, sati-paññā, T32n1648_p0401a03 ‖
此門此行: through these ways and means T32n1648_p0428a18, etc
中道具足: middle way, middle practice, majjhima paṭipadā T32n1648_p0400b21 & 24 & 25
道具足: way, practice, paṭipadā (as in dukkhanirodhagāmanipaṭipadā) T32n1648_p0402b13 & 17
具足: way, practice, paṭipadā, T32n1648_p0454a23
欲定勝行相應如意足: basis of supernormal power which is endowed with the activities of endeavour and the concentration due to zeal, chanda-samādhi-padhāna-saṅkhāra-samannāgata-iddhipāda, T32n1648_p0441c18. It is one of the four bases of supernormal power, 四如意足.
欲定勝行成就如意足: basis of supernormal power which is endowed with the activities of endeavour and the concentration due to zeal, chanda-samādhi-padhāna-saṅkhāra-samannāgata-iddhipāda, T32n1648_p0441c27–28. It is one of the four bases of supernormal power, 四如意足.
精進定勝行成就如意足: basis of supernormal power which is endowed with the activities of endeavour and the concentration due to energy, vīriya-samādhi-padhāna-saṅkhāra-samannāgata-iddhipāda, T32n1648_p0442a01. It is one of the four bases of supernormal power, 四如意足.
心定勝行成就如意足: basis of supernormal power which is endowed with the activities of endeavour and the concentration due to mind, citta-samādhi-padhāna-saṅkhāra-samannāgata-iddhipāda, T32n1648_p0442a03. It is one of the four bases of supernormal power, 四如意足.
分別定勝行成就如意足: basis of supernormal power which is endowed with the activities of endeavour and the concentration due to investigation (vīmaṃsa-samādhi-padhāna-saṅkhāra-samannāgata-iddhipāda, T32n1648_p0442a05–6. It is one of the four bases of supernormal power, 四如意足. The abbreviated form is 慧定 at T32n1648_p0441c19, so one would rather expect 慧定勝行成就如意足.
分別, investigation, vīmaṃsā, T32n1648_p0442a05–6.
四如意足: four bases of supernormal power, cattāro iddhipādā. T32n1648_p0442a06, T32n1648_p0442c01, etc. They are (1): 欲定勝行成就如意足: basis of supernormal power which is endowed with the activities of endeavour and the concentration due to zeal, chanda-samādhi-padhāna-saṅkhāra-samannāgata-iddhipāda; (2) 精進定勝行成就如意足: basis of supernormal power which is endowed with the activities of endeavour and the concentration due to energy, vīriya-samādhi-padhāna-saṅkhāra-samannāgata-iddhipāda; (3) 精進定勝行成就如意足: basis of supernormal power which is endowed with the activities of endeavour and the concentration due to energy, vīriya-samādhi-padhāna-saṅkhāra-samannāgata-iddhipāda; (4) 分別定勝行成就如意足: basis of supernormal power which is endowed with the activities of endeavour and the concentration due to investigation, vīmaṃsa-samādhi-padhāna-saṅkhāra-samannāgata-iddhipāda.
Cf. Visuddhimagga XII.50–53/ 385. Translated in Bhikkhu Ñāṇamoli, The Path of Purification, XII.50–53. Cf. D I 213: Idha bho bhikkhu chandasamādhippadhāna-saṅkhārasamannāgataṃ iddhipādaṃ bhāveti. Vīriyasamādhippadhānasaṅkhārasamannāgataṃ iddhipādaṃ bhāveti. Cittasamādhippadhānasaṅkhārasamannāgataṃ iddhipādaṃ bhāveti. Vīmaṃsāsamādhippadhānasaṅkhārasamannāgataṃ iddhipādaṃ bhāveti. Ime kho, bho, tena bhagavatā jānatā passatā arahatā sammāsambuddhena cattāro iddhipādā paññattā iddhipahutāya iddhivisavitāya iddhivikubbanatāya.
如意足: basis of supernormal power, Pali: iddhipāda. See 四如意足.
欲定, concentration due to zeal, chanda-samādhi, T32n1648_p0407c16, T32n1648_p0441c18. Used by itself and as part of the chanda-samādhi-padhāna-saṅkhāra-samannāgata-iddhipāda, see 四如意足.
精進定, concentration due to energy, vīriya-samādhi, T32n1648_p0407c16, T32n1648_p0441c19. Used by itself and as part of the vīriya-samādhi-padhāna-saṅkhāra-samannāgata-iddhipāda; see 四如意足.
心定: concentration due to mind, citta-samādhi, T32n1648_p0407c16, T32n1648_p0441c19. Used by itself and as part of the citta -samādhi-padhāna-saṅkhāra-samannāgata-iddhipāda, see 四如意足.
慧定: concentration due to investigation, vīmaṃsā-samādhi, T32n1648_p0407c16, T32n1648_p0441c19. Used by itself and as part of the vīmaṃsā-samādhi-padhāna-saṅkhāra-samannāgata-iddhipāda, see 四如意足.
聖種: lineage of the noble ones, noble lineage, ariyavaṃsa: T32n1648_p0404b26
寂寂 serenity, samatha, T32n1648_p0417a15
展轉緣: mutuality-condition, aññamaññā-paccaya, T32n1648_p0439c18
生緣: producing-condition, janaka-paccaya, T32n1648_p0439c14
業緣: kamma-condition, kamma-paccaya, T32n1648_p0439c14
依緣: decisive-support-condition, upanissaya-paccaya or support condition, nissaya-paccaya T32n1648_p0439c14
共生緣: conascence condition, sahajāta-paccaya T32n1648_p0439c15
後生緣: postnascence condition, pacchājāta-paccaya T32n1648_p0439c15
報緣, result-condition, vipāka-paccaya T32n1648_p0439c15
有緣: presence-condition, atthi-paccaya T32n1648_p0439c15
迅速: activation, javana T32n1648_p0448b08, etc.
行想 delimitation of formations, saṅkhāraparicchedа, T32n1648_p0454a02–03, T32n1648_p0454a02–03, T32n1648_p0453c16
離疑清淨: purification of overcoming doubt, kaṅkhāvitaraṇavisuddhi, T32n1648_p0454a14
取因緣智: knowledge of the apprehending of conditions, paccaya-pariggaha-ñāṇa, T32n1648_p0454a14
法住智: knowledge of the stability of the Dhamma, dhammaṭṭhitiñāṇa, T32n1648_p0454a13
見清淨: purification of view, diṭṭhivisuddhi
我物: mine, cherished, mama, mamāyita, T32n1648_p0450b04
安隱: comfort, ease, phāsu, T32n1648_p0410c10, T32n1648_p0408c02, T32n1648_p0403c03-04, T32n1648_p0404b02.
安樂: comfort, ease, phāsu; T32n1648_p0402a12, T32n1648_p0403c11
氣味: nutritive essence, ojā, T32n1648_p0446a26-27
心數: mental, cetasika, (in oppossition to kāyika, bodily). T32n1648_p0416b16–17.
夾: track, process, path, vīthi as part of 夾勝心.
夾勝心 = process of mind, vīthicitta, T32n1648_p0449a08, 449b05, 449c16 (Cf. MDBG: 夾 jiáhold between / lined / narrow lane) 調戲: restlessness, agitation, uddhacca, T32n1648_p0400c11, T32n1648_p0407b03, T32n1648_p0447c12. In the sense of “flirting, flattering, frivolousness” at T32n1648_p0402c02.
制名: designation, paññatti, T32n1648_p0416c14, T32n1648_p0449a28
昱, bright light, T32n1648_p0449b02 (see MDBG)
戲笑: merriment, pahāsa, T32n1648_p0437c09, at T32n1648_p0415c21

睛 (v.l. 精): sensitivity (of sense-faculties), clearness, pasāda T32n1648_p0445c27, see alternative form 清淨 below.
眼睛: eye-sensitivity, cakkhu-pasāda, T32n1648_p0445c27
清淨: sensitivity (of sense-faculties), clearness, pasāda, T32n1648_p0445c29, T32n1648_p0446a02
清淨色: sensitive matter, T32n1648_p0445c29-446a01
眼識清淨: eye-sensitivity, cakkhu-pasāda, T32n1648_p0446a02
狎俗: close contact, close association, saṃsagga, T32n1648_p0414a09, T32n1648_p0405b28, T32n1648_p0401b09
節於食: moderation regarding food, bhojane mattaññutā T32n1648_p0414a09 節於食: moderation, mataññutā T32n1648_p0414a09. See 節於食.
有用: fit, useful, T32n1648_p0414c29. See MDBG
堪任有用: capable and fit, kammanīya (?), T32n1648_p0414c29
堪任: ready, fit, T32n1648_p0424b17
處色: matter as basis, material basis, vatthurūpa, T32n1648_p0445c25, T32n1648_p0446b08. Vatthurūpa is a Pali commentarial term, used to denote the material basis for consciousness. It is a synonym for hadayavatthu, "heart basis," which may have been introduced by the Theravada commentator Buddhaghosa.
整肅 dignified, T32n1648_p0401a23-24, T32n1648_p0403a06. (MDBG:整肅zhěngsùstrict / serious / solemn / dignified. Dr. Eye: strict; rigid; stern 翻譯名義大集整1 (audārikam(odārikam)) (rags la'am che long ngam che ba'am sbom pa)【類別】大小高低等) 光明相: perception of light, ālokasaññā, T32n1648_p0400c10. A perception used to overcome sleepiness, thīnamiddha (D I 71, A IV 86) and for developing concentration that leads to knowledge and vision, ñāṇadassana (D III 222, S V 358).
無可樂: boredom, non-delight, arati, T32n1648_p0400c12
虛空處: base of boundless space, ākāsānañcāyatana T32n1648_p0421a27, etc.
悅勝: rejoicing, abhippamoda, T32n1648_p0401a05
撲 : to assault, T32n1648_p0448a09–10 (共相撲: assaulting each other). MDBG: 撲 pū, to assault / to pounce / to rush at / to throw oneself on 相似: conformity, conformable, anulomika, T32n1648_p0445a23 相似忍: conformable acceptance, anulomikā khanti, T32n1648_p0445a23, etc.
相似智: conformity-knowledge, anulomañāṇa, T32n1648_p0457a06
隨諦相應智: knowledge in conformity with the truths, saccānulomika-ñāṇa. T32n1648_p0445a21, T32n1648_p0445a10
自作業: ownership of kamma, kammassakata/karmasvakaḥ T32n1648_p0445a10, T32n1648_p0445a21
自作業智: knowledge of ownership of kamma, kammassakata-ñāṇa T32n1648_p0445a10, T32n1648_p0445a21
無想梵天: non-percipient brahmā gods asaññasatta: T32n1648_p0446c22
無想天眾: non-percipient beings, asaññasatta: T32n1648_p0447a09
無記: undetermined, avyākata, T32n1648_p0447b08
有記: determinate, vyākata, T32n1648_p0445a20, T32n1648_p0445a26–27, T32n1648_p0445b09, T32n1648_p0453a15–16
非乘: leading out (of saṃsāra), niyyānika, T32n1648_p0447b09 可知, to be understood, pariññeyya, T32n1648_p0453b06, Tibetan: shes par bya ba 可斷, to be abandoned, pahātabba, T32n1648_p0453b06, Tibetan: spangs par bya ba 可證: to be realized, sacchikātabba, T32n1648_p0453b06 Tibetan: mngon du bya ba 可應修: to be developed, bhāvetabba, T32n1648_p0453b06, Tibetan: bsgom par bya ba 身羸: wearying oneself, self-wearying, attakilamatha, T32n1648_p0400b22, T32n1648_p0406b27. One of the two extremes (the other being indulgence in sensuality) the Buddha avoided to realize the Middle Way, majjhima paṭipadā; see the Dhammacakkappavattana Sutta, S V 420: Dveme, bhikkhave, antā pabbajitena na sevitabbā. Katame dve? Yo cāyaṃ kāmesu kāmasukhallikānuyogo hīno gammo pothujjaniko anariyo anatthasaṃhito, yo cāyaṃ attakilamathānuyogo dukkho anariyo anatthasaṃhito. Ete kho, bhikkhave, ubho ante anupagamma majjhimā paṭipadā tathāgatena abhisambuddhā.)
羸, wearying, fatigue, kilamatha, T32n1648_p0400b22, T32n1648_p0406b27. See 身羸.
資用, requisite, prerequisite, accessory, equipment, parikkhāra, sambhāra; T32n1648_p0401c04, T32n1648_p0401c23
定資: the requisites/accessories for concentration, samādhi-parikkhāra: T32n1648_p0407b06 (See A IV 40: Sattime, bhikkhave, samādhiparikkhārā. Katame satta? Sammādiṭṭhi, sammāsaṅkappo, sammāvācā, sammākammanto, sammāājīvo, sammāvāyāmo, sammāsati. Yā kho, bhikkhave, imehi sattahaṅgehi cittassekaggatā parikkhatā, ayaṃ vuccati, bhikkhave, ariy sammāsamādhi saupaniso itipi saparikkhāro itipī ti. A-a*: samādhiparikkhārā ti maggasamādhissa sambhārā.*)
解脫資用 : requisites for liberation, vimuttisambhāra, T32n1648_p0401c04 資用入道: the requisites for entering upon the Path, maggasambhāra, T32n1648_p0401c23 (Cf. Pet 148: Jhānasambhārā nekkhammavitakko sambhāro kāmavitakkavinodanādhippāyatā. Abyāpādavitakko sambhāro byāpādavitakkapaṭivinodanādhippāyatā. Avihiṃsāvitakko sambhāro vihiṃsāvitakkapaṭivinodanādhippāyatā. Indriyesu guttadvāratā appicchatā sambhāro parisuddhājīvo catunnaṃ samāpattīnaṃ sambhāro akammassa vihāritā. Maggasambhāro samāpattipajjanatā. Phalasambhāro jhānanibbattitāya jhānasamudāgamo.)
資具: requisite, prerequisite, accessory, equipment, parikkhāra, sambhāra, T32n1648_p0416a16, T32n1648_p0416a18, T32n1648_p0417a08
資具樂: happiness as prerequisite, sambhārasukha, T32n1648_p0416a16, T32n1648_p0416a18
諸善資具: prerequisite for goodness, kalyāṇa-parikkhāra, T32n1648_p0417a08
(Cf. DDB entry: 十六資具.)
升, a measure, shēng, T32n1648_p0439c01. See MDBG: 升 shēng to raise / to hoist / to promote / metric liter (also written 公升) / measure for dry grain equal to one-tenth dou 斗 僧伽梨欝多羅僧安陀會, transliterations of 僧伽梨, double layered outer robe of Buddhist monk, saṅghāṭi; 欝多羅僧, single layered outer robe of Buddhist monk, uttarāsaṅga, 安陀會: the under-robe, a robe worn around the waist, covering the body from the navel to the knees, antaravāsaka, (cf. 安陀衛). These are the three robes (ticīvara) of a Buddhist monk, T32n1648_p0405a02.
如達: penetration of reality, = yathāsabhāvapaṭivedha, T32n1648_p0444c12
強: stiffness, rigidity, thaddha. T32n1648_p0439a26
澤: moisture, T32n1648_p0439b06. (Cf. MDBG: 澤 zé pool / pond / (of metals etc) lustre / favor or beneficence / damp / moist.)
共起: accompanied by, sahagata T32n1648_p0447b09
樂共起: accompanied by happiness, sukhasahagata, T32n1648_p0447b09
苦共起: accompanied by suffering, dukkhasahagata, T32n1648_p0447b09
不退法: not subject to regress, avinīpātadhammo, (= used to describe the irreversible state of stream-enterer, sotāpanna) T32n1648_p0458a08
定向: fixed destiny, certainty, niyata, (= used to describe the irreversible state of stream-enterer, sotāpanna) T32n1648_p0458a08
菩提向: destined for enlightenment, sambodhiparāyana, (= used to describe the irreversible state of stream-enterer, sotāpanna) T32n1648_p0458a08
隸: puppet, dāruyanta T32n1648_p0440a21
隸師: puppeteer T32n1648_p0440a21
無經營: uninterestedness, unconcern, inactivity, abyāpāra, avyāpāra, T32n1648_p0419b06ff.
嘗 = 嘗 /尝, tastes, experiences, sāyita, T32n1648_p0449a10, T32n1648_p0440b22, T32n1648_p0453c26
田野: site, place, khetta, T32n1648_p0440c05. MDBG: 田野 tiányě field / open land / CL: 片
驚訝: amazed, T32n1648_p0440c06. MDBG: 驚訝, jīngyà, amazed / astonished / to surprise / amazing / astonishment / awe惊讶3

喧雜: commotion, tumult, disturbance, (kolāhala?) T32n1648_p0440c07
鮭: fish, T32n1648_p0440c19
恒, constantly, persistently, T32n1648_p0425b19 (used alongside 常), T32n1648_p0441a15. MDBG: 恒 > 恆 héng permanent/constant /fixed ...
沙門眾: saṅgha of disciples, sāvakasaṅgha, T32n1648_p0428c05, also at T01n0026_p0421b25, T23n1435_p0370c02, etc.
排 pushes away, T32n1648_p0402c06,
排 puts up, T32n1648_p0403a27. MDBG 排 pāi a row / a line / to set in order / to arrange / to line up / to eliminate / to drain / to push open / platoon / raft / classifier for lines, rows etc. Dr Eye: 排 pai ㄆㄞˊto arrange or put in order
禪外行, access-jhāna, upacāra-samādhi; the stage of concentration which precedes, is the antecedent of jhāna, T32n1648_p0414a17. Alternative form 外行禪
外行禪, access-jhāna, upacāra-samādhi; the stage of concentration which precedes, is the antecedent of jhāna, T32n1648_p0428a25, etc. Alternative form 禪外行.
外行: access, access-concentration, abbreviation of 禪外行, T32n1648_p0414a21, etc.
安 = fixed-concentration, fixedness, appaṇā. The state (i.e. jhāna) when the mental factors are immovably fixed on the object of meditation. It follows access-jhāna, 禪外行. T32n1648_p0414a21–28, etc. Cf. Vibh-a 313: Samādhiyatī ti sammā ādhiyati, niccalaṃ hutvā ārammaṇe ṭhapīyati, appanāppattaṃ viya hoti.
安定: fixed samādhi, appaṇā-samādhi. The state (i.e. jhāna) when the mental factors are immovably fixed on the object of meditation. It follows access-jhāna, 禪外行. T32n1648_p0414b19.
現見法樂住: a pleasant abiding in this life, a pleasant abiding here and now, diṭṭhadhammasukhavihāra T32n1648_p0461a02, T13n0397_p0261a10.
現見法樂樂住: a pleasant abiding in this life, a pleasant abiding here and now, diṭṭhadhammasukhavihāra T32n1648_p0407a14–21. Probably a corruption of 現見法樂住. (There is also 現見法安樂行 at T03n0190_p0793a14–15. Perhaps this is also corresponding to diṭṭhadhammasukhavihāra ?)
現見法樂: happiness in this life, diṭṭhadhammasukha; T13n0397_p0261a09; p0261a17, p0261a21.
現見法: in this life, here and now; diṭṭhadhamma, diṭṭhadhammika. Used in opposition to future life, 未來 (Cf. A IV 281: dhammā diṭṭhadhammahitāya diṭṭhadhammasukhāya, samparāyahitāya samparāyasukhāyā ti. It 16: diṭṭhadhammikañceva atthaṃ samparāyikañca.) T25n1510ap0759b12. Cf. T30n1579_p0791b06. As part of 現見法樂住 diṭṭhadhammasukhavihāra at T32n1648_p0407a14, T32n1648_p0461a02.
梅陀羅人: outcaste, caṇḍāla, T32n1648_p0448a17
心成一性: unification of mind, cetaso ekodibhāva, T32n1648_p0418b2, 藏蟄: torpid/hibernating (in 如蛇藏蟄: "like a torpid/hibernating snake" (simile for the defilement of sloth, thīna)
MDBG: 藏 cāng to conceal / to hide away / to harbor / to store / to collect 蟄 zhé hibernate Inverted form in MDBG: 蟄藏 zhécāng: to hibernate / to hide away 蛰藏.
銓, spear, satti, T32n1648_p0453c04 (See MDBG.)
三百銓刺喻: simile of the three hundred spear strikes, sattisata-upama, (= M III 165–66; S II 100; M I 130)
退分: partaking of deterioration hānabhāgiya, T32n1648_p0402a26. A term used in different contexts to denote the grade of a quality or state such as sīla, samādhi, etc. Used together with 住分, 勝分, 達分.
住分: partaking of stability, ṭhitibhāgiya, T32n1648_p0402a26, T32n1648_p0408b01. A term used in different contexts to denote the grade of a quality or state such as sīla, jhāna, samādhi, etc. Used together with 退分, 勝分, 達分.
勝分: partaking of distinction, visesabhāgiya T32n1648_p0399c17, T32n1648_p0402a26. A term used in different contexts to denote the grade of a quality or state such as sīla, jhāna, samādhi, etc. Used together with 退分,住分, 達分.
達分: partaking of penetration, nibbedhabhāgiya, T32n1648_p0402a26. A term used in different contexts to denote the grade of a quality or state such as sīla, jhāna, samādhi, etc. Used together with 退分,住分, 勝分.
寂寂: solitude, viveka, T32n1648_p0452c13 T32n1648_p0416b01, etc.
寂寂: stillness, peace, peaceful, santi, santa, at T32n1648_p0431b02-03, T32n1648_p0408a24.
寂寂: calming, settling, upasama, at T32n1648_p0418b22
寂寂處, place of solitude, suññāgāra, raho, vivittokāsa, T32n1648_p0429c27, etc.
寂寂解脫 peaceful liberation, santa-vimokkha, T32n1648_p0420c19, T32n1648_p0421a15 & 21
一向住, dwells exclusively (to one object), attends to one object, ekattupaṭṭhānaṃ, T32n1648_p0417a16. (Also found in other texts, but I am not sure about the meaning there. E.g. T27n1545_p0687c05–6, T36n1736_p0426a13, etc.)
彼觀: reflecting, reflection, considering, paṭisaṅkhā, T32n1648_p0400c22
觀: reflecting, reflection, considering, paṭisaṅkhā, T32n1648_p0403c05
離諸煩鬧: to be without anxiety, anīgha, T32n1648_p0435c01
懈怠睡眠: sloth and torpor, thīnamiddha, the fifth of the five hindrances (pañca-nīvaraṇa), = 懈怠: thīna & 睡眠: middha, T32n1648_p0416b07
調悔, agitation and remorse, uddhacca-kukkucca, the fourth of the five hindrances (pañca-nīvaraṇa), T32n1648_p0416b08
諳: to be versed in, to know well (the scriptures); T50n2059_p0345a26. (See DrEye and MDBG.)

Additional meanings to existing entries in DDB

五蓋: pañca-nīvaraṇa, T32n1648_p0416b07–8: 五蓋。貪欲瞋恚懈怠睡眠調悔疑.: 貪欲: sensual desire, kāmacchanda, ill-will, byāpāda, 瞋恚, 懈怠睡眠, sloth and torpor, thīna-middha 調悔, agitation and remorse, uddhacca-kukkucca, 疑, doubt, vicikicchā. (Cf. D I 246: Kāmacchandanīvaraṇaṃ, byāpādanīvaraṇaṃ, thinamiddhanīvaraṇaṃ, uddhaccakukkuccanīvaraṇaṃ, vicikicchānīvaraṇaṃ. Ime kho pañca nīvaraṇā.) 調: agitation, uddhacca, T32n1648_p0431a20, T32n1648_p0458a29. Cf. 調悔, agitation and remorse, uddhacca-kukkucca, T32n1648_p0416b08.
中間, neutrality, majjhatta: T32n1648_p0420b13
勝善處: surpassingly good, supremely good, varakalyāna, paramakalyāna, jina-kalyāna, T32n1648_p0406c22
由業: functional, kiriyāhetuka T32n1648_p0449b16 ‖
爾時: at that time, on that occasion, tena samayena, T32n1648_p0406c21, T32n1648_p0453c16
達: penetration, nibbedha, as part of 達分: partaking of penetration, nibbedhabhāgiya, T32n1648_p0402a26
明淨: cleansing, visadakiriyā, T32n1648_p0414b20
正受: enters upon (jhāna), entering upon, upasampajja, upasampadā T32n1648_p0416a27; T32n1648_p0419a20; etc.
正受 = establishes, saṇṭhapeti, patiṭṭhāti, adhiṭṭhāti, T32n1648_p0440b12, T32n1648_p0421a23 T32n1648_p0414c26 正受住, abides having entered upon (jhāna); upasampajja viharati, T32n1648_p0420b04, etc.
安住: to uphold, ukkhipitvā ṭhitaṃ, T32n1648_p0434a12.
解自安: to establish well, to establish, svādhiṭṭhitaṃ adhiṭṭhāti, abhiniropeti, T32n1648_p0418a21, T32n1648_p0425a23.
安: supports, patiṭṭhā. T32n1648_p0434a11
Puts down, places, arranges, T32n1648_p0426a05
安: to apply (oneself to), niyojeti, T32n1648_p0408b29
安: to apply (clay) T32n1648_p0412c29
欲定: concentration due to will, chanda-samādhi (as a basis of supernormal power, iddhipāda) T32n1648_p0407c16
後分, life-continuum, bhavaṅga. A term frequently used in commentarial Theravada Abhidhamma works. It is explained as the foundation or condition kāraṇa of existence, bhava. T32n1648_p0448b10, etc, T32n1648_p0458a06, T32n1648_p0449a25. For more explanation see Nyanatiloka Thera, Buddhist Dictionary, s.v. bhavaṅga.

勤, dexterous, proficient, skilled, = dakkha (Skt. dakṣa), T32n1648_p0417a27
等分, endowed with, possessing, samaṅgi, T32n1648_p0445a21 道等分智: maggasamaṅgissa ñāṇa, knowledge of one who possesses the path.
入, adherence, nivesa at T32n1648_p0400c20
聚: accumulation, āyūha T32n1648_p0451b18, T32n1648_p0453a25 隨觀: contemplation, observation, anupassanā T32n1648_p0430b25ff, etc.
門: door, way, method, vidha T32n1648_p0447b19 (not found by itself in DDB), 有邊: finitude, pariyanta, T32n1648_p0401b25, T32n1648_p0457a26 etc.
平等: equipoise, majjhatta, T32n1648_p0419b01, T32n1648_p0419b08
分別: “causes to cease to be”, as a misunderstanding of vibhāveti as “discerns,'' T32n1648_p0421c16
物, worldly matter, flesh, āmisa, at T32n1648_p0458a10
厭患: disgust, disenchantment, nibbidā, T32n1648_p0431c15, T32n1648_p0445b11 厭: one who is free from sensuality (as a result of developing samādhi), vītarāga, 無欲: one who is free from sensuality (as a result of developing samādhi), vītarāga, T32n1648_p0426b20
厭欲 disenchantment with sensuality (as a result of developing samādhi), kāmesu vītarāga, T32n1648_p0445b13-14 and T32n1648_p0426b17 T32n1648_p0438a10
持: expanding, distending, vitthambhana/ vistambhana. Used in the Pali Abhidhamma as a quality of the wind-element. T32n1648_p0439b09
受持: to resolves, resolve, adhiṭṭhāti, adhiṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0435b26, T32n1648_p0418b07, T32n1648_p0415c15, T32n1648_p0437a11, T32n1648_p0438c22, T32n1648_p0442a14, T32n1648_p0461b16 T32n1648_p0437a04.
堪受持: wieldability (of mind), maintainability (of matter), kammaññatā , T32n1648_p0445c24
隨守護: maintaining, preservation, anupālana, T32n1648_p0446a19, cf. T32n1648_p0415c06
初 = beginner, ādikammika, as part of 初坐禪人: beginner meditator, ādikammika-yogāvacara, ādikammika-yogī, T32n1648_p0412a11, etc.
初業 former action, previous action, purāṇa-kamma (Skt.: pūrva-karma), T32n1648_p0445c29, T32n1648_p0446a05, 威儀: restraint, saṃvara. T32n1648_p0399c21, T32n1648_p0402b20, T32n1648_p0400c26-27, etc.
除: removes, ugghāṭeti, T32n1648_p0420c23
除: mastery, authority, conqueror, overcoming, abhibhū, T32n1648_p0457a18, T32n1648_p0423a24, etc.
除入: bases of mastery, abhibhāyatana, T32n1648_p0423a24, etc. There are eight kinds; see D II 110, D III 260, A V 61, etc. The Pali commentaries explain them as means for overcoming opposing states and as the jhānas that master the kasiṇa meditation objects. D-a II 561: Abhibhāyatanānīti abhibhavanakāraṇāni. Kiṃ abhibhavanti? Paccanīkadhammepi ārammaṇānipi. Tāni hi paṭipakkhabhāvena paccanīkadhamme abhibhavanti, puggalassa ñāṇuttariyatāya ārammaṇāni. Paṭis-a I 74: Aṭṭha abhibhāyatanānīti ettha abhibhuyyamānāni āyatanāni etesaṃ jhānānanti abhibhāyatanāni, jhānāni. Āyatanānīti adhiṭṭhānaṭṭhena āyatanasaṅkhātāni kasiṇārammaṇāni. Ñāṇuttariko hi puggalo visadañāṇo kiṃ ettha ārammaṇe samāpajjitabbaṃ. Na mayhaṃ cittekaggatākaraṇe bhāro atthī ti, tāni ārammaṇāni abhibhavitvā samāpajjati, saha nimittuppādenevettha appanaṃ nibbattetīti attho. Evaṃ uppāditāni jhānāni abhibhāyatanānī ti vuccanti.
惱: annoyance, vexation, āghāta T32n1648_p0416b09
惱處: ground of annoyance, base for vexation, āghāta-vatthu T32n1648_p0416b09. There are ten bases. See A V 150: Dasayimāni, bhikkhave, āghātavatthūni. Katamāni dasa? Anatthaṃ me acarī ti āghātaṃ bandhati; anatthaṃ me caratī ti ... anatthaṃ me carissatī ti ... piyassa me manāpassa anatthaṃ acarī ti ... anatthaṃ caratī ti ... anatthaṃ carissatī ti ... appiyassa me amanāpassa atthaṃ acarī ti ... atthaṃ caratī ti ... atthaṃ carissatī ti āghātaṃ bandhati; aṭṭhāne ca kuppati.
起: emerges (from jhāna), vuṭṭhāti at: T32n1648_p0420c22 (as in 安詳起: emerges from jhāna concentration, T32n1648_p0448b10).
令起住: abides having entered upon, upasampajja viharati, T32n1648_p0461a04
令起: defines, definition (of noble truths), defines, analyses, determines, vavatthāpana, vavatthāna, vavattheti/vavatthapeti T32n1648_p0453c10–16, T32n1648_p0454a01
令起: induce, produce cause to arise (jhāna, nimitta, etc.), T32n1648_p0408a13, T32n1648_p0414b18, T32n1648_p0414a15, T32n1648_p0417c16.
能起 to define, analyze, determine, vavattheti, vavatthapeti, vavatthāna. T32n1648_p0452c23–24. Tibetan: rnam par bzhag pa.
爲: for, for the purpose of, = dative case, T32n1648_p0445b05
取: to regard, to focus on, upasaṃharati T32n1648_p0441b23-29
處, near cause, footing, padaṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0406c23 T32n1648_p0419b08, etc.
作 intimation, viññatti/vijñapti at T32n1648_p0445c23–24
身作: bodily intimation, kāya-viññatti T32n1648_p0445c23–24
口作: verbal intimation vāca-viññatti T32n1648_p0445c23–24
智: perceiving, saṅjānana, T32n1648_p0414a01, T32n1648_p0420c29, T32n1648_p0421a04
放意, the mind leaps forth/enters, cittaṃ pakkhandati, T32n1648_p0438b06
善取: to exert well/thoroughly, sādhukaṃ paggaṇhāti, T32n1648_p0415a02-03
皆: entire, whole, total, kevala T32n1648_p0450a20
得勝: attain distinction, visesādhigama, T32n1648_p0414a24, T32n1648_p0421b08 etc.
功德相應: associated quality T32n1648_p0416b05–6, etc.
遠離: giving up, relinquishing, paṭinissagga T32n1648_p0452b08
無處: rejection, non-attachment, dislocation, anālaya, T32n1648_p0452b08. (Used in the definition of the Third Noble Truth.)
彼事: that same object, tad-ārammaṇa, T32n1648_p0449b17
作 aspiration, direction, paṇidhi/praṇidhi, T32n1648_p0400c20 (As opposite of 無作, appaṇihita, the undirected.
不淨 (DDB: “The Skt. aśubha is transliterated as 惡露 (Pali asubha).”). Instead of asubha, the Chinese Vimuttimagga text has 不淨, asuci, “unclean,” at T32n1648_p0400c18 and elsewhere. However, from Pali parallels it it is clear that asubha-saññā is intended. 惡露 is not found at all in Vim.
種類: similarity, sabhāga, T32n1648_p0440a03 ff
依 authority, supremacy, dominance, lordship, power, Pali ādhipatteyya, ādhipacca/Skt ādhipatya, T32n1648_p0452c14, T32n1648_p0457c13, T32n1648_p0447c28.
自身依: oneself as authority, attādhipateyya, T32n1648_p0447c29. See A I 147, D III 220: Tīṇi ādhipateyyāni – attādhipateyyaṃ, lokādhipateyyaṃ, dhammādhipateyyaṃ. Having oneself as authority is the cause for hiri, conscience, 慚. See S-a III 978: Api c’ ettha ajjhatta-samuṭṭhānā hirī. Bahiddhā samuṭṭhānaṃ ottappaṃ. Attādhipateyyā hirī. Lokādhipateyyaṃ ottappaṃ. Cf. T32n1648_p0447c27–28. Cf. 依身 (see below).
世依, the world as authority, lokādhipateyya, T32n1648_p0447c28. See A I 147, D III 220: Tīṇi ādhipateyyāni – attādhipateyyaṃ, lokādhipateyyaṃ, dhammādhipateyyaṃ. S-a III 978: Api c’ ettha ajjhatta-samuṭṭhānā hirī. Bahiddhā samuṭṭhānaṃ ottappaṃ. Attādhipateyyā hirī. Lokādhipateyyaṃ ottappaṃ. Having the world as authority is the cause for ottappa, shame, 愧. See S-a III 978: Api c’ ettha ajjhatta-samuṭṭhānā hirī. Bahiddhā samuṭṭhānaṃ ottappaṃ. Attādhipateyyā hirī. Lokādhipateyyaṃ ottappaṃ. Cf. T32n1648_p0447c29. Cf. 依世 (see below)
依世: the world as authority, lokādhipateyya, T32n1648_p0401c25. In the context of 依世戒, virtue that has the world as authority, See A I 147, D III 220: Tīṇi ādhipateyyāni – attādhipateyyaṃ, lokādhipateyyaṃ, dhammādhipateyyaṃ
依身: oneself as authority, attādhipateyya, T32n1648_p0401c25. In the context of依身戒, virtue that has oneself as authority. See A I 147, D III 220: Tīṇi ādhipateyyāni – attādhipateyyaṃ, lokādhipateyyaṃ, dhammādhipateyyaṃ 依法: the Dhamma as authority, dhammādhipateyyo, T32n1648_p0401c25. In the context of 依法戒, virtue that has the Dhamma as authority. See A I 147, D III 220: Tīṇi ādhipateyyāni – attādhipateyyaṃ, lokādhipateyyaṃ, dhammādhipateyyaṃ

離縛: detachment, visaṃyoga T32n1648_p0399c22
強: stiffness, rigidity, thaddha, T32n1648_p0439a26
所觸=, held onto, grasped, parāmaṭṭha, p.p. of parāmāsa, holding to (views, virtue, vows), T32n1648_p0448b20, T32n1648_p0453b01. A stream-enterer (sotāpanna) does not hold onto/grasp virtue.
觸: held onto, parāmaṭṭha, T32n1648_p0401c22
開 abolishing/removing, samugghāta. T32n1648_p0452c23–25. = Skt. samudghāta in Tibetan quotation, yang dag par 'joms pa. MDBG: to close/to shut/to turn off.
門: chief, first, foremost, headed by (in cpds.), pamukha T32n1648_p0452c23–25
癡: ignorant/unlearned, avyatta, T32n1648_p0418a13
一切心: whole mind, sabbacetasā, T32n1648_p0428b07–8. See 攝一切心.
攝: to collect together, to compose (the mind), samannāharati. T32n1648_p0428b07–8. See 攝一切心.
攝一切心, to compose the whole mind, sabbacetasā samannāharatvā. T32n1648_p0428b07–8, etc. See M-a II 243: Sabbacetasā samannāharitvā ti appamattakampi vikkhepaṃ akaronto sakalacittena samannāharitvā. S-a II 197: Sabbacetasā samannāharitvāti cittassa thokampi bahi gantuṃ adento sabbena samannāhāracittena samannāharitvā.
秋: autumn, fall; T50n2059_p0345b03.
取相: grasping-sign, learning sign; uggaha-nimitta. The sign that is the preliminary sign in the development of the kasiṇa (一切入) meditation subject for the development o jhānic concentration. It is imperfect and is to be superseded by the counterpart sign (分相). See Path of Freedom chapter VIII & Path of Purification IV.29–30 (= Visuddhimagga p. 125–26); T32n1648_p0413c19–24.
僧伽斯那: Saṅghasena, the compiler of the Sūtra of the 100 Parables, 百喻經. According to the biography of his pupil Guṇavṛddhi (求那毘地), Saṅghasena was a Mahayana teacher in India. He extracted parables from the Sūtra-piṭaka to compile the Sūtra of the 100 Parables. Guṇavṛddhi, who travelled to the capital of China in 479 CE, translated this Sūtra, which he knew by heart, into Chinese in 492. Reference: T50n2059_p0345a25– b01.
抄: Does 抄 in the following passage from Guṇavṛddhi's biography mean "extract and annotate from a text" (i.e., the meaning given in DDB)? It seems to me that he just extracted parts, but did not annotate them: T50n2059_p0345b01: 抄修多羅藏中要切譬喻撰為一部 : "Formerly in India Saṅghasena had extracted important parables from the Sūtra-piṭaka and compiled them as one book." The DrEye glossary just gives "copy, transcribe" for 抄, and MDBG: "to copy / to plagiarize / to search and seize / to go / to transcribe / to take a shortcut / to search and confiscate."
其: its, ("its own"), for it, his, to him, for him, tassa, 449a16, etc. Dative and genitive 3d person personal pronoun.

