

Speaker 1 - 01:07

Morning. Thank you. Thank you very much. It is, but it can be difficult to look at yourself and you think you're not getting it and it's uncomfortable and it's frustrating. And I always say, like, even when you feel like you're not getting it, like just being in the. I wish they would talk about it because we could talk about it and help them. I'm trying to encourage them to talk. I bring it up every week. I just basically do like a 10 or 15 in a minutes in the start and then I meditate for 15 or 20 and then we try to talk about it. So just so you know. Yeah, okay. Thank you, though.

Speaker 2 - 02:14

I won't be here right now.

Speaker 1 - 02:16

You won't be here right now.

Speaker 2 - 02:17

I won't be here in your meditation class. But when do you come back again?

Speaker 1 - 02:21

Tuesday.

Speaker 2 - 02:22

I will see you Tuesday then. Okay.

Speaker 1 - 02:24

Yeah. Have a good day.

Speaker 2 - 02:25

Thank you.

Speaker 1 - 02:27

Hello. Good. How you doing? What's your name again? Madeline. Yeah, yeah, just come when you can. Yeah, that's fine.

Speaker 2 - 03:05

I went to the gym, so I was going to shower, but I'm going to make it work.

Speaker 1 - 03:09

No problem. Yeah, handyman. How you doing? Okay. Glad you're here.

Speaker 3 - 03:16

Do this.

Speaker 1 - 03:17

Yeah, let's do this.

Speaker 2 - 03:23

One of these days I'm going to get a shower. I'm too close and I'm in. So I think it's easier if you're, you know, outside.

Speaker 1 - 03:53

First day of fog up here that I've noticed. First day of fog I've noticed.

Speaker 3 - 04:02

In la. It'd be like.

Speaker 1 - 04:08

That where you live. Yeah, yeah. And you're fine, man. I got to go down there for work frequently two years back, so I got to know it a little bit.

Speaker 4 - 04:28

Yeah.

Speaker 3 - 04:32

It's a whole different volume down there.

Speaker 1 - 04:35

You know, it's really, I'm finding more relaxing up here. There's more of a laid back, can be a more laid back attitude, but that's different too. It's funny, you talk to different people and I've always liked the Bay Area kind of relaxation, the liberalism, the openness. But then you talk to certain people and they're like, they're snooty. They don't talk to you. It just depends over there. No talks about San Francisco, you know, about the big, you know. Well, yeah, because what ends up happening, it's more human nature. Like a lot of us get self absorbed into our lives, right. And so, hello. We get so self absorbed. We're not personable because we're in our head and we're thinking about ourselves. And so it can be perceived as that people are snooty because I'm expecting something from you.

Speaker 1 - 05:46

I'm giving out a certain vibe, expecting you to give me that vibe. If you don't give me that vibe, then there's something wrong with you. Right? That's the way we look at the world. And so this fits right in exactly. What I'm trying to point out to you guys is that we're putting out an expectation that may or may not be reasonable. Now it is reasonable for everybody to be kind to each other, but that's not the way of the world. We're all self absorbed. Everybody in this room is thinking about themselves right now, right? And so, but we don't think about that and factor in that in our lives and what's going on. So I used to do an experiment.

Speaker 1 - 06:35

I used to work for CPMC in the go to the hospital and I had to park like a mile away because there was no parking at the hospital. So the employees were parked a mile away. So I walk up Fillmore and as I walked I would say hi to everybody knowing I wasn't going to get a response. But I just wanted to just, it was like a test for me to see, okay, who's going to respond or not. I didn't take it personal when I didn't get a response. But sometimes you'll run into somebody's like, hey, how you doing? You know, I mean, so I was more of a check for me. See, I'm going to point you guys all back to yourself. It's not about what the world's doing, it's about what you're doing, right?

