To: All Personnel Everywhere

It has come to the management's attention that some individuals have been using foul language in the course of normal conversation between employees. Due to complaints from some of the more easily offended workers, this conduct will no longer be tolerated. We do realize, however, the importance of each person being able to express his/her feelings when communicating with colleagues. Therefore, in those situations demanding strong language, the following coded list should be used:

Old Phrase	New Phrase