Biodata

Bhikkhu Nyanatusita is a Buddhist monk ordained in the Theravada tradition. Since 2005 he is the English editor of the Buddhist Publication Society, Kandy, Sri Lanka. He extensively studied the Pali language and literature and made an analysis and translation of the Pali Pātimokkha. His contributions to the DDB come out of his ongoing work on the new English translation of the Theravada meditation treatise Vimuttimagga (Vimuktimārga), of which the Pali original was lost, but which is extant in a 6th century Chinese translation called Jiětuō-dào-lùn, 解脫道論 (Taishō No. 1648).

Part 2

38 Meditation Subjects

三十八行處: thirty-eight meditation subjects, aṭṭhatiṃsa kammaṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0411a16; T32n1648_p0411a08. All the meditation subjects taught by the Buddha as listed in the Vimuttimagga and Pali commentaries, that is, (1–10) the ten totalities or kasiṇas (kasiṇa, 一切入)—earth-kasiṇa (paṭhavīkasiṇa, 地一切入), water-kasiṇa (āpokasiṇa, 水一切入), fire-kasiṇa (tejokasiṇa, 火一切入), wind-kasiṇa (vāyokasiṇa, 風一切入), blue-kasiṇa (nīlakasiṇa, 青一切入), yellow-kasiṇa (pītakasiṇa, 黃一切入), red-kasiṇa (lohitakasiṇa, 赤一切入) white-kasiṇa (odātakasiṇa, 白一切入), space-kasiṇa (ākāsakasiṇa, 虛空一切入), consciousness-kasiṇa (viññāṇakasiṇa, 識一切入)—; (11–20) the ten perceptions of the foul (asubhasaññā, 不淨想), namely, the perception of the bloated (膖脹想), the perception of the livid (青淤想), the perception of the festering (潰爛想) the perception of the chopped off and scattered (斬斫離散想), the perception of the gnawed (食噉想), the perception of the scattered (棄擲想), the perception of the slain and scattered (殺戮棄擲想), the perception of the blood-smeared (血塗染想), the perception of the maggot-infested (虫臭想) and the perception of the skeleton (骨想); (21–30) the ten recollections (念, sati, anussati), namely, recollection of the Buddha (buddhānussati, 念佛), recollection of the Dhamma (dhammānussati, 法念), recollection of the Saṅgha (saṅghānussati, 僧念), recollection of virtue (sīlānussati, 戒念), recollection of liberality (cāgānussati, 施念), recollection of deities (devatānussati, 天念), recollection of death (maraṇānussati, 死念), recollection of the body (kāyagatāsati, 念身), mindfulness of breathing (ānāpānasati, 數息念), recollection of stilling (upasamānussati, 念寂寂); (31–34) the four immeasurables (appamāṇāni, 四無量心): loving-kindness (mettā, 慈), compassion (karuṇā, 悲), appreciative joy (muditā, 喜), equanimity (upekkhā, 捨); (35) the defining of the four great entities (mahābhūta-vavatthāna, dhātu-vavatthāna, 觀四大); (36) the perception of the loathsomeness of food (āhāre paṭikkūlasaññā, 食不淨想); (37) the base of nothingness (ākiñcaññāyatana, 無所有處), and (38) the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception (nevasaññānāsaññāyatana, 非非想處).
三十八行: thirty-eight meditation subjects. T32n1648_p0411a08; T32n1648_p0454c09. See 三十八行處.
不淨想: Add to entry: See 十不淨想.
十不淨想: ten perceptions of foulness, dasa asubhasaññā, dasa asubhā, T32n1648_p0411a11–13 and T32n1648_p0424c18 until 426a26–29. Ten meditation subjects consisting o contemplating dead human bodies in various stages of decay in cemeteries. The purpose is the overcoming of sensual desire, kāmarāga, and the attainment of the samādhi o the first jhāna.
They are: the perception of the bloated (膖脹想), the perception of the livid (青淤想), the perception of the festering (潰爛想), the perception of the chopped off and scattered (斬斫離散想), the perception of the gnawed (食噉想), the perception of the scattered (棄擲想), the perception of the slain and scattered (殺戮棄擲想), the perception of the blood-smeared (血塗染想), the perception of the maggot-infested (虫臭想) and the perception of the skeleton (骨想).
They are part of the 三十八行處, thirty-eight meditation subjects, aṭṭhatiṃsa kammaṭṭhāna. See also 不淨想. For detailed explanations, see Path of Freedom (Vimuttimagga) Chapter VIII, Path of Purification (Visuddhimagga) Chapter VI. They are listed at Vism III.105/p.110 and Paṭis I 49. See also 九想.
膖脹想: perception of the bloated; uddhumātakasaññā, T32n1648_p0424c18–19. One of the ten perceptions of foulness (asubhasaññā); see 十不淨想.
青淤想: perception of the livid, perception of the discoloured, vinīlakasaññā. T32n1648_p0425c01–04. One of the ten perceptions of foulness (asubhasaññā); see 十不淨想. Cf. 九想.
潰爛想: perception of the festering, perception of the decomposing, vipubbakasaññā, T32n1648_p0425c08–12. One of the ten perceptions of foulness (asubhasaññā); see 十不淨想.
斬斫離散想: the perception of the chopped off and scattered; T32n1648_p0425c17–21. One of the ten perceptions of foulness (asubhasaññā); see 十不淨想.
食噉想: the perception of the gnawed; T32n1648_p0425c23. One of the ten perceptions of foulness (asubhasaññā); see 十不淨想.
棄擲想: the perception of the scattered, vikkhittakasaññā, T32n1648_p0425c29. One of the ten perceptions of foulness (asubhasaññā); see 十不淨想.

殺戮棄擲想: the perception of the slain and scattered, T32n1648_p0426a07–11. One of the ten perceptions of foulness (asubhasaññā); see 十不淨想.
血塗染想: the perception of the blood-smeared, T32n1648_p0426a14–19. One of the ten perceptions of foulness (asubhasaññā); see 十不淨想.
虫臭想: the perception of the maggot-infested; T32n1648_p0426a20–24. One of the ten perceptions of foulness (asubhasaññā); see 十不淨想.
骨想: the perception of the skeleton; T32n1648_p0426a26–29. One of the ten perceptions of foulness (asubhasaññā); see 十不淨想 and 九想) 十念: the ten recollections, dasa anussatiyo. T32n1648_p0411a13–15; T02n0125_p0550b19. Ten meditation subjects in which recollection or mindfulness (念, sati or anussati) plays a crucial role.
They are the recollection of the Buddha (buddhānussati, 念佛), recollection of the Dhamma (dhammānussati, 法念), recollection of the Saṅgha (saṅghānussati, 僧念), recollection of virtue (sīlānussati, 戒念), recollection of liberality (cāgānussati, 施念), recollection of deities (devatānussati, 天念), recollection of death (maraṇānussati, 死念), recollection of the body (kāyagatāsati, 念身), mindfulness of breathing (ānāpānasati, 念安般), recollection of stilling (upasamānussati, 念寂寂). They are part of the 三十八行處, thirty-eight meditation subjects, aṭṭhatiṃsa kammaṭṭhāna and are listed at Path of Purification, Visuddhimagga III § 105/p.110. For detailed explanations, see Path of Freedom (Vimuttimagga) Chapter VIII (T32n1648_p0426b26 until 434c24), Path of Purification (Visuddhimagga) Chapter VII. In the Ekôttarikâgama at T02n0125_p0550b17–19 the ten recollections are listed (in verse) as: 念佛法念僧念及戒念施念去念次天念息念安般及身念死念除亂謂十念.
念佛: recollection of the Buddha, buddhānussati, T32n1648_p0411a14, T32n1648_p0426b26 until 428a27. The meditative recollection of the diverse qualities of the Buddha (buddhaguṇa, 佛功德) as found in the "Itipi so..." formula. For detailed explanations, see Path of Freedom (Vimuttimagga) Chapter VIII (T32n1648_p0426b26 until 428a27), Path of Purification (Visuddhimagga) Chapter VII § 1–67. It is one of the 三十八行處, thirty-eight meditation subjects and 十念, the ten recollections.
法念: recollection of the Dhamma, dhammānussati T32n1648_p0411a14. The meditative recollection of the diverse good qualities of the Dhamma as found in the "Itipi so..." formula. For detailed explanations, see Path of Freedom (Vimuttimagga) Chapter VIII (T32n1648_p0428a28 until p0428b27), Path of Purification (Visuddhimagga) Chapter VII § 68–88. It is one of the 三十八行處, thirty-eight meditation subjects and 十念, the ten recollections.
僧念: recollection of the Saṅgha, saṅghānussati, T32n1648_p0411a14. The meditative recollection of the diverse qualities of the Saṅgha as found in the "Itipi so..." formula. For detailed explanations, see Path of Freedom (Vimuttimagga) Chapter VIII (T32n1648_p0428b28 until 429a07), Path of Purification (Visuddhimagga) Chapter VII § 89–100. It is one of the 三十八行處, thirty-eight meditation subjects and 十念, the ten recollections.
戒念: recollection of virtue, sīlānussati, T32n1648_p0411a14. The meditative recollection of the purity of one's virtue. For detailed explanations, see Path of Freedom (Vimuttimagga) Chapter VIII (T32n1648_p0429a08 until p0429a29), Path of Purification (Visuddhimagga) Chapter VII § 101–106. It is one of the 三十八行處, thirty-eight meditation subjects and 十念, the ten recollections.
施念: recollection of liberality, cāgānussati, T32n1648_p0411a14. The meditative recollection of one's generosity. For detailed explanations, see Path of Freedom (Vimuttimagga) Chapter VIII (T32n1648_p0426b26 until 428a27), Path of Purification (Visuddhimagga) Chapter VII.107–114. It is one of the 三十八行處, thirty-eight meditation subjects and 十念, the ten recollections.
天念: recollection of deities, devatānussati, T32n1648_p0411a14. The meditative recollection one's one's own qualities of faith, etc, with reference to those that humans possessed in order to be reborn as the deities they are now. For detailed explanations, see Path of Freedom (Vimuttimagga) Chapter VIII (T32n1648_p0429b16 until p0429c08), Path of Purification (Visuddhimagga) Chapter VII.115–118. It is one of the 三十八行處, thirty-eight meditation subjects and 十念, the ten recollections.
念安般: mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasati, T32n1648_p0429c17, T02n0125_p0553b10, etc. Cf. 念安. The meditative mindfulness of one's in breaths and out breaths for the purpose of developing concentration and insight (samatha-vipassanā). For detailed explanations, see Path of Freedom (Vimuttimagga) Chapter VIII (T32n1648_p0429c17 until 431c12), Path of Purification (Visuddhimagga) Chapter VIII § 148–244. It is one of the 三十八行處, thirty-eight meditation subjects and 十念, the ten recollections.
死念: recollection of death, maraṇānussati, T32n1648_p0431c13. The meditative recollection of one's own death. For detailed explanations, see Path of Freedom (Vimuttimagga) Chapter VIII (T32n1648_p0431c13 until 432c14), Path of Purification (Visuddhimagga) Chapter VIII § 1–41. It is one of the 三十八行處, thirty-eight meditation subjects and 十念, the ten recollections.
念身: recollection of the body, mindfulness directed to the body, mindfulness occupied with the body; kāyagatāsati, T32n1648_p0411a14. It is the practice of mindfulness as regards the impure nature of one's body. It is developed through contemplating the thirty-two parts of the body starting with head-hair. For detailed explanations, see Path of Freedom (Vimuttimagga) Chapter VIII (T32n1648_p0432c15 until p0434b22), Path of Purification (Visuddhimagga) Chapter VIII § 42–144. It is one of the 三十八行處, thirty-eight meditation subjects and 十念, the ten recollections. 念身 is the normal form; a variant used a few times in Vim is 身念.
念寂寂: recollection of stilling, recollection of peace, upasamānussati, T32n1648_p0411a14. The recollection of the cessation of mental and physical perturbations (iñjita, 動亂) that cause suffering (dukkha). For detailed explanations, see Path of Freedom (Vimuttimagga) Chapter VIII, (T32n1648_p0434b23 until 0434c24), and Path of Purification (Visuddhimagga) Chapter VIII § 245–251. It is one of the 三十八行處, thirty-eight meditation subjects and 十念, the ten recollections.
觀四大: defining of the four great entities, determinination of the four elements, catu-mahābhūta-vavatthāna, catu-dhātu-vavatthāna, dhātu-vavatthāna, T32n1648_p0438b25, T11n0310_p0644c16. The contemplative defining or determining of the specific characteristics (salakkhaṇa)—such as hardness, cohesion, heat, movement—of the internal four great entities (mahābhūta) or elements (dhātu), 四大, in his own body, with the purpose of overcoming the deluded perception of a self-existent being, 眾生想, or self, attā. For detailed explanations, see Path of Freedom (Vimuttimagga) Chapter VIII (T32n1648_p0438b25 until p0440b13), Path of Purification (Visuddhimagga) Chapter XI § 27–117 It is one of the 三十八行處, thirty-eight meditation subjects.
食不耐想: perception of repulsiveness of food, āhāre paṭikkūlasaññā, T32n1648_p0411a14, T32n1648_p0440b14. The contemplative perception of repulsiveness in the nourishment that is eaten or drunk for the purpose of overcoming greed for food. For detailed explanations, see Path of Freedom (Vimuttimagga) Chapter VIII (T32n1648_p0434b23 until p0441a09), Path of Purification (Visuddhimagga) Chapter XI § 1–26. One of the 三十八行處: thirty-eight meditation subjects.

Other new entries

脹: bloated, swollen, part of uddhumāta, 膖脹 (in uddhumātakasaññā, 膖脹想). (= 膨脹 in DDB. See MDBG: 脹: dropsical / swollen / to swell / to be bloated 胀.)
青淤: livid, black-and-blue, blue-bruised, vinīlaka, T32n1648_p0425c01–04. See 青淤想.
棄擲: scattered, vikkhittaka, T32n1648_p0425c29. See 棄擲想.
佛功德; buddhaguṇa = qualities of the Buddha; T32n1648_p0426c02. The qualities/merits of the Buddha as recollected in the recollection of the Buddha; buddhānussati, 念佛.
處處方: in all directions, here and there; disā-vidisāsu, diso disā, T32n1648_p0426a01.
不耐: repulsiveness, repulsive, loathsome, paṭikkūla, T32n1648_p0425b24T32n1648_p0440b14; T32n1648_p0441b19. Used as part of 食不耐想, perception of repulsiveness of food, āhāre paṭikkūlasaññā, and in the practice of the ariyiddhi (聖變).
非不耐, the non-repulsive, appaṭikūla, T32n1648_p0441b19. See 不耐.
不耐想: paṭikkūlasaññā, perception of repulsiveness. Used as part of 食不耐想: perception of repulsiveness of food, āhāre paṭikkūlasaññā, and in the practice of the ariyā-iddhi (聖變).
聖變: supernormal power of noble ones, ariyā iddhi, ariyiddhi; T32n1648_p0441b09 (Misspelled as 聖辯 in the explanation at T32n1648_p0441b18.) The supernormal power to perceive and transcend something at will in five ways: (1) to perceive the non-repulsive in the repulsive (paṭikkūla, 不耐), (2) to perceive the repulsive in the non-repulsive, (3) to perceive the non-repulsive in the non-repulsive and in the repulsive, (4) to perceive the repulsive in the repulsive and in the non-repulsive, (5) to avoid from both the non-repulsive and the repulsive and dwell equanimous toward it, mindfully and aware. See Paṭis II 212–13, M III 301, etc.
㽵location, okāsa, avakāsa, T32n1648_p0425a11
攝一切心: to compose the whole mind, to gather the whole mind; sabbacetasā samannāharitvā; T32n1648_p0425b11; etc. Common as part of the Pali "stock-phrase" used when disciples would listen attentively to the Buddha's teaching, e.g. S I 112: ... bhikkhū aṭṭhiṃ katvā manasi katvā sabbacetasā samannāharitvā ohitasotā dhammaṃ suṇanti. (The readings sabbacetaso and sabbaṃ cetasā are also found instead of sabbacetasā.) In the Vimuttimagga it is used in the context of starting meditation, as the preliminary for making the mind undisturbed.
次第法; proceeding along the track, keeping properly to the track; vīthi-sampaṭipādana; T32n1648_p0425b09. This means that the meditator should keep proceeding along the track meditation subject and not be distracted by external things. See Visuddhimagga(Path of Freedom) VI § 21 and Visuddhimagga VI § 59: sā kammaṭṭhānavīthiyā sampaṭipādanatthā ti.

從其自性修行: according to the state of its essential nature, sabhāvabhāvato, T32n1648_p0425a01–02.
波利弗多: Pāṭaliputta, bō-lì-fú-duō = transliteration, T32n1648_p0441a13. Pāṭaliputta—modern Patna—was the capital of Magadha and India.
眾生想: the perception of a being, sattasaññā, T32n1648_p0438b28. The distorted perception that there is a permanent, self-existent being.
通達空: entering into emptiness, suññataṃ avagāhati, T32n1648_p0438b27. A stage in insight (vipassanā) meditation when the four elements of the body and the mental factors that are dependent on it are seen with penetrative insight as being empty of as self, attā. (Charles: This term is also found in Chinese translations of Prajñāpāramīta Sūtras, etc, e.g. T07n0220_p0083b12, T11n0312_p0741a23, but it might have a different sense there. Please check. The characters 通達 are not given in DDB in the sense of avagāha; see note below.)

Additional meanings:

通達: immersion, to immerse, to plunge into, to enter into, Pali avagāhati, avagāha, Skt: avagāha, T32n1648_p0438b27. See 通達空.
遍觀: distinguishing, noticing, discerning, characterizing, Pali, upalakkhaṇā, skt. upalakṣaṇa, T32n1648_p0425b03.
受持: to retain, uphold, keep in mind, reflect; Pali: upadhāraṇa, upadhāreti, Skt: upadhṛ, T32n1648_p0425a23, T32n1648_p0440b01.
觀, to define, determine, fix, designate; Pali vavatthāna, Skt vyavasthā. T32n1648_p0440b07. The defining or determining of different signs, aspects, etc., such as the colour or shape of a corpse that is contemplated (see T32n1648_p0425a04), the four elements, name and matter, the four noble truths (see T32n1648_p0440b06), etc. See also dhātuvavatthāna, 觀四大.
無所有處, the base of nothingness, ākiñcaññāyatana, T32n1648_p0421c04. It is the third formless concentration attainment (arūpa-samāpatti, 無色定). It has the nature of being devoid of consciousness, which was the object of the previous, second formless concentration, the base of infinite consciousness, viññāṇañcāyatanasamāpatti, 識入. The Bodhisatta learnt this attainment from Āḷāra Kālāma (M I 164, etc.) but realized that it was not the Nibbāna he was looking for and that it led to rebirth as a god of the base of nothingness.
For detailed explanations, see Path of Freedom (Vimuttimagga) Chapter VIII (T32n1648_p0421c02 until p0421c25), Path of Purification (Visuddhimagga) Chapter X § 32–39. It is one of the 三十八行處, thirty-eight meditation subjects.
非想非非想處: the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception, nevasaññānāsaññāyatana, T32n1648_p0421c27. The traditional Pali explanation is: "that jhāna with its associated states neither has perception nor has no perception because of the absence of gross perception and the presence of subtle perception, thus it is neither-perception-nor-non-perception" (Path of Purification, Visuddhimagga X § 49, translated by Bhikkhu Ñāṇamoli). Being the fourth formless concentration attainment (arūpa-samāpatti), the nevasaññānāsaññāyatana is the highest concentration attainment that can be attained by worldlings, puthujjana (i.e. those who are not noble persons, ariya-puggala). Because it is the highest in the three realms of existence (bhava), it is called the "peak of existence," bhavagga (A-a III 74). The Bodhisatta learnt this attainment from Udaka Rāmaputta (M I 165, etc.) but realized that it was not the Nibbāna he was looking for and that it led to rebirth as a god of the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception.
For detailed explanations, see Path of Freedom (Vimuttimagga) Chapter VIII (T32n1648_p0421c26 until p0422a27), Path of Purification (Visuddhimagga) Chapter X § 40–55. It is one of the 三十八行處, thirty-eight meditation subjects.

Part 3

作分明處: cleaning the physical basis/site, vatthuvisadakiriyā, <bibl type="canonref">解脫道論 T 1648.32.414b23, T 1648.32.414c23</bibl> In the Pali commentaries "cleansing of the physical basis" is explained as cleaning the body and the surroundings as a preliminary for meditation practice; see Vibh-a 276.
緣: condition, paccaya, <bibl type="canonref">解脫道論T 1648.32.439c18</bibl> See Nyanatiloka, Buddhist Dictionary, s.v. "paccaya": "In the Abhidhamma Piṭaka of the Theravāda tradition there are 24 modes of conditionality which apply to all mental and physical states and occurrences, and thus demonstrate their conditioned nature." In the Path of Freedom, Vimuttimagga, a Theravāda work extant only in a Chinese translation (解脫道論, T 1648.32) several of these conditions (展轉緣: mutuality-condition, *aññamaññ*a-paccaya; 業緣: kamma-condition, kamma-paccaya; 依緣: decisive-support-condition, upanissaya-paccaya; 共生緣: conascence condition, sahajāta-paccaya; 後生緣: postnascence condition, pacchājāta-paccaya; 報緣, result-condition, vipāka-paccaya; 有緣: presence-condition, atthi-paccaya; 非有緣: absence-condition, natthi-paccaya; 根緣: faculty-condition, indriya-paccaya; 食緣: nutriment-condition, āhāra-paccaya, 次第緣: proximity condition and/or contiguity or immediacy-condition, anantara and/or samanantara-paccaya) are given as a means for developing meditative insight with regards the four elements and the sense-bases.
食緣: nutriment-condition, āhāra-paccaya. <bibl type="canonref">解脫道論 T32n1648_p0439c16</bibl> One of the 24 conditions as given in the Abhidhamma Piṭaka of the Theravāda tradition; see 緣. See Nyanatiloka, Buddhist Dictionary, s.v. "paccaya": "As a supporting condition it denotes the four kinds of material and mental nutriment: 1: material food kabalinkārāhāra, 2: contact, phassa, 3: mental intention, mano-sañcetanā, 4: consciousness, viññāṇa."
根緣: faculty-condition, indriya-paccaya. <bibl type="canonref">解脫道論 T32n1648_p0439c16</bibl>
One of the 24 conditions as given in the Abhidhamma Piṭaka of the Theravāda tradition; see 緣. See Nyanatiloka, Buddhist Dictionary, s.v. "paccaya": "This condition applies to 20 faculties, indriya. Of these 20 faculties, the 5 physical sense-organs form a condition only for unmaterial phenomena visual-consciousness etc.; physical vitality 6 and all the remaining abilities, for the co-nascent mental and material phenomena.
展轉緣: mutuality-condition, *aññamaññ*a-paccaya. <bibl type="canonref">解脫道論 T 1648.32.439c18</bibl>
One of the 24 conditions as given in the Abhidhamma Piṭaka of the Theravāda tradition; see 緣. See Nyanatiloka, Buddhist Dictionary, s.v. "paccaya": "All mental states, as well as the 4 physical elements, are, conditioned by way of mutuality just like three sticks propped up one by another. The mental states are also condition for one another by way of mutuality; so also are the 4 elements, and also mentality and materiality at the moment of conception."
業緣: kamma-condition, kamma-paccaya. <bibl type="canonref">解脫道論 T 1648.32.439c14</bibl>
One of the 24 conditions as given in the Ab hidhamma Piṭaka of the Theravāda tradition; see 緣. See Nyanatiloka, Buddhist Dictionary, s.v. "paccaya": "The kamma-intentions, cetanā, in a previous birth as the generating condition cause of the 5 sense-organs, the fivefold sense-consciousness, and the other kamma-produced mental and material state in a later birth."
依緣: decisive-support-condition, inducement condition, upanissaya-paccaya <bibl type="canonref">解脫道論 T 1648.32.439c14</bibl>
One of the 24 conditions as given in the Abhidhamma Piṭaka of the Theravāda tradition; see 緣. See Nyanatiloka, Buddhist Dictionary, s.v. "paccaya": "This condition acts as strong inducement or cogent reason for moral, immoral or kammically neutral states of mind. 依緣 can also correspond to support condition, nissaya-paccaya, support-condition, which refers either to a pre-nascent state (dhamma) or a co-nascent state which is aiding other states in the manner of a foundation or base."
共生緣: conascence condition, sahajāta-paccaya <bibl type="canonref">解脫道論 T 1648.32.439c15</bibl>
One of the 24 conditions as given in the Abhidhamma Piṭaka of the Theravāda tradition; see 緣. See Nyanatiloka, Buddhist Dictionary, s.v. "paccaya": "This is a condition by way of simultaneous arising, is a state that forms a condition for another condition in such a way that, simultaneously with its arising, the other state must also arise."
後生緣: postnascence condition, pacchājāta-paccaya <bibl type="canonref">解脫道論 T 1648.32.439c15</bibl>
One of the 24 conditions as given in the Abhidhamma Piṭaka of the Theravāda tradition; see 緣. See Nyanatiloka, Buddhist Dictionary, s.v. "paccaya": "This condition refers to consciousness and its associated states, because they are a necessary condition for the preservation of the arisen body."
報緣: result-condition, vipāka-paccaya <bibl type="canonref">解脫道論 T 1648.32.439c15</bibl>
One of the 24 conditions as given in the Abhidhamma Piṭaka of the Theravāda tradition; see 緣. See Nyanatiloka, Buddhist Dictionary, s.v. "paccaya": "The kamma-resultant 5 kinds of sense-consciousness are a condition by way of kamma-result for co-nascent mental and material states."
有緣: presence-condition, atthi-paccaya <bibl type="canonref">解脫道論 T 1648.32.439c15</bibl>

One of the 24 conditions as given in the Abhidhamma Piṭaka of the Theravāda tradition; see 緣. See Nyanatiloka, Buddhist Dictionary, s.v. “paccaya”: “This condition refers to a prenascent or conascent state which through its presence is a condition for other states.”
次第緣: proximity condition and/or contiguity or immediacy-condition, anantara and/or samanantara-paccaya <bibl type="canonref">解脫道論T32n1648_p0449a21</bibl>
Two of the 24 conditions as given in the Abhidhamma Piṭaka of the Theravāda tradition; see 緣. See Nyanatiloka, Buddhist Dictionary, s.v. “paccaya”: “Both are identical and refer to any state of consciousness and mental state associated with them, which are the conditions for the immediately following stage in the process of consciousness.”
非有緣: absence-condition, natthi-paccaya <bibl type="canonref">解脫道論T32n1648_p0449a21</bibl>
One of the 24 conditions as given in the Abhidhamma Piṭaka of the Theravāda tradition; see 緣. See Nyanatiloka, Buddhist Dictionary, s.v. “paccaya”: “It refers to consciousness (viññāṇa) etc., which has just passed, and which thus forms the necessary condition for the immediately following stage of consciousness by giving it an opportunity to arise.”
生緣: producing-condition, janaka-paccaya <bibl type="canonref">解脫道論 T 1648.32.439c14</bibl>
A type of condition used in the Abhidhamma Piṭaka of the Theravāda tradition; see 緣. See Nyanatiloka, Buddhist Dictionary, s.v. “paccaya.” 食: See Nyanatiloka, Buddhist Dictionary, s.v. “paccaya”: “As a supporting condition (paccaya, 食緣), āhāra denotes the four kinds of material and mental nutriment: 1: materia food kabalinkārāhāra, 2: contact, phassa, 3: mental intention, mano-sañcetanā, 4: consciousness, viññāṇa.”
欲定: concentration of the sense realm, kāmāvacara-samādhi, T32n1648_p0407b25
色定: concentration of the material realm, rūpāvacara-samādhi, T32n1648_p0407b25
無色定: concentration of the non-material realm, arūpāvacara-samādhi, T32n1648_p0407b25
阿毘曇: abhidhamma, = transliteration: ā-pí-tán, T32n1648_p0406c28, T01n0026_p0455c14, etc.
毘曇: abhidhamma, = transliteration: pí-tán, T32n1648_p0406b07–8, T32n1648_p0407a06–07, T37n1764_p0738b03, etc. Abridged form of 阿毘曇.
怨: opponent, adversary, enemy, opposition, Pali paccanīka, paccatthika, Skt pratyanīka & pratyarthin, T32n1648_p0420a10
定事: the object of a concentration-attainment, samāpatti-ārammaṇa, T32n1648_p0407a22
大悲定: attainment of great compassion. mahākaruṇasamāpatti, T32n1648_p0407c22.
雙變: twin miracle, yamaka-pāṭihāriya, T32n1648_p0407c22. A miracle that—along with the attainment of great compassion. mahākaruṇasamāpatti, 大悲定—only Buddhas can perform. Pairs of psychic power miracles are performed at the same time, such as producing flames from the upper part of the body and a stream of water from the lower, and then alternatively, and then the same for the right and the left side of the body, etc. See Malalasekera, Dictionary of Pali Proper Names, s.v. “yamaka-pāṭihāriya.” 事定: functional concentration, kiriyā-samādhi, T32n1648_p0407b22. The material and immaterial concentrations as attained by the arahant, i.e., they are neither results no giving result (nevavipākanavipākadhammadhamma). Cf. kiriyajjhāna at Paṭṭh I 157, Mp III 274, Nidd-a II 57, etc.