Speaker 1 - 07:28

So this idea of looking at how you are projecting yourself into the world. So it's like if you put project yourself as a victim, then it's like you're waiting for, it's waiting for you, for people to victimize you. And then when you get that, when that happens, then it's all sudden, it's like, oh, you validate your beliefs. This is how we have biases, things so, and that's okay. So this practice, the spiritual practice is to turn inward and see our attitudes, our outlooks, our views, our beliefs of who we think we are. Because that's just a concept too, right? We have this. I talk about the hats that we put on to ourselves. I'm the dad, I have two daughters, son. When I'm around talking to them, I'm the dad. I put on the dad hat.

Speaker 1 - 08:41

So I Wanted to be treated like a dad, want to be respected like a dad. You know what I mean? Right? You know what I mean? And then. And we project that out, but we don't see that we're doing that, right? And same thing with people who are your managers at work, right? They're in the manager role. They want to look good in their role. They want to get promoted. See, there's come, there's an intention. I gotta look good on my bi weekly report that I got to give in to everybody that people's doing what I. We're supposed to be doing. And you see what I'm saying? So there's a expectation there and hello. No, that's fine. Everything's fine. So you see, this is an attitude, a look in a way of looking at ourselves that does it. That is not conditional.

Speaker 1 - 09:45

It's not what other people are doing. The way the world is, are we meeting the world? Well, we're making ourselves a problem. Are we making it more of a problem? If our kids are more interested in their friends, we can't take that personal, right? If people are more interested in themselves, that doesn't mean they're selfish. Well, it is, but that's not really our concern because we're selfish too, right? So this is what mindfulness and awareness, which is what I'm promoting here, right? This practice of meditation, awareness, knowing being, the knowing of what's going on, promoting wisdom, right? Being wise is seeing things clearly from our own perspective, from using our own perspective. Perspective to free ourselves, right? You see what I'm saying? So seeing the way things of nature, right?

Speaker 1 - 10:54

The way things are in nature and seeing how we are, how are we relating to nature. Are we making nature a problem? Right? So old age, sickness and death, I say this over and over. It's going to happen to all of us. It's not special. It's not Andy's sickness, Andy's aging, Andy's death. It's what it is to have a body, to be human. Same thing in nature. So obviously we don't want to just intentionally just kill everybody and get everybody sick. That's not what we're saying. But accepting, hey, just accepting what's going on and knowing. And knowing what we can do. So one of the things that we can do is not make it a problem, right? Because when we make it a problem, then that becomes the problem. That's what you're focusing on, the problem. That's what us and alcoholics do.

Speaker 1 - 12:06

We make ourselves a problem, right? And try not to make what I'm telling you a problem. Okay? You see what I'm saying? Don't make that a problem. It's a fact. I know that my disease made a problem for myself and other people. Now they have to worry about me, right? And how we bring peace to others is when we don't make problems for other people. That's peaceful. In fact, that's how we get our own peace. When we don't make problems for ourselves or other people. So this is a higher bar for ourselves. Instead of playing the victim. I'll say it again, sorry. Instead of being a victim, learn to look at how you are taking in the world. Right? So this is what mindfulness is about, looking at how we take and experience the world.

Speaker 1 - 13:21

So there are some human things that we can come to accept. It's not personal. If you take it personal, then all of a sudden then you've made it personal, right? When it's nature. So trying to. And you can teach yourself and you can see, I can tell you this, that it's not personal. But you can see it yourself if you look. The problem is we don't look. We're putting our feelers out to the world and saying that's unacceptable. Right? We're taking it personal. We're identifying with things. So I'm going to point you back to yourself over and over again, over and over again. Learn from what you're putting out. Try. And this is. I mean, I've been doing this for 20 years. I get caught every day. I get caught every 10 minutes. I try not to make that a problem.

Speaker 1 - 14:24

So what I'm telling you is that this is what I'm doing myself. So this is the essence of what's going on. So the practice is really simple, but very deep. And it can get complicated because we as human beings are complicated, right? We complicate things, right? We do, right? I was at a. Just at a retreat and what they have this Q and A session. And the Q and A session is tell me how this is. Give me. I want to know exactly the way it is. So that. And there's no way that you can really. When you label things and when you try to describe things. We're trying to describe things with language, which is in concepts. Everybody has their own concept of things. Everybody looks at things differently. We have commonality the way we look at things.

