The Three Refuges & The Five Training Precepts

The Three Refuges

I take refuge in the Buddha- the nature of awakeness in myself and every being.

I take refuge in the Dharma- the teachings, the true nature of things.

I take refuge in the Sangha- the community of those on a spiritual path.

For the second time...

For the third time...

The Five Precepts

(To undertake the precepts, repeat each precept after the leader)

1. I undertake the precept to refrain from taking the life of any living creature.

2. I undertake the precept to refrain from taking that which is not given.

3. I undertake the precept to refrain from sexual misconduct. On retreat, I undertake the practice of celibacy.

4. I undertake the precept to refrain from false and harmful speech. On retreat, I undertake the practice of Noble Silence.

5. I undertake the precept to refrain from consuming intoxicating drink and drugs, which lead to heedlessness.