Part 4 New

欲樂著: pursuit of sensual-pleasures, kāmasukhānuyoga, T32n1648_p0403c14
著身疲: pursuit of self-mortification, attakilamathānuyoga, T32n1648_p0403c14
中具足: middle way, majjhima-paṭipadā, T32n1648_p0403c12
隨從: to follow, to follow along, to practise, (paṭipajjati), to attend (manasikāra) T32n1648_p0428c09, T32n1648_p0438b04
和合: proper course, propriety, sāmīci, T32n1648_p0428c16
善修行, practicing well, supaṭipanna, T32n1648_p0428c05. A quality of the Saṅgha as recollected in the recollection of the saṅgha, Saṅghānussati, 念僧.
隨從軟善: practising uprightly, ujupaṭipanna, T32n1648_p0428c05. A quality of the Saṅgha as recollected in the recollection of the saṅgha, Saṅghānussati, 念僧.
隨從如法, practising rightly, ñāyapaṭipanna, T32n1648_p0428c06. A quality of the Saṅgha as recollected in the recollection of the saṅgha, Saṅghānussati, 念僧.
隨從和合: practising properly, sāmīcipaṭipanna, T32n1648_p0428c16. A quality of the Saṅgha as recollected in the recollection of the saṅgha, Saṅghānussati, 念僧.
隨從: practicing, paṭipanna, T32n1648_p0428c05.
隨從: follow, follow along, T32n1648_p0404a02, T32n1648_p0436a17, T32n1648_p0438b04, T32n1648_p0428c09ff.
沙門衆: community of disciples, sāvakasaṅgha, T32n1648_p0428c05
沙門: disciple, hearer, sāvaka, T32n1648_p0428c24
令起定: conducive to concentration, samādhisaṃvattanika, T32n1648_p0429a19
令起: conducive, leading to, saṃvattanika, T32n1648_p0429a19
無偏: unbroken, unfragmented, complete, akhaṇḍa, T32n1648_p0429a17
偏: broken, fragmented, incomplete, khaṇḍa, T32n1648_p0429a17
不退: non-remorse, avippaṭisāra. T32n1648_p0400b13, T32n1648_p0429a23. Probably the Chinese translator was not familiar with the word avippaṭisāra and interpreted it literally from the root sṛ as meaning ‘not going back,’ apratisāra.
所牽: obsessed, pariyuṭṭhita, T32n1648_p0429b10–11
所有: all, complete, kevala, T32n1648_p0432c03
如彼: such a, evarūpa, T32n1648_p0434c02
離憒鬧, seclusion, retreat, withdrawal, vūpakāsa, T32n1648_p0434c10.
兇惡人: executioner, vadhaka, T32n1648_p0432a08
兇惡: fierce, cruel, T32n1648_p0432a08.
毘沙蜜多: Vessāmitta, T32n1648_p0432a22
闍摩達梨: Yamadaggi (?), T32n1648_p0432a22
屬: common, shared, sādhāraṇa, T32n1648_p0413a09, T32n1648_p0432a29 多屬, shared with many, bāhusādhāraṇa, T32n1648_p0413a09, T32n1648_p0432a29. Used to describe the shared nature of the body and sensual pleasures, i.e., that they are not belonging to anyone in particular but have to be shared with others, showing their undesirable, impermanent nature.
戶: family, kula, T32n1648_p0433b21
戶虫 family of worms, kimi-kula, T32n1648_p0433b21.
八萬戶虫, the eighty thousand families of worms, asītisahassāni kimikulāni, T32n1648_p0433b20-21.
死法: death, maraṇa, T32n1648_p0432b05, T32n1648_p0451c21
却毒藥: anti-dote, T32n1648_p0435b25
愛念: attractive, agreeable, iṭṭha, T32n1648_p0409c13, T32n1648_p0441b26.
愛念: dear, piya, T32n1648_p0435a12, ... p0460b14
令寂滅: calms, passambheti, T32n1648_p0431a09
惱處: ground of annoyance, bases of vexation, āghātavatthu. T32n1648_p0416b09. In the Pali Canon ten kinds grounds of vexation are given. See A V 150*: Dasayimāni, bhikkhave, āghātavatthūni. Katamāni dasa? Anatthaṃ me acarī ti āghātaṃ bandhati; anatthaṃ me caratī ti ... anatthaṃ me carissatī ti ... piyassa me manāpassa anatthaṃ acarī ti ... anatthaṃ caratī ti ... anatthaṃ carissatī ti ... appiyassa me amanāpassa atthaṃ acarī ti ... atthaṃ caratī ti ... atthaṃ carissatī ti āghātaṃ bandhati; aṭṭhāne ca kuppati.*
自業所作: ownership of kamma, kammassakatā, T32n1648_p0436a23–24.

負債解脫: freedom from debt, ānaṇya, anaṇa, T32n1648_p0436a26.
不可得: unobtainable, can not be obtained, anupalabbhiya, na upalabbhati, T32n1648_p0436b12
嗔恚: ill-will, anger, vyāpāda, T32n1648_p0407b02, 415b15. In the Vimuttimagga it is a misspelling or alternative spelling of 瞋恚, ill-will, anger, vyāpāda, āghāta; e.g. in T32n1648_p0436a11–12 both forms are found in the same sentence.
嗔恚: ill-will, anger, annoyance, āghāta, T32n1648_p0436a11–12.
嗔恚: anger, dosa, T32n1648_p0406b29–c01.
慈心, mind accompanied by loving-kindness, mettasahāgata, T32n1648_p0436b26.
無畏, confidence, vesārajja, T32n1648_p0437a21
和軟, soft, pliant, mudu, T32n1648_p0437b11
堪能受持, wieldable, kammanīya, T32n1648_p0437b11
俱起, accompanied by, connected with, sahagata T32n1648_p0437c16
與慈俱起: accompanied by loving-kindness, mettāsahagata, T32n1648_p0437c15
黃衣脩多羅: Yellow Garment Sutta, Halidavasana Sutta, S V 119–21. T32n1648_p0438a29
脩多羅中: in the discourse, in the sūtra. T32n1648_p0438a29
清淨: beautiful, subha, T32n1648_p0438a29
小方便: little difficulty, little effort, without difficulty, appakasira, T32n1648_p0438b05. (Perhaps the Chinese translator understood appa-kasira as alpa-kṛccha.)
方便: difficulty, effort, kasira, T32n1648_p0438b05 (Perhaps the Chinese translator understood kasira as kiccha/kṛccha, and chose 方便 in the sense of payoga, exertion.)
隨從和合: practising properly, sāmīci-paṭipanna, T32n1648_p0428c16
和合: proper course, propriety, sāmīci, T32n1648_p0428c16
現令作意: focusing (the mind) upasaṃharaṇa T32n1648_p0438b05
在前: present in front, parimukha, T32n1648_p0429c28
現前: present in front, parimukha, T32n1648_p0430a07
往樹下: gone to the root of a tree, rukkhamūlagata, T32n1648_p0429c27
往寂寂處: gone to a place of solitude, gone to an empty place, suññāgāragata, T32n1648_p0429c27
正身, with upright body, uju-kāya, T32n1648_p0429c28
不知恩: ungratefulness, akataññutā, T32n1648_p0434b13
正作意: reasoned attention, yoniso manasikāra, T32n1648_p0449c15
不正憶: unreasoned attention, ayoniso manasikāra, T32n1648_p0448a11
不正憶: inattention, amanasikāra, T32n1648_p0444b01
作意: attention, manasikāra, T32n1648_p0448a05
作意: attends, pays attention, manasikaroti, T32n1648_p0412c11, T32n1648_p0436b01, etc.
安般, in and out breath, transliteration of ānāpāna, T32n1648_p0429c17. Cf. 念安般, ānāpānasati.
安, transliteration of āna, in-breath, in 安般 ānāpāna. T32n1648_p0429c18
般安, transliteration of (ā)pāna, in-breath, in 安般 ānāpāna. T32n1648_p0429c18
不亂, not-disturbed, not scattered, avikkhitta, T32n1648_p0429c19 勝妙, fine, sukhuma, = opposite of 麁, coarse, olārika, T32n1648_p0413a27, etc.
麁, coarse, olārika,= opposite of 勝妙: fine, sukhuma,T32n1648_p0413a27, etc. (麁 = variant of 麤.) 懈怠, to weary, to fatigue, kilamati, T32n1648_p0418b02, T32n1648_p0429c23
搖, tremble, phandati, T32n1648_p0429c24
令滿: causes to fulfil, paripūreti, T32n1648_p0429c24
七覺意: seven factors of awakening, satta bojjhaṅga, T32n1648_p0429c25. The seven factors are (1) sati, 念, mindfulness; (2) dhammavicaya, 擇法, investigation of states; (3) viriya, 精進, energy; (4) pīti, 喜, rapture; (5) passaddhi, 猗, tranquillity; (6) samādhi, 定, concentration; and (7) upekkhā, 捨, equanimity. See Bojjhaṅgasamyutta, Saṁyutta Nikāya, Book V. At T32n1648_p0431b25 ,七菩提分 is used instead. And at T32n1648_p0431b26 ff. 覺分 is used for the individual awakening factors, sambojjhaṅga:
念覺分: the awakening factor of mindfulness, satisambojjhaṅga, T32n1648_p0431b26
擇法菩提分: the awakening factor of investigation of states, dhammavicayasambojjhaṅga, T32n1648_p0431b26.
精進覺分: the awakening factor of energy, vīriyasambojjhaṅga, T32n1648_p0431b28.
喜覺分: the awakening factor of rapture, pītisambojjhaṅga, T32n1648_p0431b29.
猗覺分: the awakening factor of tranquillity, passaddhisambojjhaṅga, T32n1648_p0431c01.
定覺分: the awakening factor of concentration, samādhisambojjhaṅga, T32n1648_p0431c01.
捨覺分: the awakening factor of equanimity, upekkhāsambojjhaṅga, T32n1648_p0431c02.
有樂: being happy, sukhī, T32n1648_p0431c01.
歡喜心: rapturous mind, pītimanasa, T32n1648_p0431b29
行精進: initiated energy, exerted energy, āraddhavīriya, or: initiates energy, exerts energy, vīriyaṃ ārabhati, T32n1648_p0431b27.
不遲緩, not slackening, asallīna, T32n1648_p0431b27–28. Used with reference to energy, vīriya.
無煩惱: non-carnal, non-sensual, non-worldly, nirāmisa, T32n1648_p0431b28.
所住止: dwelling place, vihāra, T32n1648_p0429c26
知一切身: experiencing the whole body, sabbakāyappaṭisaṃvedī, T32n1648_p0430c09. One of the 16 stages of mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasati, 念安般.
令滅身行, calming the bodily formation , passambhayaṃ kāyasaṅkhāraṃ, T32n1648_p0430c21. One of the stages of mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasati, 念安般, where the the bodily formation, 身行, kāyasaṅkhāra, of the breath is calmed.
身行: the bodily formation, kāyasaṅkhāra, T32n1648_p0430c21. The conditioning force for the body. A synonym for the breath as used in 令滅身行, one of the stages of mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasati, 念安般.
知喜, experiencing rapture, pītippaṭisaṃvedī, T32n1648_p0430a03–4. One of the stages of mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasati, 念安般.
知樂, experiencing happiness, sukhappaṭisaṃvedī, T32n1648_p0430a04T32n1648_p0430a04. One of the stages of mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasati, 念安般.
知心所行, experiencing the mental formations, cittasaṅkhārappaṭisaṃvedī, T32n1648_p0430a04. One of the stages of mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasati, 念安般.
知心行, experiencing the mental formations, cittasaṅkhārappaṭisaṃvedī, T32n1648_p0431a06–7. One of the stages of mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasati, 念安般.
心行: mental formations, cittasaṅkhāra, T32n1648_p0431a06–07. In the context of of mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasati, 念安般, it refers to the mental conditioning force of perception, saññā, 想,and feeling, vedanā, 受.
令滅心行, calming the mental formations, passambhayaṃ cittasaṅkhāraṃ, T32n1648_p0430a05. The first of the four concentration, samādhi, stages of mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasati, 念安般, where 心行, mental formations, cittasaṅkhāra, of perception, saññā, 想,and feeling, vedanā, 受 are calmed.
令滅, calms, passambhati T32n1648_p0430a04
知心, experiencing the mind, cittappaṭisaṃvedī, T32n1648_p0431a11. The first of the four concentration, samādhi, stages of mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasati, 念安般.
令歡喜心, gladdening the mind, abhippamodayaṃ cittaṃ, T32n1648_p0430a05. The second of the four concentration, samādhi, stages of mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasat 念安般.

令歡喜, gladdens, rejoices, abhippamodati, T32n1648_p0430a05.
令教化心, concentrating the mind, samādahaṃ cittaṃ, T32n1648_p0430a05. The third of the four concentration, samādhi, stages of mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasati, 念安般.
令教化: concentrates, samādahati, T32n1648_p0430a05.
令解脫心, freeing the mind, vimocayaṃ cittaṃ, T32n1648_p0430a05. The fourth of the four concentration, samādhi, stages of mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasati, 念安般.
見無常: contemplating impermanence, aniccānupassin, T32n1648_p0430a05. The first of the four insight, vipassanā, stages of mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasati, 念安般.
見無欲: contemplating fading away, virāgānupassin, T32n1648_p0430a05. The second of the four insight, vipassanā, stages of mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasati, 念安般.
見滅: contemplating cessation, nirodhānupassin, T32n1648_p0430a05. The third of the four insight, vipassanā, stages of mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasati, 念安般.
見出離: contemplating renunciation, paṭinissaggānupassin, T32n1648_p0430a05. The fourth of the four insight, vipassanā, stages of mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasati, 念安般.
入出息: in and out breath, inhalation and exhalation, assāsapassāsa, T32n1648_p0430a14
過患: obstacle, danger, paripantha, T32n1648_p0430a17. (Normally, 過患 = ādīnava in the Vimuttimagga, T32n1648.)
勝法, supreme Dhamma, aggadhamma, uttamadhamma, T32n1648_p0430b29, T32n1648_p0435a19. (At T32n1648_p0427b02 it might be in plural: "excellent/distinctive states.")
明解脫, knowledge and freedom, vijjāvimutti, T32n1648_p0431c04 不愚癡, non-delusion, asammoha, asammosa, T32n1648_p0430c03.
不愚癡, unmuddled, unconfused, asammūḷha, T32n1648_p0431b25. Used with reference to mindfulness, sati, 念.
成住: is established, upaṭṭhita hoti, T32n1648_p0431b25. Used with reference to mindfulness, sati, 念.
念成住, mindfulness is established, upaṭṭhitasati hoti, T32n1648_p0431b25.
住: established, upaṭṭhita, T32n1648_p0431b25.
猗: tranquility, serenity, passaddhi, passaddha, paṭipassaddha: T32n1648_p0416a15, T32n1648_p0401c22
身猗, tranquillity of body, passaddha-kāya: T32n1648_p0400b14, T32n1648_p0431c01
心猗, tranquillity of mind, citta-passaddhi, T32n1648_p0415c03
猗所得, obtained through tranquillity, paṭipassaddha-laddha, T32n1648_p0408a23
猗離, seclusion through tranquillity, paṭippassaddhiviveka, T32n1648_p0415a14 無命, without a soul, nijjīva, T32n1648_p0430c16–17. A synonym for anattā, not self, used in Pali commentarial literature.
無眾生: without a being, nissata, T32n1648_p0430c16. A synonym for anattā, not self, used in Pali commentarial literature.
三學: the three trainings, i.e. in (1)上心, higher mind, adhicitta; (2) 上戒, the higher virtue, adhisīla; and (3) 上慧, higher wisdom, adhipaññā, T32n1648_p0430c17–8 上心, higher mind, adhicitta, T32n1648_p0430c17–18. A synonym for concentration, samādhi, 定.
上戒, the higher virtue, adhisīla, T32n1648_p0430c17.
上慧, the higher wisdom, adhipaññā, T32n1648_p0430c18
上, in compounds such as上心: the prefix adhi-: over, above, higher, T32n1648_p0430c17.
如實: such a one, tathābhūta, T32n1648_p0430c18
專一心, unification of mind, ekaggacitta, T32n1648_p0413c17, T32n1648_p0428a25 專一, unification, ekagga, ekaggatā, T32n1648_p0413c17, etc.
心專一: unification of mind, cittekaggatā, ekaggacitta, T32n1648_p0447c21
專: inclined, ninna, T32n1648_p0461c07
一切行寂寂: the calming of all formations, sabbasaṅkhārasamatha, T32n1648_p0431b04. An epithet for nibbāna.
滅一切行: the calming of all formations, sabbasaṅkhārasamatha, T32n1648_p0428b01. An epithet for nibbāna.
一切煩惱出離: the relinquishing of all acquisitions, sabbūpadhipaṭinissagga, T32n1648_p0431b04. An epithet for nibbāna.
出離一切煩惱: the relinquishing of all acquisitions, sabbūpadhipaṭinissagga, T32n1648_p0428b01. An epithet for nibbāna.
滅愛, the destruction of craving, taṇhakkhaya. T32n1648_p0428b01. An epithet for nibbāna.
愛滅, the destruction of craving, taṇhakkhaya. T32n1648_p0431b04, T32n1648_p0428b01. An epithet of nibbāna.
無欲, fading away, virāga, T32n1648_p0431b04. An epithet of nibbāna.
無染, fading away, virāga, T32n1648_p0428b01. An epithet of nibbāna.
滅, cessation, nirodha, T32n1648_p0431b05. An epithet of nibbāna.
寂滅, cessation, nirodha, T32n1648_p0428b01. An epithet of nibbāna.
沙摩他毘婆舍那: calm and insight, transliteration of samatha-vipassanā, T32n1648_p0431b07 沙摩他: calm, transliteration of samatha, T32n1648_p0431b07.
毘婆舍那, insight, transliteration of vipassanā, T32n1648_p0431b07.
隨逐, following, tying in, anubandhana, T32n1648_p0430b18. One of the four ways of practising mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasati, 念安般.
安置, establishing, ṭhapana, T32n1648_p0430b18. One of the four ways of practising mindfulness of breathing, ānāpānasati, 念安般.
隨觀, observing, discerning, sallakkhaṇa, T32n1648_p0430b18.
隨觀, defining, discerning, vavaṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0438b27.
謂觀四大, defining of the four great elements, dhātuvavaṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0438b26.
通達, plunging into, entering into, avagāhana, T32n1648_p0438b27 沙門眾堪, the community of disciples, sāvakasaṅgha, T32n1648_p0428c07.
世尊沙門眾堪, the Blessed One's community of disciples, bhagavato sāvakasaṅgho, T32n1648_p0428c07.
可請: worthy of hospitality, āhuṇeyya T32n1648_p0428c25. A qualification of 世尊沙門眾堪, the Blessed One's community of disciples, bhagavato sāvakasaṅgho.
可供養: worthy of offerings, pāhuṇeyya, T32n1648_p0428c25. A qualification of 世尊沙門眾堪, the Blessed One's community of disciples, bhagavato sāvakasaṅgho.
可施, worthy of gifts, dakkhiṇeyya, T32n1648_p0428c25. A qualification of 世尊沙門眾堪, the Blessed One's community of disciples, bhagavato sāvakasaṅgho.
可恭敬: worthy of reverential salutation, añjali-karaṇīya, T32n1648_p0428c28. A qualification of 世尊沙門眾堪, the Blessed One's community of disciples, bhagavato sāvakasaṅgho.
福具足, endowed with good fortune, bhāgyasampanna, T32n1648_p0426c13.
妙法, True Dhamma, saddhamma, T32n1648_p0426c12.
來世: tathāgata, T32n1648_p0426c09
以一切行, in every way, in all respects, sabbākārato, T32n1648_p0426c16.
以一切行, in every way, sabbathā, T32n1648_p0427a12.
明行足, endowed with knowledge and conduct, vijjā-caraṇa-sampanna, T32n1648_p0426c18.
宿命智明, the clear-knowledge which is the knowledge of past existences, pubbenivāsānussatiñāṇa-vijjā, T32n1648_p0426c19
眾生生死智明, the clear-knowledge which is the knowledge of the passing away and the arising of beings, sattānaṃ cutūpapātañāṇa-vijjā, T32n1648_p0426c19
漏盡智明, the clear-knowledge which is the knowledge of the destruction of the taints, āsavakkhayañāṇa-vijjā, T32n1648_p0426c19–20.
三明, the three clear-knowledges, tevijjā T32n1648_p0426c19. The three clear-knowledges/true-knowledges which the Buddha realized on the night of his awakening, sambodhi, namely: 宿命智明, the clear-knowledge which is the knowledge of past existences, pubbenivesānussatiñāṇa; 眾生生死智明, the clear-knowledge which is the knowledge of the passing away and the arising of beings, sattānaṃ cutūpapātañāṇa; 漏盡智明, the clear-knowledge which is the knowledge of the destruction of the taints, āsavakkhayañāṇa, 漏盡智明. Cf. S-a I 213 (on S I 196): Tevijjā ti pubbenivāsadibbacakkhuāsavakkhayasaṅkhātāhi tīhi vijjāhi samannāgatā.

辯, discrimination, paṭisambhidā, T32n1648_p0427c14. See 四辯 and 辯智.
四辯: The four discriminations, paṭisambhidā. T32n1648_p0444c14, T32n1648_p0445b17. 義辯, knowledge of the discrimination of meaning, atthapaṭisambhidā; 法辯, knowledge of the discrimination of the Dhamma, dhammapaṭisambhidā; 辭辯, knowledge of the discrimination of derivation, niruttipaṭisambhidā; 樂說辯, knowledge of the discrimination of elucidation, paṭibhānapaṭisambhidā. They are explained at T32n1648_p0445b17–29. See also 辯智.
辭辯, discrimination of derivation, niruttipaṭisambhidā, T32n1648_p0415c17, T32n1648_p0427c14. One of the four discriminations, paṭisambhidā, 四辯, or discrimination knowledges, paṭisambhidā-ñāṇa, 辯智.
樂說辯, discrimination of elucidation, paṭibhānapaṭisambhidā, T32n1648_p0415c17, T32n1648_p0427c14. One of the four discriminations, paṭisambhidā, 四辯, or discrimination knowledges, paṭisambhidā-ñāṇa, 辯智.
義辯, discrimination of meaning, atthapaṭisambhidā, T32n1648_p0415c18, T32n1648_p0427c14. One of the four discriminations, paṭisambhidā, 四辯, or discrimination knowledges, paṭisambhidā-ñāṇa, 辯智.
法辯, discrimination of the Dhamma, dhammapaṭisambhidā, T32n1648_p0415c18, T32n1648_p0427c14. One of the four discriminations, paṭisambhidā, 四辯, or discrimination knowledges, paṭisambhidā-ñāṇa, 辯智.
辯智, discrimination knowledge, paṭisambhidā-ñāṇa, T32n1648_p0427c14. There are four kinds: 義辯智, knowledge of the discrimination of meaning, atthapaṭisambhide-ñāṇa 法辯智, knowledge of the discrimination of the Dhamma, dhammapaṭisambhide-ñāṇa; 辭辯智, knowledge of the discrimination of derivation, niruttipaṭisambhide-ñāṇa; 樂說辯智, knowledge of the discrimination of elucidation, paṭibhānapaṭisambhide-ñāṇa. They are explained at T32n1648_p0445b17–29.
濟渡彼岸: crossing over to the further shore (of Nibbāna), pāraṃ tarati, T32n1648_p0428b23.
濟渡: crossing over (the river of saṃsāra to the further shore of Nibbāna), tarati, T32n1648_p0427a05, T32n1648_p0428b23. See 濟渡彼岸.
此謂: this is called ..., ayaṃ vuccati , T32n1648_p0426c01. The conclusion of an explanation of a term.
故名, therefore (he/it) is called, tena vuccati, T32n1648_p0427a26.
名曰, is called, vuccati, T32n1648_p0427a07.
名, is called, vuccati, T32n1648_p0427a08.
復更, again, puna, T32n1648_p0427a08.
善逝, well-gone one, well-farer, sugato, T32n1648_p0427a07. An epithet of the Buddha as recollected in the recollection of the Buddha, buddhānussati, 念佛.
四顛倒: the four distortions/inversions/perversions, cattāro vippallāsa, T32n1648_p0457b14. See the twelve perversions, 十二顛倒.
十二顛倒, the twelve distortions/perversions, dvādasa vippallāsa, T32n1648_p0460b29. The twelve inversions are the perversion (顛倒) of perception, (saññā, 想, i.e., 想顛倒), perversion of mind (citta, 心, i.e., 心顛倒), and perversion of view (diṭṭhi, 見, i.e., 見顛倒) consisting of the four perversions (cattāro vippallāsa, 四顛倒), namely, regarding permanence (nicca, 常) in the impermanent (anicca, 無常), happiness (sukha, 樂) in suffering (dukkha, 苦), and beauty (subha, 淨) in the ugly (asubha, 不淨) and se (attā, 我) in the not-self (anattā, 無我).
世間解, knower of the worlds, lokavidū, T32n1648_p0427a11. An epithet of the Buddha as recollected in the recollection of the Buddha, buddhānussati, 念佛. According to th Visuddhimagga (Vism VII.37/p.204), the Buddha knows the three worlds through wisdom: the world of formations (saṅkhāra-loka), the world of beings (satta-loka), and the world of location (okāsa-loka). The Vimuttimagga (T32n1648_p0427a12) mentions only two worlds: the world of formations (saṅkhāra-loka, 行世間)and the world of beings (satta-loka, 眾生世間).
行世間,the world of formations, saṅkhāra-loka, T32n1648_p0427a12. One of the worlds that the Buddha knows through wisdom; see 世間解, knower of the worlds, lokavidū.
眾生世間,the world of beings, satta-loka, T32n1648_p0427a12. One of the worlds that the omniscient Buddha knows through wisdom; see 世間解, knower of the worlds, lokavidū.
悉, in every way, entirely, sabbathā, T32n1648_p0427a18.
可化, teachability, instructability, viññāpaya, T32n1648_p0427a14.
堪, capability, bhabbatā, T32n1648_p0427a15.
不堪, incapability, abhabbatā, T32n1648_p0427a15.
生, the arisen, arising, uppāda, T32n1648_p0427a21. An epithet of saṃsāra, as opposed to the non-arisen, 不生, anuppāda. See Paṭis I 10.
不生, the non-arisen, without arising, anuppāda, T32n1648_p0427a21. An ephitet of Nibbāna, as opposed to the arisen, 生, uppāda. See Paṭis I 10.
無上, unexcelled, anuttara, T32n1648_p0427a22. An epithet of the Buddha as recollected in the recollection of the Buddha, buddhānussati, 念佛.
天人師, teacher of gods and humans, satthā devamanussānaṃ. T32n1648_p0427a27. An epithet of the Buddha as recollected in the recollection of the Buddha, buddhānussati, 念佛.
調御丈夫: coach of men to be tamed, purisadammasārathi, T32n1648_p0427a24. An epithet of the Buddha as recollected in the recollection of the Buddha, buddhānussati, 念佛.
丈夫: man, purisa, T32n1648_p0427a24.
本生因緣: birth-story, jātaka, T32n1648_p0427b09.
摩訶瞿頻陀: Mahāgovinda (transliteration), T32n1648_p0427b10.
摩訶瞿頻陀生: Mahāgovinda-jātaka, the Mahāgovinda-birth-story, T32n1648_p0427b10. See D II 230–251, Cp 76.
啞蹇, dumb-and-cripple, mūga-pakkha, T32n1648_p0427b11. See 啞蹇生.
啞蹇生, the Dumb-and-cripple birth-story, Mūga-pakkha-jātaka, T32n1648_p0427b11. See Jātaka story 538, Cp 96.
啞, dumb, mūga, T32n1648_p0427b11. See 啞蹇
蹇, cripple, lame, pakkha, T32n1648_p0427b11. See 啞蹇.
毛竪, horripilation, goose skin, hair standing on end, lomahaṃsa, T32n1648_p0427b12.
六牙白象, six-tusked white elephant, T32n1648_p0427b14. See Jātaka story No. J 514.
羅剎國, the country of Laṅkā, tambapaṇṇidīpa, laṅkādīpa T32n1648_p0427b14.
白馬生, cloud horse birth-story, valāhassa-jātaka, T32n1648_p0427b14. Jātaka story No. 196. See 白馬.
白馬, white horse = cloud horse, Pali valāhassa, valāhakassa, BSk. bālāhāśva. T32n1648_p0427b14. A mythological flying horse; see 白馬生.
麋, a kind of deer, perhaps a sambar, T32n1648_p0427b13. (There are no elk in India.)
商主, a merchant chief, seṭṭhi, T32n1648_p0427b13.
語, advice, admonishment, ovāda, T32n1648_p0427b13.
長壽生, long life birth-story, dīghīti-jātaka, T32n1648_p0427b13. J 371, Vin I 342f.
長壽, long life, dīghīti, dīghāyu, T32n1648_p0427b13.
猴生, the monkey birth-story, kappi-jātaka, T32n1648_p0427b16–17. Jātaka stories Nos. 407 and 516.
尼連禪河, the Nerañjarā river, T32n1648_p0427b23.
醍醐界, the deathless element, amatadhātu, T32n1648_p0427b26.
拔出, to extract, pull out, withdraw, uddharati, uddharaṇa T02n0100_p0462c22, T32n1648_p0427b17. Used in the context of pulling out arrows, pulling someone out of a swamp or a pit, extracting bone-marrow, etc.
不障礙, unobstructed, anāvaraṇa, T32n1648_p0427c16.

佛智不障礙, unobstructed Buddha knowledge, anāvaraṇa-buddha-ñāṇa, T32n1648_p0427c16. One of the 14 kinds of buddha knowledge.
佛智, Buddha knowledge, buddha-ñāṇa, T32n1648_p0427c16. There are 14 kinds, see T32n1648_p0427c13–16.
修行至泥洹, the practice leading to Nibbāna, nibbānagāminī paṭipadā, T32n1648_p0428a29.
八正道分, eight noble path factors, aṭṭha ariya maggaṅga, T32n1648_p0457a14–15.
八聖道分, eight noble path factors, aṭṭha ariya maggaṅga, T32n1648_p0428a01.
道分,path factor, maggaṅga, T32n1648_p0451c25. One of the eight factors of noble eightfold path, 八正道分 or 八正道.
八正道分, noble eightfold path, ariya-aṭṭhaṅgika-magga, T32n1648_p0452b12. See 八正道.
出世, supramundane, lokuttara, T32n1648_p0451c25.
作事, function, kicca, T32n1648_p0457b03.
菩提法, requisites of awakening, bodhipakkhiya dhamma, T32n1648_p0457a25
分別, comprehension, abhisamaya, T32n1648_p0457a28. The comprehension of the four noble truths, ariyasacca, by the sotāpanna or stream-enterer.
八除入, eight bases of mastery, aṭṭha abhibhāyāyatana, T32n1648_p0428a01. See Nyanatiloka, Buddhist Dictionary, s.v. abhibhāyāyatana: "The 8 stages of mastery, are powers to be obtained by means of the kasina-exercises (see 一切入). In the Com. to MN 77, where āyatana is explained by 'means' (kārana) it is said: 'The abhibhāyatana through their counteracting may master (suppress) the adverse states, and by means of direct knowledge they may master the objects of mind. ' They are means for transcending the sensuous sphere. The stereotype text often met with in the Suttas (e.g. DN 11, DN 33; MN 77; AN 8:65; AN 10:29) is as follows: (1) 'Perceiving (blue..., red..., yellow..., white) forms on one's own body, one sees forms externally small ones, beautiful or ugly; and in mastering these one understands: 'I know, I understand.' This is the first stage of mastery. ' ...."
除入, bases of mastery, abhibhāyāyatana, T32n1648_p0423a25. See八除入.
四無畏, the four confidences, cattāro vesārajjāni, T32n1648_p0427c28. See Nyanatiloka, Buddhist Dictionary, s.v. vesārajja: "Vesārajja, the 'self-confidence' of a Buddha is fourfold. He is confident: 1. to have attained to a perfect Enlightenment of which it cannot be said that it omits anything essential to it; 2. to have destroyed all cankers (āsava), leaving none that can be said to be undestroyed by him; 3. that what were declared by him as obstacles to liberation are undeniably such; 4. that his teaching fulfils its purpose of actually leading to final liberation from suffering. See AN 4:8; 7:58; MN 12."
八解脫, the eight liberations, aṭṭha vimokkha, T32n1648_p0428a02. See Nyanatiloka, Buddhist Dictionary, s.v. " ... II. The 8 liberations (aṭṭha vimokkha) occur frequently in the texts (AN 8:66; DN 16, etc.) and are described as follows:"There are 8 liberations, o monks. Which are these? (1) ''Whilst remaining in the fine-material sphere (rūpī), one perceives corporeal forms: this is the first liberation.(2) "Not perceiving corporcal forms on one's own person, one perceives corporcal forms externally: this is the 2nd liberation.(3) ''By thinking of the beautiful, one is filled with confidence: this is the 3rd liberation. (4) "Through the total ovcrcoming of the corporeality-perceptions, the vanishing of the reflex-perceptions, and the non-attention to the multiformity-perceptions, with the idea 'Unbounded is space', one reaches the sphere of unbounded spac (ākāsānañcāyatana) and abides therein: this is the 4th liberation.(5) "Through the total ovcrcoming of the sphere of unbounded space, and with the idea 'Unbounded is consciousness', one reaches the sphere of unbounded consciousness (viññānañcāyatana) and abides therein: this is the 5th liberation.(6) "Through the total overcoming of the sphere of unbounded consciousness, and with the idea 'Nothing is there', one reaches the sphere of nothingness (ākiñcaññāyatana) and abides therein: this is the 6th liberation.(7) "Through the total overcoming of the sphere of nothingness, one reaches the sphere of neither-perception-nor-non-perception (nevasaññānāsaññāyatana) anc abides therein: this is the 7th liberation .(8) "Through the total overcoming of the sphere of neither-perception-nor-non-perception, one reaches the extinction of perception and feeling (saññāvedayita-nirodhasamāpatti): this is the 8th liberation."
九次第定, the nine successive attainments, anupubba-samāpatti, T32n1648_p0428a02. The eight material and non-material concentration attainments (4 jhāna and 4 arūpa) and the attainment of cessation, nirodha-samāpatti.
十聖居止: the ten noble abodes, dasa ariyāvāsa, T32n1648_p0428a02. Various meditative states in which the noble ones, ariya, dwell. They are enumerated at AN 10:19–20.
善說世尊, well-proclaimed by the Blessed One, svākkhāto bhagavatā, T32n1648_p0428b08. A quality of the Dhamma as recollected in the recollection of the Dhamma, dhammānussati, 法念.
現證, realizable, visible, sandiṭṭhika, T32n1648_p0428b08. A quality of the Dhamma as recollected in the recollection of the Dhamma, dhammānussati, 法念.
無時節, immediate, timeless, akālika, T32n1648_p0428b09. A quality of the Dhamma as recollected in the recollection of the Dhamma, dhammānussati, 法念.
來見乘相應, inviting, "come-and-see-ish," ehipassika, T32n1648_p0428b09. A quality of the Dhamma as recollected in the recollection of the Dhamma, dhammānussati, 法念.
乘相應, leading onward, opanayika, T32n1648_p0428b09. A quality of the Dhamma as recollected in the recollection of the Dhamma, dhammānussati, 法念.
智慧人現證可知, to be experienced by wise men, paccattaṃ veditabbo viññūhi, T32n1648_p0428b10–11. A quality of the Dhamma as recollected in the recollection of the Dhamma, dhammānussati, 法念.
作證, realize, realized, sacchikaroti, sacchikata, T32n1648_p0428b14 & 452b11.
沙門果, the fruits of recluseship, sāmaññaphala, T32n1648_p0428b17. On the fruits of recluseship, see Dīgha Nikāya Sutta No. 2.
聖人: noble person, ariya-puggala, T32n1648_p0428b29.
和合, congegration, multitude, samūha, T32n1648_p0428b29. In 聖人和合, congegration of noble persons, ariyapuggalasamūha, as the definition of saṅgha, 僧.
七日, the seventh sun, seven suns, sattasuriya, T32n1648_p0439a19. During the the ageing of a world-system, cakkavāḷa, seven suns gradually appear with long periods in between. Each time a new sun appears the world gets hotter and drier, until, finally the seventh sun appears and completely destroys the world-system, including all realm from the lowest hell until the 4th brahmaloka, the Ābhassara-brahmaloka. See the Sattasuriyasutta, at A IV 100–103 and Visuddhimagga XIII.41/p.416.
等: resembling, alike, just like, iva, sāmaññā, T32n1648_p0436b13, T32n1648_p0439a13
惡心, corrupted mind, wicked mind, duṭṭhacitta, T32n1648_p0435a27
或殺父母: murdering one's mother or father, mātupitughātaka, T32n1648_p0435a27. The first two of the five immediately retributive deeds, ānantarikāni kammāni.
殺阿羅漢: murdering an arahant, arhantaghātaka, T32n1648_p0435a28. The third of the five immediately retributive deeds, ānantarikāni kammāni.
破僧: dividing the Saṅgha, saṅghabhedana, saṅghaṃ bhedeti, T32n1648_p0435a28. The fourth of the five immediately retributive deeds, ānantarikāni kammāni.
惡心出佛身血, spilling the blood of the Buddha with a wicked mind, duṭṭhena cittena tathāgatassa lohitaṃ uppādana, T32n1648_p0435a28. The fifth of the five immediately retributive deeds, ānantarikāni kammāni.
可畏事, fearful deeds, T32n1648_p0435a28. Probably a translation of ānantarikāni kammāni/ ānantariya-kammāni, the immediately retributive deeds.
鋸喻, the simile of the saw, kakacūpama, kakacopama, T32n1648_p0435a29. In the Kakacūpama Sutta (MN 21/ M I 122–29) the Buddha states that even if robbers were to cut off one by one the limbs of a Bhikkhu, if he were to anger his mind, because of that he would not be one who carries out the Buddha's Teaching.
自重其身: to conduct oneself with dignity, T32n1648_p0429b23.
從他聞, the word/statement from another, parato ghoso, T32n1648_p0400a11. One of the two causes and conditions for the arising of right view, 正見, sammādiṭṭhi, the othe being reasoned attention within oneself, 自正念, ajjhatta/paccatta yoniso manasikāra. "The word from another" refers to the word of the Buddha, i.e. the Teachings on the Four Noble Truths, from the Buddha himself or through a disciple, which one must have heard before being able to reflect on the Four Noble Truths within oneself.
聞, statement, word, proclamation, ghosa, T32n1648_p0400a11. See 從他聞.
自正念, reasoned attention within oneself, personal reasoned attention, ajjhatta/paccatta yoniso manasikāra, T32n1648_p0400a11. One of the two causes and conditions for the arising of right view, 正見, sammādiṭṭhi, the other is 從他聞, parato ghoso, the word of another, i.e. the word of the Buddha. "Internal reasoned attention," refers to the attending to the four Noble Truths within one's own body and mind. In order to do so, one must first have heard the word of the Buddha, i.e. the Four Noble Truths, from another. At T01n0026_p0791a02 內自思惟 is used instead.
內自思惟, reasoned attention within oneself, ajjhatta/paccatta yoniso manasikāra, T01n0026_p0791a02. One of the two causes and conditions for the arising of right view, 正見, sammādiṭṭhi, the other is hearing (the Dhamma) from another, the word of another, 從他聞, parato ghoso. In some translations自正念 is used instead of 內自思惟.
自, in oneself, personal, ajjhatta, paccatta, T32n1648_p0400a11. Used in opposition to 從他, from another. See 自正念 and 從他聞.