Speaker 1 - 15:37

But there's no way that you can really even thinking about who you are. How do you guys know who you are? It's based on how you feel things, your memories, the things you feel you've done right. These things are how you put yourself, your ideas of who you are together. But those things are always changing. You're running out of chairs, huh? We have another one. We got another one. It's okay. Got a full house today. Thank you. This should be good. We can bring one over there. We're good? Yeah, let's hike one over there. Hello. So I've been. I've been saying some things. And I know it might be hard to hear, but I feel I need to just say it straight. I've always been straight. And I know you're. A few of you are new, so.

Speaker 1 - 16:43

And some of you have been hearing me say this for a few weeks here, are kind of getting the drift here. But, you know, I'm. I'm. I'm gonna be pointing. I have to say it again, Sorry. It's that I'm going to be pointing to us looking at how we look at the world instead of how the world is affecting us. Okay. I think it's exactly. So I'm going to be pointing back to us looking at us and not the stories going out that we're trying to. If you look at the brain, when you guys are thinking about things, one of the brain. What does the brain try to do? It tries to figure out stuff. That's what it does. The brain is figuring out stuff. So you can watch this. So that's what thinking is about.

Speaker 1 - 17:39

When you dream at night, a lot of what you're doing, the brain is doing when you're dreaming is you're working through scenarios, different ways that life is going through your dream state. So actually that's something that you can also look at and just see how the brain works. Anyway, I don't want to get into that. So mindfulness, knowing what's going on as it's happening, what's going on, whatever is going on. Like right now, you guys are all listening to me talk. So you don't have to listen to what I'm saying. Just listen to the fact that you're hearing. Notice that you're hearing me. So that's your direct experience. You're hearing me talk like you're hearing the heater there, right? You're hearing the heater. That's what's going on. If the heater is annoying you, then the heater is annoying you. You see what I'm saying?

Speaker 1 - 18:51

You are reaching out to the sound of the heater making sound, which is impersonal. Again, I want to point this out. What I'm saying is not directed to any one of you as some kind of judgment. I'm just making some facts, stating some things. And you, when you hear what I say, then you're like, yes or no? I don't believe that. Or, you know, you're having. You're going through that. So pay attention to what you're adding to things. Okay? The idea is that it's just a sound. You're just hearing things. It's just a thought. That's an idea. It's just a thought. If you can hear, if you can see, if you can know your thinking, then you can't be those things. You are not your thoughts. We identify with those thoughts and believe those thoughts and make those things real for you.

Speaker 1 - 19:58

So if you believe it's true, then it's true because you believe it, whether it's true or not. If you believe it's true, then it's true for you. But then you own it. You own your thoughts if you believe them. But if you can just allow your thoughts to be on their own, to come and go. I have crazy thoughts. They come up. I don't believe them because I say, that's a pretty damn crazy thought. And I let it go. But if I take a thought and I say, wow, I'm a shitty person because I had that thought, I just owned it. Now I've put something onto me that's not true. I've identified with it and made it something for me. So that can get. It sounds like it's really complicated, but it's not. Just paying. Again, paying attention.

Speaker 1 - 21:00

We're going to meditate here in a second. Paying attention. And I'm going to direct you on the things that is suggested we pay attention to. And it's just the bare bones of our experience, what we're experiencing. When you look at what we're experiencing, notice what we're experiencing. This knower, remember, this knower is not what is being known. It knows what's going on. Okay? And if you guys have any questions about that, please bring it up. Okay? Don't be embarrassed. This is where you shouldn't be embarrassed to talk about this stuff. You guys are talking about what you noticed together. When you're out of this room, you guys are paying attention to what addicts and alcoholics go through our way. Our minds work, you know, the situations we get in. So you guys are paying attention to that stuff and talking about that stuff already.

Speaker 1 - 21:58

But I want to take it down to the if I can. To your direct experience of what you're experiencing. I saw this and my mind did this. You see what I'm getting at? Not that person said that. And we got into an argument, right? That's way down the road. There's a couple steps we missed. So we want to go back to the raw experience. Okay. All right.

Speaker 3 - 22:27

So.

Speaker 1 - 22:30

Meditation, mindfulness, you're interested. Hopefully I've piqued your interest. That's one of the first things I'm doing here, is I'm trying to pique your interest in what you're doing. This sounds interesting to you, and you feel the need to do it, right? Because if you're interested in, then you're going to try to apply it. If you have your own opinions about what I'm saying and you think I'm full of shit. Sorry for the language. Then you're probably not listening to me already and you're ready to get out of here, but you're embarrassed. You can leave. You want. I'm here to try to present this so that you can help me. Okay? So please don't take this personal. Okay, so you're interested, you're aware. So awareness, knowing what's going on, this is what you're doing.

Speaker 1 - 23:21

So ask yourself, as things are happening to you, what's going on?

Speaker 4 - 23:25

What's going on?

Speaker 1 - 23:27

What am I aware of? Then you're in the right direction. Okay? Mindfulness is remembering to do this. Remember over and over. Puppy on the paper, puppy on the paper. Remember what we're doing. Remember what Andy just talked to me about. Oh, he just talked about that. And I'm doing it right? See, this is where you reinforce your awareness of things. So. Okay, and then clearly knowing you don't have to figure out what's going on. If you're figuring things out, then you're down in this conceptual phase. If you don't know what's going on. Don't go any further than that. Okay? Okay. So why don't we come into our bodies and I'm generating a lot of energy here, so. So I'm going to bring some calming energy to myself too. Maybe you might take a couple deep breaths.

Speaker 1 - 24:33

The breath is the key here, especially the out breath, the letting go portion, bringing in healing energy, life energy that gives us life and then letting go.

Speaker 4 - 24:52

Right? Keeping this awareness in the body.

Speaker 1 - 25:02

Maybe noticing any. Notice your mind right now. Are you energized?

Speaker 4 - 25:10

Are you tired or you.

Speaker 1 - 25:17

Interested?

Speaker 4 - 25:19

Whatever your mind state is right now if you're contented just taking a quick. And then being aware of your sensations.

Speaker 1 - 25:36

The things you're aware of, like the pressure of the floor on your feet and your butt on the cushion, pressure on your lower back, maybe the tension. If there's any tension in your shoulders.

Speaker 4 - 25:56

And neck, in your temples, your eyes, your forehead, just looking for any kind of. You're aware of any tension there.

Speaker 1 - 26:15

Allow it to maybe move your shoulders to let it release. And then when you let go what.

Speaker 4 - 26:23

You can, just keeping this awareness in the body. This is your home base. Allowing the breathing to come more to the forefront. This is what happens when you let.

Speaker 1 - 26:53

Go of everything else.

Speaker 4 - 26:56

The natural breathing comes more prominent. Remembering to just know what's going on. This knowing quality and connecting with the breath. Maybe just knowing the rhythm of the breathing. You might also be aware of the quality of your breathing. Is it relaxed or is it tight, deep or is it shallow?

Speaker 1 - 28:25

You might be able to be aware where you're feeling the breathing.

Speaker 4 - 28:30

Mind changes around depending. So you might fill in the diaphragm best or in the lungs or at the tip of the nose. Just this knowing quality of where you're experiencing the breathing. Paying attention to anything that might be taking you away from being able to stay with your breathing. The habits of the mind. Everything is okay here. Just accept this receptive accepting of what is being aware of feeling either sensations in the body, pressures, unpleasant feelings, or maybe pleasant feelings. Being aware of this, how perception works, which is labeling it. If you're having thinking going on, just know that you're thinking. Either planning, mind or maybe the mind is being resistant. Again, this is where we don't take things personally. We just know what is it. Keeping the anchor within the body and with the breathing.