從他, from another, parato, T32n1648_p0400a11. Used in opposition to 自, within oneself, paccatta, ajjhatta. See 自正念 and 從他聞.
舊坐禪人, former meditator, experienced meditator, pubbayogāvacara, T32n1648_p0423a16. The opposite of the 初坐禪 or 新坐禪人: new meditator or beginner meditator. In the Pali commentaries the pubbayogāvacara denotes a meditator who has practiced meditation in previous lives and can therefore attain easily in this life. See the quotation of the (apocryphal?) Pubbayogāvacara Sutta at Sn-a I 47, Th-a I 12, Ap-a 139.
初坐禪人: beginner meditator, ādikammika-yogāvacara, ādikammika-yogī, T32n1648_p0412a11, etc. A meditator who is new to a meditation practice, and has not practiced it previously. He is contrasted to the 舊坐禪人, former meditator, experienced meditator, pubbayogāvacara.
新坐禪人 : new meditator, T32n1648_p0423a19, T32n1648_p0422c02. Identical with 初坐禪人: beginner meditator, ādikammika-yogāvacara.
地相, the sign of earth, paṭhavī-nimitta,
入胎, relinking, paṭisandhi, gabbhāvakkanti, T32n1648_p0450a26. This denotes the entry of the mind or consciousness into the mother's womb.
相續心, relinking mind, paṭisandhicitta, T32n1648_p0450a27. The mind or consciousness that enters into the mother's womb.
此我物: this is mine, etaṃ mama, T32n1648_p0450b04. (One of the wrong ways of regarding the aggregates, khandhā.)
此我身: this is my self, eso me attā, T32n1648_p0450b04. (One of the wrong ways of regarding the aggregates, khandhā.)
不作, unprepared, not made up, natural, akata, T32n1648_p0412c15. Used in the context of which can be unprepared, e.g. a field with bare earth, or prepared, 作, kata, as a kasiṇa-disk, kasiṇa-maṇḍala, 曼陀羅. (At T32n1648_p0412c19 spelled as 非作.)
兩俱: both, in both ways, ubhayato, T32n1648_p0443c23
識流轉: the stream of consciousness, viññāṇasota, T32n1648_p0443c23.
於此世: in this world, idhaloke, T32n1648_p0443c23.
於彼世: in the other world, paraloke, T32n1648_p0443c23.
此世: this world, idhaloke, T32n1648_p0443c23.
彼世: the other world, paraloke, T32n1648_p0443c23.
勇猛精進: application of energy, vīriyārambhā, T32n1648_p0404b24
勇猛: application, ārambhā, āraddha, T32n1648_p0404b24
少欲, fewness of wishes, appicchatā, T32n1648_p0404b23
知足, contentment, santuṭṭhi, T32n1648_p0404b24
定眾具, accessory of concentration, equipment for concentration samādhiparikkhāra, T32n1648_p0404b26
眾具, accessory, equipment, requisite, parikkhāra, T32n1648_p0404b26
速心, activational mind, javana-citta, T32n1648_p0451a26
終心: decease mind, cuti-citta, T32n1648_p0451a26
業所成: produced by action, born of kamma, kammaja, T32n1648_p0451b01.
色業所成: matter(s) produced by kamma, kammaja rūpa, kammajāni rūpāni, kammajarūpāni, T32n1648_p0451b01.
著, attachment, nikanti, T32n1648_p0451b18.
度: descent, entering, okkanti, T32n1648_p0451b21.
度: enters into, leaps into, pakkhandati, T32n1648_p0457a21.
次第, in regular order, anuloma, T32n1648_p0451b28. In opposition to 度次第, in reverse order, paṭiloma.
度次第, in reverse order, paṭiloma, T32n1648_p0451b29. In opposition to 次第, in regular order, anuloma.
面色: facial complexion, mukhavaṇṇa, T32n1648_p0435a18
悅澤, becomes bright, becomes clear, vippasīdati, T32n1648_p0435a18 面色悅澤, one's facial complexion is bright, mukhavaṇṇo vippasīdati, T32n1648_p0435a18.
和悅, becomes bright, becomes clear, vippasīdati, T32n1648_p0435c20 面色和悅, one's facial complexion is bright, mukhavaṇṇo vippasīdati, T32n1648_p0435c20.
所愛, dear, piya, T32n1648_p0435a17.
道分, path-factor, maggaṅga, T32n1648_p0451c25. A factor of the supramundane noble eightfold path, or supramundane dependent arising.
坐禪人, meditator, yogāvacara, yogī, as part of 初坐禪人: beginner meditator, ādikammika-yogāvacara, ādikammika-yogī, T32n1648_p0412a11, etc.
令起: producing, samuṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0446b06.
以令起: by way of producing, samuṭṭhānato, T32n1648_p0446b06.
令起: determining, deciding, voṭṭhabbana, T32n1648_p0449b15.
令起心: determining-mind, deciding-mind, voṭṭhabbana-citta, T32n1648_p0449b15. One of the minds that is part of the process of mind as described the Abhidhamma.
業所生: originating from action, produced from action, kammasamuṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0439c13.
心所生: originating from mind, produced from mind, cittasamuṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0439c15.
時所成: originating from caloricity, produced from caloricity, utusamuṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0439c20.
食所成: originating from nutriment, produced from nutriment, āhārasamuṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0439c22.
業所起, originating from action, produced from action, kammasamuṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0446b15.
心所起, originating from mind, produced from mind, cittasamuṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0446b16.
時節所起, originating from caloricity, produced from caloricity, utusamuṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0446b16.
食所起, originating from nutriment, produced from nutriment, utusamuṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0446b16.
自味, intrinsic function, yathāvarasa, T32n1648_p0455a07.
令生, generates, produces, nibbatteti, 458b16.
止離, avoids, stops, abstains from. (Pali: viramati, viveceti?) T32n1648_p0447c24. Cf. T01n0032_p0816b03 & b12, T06n0220_p0965b16, etc.
樂命, desiring life, jīvitukāma, T32n1648_p0447c25.
菩提品, requisites of awakening, bodhipakkhiya, T32n1648_p0456b20.
不明了, unwary, undiscerning, abyatta, avyatta, T32n1648_p0456b21.
明了, wary, discerning, vyatta, T32n1648_p0456b28.
生滅, arising and falling away, rise and fall, udayabbaya (= udaya + vaya), T32n1648_p0455a02. A stage in vipassana meditation when the rise and fall of the five aggregates is observed.
通達, to penetrate, penetration, paṭivijjhati, paṭivedha, T32n1648_p0455a02. Penetration with wisdom, of the rise and fall of the aggregates, etc.
非他緣, independent of another, anaññapaccaya, T32n1648_p0456a06. Used in the context of knowledge or wisdom which is not dependent on hearing from others, i.e. learning. See 慧非他緣.
慧非他緣, wisdom independent of another, aparapaccaya paññā, T32n1648_p0456a06. Wisdom which is not dependent on hearing from others, i.e. learning.
最羸, weak, feeble, dubbala, dubbalya, atidubbala, T32n1648_p0456a26
初因, former cause, pubbahetu, T32n1648_p0456a26
共地, common ground, sahabhūmī, T32n1648_p0456a27
生, originate, issue from, pabhavati, T32n1648_p0456a24
出, emerge, come out of, niggacchati,T32n1648_p0456a24

異, difference, irregularity, vesama, visama, T32n1648_p0456b13
彼間, in the meantime, meanwhile, tadantara, T32n1648_p0456b13
失, broken, destroyed, bhagga, T32n1648_p0456b14.
聚, heap, pile, mass, puñja, T32n1648_p0456b15
去來道, the path gone and come by, the path of going and coming, gatāgatamagga, T32n1648_p0425a25
光明, illumination, bright light, obhāsa, T32n1648_p0456b20. One of the subtle or lesser defilements (upakkilesa) that can arise during insight meditation.
取, exertion, paggaha, T32n1648_p0456b20. One of the subtle or lesser defilements (upakkilesa) that can arise during insight meditation.
出離, longing, attachment, nikanti, T32n1648_p0456b21. (= The Pali term nikanti, = Skt nikāma, misunderstood by the Chinese translator as niṣkrānta.) One of the subtle or lesser defilements (upakkilesa) that can arise during insight meditation.
法調所攝心, mind seized by agitation regarding (higher) states, dhammuddhaccaviggahitamānasa, T32n1648_p0456b24. A state that can occur in the higher stages of insight meditation, when the lesser/subtle defilements (upakkilesa) such as illumination, 光明, can be misapprehended and can lead to overestimation, adhimāna.
法調, agitation regarding (supramundane) states, dhammuddhacca, T32n1648_p0456b24. See 法調所攝心.
所攝, seized, assailed, viggahita, T32n1648_p0456b24
速作精進, too much application of energy, overexertion, accāraddhaviriya, T32n1648_p0413c01.
遲作精進, too sluggish application of energy, lack of exertion, atilīnaviriya, T32n1648_p0413c01.
作精進, application of energy, āraddhaviriya, T32n1648_p0413c01.
隨其所樂, as one wishes, according to one's wish, yathākāmaṃ, T32n1648_p0442a19.
隨其所樂處, wherever he wishes, yatthicchakaṃ, T32n1648_p0424b26.
入於三昧, to enter upon [a concentration attainment], T32n1648_p0424b27.
觀滅, contemplation of dissolution, bhaṅgānupassana, T32n1648_p0456c11. One of the insight knowledges, vipassanāñāṇa.
三有, the three kinds of existence, tayo bhavā, T32n1648_p0456c12. = kāma-bhava, rūpa-bhava, arūpa-bhava.
五趣, the five destinations, pañca gatiyo: T32n1648_p0456c12. The five rebirth destinations are hell (niraya), the animal womb (tiracchāna-yoni), the realm of hungry ghosts (pettivisaya), human (manussa), and divine (deva).
七識住, the seven stations of consciousness, satta viññāṇaṭṭhitiyo, T32n1648_p0456c12 . The different stations, consisting of the aggregates, khandha, of different types of beings, where relinking consciousness establishes itself and causes rebirth. Viññāṇaṭṭhiti is defined in the Pali commentaries as "the conditions/bases for the relinking-consciousness, which are just the aggregates endowed with consciousness." (viññāṇaṭṭhitiyoti paṭisandhiviññāṇassa ṭhānāni saviññāṇakā khandhā eva, Paṭis-a I 110. Cf. D-a III 1021). The seven stations are: 1. the station of beings who have varied bodies and varied perceptions, namely, humans, some gods and some beings in the states of woe (satt nānattakāyā nānattasaññino, seyyathāpi manussā ekacce ca devā ekacce ca vinipātikā). 2. the station of beings who have varied bodies and identical perceptions, namely, the gods in the company of Brahmā who have arisen first (sattā nānattakāyā ekattasaññino seyyathāpi devā brahmakāyikā paṭhamābhinibbattā). 3. the station of beings who have identica bodies and varied perceptions, namely, the radiant gods (sattā ekattakāyā nānattasaññino seyyathāpi devā ābhassarā). 4. the station of beings who have identical bodies and identical perceptions, namely, the lustrous gods (sattā ekattakāyā ekattasaññino seyyathāpi devā subhakiṇhā). 5. the station of beings who have entered upon the base of boundless space. (rūpasaññānaṃ samatikkamā paṭighasaññānaṃ atthaṅgamā nānattasaññānaṃ amanasikārā 'ananto ākāso'ti ākāsānañcāyatanūpagā). 6. the station of beings who have entered upon the base of boundless consciousness (sattā sabbaso ākāsānañcāyatanaṃ samatikkamma 'anantaṃ viññāṇa'nti viññāṇañcāyatanūpagā). 7. the station of beings who have entered upon the base of nothingness (sattā sabbaso viññāṇañcāyatanaṃ samatikkamma 'natthi kiñcī'ti ākiñcaññāyatanūpagā).
九眾生居 , the nine abodes of beings, T32n1648_p0456c12. The nine abodes are: 1. the abode of beings who have varied bodies and varied perceptions, namely, humans, some gods and some beings in the states of woe (sattā nānattakāyā nānattasaññino, seyyathāpi manussā ekacce ca devā ekacce ca vinipātikā). 2. the abode of beings who have varied bodies and identical perceptions, namely, the gods in the company of Brahmā who have arisen first (sattā nānattakāyā ekattasaññino seyyathāpi devā brahmakāyikā paṭhamābhinibbattā). 3. the abode of beings who have identical bodies and varied perceptions, namely, the radiant gods (sattā ekattakāyā nānattasaññino seyyathāpi devā ābhassarā). 4. the abode of beings who have identical bodies and identical perceptions, namely, the lustrous gods (sattā ekattakāyā ekattasaññino seyyathāpi devā subhakiṇhā). 5 the abode of gods who are non-percipient beings (sattā asaññino appaṭisaṃvedino, seyyathāpi devā asaññasattā), 6. the station of beings who have entered upon the base of boundless space. (rūpasaññānaṃ samatikkamā paṭighasaññānaṃ atthaṅgamā nānattasaññānaṃ amanasikārā 'ananto ākāso'ti ākāsānañcāyatanūpagā). 7. the abode of beings who have entered upon the base of boundless consciousness (sattā sabbaso ākāsānañcāyatanaṃ samatikkamma 'anantaṃ viññāṇa'nti viññāṇañcāyatanūpagā). 8. the abode of beings who have entered upon the base of nothingness (sattā sabbaso viññāṇañcāyatanaṃ samatikkamma 'natthi kiñcī'ti ākiñcaññāyatanūpagā). 9. the abode of beings who have entered upon the base of neither-perception-nor-non-perception (sattā sabbaso ākiñcaññāyatanaṃ samatikkamma nevasaññānāsaññāyatanūpagā).
行捨智, knowledge of equanimity towards the formations, saṅkhārupekkhāñāṇa, T32n1648_p0461b27
行捨, equanimity towards the formations, saṅkhārupekkhā, T32n1648_p0461b27
難, obstruction, antarāya, T32n1648_p0457a02
障礙, obstacle, paripantha, T32n1648_p0457a02
引, directing to, guidance, abhinihāra, T32n1648_p0456c29
引心, directing the mind, guidance of mind, cittassa abhinihāra, T32n1648_p0456c29
歡喜, delights in, delighting in, abhinandati, abhinandana, T32n1648_p0457a01
樂解脫智, knowledge of desire for release, muñcitukamyatāñāṇa, T32n1648_p0456c28
樂解脫, desire for release, muñcitukamyatā, T32n1648_p0456c28
見思惟, contemplation of reflection, paṭisaṅkhānupassanā, T32n1648_p0457a02
思惟, reflection, reflecting, paṭisaṅkhā, T32n1648_p0457a02
現觀, sees with insight, vipassati, T32n1648_p0456c29
觀滅智, dissolution contemplation knowledge, bhaṅgānupassanañāṇa T32n1648_p0456c02
起滅智, knowledge of rise and fall, udayabbayañāṇa, T32n1648_p0455c14
起滅, rise and fall, arising and falling away, udayabbaya, T32n1648_p0455c14
已竟 , is finished, has ended, niṭṭhita, T32n1648_p0455c15. Used in topic-, section-, chapter-conclusions in T32n1648.
所圍, surrounded, encircled, parivārita, T32n1648_p0456c23.
越正聚, to enter into the certainty of rightness, sammattaniyāmaṃ okkamati, T32n1648_p0457a08.
正聚, certainty of rightness, sammattaniyāmaṃ, T32n1648_p0457a08.
越, to enter into, okkamati, avakkamati, T32n1648_p0457a08.
於五陰: in the five aggregates, pañcakkhandhe, T32n1648_p0457a07
現見, seeing, passanta, T32n1648_p0457a07
解脫門, entrance into liberation, gateway to deliverance, vimokkhamukha, T32n1648_p0459c28.
性除智, adoption-knowledge, change-of-lineage-knowledge, gotrabhūñāṇa, T32n1648_p0457a18.
性除, adoption, change-of-lineage, gotrabhū, T32n1648_p0457a18.
非凡夫, non-commoner, aputhujjana, T32n1648_p0457a19.
起, emergence, vuṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0457a23.
轉, turning away from, vivaṭṭana, T32n1648_p0457a23.
知, full understanding, pariññā, T32n1648_p0457a27.
事, function, kicca, T32n1648_p0457b03.
事: object, ārammaṇa, T32n1648_p0449b17

慧眼, the eye of wisdom, paññācakkhu, T32n1648_p0455a09
分別諦, comprehension of the Truths, saccābhisamaya, T32n1648_p0457c05.
無有: when (this) not exists, when (this) is not, asati, T32n1648_p0455b06. (sati = loc. sg. m./nt. of sant, the pr.p. of atthi.) 不成, is not, na hoti, T32n1648_p0455b06–7.
有: when (this) exists, sati, T32n1648_p0455b06. (sati = loc. sg. m./nt. of sant, the pr.p. of atthi.)
成, is, hoti, T32n1648_p0455b07
一相, unity, ekatta, T32n1648_p0455b10
種種, diversity, nānatta, T32n1648_p0455b10
無事, unconcern, inactivity, avyāpāra, T32n1648_p0455b10.
正法, ineluctable regularity, evaṃdhammatā, T32n1648_p0455b10.
不覺, not comprehending, not understanding, anavabodha, T32n1648_p0455b14.
斷說, doctrine of annihilationism, ucchedavāda, T32n1648_p0455b15.
常說, doctrine of eternalism, sassatavāda, T32n1648_p0455b15.
我說, doctrine of a self, attavāda, T32n1648_p0455b15.
無事說, doctrine of inefficacy of action, akiriyavāda, T32n1648_p0455b16.
斷見, annihilationism view, view of annihilation, ucchedadiṭṭhi, T32n1648_p0455b23. It is the opposite of 常見, eternalism view.
常見, eternalism view, view of eternity, sassatadiṭṭhi, T32n1648_p0455b24. It is the opposite of 斷見, annihilationism view.
無動, indifferent, inactive, desireless, without endeavour, nirīhaka, T32n1648_p0455b12. Cf. 不動.
不動, indifferent, inactive, desireless, without endeavour, nirīhaka, T32n1648_p0455b28.
無動, imperturbability, āneñja, T32n1648_p0420b18
行分別智, knowledge of delimitation of formations, *saṅkhārapariccheda*ñāṇa, T32n1648_p0455c11
行分別, delimitation of formations, saṅkhārapariccheda, T32n1648_p0455c11
不實, coreless, without having a core, insubstantial, asāraka, T32n1648_p0454b15
執, adherence, attachment, abhinivesa, T32n1648_p0454b25
戒盜, holding on to precepts and vows, sīlabbataparāmāsa, T32n1648_p0457c23
戒行: precepts and observances, sīlabbata, T32n1648_p0457c27
彼一處住, associated with that, coefficient with that, tadekaṭṭha, T32n1648_p0457c28
煩惱, defilement, kilesa, T32n1648_p0457c28
從此外, outsiders, those outside of this (doctrine), ito bahiddhā, T32n1648_p0457c26.
從此外道, outsiders, those outside of this (doctrine), ito bahiddhā, T32n1648_p0444a06.
須陀洹果, the fruit of stream-entry, sotāpattiphala, T32n1648_p0458a01.
作證, realization, sacchikiriya, T32n1648_p0458a01
成向, is practicing, paṭipanno hoti, T32n1648_p0458a01.
為須陀洹果作證成向, is practising towards the realization of the Fruit of Stream-entry, sotāpattiphalasacchikiriyāya paṭipanno hoti, T32n1648_p0458a01.
解脫知見具足, endowed with knowledge and vision of freedom, vimuttiñāṇadassanasampanna, T32n1648_p0434c06
見具足, endowed with vision, possessed of vision, dassanasampanna, T32n1648_p0458a10
具足, endowed with, possessed of, dassanasampanna, T32n1648_p0458a10. (Following another word, such as 見, see 見具足, 解脫知見具足.)
胸生, born of the breast, oraso jāta, T32n1648_p0458a09
世尊胸生, born of the breast of the Blessed One, bhagavato oraso jāta, T32n1648_p0458a09
口生, born of the mouth, mukhato jāta, T32n1648_p0458a09
法生, to be born of the Dhamma , dhammaja, T32n1648_p0458a09
法所造, to be created by the Dhamma, dhammanimmita, T32n1648_p0458a09
所造, created, nimmita, T32n1648_p0458a09
法分, heir of the Dhamma, dhammadāyāda, T32n1648_p0458a09
物分, heir to material things, āmisadāyāda, T32n1648_p0458a10 分, an heir, dāyāda, T32n1648_p0458a09–10. See 法分 and 物分.
智成就, possessed of knowledge, ñāṇena sammanāgato, T32n1648_p0458a12
明成就, possessed of higher knowledge, vijjāya samannāgato, T32n1648_p0458a12
通達慧, penetrative wisdom, nibbedhikapaññā, T32n1648_p0458a12
法流, the stream of dhamma, dhammasota, T32n1648_p0458a12
領, governance, authority, ādhipacca, T32n1648_p0458a15
色欲, desire for the material (states), rūparāga, T32n1648_p0458a29
無色欲, desire for the immaterial (states), arūparāga, T32n1648_p0458a29
消, to use up, to exhaust, pariyādiyati, T32n1648_p0457b08
除闇, to dispel darkness, andhakāraṃ vidhamati, T32n1648_p0457b08
除, to dispel, get rid of, vidhamati, T32n1648_p0457b08
闇, darkness, andhakāra, T32n1648_p0457b08
無明闇, darkness of ignorance, avijjāndhakāra, T32n1648_p0444c14
令起光明, to manifest light, ālokaṃ pātukaroti, T32n1648_p0457b10
令起, to manifest, pātukaroti, T32n1648_p0457b10
不前不後, simultaneously, not before or after, apubbaṃ acarimaṃ, T32n1648_p0448b06
不初不後, simultaneously, not before or after, apubbaṃ acarimaṃ, T32n1648_p0457b07
非初非後, simultaneously, not before or after, apubbaṃ acarimaṃ, T32n1648_p0457b03
不散, unmixed, intact, asambhinna, abbokiṇṇa, T32n1648_p0448b06
次第, successively, in succession, paṭipāṭiyā, T32n1648_p0448b05
令現色, shows form, rūpaṃ nidassiyati, T32n1648_p0457b09
令現, to show, to manifest, nidassiyati, T32n1648_p0457b09
非行, the formationless, non-formation, visaṅkhāra, T32n1648_p0455a29. An epithet for Nibbāna.
無行, the formationless, non-formation, visaṅkhāra, T32n1648_p0457b22. An epithet for Nibbāna.
菩提分法, the requisites of Awakening, bodhipakkhiya dhamma, T32n1648_p0457b27.
菩提分, the requisites of Awakening, bodhipakkhiya, T32n1648_p0457b27.
乘: leading out (of saṃsāra), outlet, niyyāna, T32n1648_p0457c07
覺, thought, vitakka, can be a copyist mistake for 學, trainee, learner, sekha, T32n1648_p0458a12

結使, fetter, saṃyojana, T32n1648_p0458b23
無異義, not different in meaning, T32n1648_p0414b09
無異, not different, no difference, vesama, visama, T32n1648_p0414b09
不煩, aviha, T32n1648_p0458b27–28. The first of the four Pure Abodes, suddhāvāsa, where non-returners, anāgāmins, 阿那含, are reborn as Brahmā gods.
不熱 , atappa, T32n1648_p0458b28. The second of the four Pure Abodes, suddhāvāsa, where non-returners, anāgāmins, 阿那含, are reborn as Brahmā gods.
善見, sudassa, T32n1648_p0458b28. The third of the four Pure Abodes, suddhāvāsa, where non-returners, anāgāmins, 阿那含, are reborn as Brahmā gods.
善現, sudassi, T32n1648_p0458b29. The fourth of the four Pure Abodes, suddhāvāsa, where non-returners, anāgāmins, 阿那含, are reborn as Brahmā gods.
令起, generates, produces, sañjaneti, T32n1648_p0458b26
火星, spark, ember, T32n1648_p0458c09
無動, unshakeable, acala, T32n1648_p0458c12
無動樂, unshakeable, acala sukha, T32n1648_p0458c12
得, obtaining, gaining, paṭilābha, T32n1648_p0460c25
長老那羅陀, Nārada thera, the elder Nārada, T32n1648_p0460c27. Nārada thera gave the simile of the well in the desert at S II 117–18.
長老, elder, senior monk, thera, T32n1648_p0460c27. A thera is a bhikkhu who has completed at least ten rains retreats (vassa).
山林, wilderness, desert, kantāra, T32n1648_p0460c28
日所曝, scorched by the sun, ghammābhitatta, T32n1648_p0460c28
日, sun, sunshine, ghamma, T32n1648_p0460c28
所曝, scorched, abhitatta, T32n1648_p0460c28. Abhitatta = past participle of abhitapati.
曝, scorch, abhitapati, T32n1648_p0460c28.
熱, afflicted, overcome by, pareta, T32n1648_p0460c29. (Part of a group of characters, preceded by 所, indicating a p.p.)
乏, wearied, kilanta, T32n1648_p0460c29. (Part of a group of characters, preceded by 所, indicating a p.p.)
渴, thirsty, tasita, T32n1648_p0460c29 (Perhaps one word together with 愛, i.e. 渴愛, but Pali = tasita + pipāsita.) (Part of a group of characters, preceded by 所, indicating a p.p.)
愛, craving, pipāsita, T32n1648_p0460c29 (Perhaps one word together with 渴, i.e. 渴愛, but Pali = tasita + pipāsita.) (Part of a group of characters, preceded by 所, indicating p.p.)
以身觸住, dwells touching it with the body, kāyena phusitvā viharati, T32n1648_p0460c29.
如實正智善見, to know well, according to reality, with right wisdom, yathābhūtaṃ sammappaññāya sudiṭṭha, T32n1648_p0461a01.
正智, right wisdom, sammappaññā, T32n1648_p0461a01.
善見, to know well, sudiṭṭha, T32n1648_p0461a01.
漏盡, (one who has) destroyed the taints, khīṇāsava, T32n1648_p0461a02.
正命, Sañjīva, T32n1648_p0461b23. The proper name of an arahant who was one of the two chief disciples of the Buddha Kakusandha; see M I 333.
長老正命, venerable Sañjīva, āyasmā Sañjīva, T32n1648_p0461b23. The name of an arahant who was one of the two chief disciples of the Buddha Kakusandha; see M I 333.
行具足, endowed with conduct, caraṇasampanna, T32n1648_p0427a03
明具足, endowed with higher knowledge, vijjāsampanna, T32n1648_p0427a02
樂行具足, pleasant practice, sukhapaṭipadā, T32n1648_p0459b09–10
苦行具足, painful practice, painful progress, dukkhapaṭipadā, T32n1648_p0459b08
燥觀, bare insight, dry insight, sukkhavipassanā, T32n1648_p0459b08
第五禪, fifth jhāna, pañcama jhāna, T32n1648_p0416c25
因緣所起, produced through the condition of, produced through the conditions of, paccayena samuṭṭhita, paccayehi samuṭṭhita, T32n1648_p0446b07
因緣所生 , produced through the condition of, produced through the conditions of, paccayena samuṭṭhita, paccayehi samuṭṭhita, T32n1648_p0436b12 比尼義, the meaning of the vinaya, vinayattha, T32n1648_p0445a01, T22n1421_p0190c25.
修多羅義, the meaning of the suttas, suttattha, T22n1421_p0191a16, T32n1634_p0038c13.
奮迅, suppression, suspension, vikkhambhana, T32n1648_p0416a26. As part of 奮迅五蓋.
奮迅五蓋, pañcanīvaraṇāni vikkhambhana, T32n1648_p0416a26.
不閉六根門, not closing the doors of the six sense-faculties, chasu indriyesu apihitadvārānaṃ, apihitachaḷindriya, T32n1648_p0401a02
六根門, cha indriya, chaḷindriya, the six sense-faculties, the doors of the six sense-faculties, T32n1648_p0401a02 不閉, not closed, apihita, T32n1648_p0401a02.
無過樂, happiness of blamelessness, blameless happiness, anavajjasukha, T32n1648_p0400b18 & 401a04
寂滅樂, the happiness of stilling, happiness of calmness, upasamasukha, T32n1648_p0400b18–19
正覺樂, the happiness of awakening, sambodhisukha, T32n1648_p0400b19
寂滅, stilling, calmness, stillness, upasama, T32n1648_p0400b18–19
無過, blamelessness, anavajja, T32n1648_p0400b18
不相應, not fitting, not appropriate. Probably na yujjati. The Pali parallel, in the Kathāvatthu, has na hevaṃ vattabbe, "not to be said thus." T32n1648_p0458c15
作證果, to realize the fruit, phalaṃ sacchikaroti, T32n1648_p0458c15 次第分別諦, to gradually comprehend the truths, anupubbena saccānaṃ abhisameti, , T32n1648_p0458c13–14.
次第分別, to gradually comprehend, gradual comprehension, T32n1648_p0458c13–14.
可樂, acceptable, to be accepted. Perhaps sampaṭicchitabba or paṭijāneyya as a synonym for āmantā. The Pali parallel, in the Kathāvatthu, has āmantā, "yes" or "accepted," T32n1648_p0458c17. At T32n1648_p0458c17 然 is used instead.
然, yes, accepted, acceptable, āmantā, T32n1648_p0458c19. Probably in the same meaning as可樂.
見苦, the seeing of suffering, dukkhadassana, T32n1648_p0458c19
四分, four parts, catubhāga, T32n1648_p0458c21
七時生, seven-lives-at-moster, sattakkhattuparama, (one of the three kinds of stream-enterer, sotāpanna, 須陀洹), T32n1648_p0458c23. Cf. 七生 at T32n1648_p0458b13.
家家生, clan-to-clanner, kolaṃkola, (one of the three kinds of stream-enterer, sotāpanna, 須陀洹), T32n1648_p0458c23. Cf. 家家 at T32n1648_p0458b14
住於果, stands in the fruit, phale ṭhita, T32n1648_p0458c24
住於道, stands in the path, magge ṭhita, T32n1648_p0458c24 (reading in footnote no. 8) 現見, seeing, dakkhanta, present participle of dakkhati, T32n1648_p0458c27.
現見苦, seeing suffering, dukkhaṃ dakkhanta, T32n1648_p0458c27.
須陀洹道住, stands in the path of stream-entry, sotāpattimagge ṭhita, T32n1648_p0458c27
信行, faith-practitioner, faith-practice, saddhānusārin, saddhānusāritta ?, T32n1648_p0458c28
法行, dhamma-practitioner, dhamma-practice, dhammānusārin, dhammānusāritta ?, T32n1648_p0458c29
現見道, seeing the Path, maggaṃ dakkhanta, T32n1648_p0459a06
作證果, realization of the fruit, phalasacchikiriyā, T32n1648_p0459a07
無義, senseless, meaningless, niratthiya, T32n1648_p0459a09