Speaker 4 - 31:51

So if something takes you away from the breathing, acknowledge it, bow to it. And when it passes away, coming back. If you're finding this difficult, it's okay for you to just sit and be present. You can be mindful. However conditions are. This is data collection. You're not going to figure it out here. It Sometimes when you look at things in a way with this knowing quality, when you look at them, shine.

Speaker 1 - 34:54

A light on them.

Speaker 4 - 34:59

They can just disappear. Other times when you look at things, you can feel like it's amplifying. So knowing where you're putting your attention to pay attention to what you're putting your attention to it. This is very important that we understand that we're here just to know what's going on. That's our Purpose in meditation. Part of the practice of meditation, though, is there's an inner dialogue where you're aware of something, this perception labels it. And then you're learning to talk to yourself in ways that are encouraging. So watching the way you talk to yourself is a part of this being aware. The things we resist can increase. We're giving energy to those things. So be careful. Watch what you're. Where you're putting your attention, how you're putting your attention.

Speaker 1 - 39:44

It.

Speaker 4 - 40:17

The way that we have been thinking, we've been doing for a very long time. So it's a habit. So we're here to learn about those things. Learn to come back to this breathing. Just pay attention to the breathing. This aspect of getting to know your breathing. You can also be creative with this. So thinking of the whole body, breathing energy, filling the whole body. So looking for energy in the body and allowing where you feel this energy to spread. You could also think of breath coming in through your feet, into your legs, into your hips and into your torso and out your arms. Or you can think of your breath energy coming through the top of your head and out your neck or coming in through the arms and out your back. Practice with this. See what works for you in the moment.

Speaker 4 - 44:06

This gives you something for your mind to do other than to think about itself. If you have something that you feel is a particular problem that you have, then think about including breathing into that. Only you know what your body needs and what you need. Trust in this intuitive awareness of what you need. Whole body breathing could be like a massage. You're massaging the insides with your. But with your own mind. If you have too much energy, you can think about calming, bringing calming into the body. If you're tired, you could think about bringing energy and wakefulness. Think about bright or light or maybe your dog or your kids. Something that interests you. This is. We're learning to be skillful.

Speaker 1 - 47:03

It.

Speaker 4 - 47:48

Wherever you're at, just be aware wherever you're at. So open it up for any kind of questions or comments or things you were aware of or things that might be difficult for you or this is your time. Yeah, go ahead.

Speaker 2 - 49:42

But by the end I was able to reel it in and then for the last maybe five minutes. That's better than no minutes.

Speaker 1 - 49:53

Yeah. So just one thing I want to say. I talk about meditation, especially at the very beginning of every single sit, depending on where you come into it. So you come into it however you come into it. I think of it as a submarine. You're getting in the submarine. The Water, it's choppy. You're getting in. It's kind of bumpy and everything. And then all of a sudden, you start going down under the ocean into the water. It's even more bumpy. You're going in, you're aware of things. Remember I was trying to give you Clint clues. Like, when you put your attention to something, it get stronger. Right. So you're paying attention to now going. You're paying attention to that now.

Speaker 1 - 50:39

So all of a sudden, it feels like it's amplifying, but it's just because you're bringing your awareness to it that it appears like it's amplifying. Right. So then patience comes in. And if you can wait 5, 10, 15, it may be the whole sit, but that's because just that's the nature of the way where you're at. Okay, but when's that happening? Is as you. You can then work with this. And there's this idea where we allow things to just go away. Or you keep ringing the bell. That's what I like to call ringing the bell. Like, if you have some itch and you keep on scratching it. You have a five, and you keep on scratching it.

Speaker 2 - 51:26

I don't know what it was, but. Which helped me to bring it, you know, like the awareness.

Speaker 1 - 51:35

Right.

Speaker 2 - 51:36

Like, this isn't anything that I can control.

Speaker 4 - 51:39

Right.

Speaker 1 - 51:41

Data collection, I like to call it. You're here collecting data of the way you tick. Yeah.

Speaker 2 - 51:55

I'm proud of myself for sitting with it and not giving up because it took a long time for me to get there.