作證須陀洹果, realization of the fruit of stream-entry, sotāpattiphalasacchikiriyā, T32n1648_p0459a11
菴婆菓, mangofruit, fruit of a mango tree, ambaphala, T32n1648_p0459a17
菴婆, mangotree, mango, amba, T32n1648_p0459a17 修多羅毘曇毘尼, the Discourses, Advanced Dhamma and the Discipline, sutta abhidhamma vinaya, T32n1648_p0399c19, T32n1648_p0408b14–15.
諦聽, listen attentively!, suṇohi sādhukaṃ manasi karohi ?, T32n1648_p0399c20
無上解脫, unexcelled freedom, anuttara vimutti, T32n1648_p0399c15, anubuddhā ime dhammā Gotamena yasassinā
隨覺, awoke to, understood, anubuddha, T32n1648_p0399c15
此法, these states, these dhammas, T32n1648_p0399c15
有稱, illustrious, famous, renowned, yasassin, T32n1648_p0399c16
瞿曇, Gotama, = the surname of the Buddha, T32n1648_p0399c16
眾難, many encumbrances, many troubles, bahuparissaya ?, , T32n1648_p0399c17
禮世尊應供正遍知: “Homage to the Blessed One, the Worthy One, the Rightly Awakened One,” namo tassa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhassa. T32n1648_p0399c14. A phrase of homage used at the start of Buddhist texts. (= 今請世尊應供正遍知 at T19n0953_p0289b25–26.)
禮, homage to, namo, T32n1648_p0399c14. Used in 禮世尊應供正遍知: “Homage to the Blessed One, the Worthy One, the Rightly Awakened One,” namo tassa bhagavato arahato sammāsambuddhassa. A phrase of homage used at the start of Buddhist texts.
應供, worthy one, arahant, T32n1648_p0399c14.
正遍知, rightly awakened one, sammāsambuddha, T32n1648_p0399c14.
伏解脫, freedom through suspending, vikkhambhanavimutti, T32n1648_p0399c25
伏, suspending, suppression, vikkhambhana, T32n1648_p0399c25 彼分解脫, freedom through the (opposing) aspect, tadaṅga-vimutti, T32n1648_p0399c26.
彼分, the (opposing) aspect, tadaṅga, T32n1648_p0399c26.
斷解脫, freedom through eradication, samuccheda-vimutti, T32n1648_p0399c26.
斷, eradication, cutting off, samuccheda, T32n1648_p0399c26
猗解脫, freedom through tranquillizing, paṭippassaddha-vimutti, T32n1648_p0399c26.
離解脫, freedom through escaping, nissaraṇa-vimutti, T32n1648_p0399c26.
猗, tranquillizing, paṭippassaddha, T32n1648_p0399c26.
離, escaping, nissaraṇa, T32n1648_p0399c26.
達分定, concentration partaking of penetration, nibbedhabhāgiya-samādhi, T32n1648_p0399c29.
達分, partaking of penetration, nibbedhabhāgiya, T32n1648_p0399c29 出世間道, supramundane path, lokuttara-magga, T32n1648_p0399c29 無餘涅槃, Nibbāna without residue, anupādisesa-nibbāna, T32n1648_p0400a02.
伏, to enter upon, go onto, samāruhati ?, T32n1648_p0400a05–06.
塵勞微細, with little dust [in their eyes], apparaja, (= part of apparajakkha) T32n1648_p0400a09
退轉, to fall away, decline, parihāyati, T32n1648_p0400a09
能生正見, for the arising of right view, sammādiṭṭhiyā uppādāya, T32n1648_p0400a09
增上戒學, the training of the higher virtue, adhisīlasikkhā, T32n1648_p0400a20
增上心學, the training of the higher mind, adhicittasikkhā, T32n1648_p0400a20
增上慧學, the training of the higher wisdom, adhipaññāsikkhā, T32n1648_p0400a21
增上戒, higher virtue, adhisīla, T32n1648_p0400a20
增上心, higher mind, adhicitta, T32n1648_p0400a20
增上慧, higher wisdom, adhipaññā, T32n1648_p0400a21
有相, partaking of distinction, visesabhāgiya?, T32n1648_p0400a24. As part of 有相戒, virtue partaking of distinction, visesabhāgiya sīla , and concentration partaking of distinction, visesabhāgiya samādhi, 有相定, together with 達分戒, virtue partaking of penetration, nibbedhabhāgiya sīla , and concentration partaking of penetration, nibbedhabhāgiya samādhi, 達分定, T32n1648_p0400a28–29.
道定, Path-concentration, magga-samādhi, T32n1648_p0400a29. The supramundane concentration of the Path.
諦相似, in conformity with the truths, saccānulomika, T32n1648_p0400b01 (See 隨諦相應) 相似, in conformity, anulomika, T32n1648_p0400b01. (As part of 諦相似, saccānulomika).
四諦相似智, knowledge in conformity with the truths, saccānulomika, T32n1648_p0400b01 (See 隨諦相應)
心清淨, purity of mind, cittavisuddhi, T32n1648_p0400b06.
犯戒, misconduct, immorality, dussīla, T32n1648_p0400b08
犯戒垢, the stain of misconduct, the stain of immorality, dussīlyamala, T32n1648_p0400b08 洗, to cleanse away, visodheti, T32n1648_p0400b08.
洗犯戒垢, to cleanse away the stain of misconduct, dussīlyamalaṃ visodheti, T32n1648_p0400b08.
纏垢, the stain of the obsessions, pariyuṭṭhāna-mala, T32n1648_p0400b08 垢, stain, impurity, mala, T32n1648_p0400b08.
無知垢, stain of ignorance, avijjāmala, T32n1648_p0400b08.
初善, good in the beginning, initial good, ādikalyāṇa, T32n1648_p0400b12. One of the three kinds of goodness: 三種善.
中善, good in the middle, medial good, majjhekalyāṇa, T32n1648_p0400b15. One of the three kinds of goodness: 三種善.
後善, good in the end, the final good, pariyosānakalyāṇa, T32n1648_p0400b16. One of the three kinds of goodness: 三種善.
三種善, the three kinds of goodness, good in three ways, tividhakalyāṇa, T32n1648_p0400b11. The three are: 初善, good in the beginning, initial good, ādikalyāṇa; 中善, good in the middle, medial good, majjhekalyāṇa; 後善, good in the end, the final good, pariyosānakalyāṇa.
自知, individual knowledge, paccatta ñāṇa, T32n1648_p0400b17. Probably corresponds to paccattaṃyeva ñāṇaṃ.
遠離二邊, not approaching the two extremes, avoiding the two extremes, dve ante anupagamma, T32n1648_p0400b21 二邊, two extremes, two ends, dve ante, T32n1648_p0400b21. The two extremes of sensual indulgence & self-wearying that have to be avoided.
遠離, keeping away from, not approaching, anupagamma, T32n1648_p0400b21.
諸欲著, the pursuit of sense-pleasures, kāmasukhallikānuyoga, T32n1648_p0400b22
佛法, Teaching of the Buddha, Buddhadhamma, T32n1648_p0401a19 有疑, doubtful, dubious, that which is doubtful, a dubious point, vematika, T32n1648_p0402a06. Adjective.
所疑, doubtful, dubious, that which is doubtful, a dubious point, vematika, T32n1648_p0409a07.
不敬師, not respecting the teacher, satthari agārava, T32n1648_p0401b09
不敬師, not respecting, agārava, T32n1648_p0401b09
惡口, evil speech, dubbacā, T32n1648_p0401b08.
惡友, evil friends, pāpamitta, T32n1648_p0401b08.

惡智, evil wisdom, duppaññā, T32n1648_p0401b08.
惡見, evil views, pāpa-diṭṭhi, T32n1648_p0401b08.
不忍, impatience, akkhanti T32n1648_p0401b08.
不信, non-faith, asaddhā, T32n1648_p0401b08.
無慚, non-conscience, ahiri, T32n1648_p0401b08.
無愧, shamelessness, anottappa, T32n1648_p0401b08.
忿, anger, wrath, kodha, T32n1648_p0401b06.
惱, annoyance, āghāta, T32n1648_p0401b06.
覆, hypocrisy, makkha, T32n1648_p0401b06.
熱, spite, paḷāsa, T32n1648_p0401b06.
慳, covetousness, macchariya, T32n1648_p0401b06.
嫉, jealousy, issā, T32n1648_p0401b06.
幻, deceit, deception, illusion, māyā, T32n1648_p0401b06.
諂, craftiness, sāṭheyya, T32n1648_p0401b06.
恨, malice, upanāha, T32n1648_p0401b06.
競, argumentiveness, sārambha, T32n1648_p0401b06.
慢, conceit, māna, T32n1648_p0401b06.
增上慢, overestimation, atimāna, T32n1648_p0401b07.
傲慢, arrogance, mada, T32n1648_p0401b07.
放逸, negligence, pamāda, T32n1648_p0401b07.
懶惰, idleness, kosajja, T32n1648_p0401b07.
貪欲, lust, lobha, T32n1648_p0401b07.
不知足, non-contentment, asantuṭṭhi, T32n1648_p0401b07.
不正念, loss of mindfulness, forgetfulness, muṭṭhassati, T32n1648_p0401b07.
不犯, not committing (an offence), (āpattiṃ) anāpajjanta, T32n1648_p0402a07.
犯已能悔, atonement after having committed (an offence), āpajjitvā katapaṭikamma, T32n1648_p0402a07.
犯已, having committed (an offence), āpajjitvā, T32n1648_p0402a07.
犯, to commit (an offence), āpajjati, T32n1648_p0402a07.
能悔, atonement, making amends (for an offence that has been committed), katapaṭikamma, T32n1648_p0402a07. The Visuddhimagga parallel (Vism I.36/p.14) has katapaṭikamma.
不悔, non-atonement, not making amends (for an offence that has been committed), akatapaṭikamma, T32n1648_p0402a07. The Visuddhimagga parallel (Vism I.36/p.14) ha akatapaṭikamma.
不正行, transgression (of a rule), ajjhācara, T32n1648_p0402a10. The Chinese translator misunderstood the initial a- in ajjhācara (adhi + ā + car) as a negative prefix.
無學, non-learner, non-trainee, asekha, T32n1648_p0402a13. The non-learner is the arahant.
非學非無學, neither learner nor non-learner, neither trainee nor non-trainee, nevasekhanāsekha, T32n1648_p0402a13. This is the commoner or worldling, puthujjana. Cf. 非學非非學.
牛戒, cow-virtue, gosīla, T32n1648_p0402a19. An ascetic practice whereby he behaves and eats as a cow; see M I 387.
狗戒, dog-virtue, kukkarasīla, , T32n1648_p0402a19. An ascetic practice whereby he behaves and eats as a dog; see M I 387.
比丘戒, the virtue of the bhikkhu, bhikkhusīla, T32n1648_p0402b02.
比丘尼戒 , the virtue of the bhikkhunī, bhikkhunīsīla, T32n1648_p0402b03.
不具足戒, the virtue of the not-yet-fully-admitted, the virtue of the not-yet-ordained, anupasampanna-sīla, T32n1648_p0402b03.
白衣戒, the virtue of the white-clothed (laity), odāta-vasana-sīla, T32n1648_p0402b03.
不具足, the not-yet-fully-admitted, not-yet-ordained, anupasampanna, T32n1648_p0402b03.
具足, fully-admitted, ordained, upasampanna, T32n1648_p0402b03.
白衣, white-clothed, laity, odāta-vasana, T32n1648_p0402b03.
波羅提木叉威儀, the restraint of the code of discipline, the restraint of the pātimokkha, pātimokkhasaṃvara, T32n1648_p0402b21.
波羅提木叉, the code of discipline, the pātimokkha, pātimokkha, T32n1648_p0402b04 沙彌沙彌尼十戒, the ten virtues of the male and female novice, ten precepts for male and female novices, sāmaṇera-sāmaṇerī-dasa-sīla, T32n1648_p0402b05.
沙彌沙彌尼, male and female novices, sāmaṇera-sāmaṇerī, T32n1648_p0402b05.
沙彌, (male) novice, sāmaṇera, T32n1648_p0402b05.
沙彌尼, female novice, sāmaṇerī, T32n1648_p0402b05.
十戒, ten virtues, ten precepts, dasa-sīla, T32n1648_p0402b05. (= The virtues for novices. See 沙彌沙彌尼十戒.)
式叉摩尼戒, the virtue of the female probationer, sikkhamānā-sīla, T32n1648_p0402b05–06.
式叉摩尼, female probationer, sikkhamānā, T32n1648_p0402b05–06.
優婆塞優婆姨, male and female lay followers, upāsakaupāsikā, T32n1648_p0402b06.
優婆塞優婆夷, male and female lay followers, upāsakaupāsikā, T32n1648_p0402b06. (Variant reading of 優婆塞優婆姨.)
優婆塞, male lay follower, upāsaka, T32n1648_p0402b06.
優婆夷, female lay follower, upāsikā, T32n1648_p0402b06. (Variant reading of優婆姨.)
優婆姨, female lay follower, upāsikā, T32n1648_p0402b06.
五戒, the five virtues, pañcasīlāni, pañcasīla, T32n1648_p0402b06–07. (= The normal precepts for lay followers.)
八戒, the eight virtues, aṭṭhasīlāni, aṭṭhasīla, T32n1648_p0402b07. (= The precepts for lay followers undertaken on Uposatha days.)
性戒, natural virtue, pakati-sīla, T32n1648_p0402b07.
行戒, customary virtue, ācāra-sīla, T32n1648_p0402b08.
法志戒, virtue that is an essential quality, dhammatā-sīla, T32n1648_p0402b08.
初因戒, virtue due to former causes, pubbahetuka-sīla, T32n1648_p0402b08.
法志, essential quality, dhammatā, T32n1648_p0402b08.
欝單越, Uttarakuru, T32n1648_p0402b08. A happy realm where people live free from possessiveness and ownership; see D III 199, A IV 396.
姓族, clan, family, kula, T32n1648_p0402b09.
國土, country, region, desa, T32n1648_p0402b09.
外道, (non Buddhist) sect, religious group, pāsaṇḍa, T32n1648_p0402b09.
菩薩, the Bodhisatta, bodhisatta, T32n1648_p0402b10.
入胎, enter the womb, kucchiṃ okkanti, T32n1648_p0402b10.
摩訶迦葉, Mahākassapa, T32n1648_p0402b11.

波羅提木叉威儀戒, the virtue of Pātimokkha restraint, pātimokkhasaṃvarasīla, T32n1648_p0402b19–21.
命清淨戒, virtue of the purity of livelihood, ājīvapārisuddhisīla, T32n1648_p0402b20.
根威儀戒, virtue of the restraint of the sense-faculties, indriyasaṃvarasīla, T32n1648_p0402b20.
護根威儀戒, virtue of the restraint of the sense-faculties, indriyasaṃvarasīla, T32n1648_p0403b08.
緣修戒, virtue connected with the requisites, paccayasannissitasīla, T32n1648_p0402b20. Cf. 修行四事戒 命清淨, purity of livelihood, ājīvapārisuddhi, T32n1648_p0402b20.
根威儀, sense-faculty restraint, indriyasaṃvara, T32n1648_p0402b20.
緣修, connected with the requisites, paccayasannissita, T32n1648_p0402b20.
波羅提木叉威儀所覆住, dwells restrained by the Pātimokkha restraint, pātimokkhasaṃvarasaṃvuto viharati, T32n1648_p0402b22
波羅提木叉威儀所覆, restrained by the Pātimokkha restraint, pātimokkhasaṃvarasaṃvuto, T32n1648_p0402b22
所覆, restrained, saṃvuto, T32n1648_p0402b22
行行處具足, endowed with (proper) conduct and resort, ācāragocarasampanna, T32n1648_p0402b22
行, (proper) conduct, ācāra, T32n1648_p0402b22.
行處, (proper) resort, gocara, T32n1648_p0402b22; T32n1648_p0402c22ff.
畏於細罪, [seeing] fear in tiny faults, aṇumattesu vajjesu bhayadassāvī, T32n1648_p0402b22. See 於微過見畏.
細罪, tiny fault, aṇumatta vajja, T32n1648_p0402b22. See 微過.
罪, fault, blameworthy thing, vajja, T32n1648_p0402b22. See 過 細, tiny, small, aṇumatta, T32n1648_p0402b22. See 微.
於微過見畏, seeing fear in tiny faults, aṇumattesu vajjesu bhayadassāvī, T32n1648_p0403a13
微過, tiny fault, aṇumatta vajja, T32n1648_p0403a13
見畏, seeing fear, bhayadassāvī, T32n1648_p0403a13
微, tiny, small, aṇumatta, T32n1648_p0403a13
過, fault, blameworthy thing, vajja, T32n1648_p0403a13
正受學可學戒, undertaking [them], he trains in the training rules, samādāya sikkhati sikkhāpadesu, T32n1648_p0402b22–23.
正受學可學, he trains in the training rules he has undertaken, samādāya sikkhati sikkhāpadesu, T32n1648_p0403a13–15.
正受, undertaking, having undertaken, samādāya, T32n1648_p0402b22.
學, to train, sikkhati, T32n1648_p0402b22.
可學戒, the training rules, sikkhāpadā, T32n1648_p0402b22–23.
可學, the training rules, sikkhāpadā, T32n1648_p0403a13–15.
師法, master's teaching, teacher's dispensation, satthu-sāsana, T32n1648_p0402b23.
凡夫善, good commoner, kaḷyāṇa-puthujjana, T32n1648_p0402b23.
起, foundation, establishing, patiṭṭhā, T32n1648_p0402b24.
行, conduct, caraṇa, T32n1648_p0402b25.
脫, release, mokha, T32n1648_p0402b25.
無縛, loosening, untying, pamokha, T32n1648_p0402b25.
面為正受善法, the entrance for the attainment of wholesome states, mukhaṃ kusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ samāpattiyā, T32n1648_p0402b26.
面, entrance, mukha, T32n1648_p0402b26.
為正受, for the attainment of, samāpattiyā, T32n1648_p0402b26.
不越, non-transgression, not transgressing, avītikkama, T32n1648_p0402b26.
四威儀, the four postures, cattāro iriyāpathā, T32n1648_p0402b28.
行, (proper) conduct, ācāra, T32n1648_p0402b29.
非行, misconduct, anācāra, T32n1648_p0402b29.
竹, bamboo, veḷu, T32n1648_p0402c01.
楊枝, tooth-sticks, dantakaṭṭha, T32n1648_p0402c01.
澡浴, bathing-powder, sināna, T32n1648_p0402c01.
佛之所制, censured by the Buddha, buddhapaṭikuṭṭha, T32n1648_p0402c01.
所制, censured, scorned, paṭikuṭṭha, T32n1648_p0402c03. (past participle of paṭikkosati, to censure, scorn.)
自活, to make a livelihood, to subsist, jīvikaṃ kappeti, T32n1648_p0402c03.
身非行, bodily misconduct, kāyika anācāra, T32n1648_p0402c05.
觸, jostling, ghaṭṭayanta, T32n1648_p0402c06.
大德, elder, senior monk, thera, T32n1648_p0402c06.
上位, high seat, ucca āsana, T32n1648_p0402c06.
上, high, ucca, T32n1648_p0402c06
位, seat, āsana, T32n1648_p0402c06
下, low, nīca, T32n1648_p0402c08
下路, a lower walking path, nīca caṅkama, T32n1648_p0402c08.
耆德, ? senior monk, elder, thera ? , T32n1648_p0402c08. (The context suggest that this means thera, at T32n1648_p0402c06 大德 is used instead.)
高陌, a high walking path, ucca caṅkama, T32n1648_p0402c08.
浴室, bath-house, sauna, jantāghara, T32n1648_p0402c10.
無諮問, without asking permission, anāpucchā, T32n1648_p0402c10.
關閉門戶, bolts the door, dvāraṃ pidahati, T32n1648_p0402c10.
超越, enters abruptly, sahasā pavisati, T32n1648_p0402c12.
屏, screened, paṭicchanna, T32n1648_p0402c12.
口非行, verbal misconduct, vācasika anācāra, T32n1648_p0402c14.
不諮, without asking permission, anāpucchā, T32n1648_p0402c14.
說波羅提木叉, to recite the Pātimokkha, pātimokkhaṃ uddisati, T32n1648_p0402c15.
說法, preaches the Dhamma, dhammaṃ bhaṇati, T32n1648_p0402c15.
所姓, of such a name, itthannāma, T32n1648_p0402c16.
反, opposite, paṭipakkha, T32n1648_p0402c18.
復次, again, apica, T32n1648_p0402c19.
有恭敬, respectful, sagārava, T32n1648_p0402c19.
慚愧成就, endowed with conscience and shame, hirottappasampanna, T32n1648_p0402c19.
無所乏少, without anything lacking, with nothing lacking, T32n1648_p0402c19

護諸根, is guarding the doors of the sense-faculties, indriyesu guttadvāra, T32n1648_p0402c20.
不守護諸根, not guarding the doors of the sense-faculties, indriyesu aguttadvāra, T32n1648_p0414a09.
節飲食, moderation as regards food, bhojane mattaññū, T32n1648_p0402c20.
少欲, has few wishes, appiccha, T32n1648_p0402c21.
知足, is contented, santuṭṭha, T32n1648_p0402c21.
婬, harlot, prostitute, vesiyā, T32n1648_p0402c24
寡婦, widow, vidhavā, T32n1648_p0402c24
處女, maiden, old spinster, old maid, thullakumārī, T32n1648_p0402c24.
不男, euneuch, paṇḍaka, T32n1648_p0402c24
酒肆, tavern, pānāgāra, T32n1648_p0402c24.
親近, intimate, close, saṃsaṭṭha, T32n1648_p0402c25.
國王, king, royal, rāja, T32n1648_p0402c25.
大臣, king's minister, rājamahāmatta, T32n1648_p0402c25.
外道, sectarians, those of outside sects, titthiya, T32n1648_p0402c25.
四眾, the fourfold assembly, the four assemblies, catuparisā, T32n1648_p0402c26. The four assemblies are the bhikkhus, bhikkhunīs, upāsakas (laymen) and upāsikās (laywomen); see S-ṭ I 73 (Be).
樂心, gladdened mind, confidence of mind, pasannacitta? , T32n1648_p0402c26
依行處, resort as support, upanissaya-gocara, T32n1648_p0402c29
守護行處, resort as guarding, ārakkha-gocara, T32n1648_p0402c29
繫縛行處, resort as a tying down, upanibandha-gocara, T32n1648_p0402c29
繫縛, tying down, a tie, close connection, upanibandha, T32n1648_p0402c29
依, support, upanissaya, T32n1648_p0402c29
善友, good friend, kalyāṇamitta, T32n1648_p0403a01
處功德成就善友, endowed with the quality of the ten bases [of speech], dasakathāvatthuguṇasamannāgata, T32n1648_p0403a01 未聞得聞, to hear what one has not yet heard, assutaṃ suṇāti, T32n1648_p0403a02.
斷除疑悔, to overcome doubt, kaṅkhaṃ vitarati, T32n1648_p0403a02–03
正見, rectifies his view, diṭṭhiṃ ujuṃ karoti, T32n1648_p0403a03
清白, to make confident, pasādeti, T32n1648_p0403a03
增長, to increase, vaḍḍhati, T32n1648_p0403a04
戒聞施慧念, virtue, learning, liberality, wisdom and mindfulness, saddhā, sīla, suta, cāga, paññā, T32n1648_p0403a04
入他舍, to go among the houses, antaragharaṃ pavisati, T32n1648_p0403a05. The Chinese has “to enter another's house.”
不踰尋仞, looking a plough yoke length ahead, yugamattadassāvī, T32n1648_p0403a06.
象, elephant, hatthi, T32n1648_p0403a06
馬, horse, assa, T32n1648_p0403a06
車乘, chariot, ratha, T32n1648_p0403a06
看, to look at, oloketi, T32n1648_p0403a06
四望, not looking around in the four directions, disāvidisaṃ pekkhamāno, T32n1648_p0403a06
其家境界, his own ancestral range, saka pettika visaya, T32n1648_p0403a09
家, ancestral, patrimonial, pettika, T32n1648_p0403a09
其, one's own, saka, T32n1648_p0403a09
七聚威儀, the restraint of the seven groups (of offences), the seven groups of restraint, T32n1648_p0403a14. Cf. 七聚 = sattāpattikkhandhā.
Cf. Vjb 72 (Be): Sattahi āpattikkhandhehi saṃvaro saṃvaravinayo paññattisikkhāpadameva. Ud-a 253: Sattannaṃ āpattikkhandhānaṃ avītikkamalakkhaṇo saṃvaro.
七聚, the seven groups (of offences), satta āpattikkhandhā, sattāpattikkhandha. T32n1648_p0403a14. The seven groups of offences are the seven classes of offences given in the Vinaya. See Vin V 91: Tattha katame satta āpattikkhandhā? Pārājikāpattikkhandho, saṅghādisesāpattikkhandho, thullaccayāpattikkhandho, pācittiyāpattikkhandho, pāṭidesanīyāpattikkhandho, dukkaṭāpattikkhandho, dubbhāsitāpattikkhandho.
懈怠, scheming, kuhanā, T32n1648_p0403a17. The Chinese translator misunderstood kuhanā as kosajja or was confused. The next item in the list is 諂曲 = lapanā here, but normally corresponding to kuhanā in Chinese.
諂曲, flattering, patter, lapanā, T32n1648_p0403a17.
示相, hinting, nemittikatā, T32n1648_p0403a17.
瞋罵示相, bullying, intimidation, nippesikatā, T32n1648_p0403a17.
以施望施, pursuing gain with gain, lābhena lābhaṃ nijigīsanatā, T32n1648_p0403a17.
望, pursuing, coveting for, nijigīsanatā, T32n1648_p0403a17.
四事, the four requisites, catuppaccaya, T32n1648_p0403a18. The four are: robes (cīvara), alms-food (piṇḍapāta), lodging (senāsana), medicines (bhesajja).
惡欲貪, evil desires, pāpiccha, T32n1648_p0403a19
深, deep, profound, gambhīra, T32n1648_p0403a25
微, subtle, nipuṇa, T32n1648_p0403a25
難陀, Nanda, T32n1648_p0403b13. This is the proper name of the arahant Nanda, who was the disciple foremost in sense-restraint.
修行四事戒, virtue connected with the requisites, paccayasannissitasīla, T32n1648_p0402b20. Cf. 緣修戒.
已觀修行乞食, to wisely reflect in using alms, paṭisaṅkhā yoniso piṇḍapātaṃ paṭisevati, T32n1648_p0403b16.
已觀, to wisely reflect, paṭisaṅkhā, T32n1648_p0403b16.
乞食, alms, alms-food, piṇḍapāta, T32n1648_p0403b16.
修行, to use, paṭisevati, T32n1648_p0403b16.
為兇險行, for fun, for play, davāya, T32n1648_p0403b16.
兇險行, fun, play, dava, T32n1648_p0403b16.
為自高行, for indulgence, for intoxication, madāya, T32n1648_p0403b16.
自高行, intoxication, indulgence, mada, T32n1648_p0403b16.
為裝束, for attractiveness, for smartening, maṇḍanāya, T32n1648_p0403b17.
裝束, attractiveness, smartening, adornment, decoration, maṇḍana, T32n1648_p0403b17.
為莊嚴, for beautification, for embellishment vibhūsanāya, T32n1648_p0403b17.
為莊嚴, beautification, embellishment, vibhūsana, T32n1648_p0403b17.
為此身住, for the preservation of the body, for the continuance of the body, imassa kāyassa ṭhitiyā, T32n1648_p0403b17.
為自調護, for sustenance, yāpanāya, T32n1648_p0403b17.
調護, sustenance, keeping up, yāpana, T32n1648_p0403b17.
為除飢渴, for ending hunger and thirst, T32n1648_p0403b18. The Pali parallel has vihiṃsūparatiyā, “for ending discomfort” (of hunger, etc.).