Speaker 1 - 52:01

I'll just say that even if you fail in your own mind, you may have a sit. Like I've said there I've had sits where all of a sudden I'll have, like, an emotion. And I used to, like, stop right then. Boom. I can't deal with it, so you stop meditating. But I came back the next day.

Speaker 4 - 52:22

And the next day and the next.

Speaker 1 - 52:23

Day, and it kept on happening. Two weeks later, I'm starting to be with it a little bit better, but it's still doing the same thing. But again, data collection. Whenever things hit the fan, I stop. So then I say, okay, this is what I do. Let me just find. Try and stay with this for 30 seconds. Let me stay for this for another minute. Let me stay for another five minutes. See, this is where it gets creative, where it's a practice. It's not like you're going to all get enlightened and float in the air in one Sit. Right. That's unrealistic. You guys have been thinking the way you guys have been thinking your whole life. Yeah.

Speaker 3 - 53:11

Go ahead. Are you saying like.

Speaker 1 - 53:31

Yep.

Speaker 3 - 53:32

You try to say that's the process to try and clamp on those.

Speaker 4 - 53:40

No.

Speaker 1 - 53:40

Be aware of it. So I came. When I first I got sober at 40, now 60, I didn't think I could meditate when I went in. I did not believe I was a meditator at all. Okay? So I believe that I could not meditate. There's. There's no way. And there are other things like that. I believe. I believe that I was a smoker. I identified as a smoker for 30 years. I didn't believe that I could not be a smoker. I haven't smoked in 15 years. But I'm not tooting my horn here. I'm just trying to say is that you have a certain belief that may or may not even be true. That's why I talked about. You identify with it. Right? So broadening what you think you know and say, why don't you suggest, well, I think that I am a perpetual thinker.

Speaker 1 - 54:44

But by the way, everybody in here is a perpetual thinker, okay? That's what our brains do. You are just. You're. What I would suggest is that maybe you identify with your thinking and you're not very content with your thinking. Yeah, yeah, I understand that. What I'm saying is that you can bring awareness. Just awareness of that. Just this awareness. Awareness. Awareness. Awareness, Right. And then. And then just bringing this awareness. I've said it again. There's certain things I say a lot. It's like banging your head against the wall. You bang your head against the wall. You bang your head against the wall. You think it's normal for you to bang your head against the wall. You start having judgments about you're banging your head against your wall. Got a whole story about why you bang your head against the wall, right?

Speaker 1 - 55:38

You develop this identity of doing that. But if you just watch what's going on, then all of a sudden there's a wisdom that we're trying to activate that is not your thinker. Again, your thinker is not going to get you out of this. That's part of the problem is you rely on this. You are not just the thought, you're just not the thinker. There's more to you. You have instincts, you have hormones. We react to things in the world, right? All society has an impact on us. There's all kinds of things that are flavoring Andy to Make Andy who he is. Most of it I'm not in control of. In fact, very little if none, I'm in control of, right? But because you identify with it, then you've made it something solid, which is not solid, right? You see what I'm saying?

Speaker 1 - 56:43

So your freedom, that is what you got to work with. And for me, I have, like, pain was my thing. Pain, right? Guess what?

Speaker 4 - 56:56

Pain.

Speaker 1 - 56:59

Has been my object the whole time. And it's actually your way out, too. So you're thinking. Pay attention to your thinking. Pay attention to what you're thinking, how you're thinking. And all of a sudden you'll say, hey, man, those crazy thoughts keep on coming up, but you don't have to believe them. Test it out. You know what I'm saying? See when you believe them or not, right? This is a test, right? You're here. You're a researcher. You're the observer. Be the observer, right? Be the observer. It's really. This is what I'm trying to get over. You observe what's going on. Observe. We observe how other people behave. I see how you behave. And you behave. You behave. There's a bunch of addicts and alcoholics here. This is what addicts and alcoholics. How we behave, right? It's not personal.