為除, for ending, for stopping, uparatiyā, T32n1648_p0403b18.
除, ending, stopping, uparati, T32n1648_p0403b18.
為攝受梵行, for aiding the holy life, brahmacariyānuggahāya, T32n1648_p0403b18.
攝受梵行, aiding the holy life, brahmacariyānuggaha, T32n1648_p0403b18.
攝受, aiding, assisting, helping, to aid, to assist, to help, anuggaha, anuggaṇhāti, T32n1648_p0403b18, T32n1648_p0416a15.
為攝受, for aiding, anuggahāya, T32n1648_p0403b18.
除先病不起新疾, "I shall get rid of old feelings and shall not arouse new feelings," purāṇañca vedanaṃ paṭihaṅkhāmi navañca vedanaṃ na uppādessāmi, T32n1648_p0403b19.
除, to get rid of, to ward off, paṭihaṅati, T32n1648_p0403b19.
先, old, former, purāṇa, T32n1648_p0403b19.
新, new, nava, T32n1648_p0403b19.
不起, not to arouse, nava vedana na uppādeti, T32n1648_p0403b19.
安, subsistence, support of life, yātrā, T32n1648_p0403b20
無過, blamelessness, anavajjatā, T32n1648_p0403b20
貪住, dwelling in comfort, phāsuvihāra, T32n1648_p0403b20
充滿, plumpness, fatness, pīṇa, T32n1648_p0403b23
瘡塗藥, applying ointment to a sore, vaṇālepana, T32n1648_p0403b26
瘡, a sore, vaṇa, T32n1648_p0403b26
塗藥, applying ointment, ālepana, T32n1648_p0403b26
猶瘡塗藥, just as if applying ointment to a sore, vaṇālepanamiva, T32n1648_p0403b26
猶, like, just as, iva, T32n1648_p0403b26
常: always, nicca. Can be a misreading of 當: shall, will, should, is is to be, (= future, and future passive participle). T32n1648_p0403b18–19.
為除, for warding off, for repelling, paṭighātāya, T32n1648_p0403c15.
除, warding off, repelling, paṭighāta, T32n1648_p0403c15.
風寒, cold, sīta, T32n1648_p0403c15.
暑, heat, uṇha, T32n1648_p0403c15.
蚊, mosquito, makasa, T32n1648_p0403c15.
虻, gadfly, ḍaṃsa, T32n1648_p0403c15.
生慚恥遮覆醜露, the concealing of the shame-producing parts, covering the private parts, hirikopīnappaṭicchādana, T32n1648_p0403c15.
飡, to consume, to eat, T32n1648_p0403c17.
衣服, robes, cīvara, T32n1648_p0403c18.
臥具, lodgings, senāsana, T32n1648_p0403c18.
當觀, is to be reflected, one should reflect, paccavekkhitabba, T32n1648_p0403c19.
日日時時, every day and every hour, T32n1648_p0403c18.
謂盜受用, use as theft, theyyaparibhoga, T32n1648_p0403c20
負債受用, use as debt, iṇaparibhoga, T32n1648_p0403c20
家財受用, use as inheritance, dāyajjaparibhoga, T32n1648_p0403c21
主受用, use as a master, sāmiparibhoga, T32n1648_p0403c21
受用, use, enjoyment, paribhoga, T32n1648_p0403c20
謂盜, theft, theyya, T32n1648_p0403c20
負債, debt, iṇa, T32n1648_p0403c20
家財, inheritance, dāyajja, T32n1648_p0403c21
主, a master, sāmi, T32n1648_p0403c21
先師, the ancient teachers, porāṇācariyā, T32n1648_p0403c20
律儀戒, virtue of Pātimokkha restraint, pātimokkhasaṃvarasīla, T32n1648_p0403c28. This is an abbreviation of 波羅提木叉威儀戒, virtue of Pātimokkha restraint, pātimokkhasaṃvarasīla. 律 is an abbreviation/synonym of Pātimokkha.
律儀, Pātimokkha restraint, pātimokkhasaṃvara, T32n1648_p0404a02, T32n1648_p0403c28 . This is an abbreviation of 波羅提木叉威儀, virtue of Pātimokkha restraint, pātimokkhasaṃvarasīla. 律 an abbreviation/synonym of Pātimokkha.
應令滿, to be undertaken, to be made to be accomplished, sampādetabba, T32n1648_p0403c29. The Visuddhimagga "parallel" (Vism I.100, 111/p.36) has sampādetabba, but it is possible that the Vimuttimagga had paripūretabba, "to cause to fulfil," Cf. 令滿, paripūreti.
五欲, the fivefold sense-pleasures, pañca kāmaguṇa, T32n1648_p0404a08
波羅夷, disqualification, exclusion, pārājika, T32n1648_p0404a11.
Pārājika is the heaviest class of offence of the seven groups of offences, 七聚. There are four pārājika offences, i.e., sexual intercourse, theft, killing a human, and falsely claiming a superhuman attainment. A bhikkhu or bhikkhunī who commits a pārājika offence is automatically and immediately upon the transgression disqualified from being a bhikkhu or bhikkhunī for the rest of his or her lifetime and can't participate in legal acts of the Saṅgha (saṅghakamma) such as recitation of the Pātimokkha. The exlusion is only pertains to the state of upasampadā, higher entry/ordination into the Saṅgha, not to to being a Buddhist practitioner. An offender becomes an layman or laywomen and can take up the five precepts, or, if staying on in a monastery, can become a homeless one, anāgārika, or novice (sāmanera, sāmaṇerī).
比丘法, the state of a bhikkhu, bhikkhu-hood, bhikkhubhāva, T32n1648_p0404a12.
親, relative, ñāti, T32n1648_p0401b26
越, to transgress, vītikkamati, T32n1648_p0401b27
如法受, as undertaken, yathāsamādiṇṇa, T32n1648_p0401b29.
如法受戒, as undertaken, yathāsamādiṇṇa sikkhāpada, T32n1648_p0401b29.
不起犯心, does not give rise to the mind [inclining] towards transgression, vītikkamāya cittam na uppādeti, T32n1648_p0401c01
犯心, mind [inclining] towards transgression, vītikkamāya cittam, T32n1648_p0401c01.
不起, does not give rise to, na uppādeti, T32n1648_p0401c01.
戒, training rule, sikkhāpada, T32n1648_p0401c01. Normal meaning is sīla, virtue.
犯, to transgress, vītikkamati, T32n1648_p0401c01. Elsewhere in Vim 越 = vītikkamati and 犯 = āpajjati, to commit (an offence).
何況故犯, then how will he transgress?, kiṃ so vītikkamissati, T32n1648_p0401c01 世利, gain, profit, lābha, T32n1648_p0401b26. Cf. 利養.
利養, gain, profit, lābha, T32n1648_p0401b27.
勝, fame, yasa, T32n1648_p0401b26.
有依, with dependence, sanissita or nissita, T32n1648_p0401c02
無依, without dependence, anissita, T32n1648_p0401c02
依慢, dependent on conceit, mānanissita, T32n1648_p0401c04

有依戒, virtue with dependence, sanissitasīla, T32n1648_p0401c04.
無依戒, virtue without dependence, anissitasīla, T32n1648_p0401c05.
依愛, dependent on craving, taṇhānissaya, T32n1648_p0401c03
依見, dependent on views, diṭṭhinissaya, T32n1648_p0401c03
退戒, the virtue of abandoning, pahānasīla, T32n1648_p0401b17
非戒, non-virtue, asīla, T32n1648_p0401b18
無邊, without limitation, apariyanta, T32n1648_p0401b26
有邊, with limitation, pariyanta, T32n1648_p0401b26
T32n1648_p0401b24 種有量無量
有量, measurable, with measure, pamāṇa, T32n1648_p0401b24
無量, immeasurable, without measure, appamāṇa, T32n1648_p0401b24 聲聞, disciple, hearer, sāvaka, T32n1648_p0401c10.
所願不等, unevenly aspired, visamapaṇihita, T32n1648_p0402a01.
所願等, evenly aspired, samapaṇihita, T32n1648_p0402a01.
無所願, unaspired, appaṇihita, T32n1648_p0402a01.
具足戒, the virtue of the fully admitted one, upasampannasīla, T32n1648_p0404a12.
僧伽婆尸沙, involving suspension, saṅghādisesa, T32n1648_p0404a13.
眾事, a legal act of the Saṅgha, saṅghakamma, T32n1648_p0404a13.
懺悔, to confess, to declare an offence, deseti, T32n1648_p0404a14
我不更作, "I shall not do again," na puna karissāmī ti, T32n1648_p0404a15–17
不悔, non-remorse, avippaṭisāra, T32n1648_p0416a01
鄙穢, to despise, T32n1648_p0404a25
憒忘, confused, sammūḷha, T32n1648_p0404b04
初夜後夜, the first and last watches of the night, pubbarattāpararatta, T32n1648_p0402c20.
如 ... 等, like, as, viya, T32n1648_p0404a29
惡道, bad destination, duggati, T32n1648_p0404b05. Normally 惡趣.
卵, egg, aṇḍa, T32n1648_p0404b08
犛牛, yak ox , camarì miga, camarì, T32n1648_p0404b09.
尾, tail, váladhi, T32n1648_p0404b09.
一子, one son, ekaputta, T32n1648_p0404b09.
一眼, one eye, ekanayana, T32n1648_p0404b09.
護, to guard, rakkhati, T32n1648_p0404b09.
身安住, the preservation of the body, kāyassa ṭhiti, T32n1648_p0403b25.
有所成就, to be accomplished to some extent, T32n1648_p0408b14. In opposition to 所得成就, to be [fully] accomplished, , T32n1648_p0408b15.
可敬愛, likeable, loveable, piya, T32n1648_p0408b18. The Pali has piyo hoti manāpo ca.
可重, respectable, garu, T32n1648_p0408b18.
可貴, venerable, to be venerated, to be cultivated, bhāvanīya, T32n1648_p0408b18. M-a I 156: Bhāvanīyo ti: addhā ayamāyasmā jānaṃ jānāti passaṃ passatī ti evaṃ sambhāvanīyo.
能說, one who speaks out, one who admonishes, vattā, T32n1648_p0408b19. S-a I 123: Vattāti odhunanavattā. Bhikkhūnaṃ ajjhācāraṃ disvā "ajja kathessāmi, sve kathessāmī"ti kathāvavatthānaṃ na karoti, tasmiṃ tasmiṃ yeva ṭhāne ovadati anusāsatīti attho. S-a II 241: Vattāti pare yadicchakaṃ vadati yeva. Nett-a 250 (Be): Vattāti kālena vakkhāmītiādipañcadhamme attani upaṭṭhāpetvā sabrahmacārīnaṃ ullumpanabhāve ṭhatvā vattā.
忍辱, one who can bear admonishment, one who endures being spoken to, vacanakkhamo, T32n1648_p0408b19. S-a I 123: Vacanakkhamoti vacanaṃ khamati. Eko hi parassa ovādaṃ deti, sayaṃ pana aññena ovadiyamāno kujjhati. ... A-a IV 24: Vacanakkhamoti vacanaṃ khamati, dinnaṃ ovādaṃ karoti.
說深語, a speaker of profound talk, gambhīraṃ kathaṃ kattā, T32n1648_p0408b19.
深語, profound talk, gambhīra kathā, T32n1648_p0408b19.
安非處, to make another apply himself to useless ends, aṭṭhāne niyojeti, T32n1648_p0408b19.
非處, useless end, a wrong cause, impossibility, aṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0408b19.
安, to make (another) apply (himself), to urge, to incite, niyojeti, T32n1648_p0408b19.
非住, useless end, a wrong cause, impossibility, aṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0408c01.
善知識, good friend, kalyāṇamitta, T32n1648_p0408b01 & 408b13.
雲比丘,Meghiya Bhikkhu, meghiya bhikkhu, T32n1648_p0408b03. Meghiya was an attendant of the Buddha; see A IV 357.
雲, Meghiya, meghiya, T32n1648_p0408b03. Meghiya Bhikkhu (雲比丘) was an attendant of the Buddha; see A IV 357.
品, chapter, vagga, T32n1648_p0408a28.
聚, a group (of students), a class (of students), gaṇa, T32n1648_p0408c01 整衣服, to adjust one's robes, T32n1648_p0408c11. Probably corresponds to ekaṃsaṃ cīvaraṃ katvā of M II 45, etc.
和上, preceptor, spiritual teacher, upajjhāya, T32n1648_p0408c12.
善哉, good!, very well!, sādhu, T32n1648_p0408c13. An approving exclamation.
莫放逸, heedful, not being negligent, appamāda, T32n1648_p0408c16
輕易, slight, despise, contempt, T32n1648_p0408c19
料理, to arrange, T32n1648_p0408c21
澡罐, water-jar (as used by Buddhist monks for carrying water), T32n1648_p0408c24.
半路, midway, on the way, addhamagga?, T32n1648_p0408c23
禪具, meditation mat ?, āsana, ? T32n1648_p0408c24
繞塔, to circambulate a stupa, T32n1648_p0408c27.
入寺舍, entering a monastery, vihāraṃ pavisanta, T32n1648_p0408c27. The Visuddhimagga (Vism III.66/p.99) has vihāraṃ, while the Cullavagga, Vin II 207, has ārāmaṃ.
低蓋, to lower an umbrella, chattaṃ apanāmeti, T32n1648_p0408c27
糞掃衣人, one who wears refuse-rag robes, paṃsukūlika, T32n1648_p0408c28. One who has undertaken the ascetic practice, dhutaṅga, of only wearing robes made of discarded rags, cloths from corpses, etc.
乞食人, one who eats begged food, piṇḍapātika, T32n1648_p0408c28–9. One who has undertaken the ascetic practice, dhutaṅga, of only eating only eating food that he has collected on alms-round, piṇḍapāta.
律師, teacher of Discipline, vinayācariya, T32n1648_p0408c29.
衣鉢, robes and bowl, pattacīvara, T32n1648_p0409a03 便處, toilet, vaccapassāvaṭṭhāna, or vaccaṭhāna, passāvaṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0409a06.
訪問僧制, duties for visiting monks, āgantukavatta, T32n1648_p0409a06. These are duties for monks who visit an other monastery, such as entering the monastery in a proper manner, proper greeting, asking where facilities are, etc. They are described in the Vattakkhandhaka of the Vinaya Piṭaka at Vin II 207–209.

比丘為客法用, duties for visiting monks, āgantukavatta, T32n1648_p0409a12. See 訪問僧制.
訪問僧, visitor monk, guest monk, āgantuka bhikkhu, T32n1648_p0409a06. Used to denote a monk who is a visitor to a monastery in contrast to the resident monks, āvāsika bhikkhu, 舊住比丘.
舊住比丘, resident monk, āvāsika bhikkhu, T32n1648_p0409a05. The opposite of a visiting monk, 訪問僧, āgantuka bhikkhu.
舊住, resident, āvāsika, T32n1648_p0409a05. The opposite of a visitor, 訪問, āgantuka.
罪及不犯罪, offence and non-offence, āpatti ca anāpatti ca, T32n1648_p0409a08
不犯罪, non-offence, anāpatti, T32n1648_p0409a08
阿毘曇師, a teacher of Abhidhamma, abhidhammācariya, T32n1648_p0409a08.
陰入界, aggregates, sense-bases, and elements, khandhadhātuāyatana, T32n1648_p0409a09. 陰 = 五陰, pañcakkhandhā, five aggregates; 入 = 十二入, dvādasāyatanā, the twelve sense-bases; and 界 = 十八界, aṭṭharasa dhātuyo.
Three main categories of analysis of Buddhist wisdom. The world, physical and mental, is analysed in terms of just consisting of these three categories, which are seen as impermanent, suffering and without a self; e.g. S IV 67: Yāvatā, bhikkhave, khandhadhātuāyatanā tampi na maññeyya, tasmimpi na maññeyya, tatopi na maññeyya, taṃ meti na maññeyya. So evaṃ amaññamāno na kiñci loke upādiyati. Thī 474: Khandhadhātuāyatanaṃ, saṅkhataṃ jātimūlakaṃ dukkhaṃ; / yoniso anuvicinantī, vāreyyaṃ kissa iccheyyaṃ.
頭陀人, one who practises austerities, dhutaṅgika ?, T32n1648_p0409a09
併疊臥具, to fold and pile up the bedding [in a lodging], T32n1648_p0409a11 臥具, bedding, T32n1648_p0409a11, T32n1648_p0434a29.
心攝受, mental pleasure, mental agreeableness, cetasika sāta, T32n1648_p0419c08
攝受, pleasure, agreeableness, sāta, T32n1648_p0419c08. As part of 心攝受, cetasika sāta.
佷戾, obstinacy, recalcitrancy, T32n1648_p0409b08. Also at T01n0026_p0640a08, T02n0100_p0414a21. Also spelled as 很戾.
分別行, explanation of temperament, illucidation of temperament, cariyāvibhāvana ?, T32n1648_p0409b24. This could be cariyāvibhaṅga, but this word is not found in Pali texts, while cariyāvibhāvana is used at Vism III 96/p.107.
欲行, greed temperament, rāga-cariyā, T32n1648_p0409b26. One of the fourteen types of temperament or character.
瞋恚行, hate temperament, dosa-cariyā,T32n1648_p0409b26. One of the fourteen types of temperament or character.
癡行, delusion temperament, moha-cariyā, T32n1648_p0409b27. One of the fourteen types of temperament or character.
信行, faith temperament, saddhā-cariyā, T32n1648_p0409b27. One of the fourteen types of temperament or character.
意行, intelligence temperament, buddhi-cariyā, T32n1648_p0409b27. One of the fourteen types of temperament or character.
覺行, speculation temperament, vitakka-cariyā, T32n1648_p0409b27. One of the fourteen types of temperament or character.
欲瞋恚行, greed and hate temperament, rāga-dosa-cariyā, T32n1648_p0409b27. One of the fourteen types of temperament or character.
欲癡行, greed and delusion temperament, rāga-moha-cariyā, T32n1648_p0409b27. One of the fourteen types of temperament or character.
瞋癡行, hate and delusion temperament, dosa-moha-cariyā, T32n1648_p0409b27. One of the fourteen types of temperament or character.
等分行, [greed, hate and delusion-] in-equal-parts temperament, rāga-dosa-moha-samabhāga-cariyā, T32n1648_p0409b28. One of the fourteen types of temperament or character.
信意行, faith and intelligence temperament, saddhā-buddhi-cariyā, T32n1648_p0409b28. One of the fourteen types of temperament or character.
信覺行, faith and speculation temperament, saddhā-vitakka-cariyā, T32n1648_p0409b28. One of the fourteen types of temperament or character.
意覺行, intelligence and speculation temperament, buddhi-vitakka-cariyā, T32n1648_p0409b28. One of the fourteen types of temperament or character.
等分行, [faith, intelligence and speculation-] in-equal-parts temperament, saddhā-buddhi-vitakka-samabhāga-cariyā, T32n1648_p0409b28. One of the fourteen types of temperament or character.
等分, in equal parts, samabhāga, T32n1648_p0409b28.
意, intelligence, buddhi, T32n1648_p0409b27.
愛見慢, craving and views and conceit, taṇhā-diṭṭhi-māna, T32n1648_p0409b29. The three components of mental proliferation, papañca, see Nett 37: Papañcā nāma taṇhādiṭṭhimānā, tadabhisaṅkhatā ca saṅkhārā. A-a III 348: Papañcoti taṇhādiṭṭhimānavasena pavatto madanākārasaṇṭhito kilesapapañco.
欲行人, the person with a greed temperament, rāgacarita puggala, rāgacarita, T32n1648_p0409c01.
嗔行人, the person with a hate temperament, dosacarita puggala, dosacarita, T32n1648_p0409c02.
癡行人, the person with a delusion temperament, mohacarita puggala, mohacarita, T32n1648_p0409c02.
信行人, the person with a faith temperament, saddhācarita puggala, saddhācarita, T32n1648_p0409c02.
意行人, the person with an intelligence temperament, buddhicarita puggala, buddhicarita, T32n1648_p0409c02.
覺行人, the person with a speculation temperament, vitakkacarita puggala, vitakkacarita, T32n1648_p0409c02.
增上, predominant, adhika, T32n1648_p0409c05.
善朋友, good friend, kalyāṇamitta, T32n1648_p0408b13.
善朋, on the side of the wholesome, kusalapakkha, T32n1648_p0409c11.
親覲功德故, due to its qualities being proximate, āsannaguṇattā, T32n1648_p0409c12.
增長, predominant, predominance, adhika or balavati, T32n1648_p0409c12. (The Vism III.78/p.102has balavati while its ṭīkā explains this as adhika. At T32n1648_p0409c05, 增上, predominant, adhika, is used instead.)
捨, to give up, giving up, pariccajati, pariccāga, T32n1648_p0409c13 安愛, to stick to, to cling to, allīyati, T32n1648_p0409c20.
安, to stick to, to cling to, allīyati, T32n1648_p0409c20.
捨, to shun, shunning, avoiding, parivajjati, parivajjana,, T32n1648_p0409c19.
覓, to search, to seek, pariyesati, T32n1648_p0409c19.
不安, not stable, unstable, anavaṭṭhita, T32n1648_p0409c26
亂, perplexity, confusion, paribyākulatā, T32n1648_p0409c25
種種覺憶, various modes of thinking, nānappakāravitakkanatā, T32n1648_p0409c26. Perhaps it means “thinking over various aspects” but pakāra normally means “ mode, way, method.”
速修行, quick practice, khippā paṭipadā, T32n1648_p0409c29.
遲修行, slow practice, dandhā paṭipadā, T32n1648_p0409c29.
安可教化, easily guided, T32n1648_p0410a01
本煩惱, root defilement, fundamental defilement, mūlakilesa, T32n1648_p0410a09. There aree three: greed, hatred and delusion, see S-a I 187: ... dosena na kuppati, rāgena na sarati, mohena na thīno. Imesu tīsu mūlakilesesu... or two: ignorance and craving for existence, see Peṭ 118: Tattha dve mūlakilesā avijjā ca bhavataṇhā ca, tīṇi akusalamūlāni lobho doso moho ca.
初所造, previous habit, former habit, pubbāciṇṇa, T32n1648_p0410a12.
可愛方便, agreeable exertion, agreeable application, iṭṭhappayoga, T32n1648_p0410a14.
多善業, much beautiful action, subhakammabahula, T32n1648_p0410a14.
從天堂落生於此, having passed away from heaven, he is reborn here (in this world), saggā cavitvā idhūpapanna, T32n1648_p0410a15.
從天堂落, to pass away from heaven, saggā cavati, T32n1648_p0410a15.
從天堂, from heaven, saggā, T32n1648_p0410a15.

天堂, heaven, sagga, T32n1648_p0410a15.
落, to pass away, to fall away, cavati, T32n1648_p0410a15.
生於此, is reborn here (in this world), idhūpapanna, T32n1648_p0410a15.
桁械, torturing, punishing (by way of shackling, etc.), bandhana, T32n1648_p0410a15
怨業, inimical deed, brutal action, verakamma, T32n1648_p0410a15.
地獄, hell, niraya, T32n1648_p0410a16.
龍生, nāga-birth, serpent-birth, nāgayoni, T32n1648_p0410a16.
墮落, to pass away, cavati, T32n1648_p0410a16.
多飲酒, to drink a lot of intoxicants, majjapānabahula, T32n1648_p0410a17.
從畜生, from an animal birth, tiracchānayoniyā, T32n1648_p0410a17.
畜生, animal birth, tiracchānayoni, T32n1648_p0410a17.
最近, prominence, ussannattā, T32n1648_p0410a19.
等故, due to evenness, samattā, T32n1648_p0410a20.
等故, evenness, samatta, T32n1648_p0410a20.
最多淡, phlegm in predominance, semhādhika, T32n1648_p0410a22.
最多痰, phlegm in predominance, semhādhika, T32n1648_p0410a22. (Variant reading.)
淡, phlegm, semha, T32n1648_p0410a22.
痰, phlegm, semha, T32n1648_p0410a22. (Variant reading.) One of the three humours, 過患, dosa (Skt. doṣa), alongside 膽, bile, pitta and風, wind, v*āta.*
膽, bile, pitta, T32n1648_p0410a22. (Text erroneously has 瞻.) One of the three humours, 過患, dosa (Skt. doṣa), alongside 淡 (or 痰), phlegm, semha and風, wind, v*āta.*
風, wind, v*āta,* T32n1648_p0410a23. One of the three humours, 過患, dosa (Skt. doṣa), alongside 淡 (or 痰), phlegm, semha and 膽, bile, pitta.
過患, humour, humours, dosa (Skt. doṣa), T32n1648_p0410a21. There are three humours: 淡 (or 痰), phlegm, semha; 膽, bile, pitta; and風, wind, v*āta.*
云何可知, how is it to be known, kathaṃ jānitabbaṃ, T32n1648_p0410a24–25.
可知, to be known, jānitabbaṃ, T32n1648_p0410a24–25.
云何, how?, kathaṃ, T32n1648_p0410a24–25.
此人, this person, ayaṃ puggalo, T32n1648_p0410a25.
何因緣, what cause?, what is the source?, kinnidāna, kiṃ nidāna, T32n1648_p0410a10.
真實過患, genuine fault, real fault, bhūta dosa, T32n1648_p0410a28.
如倦, as if he were tired, like he is tired, kilantarūpa viya, T32n1648_p0410b02.
倦, tired, kilanta, T32n1648_p0410b02.
久看, look a long time, look long, ciraṃ oloketi, T32n1648_p0410b02.
信他, trusting others, parapaccayika, T32n1648_p0410b06.
所薄, blaming, nindanta, T32n1648_p0410b06.
薄, blame, ninda, T32n1648_p0410b06.
所讚歎, praising, pasaṃsanta, T32n1648_p0410b06.
讚歎, praise, pasaṃsa, T32n1648_p0410b06.
多行, occur much, bahulaṃ pavattati, T32n1648_p0410b09.
惱, spite, malice, paḷāsa, palāsa, T32n1648_p0410b10.
舉脚, to raise the foot, pādaṃ uddharati, T32n1648_p0410b13.
起脚, to raise the foot, pādaṃ uddharati, T32n1648_p0410b16.
下脚, to put down the foot, pādaṃ nikkhipati, T32n1648_p0410b13.
疾, gently, lightly, saṇika (= Skt śainas), T32n1648_p0410b13. Probably the Chinese translator interpreted saṇika as lahu (Skt. laghu) = lightly. The context indicates that it is the antonym of 急, hastily, forcefully, sahasā.
急, hastily, forcefully, sahasā, T32n1648_p0410b15.
急, strongly, tightly, gāḷhaṃ, T32n1648_p0410c10.
著衣, wearing robes, cīvaradhāraṇa, T32n1648_p0410b18.
受衣, wearing robes, cīvaradhāraṇa, T32n1648_p0410a12.
周正圓, level all around, well rounded, parimaṇḍalaṃ, T32n1648_p0410b19.
寬, loosely, loose, sithila, T32n1648_p0410b19.
肥, oily, fatty, siniddha, T32n1648_p0410b24.
甜, sweet, madhura, T32n1648_p0410b24.
酢, sour, acid, ambila, , T32n1648_p0410b24.
不定樂, no fixed liking, no settled choice, aniyatarucika, T32n1648_p0410b25.
知氣味, savouring the taste, experiencing the taste, rasapaṭisaṃvedī, T32n1648_p0410b26.
不速, unhurriedly, ataramāna, T32n1648_p0410b26.
揣食, a lump of food, ālopa, T32n1648_p0410b27.
滿口, filling the mouth, which fills the mouth, mukhapūraka, T32n1648_p0410b27.
少味, of little (pleasant) taste, asādu, T32n1648_p0410b27.
不圓, not well rounded, aparimaṇḍalaṃ, T32n1648_p0410b27.
盤器, dish, bhājane, T32n1648_p0410b29.
塗染, to smear, makkheti, T32n1648_p0410b29.
亂心, scattered mind, vikkhittacitta, T32n1648_p0410c01.
掃箒, broom, sammajjani, T32n1648_p0410c02.
捉掃箒, to hold a broom, sammajjaniṃ gaṇhāti, T32n1648_p0410c02.
不駃, unhurriedly, ataramāna, T32n1648_p0410c02.
駃, hurriedly, quickly, taramānarūpa, T32n1648_p0410c04.
除去, to push aside, to throw aside, ussāreti, T32n1648_p0410c04.
土沙, sand, sandy soil, vālika, T32n1648_p0410c04.
急聲, harsh sound, khara sadda, T32n1648_p0410c04.
急, harsh, rough, khara, T32n1648_p0410c04.
輾轉, turning over, samparivattakaṃ, T32n1648_p0410c05.
一切事, all work, all duties, sabbakicca, T32n1648_p0410c07.
臥處, bed, sleeping place, seyyā, T32n1648_p0410c10.
面目頻蹙, to frown, bhākuṭiṃ, T32n1648_p0410c12.

覆身, with the body in disarray, with a sprawling body, vikkhittakāya, T32n1648_p0410c14.
所疑, hesitating, uncertain, saṅkita, T32n1648_p0410c11.
即, promptly, quickly, sīghaṃ, T32n1648_p0410c11.
瞋, angered, annoyed, kupita, T32n1648_p0410c13.
噫噫, humming, murmuring, huṅkāra (in Vism parallel), huṃhuṅka, huhukka (in Udāna and its commentary), T32n1648_p0410c14.
法, suitable, good, sappāya, sappāyatā, T32n1648_p0410c15. (Although normally 法 corresponds to dhamma in Vim, the Vism parallel (III.97) has sappāya, which means that a condition, such as food and climate, is suitable for the body, the holy life, etc.)
行脚處, walking up and down, caṅkama, caṅkamana, T32n1648_p0410c29. (Probably the Chinese translator misunderstood caṅkama—see the Vism parallel—in the sense of "place for walking up and down," rather than the action of meditative walking up and down in meditation. In the next line 行處 is used instead.)
行處, walking up and down, 行處T32n1648_p0411a01. (Probably the Chinese translator misunderstood caṅkama—see the Vism parallel—in the sense of "place for walking u and down," rather than the action of meditative walking up and down in meditation. In the previous line 行脚處 is used instead.)
散句, miscellaneous topics, miscellany, mixed topics, heterogeneous topics, pakiṇṇaka, T32n1648_p0422a28. In Vimuttimagga pakiṇṇaka (Skt. prakīrṇaka) denotes a concluding section of a chapter in which miscellaneous, heterogeneous topics are discussed that were not yet given earlier in the discussion of the specific topics. For example, after the detailed discussion of each of the four brahmavihāras (T32n1648_p0435a–438a)there is a concluding section with a miscellany of topics related to the brahmavihāras (T32n1648_p0438a–b) 優波底沙, Upatissa, T13n0402_p0537a22; T32n1648_p0399c11. 優波底沙, yōu-bō-dǐ-shā, is a transliteration of Upatissa (Pali) / Upatiṣya (Skt.), which is the personal name of Sāriputta (Skt. Śāriputra), 舍利弗多 or 舍利弗, one of the two chief disciples of the Buddha, along with Moggallāna, 目犍連; see M I 50. It is also the name of the author of the Vimuttimagga, 解脫道, a Theravādin treatise on meditation, T32n1648. This Upatissa is referred to as the "Arahant Upatissa," 阿羅漢優波底沙, T32n1648_p0399c11. Nothing else is known about this Upatissa. There are several other Upatissas mentioned in Pali works; see Dictionary of Pali Proper Names, s.v. "Upatissa."
五神通, five direct knowledges, pañcābhiññā, T32n1648_p0441a27. The five are (1) 身通, supernormal power, iddhividhā, (2) 天耳通, divine ear, dibbasota, (3) 他心智通, knowledge of others' minds, cetopariya-ñāṇa, (4) 宿命通, recollection of former lives, pubbenivāsānussati, and (5) 天眼通, divine eye, dibbacakkhu. See T32n1648_p0441a27–28
身通, supernormal power, iddhividha, T32n1648_p0441a27. (Cf. DDB: 身如意通, 神境通 = iddhividha)
天耳, divine ear, dibbasota, T32n1648_p0441a27
他心智, knowledge of others' minds, cetopariya-ñāṇa, T32n1648_p0441a27
宿命, recollection of former lives, pubbenivāsānussati, T32n1648_p0441a28 天眼, divine eye, dibbacakkhu, T32n1648_p0441a28.
變, miraculous transformation, vikubbana, T32n1648_p0441a28.
變, supernormal power, iddhi, vikubbaniddhi, T32n1648_p0441b01. At T32n1648_p0441a28 it appears to mean vikubbana or pāṭihāriya, but from here onwards in Vim, going by the Pali parallels, it appears to stand for iddhi. Apparently the Chinese translator could not find a suitable character for iddhividha. At 441c14 he shifts over to 變辯 for iddhividha.
變辯, supernormal power, iddhi, vikubbaniddhi, T32n1648_p0441c14. . Apparently the Chinese translator could not find a suitable character for iddhividha. At T32n1648_p0441b01 he used 變 for iddhividha. See note to 變 at T32n1648_p0441b01.
受持變, supernormal power of resolve, adhiṭṭhānā-iddhi, T32n1648_p0441b02.
作變, supernormal power of miraculous transformation, vikubbana-iddhi, T32n1648_p0441b02.
意所作變, supernormal power sprung from mind, manomayā-iddhi, T32n1648_p0441b03.
意所造變, supernormal power sprung from mind, manomayā-iddhi, T32n1648_p0442c22.
意所作, sprung from mind, manomaya, T32n1648_p0441b03.
意所, sprung from mind, manomayā, T32n1648_p0442c22.
成多, to become many, bahudhā hoti, T32n1648_p0441b03.
成一, to become one, eko hoti, T32n1648_p0441b03.
以一成多, being one he becomes many, eko pi hutvā bahudhā hoti, T32n1648_p0441b03.
以多成一, being many he becomes one, bahudhā pi hutvā eko hoti, T32n1648_p0441b03–04.
增長, to extend influence, to expand power, vasaṃ vatteti, T32n1648_p0441b04. In Pali vasaṃ vatteti means "exert influence" or "wield mastery," the Chinese 增長 would be liberal translation of this.
捨, to give up, vijahati, T32n1648_p0441b05.
形, appearance, vaṇṇa, T32n1648_p0441b05.
現, to manifest, to exhibit, to show, dasseti, T32n1648_p0441b05.
化作, to conjure, to create, abhinimmināti, T32n1648_p0441b07.
一切身分, with all limbs, sabbaṅgapaccaṅga, T32n1648_p0441b08.
一切身分具足, with all limbs, sabbaṅgapaccaṅga, T32n1648_p0442c29.
諸根具足, lacking no faculty, complete in faculties, ahīnindriya, T32n1648_p0441b08.
諸根不少, lacking no faculty, ahīnindriya, T32n1648_p0442c29.
業果報所生, born of kamma-result, kammavipākajā, T32n1648_p0441b09.
從業報生, born of kamma-result, kammavipākajā, T32n1648_p0441c03.
功德人, one endowed with merit, the meritorious, puññavant, T32n1648_p0441b10.
明術所造, sprung from magic, vijjāmayā, T32n1648_p0441b10.
明術, magic knowledge, charm, vijjā, T32n1648_p0441b10.
辯, pervasive force, intervention, occupation, interest, vipphāra/vyāpāra, T32n1648_p0441b12. As part of 智辯.
智辯, pervasive force of knowledge, intervention by knowledge, ñāṇavipphāra T32n1648_p0441b12.
變智辯, supernormal power due to the pervasive force of knowledge, ñāṇavipphārā iddhi, T32n1648_p0441b12.
成, succeeds, ijjhati, T32n1648_p0441b11.
長老, venerable, āyasmā, T32n1648_p0441b13. Used as a respectful title and addressing for monks; see the Mahāparinibbānasuttanta, D II 154.
薄拘羅, Bakkula, T32n1648_p0441b13. Transliteration, bó-jū-luó. Bakkula (Skt. Vakula) was the disciple of the Buddha who was the foremost one in good health; see Dictionary of Pali Proper Names s.v. "Bakkula."
僧吉栗者, Saṅkicca, Saṃkicca, T32n1648_p0441b13. Transliteration, sēng-jí-lì-zhě. The name of a senior monk who was known for his psychic powers; see Dictionary of Pali Proper Names s.v. "Saṅkicca."
部吼多波羅, Bhūtapāla, T32n1648_p0441b13. Transliteration, bù-hǒu-duō- bō-luó. Bhūtapāla is the name of a senior monk who was known for his psychic powers; see Dictionary of Pali Proper Names s.v. "Bhūtapāla."
波羅, bō-luó, transliteration of pāla, "guardian" in 部吼多波羅, bù-hǒu-duō- bō-luó, Bhūtapāla, T32n1648_p0441b13.
變定辯, supernormal power due to the pervasive force of concentration, samādhi-vipphārā-iddhi, T32n1648_p0441b14.
舍利弗多, Sāriputta. T32n1648_p0441b16 (Also at T03n0190_p0878b04). Transliteration, shè-lì-fú-duō. Sāriputta (Skt. Sāriputra) is the name of one of the two chief bhikkhu disciples (along with Moggallāna, 目犍連) who was the Buddha's disciple foremost in wisdom; see Dictionary of Pali Proper Names s.v. "Sāriputta."
舍利弗, Sāriputta. T32n1648_p0461b24. Transliteration, shè-lì-fú. Sāriputta (Skt. Sāriputra) is the name of one of the two chief bhikkhu disciples who was the Buddha's disciple foremost in wisdom; see Dictionary of Pali Proper Names s.v. “Sāriputta.” At T32n1648_p0441b16 舍利弗多 is used.

先時婆, Sañjīva, T32n1648_p0441b16. Transliteration, xiān-shí-pó. Sañjīva is the name of one of the two chief bhikkhu disciples of Buddha Kakusandha. Once people tried to burn his body while he had entered the attainment of cessations (nirodhasamāpatti), thinking that he was dead, but he emerged unharmed and then entered the village for alms to the amazement of the people who had tried to burn his body (M I 333). See Dictionary of Pali Proper Names s.v. “Sañjīva.”
毘檀若, Koṇḍañña, T32n1648_p0441b17. Transliteration, kūn-tán-ruò. Koṇḍañña (Skt. Kauṇḍinya), usually called Aññākoṇḍañña or Aññātakoṇḍañña (Skt. Ājñātakauṇḍinya) is the name of the Buddha's disciple who was the first human to understand the Buddha's teaching and become a stream-enterer (Vin I 12). See Dictionary of Pali Proper Name s.v. “Aññā-Koṇḍañña.”
欝多羅, Uttarā, T32n1648_p0441b17. Transliteration, yù-duó-luó. Uttarā—also called Uttarā Nandamātā—was the female lay-disciple (upāsikā, 優婆夷) who was foremost in meditation; A I 26. See Dictionary of Pali Proper Names s.v. “Uttarā Nandamātā.”
沙摩婆底, Sāmāvatī, T32n1648_p0441b17. Transliteration, shā-mó-pó-dǐ. Sāmāvatī was the female lay-disciple (upāsikā, 優婆夷) who was foremost in the dwelling in loving-kindness (mettā); A I 26. See Dictionary of Pali Proper Names s.v. “Sāmāvatī.”
念現知, mindfully and aware, sata sampajāna, T32n1648_p0441c01.
現知, aware, sampajāna, T32n1648_p0441b23 (fn. 8).
離二句, to avoid both of them, tadubhayaṃ abhinivajjeti, T32n1648_p0441c01.
住捨, to dwell equanimously, upekkhako viharati, T32n1648_p0441c01.
不愛念, unattractive, disagreeable, aniṭṭha, T32n1648_p0441b28.
於不愛念處, in an unattractive object, aniṭṭhasmiṃ vatthusmiṃ, T32n1648_p0441b28.
以慈令滿, to pervade with loving-kindness, mettāya pharati, T32n1648_p0441b27.
令滿, to pervade, pharati, T32n1648_p0441b27.
於愛念處, in an attractive object, iṭṭhasmiṃ vatthusmiṃ, T32n1648_p0441b24.
不淨令滿, to pervade with [perception of] the foul, asubhāya pharati, T32n1648_p0441b25.
住捨念現知, to dwell equanimously, mindfully and aware, upekkhako viharati sato sampajāno, T32n1648_p0441c01
不歡喜不憂, neither glad nor sad, neva sumana na dummana, T32n1648_p0441c02.
歡喜, glad, sumana, T32n1648_p0441c02.
憂, sad, dummana, T32n1648_p0441c02.
有人, some people, some humans, ekaccā manussā, T32n1648_p0441c04.
惡趣生, one born in the states of woe, vinipātika, T32n1648_p0441c04.
鳥, bird, pakkhī, T32n1648_p0441c04.
轉輪王, wheel-turning king, cakkavattirājā, rājā cakkavatti, T32n1648_p0441c06.
樹提, Jotika, Jotiya, T32n1648_p0441c06. Transliteration, shù-tí. The name of a rich householder (長者, householder, gahapati) follower of the Buddha. See Dictionary of Pali Proper Names s.v. “Jotika, Jotiya.”
長者, householder, gahapati, T32n1648_p0441c06.
闍提, Jaṭila, T32n1648_p0441c06. Transliteration, shé-tí. The name of a rich householder (長者, householder, gahapati) follower of the Buddha. See Dictionary of Pali Proper Names s.v. “Jaṭila.”
瞿師羅, Ghosita, T32n1648_p0441c07. Transliteration, qú-shī-luó. The name of a rich householder (長者, householder, gahapati) follower of the Buddha. See Dictionary of Pali Proper Names s.v. “Ghosita.”
大功德人, one of great merit, person who has great merit, mahāpuññā, T32n1648_p0441c07.
明術人, sorcerer, one who knows charms, vijjādhara, T32n1648_p0441c09.
讀誦明術, to recite a charm, vijjaṃ parijapeti, T32n1648_p0441c09.
讀誦, to recite, to utter (a charm), parijapeti, T32n1648_p0441c09. See 讀誦明術, to recite a charm, vijjaṃ parijapeti.
飛行虛空, to fly through the sky, to travel through the sky, vehāsaṃ gacchati, T32n1648_p0441c09.
虛空, sky, vehāsa, T32n1648_p0441c09.
現作, to manifest, dasseti, T32n1648_p0441c09.
變作, to manifest, dasseti, T32n1648_p0441c09.
車, chariot, ratha, T32n1648_p0441c10.
步, foot-soldier, infantry, patti, T32n1648_p0441c10.
軍, array of troops, army-display, senābyūha, T32n1648_p0441c10.
正方便, right application, sammāpayoga, T32n1648_p0441c13.
未生, unarisen, not yet arisen, anuppanna, T32n1648_p0441c21.
惡不善法, evil unwholesome state, pāpaka akusala dhamma, T32n1648_p0441c21.
為不生, for the non-arising, anuppādāya, T32n1648_p0441c21.
不生, non-arising, anuppāda, T32n1648_p0441c21.
已生, arisen, uppanna, T32n1648_p0441c22.
為斷, for the abandoning, pahānāya, T32n1648_p0441c22.
為增長, for the abundance, vepullāya, T32n1648_p0441c23.
為不忘, for the non-forgetting, asammosāya, T32n1648_p0441c23.
不忘, non-forgetting, asammosa, T32n1648_p0441c23.
增長, abundance, fullness, vepulla, T32n1648_p0441c23.
為更起, for the increase, bhiyyobhāvāya, T32n1648_p0441c23.
更起, increase, bhiyyobhāva, T32n1648_p0441c23.
為滿, for the fulfilment, pāripūriyā, T32n1648_p0441c23.
為修, for the development, bhāvanāya, T32n1648_p0441c23.
四種精進, the fourfold energy, the four kinds of energy, catubbidhaṃ vīriyaṃ, T32n1648_p0441c21. Cf. T08n0261_p0895c15. The four are: To arouse energy for the non-arising of evil unwholesome states that have not yet arisen; for the abandoning of the evil unwholesome states that have already arisen; for the arising of wholesome states that have not yet arisen; for the fullness, non-forgetting, increase, development and fulfilment of the wholesome states that have already arisen. (Vibh 216: Anuppannānaṃ pāpakānaṃ akusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ anuppādāya chandaṃ janeti vāyamati vīriyaṃ ārabhati cittaṃ paggaṇhāti padahati, uppannānaṃ pāpakānaṃ akusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ pahānāya chandaṃ janeti vāyamati vīriyaṃ ārabhati cittaṃ paggaṇhāti padahati, anuppannānaṃ kusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ uppādāya chandaṃ janeti vāyamati vīriyaṃ ārabhati cittaṃ paggaṇhāti padahati, uppannānaṃ kusalānaṃ dhammānaṃ ṭhitiyā asammosāya bhiyyobhāvāya vepullāya bhāvanāya pāripūriyā chandaṃ janeti vāyamati vīriyaṃ ārabhati cittaṃ paggaṇhāti padahati.)
These four correspond to the the four right efforts, 四正勤, cattāri sammappadhānāni. (They are the efforts to restrain, abandon, develop, and guard, saṃvarapadhānaṃ pahānapadhānaṃ bhāvanāpadhānaṃ anurakkhaṇāpadhānaṃ, see D III 225, II 312, A II 15).
多修, to practise increasingly, to practise much, bahulīkaroti, T32n1648_p0441c27.
作意捨相, to attend to the sign of equanimity, upekkhānimittaṃ manasi karoti,T32n1648_p0419a25.
捨相, sign of equanimity, upekkhānimitta,T32n1648_p0419a25.
安, to settle, to put into, samodahati, T32n1648_p0442a08.

以由身, by means of his body, kāyavasena, T32n1648_p0442a08.
以由心, by means of his mind, cittavasena, T32n1648_p0442a09.
以由, by means of, -vasena, T32n1648_p0442a08.
變, to transform, to change to, pariṇāmeti, T32n1648_p0442a08.
輕想, perception of lightness, lahusaññā, T32n1648_p0442a10.
著, to imbue, to sink into, okkamati, T32n1648_p0442a10.
鐵丸, a ball of iron, ayoguḷa, T32n1648_p0442a12.
以智受持, he resolves through knowledge, ñāṇena adhiṭṭhāti, T32n1648_p0442c18.
有神通人, one who possesses supernormal power, iddhimant, T32n1648_p0442a23.
神通人, one who possesses supernormal power, iddhimant, T32n1648_p0443a01.
有神通, possessing supernormal power, one who possesses supernormal power, iddhimant, T32n1648_p0442b26.
得心自在, one who has attained mastery over his mind, cetovasippatta, T32n1648_p0442b26.
作不一種變, he wields the various kinds of supernormal power, anekavihitaṃ iddhividhaṃ paccanubhoti, T32n1648_p0442a24
作, to wield, to exert, paccanubhoti, T32n1648_p0442a24
不一種, various kinds, manifold, anekavihita, T32n1648_p0442a24, T32n1648_p0443c24–25.
如是止法, ineluctable regularity, evaṃdhammatā, T32n1648_p0455b29.
法, regularity, dhammatā, T32n1648_p0455c02.
或現或不現, to appear and disappear, to manifest and vanish, āvibhāva tirobhāva, T32n1648_p0442b04.
現, to appear, to manifest, āvibhāva, T32n1648_p0442b04.
不現, to disappear, to vanish, tirobhāva, T32n1648_p0442b04.
過壁壁, through a wall, tirokuṭṭa, T32n1648_p0442b04.
過壁牆, through a rampart, tiropākāra, T32n1648_p0442b04.
過過山, through a mountain, tiropabbata, T32n1648_p0442a25.
行無礙猶, to go unimpeded, asajjamāna gacchati, T32n1648_p0442a26
無礙猶, unimpeded, unhindered, asajjamāna, T32n1648_p0442a26 行不障礙, to go unimpeded, asajjamāna gacchati, T32n1648_p0442b05.
不障礙, unimpeded, unhindered, asajjamāna, T32n1648_p0442b05.
或沒或出, to dive into and to emerge from, ummujjanimujjaṃ karoti, T32n1648_p0442a26.
令作出沒, to dive into and to emerge from, ummujjanimujjaṃ karoti, T32n1648_p0442b12.
手摸日月, to touch [and touch] the sun and the moon with one's hand, candimasūriye pāṇinā parāmasati parimajjati, T32n1648_p0442a26. See better translation: 以手摸捫.
以手摸捫, to touch and stroke the sun and the moon with one's hand, candimasūriye pāṇinā parāmasati parimajjati, T32n1648_p0442b28.
摸,to touch, to stroke, to feel with the hand, to grope, parāmasati, T32n1648_p0442b28. Used in the simile of the blind men feeling/groping the elephant at T32n1648_p0448a10–11 (如盲人摸象), which is explained as phusati in the Udāna commentary. Also used in touching and stroking with the hand [the sun and moon with psychic power (以手摸捫) at T32n1648_p0442b27–28.
捫,to stroke, to rub, parimajjati, T32n1648_p0442b28.
如是大神通, of such great supernormal power, evaṃ mahiddhika, T32n1648_p0442a28.
如是大力身, of such great might, evaṃ mahānubhāva, T32n1648_p0442a28.
大神通, great supernormal power, mahiddhika, T32n1648_p0442a28.
大力, great might, mahānubhāva, T32n1648_p0442a28.
力, might, power, ānubhāva, T32n1648_p0442a28.
梵世, world of Brahmā, brahmaloka, T32n1648_p0442a28.
初安, first impact, first instance, first impact-instance, paṭhamābhinipāta, T32n1648_p0415c09.
初起, first instance, first impact-instance, paṭhamābhinipāta, T32n1648_p0448b06–07.
打鈴, striking of a bell, ghaṇḍābhighāta, T32n1648_p0415c04.
奮, exertion, striving, āyuhana, T32n1648_p0415c13.
小路阿羅漢, the arahant Cūḷapanthaka, Cūlapanthaka. (or, the small arahant, as an epithet for Cūlapanthaka) T32n1648_p0442b02. Cūḷapanthaka was the disciple foremost in creating mind-made bodies . See Dictionary of Pali Proper Names s.v. Cūlapanthaka.
小路, small, minor, cūḷa, cūla, T32n1648_p0442b02. Transliteration, xiǎolù. Used as part of 小路阿羅漢, arahant Cūḷapanthaka.
已轉, having adverted, āvajjitvā, T32n1648_p0442b07.
當成, let there be!, hotu, T32n1648_p0442b08. Hotu is the imperative of hoti.
一切入定, kasiṇa-attainment, totality-attainment, kasiṇasamāpatti T32n1648_p0442b21.
近手, hand's reach, hatthapāsa, T32n1648_p0442b27
少, little, a few, thoka, T32n1648_p0442c03.
梵天色, Brahmā's form, the material form of Brahmā, brahmuno rūpaṃ, T32n1648_p0442c03.
梵天聲, the sound of Brahmā, brahmuno saddaṃ, T32n1648_p0442c04.
知梵天心, to know Brahmā's mind, brahmuno cittaṃ pajānāti, T32n1648_p0442c04.
梵天心, Brahmā's mind, brahmuno cittaṃ, T32n1648_p0442c04.
龍, a dragon-serpent, a nāga, nāga, T32n1648_p0442c16.
鳳凰, a harpey, a supaṇṇa, supaṇṇa, T32n1648_p0442c17. A kind of mythological, divine bird, which is the opponent of the nāgas.
夜叉, a spirit, a yakkha, yakkha, T32n1648_p0442c17.
阿修羅, a titan, an asura, asura, T32n1648_p0442c17.
帝釋, Inda, inda, T32n1648_p0442c17.
師子, a lion, sīha, T32n1648_p0442c18.
虎, tiger, byaggha, T32n1648_p0442c18.
豹, leopard, dīpi, T32n1648_p0442c18.
空, hollow, susira, T32n1648_p0442c24.
天耳界, divine ear element, dibbasotadhātu, T32n1648_p0443a13.
自性耳, natural ear, pakatisota, T32n1648_p0443a13.
作意聲相, attends to the sound sign, saddanimittaṃ manasikaroti,T32n1648_p0443a17.
聲相, the sound sign, saddanimitta,T32n1648_p0443a17. The sign to be developed for attaining the divine ear, dibbasota, 天耳.
大聲, gross sound, coarse sound, oḷārika sadda, T32n1648_p0443a18.
細聲, subtle sound, sukhuma sadda, T32n1648_p0443a18.
或遠或近, [those] distant as well as near, [those] distant or near, ye dūre santike ca / ye dūre santike vā, T32n1648_p0443a22.

千世界, thousand world systems, sahassilokadhātu, T32n1648_p0443b05.
世界, a world system, lokadhātu, T32n1648_p0443b05.
緣覺, solitary buddha, paccekabuddha, T32n1648_p0443b05.
光一切入, light kasiṇa, ālokakasiṇa, T32n1648_p0443b07. See 一切入.
光明一切入, light kasiṇa, ālokakasiṇa, T32n1648_p0424a01. See 一切入.
依止師, teacher, ācāriya, T32n1648_p0411a08.
少觀, a slight degree of exploring, vicāramatta, T32n1648_p0407b17.
無覺少觀定, concentration without thinking and with a slight degree of exploring, avitakka vicāramatta samādhi, T32n1648_p0407b17.
覺少觀, without thinking and with a slight degree of exploring, avitakka vicāramatta, T32n1648_p0407b17.
有覺有觀定, concentration with thinking and exploring, savitakka savicāra samādhi, T32n1648_p0407b16–17.
有覺有觀, with thinking and exploring, with thinking and with exploring, savitakka savicāra samādhi, T32n1648_p0407b16–17.
無覺少觀定, concentration without thinking and with a slight degree of exploring, avitakka vicāramatta samādhi, T32n1648_p0407b17.
無覺少觀, without thinking and with a slight degree of exploring, avitakka vicāramatta, T32n1648_p0407b17.
無覺無觀定, concentration without thinking and exploring, avitakka avicāra samādhi, T32n1648_p0407b17.
無覺無觀, without thinking and without exploring, without thinking and exploring, avitakka avicāra, T32n1648_p0407b17.
少於營造, having little work, having few undertakings, appasamārambhatā, T32n1648_p0404c29.
營造, undertakings, activity, samārambha, T32n1648_p0404c29.
經營, searching, pariyesana, T32n1648_p0440b26. (This is not the normal meaning; see 經營 above.)
少營, having little activity, having few undertakings, appasamārambhatā, T32n1648_p0404b25. Perhaps it corresponds to appakicca, which has the same meaning, but see 少於營造, having few undertakings, appasamārambhatā, T32n1648_p0404c29.
少所經營, with little effort, with little work, without much work, appasamārambhatā, T32n1648_p0404c16. Could not find exact Pali parallel in Vism I.21, but in the following section 少於營造 is used instead which has a parallel at Vism I.25. 少於營造= having few undertakings, appasamārambhatā, T32n1648_p0404c29.
動, unsteady, moving, mobile, calita, T32n1648_p0411c23.
不動, steady, not moving, immobile, acalita, T32n1648_p0411c23.
應起, to be produced, to be given rise to, to be aroused, uppādetabba, T32n1648_p0443b08.
云何應起, how is it to be produced?, kathaṃ uppādetabbaṃ, T32n1648_p0443b08.
酪酥, curd, dadhi, T32n1648_p0443b14. (Supposedly this has the same meaning as 酥酪.)
有愛心, a mind with lust, sarāga citta, T32n1648_p0443b24.
無愛心, a mind without lust, vītarāga citta, T32n1648_p0443b25.
有瞋恚心, a mind with hate, sadosa citta, T32n1648_p0443b25.
無瞋恚心, a mind without hate, vītadosa citta, T32n1648_p0443b26.
有愛, with lust, sarāga, T32n1648_p0443b24.
無愛, without lust, vītarāga, T32n1648_p0443b25.
有瞋恚, with hate, sadosa, T32n1648_p0443b25.
無瞋恚, without hate, vītadosa, T32n1648_p0443b26.
小事, limited object, parittārammaṇa, T32n1648_p0443b27.
大事, exalted object, mahaggatārammaṇa, T32n1648_p0443b27.
道事, path object, maggārammaṇa, T32n1648_p0443b27.
無量事, immeasurable object, appamāṇārammaṇa, T32n1648_p0443b27.
過去事, past object, atītārammaṇa, T32n1648_p0443b28
未來事, future object, anāgatārammaṇa, T32n1648_p0443b28.
現在事, present object, paccuppannārammaṇa, T32n1648_p0443b28.ṭ
外事, external object, bahiddhārammaṇa, T32n1648_p0443b28.
憶宿命智, knowledge of the recollection of past lives, pubbenivāsānussatiñāṇa, T32n1648_p0443c03.
憶宿命, recollection of past lives, pubbenivāsānussati, T32n1648_p0443c07.
初生, purejāta, prenascent, prenascence, T32n1648_p0439c19, T32n1648_p0448b02, T32n1648_p0449a19. Used in 初生依, prenascence condition, purejātapaccaya (* 初生緣).
如是以修行心清白, with a mind which is thus developed and is pure, tathābhāvitena cittena parisuddhena, T32n1648_p0443b24, T32n1648_p0443c24.
如是以修行心, with a mind which is thus developed, tathābhāvitena cittena parisuddhena, T32n1648_p0443b24, T32n1648_p0443c24.
輸毘多, Sobhita, sobhita, T32n1648_p0444a02. Transliteration, shū-pí-duō. Sobhita was the disciple of the Buddha who was foremost in recollecting previous lives; see Dictionary of Pali Proper Names s.v. "Sobhita."
最勝, foremost, top-most, best, agga, T32n1648_p0444a02.
陰相續, the continuity of the aggregates, khandhasantāna, T32n1648_p0444a05.
相續, continuity, succession, santāna, T32n1648_p0444a05.
從此外道, adherent of another sect, other sectarian, heretic, titthiya, T32n1648_p0444a06.
無力, weakness, feebleness, frailty, dubbala, T32n1648_p0444a07.
聖聲聞, noble disciple, ariyasāvaka, T32n1648_p0444a07.
一萬, ten thousand, dasasahassa, T32n1648_p0444a07. (Perhaps one thousand? The Visuddhimagga has sahassa, thousand) 大聲聞, great disciple, mahāsāvaka, T32n1648_p0444a07.
正遍覺, perfectly awakened one, sammāsambuddha, T32n1648_p0444a08.
磨鏡, to polish a mirror, ādāsaṃ parimajjati, T32n1648_p0443c28.
更重, again and again, punappunaṃ, T32n1648_p0443c27.
業果報所成, born of the result of action, kammavipākaja, T32n1648_p0444a16.
修行所成, produced from development, bhāvanamaya, T32n1648_p0444a16.
寶藏, treasure trove, trove, nidhi, T32n1648_p0444a17. I take 典藏 to be a corruption or synonym of 寶藏 that is used later in the same sentence (444a17). Cf. 典藏寶 "treasure trove, treasure collection," at T02n0125_p0552a18, T10n0309_p1030b23.
作意光想, to attend to the perception of light, ālokasaññaṃ manasikaroti, T32n1648_p0444a21.
光想, perception of light, ālokasaññā, T32n1648_p0444a21.
日想受持, to resolve upon the perception of day, divāsaññaṃ adhiṭṭhāti, T32n1648_p0444a21.
日想, perception of day, divāsaññā, T32n1648_p0444a21.
此日如夜此夜如日, " This day is like night; this night is like day" (Chinese), "Like the night, so be the day; like the day, so be the night" (Pali), yathā divā tathā rattiṃ, yathā rattiṃ tathā divā, T32n1648_p0444a22 無礙, not covered, uncovered, open, vivaṭa, T32n1648_p0444a22. Cf. Skt. vi-vṛ.
無所著, apariyonaddha, unenveloped, unenclosed, T32n1648_p0444a22.

有光明, with illumination, accompanied by illumination, sappabhāsa, T32n1648_p0444a22.
光明, illumination, shining, pabhāsa, T32n1648_p0444a22.
過人, which is surpassing the human, atikkantamānusaka, T32n1648_p0444a27. Adjective. Part of 過人眼, "which is surpassing the human eye."
或終或生, passing away or rearising, cavamāna upapajjamāna, T32n1648_p0444a27.
或麁或妙, inferior or superior, hīna paṇīta, T32n1648_p0444a28.
或善色或醜色, fair and ugly, suvaṇṇa dubbaṇṇa, T32n1648_p0444a28.
善色, fair, good-looking, suvaṇṇa, T32n1648_p0444a28.
醜色, ugly, bad-looking, dubbaṇṇa, T32n1648_p0444a28.
如業所作, faring according to their deeds, coming into (existence) according to their actions, yathākammūpaga, T32n1648_p0444a29.
(惡口, grossness, corruption, duṭṭhulla, T32n1648_p0444b02. 惡口 normally means "evil speech" but this would not apply in this context and the Chinese translator gave a very liberal translation.)
喜, elation, ubbilla, uppila, T32n1648_p0444b02.
急疾精進, overexertion, excessive application of energy, too much exercise of energy, accāraddhavīriya, T32n1648_p0444b02. Cf. 最速作精進 = accāraddhavīriya at T32n1648_p0413b29.
遲緩精進, overly sluggish exertion, overly sluggish application of energy, atilīnavīriya, T32n1648_p0444b02. Cf. 最遲作精進 = atilīnavīriya at T32n1648_p0413c01.
急疾, excessive application, overexertion, too much exercise, accāraddha, T32n1648_p0444b02. Cf. 最速作 = accāraddha at T32n1648_p0413b29.
遲緩, overly sluggish, too sluggish application, atilīna, T32n1648_p0444b02. Cf. 最遲作 = atilīna at T32n1648_p0413c01.
多語, longing, wishing, abhijappā, T32n1648_p0444b02–03. The primary meaning of abhijappā/abhijappana is "praying, talking" and the Chinese translator would have understood it in this sense, but it can also have the meaning of longing for something.
最觀色, excessive reflection on forms, atinijjhāyitattaṃ rūpānaṃ, T32n1648_p0444b03.
最觀, excessive reflection, excessive meditation, excessive contemplation, atinijjhāyitatta, T32n1648_p0444b03.
退, to fall away, cavati, T32n1648_p0444b05.
失, to disappear, antaradhāyati, T32n1648_p0444b05.
未來分智, knowledge of the future, anāgataṃsa-ñāṇa, T32n1648_p0444b14.
自所作業智, knowledge of the ownership of kamma, kammassakata-ñāṇa, T32n1648_p0444b14. See 自作業智.
自所作業, ownership of kamma, kammassakata, T32n1648_p0444b14. See 自作業.
如行業智, knowledge of the faring according to deeds, yathākammūpaga-ñāṇa, T32n1648_p0444b14.
業果報智, knowledge of the result of kamma, kammavipāka-ñāṇa, T32n1648_p0444b14.
知之, he knows: "...,"... ti pajānāti, T32n1648_p0429c29. The 之 indicates that there is a quotation clause preceding the verb 知, e.g. "When breathing in long, he knows, 'I breathe in long,'" Dīghaṃ vā assasanto dīghaṃ assasāmīti pajānāti, 若長出息我息長出如是知之. Cf. T32n1648_p0430c20–21: 學之, for ... ti sikkhati, "... 'he trains.'" Perhaps just "He trains..."?
常見, contemplating, anupassī, T32n1648_p0431a26.
常見無欲, contemplating fading away, virāgānupassī, T32n1648_p0431a26.
常見滅, contemplating cessation, nirodhānupassī, T32n1648_p0431a28.
常見出離, contemplating renunciation, paṭinissaggānupassī, T32n1648_p0431b01.
乾闥婆, gandhabba, a heavenly musician, gandhabba, T32n1648_p0431c10.
凡夫共, in common with the worldling, shared with the commoner, puthujjanasādhāraṇa, T32n1648_p0444c01.
所應教行, according to the instructions, yathānusiṭṭhaṃ ?, T32n1648_p0412b03.
所教, according to the instructions, yathānusiṭṭhaṃ ?, T32n1648_p0412b07.
受持, to initiate, to first establish, paṭṭhapeti, T32n1648_p0448b08 受, to undertake, samādiyati, T32n1648_p0448b09.
有分心, bhavaṅga mind, bhavaṅgacitta, T32n1648_p0449b07.
轉心, adverting mind, āvajjana-citta, T32n1648_p0449b09. A kind of mind that is part of the process of mind, cittavīthi, as described in Vimuttimagga.
見心, seeing mind, dassana-citta, T32n1648_p0449b08. A kind of mind that is part of the process of mind, cittavīthi, as described in Vimuttimagga.
所受心, receiving mind, sampaṭicchana-citta, T32n1648_p0449b08. A kind of mind that is part of the process of mind, cittavīthi, as described in Vimuttimagga. Cf. 受持心.
受持心, receiving mind, sampaṭicchana-citta, T32n1648_p0449c03. A kind of mind that is part of the process of mind, cittavīthi, as described in Vimuttimagga. Cf. 所受心.
分別心, investigation mind, saṅtīraṇa-citta, T32n1648_p0449b08. A kind of mind that is part of the process of mind, cittavīthi, as described in Vimuttimagga.
令起心, determining mind, voṭṭhabbana-citta, T32n1648_p0449b08. A kind of mind that is part of the process of mind, cittavīthi, as described in Vimuttimagga.
速心, activation mind, javana-citta, T32n1648_p0449b08. A kind of mind that is part of the process of mind, cittavīthi, as described in Vimuttimagga. Cf. 速行心.
速行心, activation mind, javana-citta, T32n1648_p0449b16. A kind of mind that is part of the process of mind, cittavīthi, as described in Vimuttimagga. Cf. 速心.
速行, activation, javana, T32n1648_p0449b16.
彼事心, that–same-object mind, tadārammaṇa-citta, T32n1648_p0449b08. A kind of mind that is part of the process of mind, cittavīthi, as described in Vimuttimagga.
聾人守門, a deaf gatekeeper, deaf door-guard, badhiradovārika, T32n1648_p0449b19-20.
守門, gatekeeper, door-guard, dovārika, T32n1648_p0449b20.
聾人, a deaf man, badhira, T32n1648_p0449b19-20.
精進受持, undertaking of energy, vīriya-samādāna, T32n1648_p0401a25.
受持, undertaking, samādāna, T32n1648_p0401a25.
栴檀, sandal-wood, candana, T32n1648_p0401a21.
尼乾, nigaṇṭha(s), jain(s), nigaṇṭha, T32n1648_p0407a19.
不動搖, not moving, aniñjamāna, T32n1648_p0407a19–20.
身不動搖, not moving the body, kāyena aniñjamāna, T32n1648_p0407a19–20.
口不言說, not speaking a word, abhāsamāna vācaṃ, T32n1648_p0407a20.
一向, exclusively, ekanta, T32n1648_p0407a20.
懶處, base of laziness, ground for idleness, kusītavatthu, kosajjavatthu, T32n1648_p0448a16. The eight bases of laziness (八懶處) are explained at D III 255. Cf. 生怠處 at T32n1648_p0406a13.
樂觸, pleasant contact, pleasant touch, sukhasamphassa, T32n1648_p0430a29 覆鉢羯磨, legal act of overturning the bowl, Pali: patta-nikkujjana-kamma. Skt: pātra-nikubjana-karma. T22n1425_p0483c18, T24n1451_p0220a22. For more information see: lhung bzed kha spub pa, 覆鉢, pattanikkujjana.
像, image, counter-image, reflection, paṭibimba, T32n1648_p0414a03.
佛家財, an heir of the Buddha, buddhassa dāyāda, T32n1648_p0426b23.
家財, heir, dāyāda, T32n1648_p0426b23
普, entire, kevala, T32n1648_p0426b24.
速, quickly, khippaṃ, T32n1648_p0426b25.
又說, again it is said, it is also said, aparampi vutta ?, T32n1648_p0419c02. Cf. 復說.

有說， some say, keci vadanti ?, T32n1648_p0417c13
復有說, but some say, keci pana vadanti, keci vadanti ?, T32n1648_p0410a23.
身念, recollection of the body, kāyagatāsati, T32n1648_p0453b08. A variant of 念身.
身念處, the foundation of mindfulness of the body, kāyānupassanāsatipaṭṭhāna, kāye kāyānupassī viharati; T32n1648_p0431b22.
受念處, the foundation of mindfulness of feelings, vedanānupassanāsatipaṭṭhāna, vedanāsu vedanānupassī viharati; T32n1648_p0431b22.
心念處, the foundation of mindfulness of mind, cittānupassanāsatipaṭṭhāna, citte cittānupassī viharati; T32n1648_p0431b23.
法念處, the foundation of mindfulness of states, dhammānupassanāsatipaṭṭhāna, dhammesu dhammānupassī viharati; T32n1648_p0431b23.
在身念成修滿, recollection of the body is fully developed, kāyagatāsatibhāvanāpi pāripūriṃ gacchati, T32n1648_p0440b20.
在身念, recollection of the body, kāyagatāsatibhāvana, T32n1648_p0440b20.
成修滿, is fully developed, pāripūriṃ gacchati, T32n1648_p0440b20.
安眠, to sleeps comfortably, sukhaṃ supati, T32n1648_p0435c18.
安覺, to wake comfortably, sukhaṃ paṭibujjhati, T32n1648_p0435c18.
不見惡夢, to see no bad dream, na pāpakaṃ supinaṃ passati, T32n1648_p0435c18.
惡夢, bad dream, pāpakaṃ supinaṃ, T32n1648_p0435c18.
人所愛敬, is dear to humans, manussānaṃ piyo hoti, T32n1648_p0435c18.
所愛敬, to be dear to, piya hoti, T32n1648_p0435c18.
愛敬, dear, piya, T32n1648_p0435c18.
不愛敬, unkind, not dear, T32n1648_p0436a21.
諸天守護, to be protected by gods, devatā rakkhanti, T32n1648_p0435c19.
不著身, to be untouched by, to be unaffected by, nāssa ... kamati, T32n1648_p0435c19–20.
毒, poison, visa, T32n1648_p0435c19.
刀, sword, sattha, T32n1648_p0435c19.
速得定心, the mind concentrates quickly, tuvaṭaṃ cittaṃ samādhiyati, T32n1648_p0435c20.
速, quickly, tuvaṭaṃ, T32n1648_p0435c20.
面色和悅, facial complexion becomes bright, mukhavaṇṇo vippasīdati, T32n1648_p0435c20.
和悅, becomes bright, becomes clear, vippasīdati, pasīdati, T32n1648_p0435c20.
中國, the middle country, majjhimadesa, T32n1648_p0435c20.
四王天, the gods of the Four Kings, cātummahārājikā devā, T32n1648_p0429b26.
三十三天, the gods of the Thirty-three, Tāvatiṃsa gods, tāvatiṃsā devā, T32n1648_p0429b26. Thī-a 168: Tattha sahapuññakārino tettiṃsa janā yattha upapannā, taṃ ṭhānaṃ tāvatiṃsanti. Tattha nibbattā sabbepi devaputtā tāvatiṃsā. Keci pana tāvatiṃsāti tesaṃ devānaṃ nāmamevā ti vadanti.
焰摩天, the gods who have gone to bliss, Yāma gods, yāmā devā, T32n1648_p0429b26. Thī-a 168: Thī-a 168: Dvīhi devalokehi visiṭṭhaṃ dibbaṃ sukhaṃ yātā upayātā sampannāti yāmā.
兜率天, the contented gods, Tusita gods, tusitā devā, T32n1648_p0429b26. Thī-a 168: Dibbāya sampattiyā tuṭṭhā pahaṭṭhāti tusitā.
化樂天, the gods who delight in creation, Nimmānarati gods, nimmānaratino devā, T32n1648_p0429b27. Thī-a 168: Pakatipaṭiyattārammaṇato atirekena ramitukāmatākāle yathārucite bhoge nimminitvā ramantīti nimmānaratino.
他化自在天, the gods who delight in wielding power over others' creations, Paranimmitavasavatti gods, paranimmitavasavattino devā, T32n1648_p0429b27. Thī-a 168: Cittaruciṃ ñatvā parehi nimmitesu bhogesu vasaṃ vattentīti vasavattino.
梵身天, Brahmā-group gods, gods of the retinue of Brahmā, brahmakāyikā devā, T32n1648_p0429b27.
因緣, introduction, nidāna, nidānakathā, T32n1648_p0399c13. Here nidāna is used in the sense of an introduction to a work or the start of a work. Normally nidānakathā, "introductory speech" is used in Pali commentaries, but just nidāna is used for the introduction/start of the Pātimokkha; see the Pātimokkha: nidānaṃ niṭṭhitaṃ and Vin I 112: Pañcime, bhikkhave, pātimokkhuddesā nidānaṃ uddisitvā avasesaṃ sutena sāvetabbaṃ. ...
念寂寂, recollection of stilling, recollection of peace, upasamānussati, T32n1648_p0434b23.
寂寂念, recollection of stilling, recollection of peace, upasamānussati, T32n1648_p0434c04. A variant form of 念寂寂.
向醍醐, one is destined to the deathless, amataparāyana, T32n1648_p0434c01.
寂寂心, of peaceful mind, has a calm mind, santamānasa, T32n1648_p0434b28.
諸根寂寂, of peaceful faculties, has calm faculties, santindriya, T32n1648_p0434b28.
心願具足, to be resolved on, adhimuttika, T32n1648_p0434b29.
慚愧具足, endowed with conscience and shame, hirottappasamannāgata, T32n1648_p0434b29.
可愛, pleasing, lovely, pāsādika, T32n1648_p0434b29.
所貴重, to be respected and esteemed, garu ca bhāvanīya ca, T32n1648_p0434b29–30.
戒具足， endowed with virtue, sīlasampanna, T32n1648_p0434c05.
定具足， endowed with concentration, samādhisampanna, T32n1648_p0434c05.
慧具足, endowed with wisdom, paññāsampanna, T32n1648_p0434c05.
解脫具足, endowed with freedom, vimuttisampanna, T32n1648_p0434c06.
解脫知見， knowledge and vision of freedom, vimuttiñāṇadassana, T32n1648_p0434c06.
我說, I say, vadāmi, T32n1648_p0434c07.
往, approaching, going near to, upasaṅkamana, T32n1648_p0434c08.
視, attending to, serving, associating, payirūpāsana, T32n1648_p0434c08.
念, recollecting, recollection, anussati, T32n1648_p0434c09.
隨出家, going forth after (someone else), going forth in imitation (of someone else), anupabbajjā, T32n1648_p0434c09.
心離憒鬧, seclusion of the mind, cittavūpakāsa, T32n1648_p0434c11.
身離憒鬧, seclusion of the body, kāyavūpakāsa, T32n1648_p0434c11.
何故如是等, what is the reason for that?, why is that so?, taṃ kissa hetu, T32n1648_p0434c09.
諸比丘, monks, bhikkhus, T32n1648_p0434c10. Plural form of bhikkhu.
大得恩， of much benefit, bahūpakāraṃ, T32n1648_p0434c09. See大恩.
大恩, of much benefit, much use, bahūpakāraṃ, T32n1648_p0434c08.
成住, to be concentrated, samādhiyati, T32n1648_p0428a19.
心成定, the mind becomes concentrated, cittaṃ samāhitaṃ hoti, T32n1648_p0414c18.
禪外地, the plane of accesss [-concentration], upacārabhūmi, T32n1648_p0414c17.
所得地, plane of obtainment, paṭilābhabhūmi, T32n1648_p0414c18.
斷諸蓋, abandoning of hindrances, nīvaraṇappahāna, T32n1648_p0414c18.
起禪枝, manifestation of the jhāna-factors, jhānaṅgapātubhāva, T32n1648_p0414c19.
離不學定人, avoidance of persons who are not practising concentration, asamāhitapuggalaparivajjanā, T32n1648_p0414b22.
親近學定人, association with persons who are practising concentration, samāhitapuggalasevanā, T32n1648_p0414b22–23.