Speaker 1 - 57:58

It's only personal because you take it personal. So try to, in nature, think of it as nature. This is what human beings do, right? All human beings think. We have brains. We all see, we all hear, we all feel. Right? It's not personal to you, right? So paying attention to these things are how you can. This is how you free yourself, basically, and give yourself that gift of getting to know who you are. Put five minutes just being with yourself, not doing something else, not getting on your phone, looking at the news or going on the Internet, or needing to talk to somebody else. Because you're trying to distract yourself from your own thoughts and who you are by getting involved in somebody else's story, Right? And again, I'm not faulting anybody here.

Speaker 1 - 59:02

I'm just saying these are the things that we do to distract ourselves from ourselves. See, that's what I'm saying. You can't wait to go back to your drug. No, I'm just kidding. No, you're not kidding. I've heard it so many times. Go ahead.

Speaker 2 - 59:27

To move into that one, though, because I had two. Two experiences in the meditation. One is because I started on Friday. I speak Saturday. Saturday. I recognize that I'm already in my future.

Speaker 1 - 59:45

Good. You recognize it? Yeah.

Speaker 2 - 59:47

One is because I'm already. I'm not feeling anxious about it. I'm already like one. One is like I'm planning, like what I need to watch out for.

Speaker 1 - 59:57

Okay, that's good.

Speaker 2 - 59:57

And oh, I'm excited. My husband, the puppies. But the other one that like meditation is like I can actually go and think about it. And then I had to bring myself back to being in the present. And it's like occupying my time. It's actually being a time suck for me. And I don't want to do that.

Speaker 1 - 01:00:15

Yeah, that's normal, by the way. Yeah, we're all. See, that's something we can pay attention to when we're thinking about our past. It's normally pretty negative, right? Because we don't remember all the positive shit we did. We only remember the negative stuff. Right. That's where brains are. Velcro for shit negativity and Teflon for positivity. Yeah, shit negativity. Right, Right. So guess what? When you think and you think about something negative, that's freaking normal. Right? So. But we so overcome that. Be kind to somebody. Say hello. Take it. You know what I'm saying? You build self esteem by doing esteemable acts. And guess what? Remember it. Don't tell everybody how great I am because I said hello to you. Right? When I'm, you know, being kind. Show notice how it affects your demeanor and who you are.

Speaker 1 - 01:01:15

When you're kind to people, you feel good about yourself. You don't need validation from anybody else. Right. But if you're sitting around being grumpy and pissy to everybody, you're paying for it. You pay for it too. You pay for it first. Whether. If I don't listen to your negativity, That's a gift you're trying to give me. Whose gift is it? Your gift. Have your negativity. That's what I want to point out. For us to be responsible for what we're putting out in the world and learning to use it as a way to free ourselves. Okay? Use it as a way to free yourself. When your disease tells you it's good for you to use. Listen to that. But that doesn't mean you have to act on it. It's the same thing. It's the same thing.

Speaker 1 - 01:02:11

Knowing what's coming on and just accepting that it's there. Now if you resist it.

Speaker 4 - 01:02:18

Then you're.

Speaker 1 - 01:02:19

Feeding the energy into it, right? And then all of a sudden you feel compelled to change the way you feel. Right? All of a sudden you start thinking things that aren't necessarily True. I kept you guys to the end today, huh? I don't have my pen with me, so I'm gonna have touch yours. It's great being here with you guys. I hope you got something out of this. Yeah, you're welcome. See what's today? Six. Six. Thank you, sir. You're welcome. Okay, let me borrow hers then. Glad you came, Nick. You brought your sheets. Job. I'm working on stuff. It may have been hard for you, but you're here.

Speaker 4 - 01:03:22

Thank you.

Speaker 1 - 01:03:25

Hello. Good. Thank you very much.

Speaker 2 - 01:03:34

Feeling I wanted to get out.

Speaker 1 - 01:03:38

You're welcome. I hope you got something out of it. Thank you. You're welcome. Here we go. Hello there. How are you? Good. You? Phil. Good. What? Sorry. For what? No. Oh, that's all right. Thank you for being here. I hope you got something out of it. Good. Hi. Thank you. I'm okay. I actually have a migraine all morning, but I'm working through it. Oh, that's all right.