愁惱, urgency, saṃvega, T32n1648_p0414c16.
悲傷, urgency, saṃvega, T32n1648_p0415a02.
無味, listlessness, listless, nirassāda, T32n1648_p0414c07.
無味著, listlessness, listless, nirassāda, T32n1648_p0414c08.
鈍, sluggishness, slowness, mandatā, T32n1648_p0414c13
不得寂寂樂, not attaining the happiness of stillness, upasamasukhānadhigamana, T32n1648_p0414c13.
寂寂樂, the happiness of stillness, upasamasukha, T32n1648_p0414c13.
不得, not attaining, anadhigamana, T32n1648_p0414c13.
令得歡喜, to encourage, sampahaṃseti, T32n1648_p0414c13.
安定方便, skill in fixedness-concentration, appanākosalla, T32n1648_p0414b18.
曉了於相, skill in the sign, nimittakusala, T32n1648_p0414b20.
遍起觀諸根, effecting the equality of faculties, indriyasamattapaṭipādana, T32n1648_p0414b20.
遍起, effecting equality, samattapaṭipādana, T32n1648_p0414b20.
遍, evenness, equality, samatta, T32n1648_p0414b20.
調, to control, regulate, paggaṇhāti, T32n1648_p0414b29.
制伏, to restrain, subdue, niggaṇhāti, T32n1648_p0414c05.
折伏, to restrain, subdue, niggaṇhāti, T32n1648_p0414c05.
一味, one function, ekarasa, T32n1648_p0415a05.
捨, to be equanimous, ajjhupekkhati, T32n1648_p0414c17.
壽命行, life-force, jīvitasaṅkhāra, T32n1648_p0431c14, T02n0144_p0867b03.
斷, cutting off, upaccheda, T32n1648_p0431c14.
服飾, requisite, equipment, parikkhāra, T32n1648_p0431c17.
慳恪, avarice, macchera, T32n1648_p0431c18.
向善趣, one is destined to a good destination, sugatiparāyana, T32n1648_p0431c19.
向於善趣, one is destined to a good destination, sugatiparāyana, T32n1648_p0432c21.
向於醍醐, one is destined to the deathless, one has the deathless as destination, amataparāyana, T32n1648_p0431c19.
不謬誤, not bewildered, asammūḷha, T32n1648_p0431c20.
不亂心, unwavering mind, undistracted mind, avikkhittacitta, T32n1648_p0431c21
向於死趣, destined to die, maraṇapariyosāna, T32n1648_p0431c22
不過死法, not gone beyond death, maraṇaṃ anatīta, T32n1648_p0431c22.
不過, , not gone beyond, anatīta, T32n1648_p0431c22.
涅底履波陀脩多羅, Nettipada-sutta ?, T32n1648_p0431c22–23. Transliteration: niè-dǐ-lǚ-bō-tuó-xiū-duō-luó. An untraced sutta on recollecting death, which is referred to in the Vimuttimagga, T32n1648.
闍維人, one who cremates corpses, corpse-burner, chavaḍāhaka , T32n1648_p0431c27.
驚, shock, anxiety, santāsa, T32n1648_p0431c26.
中, indifference, neutrality, majjhatta, T32n1648_p0431c27.
等死, conventional death, death according to general opinion, sammutimaraṇa, T32n1648_p0432a02.
斷死, death as cutting off, samucchedamaraṇa, T32n1648_p0432a02.
念念死, momentary death, khaṇikamaraṇa, T32n1648_p0432a02.
念念, momentary, khaṇika, T32n1648_p0432a02.
行念念滅, the momentary dissolution of formations, saṅkhārānaṃ khaṇabhaṅga, T32n1648_p0432a04.
不時節死, untimely death, akālamaraṇa, T32n1648_p0432a05
時節死, timely death, kālamaraṇa, T32n1648_p0432a05
不時節, untimely, akāla, T32n1648_p0432a05.
時節, timely, kāla, T32n1648_p0432a05.
壽命盡, exhaustion of the life-span, āyukkhaya, T32n1648_p0432a05.
兇惡人逐, being closely followed by an executioner, vadhakapaccupaṭṭhāna, T32n1648_p0432a08. Vism-mhṭ: Vadhakapaccupaṭṭhānatoti ghātakassa viya pati pati upaṭṭhānato āsannabhāvato.
本取, comparing, comparison, upasaṃharaṇa, T32n1648_p0432a09. At the end of the explanation, at p0432a29, the text has 先取 instead.
先取, comparing, comparison, upasaṃharaṇa, T32n1648_p0432a29. Variant of 本取 used earlier in the same section at T32n1648_p0432a09 & 19.
大善見王, King Mahāsudassana, Mahāsudassana-rāja, T32n1648_p0432a20..
頂生王, King Mandhātu, Mandhātu-rāja, T32n1648_p0432a21.
大乘, great vehicles, mahāvāhana, T32n1648_p0432a20. Ud-a: Mahanto hatthiassādivāhano etassāti mahāvāhano.
有大神力, of great eminence, mahānubhāva, T32n1648_p0432a24.
有大神通, of great supernormal power, mahiddhika, T32n1648_p0432a24.
大神力, of great eminence, mahānubhāva, T32n1648_p0432a20.
大神通, of great supernormal power, mahiddhika, T32n1648_p0432a20.
毘沙蜜多, Vessāmitta, T32n1648_p0432a22. A name of a sage, 仙人.
闍摩達梨, Yamataggi, T32n1648_p0432a22. A name of a sage, 仙人.
仙人, sage, isi, T32n1648_p0432a22.
目犍連, Moggallāna, T32n1648_p0432a24. Moggallāna (Skt. Maudgalyāyana) is the name of one of the two chief bhikkhu disciples (along with Sāriputta, 舍利弗) who was the Buddha's disciple foremost in supernormal power; see Dictionary of Pali Proper Names s.v. “Moggallāna.” A variant reading in the footnote to T32n1648_p0432a24 is 目揵連.
緣覺人, solitary buddha, paccekabuddha, T32n1648_p0432a25.
自生, self-become, sayambhū, T32n1648_p0432a25.
無師, who has no teacher, anācariyaka, T32n1648_p0432a25.
諸如來, tathāgatas, thus-gone ones, tathāgatā, T32n1648_p0432a26.
正覺, rightly awakened one, sammāsambuddhā, T32n1648_p0432a26.
到一切功德彼岸, reached perfection in all qualities, sabbesu guṇesu pāramiṃ patta, T32n1648_p0426c11 (At T32n1648_p0432a27 到功德彼岸 instead).
身多屬, the body being shared with many, kāyabahusādhāraṇa, T32n1648_p0432a09.
多屬, being shared with many, bahusādhāraṇa, T32n1648_p0432a09.
屬, being shared with, sādhāraṇa, T32n1648_p0432a09.
和合, upset, disturbance, pakopa, saṅkupa, saṅkopa?, T32n1648_p0432b01. Used in the the context of an upset/imbalance of the wind and phlegm humours 風痰和合, and and upset/agitation of the families of internal worms 諸虫種和合. The Vism parallel has pakopa and kuppati. Perhaps saṅkupa was interpreted as saṃkula by the Chinese translator.

射蚰蜒, scorpion, vicchika, T32n1648_p0432b03.
虫種, family of worms, kimikula, T32n1648_p0432b01.
龍, elephant, nāga ?, T32n1648_p0432b03.
壽命無力， frailty of life, āyudubbala, T32n1648_p0432a09.
水泡喻, simile of the water-bubble, bubbulupamā, T32n1648_p0432b09. A simile at S III 140–42: ... yaṃ kiñci rūpaṃ ... passato nijjhāyato yoniso upaparikkhato rittakaññeva khāyati, tucchakaññeva khāyati, asārakaññeva khāyati. Kiñhi siyā, bhikkhave, rūpe sāro? ... Pheṇapiṇḍūpamaṃ rūpaṃ, vedanā bubbulupamā; marīcikūpamā saññā, saṅkhārā kadalūpamā; māyūpamañca viññāṇaṃ dīpitādiccabandhunā.
水泡, water-bubble, bubbula, T32n1648_p0432b09
芭蕉喻， simile of the plantain (-trunk), kadalūpamā, T32n1648_p0432b09. A simile at S III 140–42: ... yaṃ kiñci rūpaṃ ... passato nijjhāyato yoniso upaparikkhato rittakaññeva khāyati, tucchakaññeva khāyati, asārakaññeva khāyati. Kiñhi siyā, bhikkhave, rūpe sāro? ... Pheṇapiṇḍūpamaṃ rūpaṃ, vedanā bubbulupamā; marīcikūpamā saññā, saṅkhārā kadalūpamā; māyūpamañca viññāṇaṃ dīpitādiccabandhunā.
芭蕉， plantain (-trunk), kadala, T32n1648_p0432b09.
水沫喻， the simile of the [lump of] foam, pheṇapiṇḍūpamā, T32n1648_p0432b09. A simile at S III 140–42: ... yaṃ kiñci rūpaṃ ... passato nijjhāyato yoniso upaparikkhato rittakaññeva khāyati, tucchakaññeva khāyati, asārakaññeva khāyati. Kiñhi siyā, bhikkhave, rūpe sāro? ... Pheṇapiṇḍūpamaṃ rūpaṃ, vedanā bubbulupamā; marīcikūpamā saññā, saṅkhārā kadalūpamā; māyūpamañca viññāṇaṃ dīpitādiccabandhunā.
水沫， [lump of] foam, pheṇapiṇḍa, T32n1648_p0432b09.
無有真實, without having a core, without having an essence, asāraka, T32n1648_p0432b10.
所縛, to be bound up with, to be tied to, upanibaddha, T32n1648_p0432b12.
出入息, in-breaths and out-breaths, assāsapassāsa, T32n1648_p0432b12.
四大, the great entities, the primary elements, mahābhūtā, T32n1648_p0432b12. The Chinese has “four great entities” but the Pali parallel, Vism VIII. 27 just has mahābhūtā.
飲食, food, nutriment, āhāra, T32n1648_p0432b12.
久遠分別， limitedness of the extent, addhānapariccheda, T32n1648_p0432a10.
百年, hundred years, vassasata, T32n1648_p0432b16.
日夜, a day and night, rattindivaṃ
世尊諸法, Teaching of the Blessed One, bhagavato sāsana, T32n1648_p0432b18.
思惟, to attend to, manasikaroti, T32n1648_p0432b18.
半日, half a day, upaḍḍhadivasa, T32n1648_p0432b19.
半, half, upaḍḍha, T32n1648_p0432b19.
揣, morsel of food, ālopa, T32n1648_p0432b21.
出息, to breathe out, passasati, T32n1648_p0432b22.
入息, to breathe in, assasati, T32n1648_p0432b22.
以無相故, by way of signlessness, through the signless, animittato, T32n1648_p0432b22.
以剎那故, by way of momentariness, through momentariness, khaṇato， T32n1648_p0432a35.
一念時, one mind-moment, ekacittakkhaṇa, T32n1648_p0432b27.
念時, mind-moment, cittakkhaṇa, T32n1648_p0432b27.
如阿毘曇中說, as is said in the Abhidhamma, yathā abhidhamme vuttaṃ, T32n1648_p0432b28.
心剎那， mind-moment, cittakkhaṇa, T32n1648_p0432c01.
現生, lives, jīvati, T32n1648_p0432b29.
Occurs together with 當生, will live, jīvissati, and 已生, did live, jīvittha. The parallel clearly has “lives,” not “arises/is born,” etc. although the latter would be the normal sense in Vim. Cf. Nidd I 42: Atīte cittakkhaṇe jīvittha, na jīvati na jīvissati; anāgate cittakkhaṇe jīvissati, na jīvati na jīvittha; paccuppanne cittakkhaṇe jīvati, na jīvittha na jīvissati.
已生, did live, jīvittha, T32n1648_p0432b29.
Occurs together with 現生, lives, jīvati, and當生, will live, jīvissati. The parallel clearly has “did live,” not “did arise/was born,” etc. although the latter would be the normal sense in Vim. Nidd I 42: Atīte cittakkhaṇe jīvittha, na jīvati na jīvissati; anāgate cittakkhaṇe jīvissati, na jīvati na jīvittha; paccuppanne cittakkhaṇe jīvati, na jīvittha na jīvissati.
當生, will live, jīvissati, T32n1648_p0432b29.
Occurs together with現生， lives, jīvati, and 已生, did live, jīvittha. The parallel clearly has “ will live,” not “will arise/will be born,” etc. although the latter would be the normal sense in Vim. Nidd I 42: Atīte cittakkhaṇe jīvittha, na jīvati na jīvissati; anāgate cittakkhaṇe jīvissati, na jīvati na jīvittha; paccuppanne cittakkhaṇe jīvati, na jīvittha na jīvissati.
與一心相應, joined to one mind (-moment), ekacittasamāyutta, T32n1648_p0432c04.
速, quickly, lahuso, T32n1648_p0432c04.
生起, to occur, proceed, vattati, T32n1648_p0432c04.
未生, unproduced, not-come-to-be, not-born, anibbatta, T32n1648_p0432c05.
心斷, dissolution of the mind, cittabhaṅga, T32n1648_p0432c06.
諸蓋滅, the hindrances are suspended, nīvaraṇāni vikkhambhanti, T32n1648_p0432c09.
禪分成起， the jhāna factors manifest, jhānaṅgāni pātubhavanti, T32n1648_p0432c10.
無常相, perception of impermanence, aniccasaññā, T32n1648_p0432c12. Misspelling of 無常想. The characters 想 and 相 are frequently mixed up in 解脫道論, T32n1648.
無我相 , perception of not-self, anattasaññā, T32n1648_p0432c12. Misspelling of 無我想. The characters 想 and 相 are frequently mixed up in 解脫道論, T32n1648.
堪受怖畏, to bear fear and dread, bhayabheravasaha T32n1648_p0432c19 堪受, to bear, to endure, overcome, saha T32n1648_p0432c19. As part of 堪受怖畏, to bear fear and dread, bhayabheravasaha.
怖畏, fear and dread, bhayabherava T32n1648_p0432c19
堪任寒熱, to tolerate heat and cold, khamo hoti sītassa uṇhassa, T32n1648_p0432c19 過患想, perception of disadvantage, perception of danger, ādīnavasaññā, T32n1648_p0432c20.
成隨意得, one who attains at will, nikāmalābhī hoti, T32n1648_p0432c20.
栴檀, sandalwood, candana, T32n1648_p0433a23. The Indian sandalwood tree, Santalum album, or its fragrant wood.
多伽羅, crape jasmine, tagara, T32n1648_p0433a23. Tagara is the flowering shrub Ervatamia divaricata = Tabernaemontana coronaria or its fragrant wood.
沈香, agar-wood, aloe-wood, eagle-wood, agalu, T32n1648_p0433a23. Agalu (Skt aguru) is the fragrant, resinous heartwood of the Agara tree, Aquilaria mallacensis = A. agallocha.
阿浮陀, tumour, polypus, growth, abbuda, T32n1648_p0433b05. Transliteration. The second week, second stage development of the human embryo.
俾尸, lump, piece of flesh, pesi, T32n1648_p0433b06. Transliteration. The third week, third stage development of the human embryo.
阿那, solid, compact mass, ghana, T32n1648_p0433b06. Transliteration. The fourth week, fourth stage development of the human embryo. The variant reading is 啊那.
閻浮提, Rose-apple Isle, jambudīpa, T32n1648_p0412c04. Transliteration.
鈔鑼, gong, copper-gong, T32n1648_p0413a01 footnote. A type of gong. The Visuddhimagga parallel has “saucer,” sarāva.
米篩, winnowing basket, suppa, T32n1648_p0413a01 footnote.
不作, unprepared, not made, akata, T32n1648_p0412c18.

作地, prepared earth, kata pathavi, T32n1648_p0412c18.
不作地, unprepared earth, akata paṭhavī, T32n1648_p0412c15.
非作地, unprepared earth, akata paṭhavī, T32n1648_p0412c18.
欲過患, the disadvantage of sense-pleasures, kāmesu ādīnavaṃ, T32n1648_p0413a06.
出離功德, the benefit of renunciation, nekkhamme ānisaṃsaṃ, T32n1648_p0413a06.
少氣味, of little satisfaction, little enjoyment, appassāda, T32n1648_p0413a07.
多憂, much grief, bahupāyāsa, T32n1648_p0413a07. Text has 多憂苦, while the parallel has bahudukkha bahupāyāsa.
於是處多過患, herein the disadvantage is greater [than the benefit], the disadvantage herein is more, ādīnavo ettha bhiyyo, T32n1648_p0413a07–08.
於是處, herein, ettha, T32n1648_p0413a07.
多, more, greater, bhiyyo, bhīyo, T32n1648_p0413a07. Normally 多 = bahu, much.
骨喻, similar to a skeleton, the simile of the skeleton, aṭṭhisaṅkhalūpama, T32n1648_p0413a08.
骨, skeleton, aṭṭhisaṅkhala, T32n1648_p0413a08, T32n1648_p0426a26.
肉揣, similar to a piece of flesh, the simile of the piece of flesh, maṃsapesūpama T32n1648_p0413a08.
逆風把火喻, similar to a torch carried against the wind (Chinese), similar to a grass torch (Pali), the simile of the grass torch , tiṇukkūpama, 隨燒, burning that which follows, burning over, anudahana, T32n1648_p0413a09
炎炭喻, similar to glowing embers (Chinese), similar to a pit of glowing embers (Pali), the simile of the pit of glowing embers, aṅgārakāsūpama, T32n1648_p0413a10.
炎炭, glowing embers (Chinese), pit of glowing embers (Pali), aṅgārakāsu, T32n1648_p0413a10.
夢喻, similar to a dream, the simile of the dream , supinakūpama, T32n1648_p0413a10.
借物喻, similar to borrowed goods, the simile of the borrowed goods, yācitakūpama, T32n1648_p0413a11.
借物, borrowed goods, yācitaka, T32n1648_p0413a11.
借, borrowed, yācita, T32n1648_p0413a11.
勢不得久, the power is not lasting, T32n1648_p0413a11. The Pali parallel has tāvakālika, "for the time being, temporary."
樹果喻, similar to a tree with fruit, the simile of the tree with fruit , rukkhaphalūpama, T32n1648_p0413a11.
所折, broken off, snapped off, bhañjana, T32n1648_p0413a12.
刀喻, similar to a sword, the simile of the sword, asisūnūpama, T32n1648_p0413a12.
槊喻, similar to a spear, the simile of the spear, sattisūlūpama, T32n1648_p0413a12.
斬斫, chopping, adhikuṭṭana, T32n1648_p0413a12.
槊, spearing, piercing with a spear, vinivijjhana, T32n1648_p0413a13.
毒蛇頭喻, similar to a venomous serpent's head, the simile of the venomous serpent's head, sappasirūpama, T32n1648_p0413a13.
可怖畏, fearful, sappaṭibhaya, T32n1648_p0413a13.
作意方便, skill in attending, manasikāra-kosalla, T32n1648_p0413b22.
忘失, forgetfulness, losing mindfulness, satimuṭṭha ?, T32n1648_p0413a22 有嗔恚, with defect, with fault, sadosa, T32n1648_p0413a29. The antonym of 無嗔恚, without defect, niddosa.
有嗔恚 means "with anger," = Pali sadosa, savyāpāda. However, in Pali sadosa can have two quite different meanings. Besides "with anger" (= Skt sa-dveṣa), e.g. at D I 80, sadosa can also mean "with defect" (Skt sadoṣa); e.g. as sadosattā at A I 112. Cf. dosadosa, "the defect of anger" at Dhp 357.
Cf. M-a III 447: yatheva hi tiṇakaṭṭhupādānaṃ paṭicca jalamāno aggi dhūmachārikaṅgārānaṃ atthitāya sadoso hoti, evamevaṃ pañca kāmaguṇe paṭicca uppannā pīti jātijarābyādhimaraṇasokādīnaṃ atthitāya sadosā. Nidd-a II 421: Akusalaṃ sadosattā sāvajjaṃ; kusalaṃ niddosattā anavajjaṃ.
無嗔恚, without defect, without fault, niddosa, T32n1648_p0413a29. = Skt nirdoṣa. The antonym of 有嗔恚, with defect, sadosa; see note on有嗔恚.
非可愛果, a disagreeable fruit, a disagreeable result, aniṭṭhaphala, T32n1648_p0413b01.
可愛果, an agreeable fruit, an agreeable result, iṭṭhaphala, T32n1648_p0413b01.
婬欲, sensual desire, kāmacchanda, T32n1648_p0415b02.
經, exposition, treatise, niddesa, T32n1648_p0416b28. Cf. 論.
論, exposition, treatise, niddesa, T32n1648_p0416a21.
於此論中, in this treatise, imasmiṃ niddese?, T32n1648_p0416a21.
梁, Liáng, T32n1648_p0399c11. Liáng was a small, short-lived state that existed during 502–557 CE in South China, in a period of disunity called the North-South dynasties The emperor of Liáng was Emperor Wu, see 梁武帝.
大光, great light, T32n1648_p0399c11. A Chinese epithet for the name Sāriputta, also called Upatissa, the Buddha's principal disciple. From the title page it appears the Chinese applied this name also to the arahant Upatissa, 優波底沙, the author of Vimuttimagga, 解脫道論, who was presumably named after the original Sāriputta.
扶南, Funan, T32n1648_p0399c12. Transliteration: Fúnán. The Chinese name for an maritime kingdom at the Mekong delta area in modern Cambodia and Southwest Vietnam. Maritime traders who went from India and Sri Lanka, etc., to China and vice versa with spices, silk, etc., stopped over at its seaport, often waiting for several months for the monsoon winds to shift to continue their journey east or west. The Funan port was probably located at the present town of Óc-eo in Vietnam. At the height of its power in the third century CE, the Funan kingdom controlled most of the ports of Southeast Asia, including the Malay Peninsula. There was considerable Indian cultural influence in Funan. Its kings sent envoys with tributes to the emperors of China, and Buddhist monks such as Saṅghapāla (僧伽婆羅) and Mandra (曼陀羅) went to China from Funan. (T32n1648_p0399c12, ZS01n0001_p0248a13–49a13, ZS01n0001_p0402a27–28.)
(Cf. Nicholas Tarling, Cambridge history of South East Asia, Cambridge 1999, p. 192–196. Keat Gin Ooi, Southeast Asia: a Historical Encyclopedia, Vol. 1, Santa Barbara, 2004, p. 529–30. Philip Dawson, The Art of Southeast Asia, London 1990, p.21. George Coedès, The Indianized States of Southeast Asia, Hawaii, 1968, pp.57–58. R.A.L.H. Gunawardana, "Changing Patterns of Navigation in the Indian Ocean and their Impact on Pre-colonial Sri Lanka," from Satish Chandra (ed), The Indian Ocean: Explorations in History, Commerce and Politics, New Delhi, 1987. Michael Vickery "Funan Reviewed: Deconstructing the Ancients," BEFEO, 2003, Vol. 90, pp.101–143. Paul Pelliot, "Le Fou-nan." BEFEO III, 1903, pp. 248-303. R.C. Majumdar, "Kambuja-desa or an Ancient Hindu Colony in Cambodia," Sir William Meyer Lectures, 1942–43 Madras 1944.)
動, to stir up, to shake up, to agitate, khobeti, T32n1648_p0418b01. Found with the causative 令 as 令覺觀動, "to stir up thinking and exploring."
懈懶, indolent, idle, kosajja ?, T32n1648_p0413b26. The opposite of 散亂, wavering, distracted, vikkhepa. 懶懈怠 is used instead at T32n1648_p0413c06.
離亂, abandoning of wavering, abandoning of distractedness, vikkhepappahāna, T32n1648_p0413b29.
最速作精進, overexertion, over-endeavour, excessive application of energy, too much exercise of energy, accāraddhavīriya, T32n1648_p0413b29. Cf. 急疾精進= accāraddhavīriya at T32n1648_p0444b02.
遲作精進, overly sluggish exertion, overly sluggish endeavour, too sluggish application of energy, atilīnavīriya, T32n1648_p0413c01. Cf. 遲緩精進 = atilīnavīriya at T32n1648_p0444b02.
急疾, quickly, forcefully, sahasā ?, T32n1648_p0417c13–14. The opposite of 悠悠, slowly, unhurriedly.
悠悠, slowly, unhurriedly, dandha ?, T32n1648_p0417c14. The opposite of 急疾, quickly, forcefully.
最下, depression, T32n1648_p0413c10. The opposite of elation, 最高, T32n1648_p0413c07. Cf. 下, depression, T32n1648_p0413c11.
下, depression, T32n1648_p0413c11. The opposite of elation, 高, T32n1648_p0413c09.
最高, elation, T32n1648_p0413c07. The opposite of 最下, depression, T32n1648_p0413c10. Cf. 高, elation, T32n1648_p0413c09.
清淨一切入, beautiful kasiṇa, subhakasiṇa, T32n1648_p0438b06.

三十二行, the thirty-two aspects (of the body), dvattiṃsākāra. The 32 parts of the body that are contemplated through recollection of the body, kāyagatāsati.
T32n1648_p0432c26
The 32 aspects are given at T32n1648_p0432c24–26:
胕毛爪齒皮肉筋骨髓腦肝心脾胕膽胃肪膏腦膜大腸小腸屎尿膿血淡污涎淚涕唾,
(1) 髮，head-hair, kesā, (2) 毛，body-hair, lomā, (3) 爪，nails, nakhā (4) 齒，teeth, dantā, (5) 皮，skin, taca, (6) 肉，flesh, maṃsa, (7) 筋，sinews, nahāru, (8) 骨, bones, aṭṭh
(9) 髓, bone-marrow, aṭṭhimiñja, (10) 腦, brain, maṭṭha, (11) 肝, liver, yakana, (12) 心, heart, hadaya, (13) 脾, spleen, pihaka (14) 胕, lungs, papphāsa [v.l. 肺] (15) 膽, bile, gall pitta (16) 胃, stomach, udara (17) 肪, fat, meda, (18) 膏, grease, vasā (19) 腦膜, brain-membrane/meninges, maṭṭhaluṅga (20) 大腸 large intestine, anta (21) 小腸, small intestine, antaguṇa [= mesentry in Pali] (22) 屎, excrement, dung, karīsa (23) 尿, urine, mutta (24) 膿, pus, pubba (25) 血, blood, lohita (26) 淡 phlegm, semha [v.l. 痰] (27) 污, sweat, seda (28) 涎, synovial fluid, lasikā (29) 淚 tears, assu (30) 涕, nasal mucus, siṅghānikā (31) 唾，saliva, khela.
T32n1648_p0432c24–26.

Difference with Pali list: No pleura, kilomaka, and 腎, kidneys, vakka. Includes 胃, stomach, udara and 腦, brain, maṭṭha.
The omission of 腎, kidneys, vakka, and being replaced with brain, maṭṭha, would be due to a misunderstanding of or corruption.

At T32n1648_p0438c27–29 the 32 aspects are given as consisting of the earth-element and the water-element:

於此身髮毛爪齒皮肉筋脈骨髓腎心肝胕脾胃大腸小腸胞屎腦 ... 膽唾膿血汗脂淚肪水唾涕涎
1) 髮，head-hair, kesa, (2) 毛，body-hair, loma, (3) 爪，nails, nakhā (4) 齒，teeth, dantā, (5) 皮，skin, taca, (6) 肉，flesh, maṃsa, (7) 筋脈，sinews, nahāru, (8) 骨, bones, aṭṭhi (9) 髓, bone-marrow, aṭṭhimiñja, (10) 腎, kidneys, vakka, (11) 心, heart, hadaya, (12) 肝, liver, yakana, (13) 胕/ 肺, lungs, papphāsa, (14) 脾, spleen, pihaka (15) 胃, stomach, udara (16) 大腸 large intestine, anta (17) 小腸, small intestine, antaguṇa (18) 胞 , stomach-contents, gorge, udariya [胞 = udara misunderstood as gabbha, womb], (19), 屎, excrement, dung, karīsa (20) 腦, brain, maṭṭha (21) 膽, bile, gall, pitta (22) 唾，saliva, khela [唾 also found as no. 30, but here it would mean 淡/痰 phlegm, semha, which otherwise is missing from this list and is found after 血, blood, lohita , at T32n1648_p0432c24–26.] (23) 膿, pus, pubba (24) 血, blood, lohita (25) 汗，sweat, seda (26) 脂, grease, vasā (27) 淚 tears, assu (28) 肪, fat, meda, (29) 水, urine, mutta, (30) 唾, saliva, khela (31) 涕, nasal mucus, siṅghānikā , (32) 涎, synovial fluid, lasikā.
T32n1648_p0438c27–29.
Difference with Pali list: No pleura, kilomaka. Includes 胃, stomach, udara. Difference with the list at T32n1648_p0432c24–26: Includes 腎, kidneys, vakka and omits 腦膜, meninges, maṭṭhaluṅga.

The order in the Paṭisambhidāmagga and other post canonical Pali texts and commentaries is (1) head-hairs (kesā), (2) body-hairs (lomā), (3) nails (nakhā), (4) teeth (dantā), (5) skin (taca), (6) flesh (maṃsa), (7) sinews (nahārū), (8) bones (aṭṭhī), (9) bone-marrow (aṭṭhimiñjā), (10) kidneys (vakka), (11) heart (hadaya), (12) liver (yakana), (13) pleura (kilomaka), (14) spleen (pihaka), (15) lungs (papphāsa), (16) bowels (anta), (17) mesentry, entrails (antaguṇa), (18) stomach-contents, gorge (udariya), (19) excrement (karīsa), (20) bile (pitta), (21) phlegm (semha), (22) pus (pubba), (23) blood (lohita), (24) sweat (seda), (25) fat (meda), (26) tears (assu), (27) grease (vasā), (28) saliva (khela), (29) nasal mucus (siṅghānikā), (30) synovial fluid (lasikā), (31) urine (mutta), (32) meninges (maṭṭhaluṅga).

Meninges (maṭṭhaluṅga) is not found in earlier Pali canonical literature and according to the Visuddhimagga (VIII.44) it is included in bonemarrow (aṭṭhimiñjā) in the former list.
There is some confusion about the meaning of maṭṭhaluṅga. According to MW mastakaluṅga means “membrane of the brain” in Sanskrit, but Buddhaghosa's graphic explanation of the Pali term maṭṭhaluṅga at Vism XI.68 ascertains that it means “brain” in Pali. 腦膜 means “brain-membrane” in Chinese.

Tibetan Bapat Vimuttimagga:

ḥ = '

ṅ = ng

ñ = ny

ś = sh

ź = zh

See http://web.otani.ac.jp/cgi-bin/peking.cgi:
rnam par grol ba'i lam las sbyangs pa'i yon tan bstan pa zhes bya ba / (vimuktimArgadhautaguNanirdeza-nAma.)

[Tr] vidyAkaraprabha., [Tr] dpal brtsegs /

[P. No.] 0972, mdo sna tshogs, shu 137a3-149a3 (vol.39, p.57)

[D. No.] 0306, mngo sde, sa 131b1-139a4. [N] la 199a1-218a1. [Kinsha] –

T	W	T	W	T	W	T	W
ཀ	ka	ཁ	kha	ག	ga	ང	nga

ཅ	ca	ཆ	cha	ཇ	ja	ཉ	nya
ཏ	ta	ཐ	tha	ད	da	ན	na
པ	pa	ཕ	pha	བ	ba	མ	ma
ཙ	tsa	ཚ	tsha	ཛ	dza	ཝ	wa
ཞ	zha	ཟ	za	འ	'a	ཡ	ya
ར	ra	ལ	la	ཤ	sha	ས	sa
ཧ	ha	ཨ	a

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Wylie_transliteration