Speaker 2 - 01:04:17

I have no idea.

Speaker 1 - 01:04:19

Yeah, I sprayed my sinuses and hopefully it's going to lighten up. No, talking actually has vibrations, and so it loosens things up, too. So I've been doing a lot of talking here in the last few minutes. So loosen things up. I'll be here Tuesday. Thank you.

Speaker 4 - 01:04:43

Thank you, sir.

Speaker 1 - 01:04:53

And then I was on the fourth. You were here, too? Yeah, that's right. I'll give you an extra one there.

Speaker 4 - 01:04:58

You're welcome.

Speaker 1 - 01:05:07

How you doing?

Speaker 3 - 01:05:09

Doing okay? Yeah.

Speaker 1 - 01:05:18

Okay. My mood has been crappy all week. Yeah. I've been having to just, you know, some things you just can't. You just have to accept. You dropped a piece of paper. Yeah. You just have to accept what's there. Right. So I've been distracted. Not. I have a meditation group today that I normally have to prepare for, and I didn't do. Well. I didn't. So it's like. Well, I did, but it was hard. I had to force myself, you know?

Speaker 3 - 01:05:54

Yeah.

Speaker 1 - 01:05:55

So it is what it is. Things always changing, though, and just trying to. We were talked about that the last time. Yeah. And it's changing a lot. So sometimes it could be going, you know, like you said, a period of negativity. And then sometimes there's no mind there. Then there's sometimes a very active. Then there's some good stuff.

Speaker 3 - 01:06:21

If you're like. If you have a meditation thing you need to prepare for, and then if you feel yourself getting stressed out because you want to do a good job.

Speaker 1 - 01:06:33

Yep. That's emotional.

Speaker 3 - 01:06:34

Do you just feel the stress? Be aware of it. And then it's okay. The stress is there.

Speaker 1 - 01:06:41

Yeah. Stress can be a motivator. So there's not necessarily. Stress is not bad. So there's good desire and there's bad desire. Right. Good desire is things that motivate you. Right. So that stress is something that is. I'm taking it in a motivation, foundational thing. You see, I'm saying now, bad desire is when you. I use that for fuel to just. All I care about is doing that. And I'm not balanced. Right. Stress every day or. Right. That I'm not looking at and addressing or give you desires like love. Think of love. If somebody. If somebody loves you, that's great. Cool. But if they're smothering you, it's not good. Right. So that desire is too much risk balance. Right. The appropriate amount. Right.

Speaker 3 - 01:07:38

It's like with alcoholics.

Speaker 1 - 01:07:40

And we want to feel good all the time. Right.

Speaker 3 - 01:07:43

That's not realistic.

Speaker 1 - 01:07:45

Right. No, it isn't. Being able to float. Like, I like to talk of being a duck on the ocean. You know, you're just going up and down with the water and it is. Right. It doesn't worry about being wet. Right. Because that's in its nature. Yeah.

Speaker 3 - 01:08:02

Before I used to think, like, I don't feel good, something's wrong, but it's normal. It's not good all the time. There's something wrong.

Speaker 1 - 01:08:09

There would be something wrong, right? Yeah, that would be. You would probably need some downers or something. You know what I mean? Yeah. Yeah. Have a good day, sir.

Speaker 3 - 01:08:22

Thank you.

Speaker 1 - 01:08:22

Yeah, you're welcome. I'm going. Yeah. I just got a new headlamp that I'm gonna try out. It's gonna be bright enough. It's gonna blow up this whole place. How bright it is. I'll use it Tuesday. And this group on Sundays for me is a little different because I get to see you guys first and then I get to see them. So. Yeah, I'm going there now. Yeah. Yeah. This one I have a 15 minute gap. Usually I'm running in here. I'm like Tuesdays and Fridays. Yeah. See ya, man. You're welcome. It.
